All hastened and ran, as they made their way toward the temple courtyard, in order there to dance the winding dance. And when all had assembled, then the start was made; then began the chanting and the winding dance. And those who had fasted twenty days, and[9] those who had fasted a year, stood aside facing the others. Those who hemmed in [the dancers had[1] their pine cudgels; whosoever tried to leave [the dance] they menaced with the pine cudgels. But one who would [leave to] urinate took off his net cape and his forked heron feather ornament. But one who did not at once obey, who would not be excluded, or who was mischievous, they soundly beat his back therefor, [or] his thighs, [or] his shoulders, and thrust him outside. They cast him out by force; they threw him on his face — he went falling on his face; he fell forth on his ear. No one in their hold took his leave.

The elder brothers of Uitzilopochtli — those who had fasted for a year — were much feared, looked upon with terror and awe, and dreaded. And those at the head, the great leaders, the participants, might leave. They did not detain them. Yet all the small boys, those with the lack of hair at the back of the head, with the back lock of hair, and those with the jar-shaped hair dress — they who had taken a captive with others' help, — the leaders, those called leaders of young men, who were unmarried, who had gone [to war] to take one or two [captives], they also held away. They said to them: "Go along there, knaves! You shall give a good example! Appear not before us!"

9. Yoan is expunged / a the left.

796
778
[293]

Auh in otlatvic in ie ilhujuh ipan, in ioatzinco ie ic quixtlapoa in jvic monezoltia, ixpan oncenpanti quitlenamaquilia, ixpan quimana in izquican ventli in tlacatlaqualli, in tzoalilacatzolli. Auh in jquac in, aocmo quitlecavique, aocmo cacoquixtique in itepeioc: auh in izquich tlacatl in telpopochtequioaque iuhquin nececêquetzalo, iuhquin in ioiolipã in jlhuitlazque, in ilhuitlamatizque, inic quintlattitizque, quintlamaviçoltizq̃, quintlaixtlatizque, in Españoles:

tlatotoca, netlalolo, vmpa izztiova in teuitoalco, inic vmpa necocololoz. Auh in ococenquixoac: nimã ie ic peoalo, ie ic vmpeoa in cuico yoan necocololoz. Auh in mocenpoalçauhque, yoan yoan in mocexiuhçauhque nepan jxtionemj: in tetzaqua imoococquauh, in aquin quiçaznequj ic quitlaieiecalhuia in ococquavitl: auh in aquin maxixaz quitlalitiuh icuechi, yoan iuxtaxel. Auh in aquin çan niman atlatlacamati, in amo-tetlaçaltoca in aquen tlatta, vel ic quicuitlavitequj, quimetzvitequj, cacalhujequj, calitícpa contopeoa, conchiccanaoa, conjxiquetza, mjhixiquetztiuh, nanacazitztiuh aiac temacnaoati:

796
778
335
[785]
[252]
574
[628]

cenca ichoti tlamamauhtiaia, tlamauhtiaia, cemjmacaxoa, cemjmacaxtincatca in jachvan vitzilobuchtli in mocexiuhçauhque. Auh in tlaiocatia in vevei tachcavan, in vevei chiva tel huel quiçaia, amo quintzacujliaia: auh in ie izquich telputzintli, in cuexpaltzine in cuexpaltzitzinequc, yoan in tzotzocolequc, in tepallamanj, in yiaque: in motenoa in telpuchiaque, in oc ic nemj, in oc cacitinemj, in anoço vme cacitinemj no quinzaquaia: quimjlhujaia, vmpa zivã on nocne, anqejenitiria, amo techinto.

[785]
[302]

[p. 52 is blank]

-51-

796 Twentieth Chapter. Here is told how the Spaniards[1] slew and destroyed the Mexicans who were celebrating the Feast of Uitzilopochtli in the place called the Temple Courtyard.

Injc ceppoalli capitulo: vncã mjtoa in quenjn Espanoles qujnmjctiqué, qujmjxtlatique in Mexica, in qujlhujqujxtiliaia Vitzilobuchtli in vncã mjtoaia Teuitzoalco.

726 And after this, when already the feast was taking place, all were dancing and singing, and there was song with dance. The song roared.

When now it was time, and the moment was opportune for the Spaniards to slay them, then they issued forth girt for battle; they came to block everywhere the ways leading out and in, [called] Quauhquiuac, Tecpantzinco, Acatl yiacapan, and Tezcacoac.[2] And when they had closed them off and also various [other] places, [the people] were contained, [so that] nowhere could they get out.

Auh in ie iuhquj, in ie ilhujtlamacho, in ie netotilo in ie cujco, in ie cujcoanolo: in cujcatl, iuhqujn zazamacatimanj.

In ie inmã, in otlainmantic injc temjctizque in Españoles: njman ie ic oalquiça omoiauchichiuhque, ocontzatzaquaco, in jzquicampa quixoaia, calacoaia, in quauhquijiaoac tecpantzinco, acatl yiacapan, Tezcacoac. Auh in oõcõzatzacque: no izquicã momanque, aocac vel hoalquiça.

And this having been done, they then entered the temple courtyard to slay them. They whose task it was to kill them went only afoot, each with [his] leather shield, some with their iron-studded shields, and each with iron sword. Then they surrounded those who danced whereupon they went among the drums. Then they struck the arms of the one who beat the drums; they severed both his hands, and afterwards struck his neck, [so that] his neck [and head] flew off, falling far away. Then they pierced them all with iron lances, and they struck each with the iron swords. Of some they slashed open the back, and then their entrails gushed out. Of some, they split the head; they hacked their heads to pieces; their heads were completely cut up. And of some they hit the shoulder; they split open and cut their bodies to pieces. Some they struck in the shank; some on the thigh. Of some, they struck the belly, and then their entrails streamed forth. And when one in vain would run, he would only drag his entrails like something raw, as he tried to flee. Nowhere could he go. And one who tried to go out, there they struck and pierced him.

Auh in ie iuhquj, njmã ie ic calaquj in teuitoalco in temjctizque: in intequjuh in temjctique çan tlacxipãvin imecvachimal, cequj intotopchimal, yoan intetepuzmaquauh: njman ie ic qujniaoalos in mjtotia, njmã ie ic vi in vevetitlan, njmã qujmavitecque in tlatzotzona oalcocotzon vmezti in jmacpal çatepan quiquechvitecque vecu vetzito in jquech: njmã ie muchintin tezxixili tepuztopilticu, yoan teviviteque tepuzmaquauhtica: cequjntin qujncujtlaço. njman valmotoxaoa in incujtlaxcol, cequjntin qujnquatzatzaianque, vel qujtzchilique in intzontecon, vel itzeltix in intzõtecõ. Auh in cequjntin qujmaculhujtecque, oalcacamatlapan, oaltzatzaian in innacaio: cequjntin qujncotzviviteoque, cequjn qujnmetzviviteque, cequjntin qujmjtivitecque, njmã moch oalmotoxaoa in incujtlaxcul. Auh in aca oc nen motlalos in jcujtlaxcul, ça quivilana, iuhqujn zazoquiova in momaquiztizaxequj, aoc campa vel huj: auh in aquin quiçazaequj, vmpa quiçoalhujtequj, quivalxizili.

But some climbed the wall, and so succeeded in taking flight. Some entered the various tribal temples, and there escaped. And some chaded [the Auh cequjntin, tepantli quitlecavique, tel huel momaquiztij: cequjntin calpulco cacalaque vmpa momaquiztique. Auh in cequjntin intlan momaq'a-

1. In the Codex, the title is omitted.

2. These were, respectively, the north gate of the main temple square (see map) to the Ixtapalapan road; the west gate to the Tlacopan road; and, probably, the north and east gates. — Cline, Aztec antiquities.

796 Twenty-eighth Chapter. Here is told how the the Mexicans celebrated the feast of Uei [tecu]ilhuitl when the Spaniards had left Mexico.

Inje cempoalli on chicuasi capitulo: vncan mjtoa in quenjn Mexica vei ilhujtl qujchiuhq̃ in jquac oquizque Españoles vncan mexico.

796 And when [the month of] Uei tecuilhuitl had 778 again arrived, once more the Mexicans celebrated the feast, here, after twenty days.[1] All the images and representations of the devils they once again adorned; each one they bedight with capes, ornamented with feathers, hung with necklaces, and fitted with turquoise mosaic masks. And they put [237 on them godly capes — the quetzal feather cape,
293] the yellow parrot feather cape, and the eagle feather cape. And this array, the necessary items, the great noblemen guarded.

Auh in oacic vei tecuilhujtl: oc ceppa, ie no ceppa ilhujquiztique in Mexica, vncã cempoaltica. Jn izquich in jmjxiptlavan, in impatilloan in diablome, ie no ceppa quinccecencauhque, quintlaquentique, quinquequetzallotique, quinccocoxcatique, quimonasquique xiuhxaiacatl, yoan quinquequentia in tenquemjtl, in quetzalquemjtl, in tozquemjtl, quauhquemjtl. Auh inin tlatquitl in monec, quipaia in vevei pipiltin:

796 Then followed after it Tlaxochimaco, which they also celebrated for twenty days. Then came after it 805 Xocotl uetzi, which they also observed for twenty days. And with Ochpaniztli they spent the fourth [period of] twenty [days]. With Teotl eco they spent the fifth [period of] twenty [days]; with Tepeilhuitl, the sixth score; with Quecholli, the seventh score. At this point would have been completed a year — if nothing had happened, and if [the Spaniards] had not gone.[2] With Panquetzaliztli they spent the eighth [period of] twenty [days]; with Atemoztli, the ninth score; with Tititl, the tenth score; with Itzalli tlami, the eleventh score; and here set in the Nemontemi, [lasting] five days. Atlcauale was twelve — or Quauitl eua; Tlacaxipeualiztli, thirteen; Toçoztontli, fourteen;[3] Uei toçoztli was seventeenth; and Tecuilhuitontli, eighteenth. With this had passed one year since [the Spaniards] died at the Tolteca canal.

njman quiqoaltoquijlia in Tlaxuchimaco, no cempoaltique: njmã quivaltoquijlia in xocotl vetzi, no cempoaltique. Auh in Ochpanjztli ic nappoaltique. Teutl eco: ic macujlpoaltique. Tepeilhujtl chiquacempoaltique. Quechulli ic chicõpoaltique: vncan cexiuhtizquija y, intlacatle muchivanj, intlacamo ianj. Panquetzaliztli, chicuepoaltique. Atemuztli, chicuappoaltique. Tititl matlacpoaltique. Jtzalli tlamj, ic matlacpoalli oce: njcan in muchioa in Nemoetemj, macujlilhujtl. Atl cavalo, matlacpoalli omume, anoço Quavitl eua. Tlacaxipeualiztli, matlacpoalli omei. Toçoztontli matlacpoalli onnavi. Vei toçoztli, ic caxtolpoalli omume. Tecujlhujtontli, ic caxtolpoalli omei: vncan cexiuhtico y, injc mjtoque tulteca acaloco.

805 And when once more they came forth, when again we saw them, [this] one year was in its eleventh[th] score [of days], in the month of] Itzalli. From [the direction of] Quauhtitlan they issued forth; they came to establish themselves at Tlacopan for a period of only seven days. Then they departed,

Auh in ie no ceppa quiçaco, in ie no ceppa tiçquizque ce xivitl, ipã matlacpoalli oce, ipan in Jtzalli: quauhtitlan in quiçaco, ommotlalico in Tlacuban çan onchiccenjlhujtico: njman iaque vmpoalhtim. Auh ie no ceppa quiçaco, çan quiztiçquiçque quauhtitlampa itztiaque: çan tequijtl ommjctitiquiçque in

1. So the Aztec reads (compositive see Molina, op. cit., xocotlulia, xocpaulia). — Doubtless the twentieth day is meant, to conform with custom in observance of feast days (personal communication, Rafael Girard (Guatemala).

2. See various translation in Seler, op. cit., p. 328.

3. The fifteenth and sixteenth months are reversed in the Aztec text.

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

797 it would be a good thing if it were successful, but it seemed to him that it was not quite a suitable time to speak about it, for Montezuma did not appear to be inclined to do such a thing.

346 778 Then our Cortés said to Montezuma through the interpreter Doña Marina: "Your Highness is indeed a very great prince and worthy of even greater things. We are rejoiced to see your cities, and as we are here in your temple, what I now beg as a favour is that you will show us your gods and Teules. Montezuma replied that he must first speak with his high priests, and when he had spoken to them he said that we might enter into a small tower and apartment, a sort of hall, where there were two altars, with very richly carved boardings on the top of the roof. On each altar were two figures, like giants with very tall bodies and very fat, and the first which stood on the [776] right hand they said was the figure of Huichilobos their god of War; it had a very broad face and monstrous and terrible eyes, and the whole of his body was covered with precious stones, and gold and pearls, and with seed pearls [381 824] stuck on with a paste that they make in this country out of a sort of root, and all the body and head was covered with it, and the body was girdled by great snakes made of gold and precious stones, and in one hand he held a bow and in the other some arrows. And another small idol that stood by him, they said was his page, and he held a short lance and a shield richly decorated with gold and stones. Huichilobos had round his neck some Indians' faces and other things like hearts of Indians, the former made of gold and the latter of silver, with many precious blue stones.

There were some braziers with incense which they call copal, and in them they were burning the hearts of the three Indians whom they had sacrificed that day, and they had made the sacrifice with smoke and copal. All the walls of the oratory were so splashed and encrusted with blood that they were black, the floor was the same and the whole place stank vilely. Then we saw on the other side on the left hand there stood the other great image the same height as Huichilobos, and it had a face like a bear and eyes that shone, made of their mirrors which they call Tezcat, and the body plastered with precious stones like that of Huichilobos, for they say that the two are brothers; and this Tezcatepuca was the god of Hell and had charge of the souls of the Mexicans, and his body was girt with figures like little devils with snakes' tails. The walls were so clotted with blood and the soil so bathed with it that in the slaughter houses in Spain there is not such another stench.

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

They had offered to this Idol five hearts from that day's sacrifices. In the highest part of the Cue there was a recess of which the woodwork was very richly worked, and in it was another image half man and half lizard, with precious stones all over it, and half the body was covered with a mantle. They say that the body of this figure is full of all the seeds that there are in the world, and they say that it is the god of seed time and harvest, but I do not remember its name, and everything was covered with blood, both walls and altar, and the stench was such that we could hardly wait the moment to get out of it.

They had an exceedingly large drum there, and when they beat it the sound of it was so dismal and like, so to say, an instrument of the infernal regions, that one could hear it a distance of two leagues, and they said that the skins it was covered with were those of great snakes. In that small place there were many diabolical things to be seen, bugles and trumpets and knives, and many hearts of Indians that they had burned in fumigating their idols, and everything was so clotted with blood, and there was very important one. The most specific Mexican chronicles call 643 him "coadjutor to the King," "second King," "governor."[210]

16:Bandelier E-4 (no date)1880 NU7 Aztec NU7

By other authorities he is mentioned as "vice-roy,"[211] and more frequently yet as "supreme judge."[212] Finally, eye-witnesses of the conquest apply to the "snake-woman" the titles of "keeper of the tribute"[213] and "captain-general" of the Mexicans.[214] la asia puesto por recombre y grandeza aquel nuevo dilado qua." Tezozomoc ("Crónica," cap. XXXIX, p. 80) mentions the title together with the first actions of "wrathy chief," the Elder. But it also appears to have been very much older. Ixtlilxochitl ("Relaciones Históricas" Segunda Relacion, p. 282, Vol. IX of Kingsborough), speaking of the migrations of the Toltecs says: "Llegaron á Xalloco, tierra que estaba cerca de la mar, y aquí estuvieron ochó años, siendo descubridor Zulhcochcatl, tambien uno de los cinco capitanes inferiores." Fuentes (Lib. I, cap. XXII, p. 200) attributes to the same the discovery of another region. It appears as if this title,—whose origin we may speculate upon but, as yet, without any hope of positive results,—was always in existence, but appeared as a distinct office only after the confederacy had been formed. A historical question of some interest looms up here: whether or not the first reported incumbent of the office after the formation of the confederacy, Atempanecatl Tlacaelelzin, really existed. Torquemada (Lib. II, cap. LIV, p. 171) denies his existence, and perhaps hints at the "Codice Ramirez" when he speaks of "la mala, y falsa Relacion, que de este tiene, que yo tengo cierto poder escrito de mano, con el mismo lenguage, y estilo." Sr. José F. Ramirez already noticed this sally of the provincial, in note 1 (p. 282) of Durán, "Hist. de las Indias," etc., and recognized it at once as applying to the Codice R. Fuentes (Lib. II, cap I, p. 88, etc.) acknowledges the existence of Tlacaelleel, so does of course Acosta (Lib. VII, cap. 14, 15, 16, 17 and 18), and all those who followed the same sources as the "Codex Ramirez." The present city of Mexico, however, has two monuments which, to my judgment, establish beyond a doubt the existence of this [778] ●

Tlacaelleel. One of these is the "Stone of Sacrifice," and the other a commemorative stele, figured and described in No. 2 of Vol. I. "Anales del Museo National de México," by the great Mexican scholar, Sr. Orozco y Berra. See my article in No. I, Vol. II of the "American Antiquarian," "The National Museum of Mexico and the Sacrificial Stone" (pp. 20 and 27).

[210] For these titles I refer in general to the Codice Ramirez, Durán, and Tezozomoc. Quotations are useless and would only serve to increase the size of the volume.

[211] Already Tezozomoc mentions him a "teniente." Torquemada (Lib. XI, cap. XXV, p. 344). Fèlencourt ("Teatro Mexicano," Parte IIa, Trat. IIº, cap. I, p. 300): "Despues del Rey que heredaba, venia se ha visto guardando el órden de la sangre real, habia un virey que llamaban Cihuacohuatl, que el rey proveia y era en segunda persona en el gobierno, de cuya autoridad no habia apelacion al rey."

[212] Torquemada (Lib. XI, cap. XXV, p. 344). Fèlencourt ("Teatro," p. 300). Clavigero (Lib. VII, cap. XVI, p. 461). Prescott ("Conquête," B'k I, cap. II, p. 28). H. H. Bancroft ("Native Races," Vol. II, cap. XIV, pp. 434 and 435). Codex Mendoza (Tab. LXIX, "Myxcoatlcalleque, Justicia mayor").

[213] Bernal-Diaz de Castillo ("Hist. verdadera, etc.," Cap. XCI, p. 97, Vedia II): "Acordamos que era en aquel tiempo un mayordomo un gran cacique que le pusimos por nombre Tapia, y tenia en su mano de todas las rentas que le traian al Montezuma, con sus libros hechos de papel, que no dice amati, y tenia destos libros una gran casa delles." Now this "Tapia" reappears again as "governor" of Mexico in different places. "Relacion de la Jornada que hizo Don Francisco de Sandoval Acazitli, Cacique y Señor Natural que fué del pueblo de Tlahuanuelco" ("Col. de Documentos." Icazbalceta, p. 305, Vol. II): "y á estos los Mexicanos llevó, y fueron por sus caudillos Tapia y D. Martin el de Tlatelulco." "Cuarta Relacion Anónima de la Jornada de Nuño de Guzman" (Col. de Doc. II, p. 471): "Viendo el señor desta ciudad de México, que se llama Tapia." Letter of the "Señores" Salamca, Malinzin, Cuyuac, and Quiaqua

X 787 Eighth Chapter, which telleth of the fifth sign, named One Reed. And it was not a good day, [nor] those with it. It was said that those born then, if they were born in the ninth house, named Nine Crocodile—they said and it was averred that one would be a slanderer and bearer of false witness. And it was thought that this sign was the day of Quetzalcoatl. Therefore the lords and noblemen then paid their devotions and made offerings.

Inje chicuacē ōpōhualo: itechpa tlatoa, inje macujltetl machiotl, in jtoca ce acatl: auh ano qualli tonalli in jtech ca, quijlmach in aquiquac vncan tlacatia, intla vncan tlacatia, inje chicuacuhtetl calli, in jtoca chicuacuevi cipactli: quimaia quijlmach cenca techcoiouanj, ioan tezcapuruanj: auh quijlmach inja machiotl, ichaotl itoual in quetzalcoatl: ipampa in tlatoque, in pipilti, vncan mixtlauia ioan tlamauia.

X 787 The day sign One Reed set in. With it were reckoned the evil days, those of an unfavorable time. 805 Following it came Two Ocelot, and Three Eagle, Four Vulture, Five Motion, and Six Flint Knife. These various days were said to be evil, of an unfavorable time.

Moquetza ce acatl tonalli, ic mocempoa in ano qualli, in ano iecxan inquijlhujtl, quiuoquijlioca yn ipan vme ocelotl, ioan ei quauhtli, navi cuecaquauhtli, macujlli olin, chiquacen tecpatl: in jaquijtl in tonalli mjmeia ano qualli, ano iecxan,

X 787 It was held that One Reed was the day sign, the time, of Quetzalcoatl. For Quetzalcoatl represented 771 the wind, and was therefore thought a god. And 773 when the day One Reed set in, the lords and noblemen paid him great honors. They made offerings at 782 the priests' house in the [barrio] known as Mexico.[1] For there was kept the image of Quetzalcoatl. Before him they arranged and spread offerings. Everything they then prepared for him. They placed on him his various array and paper vestments. And before him they laid out flowers, tobacco, [vessels] full of incense, and drink and food. So they said that then they dedicated and assigned the day sign to Quetzalcoatl.

quijlmach itoual cenca itoualpan in quetzalcoatl. ichaoa in quetzalcoatl, i chocatl ipan mjmeia, inje teviccia: auh in jquac in mocquetzaia ce acatl tonalli, cenca tlamavitilitia in tlatoque, in pipilti, tlamauia in calmecac, yn jtocaiocan mexico, ca vncan pialoia in jajptla Quetzalcoatl, ixpan quijtlaxquijlitia, quijtlamohuacaia mach iquac quijcencavilitia, itech quijtalilitia, in jaquijtlamantli inechichiotl, yn iamatlatquj, ioan ixpan quijtequijlitia xuchitl, yetl, quijcopalxamjlitia ati, tlaquatli, quijmanjlia, iuh quijtoia vncan quijmaltia, quijtoalquechia in Quetzalcoatl.

X 787 And so they said it was an unfortunate time. He who was then born, whether nobleman or commoner, was of scant merit or deserts. Just as worthless as the wind was his life. It was swept away by the wind. As nothing were his lineage and origin. For in the time of Quetzalcoatl the wind [god] had he been born; He such was his nature. The same befell her if it was a woman.

Auh inje mjmeia: ano iecxan, in aquja ipan tlacatia pilli, anoço macoualli, ate cenca iaukcoxol, ilhuji catca, çan iohuajn chocatl ipil pevia iacmilia, ocacoia, ate itlaoca, inelhoaio mochiuia: ipampa in jtoualpan quetzalcoatl, ocatl otlacat, ca mjmian iohcan oquiz, no iohquj ipan mochiuia, intla çiuatl,

1. The reference, literal or probably humorous, is defined as "Lugar de Grado de la casa" y casada de soltera" by Antonio Mendoza in El calpulli en la organización social de los mexicanos (México: Instituto de Historia, 1949), p. 77. There were six, in the calpulli probably pertaining to them (or the term is used by Mendoza): Teopan, Huitzcatenco, Tlamatzinco, Tlilancalco, Tlelcatenco, and Mixtec (pp. 67-82).

X-787 Eleventh Chapter, which telleth of the seventh sign, named One Rain, and of the evil day signs which belonged with it. They said that those then born were sorcerers and soothsayers and demons. — And tlacatecolotl meaneth demon. — Almost all the houses belonging to this [sign] were evil and unfavorable. Only the thirteenth was good.[1]

[776]

Inic matlactli oce capítulo: itechpa tlatoa, inic chicuacetl machiotl, in jtoca ce qujavitl: ioan in amo quall tonalli, in jtech catca: quilmach in aquiçque vncan tlacatia, nanaualti catca, ioan tetlachivianj, tlatlacatecolo: auh in tlacatecolotl, ca ichoatl quitoznequj in Diablo, achi muchi in calli itech pouhquj, in amo quallj, in amo ieetli: çanjio inic matlactetl vmey quallj.

X-787 One Rain set in, of which it was said that it was in no way a good day sign. It was full of evil, vice, misery, orphanhood, affliction, suffering, anguish, misfortune, and indigence.

Moquetza ce quiauitl: injn mjtoaia, njman amo quallj tonalli, motequjtica truhtli, tlaçolli, icnoiotl, icnotlacaiotl, tlaciaujlistli, tlacoocavilistli, teopouhtaiotl, atle onquiçalistli, atle oneoatinemjlistli:

X-787 This was because during the time of this day sign, so it was said, then descended those known as the Goddesses, inhuman ones, mockers of the people. Hence most sternly [parents] commanded their children not to go out; not to travel along the roads. They should only remain at home. Thus did they speak to them: "Go not forth. You will encounter the Princesses, for they descend and arrive upon earth." Hence the fathers regarded them with fear, lest one of [the children] might develop misshapen lips, or crossed eyes, or a hare lip, or be possessed.

776

ipampa in jpan, y, tonalli, iuh mjtóa: ca vncan temoia, in motenoa cioatetea, itlaoacmelleque, teca mocaiaoanj: ic cenca quintlaquauhnaoatiaia, in tepilhoan, in aiac quiças, aiac vtli quitocaz: çan cali onoaque: iuh quimjlhujaia meca xonquiçaca, anmotenamjctiaque, ca temo, ca tlalpan açi in çioapipiltj: ic quintlamauhcaittiliaia in tetaoan: injc amo aca temnecujlivia, iknecujliuja, tenparaiuja, itech qujneua:

● 778 When this [day came], everywhere in the Goddesses' sanctuaries and temples — everywhere offerings were made. For in every single place stood a temple of Goddesses, in each neighborhood,[2] there at crossroads. They covered with white streamers each of the images which were there — five [figures] of stone, placed in a row, their faces rubbed and painted with liquid rubber. He who made a vow to them covered them at the time of their descent, at the time of their day count, on the day sign of their descent. As many of them as there were he covered with white paper streamers.

782

in jquac in, in noviian çioatempan, çioatrucalli, noujian tlamaxaloia, ca noviian cecentetl mácx, in çioatecalli, cecentlaxillacalpá vncan in omaxac, teteujtl qujmonequequentia, in vmpa catca, ymjxipelaoan, macujlteme in teme, tecpantoca, tlaolxaoalti, moolxauhque in aquja ivicpa monetoltiaia, quintlaquentia yn jquac in intemoia, yn jntlapealpan, in jpan tonalli temoia, inquiteme amateteujtl quinquentia.

1. The Spanish text reads, in part: "Los que en este signo nacen, son nigromanticos, brujos, hechiceros, endiablados. De de nacer, que son cuchillo chamuscado, pronosticos quien dicen, nigromanticos, o brujos: ingredientes en ese, por diablos: casi todos los casas deste signo: eran de malos dispuestos. Pero la decima cuna, y la cuenta decima cuna, ninguna desdicha: E todos los signos: eran felices." See Andrews and Dibble, op. cit., Book XII, "The Conquest of Mexico," p. 21, nn. 1, 2, 3, on nacerse, chamuscado, and endiablados. Depending upon the context, we have at times translated chamuscado as demon.

2. Ibid., Book VIII, "Kings and Lords," p. 58, n. 13.

A 787 was not hopeless. This one the readers of the day signs then sought out so that they might then somewhat better the day sign of the one born on One Grass.

● 778 782 And the day sign Two Reed, which followed, they said was a very good day sign; because also at that time they honored Tezcatlipoca Tlahcauaz by placing the image of [a god] called Omacatl. In the same manner [as Tezcatlipoca][4] was the face painted; they ornamented it when they placed it.

And whosoever wished to place the image of Omacatl guarded it in his house for two hundred [days]. He placed it on the day sign Two Reed. And if he who placed it did something well, that is, if now his goods and possessions increased and appeared, no more did he wish to relinquish it. He just placed and introduced it permanently into his house, and guarded it for a long time.

And if now he wished to abandon it, and no longer to guard it, he likewise abandoned it on the day sign Two Reed. This same one chose his day sign; on [the day sign] in which he had placed it, on it likewise he abandoned it. He left it there at his temple in the tribal district of Omacatl, and went offering it incense. And there, to take it, would go he who earlier had wished to guard it in his home. The old men of the tribal district accompanied it with song; the [new] householder served food to the people; there was feasting and drinking in his house. And when it grew dark there was drunkenness. In the same way was the placing and termination. Then was the breaking off and the finishing; then they observed the two hundred days of guarding it in one's house when [the image] entered as well as when it left.

X 787 And, it was said, he who was then born, they said, would become rich and wealthy. And well would he gain his livelihood. What he might do would not fail. He would find his consolation.

And on Four Eagle, and Five Vulture, and Six Motion, as it was said, these various day signs were in no way good. They were always as hath been said. For him who was then born, his fate, his gifts, were the same: misery. He lived given to talking; he would bear false witness; accusations were made; there were outcries; among others he lived in vice, corruption, and evil, as hath already in many places linia tonalpouhque, injc achi vncan quiçqualtilisia itonal, in jpan tlacatia oc malinalli.

Auh in quitoquijlia, vme acatl tonalli quitoaia vel qualli in tonalli: ipampa ca no vncan quitoaltiaia yn Tezcatlipoca, titlacaoa, injc quitlaliaia ixiptla itoca Omacatl: çan no ivi in mjchioaia, ic quichichioaia, injc quitlaliaia:

auh in aquin quinequja, quitlaliaia in ixiptla Omacatl, matlacpoaltica in quipiaia ychan, ipan in quitlaliaia, vme acatl tonalli, auh intla ic itla vel maaiilia, in aquin oquitlali, quitoanequj: intla ic tlapiuja, ixnecj, iaxca itlatquj, aocmo quicaoaliztlamatia, çan quicentialiaia, quicencalaquiaia in ychan, vecauhtica quipiaia:

auh intla ic oquinec in quicaoaz, in aocmo quipiaz: çan no ipan in quicaoaia vme acatl tonalli, çan iec quimattiuja in itonal, ipan in quitlaliaia, no ipan in quicaoaia: vmpa concaoaia in itecpan, in jcalpulco omacatl, quitlenamaquiltiuh: auh vmpa canatiuh, in aquin oc ic oquinec, quipiaz ichan, quicuicatiaia in calpuleque, ic tetlatlaqualtia in chane, tlatlaqualo, astlica, yn ychan: auh in oiooac tlatlaoano, çan ic iuh tlatlahili, çan ic iuh tlatecolli, çan vncan tectica, çan ic vncan tlantica, çan ic vncan quimattiaia, in matlacpoaltica pialoia techan iquac calaquia, no iquac quiçaia:

auh mjtoa: in aquin ipan tlacatia, quitoaia mocuiltonoz, motlacamatiz, ioan vel muchioaz in jnetlacoltiliz, in tlein maaiiliz, amo nenquiçaz, vel quitaz in jnciollaliliz.

Auh yn ipan nauj quauhtli, yoan macuilli ocelquauhtli, yoan chiquacen olin, iuh mjtoa: injman amo tle qualli in jequitetl yn, tonalli, çan muchipa iuh mjtoa: in aquin ipan tlacatia, çan yec in ilhuiil, inemac in netolinjliztli, yoan tlatolli cololhuitinemj, tetlacolevia, yoan tlatolevilo, oiovila, tenepantla quitlaliaiaz in xiuitl, cuitlatl, in aqualli: in juhquj ye mjiccan omoteneuh. Auh in oc nen ic quiçqualtilisia

4. At this place in the Real Palacio MS a marginal note in Sahagún's hand reads: "de la ceremonia de la yma[gen] de Tezcatlipoca."

000 Nineteenth Chapter. Here are told the offerings which they made for the sake of those who traveled to far places, and how respect was paid for the sake of those who died.

Injc castolli vnnavi capitulo: vncan motencoa, in ventli in qujchioaia, im impãpa vecanemja ioan injc mortlaoaia in jpampa in mjquja.

441 And his household thereupon began the penances. They let themselves become dirty. No longer did 984 they wash their heads with soap, though they could 585 bathe their bodies. Nevertheless, no more did they submerge in water. But every eighty days they arranged the washing of heads with soap. Thus they showed and made it known that they did penance for the sake of their children, their young men, who were still absent. All the time they thus went about doing, however long he was gone.

Auh in jchantlaca: njmen iquac compeoaltia in tlamaçeoaia, motzoioia, aocmo mãmovia, tel vel maltia yn jntlacapa, iece, aocmo polaquj: auh nanapoaltica qujmattiuj, in mamovitiuj: injc qujnextia, qujtemachitia, ca ipampa tlamãçeoa in jaconeuh, in jntelpuch, in oqu jxcauhque, inqujch caujtl auh qujchiuhtinemj, in jquin quiçaqujuh:

441 And if, perchance, he had gone to die, first were 765 notified the old merchants. Their task was to inform and break the news to the people. These introduced a time of mourning into the home of the deceased. Thus they made it known that during four days there would be remembrances; his household would mourn. So they would be visited and consoled, and there would be a burial ritual[1] for their child.

auh intla noce omjqujto, ichoan achto caqqjtilo, in puchteca veuetque, intequjuh in teiolmelaoazque, in teiolpachiujtizque, ichoantin qujcalaquja in choqujztli, in jxaiotl, in jchan omjqujto, ic qujtemachitia, injc naujlhujtl ilnamjcoz, mjccaostizque in jchantlaca, injc tlapaloloazque, ellaquaoalozque, qujmjlolos in inconeuh:

[515] And when four days had gone by, then his household washed their heads with soap. Thus it was said, the deceased was bathed; and thereby they destroyed and banished their grief.

auh in oqujz navilhujtl: iquac mamovia in jchantlaca: ic mjtoa, momjccaaltia injc compopoloa, conjlcaos intlaccol:

441 And if somewhere he had died in battle, they set 765 up an image of him made of pine torches bound together.[2] They made and formed his image; they 778 adorned his likeness. This cuillotl was only a statue of pine logs which they split into sections and afterwards bound together. And they placed upon it all the paper ornaments, the paper array, the paper jacket, the paper neck-band, the paper stole. They piled up, strewed about it, and distributed them so that they would burn all of them with it. When this was done, when they had adorned the statue, when the one dead in battle had been wept, one more day auh intla cana oiaomjc, qujtlaliaia ieujllo, qocujllotia, qocujllotlalilia, ixiptla qujchichiujlia, injn Evillotl: çan ocoquavitl in qujtzatzaiaaaia, çatepan qujcujtlalpia: auh inqujch itech qujtlalia, in amatlatqujtl, in amanechichiualli, in amaxicolli, in amacozcatl, in amanecapantli, qujtlaolololtia, qujtlatepeoaltia qujtlamamaca, injc mochi ioan qujtlatinque: in ic iuhquj in oqujcencauhque evillotl, in jquac ic choqujlloz oiaomjc, oc cemjlhujtica, in jeujllo icalpulco, cemjlhujtl in ca, cemjlhujtl in eostica: auh quinjquac in ioalnepantla, qujclatinia, vmpa in qujtocaotinia, tevitoalco, quauhxicalco, tzompanicilan:

1. Quimjlolos: possibly this refers to wrapping of the dead or clothing of a statue.
2. Evillotl: Corresponding Spanish text: "de cuantos de tea, cuales eran, así eran."

441 his statue spent in his tribal district [temple]. One 765 day it was [there]; one day it remained seated. And then, when it was midnight, they burned it there in 778 [the place] which they called the god's courtyard, at the eagle vessel, [or] on the skull rack.

But if the merchant had only died on the ground[3] — that is to say, if he had not died in battle, if perchance he had only taken sick, in the very same way they prepared his statue, but only in his home did it burn — not at midnight: while yet there shone a little sun, when he already was turning on his left side,[4] when the sun hung low, they burned it.

726 Likewise it was said that at the time of the day sign One Serpent, if it was established precisely at that time, when war was declared and proclaimed among the people, when, it was said, war was announced, at that very time the war began. At that time all the eagle and ocelot warriors set out to battle; all followed, crowded, and filled the road. They arose, they set out, departed, marched, and hastened.

X787 And if one were born upon the day sign One [Serpent],[5] they said, the readers of the day signs corrected it and bestowed gifts upon him. He would become a receiver of favors, worthy of good deserts and merit; he would prosper and have sustenance. But if he did not do his penances well, according to his day sign, his gifts and favors would not come upon him. He himself would harm and destroy it. It was said that by his own act he neglected it and destroyed it by vice, etc.

[851 He who was then born they did not yet bathe;
553 they bathed him later, on Three Deer, and then gave him a name, for the reason already many times told:
the day sign of the third place, when they waited for the day, the readers of day signs considered favorable. So they took this following one for him; this time they arranged and postponed it in order to give him a very strong day sign.

And Two Death, which followed, so they said, was evil; at this time there was nothing of merit. But Three Deer, so they said, was a good day sign; this is already related. The third place was always a good time; it was a time of attainment of merit, as the readers of day signs told one. And Four

---

3. Oldebaric: Ibid., "Y si el iba mercadear muerto, de su enfermedad."

4. Molina, op. cit. (Spanish-Nahuatl), Lado derecho.

5. This text reads as repeated; it is correct in the Real Palacio MS.

suh intla çã otlalmjc oxomocuil, qujxuaxoqui: intlacamo oisomjc, in aço çan ococolincujc, çan ie no ivi in qujchichiouia icujllo, iece çan ichan in tlelaia, amo ioalnepantla, oc achi tonatiuh, iquac in ie onmotzcaloa, onmopilou tonatiuh qujtlatiuia.

No iuan mjtoa: in jquac ypan in ce cuetl tonalli, intla ipanti, ipan motlalia, in jquac oiaotlatoloc, oteisotlalhujloc, in omjto, in otecaqujtiloc iaoiotl, vel iqua ipan vipeoaia in iaoc: vncan iaoquixoaia, ipan otlatocoia, ipan vnneotemakoia, vnnotecma, onmococuj, onmolinja, eoa, nẽnemj, icxicomana, in jaquich quauhtlocelotl:

suh in aquja ipan otlacat ce oçelotl tonalli, quj-toaia, qujpãtiuia, qujnemactiuia in tonalpouhque, tlacnopilhujanj, ilhujle, mãcoale muchioua, mocujl-tetoua, vnca qujquanj ixx: suh intlaca mouelhuaca-coa, in iuhquj itonal in, amo ipan muchioa in iaemac, in jcnopil: çan ichoatl qujmitlacalhuja, qujmo-popolhuja, mjtoa: ineviian coanocauijlia, qujmotlh-çolmjctilia. Er.

yn aquja ipã otlacat in, aiamo caltiuia, quja ipã caltiuia in Ey macatl: iquac qujtocamaca, ipampa in mjococan omjto: in ciuioua tonalli, in jquac tlacen-ilhujcilitia, qujpualitaia in tonalpouhque: ichoatl ic conthatotoquijtiuia, vmpa qujdatequjuiaia, vmpa on-tlachichtiuia, injc cenca qujtonalchiccaoaia.

Auh in qujtoquijlia, vme mjqujetli, iuh qujtoa: amo qualli, ale vncã ca mahuelli. Auh in ey macatl: iuh qujtoa qualli tonalli, ic omjto: in ciuioua muchipa qualcua, vncan ca tlacnopilhujitetli in iuh qujcilhujoia tonalpouhque. Auh in nevi tochtli, in tlanauhcaiotia tonalli, in nauhnoipa tlaviica, tlacen-

X 787 776 Twenty-first Chapter, which telleth of the tenth sign, called One Flint Knife. And it was said that it was of good fortune, and claimed that those then born were brave and became seasoned warriors. And it was said that the women then born were forceful; they were able in all things and made their goods very well. And it was said to be the day sign of Uitzilopochtli, to whom it was dedicated. His domain was war. It was said also to be the day sign of Camaxtli. And when this sign began, they observed the feast [of Uitzilopochtli]. And it was said that all the day signs were good—[all] thirteen.

Injc composolli ece capítulo: itechpa tlatoa, injc matlactetl machiotl, in jtoca ce tecpatl: ioan quijl quallí in jtonalle, auh quijl in aquijque vncan tlacatia chicaxnque catca, ioan tequjoacatia: auh quijl in cioa vncan tlacatia ocquichiellioque catca, machi in veli catca, ceneca uel qujcentiaia in jatlatequj: auh quijl itonal catca in Vitzilopochtli, in jtech pouhquj catca, in jxquijuh catca itaxiotl, quijl no itonal in Camaxtle: auh in jquac vmpeuia injn machiotl, quijlhujquztilia, auh quijl machi quallí catca in jaquijhujtl, matlaquijlhujtl vmei.

776 782 One Flint Knife set in. On this One Flint Knife, when it parried for a day, they then made offerings to Uitzilopochtli, whose day sign it was, and to Camaxtli, god of the Uexotzinca.

Moquetza ce tecpatl: inin ce tecpatl, in jquac tlacentlhujtilitia, vncan quijtonaltitia, ytonalpan catca in Vitzilopochtli, ioan in camaxtle, vexotzinca intecuh, 776 782 776 Then it is said they made offerings and paid great honor [to Uitzilopochtli] there at his temple, in his tribal district, at the place whose name was Tlacatecco. There was his image guarded, and all his array. They had it all spread out before him and laid in the sun; they offered incense and presented him[1] what were called the quetzal feather cape, the blue cotinga feather cape, the red spoonbill feather cape, the yellow parrot feather cape, and the humming bird feather cape.[2] But only after them came [828] but the no longer very precious feathers, like the white heron feather cape or the reed thrush feather cape.[3] Severally they laid all of them down, offered them separately, arranged them in rows, placed them in order, etc.

injc mjjoa: quijtonaltitia, ceneca quimatiztilitia, in vncan iesupan icalpaxco in jtocaiocan catca tlacatecco, vncan pielotia in jxiqtia in jaquijch itlatquj, machi ixpan quijtequjlitia, quijtotonjaia, quijtlenamaquijlitia quijtlacotonjlitia, in motzacoa quetzalquemjtl, xiuhtotoquemjtl, tlauhquecholquemjtl, tozquemjtl, vitzitzilquemjtl, auh ça quijtoquijlia, quijxacuja, in aocmo ceneca tlaçaiviztl, in iuhquj ittaquemjtl, tzanaquemjtl: machi nononqua quijtecaia, quijlatlamantilia, quijnecuentilia, quivivipana. Er[4].

And all these precious capes, when they spread them out, remained there a day. By doing this, it 782 was said, they sunned them for Uitzilopochtli. And there offerings were made; there they laid out all the gifts, called fast foods. And all the good, prepared auh machi ie in tlaçotlmatli ipan quijtecaia, vncan ceujlhujtia: ichoxtl injc mjjoa quijtlacotonjlia in Vitzilopochtli, ioan vncan tlamanaloia, vncan quijtecaia in jaquijch ventli, in motzacoa tlacatlaquilli: ioan in jaquijch iectli, in tlachichiualli tlaquilli, in

1. Quijtonaltitia literally could mean "they beheaded quail for him."

2. Corresponding Spanish text: "una ca flamenca quetzalquemjtl, que quiere decir: capa de quetzales verdes, y vuelphalcolchiuc: cara ca flamenca cholchiuquemjtl, que quiere decir: capa de plumas verdes, y vuelphalcolchiuc: cara ca flamenca tozquemjtl, que quiere decir: capa de plumas amarillas, y vuelphalcolchiuc: cara ca flamenca vitzitzilquemjtl, que quiere decir: capa hecha de plumas vuelphalcolchiuc de colibrues."

3. Cf. Dibble, op. cit., p. 233. In ibid., p. 160, n. 2, it is jacalchiuc.

X 787 Twenty-fifth Chapter, which telleth of the fourteenth sign, called One Dog. This, it was said, was a good day sign; and it was claimed that it was the day of Xiuhtecutli, whom they called Tlalxicueica.[1] They observed a very great feast day for him. And at this time the rulers were elected.[2]

Injc ompoualli on macuijlli capitulo: itechpa tlatoa, injc matlactetl onnavi machiotl, in jtoca ce itzcuintli: inin quijtoach qualli tonalli, ioan quijl itonal catca, in xiuhtecutli: in quijtoaia Tlalxicueica, cenca vei ilhuitl quichioaia: ioan ypan motlatocaahtiaia in tlatoque.

X 787 —then set in the one named One Dog. This, they said, was a good day sign. At this time, they dedicated the day to [the god of] fire, called Xiuhtecutli. They formed his image there in his temple. There they made offerings to it; before it they decapitated quail and spread incense. They adorned and bedight it in all manner of paper array. The fabrication [of the paper articles] was in charge of those called paper-cutters and designers. They provided it with feathers; they scattered feathers over it; provided it with various kinds of costly feathers and dispersed a variety of them over it. And they provided [the paper array] with green stones. They called the [ceremony] neztlaualli. All the food [and array of] Tlalxicueica[3] they burned before him.

Niman oalmoquetza in jtoca, ce itzcuintli: injn quijtoaia qualli tonalli, vncan quijonaltiaia in tletl, in jtoca Xiuhtecutli: quijchiaia yxiptla in vmpa itzupan: vncan quitlamanjliaia, ixpan tlacotona, copaltema, quichichioa, quijcencaoa, in jxquich amatlequitl, inmac iccauja in motencoaia amatecque, amatlamatque, quivitoctiaia, quivitzetzcloa, quinepapaniviitoia, tlaçoiujica quinepapanivitzetzcloa: ioan quichachalchiuhtiotia, quinocaiotia neztlacalli, itlaqual in tlalxicueica, mach ixpan quitlatiaia:

782 And everywhere, in each family which was rich and had become wealthy, those of Pochtlan and Amantlan,[4] they made [the goo] very important. Thus they did him honor: food and drink were provided. There was rejoicing. There were banquets. Very early in the morning, when it was still very early dawn, they burned the paper array. As was said, thus they fed the fire. Incense went with and accompanied [the offerings]. One basket at a time, or two baskets at a time, they cast into the fire clean, white incense. And they decapitated quail. It seemed that before the hearth, they kept fluttering and beating their wings. Their blood was scattered by their fluttering, so that the earth before the hearth was struck in various places. They sprinkled and poured forth their blood. Likewise they first made a libation of wine before the hearth, and later at each of the four corners of the hearth they made libations.

suh in noviian cecencalpan, in netlacamachoia, in necujhtonokaia, in pochtlan, in amantlan: cenca quivichioaia injc quijnevizttiaia, tlatlaqualoia, astiouia, netlacamacho, necoanotzalo, oc ueca ioac, cenca oc tlaujzcalpan in quijtlatiaia amatl, in mjtoa ic quijtlamaca tletl, quivicatiuh, quijocatiuh in copalli, cecen petlacalli, ova petlacalli in coçtepeca tleco, chipaoac, ietac copalli: ioan quinocotona çqoltin, iuhquja tlecujlixquac tlãpatlaca, tlapapatlaca, ieyo nemamacaoca, tlalli ic neujnjeco tlecujlixquac quitzinzujzca, quinomoquja in jmeraço: ioan no achto tlecujlixquac quinoaiaca in vctli: suh çaepan tlecujlnocasco mochampaiati quinoaiaca:

1. Corresponding Spanish text: "Este decimo: era el signo del dia del fuego, llamado Xiuhtecutli, o tlalxicueica."
2. Ibid.: "Los señores, y principales, que eran elegidos, para regir la republica. Acaban la fiesta de su dedicacion."
3. Ibid.: "cosas de la mesmos, quemaron las ofrendas de papel, y copal, decimos: que con estas cosas, dauan de comer al fuego."
4. Motolinia, op. cit., pp. 70, 69, 68: colquell of moschaoan, feather workers, etc.

X 787 Thirteenth Chapter, which telleth of the seventeenth sign, called One Water. It was said to be an evil day sign. And it was said of those then born that they rejoiced a little only at the beginning of their lives, and that they ended in evil. And it was said always to be evil when they died. And it was said to be the day sign of Chalchiuitl icue, whose feast day the water folk observed.

Injc cempoalli on matlactli capinalo: itechpa tlatoa, inic cextolli omome machiotl, in jtoca ce atl: quijlmach amo qualli tonalli: auh quijl in aquijque vncan tlacatia, çan ipeuhian in jnnemjliz achi paquja: auh injc tzonquiçaia amo qualli, auh quijlmach mochipa, amo qualli, injc mjquja: auh quijl itonal catca in chalchiujtl icue, quijlhujquiztiliaia in atlaca.

One Water. This One Water, they said, was also evil. And they said it was quite varied, of different qualities, all good or all bad.

Ce atl: injn ce atl: quijtoa, amono qualli: yoan quijtoa, çan chictlapanti, chictlapantica: inquich qualli, inquich amo qualli:

At this time they made offerings to the one named Chalchiuhtli icue, who represented the water. Especially did the sellers of water, the owners of boats—those who transported water with boats—and those who launched boats, made offerings to her. These formed her image; they set in place the framework [for her image] at her temple, in her tribal district.

vncan quijtonaltiaia: in jtoca chalchiuhtli ycue, in jpan mjzcoaia atl: oc cenca ichoan quijtlamanjliaia, yn anamacaque, in acaleque, acaltica atlacuj, yoan acalquetzque: ichoan quijxiptlatiaia quijtlaliaia ycoloio in jtenpan, in jcalpulco.

X 787 And thus was it said to be diverse [in fortune], one which could not attain and carry with it very much good. That is to say, of the one then born, very few resulted great and fortunate at this time. For according to his deserts, his day sign, he was only all evil, completely surrounded by vice. And in evil he would go; in it he would die. Perchance somewhere he would be stunned—he would be felled by a stone; or else he would be drowned—he would perish in the water.

Auh injc mjtoa çan chictlapanquj yn amo vel macitica motquitica ic qualli, quitoznequi in aquijn ipan tlacatia, çan vej quiçaia cenca çan aca in vncan quijçaia tlacnopilhujani, ca in juh ca vel inmaceoal, itonal çan muchi ãqualli in cololotica motquitica teuhtli, tlaçolli, auh amo qualli ynjc izz, inic miquiz, aço çan caza tetepachoka, tetica uetziz, anoço, atocoa, atlan mjquja,

But even if, on the other hand,[1] he merited some reward, only for a miserable moment, only for a short time, a very short time, and frequently for a brief space, a moment, for a time only, would he partake of his riches.[2] So of him were said the words of the talkative inhabitants, that in the world there are bad days. Sometimes one succeeded; sometimes one failed; if, in his childhood, he should suffer auh intla çã noço itla imacteoaltiz, çã cotocpol, çan cuel achic, can cuecuel achic, çan achica, çan achitonca, çã achizinca, çan inquich caujtl in, in jxpan onquiçaz in jnecujhtonol, ic ipã mjtoa, in jntlatol tlahtiçpac tlathanaoj, çan tstacapitz uel in tlaticpac, quãnaan veli, quenaman aveli, intla ipiltian motolinix, quijn itzonco in achi motollaliz:

1. Inda ga ueyac: Rimbaldi, op. cit., has and (although, yet) or quizzaia (as you will) for inda ga, and ueyac (and not) for ueyac.

2. Corresponding Spanish text: "y si alguna buena suerte tuviere, tuviere poco tiempo, por ventura si tuviere tiempo, se le acabaua la ventura."

X 787 754 And when he brought destruction on one, then he chose an evil day sign; he sought and searched it out. They said that he did great evil to one on Nine Dog, or Nine Death, or Nine Grass, and indeed on all the ninth positions, and the other bad day signs mentioned—each of the different positions named.[4] auh in ipan tepoloaia, vncan quimattiuja in aquilli tonalli, ichoatl contoocaia, contlatoqquilaia, quitoa cenca ipan tepoloaia in chicunauj itzcuintli, anoço chicunauj mjquiztli, chicunauj malinalli: ioan in ic muchi chichicunanauj, ioan in oc cequj moteneua aquilli tonalli, in jzquican omoteneuh,

X 787 And of such different positions, it is told that he who had work of this sort, whose labors became these separate tasks, who undertook these various burdens, was never content. He had no food. He lived only in poverty, destitute, without a house or home; nowhere was he a householder; nowhere was he of a happy home, a householder of tranquility. He went looking forward only to misery. He went eating and consuming food for himself only if somewhere something were given him, if he were offered something in order to destroy people as a reward for doing evil to them. Perhaps somewhere he was seized when already he became negligent, slothful, or developed an aversion [to evil]. Then he was seized, and they cut hair from the crown of his head; they took his renown from him and damaged his day sign for him. Thus he was abandoned to his death by the hands of others.

auh in ioan quezaquican omjto, in aquin inhquj in itequjuh, itezequjuh muchioa, quimoteztequjlia, aic auja, atle quiquanj, çan motolinjtinemj, aoccatinemj, ãcan ichã, ãcan chanca, amo chane caca, acan chantlamattica: acan chane ca tlamattica, çan icnoiotl quiztzinemj, çan ic conquatiuh, çan ic ommotlamjtiuh, iztla cana itla maco, nemaqujlilo injc tepoloa, injc netlaquevilo: ãnoce-cuan xxioa in jquac ic otlatlatziujti, ic ontlaxujti, ic otlatlatzilhuj, vncan ano quitzaoncuj, quitlaiocujlia, quitonalitlacoa: ic ça temac omomjquizacaoa:

X 787 754 [778] 674 And the ones known as men who danced with a dead woman's forearm, who crazed people,[7] when perhaps they would commit a robbery somewhere and spirit something from someone's home, would adorn the image of One Wind [Quetzalcoatl]. It went as their guide, at their head, guiding, marching in front. And they went bearing with them the forearm[8] of a woman who had died in childbed, and could not give birth to what was in her womb. When they took it from the one who had died, they only stole it during the night: they cut it off at midnight.

auh in ichoantin moteneua, temamacpalitotique, tepupuxaquaujque, in jquac tla cana ichtequjzque, techan tlaquiztinque, quichichioaia in jniptla oc hecatl: quiniacantiuja iniacac, imjxpan icatiuja. ioan quitquiciuj in jmacpal moçioaquetzaquj, in iti ic iauh in aoel mjxiuj iquac quicujliaia in quin onmjquj. çan oquichteccacuja, ioaltica in quitequjliaia, ioaalli iric.

And so did they bury her, not at her home, but only leaving her there in the road; there at the very crossroads they buried her. They went skirmishing, fighting over her, and howling as they carried her. And as they brought her out of her house, it was not from the front; only at the back of the house, auh injc quitocaia amo ichan, çan vmpa concaoaia in vtlica, vncan in ael omazac contoca, quiçoçalitlitiuj, ipan necaliostiuh, coiovitiuj injc quiujica: auh injc quiualquixtia ichan, amo iscopa in jcal, çan quicujtlacoionja in calli, vmpa quiquixtia injc concaoa vmazac:

---

4. Omitted in the Real Palacio MS.

7. Corresponding Spanish text: "mamacpalitotique, o por ser mandey mipupuxaquaujque."

8. Ibid.: "Un brazo desde el codo, hasta la mano, de alguna mujer, que estando muerta, del primer parto, los cortaban, o hurto, el brazo quitando." Sahagun, loc. cit., therefore hypothesizes "who kindling on the threshold of a house with the hand of a woman who died in childbed, said the entire household into a paralyzed and immovable state, and then plunder with impunity the whole house and commit every possible robbery upon its furniture."

Thirty-third Chapter, in which is mentioned the nineteenth sign, named One Eagle. It was said to be an evil day sign, and he who was then born was beautiful, and brave, daring, fearing nothing and no one. And it was said that the women also were daring, of ill fame, of evil tongue, shameless, and immodest. And it was said that at this time descended the lesser Goddesses; and they did evil to the small children. Hence they did not let them go out of doors, nor did they bathe them at that time.[1]

—One Eagle. This One Eagle, it was said, was an evil day sign. Also at that time descended those named the "Goddesses." It was said, and it was so stated, that they were only the youngest ones, only the sisters,[2] who then came down. Nevertheless, [the people:] took great fright, because it was said that they were very harmful, furious, hateful, hostile, and merciless. As they could not be resisted, so they made sport of people, as is told in various places and mentioned here and now. None of the small children might go naked. They were carefully watched, because at this time they might be violently possessed, their lips twisted and withered, their eyes crossed and cloudy, their noses crooked, etc.

And therefore they paid them great honor there in the places where they were awaited, there in the different Goddesses' temples. In each neighborhood, in the house clusters and their vicinities, reeds were strewn and scattered; sand was sprinkled on the roads and at street crossings and crossroads—places where roads came together.

One who made a vow to them that he would cover and wrap them, adorned their offerings, the paper banners of the Goddesses painted and spattered with liquid rubber. There he covered the different images of the Goddesses, as they were arranged in order. It was at midnight, just at the dividing of the night, that the making of offerings

Injc cõpoalli ẽmatlactli vnsey capitulo: vncan motenoa ynjc cuxtolli vnnavi machiotl, yn. itoca ce quauhtli: quil amo qualli in tonalli, auh in ipan tlacatia, mochachamsoanj, yoã chicaoque, aiac ixco tlachia, atle ypan tlatta, atle ypã teitta: yoan quil in cihoa, ano tle ypã tlachia, yoan cenca tlavilquixtianj, tentlaveliloque, ixquauhti, amo pinsoanj: auh quil yn iquac, oalcenoia yn aquique tepitoton cihoatetcu: auh quintlaueliaia in conetotonti, yc amo quinoalquixtiaia in qujiaoac, amono quimaltiaia yn iquac. 787x

In ce quauhtli: ynjn ce quauhtli, mjtoa amo qualli tonalli, no vncan temoia, in qujntocaiotia cihoatetcu, quilmach yn juh onmjtoa ça xoxocoio, ça teiccaoan yn vncan temoia, iece cenca vellamaubtiaia, ypampa quil cenca ihjioque, tlaveloque, tetlavelique, amo elleleculoque, amo icnooaque, njman aixnamjquizti, ynjc teca mavltianj, yn juh onmjto quezquican: yn juh conitoa in iquac hin, njmã aiac vel petlauhtinenca in pipiltotõti, cenca malhujloia, ypampa cenca tlaquauh vncan tetech quinecoaia, tennecujlooaia, temputzioosia, ixnecujlooaia, ixcatzioosia, ixcanecujlooaia. etc. 787x 776 855

auh injc cenca qujnmavistiliaia in vncan inchielpã yn izquicã cicihoatezcalco, in tlatlazilacalpã, tetlatlaxilacalloc, tetlatlexilacaltian, tõoltzetzaclolo, tlatoltzetzelolo, tlaizallujlo yn vtlica, yn vmatzac, yn inepanivjian vtli. 776 782

Jn aquin invicpa monectoltia: in qujnquentia quintlaquentia, quinchichivilia yn jancetlacal, in cihoatetentl amatl, tlacoltzacalli, ocõpeioac, vmpa quimoquequentia yn ixquiteme, tecpantoque, yn iniixtlacoan iooalnepantia, çan jc ozzellivi, iocalli im poon tlamaxililo, auh iquac mocaoa yie nepantla tonatiuh, yie tlaquallupã auh in aquin amo quintlaquentia, çan [778]

1. Corresponding Spanish text: "Este fue domingo salió de casa, y[illegible], el tiempo que estas figuras reynaban."
2. Paragraph: see "Manuscrito no 3 [illegible]," p. 212.

796 mountains. Those who were there watching then raised a cry which rose to the heavens with joy that 372 the world was not ending and that they had another fifty-two years assured.

The last ceremony of new fire which they held was in the year 1507. They held it with full solemnity, because the Spaniards had not come to this land. In the year 1559 ended the next bundle of years, which they call Toximmolpilia. On this occasion they held no public ceremony, because the Spaniards and members of the religious Orders were now in this land. So that this year, 1576, is the fifteenth of the current bundle of years.

796 When they made the new fire and held this cere-
● 778 mony, they renewed their covenant with the devil to serve him, and they renovated all the statues of the devil which they had in his house, and all the ornaments for his service, and those of their houses. And they rejoiced greatly to know that now they held the world to be secure and that it would not come to an end for fifty-two years. It is clear that this device of counting years was an invention of the devil to make them renew the covenant which they made with him every fifty-two years—[the devil] terrifying them with [the threat of] the end of the world and making them think that he lengthened the time and favored them thereby, letting the world move on.

796 Besides this they held, every eight years, a fast on bread and water, for eight days; and at its conclusion
785 they celebrated a feast in which they held a solemn dance by various personages, in which they said that they revealed what would come to pass or what fortune they merited; and they called it Atamalqualiztli.

796 They observed another feast every four years, in honor of the fire [god], during which they pierced 304 the ears of all the boys and girls; and they called it Pillauanaliztli. And during this feast it is likely, and 805 there are conjectures, that they held their leapyear, reckoning six [days] of Nemontemi.

805 The remaining time-count is of the year, which they divided into eighteen months, to each of which 796 they assigned twenty days. And each of these months was dedicated to one god, or to two, and 443 during it they held their feast. Each of these months they divided into five-day periods, and held the fairs on the last day of these five in one town, and five days later in another, and another five days later in y los que estauan alli a la mjra, leuantauan luego vn alarido que le ponjan en el cielo de alegria que el mundo no se acabaua y que tenjan otros cincuenta y dos años por ciertos.

La vltima solemnjdad, que hizieron deste fuego nueuo: fue el año de mill y qujnjentos, y siete: hizieronle, con toda solemnjdad, porque no avian venjdo los españoles, a esta tierra: el año de mjll y qujnjētos y cincuenta y nueue, se acabo la otra gabilla de años: que ellos llaman Toximmolpilia. En esta, no hizieron solemnjdad publica: porque ya los españoles, y religiosos estauan en esta tierra. De manera que este año de mjll y qujnjentos y setenta y seis, anda en quinze años, de la gabilla de años que corre.

Quando sacauan fuego nueuo, y hazian esta solemnjdad, renouauan el pacto que tenjan con el demonjo de servjrle: y renouauan todas las estatuas del demonjo, que en su casa tenjan, y todas las alhajas de su serujcio, y las de sus casas: y hazian grandes alegrias, por saber, que ya tenjan el mundo seguro, que no se acabaria por cincuenta y dos años. Claramente consta, que este artificio de contar, fue invencion del diablo, para hazerlos renouar el pacto que con el tenjan de cincuenta, en cincuenta y dos años: y amedrētandolos con la fin del mundo, y haziendolos entender, que el alargaua el tiempo y les hazian merced del passando el mundo adelāte.

Demas desta cuenta tenjan que de ocho en ocho años, hazian vn ayuno de pan y agua, por espacio de ocho dias, y hazian al cabo, vna fiesta donde hazian solemne areito de diuersos personajes; donde dezian, que descubrian ventura o que la merecian, y llamauanla Atamalcualiztli.

Otra fiesta hazian, de quatro en quatro años, a honrra del fuego, donde agujerauan las orejas a todos los njños, y njñas, y la llamauan pillauanaliztli. Y en esta fiesta es verisimjle, y ay conjecturas que hazil su biesto, contando seis de nemontemj.

La otra cuenta del tiempo, es de vn año: el qual repartian en deziocho meses, y a cada mes le dauan veinte dias: y cada vno destos meses, era dedicado a vno, o a dos dioses: y hazian en el sus fiestas, cada vno destos meses, le repartian de cinco in cinco dias, y hazian las ferias el vltimo dia, destos cinco, en vn pueblo: y dende a cinco dias en otro, y dende a otros cinco dias en otro. De manera que el quarto quin-

X796 And before she died, she danced. The old men beat the drums for her; the singers sang for her—536 they intoned her song. And when she danced, she [181] wept much, and she sighed; she felt anguish.[4] For time was but short; the span was but brief before she would suffer, when she would reach her end on earth.

X796 And when the sun was past its zenith, they then took her up to the top of the temple. All the impersonators of the demons went, laying hold of and accompanying her, proceeding in rows. Yet another, the impersonator [of Ilama tecutli], went leading the people—one whom verily they thought a god[dess] on earth, who was only a man whom they [so] adorned.

And when they reached [the summit], they cut open her breast. And when she was slain, then they severed her head. And her head they gave to him who led. He took it in his right hand, going off with it, going dancing, marking the dance rhythm with the head. He went before them, leading all the likenesses and vicars of the devils. They circled the temple; then they descended, in the same way [as they had come up], ranged in rows, and going in lines. And when they reached the ground, thereupon they dispersed and went to their houses, to their tribal temples, where [the gods' raiment] was guarded.

And the vicar, the likqueu, of Ilama tecutli, he thus danced: he stepped back, kicking his heels up behind him. And then he went off supporting himself upon his staff, a cane.

[293] Its head, its upper end, was divided off into three [points], like a three-pronged harpoon. It was called his thorny staff. And when he thus danced, one said: "Ilama tecutli backeth away." And they put upon him a mask looking in two directions. It had huge lips and large eyes. And upon his head moved an array of little banners, arranged in rows. They seemed like a wreath of flowers upon his head.

[417] And when this [took place], it was said: "His grain bin burneth." His granary was fashioned[5] of pine branches joined together, like a framework.[6] Then they wrapped paper about it; they caulked it with paper. They placed it upon the eagle vessel.

Auh in nimo mjquj mjtotinia, qujtlatzotzonjlinia in vevetque, in cujcanjme, qujcujcatia, quevilia in jcujc. Auh in jquac mjtotinia, vel mochoqujlinia, yoan elcicivia, mociappoa: ichica ca ça achitonca, ça izqujch cavitl y, ça izqujch cavitontli y, inic ontlacotia, in ic campolon tlaltícpactli.

Auh in jquac ßmotzcalo tonatiuh: njmã ic ic qujtlecavia in tescaltícpac, qujxitzqujtivi, qujtocativi in jzqujchtin im jxiptlaoã diablome compantitivi, teiacãtiuh in oc cppa ixiptla, in vel-qujmotzutia tlaltícpac, çan tlacatl in qujchichioaia.

Auh in oconaxiéque, njmã ic coneltequi: auh in ßmomjqujli, njmã ic qujoalquechcotona: auh in jxontecõ, qujoalmaca in teiacantiuh, itlan conana imaiauhcampa in qujxitzqujtiuh, mjtotiiuh ic ontlaiauhtiuh in tõtecomatl, imjxpan icatiuh, qujniacantiuh in jzqujchtin imjxiptlaoan, in impatilloan Diablome, qujoaliacalaa in teucalli, njman ic oeltemo, çã no ivi, motecpantivitze, cenpantitivitze: auh in oemoco tlalchi, njmã ic ic vivi, momoiaoa, vmpa vivi in inchachan, in incacalpulco, in vmpa pipiolo.

auh in teixiptla, in jxipctla Ilama tecutli: injc mjtociaia tzitzintlaça, itzintlampa in conjaua icxi: yoan ic motlatlaqueschitiuh impil, ẽtlatl:

in jiacac, in jquac, ezcan in mazaltic, iuhqujn mjuacachalli: motecuiotia, yiotlavitzil, auh in juh mjtotinia y, mjtos, motzinoa in Ilama tecutli: yõ xaiacatl cõmaquja, occampa tlachia, tezxazacaltic, tezxazacalpul, yoan iztotolonpol, auh in jcpac pantotzintl terpantoc, vipantoc: iuhqujn icpacxuchiuh tuchina:

yoan in jquac y, no motenoua icuezcõ tlatla: in jcuencon qujchichioaia ocuquavitl in qujnenepeoaia, iuhqujn colotli, ic qujtlaliaia camaqujmjloaia, camaqepechoa, vncan qujquetza in qusuhxicalco:

[illegible] por [illegible], porque la pusieran; pero que no eran dioses [illegible], y de otros pueblecitos, otras [illegible] grandes de dioses."

4. Torquemada (op. cit., p. 204) writes, however, that "a esta Muger le era permitido llorar, y entrañablemente sentir (como suyuda en labor, que [illegible] entre Dios) y así se entristecía, suspiraba, y llaraba, con la amargura de la muerte, que de presente, y cerca esperaba."

5. Chicahua may be rendered in two ways. We have been guided largely by the context.

6. In the text diagram (Tezcoco) Sahagún states that "tenían la estatua del dios de fuego de arquitas, y poko atadas, como una cerca, que ellos llaman calcali, que quiere decir atadoiro o cercado."

●782

Aztec NU7

[Most of the information on propitiation, which forms a major portion of Aztec ceremonies, will be found in category 796]

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

At one place they split up; at another they sacrificed three individuals, according to the prescribed ritual of opening up the stomach and tearing out the heart; and at a third place they learned how to make pulque.
175
[782]

175
648
Their records make little reference to the tribes already in the Valley, and their own entrance was relatively unnoticed by the others. However, the hieroglyph of Tenozomoc in one manuscript suggests the obvious conclusion that they had to have Tepanec permission to pass through Azcapotzalco and settle at Chapultepec, where the beautiful park now is. Here they remained happily for nearly a generation. Their neighbors seem to have been small but growing communities, so that conflict was inevitable. The Tenochcas began the [583] strife because their young men went up the lake to Tenayuca to raid and steal wives, a common North American Indian method of gaining prestige. Their more powerful neighbors became irritated and made up a punitive expedition in which Tepanecs, Culhuas and Xochimilcas took part. The result was horrid: the Tenochca chief Huitzilhuitl* and most of the tribe had to go to Culhuacan territory to dwell in serfdom, while the rest escaped to the lake where some low-lying islands offered refuge. The main body stayed in Tizapan,† near the present San Angel, where they were under the eye of Coxcox,‡ the chief of Culhuacan. The Tenochcas detested the waste which was barren in all except poisonous snakes and insects. Huitzilopochtli they still enshrined, but his worth had sunk so low that the Culhuas came to mock him at his shrine and toss nameless filth into the temple.*

Finally, however, the tide turned. Coxcox became involved in a war with Xochimilco and called upon his vassals to aid him. When the Tenochcas reached the field of battle

*Wee-tee'ul-weed. †Tee-za-pa'n. ‡Cosh-cosh.

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

His later years were weighted with trouble with Tenoch- 175 titlan. He had married a sister of Montezuma II and, as she [684] was unduly free in granting favors to the young men of the court, in 1498 he took advantage of his legal right to kill her. The Tenochcas took this act as a gross personal affront and directed every effort, short of war, to overcoming their ancient ally.[21]

Axayacatl of Tenochtitlan died in 1479, while Nezahual- 175
pilli was young in his rule, and his brother Tizoc, who had 778 previously been the war chief, took his place. Tizoc's most 532 important act of office was to begin the reconstruction of the great temple to Huitzilopochtli, the War God, and Tlaloc, the Rain God. In commemoration of his conquests he also had carved the so-called Sacrificial Stone. This mon- [782] strous-sized vessel for burning human hearts has a relief on the edge, depicting Tizoc dressed as Huitzilopochtli seizing captives representing tributary tribes. Most of the towns, unfortunately, must have been merely reconquered, since their names appear in the previous conquest lists of earlier rulers. It is not a complete surprise to read in some accounts that Tizoc died of poison administered by chiefs disgusted at his lack of military success.[22]

Ahuitzotl* succeeded his brother Tizoc in 1486. His first 175
task was to complete the great temple the others had begun, [648]
in the dedication of which the gathering of sacrificial victims 796 played an important part. He invoked the aid of Nezahualpilli, and the allies made a two-year campaign into northern Oaxaca, amassing no less than twenty thousand victims, the high point of the sacrificial cult in Mexico. At the start of the dedication the captives stood in two rows, and Nezahual-

*Ah'-weet-zoel.

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

175 pilli and Ahuitzotl began the grisly work of tearing out the 796 victims' hearts. Lesser dignitaries succeeded each other according to rank, until the awful immolation was completed.[18]

175 Ahuitzotl's military campaigns extended south into Guatemala and as far north as the Huaxteca in Vera Cruz. He was [669] constantly engaged in putting down revolts, especially in Puebla, where the Tlaxcalans* and Cholulans had resisted Tenochcan domination. His capital, meanwhile, had grown so enormously that he had to construct another aqueduct, a fact which indicates that sheer pressure of population was an important cause for the military exploits of Tenochtitlan.
[731] An unusually disastrous flood beset the city in 1503, so that Ahuitzotl had to send to Texcoco for aid in restoring the dikes. While superintending these public works he received a head injury which proved fatal. Ahuitzotl's personality was strong and vicious. He was passionately fond of war, being a vindictive and relentless foe. Likewise he had those traits which so often accompany military character, lust for women and fondness for display.

The luckless Montezuma II, surnamed Xocoyotzin† (the Younger), son of Axayacatl, succeeded his uncle. Not only had he to keep the conquered tribes in order, but also he had constantly to provide captives for sacrifice. This bloody cult, which to the Tenochcan mind had brought such eminence,
[782] had to be maintained lest disaster ensue. He approached his uncle's piety on one occasion when twelve thousand captives from a rebel province in Oaxaca were delivered up to the War God.[19]

The last New Fire Ceremony took place in 1507. The years immediately preceding, with their threat of an ending

*Tlash-ca'-lans. †Sho-coy-o-tzin.

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

532 bolize the heavens and their color. This strip is girdled by 805 the signs for stars, through which penetrate designs emblematic of the rays of the sun. Two immense Fire Serpents, symbolic of the Year and Time, circle the exterior to meet face to face at the base. Boring back through these forms to the significance behind them, we have a grandiose conception of the majesty of the universe.[11] (See Plate 52, top.)

349 In recent years, under the Presidential Palace in Mexico
532 City, a monolith over a meter high was found, which represented a platform and a stair crowned at the top by a similar solar disk. Reliefs on the sides show Huitzilopochtli, God of War, and Tezcatlipoca, God of the Smoking Mirror, symbolizing the sacred war between night and day. Probably the Calendar Stone was set up in much the same manner, and it is tantalizing to think of the lost reliefs which explained and ornamented the great disk when it was in position.[12] (See Plate 52, bottom.)

532 The historical accounts record that the Calendar Stone
805 was made in 1479 and the great eagle vase of Tizoc during 782 his rule from 1481 to 1486. A trough, extending from the basin to the edge of the vase, has been explained as a drain for blood to run out. However, the design is not keyed to this drain, and the purpose of the basin is to burn hearts, not to receive blood. Therefore, the furrow was probably made by the Spaniards, who sought either to use the vase as a nether millstone or tried unsuccessfully to smash it as an example of idolatry.[13]

532 The dates of these two monuments indicate that this was the time when Aztec civilization burst into flower. It is a tribute to Aztec artists that, originally fettered by the more lowly tasks of handicraft, they could accept the tremendous

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

532
782

PLATE 60

AZTEC RELIGION

TOP: Left: Priests and laymen sacrifice two victims in honor of the War God. Right: War captive on sacrificial stone defends himself against members of the warrior orders. BOTTOM: Left: Sacrificial knife with mosaic handle representing an Eagle Knight, in the British Museum. These pictures from the Codex Florentino reveal the technique of using a stone knife to make a deep enough incision to reach the heart and tear it out. Right: Sacrifice to the Sun.

411
532
782

[p. 176(D)]

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

776 were grouped into armies of the east and the west. Gladiatorial combats, often to the death, expressed this idea in [796 701] ritual; and the great warrior orders, the Eagle Knights of Huitzilopochtli and the Ocelot Knights of Tezcatlipoca, likewise reflected the conflict between day and night. This Sacred War permeated the ritual and philosophy of Aztec religion.* (See Plates 39, middle left; 40.)

While the great gods, the chief deities of the tribe, tended to be associated with the heavens, there were many others who controlled growth and fertility. Often these gods had goddesses as wives or companions, as if the idea of reproduction of the male and female principles were dawning in Aztec theology. Tlaloc, the Rain God, held sway over growth and vegetation, and his companion Chalchihuitlicue, (Our Lady of the Turquoise Skirt), presided over lakes and rivers. This goddess was the center of an important cult and is represented as a charming young girl beautifully dressed. Xipe (the Flayed One) symbolized spring, and his distinctive costume, a human skin, represented the new covering of vegetation with which the earth clothes itself each year. His priests, at the ceremonies in his honor, carried this symbolism into their costume by donning the skins of freshly [796 782] flayed captives. (See Plates 28, top left; 56, top right; 59, bottom left; 61, bottom left.)

The corn goddesses were young and lovely and probably derived from the old cult of the Middle Culture goddesses. Chicomecoatl,* (Seven Snake), was the Goddess of Crops and Subsistence, represented by corn, the staple food. Xilonen,† "Young Corn Mother," and Xochiquetzal,‡ "Flower

*Chee-co'-me-co-atl. ‡Sho-chee-kay-tsa'l.
†Shee-lo'-nen.

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

796 continuance of their existence endowed the ritual with profound solemnity. The New Fire Ceremony was symbolized by the extinction of the old altar fire, which had burned perpetually for fifty-two years, and the kindling of a fresh one in token of the new grant of life.* (See Plate 29, top row.)

During the five useless days (nemontemi) of the final year the people let their fires go out and destroyed their household furniture. Fasting and lamentation were the order of the day while the populace awaited catastrophe. Pregnant women [789] were shut up in granaries, lest they be changed into wild animals, and children were marched up and down and kept awake, for fear that sleep on that fatal evening would result in their turning into rats.

At sunset the priests, in solemn panoply, representatives of the whole array of the Aztec pantheon, ascended the Hill of the Star, anciently known as Huixachtecatl. This extinct volcanic crater rises abruptly from the Valley floor and is visible from almost every quarter of the Valley of Mexico. From the temple to its summit the priests anxiously scanned the heavens as the night wore on, awaiting the hour when a certain star or stars, Aldebaran or the Pleiades, reached the center of the heavens and gave the sign that their world would continue.

[372] At the very moment when these stars passed the meridian [782] the priests seized a wooden fire drill and kindled a new fire in the open breast of a victim freshly slain for the purpose. The populace—priests, chiefs and commoners—thrilled to a great happiness. Runners lit torches from the new fire and rekindled the altars in the temples of every town and hamlet, whence the people bore the flames to their hearths. Like fireflies the darting torchbearers sped through the night, bringing the promise of a new life to every man, woman and child.

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

With the dawn, more than ever gracious in its fulfillment of a 796 nations' piety, the populace rallied, renovating their temples, refurbishing their houses and making new utensils for temple and household use. There was feasting on special food, and sacrifice both by personal bloodletting and the immolation of [785] captives betokened the measure of popular gratitude.

Another striking ceremony fell on the day Four Earthquake (or Motion), the sign of the present age, and symbolized the passage of the sun through the heavens. At dawn a captive dressed as the Sun God, Tonatiuh, ascended the platform where the Calendar Stone was set. Four priests spread-eagled the victim, and a fifth opened his breast to tear out the heart as an offering to the god. The populace then feasted until noon, gashing their ears and parts of their bodies with blades of obsidian. In the afternoon the Eagle and Tiger [785] Knights, votaries of the solar cult, took part in a dance dramatizing the sacred war wherein the sun is slain, to be reborn the following day. The dance culminated in a gladiatorial sacrifice. Selected Eagle and Tiger Knights, armed with real weapons, slew a captive warrior, chosen for his military distinction, who was tethered to a circular stone representing the sun's disk and who defended himself with dummy weapons only.[10] (See Plate 60, top right, bottom.)

796
782

A curious type of sacrifice took place in connection with the worship of the god Xipe and may be the origin of the arrow sacrifice which is performed in honor of the morning star by the Pawnee of our Western plains. In the Mexican rite the victim was lashed to a scaffold, and priests, using bows or atl-atls, shot him to death.[11]

The Aztecs performed a hideous ceremony in honor of the Fire God, Huehueteotl. Prisoners of war and their cap-

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

796 Prisoners of war and their cap-
[276] tors took part in a dance in honor of the god, and the next day
782 the captives ascended to the top of a platform, where a powder, yauhtli (Indian hemp), was cast in their faces to anesthetize them against their ghastly fate. After preparing a great fire, each priest seized a captive and, binding him hand and foot, lifted him onto his back. A macabre dance took place around the burning coals, and one by one they dumped their burdens into the flames. Before death could intervene to put an end to their suffering the priests fished out the captives with large hooks and wrenched the hearts from their blistered bodies.[12]

In contrast to the callous brutality of the fire sacrifice, the ceremony in honor of the god Tezcatlipoca was strikingly dramatic, tinged with the pathos with which we view the taking of a life. The handsomest and bravest prisoner of war was selected a year before his execution. Priests taught him the manners of a ruler, and as he walked about, playing divine melodies upon his flute, he received the homage due Tezcatlipoca himself. A month before the day of sacrifice four lovely girls, dressed as goddesses, became his companions and attended to his every want. On the day of his death he took leave of his weeping consorts to lead a procession in his honor, marked by jubilation and feasting. Then he bade farewell to the glittering cortege and left for a small temple, accompanied by the eight priests who had attended him throughout the year. The priests preceded him up the steps of the temple, and he followed, breaking at each step a flute which he had played in the happy hours of his incarnation. At the top of the platform the priests turned him over the sacrificial block and wrenched out his heart. In deference to his former godhood his body was carried, not ignominiously flung, down the steps; but his head joined the other skulls spitted on the rack beside the temple.[11] (See Plate 61, top.) 796 [782]

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

Every one of the great monthly sacrifices had a dramatic significance, and a list of the principal feasts, the gods they honored and the month of their occurrence is set forth on Table XVII. Several authors have availed themselves of Friar Sahagun's matchless descriptions to set forth the elaborate rituals which we have lightly sampled here. The elements of time, training and elaborate preparation of costume, it can be readily seen, must have absorbed a large part of the resources of the tribe. The tentacles of ritual extended throughout the tribal activities, so that even games and sports were transformed into acts of religious meaning, although the participants undoubtedly derived a great deal of fun from their performance.

The ball game, tlachtli, was such a game, played in a court shaped like the capital letter I. Walls extended on either side of the stem of the I, and in the middle of each a stone or wooden ring was set vertically, in contrast to the horizontal position of a basketball hoop. The players tried to pass through this ring a hard rubber ball, which they could only strike with their elbows, hips or legs. There must have been some other method of scoring than by goals alone, since these, very naturally, were of rare occurrence—so much so that, in the event of one, players and backers had the right to snatch the wearing apparel of their adversaries. The game was played far and wide, courts having been found from the Republic of Honduras to southeastern Arizona. It has a special interest for us in that the first description of rubber, so important in our modern economy, was when Oviedo, in the sixteenth 796 526

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

796 century, wrote of the game and the ball used by its players.[14]
526 (See Plate 57, bottom left; Fig. 3.)

525 There were also games of chance which were played with 796 a semisacred significance. One such game, patolli, utilized a board shaped like a cross, with spaces ruled in the arms, not unlike a version of the old-fashioned parchesi of our childhood. Macuilxochitl, Five Flower, the god of all games, was sometimes portrayed in connection with players of patolli.[15]

796 Another important entertainment involved the erection of 526 a high pole at the top of which a movable platform was socketed. Men dressed as gods or the birds into which the gods transformed themselves, and, fastened by ropes wound around the platform, leaped off into space. As they did so the ropes, unwinding, rotated the platform and gave the effect of flight to the circling performers. Each turn brought the birdmen nearer to the ground, and they were wont to alter their center of balance and adjust their wings, producing the effect of the rise and fall of soaring birds. This modest application of the principle of gliding must have created a spectacle of color and beauty. The ceremony is still performed in parts of Mexico, and the Volador, or flying place, of Tenochtitlan was, until very recently, the site of the "Thieves' Market" in Mexico City.[16]

782 The application of human sacrifice to the most simple cere-
174 monial act of thanksgiving offers a grisly contrast to the spirit in which these rituals were carried out. However, social and religious behavior are calculated to preserve human existence and ensure man's well-being, regardless of how warped the methods may become. It follows that the idea of sacrificing precious possessions to attain such ends would lead to the offering of the most precious gift of all, human life,

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

since that is what man most ardently strives to keep intact. 782 174
Thus instances of human sacrifices keep cropping up in the world's religious systems, and we preserve in our own culture the concept of martyrdom, achieved by voluntary or involuntary means, as an act of virtue. The very beautiful example of the Saviour transmutes to the highest spiritual plane this idea of sacrifice for the good of humanity.

The Aztecs did not reach this spiritual level, but the symbolism of their sacrifice has, nonetheless, its own barbaric beauty. They reasoned that for man to survive, the gods who permit his existence must also live and wax strong. These gods, however, received their best nutriment from the most precious of offerings, the hearts of men. Thus a vicious circle became established which led to sacrifice on an increasing scale. The gods manifested their favor and their strength to the Aztecs by letting them prosper, but the Aztecs, on their part, had to sacrifice hearts to the gods to maintain their good will. A good part of the tribal prosperity emanated from military success, so that the most acceptable sacrifices were the hearts of adversaries, which were the hardest to acquire since prisoners could not be taken without military victory. A martial success, on the other hand, could only be achieved through the exercise of divine favor. Thus sacrifice led to war and war back to sacrifice, in an unending series of expanding cycles. The effect that this practice had on foreign affairs we shall describe in the next chapter. (See Plate 60, top.)

War captives were the most esteemed offering, and the 782 braver and higher in rank, the more valuable they were. [727] Slaves were killed for minor ceremonies, and in rare instances [567] women and children were slain in fertility rites to ensure growth in plants by the powers of sympathetic magic.

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

growth in plants by the powers of sympathetic magic. Ceremonial cannibalism was sometimes practiced, in the belief that the eater can absorb the virtues of the eaten, but this rite cannot be considered a vice. The letting of one's own blood was another way to ensure divine favor, and people did horrible self-penances such as mutilating themselves with knives or drawing through their tongues a string on which were threaded maguey spines. The higher the social position of the individual and the more he consequently knew of ritualistic observance, the more arduously he performed the fasts, penances and tortures imposed by the religion. The priests, therefore, were strongly cognizant of their social responsibility and by the rigor of their own lives strove to ensure the well-being of the tribe.[17] (See Plate 61, bottom right.)

The picture writings of the Aztecs take human sacrifice and penance as a matter of course but seldom indicate the quantity of victims. Indeed, only one such manuscript records the monthly ceremonies, and a post-Conquest copy of another reveals a sacrifice of twenty thousand people at the dedication of the enlarged great temple of Mexico.[17] The Spanish accounts and those of the educated Indians agree, but whether Christian piety induced exaggeration, and how much, it is difficult to ascertain at this time and age. The Conquistador who counted thousands of skulls on the skull rack in Tenochtitlan apparently confirms these other statements, which the great humanitarian and Indian lover, Las Casas, discounted in his special pleading for decent treatment of the indigenous population of New Spain.[18]

The priesthood, beside performing these bloodcurdling acts, had other more pacific duties; they also instructed youth in the mysteries of writing and keeping records. Aztec writ-

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

have been an important religious center in Middle Culture times. However, neither trade nor religion broke down the sense of communal and political independence in Central Mexico. (See Plate 35, Fig. 2.)

Foreign relations centered around war, which, we have seen, was an important part of Aztec economy and religion. The same confusion of motives that we find in our modern culture affected the reasons for military action. We wage war for economic, territorial and political advantages and, while condemning the practice in our adversaries, justify our own participation by saying that we are fighting for freedom, to liberate someone, to extend civilization or to ensure peace. Soldiers on our own side are brave and attain glory, preserve our social virtues and sacrifice themselves for the public well-being. Those on the other side are aggressors, agents of evil and cowardly knaves. The Aztecs made war for defense, revenge and economic motives, which were inextricably confused with the need for the sacrificial victims requisite for proper adoration of their gods. Thus in warfare the great aim was to take captives, but behind this religious goal lurked the less holy urges of political and economic expediency.

The captive himself attained social status, since he went to a special warrior's heaven. A redonbtable Tlaxcalan chief, named Tlahuicol, was singled out for sacrifice to the sun and fought so successfully with his dummy weapons that he killed some of his adversaries and wounded a number of the others. He was pardoned and offered a chieftaincy in the Tenochcan army. Tlahuicol, however, rejected his pardon and gladly underwent sacrifice for the greater honor and glory in that death. This story illustrates the attitude of the

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

727 individual warrior, which is not unlike that of the mediaeval
715 knight or career soldier in our own culture.[8]
782

721 The Aztec reasons for fighting and their social and moral 726 sanctions for war were not so very different from our own, except that we have many more, due to our superior rationalizations. The Aztec military technique, however, was definitely inferior, since it was not so completely developed a social tool as it is our own culture. The basic organization of the army required the participation of every able-bodied man under the direction of the war chief. However, as Aztec society grew more intricate and greater numbers of warriors took the field, the military structure became more rigid.

701 The unit of organization was an aggregation of twenty men, several of which were combined into larger bodies of two to four hundred, roughly corresponding to our platoons and companies. Special detachments of from four to six men, who did scouting and raiding, operated much as do the squads of our own military system. The clan commander marshaled the larger bodies, much as a colonel handles his regiment. The clan troops were banded together in four divisions under the heads of the four municipal quarters, and the tribal war chiefs had the supreme command. In a very numerous army the troops from a given quarter, or barrio, were sometimes divided into brigades, composed of the forces from two or three clans.[8]

The high tribal officers, the war chief, the chiefs of the quarters and the clan chiefs commanded the larger bodies. The ordinary chiefs and members of the warrior orders, the Knights of the Eagle and the Tiger and of a third infrequently mentioned order, the Arrow, according to their particular ability, took over the lesser units. In other words,

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

174 was set with razor-sharp obsidian blades. Usually he was 796 killed in the most honorable of deaths, that of sacrificial vic-
349 tim to the Sun God, Tonatiuh, but sometimes he would resist so successfully that he gained a pardon. Other disk-shaped stones were placed about the plaza. One, thirteen feet in diameter, was set vertically on a special platform. Carved with a consummate mastery of design, it represented the symbolic history of the world. Another disk, set flat, was hollowed in the center, so that hearts wrung from war captives might be burned to nourish the great gods. This was carved on its surface and edge to commemorate the many conquests of War Chief Tizoc, who was shown dressed as a god, with his captives before him.

174 In another part of the plaza a sacrifice was to be made.
782 Before a small temple dedicated to one of the myriad Aztec gods a group was gathered, some in the gay panoply of merchants and others wearing the sinister black of the priesthood. A tightly pinioned slave stood in their midst and looked unseeingly before him, resignation, not fear, on his face. The priests rushed him up the steep steps of the temple, followed by the merchants at a more leisurely pace. Two priests seized the slave by either arm, forcing him backward, while two others pulled his legs from under him until his body curved, belly upward, over the altar. A fifth priest plowed his flint knife in a long sweep from the breastbone to the base of the stomach and, reaching into the aperture, with a dexterous twist tore out the heart. This he burned, while it was still throbbing, in a carved stone vase, while the merchants, swinging long ladles of smoking incense, chanted their thanks for a safe and profitable excursion into the hot country. (See Plate 60.)

They arrayed him [like the god], and he carried in his hand a green gourd vessel, in which was water. With a branch[115] he sprinkled people.

And when not on his feast day, but sometime during the year, [a devotion was paid to Napa tecutli,] another man impersonated him, and they decked him [similarly].

When one of the makers of mats desired that there should be a dance at his house, that he should observe [a devotion], the governors of his guild (calpulequi)[116] escorted [the impersonator of the god], who went sprinkling the people with water, since they had prayed that they might be benefited.

And when he delivered himself of his faults, [the celebrant] brought forth his goods and chattels.

He said: "May I eat not in vain, may I consume not in vain, may I use not for myself alone that which hath benefited me. May all be eaten, drunk, consumed, that a dance be danced for our god, Napa tecutli. May I now live, soon sleep, soon awake again. [The god] knoweth if he will give anything to me, if he willeth that anything be given."

Then he covered the impersonator with a large cotton mantle; who, thus clothed, then departed [with the calpulequi] from [the mat-maker's] house.

And then [the mat-maker] feasted all his kinsmen.

And in the guild hall where was guarded the image [of the god], the mat-makers greatly honored and cared for him. Always they spread out mats and set up seats; they should [things] out, they swept clean, they removed rubbish, they laid fires. Always they swept [the hall] very clean, they provided incense. No rubbish lay about.

And in this manner was [the god] twilight; he was covered with a black unguent; his face had a thick coating of soot—his face was blackened, and it was spotted with a paste of amaranth seed. He wore a paper crown. His hairdress, at the back of his head, was of paper. He wore a paper breech-clout. He had bells and white sandals. He bore the shield [ornamented with] water-lily flowers and leaves. He carried a staff of long thick reeds.

Twenty-first Chapter, which tells of those called the Little Molded Ones (Tepictoton), who were held to be among the Tlaloca.

[The Tepictoton] were also thought to belong among the Tlaloca.

These thus named Tepictoton were only imagined. They made them as representations of various mountains.

And any who were palsied, cramped, stiffened, paralyzed, or any who were threatened with drowning when the wind came over the water, would then vow that they would fashion images, that they would make representations of qujchichiuaia, ynac mantinemca, zozouje, xoxouhquj zicalli: vncan ixtiuemj atl, vexotica ic teatzellhvia. 776 796

Auh yn jquac omo ilhujuh, yn çan nenamajan: oc no ce qujxiptlaiotiuia, qujchichiuaia: 567 467

yn jquac tla aca, petlachiuhquj qujnequj ychan qujtotia, qujnepiellis: vmpa qujvicaia, in calpuleque, teatzellhujtiuh, tonachvitiuh, iuhquin ic qujtlanjliaia, ynjc qujmicuelis.

Yoan iuhquin yvic mocujtlazculistlaoaia: yn açaca ic vnca itlaquj, yazca:

qujtoaia, macamo njcnenqua, macamo njcnenpolo, macamo njcnixcauj, yn nocuelilocaz: ma onqualo, ma onjoa, ma onpopoliuj, ma ic onmjtoti in totecuh napa tecutli: ma çaquen njnonemjtis, yn ac iuhquj njcochiz, ac iuhquj njnecez, iehe qujmati, yn açoc ida, nechmomaquilix, qujmomacavilis:

ic quinquentiaia ce quachtli, yn ixiptla muchiuaia, ic oalquiça yn ichan:

auh ic muchitlacatl, tlatlaquaia yn jouaniolque. 776

Auh yn jcalpulco in vmpa pialoia yxiptla, cenca tlamauiztiliaia, tlâcoliaia, in petlachiuhque, muchipa petlatoteca, icpaltoteca, tlatectulia, tlachpana, tlacuicuj, tletlalia, muchipa cupaltema, tlatetecalihtoc tlatetecalihtimanj, atle vetztoc, çe tlaçolli. 467 [356]

Auh yuju yn muchichiuaia, motilloçac, mjxtlilpapoxx, mixtlillujj, mjchchiaujticac, amacale, yiamacuexpal, amamaxtle, tuitulle, ixtaccaque, atlacuçomanchimale, aztapilitapile. 776

Jnic cempoalli vce capitulo, ynchpa tlaiza yn itoca tepictoton: yn jnoan pouja tlaloque.

No yoan pouj, intech tlamjnia yn tlaloque:

yn jc mjtoaia tepicto, çan qujmonpiqujia, qujmixipelaiotiuia, in tetepe, in çaço catle tepetl.

Auh yn aquja cocoxujia, cocopaoaia, quaquauhtia, cocotocauja: mocça yn aquja atlan miquimoquj, chocatl ipan mocuepoua atle: vncan momotchiuia ynjc tepiquia, in qujpipiqui: quemalouaz, in chalchiuitl yeoz, in tlaloc: 776 782

115. The corresponding Spanish text specifies "un cuero de ciervo" (leather).
116. According to Durán, (op. cit., Vol. II, p. 219), the calpuleques were "señores o guardas de barrios."

776 Quetzalcoatl, Chalchiuitl ycue, Tlaloc, Popocatepetl, Itzac 782 tepetl, Poinchouccti,[117] and any other mountains of which they had vowed to make representations.

And they represented the mountains, they made their 532 images, only in a dough of amaranth seed and maize,[118]
782 made in human form, made to look like men.

They gave them teeth of squash seeds; they provided them 755 eyes of fat black beans. With wherever adornment [the mountains] were represented, thus when they made them, they thereupon arrayed them.

[314 And they made papers, and they spattered them with 289] liquid rubber.[119] And they laid these over them as mantles.

And some of these papers, which were spattered with drops of liquid rubber, they hung on a cord, tied and fastened together, so that they were held in a row before the small molded cases [Tepicme].

They rustled, quivered, and flew in the breeze. Canes of fat, round reeds [held the cord] at both ends; [the canes] were stuck into and supported by the ground. On this were held the rubber-spatted papers.

[415] And a green spotted gourd was split in two and cored.
Before [the Tepicme] they set this, which they called the tamponic cup, for the wine, in which the wine was. Thus they offered [them] wine.

793 And it was the office of the priests alone, who were experienced, to make [the Tepicme] and set them in place. None 532 of the householders dared make or adorn them.

And on the fifth [day], when they feasted the priests, it was said, they caused them to forget.

782 When the Tepicme were fashioned, thereupon they held a vigil and made music for them.

755 During the night, they made offerings four times; they set before the priests, before them who sang the songs for the Tepicmeen, round tamales which they gave them.

And four times they offered them food during the night, and they made music for [the Tepicmeen].

[198 They whistled with their fingers, they made music for 533] them with shells, with flutes, and with fifes.

Young jousters, in their caps, who cut capers, and amused
[273 people, blew the flutes. They also were offered food.

463] And on the next day they slew the Tepicmeen [images]; they slew them, like sacrificial quail, twisting their necks.
Then they gathered up and carried away the Tepicmeen figures made of a dough of amaranth-seed and maize to the priests' house, where dwelt the priests.

And he who [caused to be] fashioned the Tepicme thereupon returned to his guests, where they were entertained.

273 And in the evening, toward nightfall, then all the old 782 people are drinking wine—those already advanced in age, the 755 popocatepetl, itzac tepetl, poinchoucti: ynon in çaçe quenquijxel tepetl in quijtemoua in quijpiqui.

Auh in quijpiquia, in quiniipilatiuia in ynque, çan tocalli, quiptlacatlaliuia, quiptlacatlachieltiuia, tlacatlachi-tiuanca:

quiptlantiuia xiouachili, auh in quijmiloloteiuia xiocuili:
in quomonj yxtlatequj in quiniipilatiuia, in quijpiquia çan no inhuqj ynic quijnchichiouia.

Auh ynon quichiouia, amatemujl, colchachapoctiuia, colchipiniuia, quijnquequentiuia:

auh in ocquj amatemuiil, tlacolchipinjlli, tlacolchachapotzalli, mocatitoch quijpipilouia, mocatitoch quijnemechilpiuia, quijnemetechçalouia, ynipxpan amoc, ic itzacuque in tepicme:

hiçmacatec papapatlacatec, papatlamec, ontepilpanujl, mecec, nemecec, necocxampa tlatlalochcac, tetzontectec, ya iuch amoc temujl.

Auh tzilacatzili, tlaintlapanili, tlaintzacili: ynimpan momanca, chalchihuitzalli ipan poujia, vetli vnca ca, vetli ic momanca.

Auh çan inhuan in tlamacazque, ya jnnequich, in tlachiuque cuica, ya quichichiouia, in quiptlaliuia: aiac çan moiocuiaia, in calla in quichichiouia.

Auh mocujtlica in quiptlalliujuia, ynjua: quijmolcaualtitiuia in tlamacazque:

ya o ic cauhque tepicme, ynjuan ic ic quinnoçaviia, quiccujxtia:

in cuiaol xapa in quiptlamanjlia, tamalolli in quijmacaia, quijmamaia ynipxpa, in tlamacazque, in tepiccujca:

no xapa in quiptlamacaia cuiaol, ynon quiptlapichiliuia, quijmoquiquijxiliuia tecuicuili in quiqipichiliuia, ynon vlacapitzli, cocouijlol, vlacapitzuia, çan tolquechti, papaquijuj, huiuinj, tolitiuitinj, tecomoltinj, cacalaqui, no tlamacaia.

Auh ya ontetic ynjuan quijmicia ya tepicme, quinquech-cotoua, quinquechcuj, quinquechilacatoua, çanpan quincua-ololoua, cuecheuj, in tepicmoalli, quiqui ya calmecac ya vnque ontepan, tlamacazque.

Auh in tepiquijuj; ynjuan in ye calaquijh ya tlacatecmoalhuca, ya jcoxoua, vecoa ontepin, mopiatequa:

auh in ic iouanich, in ic teotlac ynjuan in ic tlacatec, mochiuaxcalchiu in vecoaca, ya in chicuacpan, ya ontlachi-

117. Gods of the sky, of water, and of rain (cf. corresponding Spanish text). Popocatepetl and Itzac tepetl (Iztac citlali) are mountain-gods in the Valley of Mexico; Poinchouccti is Mt. Orizaba.

118. Made of dough (very sacred), in the Spanish colonial Bible translated as [illegible] Zeremonien des Buschdienstes (Ensign Kopitzsch, p. 27).

119. ". . . cuero pegajoso llamado de goma de ulli, o hule (caucho pegajoso llamado [illegible])" (Sahagún, Historia general, Vol. I, p. 128).

well-mannered, the gray-headed, the white haired; and the old women.

Of these it was the exclusive privilege that they should drink wine.

And when they had drunk their fill, thereupon all went to their houses, disperced and scattered.

Some went off weeping; some danced the warriors' dance; they danced the ceremonial dance; some walked weak-headed; some went shouting.

And first the wine-makers were entertained; they rested from their office.

It was explained that for four days they should fast and abstain during their work, but [the wine] sour.

They should look to their strict abstinence; no man might lie with a woman, nor a woman with a man.

[And] none might taste the wine, nor the syrup [from which it was made], while it was being prepared.

One might not even dip one's finger into it; one paid it reverence and treated it delicately, until the wine was tapped.[130]

And of him who secretly tasted it, who in secret drank some, even tasting only a little, it was said that his mouth would become twisted, it would stretch to one side,[131] to one side his mouth would shift; it would be drawn over.

And if one were lame in one hand, or if his arm or leg quivered, or a hand or foot became misshapen, or the foot shook, or his eyes trembled, or his lips quivered, or if one were possessed by a devil, it was said that the green mountain gods had been angered by him.

And when the day broke, thereupon took place the disposal of the remains. At the distribution, only the relatives, the people of the household—his family, they of the same parentage, of the same womb, those of the same clan [took part].

They called it the distribution of the leftovers; then all the food and drink were consumed, used up—all finished.

And they left nothing of what still remained of the drugs in the vessel, of the wine, of varnished wine,[132] of fruit wine,[133] of white wine, of sheep-producing wine.

And he who had the images made, if he had the gear, as was said above, he was then cured. And he who was to have drowned but did not die, when he caused the images to be made then paid his debt and thus fulfilled his vow.

And all their adornments—their paper garlands worn over one shoulder [as a sign of death or of one to be slain before the gods], their sceptres of sacred thick reeds, and their flame-sticks,[134] their closed-handles;

and the turquoise cups and their little sauce bowls with calhujque, in ic quaitaque, in ic tamitaque, yuan ilamatlaca yn jlamatque:

ichoan vel iuamac catca, in vctli in quiqua.

Auh in otlaivintic, ninan ic ic vinjlca, cocomanoia, xiximjnjoc:

yn aca mochaqujlitiuh, yn aca moqujchitoctiuh, mjuctitiuh, momamatiuh: yn aca tetamiliciuh.

Auh in vctlali, achto molcaoaltilcia: çan no ontenca yn inequjuh, yn jchiuji:

tlacaqujtilcia, navilhujtl maçoaia, qujneçaujlicia yn inequjuh, ynic amo xocniac:

vel mopinia, vel motlacaoaltiaia, amo cioacochia, amo equjchocchia, intla cioaci:

çan ninan aiac vel ontlapalouia yn vctli, yuan in necutli, ynic mochiouia:

aiac iuamal inapil, conaqujaia, vel ynacazua, vel malhujlicia, yn inqujchica, moincaxapotlac yn vctli.

Auh yn equja, ichtaca tlapalouia, yn tlachtaca yin iuamal çan tepitoa ocupalo: iuh mjtouia tonnacujlivia tepantilivia, avic momomana avic xoquivi yn ic:

yuan in aca matricoliujia, yma qujcuecuetza, icxi quicuecuetza, macopichauj, icxicopichauj, icxicuecuechca, yhiaxtoteca, tuquapatlaca, tauviviica, itech qujnoa: mjtoa, equjtlavelique in xoxouhqui tepictoa.

Auh yn otlathujc, ,njman ic ic apozalo: yn apozaa çan ichoan, yn iuaniclque, in vel icalloc, in ontlaca, cencca, in vel icujtlaxcolloc, yn vel imecaioc:

momoxoa apozalo, iquac compalioja tlatlauj, in quaequjch mocaoaia, in atl, in tlaquallli:

yuan in oc quanqujch omocauh xniecunjc in vctli, in ainutli, in tlachiualvctli, in itzac vctli, in cochvctli.

Auh yn tepiquiuj, in tepiquj: intla cuacivi, yn juh omjnotlacpac, ic panic: yuan yn equja/atlan miquinquja ynjc amo mjc: ichoatl, ynjc tepiquj, ynjc mantlaoa, ynjc qujpoltilia yuacual.

Auh yn jaquich, yn janachichinal, yn jatlaquan, yn jnamomapan, yn jnamapil, yn jatlapatlanjquauh, yn jnaimbocoal:

yuan yn jachalchinchinal, yuh yn jatlaquaia molcaxoaual,

273
782 755

[834]

753

782
592
755

[273]

755
782

128. Cf. Sahagún, op. cit., p. 29, citing corrupted phrase in MS Bibliotheca del Palacio. Cf. also explanation in Sahagún, op. cit., Vol. I, p. 38.
131. Probably inappropriate in context. In these appears in MS Bibliotheca del Palacio (Cf. Sahagún, loc. cit.)
132. Possibly curdled.
133. See Molina (Vocabulario).
134. Alonso Tezozomoc, Histoire du Mexique (M. Tezozomoc-Chimalpa, ed.; Paris: P. Jaccoux, 1853), Vol. I, p. 249, describes this as a light flame-coloured stick: "... un air de qu'il en sortait des flammes et des étincelles." Sahagún (op. cit., p. 30) calls it a lightning stick (Rámpolo).

755
782 which [the cuhhcuxcu] are, the little wooden bowls and the clay bowls, all these they left at Tepetzinco: they threw them into the water, off shore, at a place called Panzalan.

776 Twenty-second Chapter, which talketh of the god with the mirror in his hair (Tezcatzoncatl), who also was held to be one of the four hundred rabbits (centzontotochtin).

He [was] the wine, in times past[128] considered full of sin. For he hurled people off cliffs, he strangled people, he drowned people, he killed them.

He was an evil being. One did not affront him: one did not speak lightly of him.

And this Tezcatzoncatl was also considered one of those called the four hundred rabbits, who are the substance of wine—Ipalnemoani, Acolhua, Tlilhua, Pantzaut, Izquitzaut, Tolocatl, Papaztac, Tlahuizcalpantecuhtli, Ome tochtli, Tepoztecatl, Chimalpantecatl, Colhuacatzincatl.[129]

And as for the army of Tezcatzoncatl, he had the white horse feather headdress; he had a crescent-shaped ornament through the septum of his nose and a paper ear-plug. He had a fan-shaped ornament of red macaw feathers and a neck piece with flecks scattered over it. He had the knotted cloth with [representations of] scorpions. He carried the pulque gods' shield, the obsidian staff, and the fleur staff. And also he had cactus.

quauhxoxouhqui, quapipiloxouhqui, nauhi ynqui cencaxix tepetzinco: ailac ontlapanoa, ynqui ontlapanoa, yxcuinca panzalan.

Jnic ompaualli ynnemac ompiltzin, yxcuepa tlamo in tezcatzoncatl, yn jnnon pouj centzontotochtin.

Jehuatl in octli, ixquich tlahuelcalli ipan mochiuia: ca tetepeuinja, tequechcuecuepa, tetlaxoja, tetzjtzin; tetzcuitzauj, ano pinauhtiauj, ano chicoxtiauj.

Auh ynjn tezcatzoncatl, yxcuin pouj, yxcuin ono, yn nouemac, centzontotochtin, yn octli ixtecxin, yn ijpalnemoani, Acolhua, tlilhua, pantzaut, Jxquitzaut, Tolocatl, papaztac, Tlahuizcalpantecuhtli, ome tochtli, tepoztecatl, chimalpantecatl, Colhuacatzincatl.

Auh yn jnechichiual Tezcatzoncatl, ximoxoxo, ixcuauxo, amoxocuchi, cuequalxiuhcauac, chaiaoac: cuaqua, colotlalpilli, xoxoctlachimalli, ixtapilli, tecpatzapilli, no cuitlalli.

fin del libro

128. Yxpan tonmatlac, in ciuac pan (Seler: op. cit.). The meaning also could be "drinks."
129. See Sahagun: op. cit., Vol. I, pp. 112, 311, 319; Vol. III, p. 139; Vol. V, p. 67, for explanation of the names.

2: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590)1950
NU7 Aztec NU7

776
532

[782]

—After Paso y Troncoso

[illegible]—Teocalli. [illegible]—Tepetlacalco.
[illegible]—[illegible] [illegible] (Chap. III). [illegible]—Tolmec (Temple of Tlaloc) (Chap. III).

2: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1950
NU7 Aztec NU7

776
532

[782]

[796
467]

[782
753]

—After Pow y Trueman

[illegible]—Tlaquiche tecuz (Chap. 9), Chalchihuitl yoto (Chap. 11), Chimaz xuitl (Chap. 7). [illegible]—Tlaquiloni—Cuchillo (Chap. 10). [illegible]—Xiuz tecuitl (Chap. 10). [illegible]—Tapalcatz (Chap. 13). [illegible]—Petlillac (Tapalcatz) (Chap. 13). [illegible]—Aquamitlis, Chap. 14. [illegible]—Mixquiquamitlis, Chap. 14.

2: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590)1950
NU7 Aztec NU7

776
532

•[782]

796
782

Here It Told In What Manner the Mexicans Made Offerings, and What They Made as Offerings in Their Temples.

Offerings.

Then were offerings made: with food and with copal were offerings made, and with all kinds of living things—purchase turkeys, purchase birds; or copal. Or else whatever was newly formed—purchase cocoa, or chia, or flowers, or whatever [was newly grown].

And then did the young [unmarried] women make offerings: before dawn their mothers and fathers awoke them. So they went down making offerings of gifts carried in the palms of their hands—little swallow, [which were] very small,—and then they quickly proceeded to lay gifts before the devil; in bowls they carried them then to present them [to the gods].

Only in the houses were the swallow made. Then did the young women make [their] offerings.

The Offering of Incense.

And then was the offering of incense performed, with an incense ladle. It was made of clay, with [stems in its ladleful making] a cross. Then they laid live coals in the incense ladle. When these blazed up, daily they filled it with copal incense, and then came forth before the devil, or else in the middle of the courtyard, where were the braziers. [This] was made of clay.

And when they came up to the devil, then they dedicated the incense brazier to the four directions, then offering incense. And when they had offered [incense] to the four directions, then they threw [the incense and the coals] into the brazier. Here the copal incense lay smoking.

And then was it done: the mothers and fathers thereafter set down under the children, [whether] male[-children] or women[-children]; then they weight other incense quickly, they awoke them; then Niman mononono in quenjo chocoaia, yeno ic chiaia ya jonoqueu, in mexica.

Tlamacehualli.

Injc chocoaia: chocoaia, yeno tlamacen chocoaia, yeno yca in tlein iniuh: aço tecolin, aço xocol, aço tlilxocotl: aço in tlein iuncujcan mochiua, aço cuauh, aço chian, aço ueuhcl, aço in tlein.

Auh injc chocoaia cuenitoni: ineuc in quinjuitzinoa inmamaca, inmamaca: injc quinmaxiui xocoxocotl, in tlacatzintli tepitoton, injc yeiuica quinmaxiui ipapan ilhuia: cuetlaxcoa in quinquiza xocotl ic cocoaia:

yan inchan mochiuia in tlacatl, injc chocoaia cuenitoni.

Tlamaquilitl.

Auh injc mochiuia tlamaquilitl, in jon tlacatl: quqqui tlachichinoli, cocolchia, xocon cotonia in tlamachtli in tlamaco: in cocoxqui[415]tlapan ic cocoaia copalli, yc ochquiza in ipapan[314] ilhuia: ouqo in jonhuqueuia, ic xocon yeuc tlaquetzalli: quqqui tlachichinoli.

Auh in cocoxqueuaia ipapan ilhuia: niman mochiuiqo quiteua in tlamajtl, yuic tlaquechcha: auh ya jqueuc cocoxqueuaia cuenitoli, ic niman cotona in tlaquaua, xocon yeqoxtica in copalli.

Auh yuic mochiuia: ao yeuxinoua in quinjuitzinoa in tepilhuan, in cuqitzin, in ouqo ciua quinjuitzinoa in xocoxocoa, in xocoxocoa yuic chocoaxqueuc inhuan they might not become doubtful was this done in the heaven.

quinyaiaiaia inic ano tlatzinacujoque tochan in mochiuaia ya.

The Casting of Copal [Incense].

And the casting of copal [incense] was thus done, when any weighty words were yet to be said, or a judgment was yet to be uttered: first one cast copal [incense] into the fire. [For] whoever was to speak [weighty words], here lay the copal in a gourd vessel. Or else the singer, before he was to sing, thus did: first he cast copal into the brazier, and then the singer began [to sing].

Copalmoliztli.

Auh in copalmoliztli ic mochiuaia, ya iquac in tein tlatolli ic mijtoa, ayo tecuitolli ic mitoa, achtec contemaia in copalli, in tleco: in aquijn ic tlatoa, çan yecan mococa in copalli xicalejca: anoço cujcatj in ic cujcatz, ic pecaz, achtec contemaz in copalli in tlequauhco, ninoan ic peoa in cujcatj.

The Eating [Kissing] of the Earth.

The eating [kissing] of the earth was thus done, when men came into any place: everyone kissed the earth, with one finger [touched to the ground and then to the mouth], either before the devil or else in front of the hearth.

And then was pilfered, then was snatched one's word. When one put not much faith in [another's] word, then he said unto him:

"If what thou sayest is true, do thou kiss the earth."

Whomever it was then thus kissed the earth, and thus he bore witness to [the truth of] his words.

Tlalquaztli.

In tlalquaztli ic mochiuaia, iquac in campa ualhujiuaia, mochi tlacatl ontlalquaia, ica in ce imapil, ayo iquac diablo, anoço tlecuijxaquac:

yeca ic tlaxoltilitia, ic achtia in tlatolli: ya iquac tein ano cenca achocoia tlatolli: ic tellaujlitia intla ueli in tiquijtoa, tlaxoxtlalqua:

ic ninoan tlalquaia in aquijn, ic quijxelilitaia itlatol.

The [Ceremonial] Casting [of a Libation].

And then was done the casting [of a libation]: When anything was to be eaten, and was not yet eaten, perchance of the food first a very small morsel was cut and cast in front of the hearth. When they had cast it, then they began to eat. No one first ate [before], indeed, libations had been cast in front of the hearth.

Tlatlaçaliztli.

Auh inic mochiuaia tlatlacaliztli, iquac in tein quaiac: ya ximoo quaia, ayo tlaquaiz, achtopa achtec tepitl mocotoma, tlecuijxaquac omotlaçaia: in ontlatlaçaloc: ninoan ic peoa inic tlaquaiaz: ninc achtec tlaquaia vel achtec tlatlaçaloia, in tlecuijxaquac.

The [Ceremonial] Pouring [of a Libation].

Then was done the [ceremonial] pouring [of a libation], when an offering was made [to the god], perchance at the feast of the wine gods: When anyone made new wine, when it [began to] increase, when then it [began to] sound, they laid it as an offering in a bowl, in front of the hearth; and [they laid it] in small drinking vessels.

Tlatlauiliztli.

Inic mochiuaia tlatlauiliztli, iquac in tlatlauilia, ayo vitzinoloia: iquac in ace iancujcan quijtlalia vetli, ya iquac ouijtlapoui, iquac ic tenotzaia, quijtlauaia apanitca tlecuijxaquac, yeca tetlauacxiquiaia.

And when men were to drink, they poured wine forth into the drinking vessel, and then poured a libation in front of the hearth. They poured the wine in a libation in the four directions.

And when they had poured a libation of the wine, then everyone drank the wine, then all began the drinking.

Auh yn iquac ic ytlacuaztic, cenquiza ytlacuaztica in vctli, ninoan ic cuauhxica in tlexiliquac, nenehcqui cuauhxica in vctli.

Auh yn iquac ocuauhxicah vctli, ninoan ic nenchi tlacat, quin yn vctli, ninoan ic nenchi pena in ytlacuaztica.

796K
782
273

X 796
782

Here Are Told the Various Modes in Which Blood Was Shed and Offered up.

Sacrificial Slaying, &c.

Thus was performed the sacrificial slaying of men, when captives and slaves died, who were called "Those who have died for the god."

Thus they took [the captive] up [to the pyramid temple] before the Devil, [the priest] going holding him by his hands. And he who was known as the arranger [of captives], this one laid him out upon the sacrificial stone.

And when he had laid him upon it, four men stretched him out, [grasping] his arms and legs. And already in the hand of the fire priest lay the [sacrificial] knife, with which he was to slash open the breast of the ceremonially bathed [captive].

And then, when he had split open his breast, he at once seized his heart. And he whose breast he had open was quite alive. And when [the priest] had seized his heart, he dedicated it to the sun.

Yeccan ximoan in quenquehcan ocquichtin, ye ccalli in chocoyoztlin.

Tlacatlaliztli, &c.

Inic ocmohuiz tlacatlaliztli, inic ximoquix ocalli yeccan tlacatli in ximoan tonmiqui inic ocmohuiztiuh ixpan tlalli, yan cuauhtli ixcuitecatl, auh in tecuhtlacatecatlaiz, ichcapol cuauhtzin in ipan tecuhcal, auh in ixcac ximan cuauhtzac: nevi tlacatl in quipiztlaiz in ixca in icxi, auh ic ixcac ozoc in tlamamaxac tlamacazqui in ocpatl inic quehcanquin tlachilli, auh ximan ic cuechcapoj ozoc, ic ochoc in ixcac: auh ça ochoc in quehcanqui, auh in ixcac ocmanjiquac yoallo cuepontlaiz in tlacatzah.

X 796
785
782

The Drawing of Straws [Through Parts of the Body].

The drawing of straws was then done, only upon days proper for [such] drawing of straws.

And indeed in all parts [of the body was it done] —perchance in one's ear, or, wherever willed it, one's tongue or one's thigh. And then they pierced the flesh: with a thornlike obsidian point. And then they then here drew a slender twig, or a straw; and then they gathered the flesh with a cord, that there they might pass a straw [through it]; and then all performed a penance.

And when slender twigs had been passed [through the flesh], upon the morrow the straws were swept up and gathered; and the straws were much bloodied. And this was done in the house of the devil, or along roads where devils lay.

The Offering of Thorns.

The offering of thorns was then performed: they plucked green 'roots and yet unpoxy spines, and Tlacopiniliztli.

In tlacopiniliztli ic mochivaia, yan no ipan in tlein tonalli in tlacopiniloia, auh yan nonjian ayc iuncanca, ayaqui in aquiyo quimopoin iuncapilco, anoco iuncopan, auh inic quicuitlapilo iuncaio ichcatl in ytzmolinqui in itztli, auh ic ximan vecan quipiqui in tlacatl, anoqui çacatl, auh inic quipilloia in iuncaio mecatica inic vecan quipiqui tlacatl inic tlamocuelaia, auh in ipan ohcatepeilhuitl, in mochivaia tlachpanaia mochipanaia in tlacatl ypan in çacatl cica cuya, auh in mochivaia y, ichan Diablo anqui vel in vecan iuncy Diablomac.

Nevtlamamaliztli.

In nevtlamamaliztli ic mochivaia ouecoja in ayobloodied them. Then they laid as offerings upon the green reeds two thorns.

In all places—some of them purchasers in two places, or three, they laid the thorns as offerings; or in five places, only when it was of their own will.

The Bloodying.

When they bloodied themselves, then did they do: they cut their ears with an obsidian blade, and then took that blood from about the ears.

The Cutting of the Ears.

Likewise this bloodying was a cutting of the ears, when one was bloodied by the cutting of the ears.

The Twisting off of the Heads [of Birds].

The twisting off of the heads [of birds] was thus done: when they twisted the necks of small birds before the devil, also they dedicated [the blood] to him, and cast down [the body] before the devil. Then the body of the small bird lay beating its wings.

The Eating [of Sacrificial Victims' Blood by the Gods].

Then was done the eating [of sacrificial victims' blood by the gods]: When [the priests] had cut open a deer's or a captive's breast, then [the owner of the victim] took his blood in a vessel reed, purchasers, cast a paper into the vessel, which drew up the blood.

Then he took [the blood] in the vessel and placed upon the lips of all [the images of] the devils the blood of him who had died for the gods.

The Payment of a Debt [to the Gods].

The payment of a debt [to the gods] was thus done: when anything something had bothered one, purchaser debtor, when he recovered, then purchaser he then paid his debt with copal [incense] or paper [spattered with] liquid rubber. Because he did ixtl pan conmaqui in mevizitl, ouh quevijuia ic quivalmamaia in ipil ocuxtal vmc in vizitl mevizitl in nca ayo vecan zaaço ecan in quimanaia vizitl, zaaço macuilcan çan tzaillelcana.

Neqaliztli.

In mijquia inic quichiuia iztli ica in conmaqui in jnacazcu, ouh ninoli ic quivalpipilouia in ezli in inacazcuiclan.

Nenecazcquilizti.

Çan ic no ichcauil in neqaliztli in nenecazcquilizti in mijquia in nenecazcmaqui.

Tlapachocoualizti.

In tlapachocoualizti ic machiuia ca iconc in tlacazcuiztli ixpan quivecanaia in Diablo no conjevijtiuia, vecan conlaçaia in ixpan Diablo, vecan tlapachococ in jiiac in cazcuiztli.

Tlatlaqualizti.

Inic machiuia tlatlaqualizti, in iconc ocoxtlacoque in tlacazcuiztli zaaço mulli, nijman quicuja in ieaço cuxtica pan ayo zaaçal conlaçaia in cuxtic quichichiuhtiuia in ezli, nijman ic quivaqui cuxtica in Inquimin Diablome in tonco quipiolchilitiuia in ezli machiuia in jeaço tonmaqui.

Nochcauiliztli.

In nochcauiliztli inic machiuia in jquac ayo nca in tlein ipil machiuia, ayo cocolizti in jquac ayaxic, nijman ayo cuquilli pan zaaçal inic mocuiluaia, inic not die he paid his due in that manner; because, verily, he would [otherwise] have died.

X796
782

The Spreading of Fir Branches.

Thus was done the spreading of fir branches: In the woods they plucked fir branches, so that upon them they might lay [bleeding] thorns as offerings. First they spread out the fir branches, and then they laid upon them, as offerings, two thorns [stained] with blood.

The Piling up of [Fire]wood for the God.

The piling up of [fire]wood for the god was thus done: They took green wood in the forest and cut it. In order to burn it in the house of the devil, they built up [a pile of it]. Those did this who dwelt and did penance in the house of the devil.

The Sweeping.

[358] The sweeping was thus done: Strictly did they force [the young ones], faithfully were the children, whether women[-children] or men[-children], made to sweep there the courtyards of their houses.

And when they had first swept, before dawn, then they made their offerings carried in the palms of their hands, which they laid before the devil. And when they had gone to make the offerings, thereupon they took up their incense ladles that they might offer incense.

Vigils. 1. All-night Vigils.

Thus was kept a vigil, when it was night.

They who dwelt here in the house of the devil, who kept watch during the night, remained very wakeful that they might not leave undone their duties because of sleeping. Hence they kept watch during the night, until dawn broke.

For this reason they kept watch: because of those things which should be done at midnight, or very late at night, or [when it was] already near dawn. Because of this they faithfully kept watch all night and tended the fire.

amo onjc inhuqjnma ic tlatlava, ichica ca oniquinquja.

Acxoiatemaliztli.

Jnjc muchivaia acxoiatemaliztli ca concuja quauhtla in acxoiatl xoxouhquj injc ipan nevitzmanaloa achto contemaia in acxoiatl ipan conmanaia in vitztli vme ezço.

Tequauhquetzaliztli.

Jn tequauhquetzaliztli, ic muchivaia, ca concuja in xoxuhquj quahujtl in quauhtla contequja injc vncan tlatlac ichan Diablo qujmaquetzaia, ichoantin quichivaia in vncan nenca ichan diablo in tlamacevaia.

Tlachpanaliztli.

Jn tlachpanaliztli ic muchivaia, cenca qujncuitlaviltiaia, cenca cujtlaviltiloia in tepilhoan in aço cihoa, anoço oquichtin in vncã inchachan in jmjcvalco injc tlachpanazque.

auh in jcoac iovatzinco in cachto tlachpanque, njmã quichivaia in ventlamapictli in conmanaia izpan Diablo, auh in jcoac ontlamanato, njmã ic concuja in intlema injc tlenamacazque.

Toçovaliztli. 1. ixaçoaliztli.

Inic muchivaia toçoliztli, iquac in ioualtica:

ichoantin in vncan nenca ichan diablo, in qujpiaia ioalli, cenca ixtoçotinenca, injc amo tlacochcauazque, ynjc qujpiaia ioalli, in izquichica tlathuiz:

ynjc qujpiaia, ichica, in tlein muchioaz yn iquac ioualnepantla, anoço tlaquauhioaz, anoço ic tlathujnaoac, ipampa in, vel qujpiaia in ioalli, yuã qujpiaia in tletl.

Abstinence.

When all detained, they did not fast. But none washed themselves with soap nor in the steam bath; neither did [men] lie with women. Only when it was [the feast of] Panquetzaliztli did they fast for seven days.

Nequamilizli.

Inic nequamilizli uno tlacatlequalolo, çan ie nic quamamilia, nic motemaia, ayoiac cincocchia: çanyio yquac in panquetzaliztli, tlacatlequalolo chicuacilhuitl.

796x
782
785

X 796 782

Here Are Told, in Very Truth, the Offerings Which They Made, in Order to Pay Honor to the Devil.

Niman mitoa, in vel nelli tlamanaliztli, in quichiuaia, inic quipanvitilitia tlacatecuhtzin.

The Swallowing of Serpents.

Thus was done by those who swallowed serpents, when they observed [the feast of] Atamalqualiztli. They who were named mayanca swallowed [the serpents] while they were quite alive, holding them only in their mouths, cutting them to pieces [with their teeth] that they might swallow them. And when they had swallowed them, thereupon they were offered gifts, as hath been told in its place, and water zamate were eaten. [This happened] every eight years.

Cuauxolotlatl.

Inic mochiuaia, in oncal quipiaxoaia, iquac ya atamalqualoia quichiuaia: mamacoaia mayanca, çan ixtiuia in quipixoaia, çan incamatica in quimocuaia, quipixcamacxtiuia, ynic quipixoaia. Auh ya iquac oquintlaqua, çeçepan motlaxtiuia, ya ixhuqui ipan omito, atamalqualoia chicuexiuhtica.

The Swallowing of Frogs.

And thus they swallowed frogs, likewise alive. When this was similarly done, these very same mayanca performed [the swallowing].

Cuexolotlatl.

Auh inic cuexoia quipixoaia çan no ixtiuia, çan no iquac mochiuaia, çan no ichoontin in mayanca quichiuaia.

Making Birds Fly.

[231] Thus was it done [when] birds were made to fly at the time of the feast of Etzalqualiztli: The youths tied birds to wooden rods; thus they danced as all [the birds, fastened by strings], circled [the wooden rods].

Tonpoluhtilitl.

Inic mochiuaia, tonpoluhtilitia iquac in etzalqualiztli, in telpopochtin quxohtiteh quimijpixia in tonme ic mijoxtiuia in iquac tlaiaxalotia.

Processions.

Processions were thus undertaken. For whatever feast was established, when this was done, all the people went in processions, perchance at dawn, or at sundown. Then they all dispersed.

Tlaiaxolotlatl.

In tlaiaxolotlatl, ic mochiuaia in tlein ilhuitl motlalitivia iquac mochiuaia, mochi tlacatl tlaiaxolotia, ayo ixhuatzinco, anyo ic tentlac, ic tlaxitinjxia.

Singing in the Manner of Women.

X 796 782 533

And the singing in the manner of women was thus done, when, maybap, they formed [the image of] whatever devil. Then everywhere all the women Cihuapilcuicatlatl.

Auh in jcihuapan cuicatlatl ic mochiuaia iquac in ayo tlacatin Diablo, in tlein, iquac mochiuaia and men danced [together, as] during the feast of Tlaloc.

The Maintaining of Chalk.

Thus was done the maintaining of chalk: when they quickly snatched the chalk, then he who maintained the chalk ran. Thus he appeared running fast, and a number followed him. They went running him, and any who did not hasten fell quickly under the stones.

The Lifting [of Children], that They Might Grow.

Thus was done the lifting of children that they might grow: Also upon a certain day they lifted up all the small children [by the head] that they might grow. Along the roads and on all the ground lay the nopal [cacti], or mogguy plants; thus, it was said, these thus would swiftly grow.

mijtoznia in cihuatl novian yeuan ciquichtin iquac initlatoaiah tlaloc.

78X
782
[533]

Tiçapaloliztli.

Jnjc muchivaia tiçapaloliztli: in iquac concuiniçqiça in tiçatl nijman ic motlaloa in tiçapaloa injc nencia in ceuca tlecça yeuan cequjntin quitocaia, quitepachoaiva nah in nepaja ano tlecçaia iciuhca tetica vetzia.

Tetecalaualiztli.

Jnjc muchivaia teiscalaualiztli no ipan in tlein tonalli muchiztia in pipiltontli quimiscalaanaia velica yeõ in izquich tlalticpac onoc in nopalli, anoço metl, ic mijmaia inic hiciuhca moscalaua. [827]

X 796
782

A True [Relation] of Still Other Offerings with Which Similarly They Paid Honor to the Devil.

Hanging [an Object] over the Breast.

Thus was done the hanging [of objects] over the breast; thus was the tying with loose cotton thread: they tied [them] about the wrists and the necks of small children and [suspended on the cords], in small bags, xoxillar made of green maize. Here [in the calpulli] they set forth these, on small jar-stands, and small earthen jars, and lifted the jars up by the ears, and with their hands went filling their bags with water. And when they had reached the twentieth day, when [it was the feast] known as Teotl ecu, [that was] when they untied the feathered thread which they had about the small children.

[445]

[For] Pain.

[308] And [for] pain, thus was done upon the feast of [the god] Acolmiztli: the small children were ornamented in feathers [applied to them]; in colored feathers, [set] everywhere on their bodies. And the old people similarly applied feathers on their stomachs, over their breasts, and upon their backs. Thus they set feathers upon them—so it was said—because then Acolmiztli would not bewitch them.

[784]

The Sewing Out of the Children.

Thus was done the sewing out of the children. They took all of them there to the house of the devil, and had in truth all the children dance before them, and made them drunk. Hence it was called the sewing out of the children; for they had them all appear in the house of the devil.

The Act of Striking.

Thus was done what was named the act of striking: when mock battle was joined, the shield and Inuchuan in oc cequj tlamamalitli in çan no ic quijmoteilhuia Diablo.

Nechpilitli.

Injc nuchiuia nechpilitli, auic nechpiloia ica ipul in quinjilpioia pipiuctoni in iuauapechtlan, yuan in jaquechtlan yuan in jaujac elotlaxcahuaxtli in vecan cuauauia vacalouaco yuan teolxoxtli, vacalouaco conquetzaia tentiuh in ul in jaua ixac, auh in ijc oacico ipan composilihuijtl in iquac mononeua totoc heco iquac quijtemilinia in jcpul petoquj injc omoolpiqui pipiloctli.

Neçquolilitli.

Auh in neçquolilitli ic nuchiuia ipan ilhuijuh acolmiztli mijhuiçoçquilouia in pipiloxuxi tlapalilhuica, nauijan in jtech inacaio. Auh in vecpilaca çiyio in jnculpan, in jnitlapan yuan in jacuijlapan, quinamjctinia in ilhuijl, injc quinpotonjnia, quihuach ipampa inic amo tzitlaquan acolmiztli.

Pilquolilitli.

Injc nuchiuia pilquolilitli vmpa nuchiuia quijuicaia in iteupan Diablo, in pipiloxuxi vel nuchiuia inupan quinjuiçoyoia yuã quinjolouaxtiuia injc mononeua pilquolilo ca nuchiuia quijuolquiztia in pipiloxuxi in Diablo ichan.

Tlamamalitli.

Injc nuchiuia in mononeua tlamamalitli in jquac mulli nuchiuia ichiual tonquauh inuac war club of the captive lay in his hand, but his war club lacked obsidian points. And they who stripped had their shields and war clubs, in order to fight in gladiatorial sacrifice in supposed battle with the captive or slave.

796x
782

Lying in the Sacred Place.

For five days all lay stretched out in the reed [swamp]. Then was penance done for Tlaloc when in the cave were laid the two culcuzcatl.

Placing of Men upon the Straw.

The placing of men upon the straw: Of those who flayed men, some put on the [flayed] skins. Such were named Xipes. And straw was shaken out, upon which they placed [the Xipes]. Hence was it said that they were set forth upon the straw.

Quickening [the Sun or the Fire].

The quickening was thus done: When the ears were cut, they sprinkled the blood upward, [or] perchance sprayed it into the fire. Thus, it was said, they caused the fire and the sun to quicken.

The Spreading of Grass.

The spreading of grass was thus done: when grass had been plucked, then they were spread everywhere upon the altars. No one, anywhere, failed to do so. This was known as the spreading of things which had been plucked by hand.

The Spreading of a Bed of Straw.

The spreading of a bed of straw was thus done: Like the kissing of the earth, it was fitting when anywhere one entered a door where stood the image of the devil. Thus, [when] one entered in his presence, he pulled up straw and shook it out before the devil when he came forth before him.

Others followed the roads, and where there was ennoc ooc moiuzno in imaqauah. auh in tlavavanque inchinol inmocqauah ininac: injc tlavavanaia iuhqujn qujcali malli anoço tlacatl.

Tempan omolistli

Macujlilhujtl in tolpan nenoia injc neçavilhloia tlaloc in iquac vmoc tlalihoia vmc culnavati.

Çacapan nemanalistli

In çacapan nemanalistli, ichoantin in quixipevaia tlaca in imevaio cequjxtin conmaquixia in chouatl in motenevaia xixipeme, auh motenezcloaia in çacatl iqun qujcualmanaia ipampa in motenevaia çacapan valnemanalo.

Tlacalilistli.

In tlacalilistli ic muchivaia iquac in monacazteqeja acapa contenezcloaia in entli anoço tleco contzitzicujujnia injc mjtoaia quincalxis in tletl yoan in tonatiuh.

The Spreading of Grass.

In tlazoalloonanalistli injc muchivaia, in iquac omocujjo tlazoualin, ojquan ic motetema in novjian mononoco, acan mocava vel novjian, ichouatl in mjtoaia tlamacujnanalistli.

Neçacapachoonanalistli.

In neçacapachoonalistli injc muchivaia çan no ichaqui in chalqualistli iqun pevia in iquac campa qujcuaia in canja yoan iuqula Diablo injc iuqd qujcuaia campa in çacatl iqun contenezcloaia in Diablo, in iquac tlalqpan qujquia

Oc cequjxtin in vel qujcuaia, iuil in iquac iuvc, [785]

X 796 war, they made, as it were, a supplication when ● 782 anyone went where there was war, lest something 783 might go amiss [with them]. They said:

"Not here shall I die; [it is] in war that I go to die."

And when battle was already joined, they first plucked grass, shook it out toward the sun, and said:

"He will destroy and slay [our foe]," or, "He will capture [him]."

In this wise was a prayer raised to the sun.

inhuqiyauaz ic nemoteltiloia, in iquac ocz iauh iuac iuda ica ic motelinjtiuemj quijauia amo nijcan in nijmiqoiz, iuac in nijmiqoiztiuh auh in iiqc ic muchivaz iauiztl achto quijpia in çacatl quijxuctaloaia in jvicpa in tonatiuh quijauia, vnpopolihuia y in tlamiqoiz, anoço tlamoz inhuqiyn ic monotolitiuia ivic tonatiuh.

The Blowing of Trumpets.

X 796 [533] 782

Thus was done the blowing of trumpets: when it was late at night, when it was already approaching midnight, [then it was] when trumpets were sounded, that all [the priests] might offer blood in the house of the devil. Therefore were [the priests] awakened.

Tlatlapitzaliztli.

Injc muchivaia in tlatlapitzaliztli iquac in ic tlequauhiouac, in ic onaciuh iovalnepantla iquac tlapitzaloia ic nepohoaia in jchan Diablo, ic teiztilloia.

The Illumination with Fire.

Thus was done the illumination with fire: when we people had passed [the night until] midnight and also trumpets had been sounded, then were we awakened. Thus those known as the beaters began the keeping of the watch. And if any did not awake, they poured water upon him, or else they shook [coals of] fire upon him, or else they cast him into the water at Tilapan or at Coapan.

Tlachia tlavilizti.

Injc muchivaia tlatica tlavilizti, in iquac ic titlaca in iohoalnepantla oacic, no tlapitzalo, ic teixitilo, ic pevaia in tlapializti motenchoaia tlavizquijti, auh in aquijn amo velicz ic ipan quinequijaia, anoço tetl ipil quijxuctaclovaia, anoço atlan contlaçaia vmpa tilapan, anoço coapan.

The Piercing of Ears.

X 796 782 785

The piercing of ears was also undertaken [because of] the devil. Hence were ears bored.

Nenecuapohaliztli.

In nenecuapohaliztli no ic tlaiecalhuijlaia in Diablo injc nenecuacoiniloia.

The Piercing of the [Lower] Lip.

In like manner the piercing of the [lower] lip: similarly, for the devil, was the boring of the [lower] lip endured.

Nenepopohaliztli.

I Çan no inhuej in nenecuapohaliztli çan no ic tlaiecalhuia in Diablo in nenepopohaliztli.

782
626

A True [Relation] of how They Prayed to the Devils, and how Oaths Were Made.

When an oath was taken: when anyone made a vow [for] his children before the devils, he made vows in perchance two [temples] or in three of what he would cause to be done for the devils. Mayhap his young son had been struck [by sickness]; or, for whatever had befallen, when he made the vow, [he promised] that he would perform penances for them.

And also when an oath was taken, when anyone stated something, in order that he prove it, it was said [to him]:

"That thy words be proved, that thou shalt not lie, do thou kiss the earth."

When, thus, he kissed the earth who had stated something, he thus bore witness to his words, and that he not be held as a liar, he said:

"Well do the sun and the earth-goddess know [the truth of this]. Now I kiss the earth [in token of it]."

Thus were oaths taken.

And if [it was] a supplication, it was done with three—the offering of incense, and sacrifices, and the kissing of the earth, and the offering of blood.

Inchanca in quenjo tlachichilchiz diablome, yeuan in quenjo machiztiz Juramento.

In iquac machiztiz Juramento in iquac ica quijnotzitzin ixmoch ivicpa Diablome, ajo vecan, anajo Ecan quijnotzitzin, in tlein quijchivilia Diablome, ajo motlavizquij pilhuatl, anoço tlein ipan machiztiz, iquac quinotzitzinia, injc ivicpa themacoxan.

Auh no ixtl iquac machiztiz in Juramento in iquac ica tlein quijcilhuijuia, injc quijnchiliuia, ilhuijtiz.

Injc nehtic mochiuh, injc ano tlatlacatiz tlamatilqui.

iquac ajmo tlalquaia in aquejn tlen quijcilhuijuia ic quijnchiliuia in jplatol inic ano ixtlacamachiuia quijtoaia, vel quijmati in tonatzin, ij tlalticutli ic nonxitlaqua.

Ichapij in injc machiztiz Juramento.

Auh intla tlatlachiliztli, ic machivaia çan ichouti in tlamanquiliztli, yeuan nextlavaliztli, yol tlalqualiztli, nextlavaliztli.

4: Sahagún M-S (1529-1590) 1952
NU7 Aztec NU7

539
796
532
782

—After Paso y Troncoso

7. Praying to Tezcatlipoca (Chapter II)
8. Fir branches on a roadside shrine (Chapter II)
9. Quetzalcoatl performing a penance (Chapter III)
10. Quetzalcoatl bathing at midnight (Chapter III)
11. The old man offering the potion to Quetzalcoatl (Chapter IV)
12. Dragging the body of the sinner (Chapter IX)

[P.36 (D)]

S: Sahagún M-S (1529-1590) 1951 NU7 Aztec NU7

796 821

heavy pall, or cloth of many colors—which were spread before his face.

Eclipse of the Sun

782 821

When this came to pass, he turned red; he became restless and troubled. He faltered and became very yellow. Then there were a tumult and disorder. All were dispirited, unnerved, frightened. There was weeping. The common folk raised a cry, lifting their voices, making a great din, calling out, shrieking. There was shouting everywhere. People of light complexion[1] were slain [as sacrifices]; captives were killed. All offered their blood; they drew arrows through the lobes of their ears, which had been pierced. And in all the temples there was the singing of fitting chants; there was an uproar; there were war cries. It was then said: "If the eclipse of the sun is complete, it will be dark forever! The demons of darkness will come down; they will eat men!"

[185]

Tonalpohualli speaks.

In ixtac machiton, y, chichilchiuhcauac: ac tlacu mani, ac tlacu ca, ca mocuecuepiuani: cihca tlacopinia: niman ic tlacomani, tlacati cuani: ac-cocuzaia, necuzaiaia, necuzaiaiaia, cochopiliia, tlachopintiuia in macuahi: ocuzaiaia, ocuzapapaia, tlacuaca, tlacuazaia, tzatzia: cicuilli mo-tlica, Tlacatlaiaia, mahuiza, ayac tlacopinilia: nonacatzco: nab in tetzapan, cuechcuica, tlachalo-toc, tlacuacuac: ic mimia, inda tlamia, in quale tonatiuh: cenhiuana: cuhcuaqua, in tlaxiuani, ecpaqui.

1. Literally, "people of lighter color." The corresponding passage in the Matritense manuscript (Appendix to this volume), where the phrase is translated "Tlacatlaiaia de cabellos blancos y cara blanca."

into mice; each of their children might turn into a mouse.

And because they feared evil, in order to protect themselves, in order that this might not befall (them), they placed children in their mouths or in their bosoms, because with this their children was did not be born with mouth cross-eyed—lipless; or they would not be born with noses cross-eyed or broken off; or with twisted mouths or lips; or cross-eyed, squint-eyed, or with shrunken eyes; nor would they be born monstrous or imperfect.

This means those of Xalocan worshipped as a god, and they laid offerings before him and paid him honor.

Auh inic quintemamaitia: inic mopaxinia, inic ano tehuqui ixquichiuhca: ixuhi iocmac, ano ixuhi quimilinia: ipapa inic ano tomacoxiquac, tomacoxquac ixquilhuan: anoço iocmacoxiquac, iocmacoxiquac, anoço tomapaxiquac, tomacoxiquac, ixquixiquac, iocmacoxiquac, iocmaxiquac: in anoço ahacamatic tlacatic, in ano tlacamichac.

821
843
821
751
843

Inin motenti, ichcan quimocuitiaia in xalocamoca: quintemamaitiaia, quimocuitiaia.

782

[p. 10 is blank]

Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

821
782

Third Chapter, which telleth of the stars.

The Fire Drill[7]

When [these] appeared and set forth, incense was offered and burned. Thus was it said when Yoalteccutli [and] Yacamiztli had come forth: "What will the night bring? How will the day break?"

And there were offered incense. Three times was it done: when night fell—well into the night; and when it was time to sleep—the time when the flutes were blown.[8] When this [took place], this was the time for offering their blood and offering maguey spines stained with blood. The third time incense was offered was when it dawned, when the morning broke, when the earth was visible—when morning was near.

And hence was it said that they resembled the fire drill: because when fire was drawn with a drill, and the drill bored, thus fell, ignited, and fired the fire.

821
782
785

And also for this reason all burned [spots on] their wrists; for this reason were we men burned on the wrists, to show awe of him. He was feared and dreaded. It was said and considered of any whose wrists were not burned that on his wrists fire would be drilled in the land of the dead, when he died. Therefore we men—every one—were burned on the wrists. On both sides of each wrist they arranged in order, in rows, the wrist burns. Thus they represented the fire drill. In the same manner as [the stars] were arranged in order and in line, so also they placed in order, in rows, their burns on their wrists.

[The Morning Star or Great Star]

821

Of the morning star, the great star, it was said that when first it emerged and came forth, four times it vanished and disappeared quickly. And afterwards it burst forth completely, took its place in full light,

Inic ey capítulo, itechpa tlatoa: in cicitlaltin.

Mamalhoaztli.

In icoac ualnecí, ualmotema: tlenamacoia, tlatotonilia: ic mizoaia, oualuetz in iocalteccutli, in iacaiztli: quen uetzia in ioualli, quen tlathuia.

Auh in hin tlenamacoia, espa in [illegible]chiosia: icoac in tlapoiaca, tlaquauh tlapoiaca, yoan netetequizpan, tlatlapitzalizpa. Icoac, y, neçoaia, neuitzmanaloia: ic espa tlenamacoia, icoac in tlauizcaleoa, tlauizcalli moquetza: in tlatlalchipaca, in ic tlathuinaoac.

Auh inic mizoa, mamalhoaztli, itech moonenuilia in tlequauitl: ichica, in icoac tlequauhtlaxo, ca momamali in tlequauitl: inic uetzi, inic xetla, inic mopizca tlexi.

No yoan, inic nematlatiloia: inic moomatlatiaia toquichtin, ichoatl quimacacia, mimacacia imacaxoia, mixoaia: quilmach in aquin amo nematlatile, inmac tlequauhtlaxoz in mictlan, in icoac omic. Ichica in toquichtin, muchi tlacatl moomatlatiaia, nenecoc inmac quiuiujpanaia, quintecpanaia in innematlatil: ic quitlachecalhuiaia in mamalhoaztli: in ixh vipantec, tecpantec, no ixh quiuiujpanaia, quintecpanaia in inmac innematlatil.

Citlalpol, uei citlalin mizoa: in icoac ioccicac ualcholoa, ualpoiça, nappan polini, popolihuiztzi: zan çaçapil uel cuepani, cuepantimoztlalia, cuepantica, tlapeuhica: ioloçpin mezmoaia ic tlanezia.

7. The names of various constellations and stars vary or may not correspond to the names by which they are now known. In the Spanish text and in the Mexicanized text similar, however, Sahagún on occasion deals with the terminology current in his time. See also Figures 1-7, 21.

8. Tlatlapitzalizpa: cf. Arthur J. O. Anderson and Charles E. Dibble Florentine Codex, Book 8, The Commercial (Santa Fe: School of American Research, Monograph No. 14, Part III, and University of Utah, 1951), p. 1[illegible]; also Sandoval, op. cit.; Gurdley, op. cit., p. 232. The expression called for use of flutes or trumpets, according to Sandoval of flutes, according to Gurdley. Sources vary as to the exact time when flutes were blown.

821 became brilliant, and shone white. Like the moon's rays, so did it shine.

And when it newly emerged, much fear came over them; all were frightened. Everywhere the outlets and openings[a] [of houses] were closed up. It was said that perchance [the light] might bring a cause of sickness, something evil, when it came to emerge. But sometimes it was regarded as benevolent.

821 782 And also [captives] were slain when it emerged, [that] it might be nourished. They sprinkled blood toward it. With the blood of captives they sprinkled toward it, flipping the middle finger from the thumb; they cast [the blood] as an offering; they raised it in dedication.

Ach in icoac, inacocan cuichaloa: ohca mamiti motecaia, nemachilia: necuiua nemacuiuaia in tlecalli, in pachquimoui: mixoia, ayc cocolizqui, ihi aquilli quiquixtiaia, in ayaiyac: ach in quimoua quicualtiaia.

Ach no mixoia, in icoac: cuichaloa, inchilloia, quithecuilloia: inacapica in mamahi, cuitlatzinacuilloia, cuitlatlaxilloia, cuetlaxiuilloia.

[i.e. The morning star or great star —A.]

a. The corresponding Spanish text mentions chiefly doors and windows. Cf. Anderson and Dibble, op. cit., III, p. 20, n. 2.

Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 MU7 Aztec MU7

Ninth Chapter, in which is described what was called "The Binding of Our Years," or "When the Years are Bound," [which occurred] when one by one the four year signs had each reigned thirteen years and when fifty-two years had passed; and what then was done.

When [came] the time of the binding of our years, always they gradually neared and approached [the year] Two Reed. This is to say: they then reached and ended [a period of] fifty-two years. For at that time [these years] were piled up, added one to another, and brought together; wherefore the thirteen-year [cycle] had four times made a circle,[18] as hath been made known. Hence was it said that then were tied and bound our years, and that once again the years were newly laid hold of. When it was evident that the years lay ready to burst into life, everyone took hold of them, so that once more would start forth—once again—another [period of] fifty-two years. Then [the two cycles] might proceed to reach one hundred and four years. It was called "Our Old Age" when twice they had made the round, when twice the times of binding the years had come together.

Behold what was done when the years were bound—when was reached the time when they were to draw the new fire, when now its count was accomplished. First they put out fire everywhere in the country round. And the statues, hewn in either wood or stone, kept in each man's house and regarded as gods, were all cast into the water. Also [were] these [cast away]—the pestles and the [three] hearth stones [upon which the cooking pots rested]; and everywhere there was much sweeping—there was sweeping very clean. Rubbish was thrown out; none lay in any of the houses.

And when they drew the new fire, they drew it there at Uitzilxochitlan, at midnight, when the night divided in half. They drew it upon the breast of a captive, and it was a well-born one on whose breast [the priest] heard the fire drill. And when a little Inic chiuaueuel caplitoc, vecan mitoa: in mitoa, tezcuauaqui, auaqui inic malpilia xiuitl: yn ieuac matlactlicpa omocepa ciuitoc, yn iuauhxiuitl ceceuel xipptoc: inic omoti vmpoaltiuitl ipan matlactiuitl omoteuac, ynan in ilcin ieuac mochiuaya.

Ic vecan, ic ipan in xuitlauaxtlalia: auachipa ic 805 quimatiuh, quimatiuh in vmc acxi. q. n. Ca vecan ici, uecan tlami ompoaltiuitl ouacherti, yni omiuiti. Ca vecan mocentlalia, mocepanoa, mocuauiqui: inic ochiuauio nauhcampa matlactiuitl omoty, in iuh omotecuih: ic mitoa, vecan molpia, malpilia in tonieh, oc cappa iuecuiccan vecan xiuhxiuapilo: inic mocuecuecuitia, in xiuitl ieuac; mochi tlacuel cõquimpoloia, inic oc cappa ic ipoua, oc no iuqui xiuitl 52 ailes, inic acitiuh mocuilpoaltiuitl ipan nauhxiuitl: mitoa cue uecuilitoti, in oppa tlaiuelua, in oppa mocuauiqui inolpilicac xiuitl.

Incuqui in uuchiuaia, ieuac malpilia xiuitl: in 805 ieuac oniuac, in vucl uetzia tlequauiti, in ic ilequal- 372 pan: achto vel nentlan chiuaia in tlei in uuauauaccac, ynan in iuquich pielaia tochachti, in uetzilicia uquauchti, in apo quauitl, auaqo uel tlaxinti, uuchi ellan omoteqpoaia: No iuhcuel in tonilotl, in tuu-uauitl, ynan uetzian ilitlachpoaia, tlauauaxtli, tlauauac tlaxiuc, uetzic uetzoia in tochachan.

Auh in vetzia tlequauiti, vuqui in vitzcalco: ieual- 805 uqueuetla in vetzia, vel ieuac in xelini ieuelli: mulli in 372 ielpan vetzia, ielcuel in tlequilli ielpan in quimoua- 782 lia tlequauiti. Auh in ieuac quelehuia ouetz, in oc-pin: nauac ic ielehua, quehuecuecuel in mulli, oc-

18. See Note 18.

805
372
782

[fire] fell, where it took flame, then speedily [the priest] slashed open the breast of the captive, seized his heart, and quickly cast it there into the fire. Then he revived and fed the fire. And the body of [the captive] all came to an end in the flames. And those who drew fire were exclusively the priests, the fire priests, the devout. Of the fire priest of Copalco, who was experienced, it was his office to draw, to drill, the new fire.

ocelle in ielle, tleco conchaviztzi: inic quimolin, quichaoaca tlel. Auh in inocaia, çan ocachi tlecoaxi. Auh in tlequamichiçaia, çan ixhuiã in tlamacazqui, in tlamacazqui, in tlamacehqui: cequiuh tlamacazqui, in vel iouaia, in iuquiuh cuica, in quimiçaia, in quimomaiia tlequamitl.

372
793
796

sleep—it was thought—they would turn into mice; they would become mice.

Hence was heed paid only one thing; there was unwavering attention and expectation as all remained facing, with neck craned, the summit of Uxachtecatl. Everyone was apprehensive, waiting until, in time, the new fire might be drawn—until, in good time, [a flame] would burst forth and shine out. And when a little came forth, when it took fire, lit, and blazed, then it flared and burst into flames, and was visible everywhere. It was seen from afar.

[183]

Then all the people quickly cut their ears, and sprinkled the blood repeatedly toward the fire. Although [a child] still lay in the cradle, they also cut his ears, took his blood, and sprinkled it [toward] the fire. Thus, it was said, everyone performed a penance.

[182]

Then [the priests] slashed open [the captive's] breast. In his breast [cavity] the new fire was drawn. They opened the breast of the captive with a flint knife called iopanaxi. Etc.

Ic ça mincaqia, mocuecuetoni in ontlachichinaz, in omixtoc, in ômopachoaxtoc, uixachtecatl itopa: iquich tlacatl ynipa ontlachtomati, tlamomachtia, in qualtzaqia uetzi tlepanitl, in qualtzaqia cuecuepani, cuepanini. Auh in ipan, opanitzinia ual uetz, in ouepiza, in ouyalac: çaçepan ic cuetlani, cuepani, nonoiaz tlaxci, calitto in ylica.

Nimman ic mochi tlacatl momocuecuetlaxtoni, cuauhtzinzinilia iuqichcapa in tletl: in mamel cuepilo omoc no cuecuezaxtopa, cuecuilia iniaxca, cuauhtzinzinilia in tletl: ic mitoa, ca mochi tlacatl tlamacaxa, ic cuechtecopa, in jolpan ontlequauhtlaxtoc, cuauhtzinzinjo in malli, ica tecpatl: itoca iopanaxi. etc.[6]

Fr Sahagún M-6 (1529-1590) 1953 HU7 Aztec HU7

Twelfth Chapter, in which is told [the manner of conduct of] all the people when the new fire was taken. And, when this took place, everyone renewed his clothing and all the household goods.

Then, at this time, all renewed their household goods, the men's array, and the women's array, the mats—the mats of large, fat reeds,—and the seats. All was new which was spread about, as well as the hearth stones and the pottery. Also at this time [the men] were newly dressed and wrapped in capes. A woman—[such as she] dressed newly in their new skirts and shifts.

Then it was said that only the year newly started. There was much happiness and rejoicing. And they said: "For then it is ended; then sickness and famine have left us." Then incense was offered; [quail] were sacrificed, and incense was offered. They grasped this incense balls, and raised it in deflexion to the four directions in the courtyard. Then they cast it into the hearth. Then was incense offered.

Thereupon amaranth seed cakes overspread with honey were eaten. Then all were hidden to fast, and [it was ordered] that no one should drink from the time that it was completely light until it came to be considered midday. And when noon came, then captives and commonly bathed men died. Then all rejoiced and there was feasting. Then once again fires were newly laid and placed.

And [so for] the pregnant women who had been [illegible], if any of them then gave birth to and bore a child; if a boy was born to her child, they named him Mixcóatl, Xiuhtlatopil, Xiuhtzinteopil, Xiuhtli, Tlexuan, Tlexipitzlac, Quetzalcóatl, Xiuhquan, etc. And if [it was] a girl, Xiuhcozcatl, Xiuhcue, Xiuhcozpil, etc.

And when, in the time of Moteuczoma, our years were limited, he ordered that indeed everywhere should be sought a captive whose name [contained the word] xiuhtl. Wherewover [he was], this one was to be seized. And que was taken—a man from Uexotzinco, a well-born man. He was called Xiuhtlamin, Inic motlachtomaca, cuipinola, vecan mizoc: in quemin in iepich tlacatl, in icuac omocuic in iancuic tlad: auh in icuac, y, mochi tlacatl, quiitlacolhua in ilaquayo, yoan in iepich calitlaquipil.

Niman ikuac, iepich iancuitlo, in calitlaquipil: . cquichtlaquipil, in cioatlaquipil, in petlatl, in tolcuetlil, in icpalli: mochi iancuic in motecuca, ioli in tenamastli, in ezoctetl. No iquac iancuic neqepaxtilo, netlalilo in tlimatli: in cioatl, iancuic omomaquia, in iacuac, in iaxipil.

Ic mizoc, ca nel iancuic ompoa in xiuitl: papaxoa, netlamacheloc: yoan quimaxia, ca ic ompia, ic omochichiui in cocoliztli, in mizoualiztli. Niman ic cocopaltemalo, tlacotemalo, tlemamaco: omoui in tlemaitl, nauhcampa conitoca in itlachiu, ynepan conmamaxtecoca, inic otlemamaoc copalli:

nimi ic ic necpan tamoxolquelo, vecan ic nequanlichichilo, inic niac atlin, ic centlachiu: quincuamamaxtiuia in nequatla tamoxtli. Auh in oncic, nequatla tamoxtli, niman ic nicpui in mamalti, yoan tlachichi: quinicac: cempapaxoa, tlilquauilo: iomac oc oppa ilacuican netlilocatilo, netlilocatilaliztli.

Auh in cincuacuacia ocuaxi, inic ica iomac omoiuh, ohocuchiuh: inic oquichchi iocuauhtlacac, quincuacuacia mochi, xiuhtlaqui, xiuhtzinteopil, xiuhtli, tlexuan, xiuhtlacac, quetzalcóatl, xiuhquan. Etc.° Auh inic cioatl, xiuhcozcatl, xiuhcue, xiuhcozpil. Etc.°

Auh in iomac, ipan mochichi motecuquaxo, tonitlamatqui omoui motlaca ic tlamomoi, inic tonatiuh mochi: in iacu xiuitl, in ipan oompa itl omoa. Auh ic quimoc omomaquiqui, chopqui: iacu xiuhtlamin, tlachichiuhca mochi quechichiuh: in tlamomoi iacu iaxipin, auh ic tonatiuhac, ic mitotiac xiuhtlamimmi: on ichcauhtl

[782]

[785]

[551]

796
372
782

Z [See cat. 116, p. 27 — Analyst]

S: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

796
372
782

and became a captive at Tlatlaoco. The captor was named Itzcuin, and henceforth he was known as and called "Captor of Xiuhtlamin."[10] For on the breast of his captive fire was drawn by the drill, and all his body was consumed in the fire. And they made [the victim's] image of pure amaranth seed dough, so that it might represent him; they set cooked grains of maize upon it, so that they could give it to the people to eat.

ixpan were, in theyanti inal, anchi tlaco tlan in jiaccito: ash ça tonhuelli, inic quinipiloni, in ipan quipouh: tlachpoinali ipan quinitlali, inic quinquali.

10. In the corresponding Spanish text, Sahagún writes: "Los mozos en lucha de amorejos, muy gruesos, el cual se dicen, xiuhtlamin y le miran en la pecho, en cuitlahuac de tlatlaoco, que cada otro llamaban por lo qual despues, le llamaron a el, xiuhtlamin. . . ." In Jones, op. cit., p. 79, the passage is translated: "And these lads on whom blows are Tzcuinlan, whom blows somehow Xiuhtlamin and Itzcuin, are Tlatlaoco, they were Xiuhquipilqueque the Mexica warriors, the female blow and the decorquished the Mexica, which and Xiuhtlamin greatness stands."

%Sahagún M-S (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

THE SEVENTH BOOK TREATETH OF THE SUN, MOON, AND STARS, AND OF THE YEAR OF JUBILEE

EL 7.° LIBRO TRATA DEL SOL Y DE LUNA Y ESTRELLAS Y DEL AÑO DEL JUBILEO.[38]

First Chapter, of the sun.

821 The sun hath the quality of shining and of lighting and of casting rays from himself. He is hot and he scorcheth; he maketh one sweat, and turneth a man's body and face dark brown or tawny.

El sol tiene propiedad de resplandecer y de alumbrar y de echar rayos de si. Es caliente y tuesta, hace sudar pa hueco o luro el cuerpo y la cara de la persona.

821 They celebrated a feast to the sun once each year in the sign named Four Olin. And before the feast they fasted four days as the vigil of the feast. And in 785 this feast of the sun, four times they offered incense 782 and blood from the ears—once at sunrise, another time at midday, at the vesper hour, and when [the sun had] set.

Hazian fiesta al sol vna vez cada año en el signo que se llama 4. olin. Y antes de la fiesta ayunavan quatro dias como vigilia de la fiesta. Y en esta fiesta del sol ofrecian incienso y sangre de las orejas quatro vezes: vna en saliendo el sol, otra al medio dia, y a la hora de visperas y qñ se ponia.

Yxcalini. t. incalidatica in noyollo: My heart is calmed, or cooled, in love. Pret., oixcalioh. oixcalidaticac.

33. yxcalini. t. incalidatica yn noyollo. refriarse o declinar mi corazon en el amor. pt.° oixcalioh. oixcalidaticac.

Vel cen tecomatl in ati ocoaxiocoh: A whole gourd[ful of water] was overturned while being drunk.

34. Vel cen tecomatl ỹ ati ocoaxiocoh. trastornose vna xicara llena borracho.

38. Sahagún (Orus y Tuesca ed.), Vol. VI, pp. 177-225.

S: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

821 And when he came forth in the morning, they said: "Now the sun starteth his work. How will it be? What will come to pass on this day?"

And at sunset they said: "The sun hath ended his work, or task." Sometimes when the sun riseth, he seemeth blood-coloured; and at times whitish; and sometimes he riseth sickly-hued because of the mist or the clouds which cover him.

Y quando a la mañana salia decian ya comienza el sol su obra que era, qué acontecerá á este dia.

Y a la puesta del sol, decian acabó su obra, o su tarea el sol. A las veces qñ sale el sol parece de color de sangre: y a las veces parece blanquecino: y a las veces sale de color enfermizo por razon de las niebles o de las nubes que se le atipanó.

When the sun is eclipsed, he turneth red; it seemeth that the sun becometh disquieted, or troubled; or he turneth to and fro, or he stirreth. And he turneth very yellow.

Quando se eclipsa el sol parece colorado parece que se desasosiega o se turba el sol, o se remueve, o rebuelve y amarillecese mucho.

821 When the people see this, they then raise a tumult.
785 And a great fear taketh them, and then the women weep aloud. And the men cry out, [at the same time] striking their mouths with [the palms of] their hands. And everywhere great shouts and cries and howls were raised. And then they hunted one man of fair hair and white face; and they sacrificed them to the sun. And also they sacrificed captives, and they anointed themselves with the blood of their [own] ears. And, besides, they hunted [the bites of]
782

Quando esto ve la gente luego se alborota.
Y sucede gran temor, y luego las mugeres lloran a voces. Y los hombres dan gritos hiriendo las bocas con la mano. Y en todas partes se daná grandes bozes y gritos, y alaridos. Y luego buscaban los hombres de cabellos blancos y caras blancas: y los sacrificaban al sol. Y tambien sacrificaban captivos y se untaná con la sangre de las orejas: y tambien agujereaban las orejas con puntas de magueí y pasaban mimbres o cosa semejante por los agujeros q̃ las puntas avian

S: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

821
T85
T82

their ears with magney spines and passed flexible twigs or the like through the holes which the spines had made. And then, in all the temples, they sang and sounded [musical instruments], making a great din. And they said: "If the sun becometh completely eclipsed, nevermore will he give light; eternal darkness will fall, and the demons will come down. They will come to eat us!"

hecho. Y luego por todos los templos cantaban y tañian haciendo gran ruido. Y decian si del todo se acaba de eclipsar el sol nunca mas alumbrara ponerse han perpetuas tinieblas y descenderan los demonios vendran nos a comer.

Second Chapter.

821

When the moon newly appeareth, he seemeth like a thin, little curve of wire. He doth not yet shine. By little and little he goeth growing. On the fifteenth day he is full. And when now he is full, he cometh forth in the east or eastward. He seemeth like a great millstone—very round and very red. And as he goeth rising, he becometh white or shining. [There is what] looketh like a rabbit in the middle of him. And if there are no clouds he shineth almost like the

Capítulo Segundo

Quando la luna nuevamente nace, parece como vn arquito de alambre delgado aun no resplandece: poco a poco va creciendo. A los quince dias es llena. Y q̃d ya es llena sale por el oriente o la puesta del sol: parece como vna rueda de molino grande muy redonda y muy colorada. Y q̃d va subiendo se pone blanca o resplandeciente: parece como vn conejo en medio della. Y si no ay nubes resplandece casi como el sol, casi como de dia. Y d'spues de llena c̃ipõ-

S: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Astec NU7

821
532
372
796
782

—After Paso y Troncoso

13. Ice, snow, and hail
14. Storing food against famine
15. Delivering children into bondage
16. Boring new fire on the breast of a sacrificial victim
17. New fire in the temples
18. New fire taken to houses
19. Breaking and throwing away household goods at the end of the fifty-two-year cycle

[p. 38 (E)]

5: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

Third Chapter, of the Stars Called Castor and Pollux.

821
782

These people paid particular reverence and [made] special sacrifices to Castor and Pollux, in the sky, which move near the Pleiades, which are in the sign of Taurus. They made these sacrifices and ceremonies when [the stars] newly appeared to the east after sunset. After having offered incense, they said: "Now [hath] Youlteculi come forth, and Yacanistli. What will come to pass this night? Or what end will the night have—fortunate or adverse?" Three times they offered incense (and [this] must be because they are three stars), the first time at the first quarter of the night, another time at ten, and the third [time] when it beginneth to be morning.—They name these stars mamalhuanili, and by that same name they call the sticks with which they drill a fire; because it seemeth to them that they somewhat resemble [the stars] and that from them there came to them this manner of producing fire. From this it was customary that the Hazia esta gente particular reverencia y particulares sacrificios a los mancebos del cielo q̃ andã cerca de las cabrillas que es en el signo del toro. hazian estos sacrificios y cerimonias q̃ nuevamente parecia por el oriente despues de la puesta del sol. Despues de auer ofrecidole encienso, dezian ya salido youlteculi y yacanistli, que acontecera esta noche o que fin aura la noche prospero o aduerso. Tres veces ofrecian encienso y deue ser porque ellas son tres estrellas. la vna vez a p'ma noche. la otra vez a hora de las diez. la 3.ª quando comiença amanecer.—llaman a estas estrellas mamalhuanili y por este mismo nõbre llaman a los palos con q̃ auen hazer fuego q̃ los parece q̃ tienen alguna semejança cõ ellas y que de allí les vino esta manera de hazer fuego. De aqui tomaron por costumbre de hazer vnas quemadurias en la nuca los varones a hazera de aquellas estrellas. Dezian que el q̃ no fuese señalado de aquellas que-

821
372

6: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1954
NU7 Aztec NU7

532
[] 75
● 782
732]

[524]

[231]

[533
524
732]

[695
694]

[696]

[533
534]

[534
535]

[231]

—Sfer Pan y Tronco

Courses (concluded), 61. Two-headed snake (Chapter 6).

62. Spaniards landing on the coast (Chapter 7). 63. Game of parcheesi (Chapter 10). 64. Rolling a log on the soles of one's feet (Chapter 10). 65. Animals kept by the ruler (Chapter 10). 66. Judgment and punishment of malefactors—Flagellation (Chapter 14). 67. Same—Quartering (Chapter 14). 68. Same—Torpedo (Chapter 14). 69. Mendicants (Chapter 14). 70. Array and equipment for the dance (Chapter 14). 71. The ruler's animals (Chapter 14).

[p. 36(G)]

[p. 36(F) is blank]

6: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1954
NU7 Aztec NU7

—After Paso y Troncoso

79. Warriors in battle array (Chapter 17). 80. Conquest of a city (Chapter 17). 81. Sacrifice of a war captive (Chapter 17). 82-84. Indigo (Chapter 17). 85. A wind (Chapter 17).

[p. 36(K)]

[p. 36(J) is blank]

Under the time when the captive was to die, then

782 Moctezuma presented the captor a device [with] 293 quetzal feather cape so that possessing it he might 727 slay him as a sacrifice. It did not belong to him; but having it he slew the victim, and he fanned with it. He had his rattle stick with him, or the obsidian butterfly or quetzal feather cap [device] set with gold, which he carried upon his back. Possessing it, he slew him as an offering.

796 And the captive he then took there where he was 727 to die, upon the round sacrificial stone; he proceeded to take the captive by the head, and lead him up there where they would slay him in the gladiatorial sacrifice. The one known as Old Wolf led him by the hand—he in whose care lay the captives, as if they had become his sons. And then he gave [the victim] his four pine cudgels, which he would hurl at his adversaries. And he gave him his shield, and his war club—not edged with obsidian blades but only pasted with feathers.

[793] And those who contended against him in gladiatorial sacrifice were the fire priests and the [other] priests. And the captor remained standing below; he stood regarding his captive. He who died was indeed before [his captor].

[273] And after this, when the Old Wolf had arrayed the captive, thereupon he went, and gave him to drink wine which was called the gods' wine. He took it to him [in] a vessel [painted like] reeds and edged with feathers. When [the victim] had drunk, then he raised [the wine] in dedication [toward] where the sun came forth. So [Old Wolf] did with all the shields and war clubs; he raised all of them as offerings which he gave the captive. When Old Wolf had offered the captive [wine] and made him drink it, thereupon the slayer of the sacrificial victim went forth in order to sacrifice him. [He had] his shield and his war club edged with obsidian blades and covered with feathers.

And when he had drunk, then he struck at the captive, who likewise struck back. And if the captive were of great heart, if he were verily a chieftain, really manly, perhaps three or four men fought him. Then, when he fell, they indeed slew him as a sacrifice. And if he were not manly, not a chieftain, then he cast himself there on the round sacrificial stone, and did not fight. Forthwith was he stretched out upon his back, and then they gashed open his breast, seized his heart, and raised it in dedication there [toward] where the sun came forth.

niuil ye ic quimaca in motecuiçoma in tlamaxti quetzalcozaxtl. inic ypan tlamictin. auo uel yuch pouia çan ipan tlamictia. ypan mimiztia ychicauaz yztiuh. auoço iztapaloti. auoço quetzalcozaxtl tocuitlayo in q'mama in ipan tlamictia.

auh i yeuatl malli. ninan ic quinica in ompa miquiz tenalacac icpac cantiuh cuitlehcoaia, in oncan q'nahuanauiqa malli. ynac concaua ytoca cuitlachtecac. in inac onacitinanca mamalti inhq'nan ypilhuã quinchiuaya. Auh ninan cõmaca ꝯ yocotonteuh nenhuetl inic q'momotlac tlamauaq', yuan q'maca ychimal ymacquauh. auo tenitzyo çan tlapotonilli.

Auh y yeuantin in teuauanaya in tlelcuauacaqz in tlamacazqz. auh in tlamani çan moquetzticac tlatzintlan quitzticac in iual. uel ipã im miq'.

Auh ꝯ ye iuhqui in oçe-ncauh malli in cuitlachtecac, ninan ye ic yauh quitia in octli mihtouaya tuocti. inic quinq' acatecoaxtl tlatempotonilli. in ꝯya. ninan ic conitua in ompa ualquiça tonatiuh mochi iuh q'chiua in chimalli im macquauitl mach coniua. inic cõmaca malli. auh in oconiti cuitlachtecac. ninan ye ic yauh in tlamicti inic q'uauanac ychimal ymacquauh yztiuh tenitzyo tlapotonilli auh in ꝯyc. ninan ic cõuinq' im malli. auh no q'uallpaiuqui auh intla yollo chicauac im malli inda uel tiacauh y uel oq'chili. aço yey tlacatl anoço naui tlacatl in q'moyehcuhtia. q'niquac uel q'mictia in ouilhuetz. auh intlacamo oq'chili intlacamo tiacauh çan ninan tlemoteca in oncan tenalacac auo ontlachicoua. çan icuhca ommaquetzinoca ninan ic conehq' [illegible]illia in iyollo conimilia in tonatiuh. ompa uaiq'ça smarteth. Where, in truth, [may we turn], O our lord?"

727 782 [202]

Then [the messengers] commanded those who watched; they said to those at the head of the guard: "Even though he despeth, tell him: 'Lo, they whom thou hast sent over the water have come!'"

And when they went to tell him, then he replied: "I shall not hear it here; I shall hear it in the Cocalli. There let them go." And he commanded and said: "Let two captives be covered with chalk."

And then the messengers went to the Cocalli,[1] and also the noble Moctezuma himself.

Thereupon, before them, were slain the captives; they slashed open their breasts; they sprinkled the messengers with their blood. For this reason did they so do: that they had traveled into very perilous places; that they had gone to see — had looked into the faces and at the hands of, and had verily spoken to — the gods.

Niman quimónacatique in quipia in jtzontlan tlapia quimonjllujque intla mocochitia zicmolhujlican ca ovallaque in tiquinmotitlanj ati itic.

Auh in oconjhujto: njman quiualito. Amo njcan njccaquja, vmpa njccaquja in coscalco, ma vmpa vian, yeua ollaxaosti: quiualito: ma ontetiçavilo in mamalti.

Auh njman vmpa iaque in coscalco in titlanti: no iehoatl in motecuçomatzin, ninal ic ic inixpan mjcoa quimelretequj in mamalti, in justzio ic quimonatzelhujaia in titlanti (ipampa in juh quichiuhque in, ca cenca ovican in ovia ca oquinmitato, inixco inicpac otlachiato, vel oquinonaque in teteu.

1. Cf. Anderson and Dibble, op. cit., VIII — Kings and Lords, p. 44.

8: Barlow E-4 (no date)1949 NU7 Aztec NU7

103 Valle de Bravo (12) and Villa Victoria (13) have likewise been added.

REMARKS ON TOWNS

632 [114] Mitepec is given in the usually reliable Mendocino interpretation, but no trace of such a town has been found. On the other hand, "Tlacotepec" (the Matricula version) is well known, and appears in the conquest lists of Axayacatl, who took all of this region. Tlacotepec, therefore, has been placed on the map.

Teotenanco retained its name as late as 1582, as we see in the relación of that year.[100] Most of these teo- prefixes have been dropped, or supplanted by huey-, as remarked above.[101]

Tepemaxalco appears in 1582 as a town a league north of Teotenanco.[102] In the 1921 census it figures as a pueblo of the Municipio de San Antonio la Isla. However, only the latter (as La Isla) is on the 1927 map.

Valle de Bravo has been added from Brand's Tarascan map.

Villa Victoria is likewise added from Brand.

NATURE OF THE PROVINCE

101 197 Inhabitants and languages.—The name of the province (Matlatzinca) and its people (who did not speak Mexican, but an Otomían language) seems to have come from matlatl, "net." Sahagún tries out various etymologies[103] and finally decides that "they are called net [people] . . . because when they sacrificed anyone to their idol they threw him into a net, and there twisted and squeezed him in the said net until his intestines came out." The Matlatzinca are sometimes included among the Eight Tribes whom the Culhua Mexica met at the start of their migration. Matlatzinca-speakers were scattered far into Michoacan, where the village of Charo, northeast of Morelia, was still called San Miguel de Charo Matlatzinco in the eighteenth century. Westerly contacts and migrations were continued in the latter part of the fifteenth century, as has been mentioned above. The most southerly point in which the Matlatzinca have been noted by the writer is Cocolan, in the province of Tepequacuilco, where their tongue was spoken jointly with Cohuixco in the 1580's.[104]

[782] [103]

[100] PNE, 7: 1–7. [101] PNE, 7: 4. [102] Relación de Iguala (1931), p. 222.
[103] See p. 23 above. [104] Op. cit., III: 127.

10:Deevey N-4 (no date)1957 NU7 Aztec NU7

823 neighbors demonstrated practical control over the lacustrine as well as other components of their environment.

127 133 At the time of the Conquest, according to extensive researches summarized by Orozco y Berra (1864), Maudslay (1908, 1910, in the 2nd and 3rd volumes of the Hakluyt Society edition of Bernal Diaz del Castillo), and especially by Schilling (1939) and Linné (1948), the Valley lakes were more or less one continuous sheet of water. Schilling's series of sketch maps is reproduced in Figure 1. Cortés, in his second [312] letter to Charles V (MacNutt edition, 1908, vol. 1), speaks of two lakes, because Lake Texcoco, the lowest-lying and most saline body of water, was separated from the freshwater portions by a great dike, the albarradón of Nezahualcóyotl. The Valley lakes of course were without outlet to the sea, and the drainage operations that began in the late 16th century and were made effective only in 1900 were devoted to the northward diversion of Lake Zumpango, regarded as the source of the most dangerous floods, to the Río Tula. The 16th-century historians believed that Texcoco had a subterranean outlet to the sea by way of a spring in the valley of Tula. Pozo (Garcia Icazbalceta's edition, 1891, p. 38) claimed to have seen it, while Sahagún (Robredo edition, vol. 3, [782] p. 298) described the "whirlpool" in the center of the lake as the scene where small boys were sacrificed every year. It is reasonable to suppose that the legend of the outlet was believed by the acculturated Indians, but it does not follow that the educated Aztecs believed it.

127 133 312 The "Lake of Mexico" of the historical sources is usually the freshwater part that surrounded the Aztec capital, Tenochtitlán. This part is now dry, as is the southernmost lake of Chalco. Dikes that served as causeways connected Tenochtitlán with the mainland, but the most important dike from the hydrographic standpoint was that of Nezahualcóyotl, which lay to the east of the city. According to tradition, the dike was built by the king of Texcoco in 1446, during the reign of Montezuma I. It was 16 km long, and required the labor of 20,000 men. The reason given for its construction was to protect the Aztec capital from floods, though it is not clear why a Texcocan king should have contributed so generously to his rival's advantage. Of the advan- [241] tage, however, there can be no doubt. All of the southern valley floor, from Chalco to Tenochtitlán, was doubtless covered with chinampas, 127 the artificial islands that have been called "floating gardens" since the 133 days of the imaginative 18th century historian Clavijero. Floods along 731 the course of this drainage would on the whole have been beneficial, though inconvenient; the real danger threatened from the Texcoco side, whence salt water, driven by freshets or seiches[1] might disastrously drown the chinampas. Freshets that brought large river fish through us around him, and three chieftains and two priests came at once, and they said—" Malinche, forgive us for not coming to Tlaxcala to see you and to bring food, it was not for want of good will but because Mase Escasi and Xicotenga and all Tlaxcala are our enemies, and have said many evil things of us and of the Great Montezuma our Prince, and as though what they said were not enough, they now have the boldness, under your protection, to come armed into our city, and we beg you as a favour to order them to return to their own country, or at least to stay outside in the fields and not to enter our city in such a manner." But as for us they said that we were very welcome. 648

[1] [i.e., an oscillation of the surface of a lake lasting from a few minutes to several hours, thought to be due to inequalities of atmospheric pressure. — Analyst]

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

As our Captain saw that what they said was reasonable, he at once sent Pedro de Alvarado and Cristóbal de Olid, the Quartermaster, to ask the Tlaxcalans to put up their huts and ranchos there in the fields, and not to enter the city with us, excepting those who were carrying the cannon, and our friends from Cempoala, and he told them to explain to the Tlaxcalans that the reason why he asked them to do so was that all the Caciques and priests were afraid of them, and that when we left Cholula on our way to Mexico we would send to summon them, and that they were not to be annoyed at what he was doing. When the people of Cholula knew what Cortés had done, they appeared to be much more at ease.

Then Cortés began to make a speech to them, saying that our Lord and King, whose vassals we were, had very great power and held beneath his sway many great princes and Caciques, and that he had sent us to these countries to give them warning, and command them not to worship Idols, nor sacrifice human beings, or eat their flesh, or practice sodomy or other uncleanness, and as the road to Mexico, whither we were going to speak with the Great Montezuma, passed by there, and there was no other shorter road, we had come to visit their city and to treat 648 797 [782 266] [838]

11:Diaz T.H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

of us that they could [capture] bound to Mexico. And he 721 sent grand promises together with many presents of jewels and cloths, also a golden drum, and he also sent word to the priests of the city that they were to retain twenty of [782] us to sacrifice to their idols.

All was in readiness and the warriors whom Montezuma 725 quickly sent were stationed in some ranchos and some rocky thickets about half a league from Cholula and some were already posted within the houses, and all had their arms ready for use, and had built up breastworks on the Azotras and had dug holes and ditches in the streets so as to impede the horsemen, and they had already filled some houses with long poles and leather collars and cords with which they were to bind us and lead us to Mexico; but our Lord God so ordained that all their plots should be turned against them.

Let us leave this now and go back to say that when, 721 as I have said, they had taken us to our quarters they fed us very well for the first two days, and although we saw them so peacefully inclined, we never gave up our good custom of keeping fully prepared, and on the third day they neither gave us anything to eat nor did any of the Caciques or priests make their appearance, and if any Indians came to look at us, they did not approach us, but remained some distance off, laughing at us as though mocking us. When our Captain saw this, he told our interpreters Doña Marina and Jerónimo de Aguilar to tell the Ambassadors of the Great Montezuma, who remained with us, to order the Caciques to bring some food, but all they brought was water and fire wood, and the old men who brought it said that there was no more maize.

That same day other Ambassadors arrived from Montezuma, and joined those who were already with us and they said to Cortés, very impudently, that their Prince had

11:Diaz T.H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

721 believed they would do as he told them and would 713 come.

Cortés at once told him to go, and that his companion should await his return. So the priests departed and summoned the Cacique and chieftains who returned in his 721 company to Cortés' quarters. Cortés asked them, through our interpreters, what it was they were afraid of, and why they had not given us anything to eat, and said that if our presence in their city were an annoyance to them, we wished to leave the next day for Mexico to see and speak to the Lord Monteruma, and he asked them to provide carriers for the transport of the baggage and tepusques (which are the cannon) and to send us some food at once.

The Cacique was so embarrassed that he could hardly speak, he said that they would look for the food, but their Lord Monteruma had sent to tell them not to give us any, and was not willing that we should proceed any further.

721 While this conversation was taking place, three of our 725 friends, the Cempoala Indians, came in and said secretly to Cortés, that close by where we were quartered they had found holes dug in the streets, covered over with wood and earth, so that without careful examination one could not see them, that they had removed the earth from above one of the holes and found it full of sharp pointed stakes to kill the horses when they galloped, and that the Aozteas had breastworks of adobes[1] and were piled up with stones, and certainly this was not done with good intent for they also found barricades of thick timbers in another street. At 721 this moment eight Tlaxcalans arrived, from the Indians
782 whom we had left outside in the fields with orders that they were not to enter Cholula, and they said to Cortés—

[1] Sun-dried bricks.

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

721 "Take heed, Malinche, for this City is ill disposed, and we 782 know that this night they have sacrificed to their Idol, which is the God of War, seven persons, five of them children, so that the God may give them victory over you, and we have further seen that they are moving all their baggage and women and children out of the city." When 721 Cortés heard this, he immediately sent these Tlaxcalans back to their Captains, with orders to be fully prepared if we should send to summon them, and he turned to speak to the Cacique, priests and chieftains of Cholula and told them to have no fear and show no alarm, but to remember the obedience which they had promised to him, and not to swerve from it, lest he should have to chastise them. That he had already told them that we wished to set out on the morrow and that he had need of two thousand[1] warriors from the city to accompany us, just as the Tlaxcalans had provided them, for they were necessary on the road. They 721 replied that the men would be given, and asked leave to go 723 at once to get them ready, and they went away very well contented, for they thought that between the warriors with whom they were to supply us, and the regiments sent by Montezuma, which were hidden in the rocky thickets and barrancas, we could not escape death or capture, for the horses would not be able to charge on account of certain breastworks and barricades which they immediately advised the troops to construct, so that only a narrow lane would be left through which it would be impossible for us to pass. They warned the Mexicans to be in readiness as we intended to start on the next day and told them that they were going to give us two thousand[2] warriors to accompany us, so that as we marched along, off our guard, between the two forces our capture would

---

[1] "Blotted out "three or four."—G. G.

[2] Blotted out "four."—G. G.

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

648 reputation for valour before, (for they had heard of the wars at Potonchan and Tabasco, of Cingapacinga and Tlaxcala, and they called us Teules, which is to call us gods or evil things), from now on they took us for sorcerers, and said that no evil that was planned against us could be so hidden from us that it did not come to our knowledge, and on this account they showed us good will.

346 I think that the curious reader must be already satiated 782 hearing this story about Cholula and I wish that I had 246 finished writing about it, but I cannot avoid calling to mind the prisons of thick wooden beams which we found in the city, which were full of Indians and boys being fattened so that they could be sacrificed and their flesh eaten. We broke open all these prisons, and Cortés ordered all the Indian prisoners that were confined within them to return to their native countries, and with threats he ordered the Caciques and captains and priests of the city not to imprison any more Indians in that way, and not to eat human flesh. They promised not to do so, but what use were such promises? as they never kept them.

787 Let us anticipate and say that these were the great cruelties that the Bishop of Chiapas, Fray Bartolomé de las [114] Casas, wrote about and never ceased talking about, asserting that for no reason whatever, or only for our pastime and because we wanted to, we inflicted that punishment, and he even says it so artfully in his book that he would make those believe, who neither saw it themselves, nor know about it, that these and other cruelties about which he writes were true (as he states them) while it is altogether the reverse of true.[1] It did not happen as he describes it. Let the monks of the order of Santo Domingo see what they can read in the book in which he has written it, and

[1] Blotted out in the original: "I beg your Lordship's pardon for stating it so clearly."—G. G.

Category 782-789

NU7 Aztec
Card 049

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

231 136 Quezales, and there are other birds which have feathers of five colours—green, red, white, yellow and blue; I don't remember what they are called; then there were parrots of many different colours, and there are so many of them that I forget their names, not to mention the beautifully marked ducks and other larger ones like them. From all these birds they plucked the feathers when the time was right to do so, and the feathers grew again. All the birds that I have spoken about breed in these houses, and in the setting season certain Indian men and women who look after the birds, place the eggs under them and clean the nests and feed them, so that each kind of bird has its proper food. In this house that I have spoken of there is a great tank of fresh water and in it there are other sorts of birds with long stilted legs, with body, wings and tail all red; I don't know their names, but in the Island of Cuba they are called Ypiris, and there are others something like them, and there are also in that tank many other kinds of birds which always live in the water.

[346] Let us leave this and go on to another great house, where they keep many Idols, and they say that they are their fierce gods, and with them many kinds of carnivorous beasts of prey, tigers and two kinds of lions, and animals something like wolves which in this country they call jackals and foxes, and other smaller carnivorous animals, and all these carnivores they feed with flesh, and the greater number of them breed in the house. They give 782 them as food deer and fowls, dogs and other things which they are used to hunt, and I have heard it said that they feed them on the bodies of the Indians who have been sacrificed. It is in this way: you have already heard me say that when they sacrifice a wretched Indian they saw open the chest with stone knives and hasten to tear out the palpitating heart and blood, and offer it to their Idols 782 266 in whose name the sacrifice is made. Then they cut off the thighs, arms and head and eat the former at feasts and 782 banquets, and the head they hang up on some beams, and 266 the body of the man sacrificed is not eaten but given to these fierce animals. They also have in that cursed house 231 many vipers and poisonous snakes which carry on their 136 tails things that sound like bells. These are the worst vipers of all, and they keep them in jars and great pottery vessels with many feathers, and there they lay their eggs and rear their young, and they give them to eat the bodies of the Indians who have been sacrificed, and the flesh of dogs which they are in the habit of breeding. We even knew for certain that when they drove us out of Mexico and killed over eight hundred of our soldiers that they fed those fierce animals and snakes for many days on their bodies, as I will relate at the proper time and season. And those snakes and wild beasts were dedicated to those savage Idols, so that they might keep them company.

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

Let me speak now of the infernal noise when the lions and tigers roared and the jackals and the foxes howled and the serpents hissed, it was horrible to listen to and it seemed like a hell. Let us go on and speak of the skilled 463 workmen he [Montezuma] employed in every craft that was practised among them. We will begin with lapidaries and workers in gold and silver and all the hollow work, which even the great goldsmiths in Spain were forced to admire, and of these there were a great number of the best in a town named Atzcapotzalco,[1] a league from Mexico. Then for working precious stones and chalchihuites, which are like emeralds, there were other great artists. Let us go on to the great craftsmen in feather work, and painters and sculptors who were most refined; from what we see of their work to-day we can form a [1] Escapuçalco in the text.

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

apart from the great Cue there was another small tower 346 which was also an Idol house, or a true hell, for it had at the opening of one gate a most terrible mouth such as they depict, saying that such there are in hell. The mouth was open with great fangs to devour souls, and here too were some groups of devils and bodies of serpents close to the door, and a little way off was a place of sacrifice all blood-stained and black with smoke, and encrusted with [415] blood, and there were many great ollas and cántaros and tinajas[1] of water inside the house, for it was here that they [782 266] cooked the flesh of the unfortunate Indians who were sacrificed, which was eaten by the priests. There were also near the place of sacrifice many large knives and [412] chopping blocks, such as those on which they cut up meat in the slaughter houses. Then behind that cursed house, some distance away from it, were some great piles of firewood, and not far from them a large tank of water [312] which rises and falls, the water coming through a tube from the covered channel which enters the city from Chapultepec. I always called that house "the Infernal Regions."

Let us go on beyond the court to another Cue where the [766] great Mexican princes were buried, where also there were many Idols, and all was full of blood and smoke, and it had other doorways with hellish figures, and then near that Cue was another full of skulls and large bones arranged in perfect order, which one could look at but could not count, for there were too many of them. The skulls were by themselves and the bones in separate piles. In that place there were other Idols, and in every house or Cue or oratory 793 that I have mentioned there were priests with long robes of black cloth and long hoods like those of the Dominicans, [292] and slightly resembling those of the Canons. The hair

[1] Names of various large pottery vessels for holding water and cooking.

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

for each one, and they turned out to be as good and fast as though they had taken a month to set up the models, for Martin López was a past master of the art, and it was he who afterwards built the thirteen sloops to aid in capturing Mexico, as I shall relate further on; he was also a good soldier in war time.

Let us leave this and say that Montezuma told Cortés that he wished to go to his temples and make sacrifices, and pay the devotion to his gods that it was his duty to do, so that his Captains and chieftains might observe it, especially certain nephews of his, who came every day to tell him that they wished to free him and to attack us, and he answered them, that it pleased him to be with us, so they should think it was as he had told them, that his God Huichilobos had commanded him to stay with us, as he had made them believe before. Cortés replied that as to this permission he asked for, he should beware not to do anything for which he might lose his life, and so as to prevent any disorders, or commands to his Captains or priests either to release him, or attack us, he would send Captains and soldiers [with him] who would immediately stab him to death, should any change be noticed in his bearing. He might go and welcome, but must not sacrifice any human beings, for that was a great offence against the true God, that was to the God we were preaching to him about, and there stood our altars and the image of Our Lady, before whom he could pray. Montezuma said that he would not sacrifice a single human being, and he set off in his rich litter in great state with many great Caciques in his company as was his custom, and they [293] carried his insignia in front of him in the form of a sort of staff or rod, which was the sign that his royal person was going that way (just as they do [now] to the Viceroys of New Spain). There went with him as a guard four of our Captains, namely, Juan Velásquez de Leon, Pedro de

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

Alvarado, Alonzo de Ávila and Francisco de Lugo and one hundred and fifty soldiers, and the Padre de la Merced also went with us to stop the sacrifice if he should offer human beings. So we went to the Cue of Huichilobos and when we came near to that cursed temple, he [Montezuma] ordered them to take him from his litter and he was carried on the shoulders of his nephews and of other Caciques until he arrived at the temple; as I have already stated, as he went through the streets all the chieftains cast down their eyes and never looked at his face. When we arrived at the foot of the steps leading to the oratory there were many priests waiting to help him with their arms in the ascent. 782

There had already been sacrificed the night before four Indians, and in spite of what our Captain said and the dissuasions of the Padre de la Merced, he paid no heed but persisted in killing men and boys to accomplish his sacrifice, and we could do nothing at that time only pretend not to notice it, for Mexico and the other great cities were very ready to rebel under the nephews of Montezuma, as I shall explain further on. When he [Montezuma] had completed his sacrifices, and he did not tarry much in making them, we returned with him to our quarters, and he was very cheerful, and gave presents of golden jewels to us soldiers who had accompanied him.

Let us leave this here, and I will relate what next happened.

14:Bandelier E-4 (no date) 1880 NU7 Aztec NU7

646 The existence of this council as
642 a supreme authority, proves the Mexicans to have been, not subject to the despotic rule of a monarch, but organized after the principles of a military democracy. They were a barbarous but free and warlike community.

721 Legitimate causes for war were frequently furnished to the Mexicans. Their traders, or those of allied or subjected tribes, were often exposed to outrage and ill-treatment on the part of and among foreign "pueblos." Such acts were always regarded as justifying open warfare, and the opportunity was speedily improved. But pretexts[128] were eagerly sought for also, and the Mexicans therefore never at a loss to find some ground for pouncing upon any tribe which excited their cupidity. We have already stated that war was carried on by them for subsistence. It
[782] was further required for the purpose of obtaining human victims, their religion demanding human sacrifices at least eighteen times every year.[129] Every important event, like an improvement of the "teo-calli,"[130] and especially the installation of a new war-chief of the highest degree ("Tlaca-tecuhtli"), had to be celebrated by a special butchery of men,—and these victims had to be obtained through war.[131] Therefore the well-known custom of the Mexi-
[724] cans, on the battlefield, to look more to the capture than to the slaying of their foes.[132]

[128] The war which resulted in the conquest of Chalco, the foray against Ahuilizapan (Orizava) and Cempoal, were all brought about by the most wanton provocations on the part of the Mexicans (Tezozomoc, Cap. XIX, p. 80; cap. XXI, p. 83; cap. XXXI, p. 48). (Torquemada, Lib. II, cap. XL, p. 159.) (Clavigero, Lib. IV, cap. XIII.) Durán positively denies it, saying that the Mexicans never made war unless provoked, but this is too manifestly untrue (Gomara, p. 442).

[129] These were the regular monthly festivals only.

[130] Durán (Cap. XXXVII, p. 287), when the war against Mechoacan was determined upon: "and that the main reason why he wished to measure himself with their strength "was to try to celebrate with them (by the means of prisoners taken from them) the in-"auguration of the stone, that was similar to the sun, and to tinge his temple with the "blood of these nations." Gomara ("De las guerras," p. 442, Vedia, I, "y para, como "ellos dicen, haber esclavos que sacrificar à los dioses y cebar à los soldados").

[131] It was obligatory upon the chieftain to insugurate his administration with a military exploit, and great importance was placed upon that the head-chief should make prisoners on that occasion with his own hands. Acosta (Lib. VI, cap. XXIV, p. 431). Tezozomoc (Cap. LVII, p. 93; cap. LXI, p. 101; cap. LXXXIV, p. 147). These three passages relate to Tizoczic, to Ahuitzotl, and to the last Montezuma, respectively.) Mendieta (Lib. II, cap. XXVII, pp. 131, 132, and 133). Torquemada (Lib. II, cap. LV, p. 172, and cap. LXIX, p. 195).

[132] This was a very fatal custom, as against the Spaniards. Had the Mexicans been intent upon killing instead of overpowering their white enemies alive, their resistance would have been more formidable. Thus, for the sake of capturing a single horseman, they recklessly sacrificed numbers of their own, when they thought to be able to surround him, and cut him off from his corps or detachment. The custom was, however, general among the Nahuatlac tribes.

16:Bandelier E-4 (no date)1880 NU7 Aztec NU7

nite, owing, in part, to the treasure-seeking propensities of the 764
Spanish immigrants as well as to the diligence of the clergy in obliterating all objects to which the aborigines attached superstitious notions.

For the same reason we refrain here from entering into a de- 771 tailed account of the customs of worship. Still we feel obliged to state that the feature of "separate religious rites"[113] so characteristic of society based upon kin, is plainly visible among the ancient Mexicans. There are some very remarkable evidences of this, to which we must allude.

It has already been established at the outset, that each calpulli 618 had "its particular god," which was worshipped, as a tutelar deity, 346 within the territory of that calpulli. Consequently each kin had its particular medicine-lodge or temple.[114] Besides, the last one of the seventy-eight places into which Father Sahagun subdivides the great central "teo-calli" of the tribe, is described by him as follows:

"The seventy-eighth edifice was named calpulli, these were small buildings enclosing the inside of the square, these little houses they called calpulli, and there the principals and officials of [782] the republic gathered, to do penance for four days preceding each festival occurring at twenty days interval. Their vigils thus lasted four days, during which time some of them ate at midnight and others at noon."[115]

This statement, which is confirmed (according to the learned Jesuit John Eusebius Nieremberg)[116] by the celebrated physician and naturalist Francisco Hernandez, is followed by another one, not less important, also of Sahagun:

"They offered up many things in the houses which they called "calpulli," which were like churches of the quarters, where those of the same gathered, as well for to sacrifice, as for other ceremonies they were wont to perform."[117]

Thus the right of the kin to "separate worship" appears not [113] "Ancient Society" (p. 71).

[114] Besides the positive assertions of Sahagun (Lib. II, Appendix, p. 211. Lib. I, cap. XIX, p. 31): "se ponian en una de las casas de oracion que tenian en los barrios que ellos llamaban calpulli, que quiere decir iglesia del barrio ó parroquia" and (Lib. II, cap. XXXVII, etc.), we have also the testimony of Durán (Cap. V, pp. 42 and 43, and Cap. IX, pp. 79 and 80), and Oviedo (Lib. XXXIII, cap. X, p. 302).

[115] "Historia general," (Lib. II, Appendix, p. 211).

[116] "Historia naturae," (Lib. VIII, cap. XXII, p. 158).

[117] "Historia general," (Lib. II, Appendix, p. 211. See note 114).

787 was chaste and conscientious; who was audacious, who saved all, who sought his sustenance; who planned, sought, and watched for that which might alleviate, for that which he might lay hand on in the near future, and for what he might offer his children; for what might be obtained, and what he could quickly seize if sickness and misfortune came.

Thus, everywhere he watched for, considered, and sought whatsoever he might use as merchandise, whatsoever his manner of wares might be; whatsoever he might live by, by which he might increase and augment his goods and his gains.

And this one emerged, and rose to honor, if he deliberated well, and was attentive, not resentful of criticism, nor lazy. The counsel with which he was counseled and the rearing with which he was reared took effect; he seized and held fast to it. And if he was made fun of, he took no revenge; he made no reprisals. He returned nothing in kind.

[684 565] And if a woman were then born, it likewise befell her as hath been said and told above. If a noble-woman was an adulteress, her head was crushed between two stones so that she died. And only in misery and affliction was she given to dwell. She encountered misery and want. Nowhere on earth was her face radiant; nowhere on earth was she [of any account]; nowhere was she regarded; nowhere did she hold a husband. Thus was it stated: "Just so is her nature; so is her life; so her birthright; and so her day sign. Thus, on such [a day], was she bathed; at such a time was she born. Monstrous was her day sign; a wild beast was she; hers was the day of the wild beast, etc."

●782 And they venerated Four Movement as a day sign. Thus did they say, that it was the day sign of the 821 sun. Moctezuma paid great honor to it. When it was this day, when Four Movement set in, they slew quail and offered incense before the image of the sun; they placed on it what was known as the spreading red arara feather device. And at noon captives died and were slain [as sacrifices].

787 And for him who was then born, no [true sign] appeared. In two ways might it fall. They said that if it were a man, he might either take captives or die in war. As they said, "With this the sun is nourished." Hence everyone did penances when it was this sign. At this time all came together from all parts; none remained or did otherwise. Verily, everyone — men, women, children — cut their ears and vmpilcatoc, in jaqujch caana, in qujtemoa in jcochca, yn jneuhca, in qujlnamjquj, in conjttilia, in contlachielia, tle itech vmpatiz, tle itech ontlaanaz in macujl, in matlac, tlẽ qujmonmacaz in jpilhoan, çan onmaçoaz, tlẽ concujtivetziz in ocalla cocolíztli icnoiotl:

ic noviiampa mjztia tlanemjlia, qujtemoa, in tlein qujmoñanauhtiz, in catleoatl inanauh vmmuchioaz, in tlein vel ic onnemjz, ic onmacoquetzaz, ic ontlapiujaz itlatquj icnopillouh.

Ioan ichoatl qujçaia, panvẽtzia, in vel monotza, in tlacacquj, in amo qujquammati, qujtemati in onotzaloca, izcaliloca, içan itech qujpachoa, içan qujmacuj, qujmapiquj: auh intla ica necacaiaoalo, amo qujtecuepilizia, amo qujcuepcaiotia, atle ic qujlochtia.

Auh intla çioatl ipan otlacat: no iuhquj ipan muchioaia, in tlacpac omjto, omoteneuh: intla cioapilli tetlãximaia, quatepipitzinjloia injc mjquja: auh çan icnoiotica, cococaiotica, in monenemjtiaia, icnoiotl, netolinjliztli qujtztinemj, ãcan ixtona in tlalticpac, ãcan tlalticpac ca, ãcan motztica, ãcan vel oqujchpia: ic mjtoaia, ca njman iuh qujz, iuhquj iioliliz, iuhquj itlacatiliz, iuhquj itonal, iuhquj ipan malti, iuhcan tlacat, ãtlacacemelle in jtonal, ca tequapj, tequantonale. Etc.

Auh in naolin qujtonaltiaia: iuh qujtoaia, itonal in tonatiuh, cenca qujmavizziliaia in Motecuçuma: yn jquac, y, moquetzaia naolin, tlacotonaia, tlenamacaia, yn ixpan ixiptla tonatiuh, qujtlaliaia itoca cueçaltonameiotl: auh in nepantla tonatiuh, mjquja, mjctiloia, in mamalti:

auh in aquin ipan tlacatia, atle vel inezca, vme vitz qujtoa. Yntla oqujchtli açe tlamaz, anoçe iaomjquiz: in iuh qujtoaia, ca ica mozcaltia in tonatiuh, ic muchi tlacatl tlamaceoaia. yn jquac, y in vncã, y, cenvetzi, ipanoca, aiac mocaoa, aiac ixcavi, vel mochi tlacatl in oqujchtli, in çioatl, in piltzintli, monacaztequia, mjçoia, mjtoaia: ic izcaltilo in tonatiuh.

787x

drew blood. It was said: "Thus was the sun nourished."

And Seven Flower was said [to be] good and bad. As a good [sign], in certain places the scribes paid it honor and were devoted to it. They set up its image and made offerings to it. Also those women who were embroiderers and cotton thread workers first fasted for eighty days; some fasted for forty or twenty days, when penance was done. Thus they requested of it that what they undertook might be well done; [that] their embroidery or design might be a work of art well fabricated and well painted. All therefore offered incense and slew quail; and all bathed and sprinkled themselves with water, when [the fasting] had been lifted. Then the feast of the day sign, Seven Flower, was celebrated.

Auh in chicome xochitl: mjtoaia qualli, ioã âqualli: ynic qualli ceccan vncã tlamaviztiliaia, motemachiaia, in tlacujloque, qujtlaliaia yxiptla, qujtlamanjliaia: no iehoan in cioa tlãmachchiuhque, icpachiuhque, achtopa qujneçaviliaia, nappoaltica, aca vmpoaltica, cempoaltica in moçaoaia: ic qujtlaitlanjliaia, injc itla vel aizque mjmatizque, toltecatizque, vellalalizque, vellacujlozque: in jpan intlamach, intlacuilol: ic mochintin tlenamacaia, tlacotonaia: auh mochintin mãaltiaia, maujujxoaia, yn jquac neoalco, in vncan ilhujqujxtililoia, chicome xochitl:

787x 782 286 785

And they said when it was not a good [day sign], that if some embroiderer broke her fasting — it was said — then she merited for herself infamy and an ill name. Thus she could only live in vice and become a harlot. For it was said the embroiderers lived in great vice and became terrible whores.

auh injc amo qualli, mitoaia, iquac intla aça tlãmachchiuhquj, yneçaoaliz qujtlacoaia, mjtoa: vncã qujmomacevia avilquizcaiotl, aviltocaitl: injc çã âavilnemjz, âavienjtiz, ca mjtoa, tlaquauh avilnemja, mãaviltiaia in tlamachchiuhque,

787x 286 785 548

It was said the one who was their goddess, named Xochiquetzal, made sport of and mocked her. And she gave and thus scourged her with piles and infections.

qujlmach iehoatl inca mocaiaoaia, qujquequeloaia in intecouh catca, itoca xochiquetzal, ioan qujtemacaia, ic temotlaia, xochiciujztli, palanjliztli:

787x 286 776

But she who did well her penances, who took heed, and so then attained success, was esteemed, and gained honor for herself. In [all] places she was looked to; by the grace of the people, she lived well on earth.

auh in aqujn vel ontlamaceoa in vel monotza, ca oncã qujçaia, maviztia, momavizçotiaia, cana motztica, vel moietztica tepaltzinco in tẽc:

787x 286

Also it was said of this [day sign] that he who was born on it would perform all crafts well: he would be a good craftsman; he would plan well great works; he would constantly be prudent, if he took good heed. But if he did not take good heed, nothing resulted; he deserved nothing. He only merited the infamy with which he was defamed and the mockery with which he was mocked.

no iuhquj ipan mitoaia in aqujn ipan tlacati, moch vel qujchioaz in toltecaiotl, vel tõtoltecatiz, tlatlanemjliz, iõiolizmatquj iez, intla uel monotzaz: auh intlacamo vel monotza, atle onqujçaia, atle icnopil, çan iaujlqujzca, iquequeloloca in qujmomaceviaia.

787x

Auh in chicunavi hecatl: mjtoaia, motqujtica, moch centlantica amo qualli: in aqujn ipan tlacati, atle vel muchioa yn jnemjliz, atle vel ic tlaçaloia, atle vel ic tlaana, atle vel ic tlatzicoa, atle ivelneaca, atle veli, atle veliti in tlaticpac, çan iuhqujn ecatocotinemj, avic iatinemj, conmonectia in ma itlati, in ma acati, çan atleti: ca nel iuhquj itonal, conjztoca, ipan onmjxpoã, in ma pupuchtecati, in manoce cujcujcanjti, teaachti, tetlãtlavicalti, tecãcamanalhuj. Etc. atle veliti, çan tlaqualania, çan nẽia motlatlamotla, mone-

X-787 And if it were a noblewoman, or only a common [woman], who was then born, so likewise it was her lot. She was considered as a man, esteemed as if a man; a comforter. Hence she caused others no apprehension, was not negligent, and did not dishearten others.

And also it was said that one who was born upon this [day sign], One Deer — it was told that he was exceedingly timorous; he lived thinking only of his fears; he walked with his terrors, and only lived afraid, indeed frightened to death. When he witnessed a thunder clap, or a bolt of lightning, or lightning flash — a flash of lightning — then he could not endure it. Indeed the lightning and thundering frightened him and caused him to be in terror and dread.

And so they said that sometimes, on some occasions, it happened to him; for his fear followed him and persisted with him; his fears came upon him as a judgment. For his dread came upon him. Verily, he was struck by lightning; that befell him which he feared and of which he lived in anxiety. And even if it was summer, he was still smitten by a summer flash. Also, when he bathed in the water, there he died, drowned; his eyes were torn out;[2] his finger nails were removed and torn out.

Hence was it said: "Verily, so was his lot; so was he born. Even as the deer is a great coward, just so was he, whose day sign this is, a great coward; fearful." So seldom did his kin, his parents, trouble themselves; they did nothing for him.

776 And also it was told that then, too, was one of the times when those known as the Goddesses ●782 descended. They made offerings to them, and then they clothed [their images] in their paper vestments and their paper adornments.

Auh intla çioapilli: anoço çã maceoalli ipan tlacatia, no iuh mãceoale catca, teoqujchtlamachti: iuhqujn oqujchpovi, teacotlaz, atle ic tenentlamachti, amo tenmachonj, amo tecuetlazo.

Auh no ioan mjtoa: in aqujn ipan tlacati ce maçatl: qujlmach cẽca momauhtiaia, çan jmaviz in qujmattinenca, çan imauhcac in nemja, çan mamauhcanenca, vel iolmjquja, in jquac qujcaquja tlatlatzinjliztli, anoço tlavitequjliztli, tlapetlanaliztli, tlapetlanjllotl: njman âconiecoaia, vel qujçaviaia, qujcujcujtiuetziltia, qujmavizcujtia in onotlapetlan, onotlatlatzin.

Auh iuh qujtoa, in quẽman, in quenmanjan ça ipan neltiaia, ca imaviz contocaia, ipã ontlamelaoa, ça imaviz qujtlamachiliaia, ca inemauhtil ipan oniauh, vel vitecoia, ipan muchicoaia in qujmacaci, in qujmamattinemj. Auh intlacanelmo xopantla, çan tonalhujteco: no ioan in jquac atlan maltia, vncan mjquja, ilaqujlo, ixtelolococopinalo, iztitlatlaxo, iztococopinalo, ic mjtoa, ca nel iuhquj itonal, iuhquj ipan motlacatili: in iuhquj maçatl, cenca momauhtianj: çan no iuhquj in aqujn itonal catca, vel mauhca tlacatl, mavizoco: ic çanyca mellaquaoa, in joaniolque, in jtaoan, aquẽ commatia.

Auh ioan mjtoa: no vncan ceppa ipan temoia, in moteneoa çioateteu: vncan qujntlamanjliaia, ioan vncan ic qujntlaquentiaia yn jmamatlaquen, in jmamanechichioa!

2. Cf. Spanish text.

x 787 Eighth Chapter, which telleth of the fifth sign, named One Reed. And it was not a good day, [nor] those with it. It was said that those born then, if they were born in the ninth house, named Nine Crocodile — they said and it was averred that one would be a slanderer and bearer of false witness. And it was thought that this sign was the day of Quetzalcoatl. Therefore the lords and noblemen then paid their devotions and made offerings.

Injc chicuei capitulo: itechpa tlatoa, injc macujltetl machiotl, in jtoca ce acatl: auh amo qualli tonalli in jtech ca, qujlmach in aqujque vncan tlacatia, intla vncan tlacatia, injc chicunauhtetl ẽalli, in jtoca chicunavi cipactli: qujtoaia qujlmach cenca techicoitoanj, ioan teteixpanvianj: auh qujlmach injn machiotl, iehoatl itonal in quetzalcoatl: ipampa in tlatoque, in pipilti, vncan muxtlaoaia ioan tlamanaia.

x 787 The day sign One Reed set in. With it were reckoned the evil days, those of an unfavorable time. 805 Following it came Two Ocelot, and Three Eagle, Four Vulture, Five Motion, and Six Flint Knife. These various days were said to be evil, of an unfavorable time.

Moquetza ce acatl tonalli, ic mocempoa in amo qualli, in amo ieccan izqujlhujtl, qujtoqujlitica yn jpan vme ocelutl, ioan ei quauhtli, navi cozcaquauhtli, macujlli olin, chiquacen tecpatl: in jzqujtetl in tonalli mjtoaia amo qualli, amo ieccan, x 787 It was held that One Reed was the day sign, the time, of Quetzalcoatl. For Quetzalcoatl represented 776 the wind, and was therefore thought a god. And 778 when the day One Reed set in, the lords and noblemen paid him great honors. They made offerings at the priests' house in the [barrio] known as Mexico.[1] ● 782 For there was kept the image of Quetzalcoatl. Before him they arranged and spread offerings. Everything they then prepared for him. They placed on him his various array and paper vestments. And before him they laid out flowers, tobacco, [vessels] full of incense, and drink and food. So they said that then they dedicated and assigned the day sign to Quetzalcoatl.

qujlmach itonal catca itonalpan in quetzalcoatl. Iehica in quetzalcoatl, i ehecatl ipan mjxeoaia, injc tevtocoia: auh in jquac in moquetzaia ce acatl tonalli, cenca tlamaviztiliaia in tlatoque, in pipilti, tlamanaia in calmecac, yn jtocaiocan mexico, ca vncan pialoia in jxiptla Quetzcoatl, ixpan qujtlatequjliaia, qujtlamâmacaia much iquac qujcencaviliaia, itech qujtlaliliaia, in jzqujtlamantli inechichioal, yn iamatlatquj, ioan ixpan qujtequjliaia suchitl, yetl, qujcopaltemjliaia atl, tlaqualli, qujmanjlia, iuh qujtoaia vncan qujtonaltia, qujtonalquechja in Quetzcoatl.

x 787 And so they said it was an unfortunate time. He who was then born, whether nobleman or commoner, was of scant merit or deserts. Just as worthless as the wind was his life. It was swept away by the wind. As nothing were his lineage and origin. For in the time of Quetzalcoatl the wind [god] had he been born; for such was his nature. The same befell her if it was a woman.

Auh injc mjtoa: amo ieccan, in aqujn ipan tlacatia pilli, anoço maceoalli, atle cenca imâceoal, ilhujl catca, çan iuhqujn ehecatl ipã povia inemiliz, ẽcatocoia, atle itlaanca, inelhoaio mochioaia: ipampa in jtonalpan quetzalcoatl, ẽecatl otlacat, ca njman iubcan oquiz, no iubquj ipan muchioaia, intla çioatl,

1. The calmecac, house of priestly learning, is defined as "lugar de linaje de la casa' y escuela de nobles" by Arturo Monzón in El calpulli en la organización social de los nahuas (México: Instituto de Historia, 1949), p. 77. There were six, in the nobler calpulli, probably pertaining to clans (as the term is used by Monzón): Yopico, Huitznahuac, Tlamatzinco, Tlilancalco, Tetlamaca, and Mexico (pp. 47-52).

X787 776 ●782 Ninth Chapter, which telleth of the sixth sign, called One Death, and of the good fortune belonging to it. It was said to be the day sign of Tezcatlipoca. And many were the offerings and blood sacrifices with which they did him honor. And each person provided much pleasure to the slaves.

Injc chicunavi capitulo: itechpa tlatoa, injc chiquacentētl machiotl, in jtoca ce mjqujztli: ioan in qualli tonalli itech ca, qujlmach itonal in Tezcatlipuca: auh mjec in ventli, in nextlaoalli injc qujmaviztiliaia, ioan cenca qujnpapaquiltiaia in tlatlacoti.

One Death set in. This was said to be a good day sign, but also somewhat bad, as will here appear in its discussion. For it was said that when this occurred, then they honored Tezcatlipoca. The lords greatly venerated [the day sign]. Each one made offerings and beheaded quail at his personal [altar] in his house and in each of the tribal quarters in the temples called teocalli.

Moquetza ce mjqujztli: ynjn mjtoaia, qualli tonalli: auh ioan achi amo qualli, in iuh neçiz nican, ipan itlatollo, ca mjtoa in jquac, y, vncan qujtonaltiaia in Tezcatlipuca, cenca tlamaviztiliaia, in tlatoque, tlamanaia, tlacotonaia, ceceniaca yn jncalitic, in jmjxcoian in cacalpulco, in moteneoa in teucalli, in teucalco:

Thus did they speak: "This one is he by whom we live, Titlacauan, master of the earth, master of the lords of the earth, who now hath his blessed day."

iuh qujtoaia, ca iehoatl in jpal tinemj, in titlacaoan, in tlalticpaque, in tlaltecue, in axcan itonalpantzinco,

For everyone then showed devotion, was humbled, and sorrowed, in order that he would show them favor. And not alone did the lords thus act, but also the brave warriors, the seasoned warriors, and the wealthy, the rich, and he who was wise; for the day sign of Titlacauan had set in. They also observed the day sign and made offerings in his dwelling place in his tribal temple. For this reason they showed great devotion, for this was the time to pray for favors.

ic muchi tlacatl vncan tlatemachiaia, nentlamatia, tlaocuiaia, injc qujcneliz: auh amo çanioque in tlatoque, iuh qujchioaia, y, no iehoan in tiacaoā, in tequjoaque, ioan in mocujltonoa, in motlacamati, ioan in aquin qujmatia, ca itonal moquetza in titlacahoā, no tlatonaltiaia, tlamanaia, in jchā, in jcalpulco: ypampa injc cenca tlatemachiaia, ca vncan tlaitlanjliloia, injc teicneliz:

X787 776 And as for its not being accounted a good and favorable time: there then was fear and dread lest this same one be wrathful and wilful. For thus did they say: "He whom he had favored and honored, and to whom he had revealed his sweetness, fragrance, and mercy, from this same one he might withdraw and remove it." Yet it was not without reason; when [the man] became vain and haughty, he disregarded and neglected what was his birthright. Still [the god] showed compassion and gave it as a gift to the one who sought him diligently and who went about weeping and sighing for his sake. So was it said that everywhere he was awaited; everywhere there was humility and sorrow before him. Nowhere was the dwelling place of the war [god] auh injc amo qualcan, ieccan, ipan machoia, ca vncan nemauhtiloia, ymacaxoia, injc amo çan no iê moçomaz, monenequjz, ca iuh qujtoaia, in aquin qujcnelia, in oconmaviçolti, in oixpan conquixti, in jtzopelica, in javiiaca, in jtetlaocoliliz: çan no iê conjnailia, conjquanjlia, tel amo çan nen iquac in ie atlamati, in ie cuecuenoti in aoc tle ipan tlatta, conmjxcaoaltia, in jmâceoal, ocatca, oc iê qujcnoitta, connemactia, in qujtlamatataqujlia, in jca chocatinemj, elciciuhtinemj, ic mjtoaia: noviian chialo, noviian ivicpa nentlamacho, tlaocoialo, âcan vel ichan in iaoel Tezcatlipuca: çan jtlân conantinemj in jpetl, jepal:

X-787 Eleventh Chapter, which telleth of the seventh sign, named One Rain, and of the evil day signs [776] which belonged with it. They said that those then born were sorcerers and soothsayers and demons. — And tlacatecolotl meaneth demon. — Almost all the houses belonging to this [sign] were evil and unfavorable. Only the thirteenth was good.[1]

Injc matlactli oce capitulo: itechpa tlatoa, injc chicontetl machiotl, in jtoca ce qujavitl: ioan in amo qualli tonalli, in jtech catca: quilmach in aqujque vncan tlacatia, nanaoalti catca, ioan tetlachivianj, tlatlacatecolo: auh in tlacatecolotl, ca ichoatl qujtoznequj in Diablo, achi muchi in calli itech pouhquj, in amo qualli, in amo iectli: çanjio inic matlactetl vmey qualli.

X-787 One Rain set in, of which it was said that it was in no way a good day sign. It was full of evil, vice, misery, orphanhood, affliction, suffering, anguish, misfortune, and indigence.

Moquetza ce qujaujtl: injn mjtoaia, njman amo qualli tonalli, motqujtica teuhtli, tlaçolli, icnoiotl, icnotlacaiotl, tlaciaujliztli, tlacococaviliztli, teopouhcaiotl, atle onqujçaliztli, atle oneoatinemjliztli:

X-787 This was because during the time of this day sign, so it was said, then descended those known as the 776 Goddesses, inhuman ones, mockers of the people. Hence most sternly [parents] commanded their children not to go out; not to travel along the roads. They should only remain at home. Thus did they speak to them: "Go not forth. You will encounter the Princesses, for they descend and arrive upon earth." Hence the fathers regarded them with fear, lest one of [the children] might develop misshapen lips, or crossed eyes, or a hare lip, or be possessed.

ipampa in jpan, y, tonalli, iuh mjtoa: ca vncan temoia, in moteneoa cioateteo, âtlacacemelleque, teca mocaiaoanj: ic cenca qujntlaquauhnaoatiaia, in tepilhoan, in aiac qujçaz, aiac vtli qujtocaz: çan cali onozque: iuh qujmjlhujaia maca zonqujçaca, anmotenamjctizque, ca temo, ca tlalpan açi in çioapipilti: ic qujntlamauhcaittiliaia in tetaoan: injc amo aca tennecujliviz, ixnecujliujz, tenpatziujz, itech qujneuaz:

778 When this [day came], everywhere in the Goddesses' sanctuaries and temples — everywhere offer- ●782 ings were made. For in every single place stood a temple of Goddesses, in each neighborhood,[2] there at crossroads. They covered with white streamers each of the images which were there — five [figures] of stone, placed in a row, their faces rubbed and painted with liquid rubber. He who made a vow to them covered them at the time of their descent, at the time of their day count, on the day sign of their descent. As many of them as there were he covered with white paper streamers.

in jquac in, in noviian çioateupan, çioateucalli, noujian tlamanaloia, ca noviian cecentetl mãca, in çioateucalli, cecentlaxillacalpã vncan in omaxac, teteujtl qujmonquequentia, in vmpa catca, ymjxiptlacoan, macujlteme in teme, tecpantoca, tlaoltzaoalti, moolzauhque in aqujn ivicpa monetoltiaia, qujntlaquentia yn jquac in intemoia, yn jntlapoalpan, in jpan tonalli temoia, izqujteme amatetelujtl qujnquentia.

1. The Spanish text reads, in part: "los que en este signo nacen, son nigromanticos, brujos, hechiceros, embaydores. Es de notar, que son vocablo diablo, propiamente quiere decir, nigromantico, o brujo: improprimente es un, por diablo: casi todos los cosas deste signo: eran de malo digestion. Pero la decima casa, y la seteta decima casa, universalmente E todos los signos: eran felices." See Anderson and Dibble, op. cit., Book XII, "The Conquest of Mexico," p. 21, nn. 1, 2, 3, on nonalli, desventurado, and tetlachianani. Depending upon the context, we have at times translated desventurado as demon.

2. Ibid., Book VIII, "Kings and Lords," p. 58, n. 13.

1

A 787 was not hopeless. This one the readers of the day signs thus sought out so that they might then somewhat better the day sign of the one born on One Grass.

liaia tonalpouhque, injc achi vncan quijqualiliaia itonal, in jpan tlacatia ce malinalli.

778 And the day sign Two Reed, which followed, they said was a very good day sign; because also at that time they honored Tezcatlipoca Titlacauan by placing the image of [a god] called Omacatl. In the same manner [as Tezcatlipoca][4] was the face painted; they ornamented it when they placed it.

● 782

Auh in qujtoqujlia, vme acatl tonalli qujtoaia vel qualli in tonalli: ipampa ca no vncan qujtonahtiaia yn Tezcatlipoca, titlacaoa, injc qujtlaliaia ixiptla itoca Omacatl: çan no ivi in mjchioaia, ic qujchichioaia, injc qujtlaliaia:

And whosoever wished to place the image of Omacatl guarded it in his home for two hundred [days]. He placed it on the day sign Two Reed. And if he who placed it did something well, that is, if now his goods and possessions increased and appeared, no more did he wish to relinquish it. He just placed and introduced it permanently into his home, and guarded it for a long time.

auh in aqujn qujnequja, qujtlaliaia in jxiptla Omacatl, matlacpoaltica in qujpiaia ychan, ipan in qujtlaliaia, vme acatl tonalli, auh intla ic itla vel maaiia, in aqujn oqujtlali, qujtoznequj: intla ic tlapiuja, ixneçi, iaxca itlatquj, aocmo qujcaoalitztlamotia, çan qujcentlaliaia, qujcencalaqujaia in jchan, vecauhtica qujpiaia:

And if now he wished to abandon it, and no longer to guard it, he likewise abandoned it on the day sign Two Reed. This same one chose his day sign; on [the day sign] in which he had placed it, on it likewise he abandoned it. He left it there at his temple in the tribal district of Omacatl, and went offering it incense. And there, to take it, would go he who earlier had wished to guard it in his home. The old men of the tribal district accompanied it with song; the [new] householder served food to the people; there was feasting and drinking in his home. And when it grew dark there was drunkenness. In the same way was the placing and termination. Then was the breaking off and the finishing; then they observed the two hundred days of guarding it in one's home when [the image] entered as well as when it left.

auh intla ic oqujnec in qujcaoaz, in aocmo qujpiaz: çan no ipan in qujcaoaia vme acatl tonalli, çan iee qujmattiuja in jtonal, ipan in qujtlaliaia, no ipan in qujcaoaia: vmpa concaoaia in jteupan, in jcalpulco omacatl, qujtlenamaqujlitiuh: auh vmpa canatiuh, in aqujn oc itt oqujnec, qujpiaz ichan, qujcujcatiaia in calpuleque, ic tetlatlaqualtia in chane, tlatlaqualo, aatlioa, yn jchan: auh in oiooac tlatlaoano, çan ie iuh tlatlaiilli, çan ie iuh tlatecolli, çan vncan tectica, çan ie vncan tlantica, çan ie vncan qujmattiaia, in matlacpoaltica pialoia techan iquac calaquja, no iquac qujçaia:

X 787 And, it was said, he who was then born, they said, would become rich and wealthy. And well would he gain his livelihood. What he might do would not fail. He would find his consolation.

auh mjtoa: in aqujn ipan tlacatia, qujtoaia mocujltonoz, motlacamatiz, ioan vel muchioaz in jnetlaiecoltiliz, in tlejn maailiz, amo nenqujçaz, vel qujttaz in jneiollaliliz.

And on Four Eagle, and Five Vulture, and Six Motion, so it was said, these various day signs were in no way good. They were always as hath been said. For him who was then born, his fate, his gifts, were the same: misery. He lived given to talking; he would bear false witness; accusations were made; there were outcries; among others he lived in vice, corruption, and evil, as hath already in many places

Auh yn jpan nauj quauhtli, yoan macujlli cozcaquauhtli, yoan chiquacen olin, iuh mjtoa: njman amo tle qualli in jzqujtetl yn, tonalli, çan muchipa iuh mjtoa: in aqujn ipan tlacatia, çan yee in jlhujl, inemac in netolinjliztli, yoan tlatolli cololhujtinemj, tetlatolevia, yoan tlatolevilo, oiovilo, tenepantla qujtlalitinemj in xixtli, cujtlatl, in aqualli: in juhquj ye mjieccan omotenteuh. Auh in oc nen ic qujqualtiliaia

4. At this place in the Real Palacio MS a marginal note in Sahagún's hand reads: "de la ceremonia de la yma[g]e de Tezcatlipoca."

X 787 776 Twenty-first Chapter, which telleth of the tenth sign, called One Flint Knife. And it was said that it was of good fortune, and claimed that those then born were brave and became seasoned warriors. And it was said that the women then born were forceful; they were able in all things and made their goods very well. And it was said to be the day sign of Uitzilopochtli, to whom it was dedicated. His domain was war. It was said also to be the day sign of Camaxtli. And when this sign began, they observed the feast [of Uitzilopochtli]. And it was said that all the day signs were good—[all] thirteen.

Injc cempoalli oes capitulo: itechpa tlatoa, injc matlactetl machiotl, in jtoca ce tecpatl: ioan qujl qualli in jtonallo, auh qujl in aqujque vncan tlacatia chicaoaque catca, ioan tequjoacatia: auh qujl in cioa vncan tlacatia oqujchiolloque catca, muchi in veli catca, cenca uel qujnextiaia in jntlatquj: auh qujl itonal catca in Vitzilopuchtli, in jtech pouhquj catca, in jtequjuh catca iiaoiotl, qujl no itonal in Camaxtle: auh in jquac vmpeoaia injn machiotl, qujlhujquixtiliaia, auh qujl muchi qualli catca in jtzqujlhujtl, matlaqujlhujtl vmei.

776 782 One Flint Knife set in. On this One Flint Knife, when it tarried for a day, they then made offerings to Uitzilopochtli, whose day sign it was, and to Camaxtli, god of the Uexotzinca.

Thus it is said they made offerings and paid great 776 honor [to Uitzilopochtli] there at his temple, in his 782 tribal district, at the place whose name was Tlacatecco. There was his image guarded, and all his 776 array. They had it all spread out before him and laid in the sun; they offered incense and presented him[1] what were called the quetzal feather cape, the blue cotinga feather cape, the red spoonbill feather cape, the yellow parrot feather cape, and the humming bird feather cape.[2] But only after them came [825] last the no longer very precious feathers, like the white heron feather cape or the reed thrush feather cape.[3] Severally they laid all of them down, offered them separately, arranged them in rows, placed them in order, etc.

Moquetza ce tecpatl: inin ce tecpatl, in jquac tlacemilhujtiltiaia, vncan qujtonaltiaia, ytonalpan catca in Vitzilopuchtli, ioan in camaxtle, vexotzinca inteouh, injc mjtoa: qujtonaltiaia, cenca quimaviztiliaia, in vncan ieupan icalpulco in jtocaiocan catca tlacatecco, vncan pieloia in jxiptla in jxqujch itlatquj, much ixpan qujtequjliaia, qujtotonjaia, qujtlenamaqujliaia qujtlacotonjliaia, in moteneoa quetzalquemjtl, xiuhtotoquemjtl, tlauhquecholquemjtl, tozquemjtl, vitzitzilquemjtl, auh ça qujtoqujlia, qujtzacuja, in aocmo cenca tlaçoivitl, in iuhquj aztaquemjtl, tzanaquemjtl: muchi nononqua qujtecaia, qujtlatlamantilia, qujcuecuentilia, qujvivipana. Er[a].

And all these precious capes, when they spread them out, remained there a day. By doing this, it was said, they sunned them for Uitzilopochtli. And 782 there offerings were made; there they laid out all the gifts, called fast foods. And all the good, prepared

auh much ie in tlaçotilmatli ipan qujtecaia, vncan oemjlhujtia: iehoatl injc mjtoa qujtlatotonjlia in Vitzilopuchtli, ioan vncan tlamanaloia, vncan qujtecaia in jxqujch ventli, in moteneoa tlacatlaqualli: ioan in jxqujch iectli, in tlachichioalli tlaqualli, in

1. Qujtequjliaia literally could mean "they behaded quail for him."

2. Corresponding Spanish text: "uno se llamaua quetzal-quemjtl, que quiere decir: capa de quetzales verdes, y resplandeciente: otro se llamaua cichitzquemjtl, que quiere decir: capa de plumas azules, y resplandecientes: otro se llamaua tozquemjtl, que quiere decir: capa de plumas amarillas, y resplandecientes: otro se llamaua vitzitzil-quemjtl, que quiere decir: capa hecha de plumas resplandecientes de colores."

3. Cf. Seler, op. cit., p. 233. In Ibid., p. 160, n. 2, it is jacdaw.

●762 foods came forth from the palace; and from the houses in the commoners' localities they [also] emerged and came forth.

But only for a little while it was, remained, and rested there. Then the old men of the temple district [of Uitzilopochtli] removed, continued to take and transport, divided, and distributed, what pertained to them. They removed it to a number of places. They consumed all. No one remained alone. Everyone came to it: the devout of the place, those who had fasted for a year; those who had danced and fasted for Uitzilopochtli.

[824] And Moctezuma then offered all manner of precious flowers [before the image] — varied flowers which were sweet-smelling and fragrant: magnolia,[4] maize flowers,[5] cacao flowers,[6] popcorn flowers,[7] and garlands of maize ears,[8] which grew everywhere; basket flowers,[9] raven flowers;[10] yellow and blue tobacco flowers;[11] milky corn silk flowers;[12] and all manner of precious flowers, prepared,—well-formed, well-arranged, made as shields of flowers, circular, radiating, and spreading; and the pleasant-smelling ones. It seemed as if the fragrance, the perfume, spread and blanketed his temple.

And so they burned [tubes of] tobacco — only in bundles. First they bound them about the middle. As they burned them, they filled [the area] before [the image].[13] It was as if the smoke arose, spread a cloud, extended, came to settle, and lay billowing.

782 274 Likewise it was said at the time of the day sign One Flint Knife, that the wine-makers showed special concern. At that time they cut and bored tlatocan calquiçnia: ioan in çan calla, mocxualpĩ calteoia, calquiçnia:

auh çan achiton cá, in vncan vmanj, vncan onoc, vncan onmotecq: niman ic quijquanja çan ic concujtimanj, ic conjquanjtimanj, intech povi in calpulveuetque, quimoxcelhuja, quimomamaca, quecizquican quimjcuanjlia, vntetlanj, ainc izcauj, muchi tlacatl itech aci, in vncan tlamaceuhque, in moccxiuhçauhque, in jtech mjtotinemj, in quimeçaujlia Vitzilopuchtli:

auh in Motecuçoma in jxquich tlaçonnchitl, in nepapan xochitl, in velic, in aviiac vncan quimana in iolloxochitl, in eloxochitl, in cacaoxochitl, in izquixochitl, ioan cacaoacincozcatl, in izquican icac, oacalxochitl, in cacaloxochitl, in coztic iiexochitl, auh in xoxouhquj iiexochitl, in xiloxochitl, ioan in ic izquich nepapan tlaçoxochitl, in tlamantli, in vellalilli, in tlatecujcujlolli, in mjmati, in chimalxochitl, in ololiuhquj, in momoiaca, in xexelivi: auh in çaçan tlatlanecutli, iuhquin tlaujiaxtoc, tlauceuelixtoc, tlaujiaxtimanj, tlauceuelixtimanj, in jxcupan:

auh injc quijtlatiaia iietl, çan ce cemmecatl çan iuh cujtlalpitiuh in quijtlatiaia, contenteuj ixpan, iuhquin puchteoatoc, ainvitl mantoc, ainvitl quixtoc, iuhquin mononomolocatoc.

No ioan mjtoa in jpan in tonalli ce tecpatl, cenca vncan tlatemachiaia in tlachicque, vncan quijtlapanaia in inmeuh, ic quijtemachiaia injc cenca meiac,

---

4. Iolloxochitl (Talauma mexicana D. C. Don) — Mexican magnolia, a flower reserved solely for the nobility. — Emily Walcott Emmart: The Badianus Manuscript (Codex Barberini, Latin, 241), Vatican Library. An Aztec Herbal of 1552 (Baltimore: The Johns Hopkins Press, 1940), p. 310.

5. Elosochitl: probably Compositae (?) (Emmart, op. cit., p. 275). In Francisco Hernández, Historia de las plantas de Nueva España (México: Imprenta Universitaria, 1942), Vol. III, p. 841, it is classed with yeyochitl. Santamaría, op. cit., Vol. I, p. 598, identifies it as Magnolia dealbata Zucc.; also called yelosochitl.

6. Cacaoxochitl: Theobroma cacao L. (a cacao plant). — Emmart, op. cit., p. 311. Hernández, op. cit., Vol. III, p. 921, calls it Quauxilhas fructifera (Llave) Standl. See also Santamaría, op. cit., Vol. I, p. 298.

7. Izquixochitl: Bourreria huanita (La Llave & Lex.) Hemsl. (Emmart, op. cit., p. 275).

8. Cf. Santamaría, op. cit., Vol. I, p. 249.

9. Uauhxochitl: Xanthosoma sp. (Emmart, op. cit., p. 234); Phyllodendron affine, Hemsl., "Una planta cultivada, de las aráceas, cultivada en [México]" (Santamaría, op. cit., Vol. II, p. 102).

10. Cuervoxochitl: Plumeria rubra L., attributed of important properties, according to Sahagún (Emmart, op. cit., p. 308). Hernández, op. cit., Vol. III, p. 806, says Plumeria acutifolia Poir, "flor de cuervo."

11. Yeyochitl: flor de tabaco (no botanical name given); "El Yeyochitl, que algunos llaman chiuchitl o cua flor de chuí, y otros cuauhxipinchitl o yeyochitl amarillo" (Hernández, op. cit., Vol. III, pp. 841, 842).

12. Xilonochitl: Bombax ellipticum H. B. K., according to Hernández, op. cit., Vol. II, p. 455, and Paul C. Standley, "Trees and Shrubs of Mexico," Contributions from the United States National Herbarium (Washington: Government Printing Office, 1923), pp. 793-794; Calliandra emarginata (Kunth) McBride, according to Emmart, op. cit., p. 301.

13. Real Palacio MS: contenimiento.

their maguey plants;[14] so they showed special concern in order that their maguey plants would flow much and produce well. And so they offered gifts in the temple of Uitzilopochtli. There they offered their wine, which had been newly brewed, called aiztli; they went pouring it into bowls on which rested sucking tubes. And the ones who there partook of it were the already aged, called quauhcuetzaqui, who already had the privilege of drinking wine. These drank; they continued drinking with the sucking tubes.

ontlaiez inmcuh: auh injc tlauenchioaia, in jteupan Vitzilopuchtli: vmpa conmanaia in jmoc, in iancujcan tlachictli, in moteneoa vitztli, acatecomac, contecatimanj: vncan ipan icaca ce piaztli: auh in aqujn vmpa vntlatlapaloaia, in ie chicaoaque, in moteneoa quāveuetque: in ie inqemac tlaoanaliztli, iehoan conja, ic conjtimanj in piaztli:

782 274 [888]

And he who was born on this [day], One Flint Knife, they said, would be valiant, a chieftain; he would gain honor and riches.

auh in aqujn ipan tlacatia, y, ce tecpatl qujtoaia, oqujchtiz tiacauhtiz, maujztiz, mocujltonoz:

787x

Likewise, if it were a woman, she would be of merit, gifted, and deserving. Her labors would be good; there would be wherewith to eat and drink; there would be sustenance. She would become rich and wealthy; courageous, strong, reckoned as a man, and hardy. She would give honor as a man. And, [among] all her gifts, she would speak well, be eloquent, give good counsel, and arrange her conversation and manner of speaking well in her home. She would be observant, of good memory, discreet, etc.

no iuhquj intla çioatl, maçeoale iez, nemaque, ilhujle, vel itla mailiz, oniez in qujquaz, in qujz, vnca qujquanj iez, mocujltonoz, motlacamatiz, ioan oqujchnacaio, chicaoac, oqujchtlamatiz, moqujchpoaz, oqujcheoaz, teoqujchtlamachti iez: ioan much inemac vellatoz, motlatoljmatiz, yel tenonotzaz, vellatoltecpanaz, yiciciau, icacatian, in qujtlaliz, tlatolli, vel ixc, iollo, mozcalianj iez. Er[a].

And Two Rain, and Three Flower, Four Crocodile, Five Wind, Six House, Seven Lizard, Eight Serpent, Nine Death, Ten Deer, Eleven Rabbit, Twelve Water, Thirteen Dog—all, in truth all, were as hath been told in their account. All went to be considered and were observed as of, and they followed, the same pattern. They were only one, regarded as only one in their relation and account, as they went in order there day by day, each one of the days in its proper place, so proceeding in order, one, two, three, henceforth[15] until they reached and completed the end of the day count, thirteen.

Auh in vme qujavitl, ioan ei xochitl, nauj cipactli, macujlli ēcatl, chiquacen calli, chicome cuetzpalin, chicuei coatl, chicunavi mjquiztli, matlactli maçatl, matlactloce tochtli, matlactli omome atl, matlactlomej itzcujntli: in jxquich in çan moch iuhquj in jtlatollo omjto: çā much umpa itztiuh, çan much vmpa tlachia, çan much vmpa tlaujca, cā ie centetl, çan centetitiuh in jtlatlatollo, in jtoloca, in iuh tecpantiuh, in vncan tlaceceujlhujtlitiuj, cecenteme tonaltin, in jnicician ic tecpantiuj in ce, in vme, in ei: ixquichica, injc onacitiuh, injc ontlatlantiuh tonaltzontli matlatlactlomeci.

14. Corresponding Spanish text: "Los sabios de los magueyes, o sabiamente que cuidan el pulque, sacaban, y agujereaban los magueyes: para que manasen sujo en este efecto: tenjan que por agujeriarlos en este efecto, se metian canutos."

15. Bernardino Rendalli: Glossarium Latino-Latinum et Latino-Americanum (Mediolani: Valentinus et Mors, 1889), has exponebat and hinc (henceforth, from here on), for inpédicion.

[p. 80 is blank]

X 787 Twenty-fifth Chapter, which telleth of the fourteenth sign, called One Dog. This, it was said, was 771, a good day sign; and it was claimed that it was the 666 day of Xiuhtecutli, whom they called Tlalxictentica.[1] They observed a very great feast day for him. And at this time the rulers were elected.[2]

Injc cempoalli on macujlli capitulo: itechpa tlatoa, injc matlactetl onnavi machiotl, in jtoca ce itzcujntli: inin qujlmach qualli tonalli, ioan qujl itonal catca, in xiuhtecutli: in qujtoaia Tlalxictentica, cenca vei ilhujtl qujchioaia: ican ypan motlatocaaltiaia in tlatoque.

X 787 —then set in the one named One Dog. This, they 776 said, was a good day sign. At this time, they dedi- 778 cated the day to [the god of] fire, called Xiuhtecutli. They formed his image there in his temple. There 782 they made offerings to it; before it they decapitated quail and spread incense. They adorned and bedight it in all manner of paper array. The fabrication [of the paper articles] was in charge of those called paper-cutters and designers. They provided it with feathers; they scattered feathers over it; provided it with various kinds of costly feathers and dispersed a variety of them over it. And they provided [the paper array] with green stones. They called the [ceremony] nexttlaualli. All the food [and array of] Tlalxictentica[3] they burned before him.

Niman oalmoquetza in jtoca, ce itzcujntli: inin qujtoaia qualli tonalli, vncan qujtonaltiaia in tletl, in jtoca Xiuhtecutli: qujtlaliaia yziptla in vmpa itenpan: vncan qujtlamanjliaia, ixpan tlacotona, copaltema, qujchichioa, qujcecencaoa, in jxqujch amatlatqujtl, inmac iecauja in moteneoaia amatecque, amatlamatque, qujviiotiaia, qujvitzetzeloa, qujnepapaniviiiotia, tlaçoiujtica qujnepapanivitzetzeloa: ioan qujchachalchiuhiotia, quitocaiotia nextlaoalli, itlaqual in tlalxictentica, much ixpan qujtlatiaia:

782 And everywhere, in each family which was rich and had become wealthy, those of Pochtlan and Amantlan,[4] they made [the goo] very important. Thus they did him honor: food and drink were provided. There was rejoicing. There were banquets. Very early in the morning, when it was still very early dawn, they burned the paper array. As was said, thus they fed the fire. Incense went with and accompanied [the offerings]. One basket at a time, or two baskets at a time, they cast into the fire clean, white incense. And they decapitated quail. It seemed that before the hearth, they kept fluttering and beating their wings. Their blood was scattered by their fluttering, so that the earth before the hearth was struck in various places. They spattered and poured forth their blood. Likewise they first made a libation of wine before the hearth, and later at each of the four corners of the hearth they made libations.

auh in noviian cecencalpan, in netlacamachoia, in necujltonoloia, in puchtlan, in amantlan: cenca qujveichioaia injc qujmaviztiliaia, tlatlaqualoia, aatlicoaia, netlacamacho, necoanotzalo, oc ueca ioac, cenca oc tlaujzcalpan in qujtlatiaia amatl, in mjtoa ic qujtlamaca tletl, qujvicatiuh, qujtocatiuh in copalli, ceoen petlacalli, ovn petlacalli in contepeoa tleco, chipaoac, iztac copalli: ioan qujncotona çoçoltin, iuhqujn tlecujlixquac tlãpatlaca, tlapapatlaca, ieço nemamacaoca, tlalli ic neujujteco tlecujlixquac qujtzitzicujtza, qujnonoquja in jmezço: ioan no achto tlecujlixquac qujtotoiaoa in vetli: auh çatepan tlecujlnacazco nauhcampaixti qujtotoiaoa:

1. Corresponding Spanish text: "Este decian: ser el signo del dios del fuego, llamado Xiuhtecutli, o tlalxictentica."
2. Ibid.: "los señores, y principales, que eran elegidos, para regir la republica: hacian la fiesta de su eleccion."
3. Ibid.: "entre de la cuchara, quemaban las ofrendas de papel, y papel, decian: que con esto comia, dando de comer al fuego."
4. Mendoza, op. cit., pp. 50, 64, 68: calpolli of merchants, feather workers, etc.

782 And the commoners, the poor, only threw coarse incense into the fire. And finally the extremely poor, the poverty-stricken, the needy, the discontented, who came last, only cast aromatic herbs in the fire, thus making the offering in their own fires.[5]

642 And it is said that the lords and rulers were installed then, on the day One Dog; and there was a 643 celebration, the royal ceremony, the rites of election,[6] on Four Reed. At that time the lords over the cities
431 came from everywhere. There was feasting, by which it was made known that the new ruler had been installed. Many came in this manner: as their salutations, their gifts of greeting, they bore and carried wrist bands, capes, flowers, tobacco. For whatsoever their cities were famous and renowned, from wherever and howsoever far they traveled, they offered gifts and paid tribute to the ruler, and greeted him and paid him great respect. Their elders, the lords, the orators, the able speakers, who were seated, returned like for like and answered them for him.

431 And in the same manner was it done and responded. Thus was returned their gratitude, in order to reciprocate, to acknowledge, to welcome, and to provide a repast. Flowers, tobacco, drink, food, and confections were presented. But the capes came in bundles. They were only in bales. Only by the bundle were they given and presented. Each brought out first the precious capes, appropriate to them, the ones to which they were entitled, made and completed in [the ruler's] house. Thereupon they gave them their choice and pleased them. What each thought best, or sought out, or what was fitting for him, or suited his liking, or his rank, they gave the lords over the cities; [the ruler's] servants thus honored and gave preference to each [of the lords] individually.

[482] The gifts hurried, rushed, hastened, and sped borne on their backs, carried and transported by the tump lines. And the leavings, worth nothing, of no value, auh in çan maceoaltzintli, in motolinja, çan copalxalli in tleco qujtema: auh in ça iequenc qujzacuja, in molhujicnotlacatl, tequjicnotlacatl, in lavia, in auellamati: çan ic in jauhtli tleco qujtepeoa, ic quj-tlamaca in jxcoian itleuh:

ioan mjtos in tlatoque vncan motecuthaliaia motlatocatlaliaia, in jpan in ce itzcujntli: auh ipan motequaltiaia, motecpacaia, motlatocapacaia, in nauhacatl, iquac noviian oalhuja, in altepetl ipan tlatoque, coanotzalo, ic machitilo in iancujcan tlatoanj onotlali, mjiec injc oalhuj, in jntetlapaloaia, in jntetlapalol qujoalcuj, qujoalitquj in macuextli, in tilmatli, in xuchitl, in jetl, in çaço tlein imamaujzço, yximachoca imaltepeuh, in campa, in quexqujchca oaleoa, qujtlamamaca, qujtlatequjlia in tlatoanj, ioan quj-tlapaloa, qujtlatlauhtia, oalmotlalia in jntechiuhcaoan, in tecutlatoque, in vellatoa, in tlatolmati, qujtlacuepilia, qujntlananqujlilia:

auh çan [illegible]uj in chicoalo, in namjco, çan ic mocuepa in jntetlaçotlaliz, injc motlaneuj, injc mjximati, injc momakcochoa, injc mocochioa, qujmomamaca in xuchitl, in jetl, in atl, in tlaqualli, in tlaqualtectli: auh in tilmatli çan qujqujmjliuhtiuh, çan quj-qujmjlietiuh, çan qujmjltica in qujmomaca, in, in qujmotlauhtia, qujiaiacana in tlaçotilmatli, in tetech-tilmatli, in vel intonal icalitic ochioaloc, otlatlan, iquac impan qujnpepena, inpan qujnuelitta, qujntla-tlattilia, qujmjipantia, qujnpapantia, qujnpapanjtia, in quenamj qujnmacazque altepetl ipan tlatoque: injc nononqua qujnmaujztilia, qujnvecapano, intetla-ujcalhoan.

tlaliuj, tlãtlaliuj, tlãtlalhujtiuj, tlãtlalioca, in tla-mamalo, in tlãtlatqujoa, quxquailpitiuh in netlauh-tilli: auh in netlacaujlli, ãtle tlaçotli, ãtlatlaçotli, tla-

5. Corresponding Spanish text: "Los pobres echavan un enciensos, que llaman copalxalli, en su mismo hogar: y los muy pobres, echavan unas yerbas olorosas, que se llama yauhtli en sus mismos hogares." — In Sahagún (Garibay ed.), Vol. IV, p. 371, it is Tagetes lucida; see also J. E. S. Thompson: Mexico Before Cortez, (New York: Charles Scribner's Sons, 1944), p. 185.

Emmart, op. cit., pp. 239-240, notes that Louis Reiffner, in Le médecine chez les mexicains précolombiens (Paris: Jouve and Boyer, 1900), p. 95, identifies yauhtli as a species of chenopodium; A. Guerra, in Notes sur la médecine et la botanique des anciens mexicains (Rome: Imprimerie Polyglotte Vaticane, 1909), p. 54, says it is definitely narcotic. Jacinto de la Serna's "Manual de ministros para conocer y extirpar los idolatrías de los indios," in Jacinto de la Serna, Pedro Ponce, and Fr. Pedro de Feria: Tratado de las idolatrías, supersticiones, dioses, ritos, hechicerías y otras costumbres gentílicas de las razas aborígenes de México (México: Ediciones Fuente de Cultura, n.d.), p. 249, identifies yauhtli as perfume, which, according to Santamaría, op. cit., Vol. III, p. 290, is "Nombre vulgar que en el norte del país, en México, se da a una planta parecida al compuesto (Tagetes minuta), cuyas hojas huelen a anís."

6. Cf. Anderson and Dibble, op. cit., Book VIII, "Kings and Lords," p. 64. Sahagún (Garibay ed.), VIII, 18, 14: "la fiesta de su elección, que llaman mochanaqua."

X 787 Thirtieth Chapter, which telleth of the seventeenth sign, called One Water. It was said to be an evil day sign. And it was said of those then born that they rejoiced a little only at the beginning of their lives, and that they ended in evil. And it was said always to be evil when they died. And it was said to be the day sign of Chalchiuitl icue, whose feast day the water folk observed.

Injc cempoalli on matlactli capitulo: itechpa tlatoa, inic cattolli omome machiotl, in jtoca ce atl: qujlmach amo qualli tonalli: auh qujl in aqujque vncan tlacatia, çan ipeuhian in jnnemjliz achi poquja: auh injc tzonqujçaia amo qualli, auh qujlmach mochipa, amo qualli, injc mjquja: auh qujl itonal catca in chalchiujtl icue, qujlhujqujxtiliaia in atlaca.

One Water. This One Water, they said, was also evil. And they said it was quite varied, of different qualities, all good or all bad.

Ce atl: injn ce atl: qujtoa, amono qualli: yoan qujtoa, çan chictlapantli, chictlapantica: izquich qualli, izquich amo qualli:

● 782 At this time they made offerings to the one named Chalchiuhtli icue, who represented the water. Especially did the sellers of water, the owners of boats — those who transported water with boats — and those who launched boats, made offerings to her. These formed her image; they set in place the framework [for her image] at her temple, in her tribal district.

vncan qujtonaltiaia: in jtoca chalchiuhtli ycue, in jpan mjxeoaia atl: oc cenca ichoan qujtlamanjliaia, yn anamacaque, in acaleque, acaltica atlacuj, yoan acalquetzque: ichoan qujxiptlatiaia qujtlaliaia ycoloio in jteupan, in jcalpulco.

X 787 And thus was it said to be diverse [in fortune], one which could not attain and carry with it very much good. That is to say, of the one then born, very few resulted great and fortunate at this time. For according to his deserts, his day sign, he was only all evil, completely surrounded by vice. And in evil he would go; in it he would die. Perchance somewhere he would be stoned — he would be felled by a stone; or else he would be drowned — he would perish in the water.

Auh injc mjtoa çan chictlapanquj yn amo vel macitica motquitica ic qualli, quitoznequi in aqujn ipan tlacatia, çan vej quiçaia cenca çan aca in vncan qujçaia tlacnopilhujani, ca in juh ca vel inmaceoal, itonal çan muchi ꞗqualli in cololotica motquitica teuhtli, tlaçolli, auh amo qualli ynjc iaz, inic miquiz, aço çan cana tetepacholoz, tetica uetziz, anoço, atocoz, atlan mjqujz,

But even if, on the other hand,[1] he merited some reward, only for a miserable moment, only for a short time, a very short time, and frequently for a brief space, a moment, for a time only, would he partake of his riches.[2] So of him were said the words of the talkative inhabitants, that in the world there are bad days. Sometimes one succeeded; sometimes one failed; if, in his childhood, he should suffer auh intla ça nóço itla imaceoaltiz, çã conepol, çan cuel achic, can cuecuel achic, çan achica, çan achitonca, çã achitzinca, çan izquich caujtl in, in jxpan onqujçaz in jnecujltonol, ic ipã mjtoa, in jntlatol tlaticpac tlatlatoanj, çan tatacapitz uel in tlaticpac, quẽman veli, quenman aveli, intla ipiltian motoliniz, qujn itzonco in achi moiollaliz:

1. Inde go mayo: Bancroft, op. cit., has cui (dishonoured, yet) or quantosis (as you will) for indeed, and mayor (and not) for mayo.

2. Corresponding Spanish text: "y si alguna buena dexa encuentra, tendrá poco tiempo, por ventura el mayor tiempo, se ha conducido la ventura."

Thirty-third Chapter, in which is mentioned the nineteenth sign, named One Eagle. It was said to be an evil day sign, and he who was then born was beautiful, and brave, daring, fearing nothing and no one. And it was said that the women also were daring, of ill fame, of evil tongue, shameless, and immodest. And it was said that at this time descended the lower Goddesses; and they did evil to the small children. Hence they did not let them go out of doors, nor did they bathe them at that time.[1]

—One Eagle. This One Eagle, it was said, was an evil day sign. Also at that time descended those named the "Goddesses." It was said, and it was so stated, that they were only the youngest ones, only the dolls,[2] who then came down. Nevertheless, [the people] took great fright, because it was said that they were very harmful, furious, hateful, hostile, and merciless. As they could not be resisted, so they made sport of people, as is told in various places and mentioned here and now. None of the small children might go naked. They were carefully watched, because at this time they might be violently possessed, their lips twisted and withered, their eyes crossed and cloudy, their noses crushed, etc.

And therefore they paid them great honor there in the places where they were awaited, there in the different Goddesses' temples. In each neighborhood, in the house clusters and their vicinities, reeds were strewn and scattered; sand was sprinkled on the roads and at street crossings and crossroads—places where roads came together.

One who made a vow to them that he would cover and wrap them, adorned their offerings, the paper banners of the Goddesses painted and spattered with liquid rubber. There he covered the different images of the Goddesses, as they were arranged in order. It was at midnight, just at the dividing of the night, that the making of offerings

Injc cẽpoalli ẽnaxtlacxtli vnnay capitulo: vncan motenecoa ynjc caxtolli vnnavi machiotl, yn itoca cẽ quauhtli: quil amo qualli in tonalli, auh in ipan tlacatia, mochachamacoanj, yoã chicaoque, aiac ixco tlachia, atle ypan tlatta, atle ypã teitta: yoan quil in cihoa, amo tle ypã tlachia, yoan cenca tlavilquixtianj, tentlaveliloque, iaquauhti, amo pinacoanj: auh quil yn iquac, cohtemoia yn aquique tepitoton cihoatetzu: auh quintlauelilaia in conetotonti, yc amo quinoalquixtiaia in qujiacac, amono quimaltiaia yn iquac. 787x

In cẽ quauhtli: ynjn cẽ quauhtli, mjtoa amo qualli tonalli, no vncan temoia, in qujntocaiotia cihoatetzu, quilmach yn juh onmjtoa çã xoxocoio, çã teiccacan yn vncan temoia, iece cenca vellamauhtiaia, ypampa quil cenca ihjioque, tlaveleque, tetlavelique, amo elleleuhque, amo icnoaque, njman aixnamjquixti, ynjc teca mavltianj, yn juh onmjto quenquican: yn juh conitoa in iquac hin, njmã aiac vel petlauhtinenca in pipiltotõti, cenca malhujloia, ypampa cenca tlaquauh vncan tetech quineneia, tennecujlooaia, tempatzioonia, ixnecujlooaia, ixcatzioonia, iacanecujlooia. etc. 787x 776 855

auh injc cenca qujnmaviztilizia in vncan inchielpã yn iaquicã cicihoatecucalco, in tlatlaxilacalpã, tetlatlaxilacalloc, tetlatlaxilacaltian, tlaoltzetzelolo, tlatoltzetzelolo, tlaixtlaujlo yn vtlica, yn vmaxac, yn inepanivjian vtli. 776 782

Jn aquin invicpa monetoltia: in qujnquentiz qujntlaquentiz, qujnchichivilia yn jnacatlhoal, in cihoatetuitl amatl, tlacolxaoalli, colpeiaoac, vmpa qujmoquequentia yn iaquiteme, tecpantoque, yn iaxiptlaoan iooalnepantla, çan jc onxellivi, iooalli im pena tlamanililo, auh iquac mocaoa yic nepantla tonatiuh, yic tlaqualixpã auh in aquin amo qujntlaquentia, çan [778]

1. Corresponding Spanish text: "no les decaxan salir de casa, ni bañarse, el tiempo que eran dignas respetadas."
2. Tlaxcalteca: see "Matrimonio en 3 adolescencias," p. 212.

776 begun. And when it ceased, it was midday, when it 782 was already time to eat. And he who did not cover them only offered and arranged a little drink and food, or white incense, or coarse incense. The youths, the young unmarried warriors, the masters of the youths,[2] the guardians there at the Goddesses' temple, who watched and kept vigil for one night, kept the food as a gift, took and appropriated it to themselves.

And when silence fell, when at each place there was a cessation of offerings, then forthwith began the libations. Only in each person's house, each person's house, was it done. No more did one peactise restraint: no more were there inhibitions. They made the old men and the old women drink and poured out the wine for them. So there were tearful greetings of one another and animation of one another, etc.

X 787 And it was said that he who was then born, was perverted. If a man, he became a chieftain, a man-at-arms, debauched, evil, and daring. Only his exploits, his chieftainship, did he relate and make public. He considered that no one rejected him. He pretended to excel others. He respected no one. He wished others destroyed. He despised others. He became presumptuous. And then, being of ungov-ernable tongue, he interrupted people and belittled the word of others, and scoffed and grumbled at them. He rose up in rage; he constantly shook his head; he interfered in others' affairs; he pretended to know all; he praised himself. He pretended that he spoke well and truthfully. He would not be outdone in talk. He was vainglorious; he was a flatterer.
He pretended to be virtuous, but to see no virtue in others. He belittled others' words. He contradicted, denied, and twisted his own words. All his works, all corresponded to him; he merited all; all indeed became him: vices, drunkenness,[4] and corruption.
And sometimes, if he became neglectful, he was captured and imprisoned, or died in battle, etc.

It was just the same if it were a woman. She was truly of evil tongue, vile-mouthed, inhumane in speech—big-mouthed, of biting words. Her great joy, her great pleasure, was evil speaking. She was one who vituperated others, who insulted and affronted them. Like a dog, [she let] no one head her ꞁtzintli, tlaqualtzintli in ohuanaia, in cuauhpanaia, anoço iztac ocpalli, ocpaltzalli, in tlaqualli ichtli quimmovenqia quimocaillia, quimocochoia in telpopuchti, telpochtlapojoque, yoan tiziachcaol, in vmpa tlapiztoque cihuatecaleco, in vmpa cricoal oyntoçoque, otoçoque,

auh yn ocactivetz, yn onecacaoalac tlamanalo, ni-man ic peoa I tlatlatoaiviliilo, ça techachan, ça tecacalitic yn muchica, aocac ômmanaci, aocmo onnecan-macho, ichollti quintlacoaillia, quintlatoaiviliia yn ve-vetque, yn ilamatque, ic mochochoquintlapalos, mellaquaxa et[a].

Auh mjtoa yn aquin vncan tlacati, atlacacemelle, intla oquichtli, tlacatlti, oquichti, ôquen tlatia, ôquen tlatlatta, aiac ixco tlachia, ça jioquichio, yti-cauhio in cuepopoa, yn jxco quimana, niman aiac quimotlaçaltoca, motepanavilitoca, aiac de cuepoa, mozpololtoca, atle ontepoa, ceuca immoquintia, yoi nimi ticmelacati, vel tepôpoztoca, tepôpeztoca, tetitlivia, tepiquinatza, mitteoa, moquequecuecuechoa, motlilmamachiztia, motlatlamachitoca, motlatlaniztitia, moveellatoltoca, moiecticatoltoca, ômotipanavillanj, momamachotla, temômachotla, moiêctocoa, ticiectoca, mitpatztlatoa, motlencuepa, tlatlanal-cuepa, tlatlanmalacachoa, much ychivil, much quimopanjtia, much quimolhujktia, much vel itech muchioa in tlatlanelilocaiotl, yn chi injnciliztli, yn avilquincaiotl, auh in quêman intla otlachiviti vico, calaquijlo, iconijquj et[a].

Çan ic no inhoqui intla cihoatl, vel tentlavelilac, cuauhtlavelilac, alacatlacatl, temazacal, cuauhtlaccoa, ceuca ipac, ceuca ivelmach yn tentlanelilocaiotl, vel tepapacuj, tenvijnacuj, tepacoçtlacuj, inhquijmma chichi aiac vel quijacolinia, quijacopeionia, yztlaca itech ocuaci, nimi quintlacaviniquiça, ytech mo-

3. Corresponding Spanish text: "los mejores, de aquellos ministros."—Cf. Anderson and Dibble, op. cit., Book II, "The Ceremonies," p. 142.
4. Mitchell-Hedges in the Leaf Pictorial MS.

X 787 825 484

who had escaped from their hands, who pilfered, plundered, and robbed, would now wrest goods from their hands, and plunder, strip, sack, and rob them. Or somewhere, some of them might now faint and collapse, to be cast aside. Or they would be eaten by wild animals — the fare of brutes; they would become the game of wild beasts. Or somewhere they would be encircled by, and encounter, war.

tzinque, ie cuvetzinque, ie ommomaintzinque: noce, ie omtequanoalanque, teqolitlaquaikin, tequanjme intlaquaihoan, ie ommochioanque: aoeçe, cana inpan ie oalmotzaquez isoiotl: ie commomanjctinque.

X 787 484

When this was so, he who was leader, who went commissioned leader, who proceeded as principal there along the road, then began to encourage them. He greeted his younger brethren with tears, his charges who were being taught. Along the way he instructed them and said to them:

In jquac yn, in aquin tachcauh, in tachcauhchiuhtiuh, in tachcauh icatiuh vtlipan, vncan peoa, in quimelaquaoa, in quinchoquitlapaloa, inticcaoan, itlahcapavalvan: in vtli ipan quimitlamachtia, quimjlvia.

"Be of good cheer, O my sons, O my younger brothers. Of what profit is it that we are afflicted? Let no one be sad or heavy of heart. In truth for this we came: we came to die; so went our hearts heavy and foreboding. Thus we went from and left our homes and the houses of others:[4] our aunts, our uncles, our nephews, our elder sisters. For this reason they shed tears for us; they poured out upon us their weeping, their sorrow, that perhaps here, somewhere, on the desert, on the plains, in the gorge, in the forest, in various places will lie scattered our bones and our hair; in many places our blood, our redness, will spread, poured out and slippery. For in truth this hath been our reward. Let no one feel womanish in heart. Yield completely to death; pray to our lord. Let none think of or brood over [our condition]; for only later shall we know of whatsoever things[5] we may strike against. Then, in the end, we may weep for ourselves.

Ximellaquamacan, nopilhuane, noteiccaoane, quenel tiotolinja: macaiac tlaocuja, nentlamati in jiollo, ca nel ic tioallaque, in timjequjco: ca iuh oalietia, iuh quioalmattia in tiolollo: injc tiocalakanjque, tiquallaloique in tonca, in teca: in tauj, in totla, in tomach, in tuuehtiuh: ca ic injc techchoquijli, injc topan quipino, in ichoquja, in jtlaocul: aço cana nican, itlahoatl, atlauhtli itic, quavitl itic, cecemmacoz in tuenjo: in tozzoa, nonoqujuhoa, aalacatoz in tezço, in totlapallo: ca nel otomaccoaltic, ma caiac quicioitlamachti in ijollo: xicmotlaquammacacan in mjquiztli, xicmoclatlauhtilican in totecujo: ma caiac tic itic quinemjti, quilnamjquj: ma ça quin jc ticmatizque, in çaço tic itech titomotzonativi: vncan ic ommaian, tontechochoquilinque:

"For truly, this is how we come giving honor[6] and luster to our lords, the merchants who lead, raising them to glory and lifting high their heads. Ere now they have gone knowing and marveling at such things. We are not then the first to discover and behold what will befall us. Strengthen your hearts, O my sons!"

ca nel ichoatl injc tiquinteiotico, tiquimjtauhcaietico, tiquijtonaleoaco, tiquinzontecconacocujco intechiuhcaoan, in puchteca, in jiaque: ca ieeppa iuh quimattivi, iuh quimaujçotiuj, camo quin tehoan iancujcan ie tocomettinque, ie tocomjtauque, in tlein topan tlachioaz: ximellaquaoacan, nopilhoane.

X 787 484 ● 782

And if somewhere night fell, they gathered, joined, crowded, and assembled themselves somewhere at the foot of a tree or the opening of a gorge,

Auh istla cana oimpan ioac, cana quauitl izintlan, aaço atlauhcamac, ommololoa, ommocemolaoa, ommoteputhitlalia, momechicoa, quicujtialpia, qui-

4. Probably tonca and teca are to read tocal and tecal. In Bernardino de Sahagún, "Memoriales en 3 columnas," Historia de las cosas de Nueva España (Francisco del Paso y Troncoso, ed.; Madrid: Hiasa y Hijos, 1905), Vol. VII, p. 398, the phrase is yo tonca, yo teca. The corresponding Spanish text reads: "quando partiamos de nuestras casas."

5. "Memoriales en 3 columnas," p. 391, ahora lo pago de, lo que he hecho, literally, lo pago de.

6. In fact, ciz, is to chipahuaqui.

and bound and tied, fastened together, and placed on the ground, all their staves, which represented their god Yiacatecutli. Here, before him, they did penance, bled themselves, cut their ears, and drew straws through them; so they only yielded to whatsoever might befall them. But no one worried or speculated whether it might befall them as the white hooded hawk had foretoded to them.

And perhaps they quite escaped, [or] perchance nothing happened to them who were then terrified when the time of their fright had occurred. If nothing befell them, their hearts were therefore again a little lifted; they raised their heads and revived their spirits; for their fates were so established that fear should no longer be with them.

But the fearful ones, the younger brothers who were not of firm fortune, not of rugged day signs, when they learned of [the omen], went fearing it. No longer were they happy; they talked no more — no longer did they speak aloud; nowhere were their hearts content. Things only worsened as they traveled; they only went engraving on their minds whatever they imagined. No longer with calm, but vainly, did they a little way follow the land; rather, they thought that perchance soon they would somewhere come upon what in truth meant the omen which had occurred and by which they had been frightened.

It hath already been said, nevertheless, that no one knew whether, indeed, it would be verified, or would not be so. For its words were understood, since it spoke in two [ways], to be good and evil.

oncuijtlalpia, quiocmjlpia, quiocmmana in jntopil, in jpan quiaxoaia in intecuh: Yiacatecutli. Vncan inpan tlamacroa, mjço, monacaztequj, tlacoqujxtia, ça quimocemmacatoque, in tlein inpan, ie oenmuchioat: auh aocac ontlamati, aocac itlamatia, intla iuhquj inpan muchioa, in juhquj ic oquinteztauj oactli. 787x 484 782

Auh anoçe çan maçuiça, acaço tle inpan muchioa: in vncan in nemauhtiaia, in jomauizcuijan omochiuhca. Intla catle inpan omochiuh, ic oc ceppa achitzin, oalmoiolizcalia: oalaquetza onmoquaahiouja: ic ommotonallalilia: injc intech oacca maujztli: 787x 484 auh in mauhcatlaz, tenziccaua, in amo tonalchicaoaque, in amo tonallapaliuj: ça ie in quimattiuj, in quimamattiuj: aocmo paquj, aocmo tlatoa, aocmo naoati, aoccan auja in jiollo: ça tlanauhtiuj, in nenemj, ça imjtic tlacujcujiotiuj, in tleinmach quilnamiquj: aiocmo iujian, in oc nen achi quitoca tlalli: ça ie in quimati, aço quin cana in ie commonamjctizque, in tlein vel quitoznequj, intetzauh omuchiuh: injc omotetzauiçque.

Ie omjto, tel aiac quimati, in aço vel neltiz: in acanoçomo, ca itlatol itech mocaquj: injc ome vitz quitoa, qualli ioan amo qualli.

[p. 156 is blank]

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

776 to have been worshiped more extensively, and the clay images made in their honor also continued in unbroken line the tradition of the Middle Culture figurines. Coatlicue (Our Lady of the Serpent Skirt) was the mother of the gods in their stellar aspect but also was honored as the mother of Huitzilopochtli. The measure of her importance may be gauged by [778] the great statue of her in Mexico which is a masterpiece of sacerdotal art and undoubtedly had a temple to itself. Coatlicue was also represented as a mother carrying a child in her arms. In this guise her function as a mother goddess brought her image into almost every home in the valley. Tonantzin (Our Mother), which may have been an aspect of this same goddess or of Cihuacoatl (Snake Woman), had a temple at Tepeyac, now the site of the shrine to the Virgin of Guadalupe, and her cult was transferred to the Virgin by the early missionaries, an act exemplifying their intelligent procedure in evangelizing the Aztecs. A goddess, Tlazolteotl (Eater of Filth), was extensively worshiped and was also synonymously known as the "Mother of the Gods." Primarily an earth-goddess, she, alone of the goddesses, had a moral significance, since in eating refuse she consumed the [783] sins of mankind, leaving them pure. A rite of confession developed in her cult. (See Plates 54–55.)

Standing out from the numerous divinities associated with death were Mictlantecuhtli and Mictlancihuatl,* (Our Lord and Lady of the Region of Death). They wore masks made from human skulls, and their ornaments were either human bones or representations of them. They presided over the northern regions and also ruled the hells below the earth. Theirs was no punitive function, for all who died, save in

*Meek-tlan-se'e-watl.

776 Twelfth Chapter, which telleth of the Goddess of Vice (Tlaçolteotl).[53]

Tlaçolteotl was also called Ixcuina, and also Tlazlquani. As to the name Tlaçolteotl: it was said that it was because her realm was that of evil and perverseness—that is to say, lustful and debauched living. It was said that she ruled and was mistress of luxury and debauchery.

776 551 And as to her name Ixcuina: it was said there were four women—the first named Tiscapan (the elder sister), the second Teicu (the younger sister), the third named Tlaco (the middle sister), the fourth named Xocuzuin (the youngest sister).[54] These four women, it was said, were god-[desses]. These, each separately, were called goddesses of luxury (Tlaçolteotes).

And as for her being called Tlazlquani:[55] it was said it was because one told, one placed before her, all vanities; [783] one told, one opened, before her all [one's] unclean works—however ugly, however grave; avoiding nothing because of shame. One exposed all before her, [and] made one's confession in her presence.

776 It was said: evil and perverseness, debauched living—these Tlaçolteotl offered, inflamed, inspired. And likewise she forgave. At her whim, she removed the corruption; she cleansed; she washed. In her hand lay the [cleansing] green and yellow waters.[56]

● [783] And thus she pardoned; thus, at her whim, she removed the corruption. In her presence confession was made; before Tlaçolteotl the heart was opened; before her one recited, one told one's sins.

793 And her warden[57]—he who saw for her—was a seer,[58]

776 783

Juic matlactli vnume capitulo: ytechpa tlatoa yn tlaçolteotl.

In tlaçolteotl: yuan itoca ixcuina, yuan itoca tlazlquanj. Juic motocaiotia tlaçolteotl, çujl ipampa, çujl ichaotl yiauca, ytlatquj, ynch pouj, in teuhtli, in tlaçulli: in çujçuuecquj, ayiiuemjlizoli, çujl ipan tecui, ypan tlamacati, yn aujiuemjliçqui.

Auh ynjc itoca, ixcuina: çujl nauiui euah, in cioa: ynjc ce ytoca tiscapan, ynjc ome, ytoca teicu, ynjc ey, itoca tlaco: ynjc nauj itoca xocuzuin. Jnjquc hin, nauj tlatin cioa: çujl tetua. Jnjquc hin, cecenca yuauca: tlaçolteotes.

Auh ynjc motocaiotia tlazlquanj: çujl ipampa, imixpã mjtoa, imixpan mopoa, yn jaçujch necquilli: iixpan mjtoa, momelaua, yn jaçujch tlatlellachiuilli: imuaual cenca tenamacuhti, iruaual cenca çujh: ede mopinaviscoua, vel tuchi, iixpan neci, ixpan mjtoa. Neiohmelaçoeliztli.

Çujlmach in tlaçulli, in teuhtli, in çujiuemjliztiol: ichaotl çujtemaca, ic temoda, ic tlaxpixia in tlaçolteotl. Auh çan no ichaotl, çujçepolhuja: ichaotl chico, tlamacac çujujca, çujuca: ichaotl, tepapaca, tehelxia: ichaotl imac manj yn matlalatl, in tzapalatl.

Auh injc çujçepolhuja ynjc chico, tlamacac, çujujca, çujuca: iixpan neiolcujtzilo, iixpan neiolmelaaaia, yn tlaçolteotl, iixpã mopoa, mjtoa, in tetlachioa.

Auh iix, ynacac, ytlacacauh tuchina, in tlapouhçuj, in

---

53. The chapter on Tlaçolteotl is not included in MS Academia de la Historia nor MS Biblioteca del Palacio. Hence it is not among translations in Seler's Einige Kapitel, nor, probably, elsewhere.

54. Cf. Eduard Seler, Tonalamatl of the Aubin Collection, p. 99: "It is the goddess who is by the interpreters called Ixcuinan, 'she of the two faces' or 'of two-colored face,' and Tlaçolteotl, 'Goddess of Dirt,' and is explained as goddess of lust, of sensual love, and as patroness of adulterers. . . . She, this goddess, or these goddesses—for under the designation Ixcuina, she was thought of as in the plural number, and, indeed, as stated by Sahagún in his first book, as four sisters of different age—was the deity who according to this legend, introduced the peculiar kind of sacrifice which was offered to the earth—the throwing to death with arrows." The names of these four sisters were common girls' names. See p. 41.

55. Rather of filth or of ordure (Seler: op. cit., pp. 92, 94). Sahagún's corresponding Spanish is "ensuciadora de cosas sucias."

56. Cf. Eduard Seler, op. cit., p. 57, discussing Chalchihuitlicue and Tlaçolteotl: ". . . the water . . . is not only emblematic of the transitory and evanescence of earthly being, in that it sweeps away all things, but is also the symbol of purification and cleansing; it removes filth, which is sin. Thus speaks the midwife when four days after its birth she subjects the child to a ceremonious washing: 'My son, come unto thy Mother, the Goddess of Water, Chalchihuitlicue. May the disease of the dirt which thou hast of thy father and thy mother'. . . . 'My son, come to thy Mother, thy Father, the Lady Chalchihuitlicue, the Lord Chalchihuitlatonac . . . come the water, the blue (Matlalcue), the yellow, (Tzapalcue), may it wash thee, may it cleanse thee perfectly, may it take from thee the evil which thou hast from the beginning of the world, which clings to thee from thy father, from thy mother.' " Sahagún (Historia general, Vol. II, pp. 191-2), says ". . . *ceremonias con que la partera crebaba a la diosa del agua llamada Chalchihuitlicue y Chalchihuitlatonac, y decía así: 'Señora nuestra Chalchihuitlicue y Chalchihuitlatonac, veinte ha a vuestra presencia esta criatura: renigaos que la restituis.' Dicho esto la partera tomaba el agua echaba sobre ella su remolino, y luego la daba a gustar a la criatura y también la tocaba el pecho con ella, y al calabro de la cabeza, a manera de cruzado se pasó el dios y crismó a los niños, y decía de esta manera: 'Hijo mio muy amado,—y si era varón decía, hijo mio muy amado—, llegaste a vuestra madre y padre la señora Chalchihuitlicue y Chalchihuitlatonac; atended ella, porque ella es la de la lavar a vuestra y en los brazos en este mundo.' Y luego metía en el agua a la criatura, y decía: 'Entre hijo mio—o hija mia—en el agua, que es llama Matlalhue y Tzapalhue; lávese en ella, limpiase el que está en todo lugar, y tenga por bien de apartar de ti todo mal que traiste con tu desde antes del principio del mundo.' " Seler (loc. cit.) establishes a connection between Chalchihuitl icue and Tlaçolteotl. In the fifth week of the Tonalamatl of the Aubin Collection, which is ruled over by Chalchihuitl icue, the water goddess holds the head of Tlaçolteotl in her hand. In the Codex Borbonicus for the corresponding fifth week, a stream of water issues from the throats of the water goddess and in the earrings in the headdress of Tlaçolteotl. These two illustrations mentioned Seler's remarks on the relationship between the two.

57. See Sahagún: Florentine Codex, Lib VI, cap. xiii (text, commentary); also Historia general, Vol. II, p. 249.

58. See Chap. VIII. Seler (Einige Kapitel, p. 5) uses the term Kalenderwahrsager.

the tlapouhqui, wise in reading the sacred almanac which lay in his hand, with the picture [writing], the ink, [and] the colors for painting; the knowledge, the wisdom which hath been entered.[59]

The penitent who would confess first explained to the seer; he said unto him:

"I wish to go to the master, our lord, the savior and protector of all, our lord Tezcatlipoca,[60] in secret. I wish to have this for myself."

The soothsayer said: "Thou hast been given this favor."

He instructed him when he should come; he chose a favorable time. He saw, in his sacred almanac, what day was good, favorable. It was said: he hath chosen the time.

And when the appointed time [came] he[61] bought a new mat, and incense, and wood. [If he was] a highly honored penitent, he made his confession in his own house; the seer was there. Or perchance the penitent went to him.

He swept well the place where the new mat was placed, and a fire was lit. Then the seer cast the incense into the flames. He addressed the fire; he said:

"Mother of the gods, father of the gods, old god, here hath come a man of low estate. He cometh here weeping, sad, anguished. Perhaps he hath sinned; perhaps he hath erred, perhaps he hath lived in filth. He cometh heavy-hearted; he is sorrowful. Master, our lord, protector of all, also take away, pacify, the torment of this man."

Then the seer spoke unto him who would confess; he said unto him:

"Thou hast come toward the god, protector of all, and [into] his presence. Thou hast come to tell him, to deliver thyself of, thy evil atmosphere, thy corruption. Thou hast come to open thy secrets.

"Take care that thou commit no fault or sin. Take off thy clothing; show thy nakedness to the god, protector of all, our lord Tezcatlipoca.

"Perhaps, being a man, thou wilt not see the god; perhaps he will not speak to thee, being a man; [for] he may not be seen nor touched.

"And so, in this manner, thou comest [to the god], uncover thy secrets, tell thy way of life, thy deeds, in whatever way thou art moved, in whatever manner it is, whatever thou hast done, whatever thou hast achieved, whatever thou dost which [is] evil and sinful.

"Overturn, pour forth thy vices, thy wrongdoing; [expose] thy evil odor, thy corruption.

"And let our lord, protector of all, have pity on thee—tlamatinj, yn jmac mani, yn amatli, yn tlacujlolli: in quijpia, yn tilli, yn tlapalli, yn matile, yn piala, yn nonotzale, yn ompjte 776 793 783 yn mojolmelaoaz in tlapilchiuale; achto qujtlacaqujtia in tlapouhqui, qujlhuja.

Ca ynchtzinco ajnaxitimequj, yn tlacatl, yn totecujo, in tloque nauaque: in totecujo, yiualli, yn ehecatl, ypupexia, ypetlacaltzin, ajcnotztilizmequj.

Qujlhuja in tlapouhqui: ocimotlacaelili:

qujnoontia, yn iquja oallaz: qujpepena in tonalli, qujtta, yn jamux, yn jdlacujlel: qujtta, yn iquja qualli tonalli, yn iccoua, in qualcan: mjtua: qujtonalpepenja. 787

Auh yn ie yquac, in ie ynaoztilpan, iancujc petlatl quicua: yoan copalli, yoan quauitl: yn tlamauizti in tlamacuhqui, çan ichan yn moiolmeloa, ie vmpa iauh in tlapouhqui. Auh anoce teujc iauh, in tlamacuhqui:

iancujc petlatl in motoca, vellachpano yn vncan motlalia; yoan tletlalilo: ajmaa copalli contema in tleco in tlapouhqui, qujnoona in tleti; qujlhuja. 788

Totzu yanan, totzu ynta, vetze teutl, ajcan oallatia, in cujtlapilli, yn atlapalli, yn macoualli: ajcan chocatiujtz, tlaocuxtiujtz, motzupoulztiujtz, ancan omalauh, ancan omotepotlanj, ancan oquijaanqc yn vitlallotl, in tocatzoalli, yn çacanjtl; aquj ininlacoa, qujtequjpachoa, Tlacatle, totecujoe, tloquahe nauaquhe, manoço xicmocujli, ma xicmocaquiti, yn jnontlamachilia yn macoualli.

Niman qujnotza, yn moiolmelauhqui, in ichaol tlapouhqui: qujlhuja.

Tlealmovicatia yujctzinco, ilapantzinco, in tloque nauaque; ticmolhujlico, ticmomaqujlico, yn mjiaca, in mopalanca: ticmoclapolhujlico, in motop, immopetlacal, a ma no eppa ieh ajcan timatuiauj, timotepexiuj: ma ispantzinco xinopepetlaoa, xinomamaxauj, in tloque, nauaque, in totecujo, in ioalli, in ehecatl.

A cujx tictlacaittaz in totecujo, a cujx mjtztlacanotzaz: ca ioalli, ca ehecatl.

Auh yaja quen tiujtz, ma xictlapo in motop, in mopetlacal: ma xicpoa in monenjlix, in motlachioal, yvin quenja ticmati, yvin quenja cah: in quenja muchiah, in quenja tax; in quenja ticchiah, in monequal, in monequaujtuc:

xinoquj, xicpetlanj, in maiectica, in maqualtica, in mjiaca in mopalanca.

Auh xinoctlaocuinomochili, yn totecujo, in tloque nauaque,

---

59. Cf. Florentine Codex, loc. cit., and Sahagún, Historia general, loc. cit.

60. Cf. corresponding Spanish text, Sahagún, op. cit., Vol. I, p. 67, and Vol. II, p. 71, gives as meanings of yoalli, ehecatl (1) "espíritu, aire y divinidad"; and (2) "Dios invisible sin tempo . . . impalpable, y forzosamente y omipotente y independiente, por cuya virtud todos viven. . . ." Angel María Garibay K, Llave del náhuatl (Otumba, México: n. p., 1940), p. 113, translates tloque nauaque as "que está cerca y junto"—the one, God in general.

61. Context suggests that pronoun refers to the penitent.

776 783 793 who, stretching forth his arms to thee, embraceth thee and carrieth thee upon his back."

"Be daring; be not timid because of shame; be not backward."

[627] Then the penitent [swore an oath to tell the truth, by] touching earth, and cast incense upon the fire. Thereupon he seated himself before the soothsayer and spoke—for [the seer] was the representative, the deputy, the likeness [of the goddess]:

"Our lord, protector of all, because thou perceivest my evil odor, my vices, I take off my clothing and uncover, in thy presence, my nakedness—[that is,] the things I have taken, the things that I have done. Can these things be hidden and darkened, when they are reflected and clear in thy sight?"

Then he began [the tale of] his sins—whatsoever he had done; as if he were offering a song, proceeding thus, talking, doing it as if he were following a road. Much [in that way] he followed [the tale of] his sins. So he proceeded.

785 776 783 793 And when he ended his words, then had he told all his sins.

Then answered the seer, the warden [of the god]: he said unto him:

"Behold, thou hast spoken to the god; thou hast offered him thy deeds and thy misdeeds.

"And behold, this thou shalt do. When the Cinaspipilti descend, when the feast of the Cinaspipilti or the Izcuiname is celebrated,[62] thou shalt fast four days. Thou shalt starve thy entrails; thou shalt parch thy lips.

"And when it is the day of the feast, at night thou shalt pierce thy tongue with straws and magney spines. With these thou shalt thus repent thy sins. These thou thus payest in blood.

"And thou shalt pass these straws, as many as thou wishest, whether straws or magney spines. And thou shalt pass these straws either through thy ears or through thy tongue.

"And thou shalt thus pass the straws through thy tongue; but take care lest thou do penance only to earn merit. Rather [thou shalt do it] to expiate thy sinful life; thou shalt offer blood for thy sins; [therefore] shalt thou break open thy tongue, inserting [the straw] from in front of thee.

"When thou drawest it through, thou shalt cast it down behind thee, either each one [alone] as thou takest it out, or else thou shalt gather them, binding them together, even four hundred [of them], even eight hundred of the straws, which thou shalt have passed through thy tongue.

"Thus shalt thou cleanse thyself of thy faults and thy sins."

in momapaltitica, y macochetica, in tepotzotica; zimoelapalo, ma timopinoquetz, ma tizticiolo.

Nimã ẽtlalqua in tlamacuhqui, omopaltemo: ajman ixpan motlalia in tlapouhqui: quijhuja, injc teuujti, ynjc tepatiloni, ynjc minipela.

Tonecujoc, tloquahc, nanoquahc: ca tiemocujlia, ca tiemomaquixtia, in ajnca in nopalanca: mjxpantzinco, ajnopeperlaoa, ajnomamazauja: ca omaz, ca cnjcchiuh: cujx ichtaca, cujx tlaiocuian, ca tencac, ca tlavilpan in mjxpantzinco, yn omaz.

Niman compocaltia: in jtlapilchioalix, vel iujn quanja cah, vel yujn quanja quichiuh: yn maca çan cujcatl, cencn çan jvin omoua, cencan yvin conjtoa, yn juh quichiuh, in imaca çan vel, cencan quitocatiuh yn jtlachioal, yn juhuj cencan quitocatiuh.

Auh yn odamjto yn jtlatol, ync muchi quito ytlachioal:

quinamquilia, yn tlapouhqui, yn jxtli, yn nacatli muchioa, in teujujti, in tepatiloni: quijhuja.

O ca tiemomochilia, ca tiemomaquilia, in tloque nauaque, in motlachioal, in momoquavitec.

Auh ynjn, ca inca yn tais, yn tiechioac: yn jquac temoa, yn jquac temo cinaspipilti, anoçe yn jquac ymjlhujuh cinaspipilti, yn jxcujname: nanjlujtl timoçaoaz, timocujtlaxculçaoaz, timomoatzaz.

Auh yn iquac vel jlhujtl, in ie oallanjh, in ioaltica tiçacatlaçaz, titlacuquixtiz: ynjn motlapilchioal, inh tinamjctia y: auh ynjn inh namjquac ez y:

auh jn quanja tiemequiz, inh tiemequiz: ynila tiçacatlaçaz, iehoatl in teucalçacatl tiquixtia, anoçe tlacotl. Auh aço momocauco in titlaquixtia, anoçe momonepilca.

Auh ynjc tiquixtia: ca amo ma çan titlamacoua, ca tenhtli, tlaçalli in tictlaça, tictlacoçoa, ticcujtlacuepoma, ỹ momonepil, mjxpanqa ticaquia, mocuietlan in tiequixtia, in tictlaçaz: aço çan cecen in tiequixtia, anoçe çan ticmomaquixtia, tictlatlaçalhuiz, yn aço centzontli, aço vntzontli, in tiequixtia tlacotl:

ic poliuia, in motlatlacotl, in motlapilchioal, in momoqual.

62. Cf. Note 56.

63. See Cap. X. The Cinaspipilti were thought to be earth-goddesses who descended to earth in the form of eagles; they incited men to sin and crime.

And if the sins of the penitent were only light, [the priest] said unto him:

"Thou shalt parch thy lips, thou shalt fast, thou shalt starve thy entrails for four days."

Or else he said unto him:

"Thou shalt sing and dance [for the goddess]; thou shalt hang rubber-spotted papers [as offerings] and fashion images [for her]."

Or else, he said unto him:

"Thou hast done wrong, truly, with wine. Thou shalt satisfy the gods of wine, the Tezcatlipoca."

And he thus commanded him, and said unto him:

"When thou goest, when thou dost thy penance at night, thou shalt take nothing with thee. Thou shalt go naked. Thou shalt gird thy loins with paper painted with pointed figures,[64] spreading one piece behind thee [and one] at thy feet.

"And when thou shalt return, there before our lords, the gods, thou shalt cast off thy paper skirt."

And when he had done his penance, then he went to his house.

Thus in the end he changed to a good life. It was said that if he were to sin again—so it was said,—no longer might he gain mercy therefor.

It was said that they told only of great vanities, grave violence, adultery, [and only] the aged so spoke.

Thus the aged confessed—it was said—that they might not be punished here on earth for their sins; if they were adulterers, so that their heads might not be pierced, or heaven with stones, [therefore] they confessed.

The soothsayer, before whom were laid [one's] sins, nowhere spoke of what had been placed before him, of what had been said in secret.

For what was said in secret was not for him, but was given and told in secret to the god. And him mortal man might not see.

Thirteenth Chapter, which telleth of the little gods—the lesser [ones],[65] who were considered the very old gods.

Turquoise Lord (Xiuhtecutli)—the yellow-faced one, the holy flame. This one was known as fire, [as] the old god, [as] our father.

He was thought a god, considering that he burned one, he consumed one, he scorched the fields. And for many purposes he was useful; for [with fire, thus] one was warmed, things were cooked on a plate, things were cooked in a pot, pottery was fired, salt was burned, syrup was boiled, charcoal was burned, the lime was burned; things were fried,

Auh intla çan xicca, yn jtlapilchioal, tlamacuhquj: 785
qujlhuja, tinotemoztzaz, titlacatlaquaz, timocujtlaxculçaoaz, 776 naujlhujd: 783
anoço qujlhuja
titlaxotia, timotetzuhcaoaz, titepiquiz: 793

anoço qujlhuja.

ca nel vetli, yn jpan otitlaneçomalti, tiquinequjxtiz in totochtin.

Auh qujlhuja, ynjc quinaxotia:

yn iquac tiaz, yn titlamacoaz icaltica, atle motech vetztiaz, tipetlauhtiaz: yn momazac, amatl-tlaitzcopeualli in mantiaz: centiel mjcampa, mocintlampa, mantiaz.

Auh yn jquac tioalmocuepaz, vmpa tecontlaçaz yn jmjxpan totecujoaan, yn tetzu, yn mamacue.

Auh yn jquac otlamacuh, njman oalauh yn jchan:

ic ennnajan, monemjlizcuepa: qujlmach intla oc cepa tlatlacoa, quil ça aocmo tlaoculilouj.

Qujlmach çan yio vey nequalli, vey nequaujtectli, in tetlaxinalitli: in quinoaia vetztequz.

Jnjc moiolmelaoaia vetztequz: qujlmach, ichoatl, ynjc amo tlacujltiloaque, njcan tlaltiçpac, yn jnclapilchioal: yntla otetlaxini ynjc amo quatetlasililez, ynjc amo quatepitzinjlez, ynjc amo quatetzotzonalez, moiolmelaoa. [684]

Jn tlapouhqui, yn jitzpan tlalilo, tlapilchioalli: çan njman ezan qujnez, in tlein ixpan tlalilo, in tlein illhujlo:

ipampa ca amo ieh yn jlhujlo, in nonotzalo, ca tloque, ca naoque, in maco, in jlhujlo, in tlapilchioalli: ca amo ieh motta, in macoualli.

Jnic matlactli vmey, capitulo: yntechpa tlatoa, yn 776 tepitoton tetzuh: yn quinoquajlia, yn omotenzuhque, yn teuxiuxin tetzuh.

Xiuhtecutli: iacoçauhqui, yoan cueçaltzin. Jehoatl motocaiotia in tletl, anoço vetz teutl yoan tota:

teutl ipan machoia: ishica, ca tetlatia, tepalna, techichinna, tlachinna: yoan mjac tlamantli, ynjc tlacuelia: ca ic nenculo, ic tlapacazo, ic tlacuxitilo, ic tlaxco, ic iztatlatilo, ic necutlatilo, ic tecullatilo, ic tmazdatilo, ic tlaxtzoionjlo, yc tlatzoionjlo, ic tlatlaoztzalo, yc tetlacujlolo, ic tamazcallatilo, ic cuitlatilo, ic tlaxxtlatilo.

---

64. The outer characteristic emblem of Tlazolteotl is a brown wrapper with a tlahuipinolli—paper impressed with painted figures (see Codex Borbonicus, month of Ochpaniztli). The paper loin cloth is no doubt of this same pattern. Probably the huipil worn by the goddess in the illustration (Plate 12) is a good indication of the design of the loin cloth.

65. Corresponding Spanish text has: "que son menores en dignidad que los antiguos dioses."

The third month they called Toçoztontli. On the first day of this month they observed a feast to the god named Tlaloc, who is the god of rain. On this feast they slew many children upon the mountains. They offered them as sacrifices to this god and to his companions, so that they would give them water.

Al tercero mes, llamavan toçoztontli: en el primer dia deste mes, hazian fiesta al dios llamado Tlaloc: que es dios de las pluujas. En esta fiesta, matauã muchos njños, sobre los montes: ofrecianlos en sacrificio a este dios, y a sus compañeros, para que los diessen agua.

796 [802 776]

Chapter 3
Toçoztontli

On this feast they offered the first fruits of the flowers which had bloomed earliest that year, on the pyramid named Yopico. And before they had offered them, none dared smell a flower.

Those in charge of the flowers, who are called xochimanque, celebrated a feast to their goddess, named Coatl icue, or by another name Coatlan tonan.

Likewise in this month, those who had worn the skins of the dead [sacrificial victims] whom they had flayed the previous month, took [them] off. They went to cast them into a cave in the pyramid which they called Yopico; they went in procession to do this, and [performed] many ceremonies. They went stinking like dead dogs. And after they had left them [in the cave], they washed themselves, [performing] many ceremonies. A number of the sick made vows to attend this procession, in order to recover from their sickness, and they say that some [of them] recovered.

The masters of the [sacrificed and flayed] captives, with all those of their households, did penance for twenty days: neither did they bathe nor wash their heads until the skins of the dead captives were deposited in the cave mentioned above. They said that they did penance for their captives.

After they had ended the penance, they bathed and washed themselves, and summoned all their kin and friends, and gave them food. And they performed many ceremonies with the bones of the dead captives.

Cap. 3.
Toçoztontli.

1 c KL. c 14
2 d En esta fiesta: ofrecian las prjmicias d 15
3 e de las flores, que aquel año primero e 16
4 f nacian en el cu, llamado iopico: y f 17
5 g antes que las ofreciessen, nadie osaua g 18
6 A oler flor. A 19
7 b Los officiales de las flores, que se b 20
8 c llaman sochimanque: hazian fiesta, a c 21
9 d su diosa llamada Coatl ycue, y por otro d 22
10 e nombre coatlã tona. e 23
11 f Tambien en este mes: se desnu- f 24
12 g dauan, los q̃ trayan vestidos, los g 25
13 A pellejos de los muertos, q̃ aujan des- A 26
14 b ollado el mes pasado: yuanlos a echar b 27
15 c en vna cueua, en el cu, que llamauan c 28
16 d iopico: yuan a hazer esto, con pro- d 29
17 e cesion: y cõ muchas cerimonjas, yuan e 30
18 f hediendo, como perros muertos: y f 31
19 g despues que los aujan dexado: se g 1[1]
20 A lauauan, con muchas cerjmonjas: A 2[2]
Algunos emfermos hazian voto, de hallarse presentes, a esta procesion, por sanar de sus emfermedades: y dizen, que algunos sanauan.

[824 346]

[755]

Los dueños de los catiuos, con todos los de su casa, hazian penjtencia, veynte dias: que nj se bañauan, nj se lauauan las cabeças: hasta que se ponjan los pellejos, de los captiuos muertos, en la cueua arriba dicha: dezian que hazian penjtencia, por sus captiuos.

796 785 783

Despues que aujan acabado la penjtencia: bañauanse, y lauauanse, y combidauan a todos, sus parientes, y amigos, y dauanles comjda: y hazian muchas cerjmonjas, con los huesos, de los catiuos muertos.

1. Marginal notation: Apollo habet dies xxx.

2. Marginal notation: Marte egyptiorum.

black sleeveless jacket, and his tobacco gourd with black tassels, and they put on them their white foam sandals.[6] Then they veiled and covered their faces, each one of them, with black fasting capes designed with bones. And they gave them cotton incense bags, black and designed with bones, which they filled with incense. And their incense ladles were filled with live coals. Then also they took up each one of them; the keepers of the gods, the long-haired ones, went taking them in their midst, in order to have them go up above to [the Temple of] Uitzilopochtli. Then each one took incense; each one filled his incense ladle, which went full of live coals, and raised the incense ladle before [the image of] Uitzilopochtli and perfumed it.

tliltic in jmama, ioan qujmaaqujlia impocolcac iztac: njman ic qujnontlapachoa, qujmonixquimjloa, cecenme, ica neçaoalquachtli, tliltic omjcallo, ioan qujnonmaca icpaxiqujpilli, tliltic omjcallo, in vncan temj copalli, ioan intlema tlexochtli ontentiuh: njman ic no qujntlecauja cecenme, qujntlacoaantiuj in teupixque papaoaque, injc qujntlecauja iicpac vitzilopuchtli, injc cecenime concuj in copalli, contema in jntlemaco, in vncan tentiuh tlexochtli, cacocuj in tlemaitl in jixpã vitzilopuchtli qujpopochuja.

644
292

SECOND PARAGRAPH, in which it is told how those chosen did penance there in the temple and came not forth for four days.

And when this was done, and they had offered incense and spread a fragrance before Uitzilopochtli, then they brought down the ruler, the lord of men; he went covered with the green fasting cape with a design of bones. Then they also brought down each one of the lords. They went quite slowly in order; they went with faces veiled, each one, with the fasting cape with the bone design.

The keepers of the gods, the long-haired ones, went taking them in their midst. They took [the ruler and] they escorted[7] [the lords] there to the house of fasting, a place named Tlacochcalco, or Tlacatecco, the house of Uitzilopochtli. There they fasted and did penance for four days. Nowhere went they forth; they only remained seated. When it was already midday, then the keepers of the gods, the long-haired ones, also went; the ruler and the lords in the Tlacatecco, who fasted there, they seized—they went taking them in their midst. They went with faces veiled in fasting capes; in the hands of each one went his incense ladle, and each one went taking with him his cotton bag filled with incense. Slowly and in order they went to take them up, above to [the Temple of] Uitzilopochtli, to offer incense, to spread a fragrance before [the image of] Uitzilopochtli. In the same way they came down; they came in order; they came with faces veiled in fasting capes designed with bones. Then was the time

INJC VME PARRAPHO: vncan mjtoa, in quenjn tlamaçeoaia in tlapepenalti, in vmpa teupan: auh amo oalquiçaia naujlhujtl.

Auh in ie iuhquj otlenamacaque, otlapepochujque iixpan vitzilopuchtli: njman ic qujoaltemouja in tlatoanj, tlacatecutli, tlapachiuhtiuh in jca neçaoalquachtli omjcallo xoxoctic: njman ic no ceceiaca qujnoaltemouja, in tecutlatoque, çan jujian tecpantiuj, ic ixtlapachiuhtiuj, ceceiaca in jca neçaoalquachtli ōmjcallo.

643
644
783
785

qujntlacoaantiuj in teupixque papaoaque, qujujca qujmonujca in neçaoalcalli, itocaiocan tlacochcalco, ioan tlacatecco, in jchan vitzilopochtli: in vncan tlamaçeoaia moçaoaia naujlhujtl, amo campa quiça, çan cheoaticate; in jcoac ic nepantla tonatiuh, njman ic no ohuj in teupixque papaoaque: in vncan tlacatecco, in vncã moçaoaia tlatoanj, ioan tecutlatoque, qujmonana, qujntlacoaantiuj ixqujmjliuhtiuj, in jca neçaoalquachtli, inmac oootiuh in jntlema icecemme, ioan itlan cantiuh ceceiaca in jicpaxiqujpil, in vncan tentiuh copalli, çan jujian tecpantiuj, in qujntlecauja in jcpac vitzilopachtli, inic ontlenamaca, injc ontlapopochhuja ixpan vitzilopuchtli: çan no iuj injc oalteno tecpantiujtze, ixtlapachiuhtiujtze, in jca neçaoalquachtli omjcallo: qujnjcoac tlaqua in tlatoanj, ioã tecutlatoque ça ceppa in tlaqua ccmjlhujtl.

6. Impossible: impossible to convert.
7. The Real Academia de la Historia MS has quienquienquien for quienquien.

643 that the ruler and the lords ate; only once a day did 644 they eat.

783 And at night, when midnight arrived, the ruler
785 and the lords arose, covered with the fasting capes. And they took up their incense ladles and cotton bags filled with incense, and maguey spines; and they were shod in their foam sandals. And these keepers of the gods, the long-haired ones, took them in their midst—they took them above, to [the Temple of] Uitzilopochtli, to offer blood at midnight. And they offered incense; there they cast incense before [the image of] Uitzilopochtli.

In the same manner they came down. They went in order. The keepers of the gods, the long-haired ones, took them in their midst, with their faces veiled in fasting capes designed with bones. When they had descended, then they went to bathe—the ruler and the lords. Thus did they do penance at night.

For four days they fasted, with faces veiled in fasting capes. And for as many days, at noon, they offered incense before [the image of] Uitzilopochtli. Likewise, for as many nights, at midnight, they offered incense and made blood offerings before [the image of] Uitzilopochtli, and they bathed themselves.

Auh iioaltica, in jcoac ioalnepantla oaçic, meoa in tlatoanj, ioan in tecutlatoque, ic ommotlapachoa in neçaoalquachtli: ioan concuj in jntlema ioan icpaxiquipilli in vncan temj copalli, ioan vitztli, ioan conmocactia in jmpoçolcac: auh in iehoantin teupixque papaoaque, qujntlacoaantiuj, in qujujca, icpac vitzilopuchtli, injc ommjço iooalnepantla, ioan ontlenamaca oncopaltema, in jxpan vitzilopuchtli.

çan no iuj oaltemo tecpantiujtze, qujntlacoaana in teupixque papaoaque, ic ixtlapachiuhtiuj in neçaoalquachtli omjcallo, in ooaltemoçue, njman ic huj in maltizque, in tlatoanj, ioã tecutlatoque, injc iooaltica tlamaceoaia, naujlhujtl in moçaoaia ic ixqujmjliuhticatca in neçaoalquachtli, auh izqujlhujtl in nepãtla tonatiuh, in ontlenamacaia ixpan vitzilopuchtli: çan no izqujioal, in ioalnepantla tlenamacaia, ioan onmjçoa in jxpan vitzilopuchtli, ioan maltiaia.

THIRD PARAGRAPH, in which it is related how they ended the penance, and took the ruler to the courtyard of the palace; and the others they took to their homes.

And after this, when the four days and four nights were ended during which the ruler and lords had fasted and done penance—at that time the ruler came forth, that they might escort him there to the great palace, the ruler's residence. And also at that time the lords entered their homes.

[77] And when this had come to pass, then the ruler chose a propitious day on which the ruler's feast might be observed. He commanded all the majordomos to accord others and give them all capes, and costly devices, and shields.

INJC EY PARRAPHO: ipan mjtoa, in quenjn qujtzonqujxtiaia tlamaçeoaliztli, ioan qujujcaia in tlatoanj, in tecpan itoalco: ioã in oc cequjntin qujnujcaia in jnchan.

Auh in ie iuhquj in otzonqujz naujlhujtl, ioan nauhioal, in oonmoçauh, in ontlamaçeuh tlatoanj, ioan tecutlatoque, qujnjcoac qujça in tlatoanj, injc concaoa in vmpa vei tecpan tlatocan. Auh in tecutlatoque, qujn no icoac calaquj in jnchan.

Auh in ie iuhquj: njman ic qujpepena in tlatoanj, in qualli tonalli, in jpan modatocapacaz, qujnnaoatia, in jxqujchtin calpixque, in jxqujch tilmatli, ioan tlaçotlanquj tlaujztli, ioan chimalli, in qujtetlauhtiz, in qujtemacaz.

643 FOURTH PARAGRAPH, in which it is told how 527 the ruler made summons to a feast.
648 Then he bade to a feast those from every city. He asked to the banquet the ruler of Michoacan, and the ruler of Cuextlan, and the ruler of Metztitlan, and the lords of the Totonac country, and the lords of Tlaxcala, and the ruler of Cholula, and the lords

INJC NAUJ PARRAPHO, vncan mjtoa, in quenjn qujchioaia tecoanotzaliztli, in iehoatl tlatoanj.

Niman ic tecoanotza, in noujian altepetl ipan, qujcoanotza in mjchoacan tlatoanj, ioan cuextlan tlatoanj, ioan metztitlan tlatoanj, ioan totonacapan tlatoque, ioan tlaxcallan tlatoque, ioan chololtan tlatoanj, ioan uexotzinco tlatoque, ioan tenjtla tla-

Appendix A

Continuation of the Fourth Paragraph, Chapter Fourteen[1]

In the priests' house of Mexico, there were established and congregated all the keepers of the gods, the fire priests, and [other] priests, the city's devout ones. There they waited [lest] perchance the ruler might require something—perhaps inquire about something, mayhap of something they had seen in all the places where debts [of sacrifice] had been paid upon the mountains and upon the water; there where, afar, were the small pyramids where each night they performed penances.

For these who were fire priests and other priests, when they came forth well into the night, and when, as was said, the shell trumpets were newly blown, first drew their blood before the devil, with thorns, the spines of the maguey; then each one separately set forth, going quite naked. They went [out] having put about them only their pouches with cords,[2] which went filled with dyed, powdered tobacco—this tobacco mixed with a black [dye]—which they chewed as they went. And one proceeded taking with him an incense ladle in which fire went enclosed; and a small cotton bag in which was incense; and pine wood; and he carried his fir branches in his arms, as well as his spines covered with blood, and a shell as his trumpet. And even though it rained hard or was freezing, just so he went.

When he reached whatsoever mountain he was to perform his due upon, then and there he paid his debt [of sacrifice]. He offered incense; he spread out his fir boughs, his bloodied maguey spines. He listened for the time when trumpets were to be sounded in Mexico, at midnight. And when the trumpets had been sounded in Mexico at midnight, then the priests, they who did penance, blew trumpets everywhere there upon the mountains where they paid their debts. Then they turned back, sounding trumpets as they went, in the dawn, when they again entered the priests' house.

Calmecac, mexico, vncan tecpanoaya, vncan mocenquixtiaya in ixquichtin teupixque yn tlenamacaque, yn tlamacazque yn itlamaceuhcauan catca altepetl, conchiaya yn aço itla ic quintemoz tlatoani, aço itla ic tlatlaniz, aço itla quitta yn ompa yzquican omoxtlauha yn tepeticpac, yoã atlan, yoan yn ompa veca caca mosmoztli, yceceyoual yc tlamaceua. 346 793

Ca y ichoanti tlenamacaque, tlamacazque catca yquac quiçaya yn tlaquauh tlapoyaua, ỹ mitoaya yancujcan tlatlapitzalo, achto miçoya in ixpan tlacatecolotl yca vitztli, ỹ metl yuitzo, niman ceceyaca quiçaya, çan petlauhtiuja, çan ixquich onactiuia yn intoxi yntlamecayouh vncan tentiuh yaqualli ychoatl im piçietl tlanelolli tlilli yn quiquatiuja, yoan quitquitiuia tlemaitl tzacuhtiuh vnca yetiuh tletl, yoã xiquipiltontli yc icatiuh copalli, yoã ocotl, yoã quiçiacauia yn iacxoyauh, yoan in iuitz ycheço, yoan tecucizzli yn itlapitzal ỹ manel cenca quiauiz, anoço ceuetziz yuhca viya. 793 [705] [281] [276 415]

[534]

yn iquac yn oacic campa tepetitech tlamatiuh nimã yc vncã moxtlaua, tlenamaca, contema yn tlexoyauh, yn iuitz ycheço, quiualcaqui in queman tlapitzaloz mexico y youalnepantla, auh yn otlapitzaloc mexico youalnepantla, niman yc nouian tlapitza yn tlamacazque yn tlamaceuhque yn ompa tepetitech in campa omoxtlaua, niman valmocuepa tlatlapitzinijtze ye tlatuinauac, y ualcalaqui calmecac. 796 783 [534]

1. See note 11, Chapter 14.

2. Leonhard Schultze Jena, in Glaubenswelt der Alt-Azteksischen Volks in Familie, Stand und Beruf (Stuttgart: W. Kohlhammer Verlag, 1952), p. 330, says of the form tamoi: "Da er im Text dieses Bemeichnet, die den Copalbeutel trugen, wird er sich um Priester handeln." The term tlamacazque he translates (ibid., p. 161), "schlicht die mit einer Soutane."

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

346 so much of it, that I curse the whole of it, and as it stank like a slaughter house we hastened to clear out of such a bad stench and worse sight. Our Captain said to Montezuma through our interpreter, half laughing: "Señor Montezuma, I do not understand how such a great Prince and wise man as you are has not come to the conclusion, in your mind, that these idols of yours are not gods, but evil things that are called devils, and so that you may know it and all your priests may see it clearly, do me the favour to approve of my placing a cross here on the top of this tower, and that in one part of these oratories where your Huichilobos and Tezcatepuca stand we may divide off a space where we can set up an image of Our Lady (an image which Montezuma had already seen) and you will see by the fear in which these Idols hold it that they are deceiving you."

776 Montezuma replied half angrily, (and the two priests who were with him showed great annoyance,) and said: "Señor Malinche, if I had known that you would have said such defamatory things I would not have shown you my gods, we consider them to be very good, for they give us health and rains and good seed times and seasons and as many victories as we desire, and we are obliged to worship them and make sacrifices, and I pray you not to say another word to their dishonour."

•783 When our Captain heard that and noted the angry looks he did not refer again to the subject, but said with a cheerful manner: "It is time for your Excellency and for us to return," and Montezuma replied that it was well, but that he had to pray and offer certain sacrifices on account of the great tatacul, that is to say sin, which he had committed in allowing us to ascend his great Cue, and being the cause of our being permitted to see his gods, and of our dishonouring them by speaking evil of them, so that before he left he must pray and worship.

In this house[1], which was like a monastery, was the image of Quetzalcoatl. On this day they adorned it with rich ornaments and placed before it offerings of perfumes and food. They said this was the sign of Quetzalcoatl.

terio, estaua la ymagen de quetzalcoatl: Este dia la 796x adereçauan con ricos ornamentos, y ofrecian delante della perfumes, y comjda: dezian que este era el [778] signo de quetzalcoatl.

The Seventh Movable Feast

In the sign which was called ce miquiztli, in the first house, the lords and leading men celebrated a great feast to Tezcatlipoca, who was the great god. They said that this was his sign. Since all of them had their shrines in their houses, where they kept the images of this god and of many others, on this day they decorated this image and offered it perfumes, flowers, and food, and sacrificed quail before it, tearing off their heads. This not only the lords and leading men did, but all the people to whose attention this festival came; and the same was done in the tribal temples and on all the pyramids. All prayed, and besought of this god that he grant them favors, for [it was thought] that he was almighty.

La septima fiesta moujble.

En el signo que se llamaua ce mjquiztli: en la primera casa: hazian gran fiesta, los señores y principales a Tezcatlibuca, que era el gran dios, dezian que este era su sino, como todos ellos, tenjan sus oratorios en [778] sus casas: donde tenjan las ymagines deste dios, y de muchos otros: en este dia, componjan esta ymagen, y ofrecianla perfumes, y flores y comjda: y sacrificauan codornizes delante della arrancandolas la cabeça. Esto no solamente lo hazian los señores, y principales: pero toda la gẽte, a cuya noticia venja esta fiesta, y lo mjsmo se hazia, en los calpules, y en todos los cues: todos orauan, y demandauan a este dios que les hiziese mercedes: pues que el era todopoderoso.

The Eighth Movable Feast

In the sign which was called ce quiauitl, in the first house, they celebrated a feast to the goddesses whom they named Ciuapipilti. These, they said, were the women who died in first childbed. They said that they became goddesses and that they dwelt in the house of the sun; and that when this sign reigned, they came down to the earth and afflicted with various sicknesses those whom they met outside of their houses. And hence, in these days, they dared not go out of their houses. They had shrines built in honor of these goddesses in all the suburbs where two streets [crossed], which they called ciuateocalli, or by another name, ciuateopan. In these shrines they had the images of the goddesses, and on these days they adorned them with papers which they called amatetauitl. On this feast of these goddesses they slew in their honor those condemned to death for some crime, who were in the jails.

La octaua fiesta moujble

En el signo, que se llamaua, ce qujaujtl: en la primera casa, hazian fiesta, a las diosas que llamauan [776] Cioapipilti: estas dezian que eran las mugeres que murian del primero parto, dezian que se hazian diosas, y que morauan en la casa del sol, y que quãdo reynaua este sino, decendian a la tierra, y herian con diuersas enfermedades, a los que topauã fuera de sus casas. Y por esto en estos dias, no osauan salir de sus casas. Tenjan edificados oratorios, a honrra [784] ● destas diosas: en todos los barrios donde auja dos calles: los quales llamauan cioateucalli, o por otro [778] nombre cioateupan: en estos oratorios, tenjan las ymagines destas diosas: y en estos dias las adornauan con papeles, que llamauan amateteujtl. En esta fiesta, destas diosas matauan a su honrra los condenados a muerte por algun delicto, que estauan en las carceles.

The Ninth Movable Feast

In the sign named ce quiauitl, in the fourth house (which was called nauí ecatl), because this house was very unlucky they slew in it the malefactors who were imprisoned. And likewise the lord had a number of slaves slain as a superstition. And the merchants and traders made a show or demonstration of the jewels in which they dealt, bringing them forth so that all might see them. And afterwards, at night, La nona fiesta mouible.

En el signo llamado ce qujaujtl: en la quarta casa [681] que se llamaua nauhecatl, por ser esta casa muy mal- 777] afortunado, matauan en ella los malhechores, que estauan presos. Y tambien el señor hazia matar algunos esclauos, por via de supersticion: y los mercaderes, y tratantes hazian alarde o demostracion de las [463] joyas, en que tratauan, sacandolas, para que las viessen todos: y despues a la noche, comjan, y beujan, to-

[1] A [the calmecac. — Analyst]

And afterwards, at night,

X 796 they ate and drank, and held flowers and those canes of perfume. And they sat in their seats. And each one [302] began to boast of what he had gained, and of the distant parts which he had reached. And he belittled [521] the others for their counting for little; [for] neither did they have as much as he, nor had they gone to distant places, as he had. In this the ones made a great mock of the others for a long space of the night.

mauan flores: y aquellas cañas de perfumes, y assentauanse en sus assientos: y començaua cada vno a jactarse, de lo que auja ganado, y de las partes remotas, donde auja llegado: y valdonaua a los otros de que eran para poco, nj tenjan tanto, como el, nj aujan ydo a partes remotas como el: en esto tenjan gran chacota, los vnos con los otros, por gran rato de la noche.

The Tenth Movable Feast

In the sign which they named ce malinalli, in the second house, named ome acatl, they celebrated a great festival; for they said that this was Tezcatlipoca's sign. In this feast they fashioned the image of [778] Omacatl, and one who felt devotion took it to his house that it might bless him and cause his goods to increase. And when this took place, he kept it and preferred not to let it go. He who would let this image go, waited until the next time when the same sign reigned. Then he returned it whence he had taken it.

La decima fiesta mouible

En el signo que llamauan ce malinalli: en las segunda casa llamada vme acatl, hazian gran fiesta: porque dezian que esto sino era de Tezcatlibuca: en esta fiesta hazian la ymagen de Omacatl, y alguno que tenja deuocion, lleuauala a su casa: para que le bendixesse, y le hiziesse multiplicar su hazienda, y quando esto acontecja tenjala, y no la queria dexar: el que queria dexar esta ymagen esperaua, hasta que otra vez, reynasse el mjsmo signo: entonce la lleuaua adonde la auja tomado.

The Eleventh Movable Feast

In the sign called ce tecpatl, in the first house, they brought forth all the ornaments of Uitzilopochtli; they cleaned them and shook them out; and they put [them] in the sun. They said that this was his sign and that of Camaxtli. This they did at Tlacatecco. Here they set out, on this day, many kinds of food, very well cooked, like that which the lords eat. They presented all of them before his image. After they had remained there a while, the officials of Uitzilopochtli took them up and divided them among themselves, and ate them. And they also incensed the image and offered it quail. They struck off their heads before it, so the blood should be shed before the image. And the lord offered all the precious flowers which the lords used, before the image.

La onzena fiesta mouible.

En el signo llamado ce tecpatl. En la primera casa sacauan todos los ornamentos de Vitzilobuchtli, los linpiauan, y sacudian, y ponjan al sol: dezian que este era su signo, y el de camaxtle: esto hazian tlacatecco: aquj ponjan, en este dia, muchas maneras de comjdas, muy bien gujsadas, como las comen los señores: todas las presentauan, delante de su ymagen, despues de auer estado vn rato alli, tomauanlas los officiales, de Vitzilobuchtli, y repartianlas entre si, y comjanlas, y incensauan tambien a la ymagen, y ofrecianla codornizes, descabeçandolas delante della: para que se derramasse la sangre delante la ymagen: y ofrecia el señor todas las preciosas flores, que vsan los señores, delante la ymagen.

The Twelfth Movable Feast

[753 774] In the sign named ce oçomatli they said that the goddesses called Ciuapipilti came down to the earth and [that] they harmed the boys and girls, afflicting them with palsy. And if anyone, at this time, sickened, they said that [the Ciuapipilti] had caused it: that he had come upon them. And the fathers and mothers on these days did not let their children go outside the [784] houses, so that they might not come upon these goddesses, whom they held in great dread.

La dozena fiesta mouible.

En el signo llamado ce Oçumatli: dezian que decendian las diosas llamadas ciuapipilti, a la tierra: y dañauan a los njños, y njñas, hiriendolos con perlesia. Y si alguno en este tiempo enfermaua, dezian que ellas lo aujan hecho, que se auja encontrado con ellas: y los padres, y las madres, estos dias no dexauan salir a sus hijos, fuera de casa: porque no se encontrassen, con estas diosas, de las quales tenjan gran temor.

Twenty-second Chapter, in which are described the celebration and blood sacrifices which they made in the second month, known as and called Tlacaxipeualiztli.[1]

And this was when the rattle boards were sown[2] there at the Temple of Yopitli. And they, the old men belonging to the Temple of Yopitli,[3] sat singing and rattling their rattle boards until the day was done. Thus they came to spend the day, to celebrate the feast all day, coming to pass the day. Thus the whole day passed.

And [because] flowers were offered, [the feast] was called "The Offering of Flowers"; for all the various flowers which had newly blossomed were first [fruits]. It was the first flowers to appear which were thus given as offerings. None might breathe the scent without first providing an offering. They made or laid offerings of whatever little flowers they saw, which spread out bursting, popping, rustling into bloom—the flowers of spring. Small, little, tiny ones; little stone [flowers], however few, small, and tiny; little wooden ones, they carved and bound together.

And in order to gather the flowers, they all went together to the fields, since some who worked in the fields came there to sell them.

And when this was done, they ate tamales made of wild amaranth seed.[4]

Especially the Coateca, they who belonged to the district of Coatlan, esteemed [these tamales]. They offered them to their god[dess], called Coatl icue or Coatlan tonan.

[For] they placed trust in her; she was their confidante; they depended upon her; she was their support. To her they lifted their voices.

And also at that time were hidden away the human skins[5]—placed aside, abandoned. There at the Temple of Yopitli they were all buried.

Jnic cempoali onume capitulo, vncã motenena yn illhuitl, yoan in nextlaoaliztli in quichioaia in ipan ic vme metztli: in mitoaia, in motenoaia, Tlacaxipeoaliztli. 796[x]

Auh in iquac y, aiacachpixolo vmpa iopico: auh ça ichoanti, in calpulueuetque, vmpa pouhque iopico, cujcatoque, aiacachotoque, yc ouetzi cemilhuitl, in tlacemilhuitiltitoque, ic tlalhujquixtitoque, ic tlalhujnextitoque, tlalhuiçultitoque, ihujçulotoque, ic uruetzi cemilhujtl: [534]

yoã xochimanalo ynic mjtoa xochimanalo, ca in ixquich nepapan xochitl, in iancuican cuéponj, yiacatiuitz: yn iiacac vitz xochitl ic tlamanalo, aiac achto qujnecuj, intlacamo achto ic tlamanaz, qujuenchioaz, qujuĕmanaz, in çaço tlein xochitotõti qujttaia, cuecuepontoc, cuecuepocatoc, tlatlatzcatoc, in tonalxuchitl, hacquj, aqujtoton, hacqujpipil, hacqujtetoton, çan quecizquj, çan quezqujtoton, çan quecizquipipil, çan quezqujquauhtoton qujcujcujtlalpia, qujilpia. 796[x] 824 [784] [532]

Auh ynic xochitetemoaia, qujcenpanocujtivj in milli, tel cequj qujoalnamacaia, in millaca: 796[x] [432]

auh yn iquac y, qujquaia tzatzapaltamalli: [262]

oc cenca ichoanti qujmauiztiliaia in coateca, in coatlan calpulli itech pouja: qujtlamanjlia yn inteouh, itoca coatl ycue, coatlan tona:

yn jtech tlaquauhtlamati, yn jnnetemachil, yn jtech moquauhiotia, yn inquauhio, yn jtech motzatzilia.

Auh çan no iquac enatlatilo, onmotlatia, onmocacoa, yn jmeouio tlaca, vmpa iopico onaactiuj:

1. The corresponding Spanish text qualifies: ". . . que hacían en el postrero día del segundo mes, que se decía Quauitleualiztli."
In Chapter 3, this month is correctly named Toquoztontli.
2. Iuan entonces quando sembrauan—"Y es decir 'es quando sembraron maiz'" (Garibay: "Relación breve," p. 294). Seler (op. cit., p. 77) has, for sembrauan, "Seder man das Samenkorn mit der Hand."
3. "Los viejos de aquel barrio," according to Sahagún's Spanish text.
4. Cf. Sahagún: Histoire des choses de la Nouvelle-Espagne, p. 92, n. 3: tamapalmamalli—"Pan-de-pour tamapamalli, de tamapali, épine ou herbe piquante, et amalli, pâte de canal."
5. Bustamante: Seler (op. cit., p. 78) uses the same corpulentos; Garibay (op. cit., p. 295) has, for yoan ontemoyo huentzilla, "y se llenaban, 'se sentaban las pieles'"; the corresponding Spanish of Sahagún reads: "sentaban sus cáscaras secas."

X 796
782

A True [Relation] of Still Other Offerings with Which Similarly They Paid Honor to the Devil.

Hanging [an Object] over the Breast.

Thus was done the hanging [of objects] over the breast; thus was the tying with loose cotton thread: they tied [them] about the wrists and the necks of small children and [suspended on the cords], in small [415] bags, tortillas made of green maize. Here [in the calpulli] they set forth these, on small jar-stands, and small earthen jars, and lifted the jars up by the ears, and with their hands went filling their bags with water. And when they had reached the twentieth day, when [it was the feast] known as Teotl eco, [that was] when they untied the feathered threads which they had about the small children.

[For] Pain.

[302] And [for] pain, thus was done upon the feast of [the god] Acolmiztli: the small children were ornamented in feathers [applied to them]; in colored feathers, [set] everywhere on their bodies. And the old people similarly applied feathers on their stomachs, over their hearts, and upon their backs. Thus [784] they set feathers upon them—so it was said—because then Acolmiztli would not bewitch them.

The Setting Out of the Children.

Thus was done the setting out of the children. They took all of them there to the house of the devil, and had in truth all the children dance before them, and made them drunk. Hence it was called the setting out of the children; for they had them all appear in the house of the devil.

The Act of Striping.

Thus was done what was named the act of striping: when mock battle was joined, the shield and Imelavaca in oc cequj tlamanaliztli in çan no ic qujmavizticiaia Diablo.

Neelpiliztli.

Injc muchivaia neelpiliztli, inic neelpiloia ica icpatl in quimjilpiaia pipiltotonti in immaquechtlan, yoan in jnquechtlan yoan in jmjtac elotlaxcaltotonti in vncan conmanaia vacaltonco yoan tecôtontli, vacalnacazco conquetzaia tentiuh in atl in jma itac, auh in ïçc oacico ipan cempoalilhujtl in iquac moteneva teteu heco iquac quijnoniliaia in jcpatl potoquj injc omoolpique pipiltoetôti.

[For] Pain.

Auh in necocoliztli ic muchivaia ipan ilhujuh acolmiztli mjhujcujcujlovaia in pipiltotonti tlapalihujtica, novjian in jtech inacaio. Auh in veuejtlaca çãyio in jmelpan, in jniollopan yoan in jncujtlapan, quinamjctiaia in ihujtl, injc quinpotonjaia, quilmach ipampa inic amo triolloquaz acolmiztli.

Pilquistliztli.

Injc muchivaia pilquistiliztli vmpa muchintin quinvicaia in itcupan Diablo, in pipiltotonti vel muchintin impan quimjtoyaia yoã quinvlavantiaia injc moteneva pilquistilo ca muchintin quinvalquiztia in pipiltotonti in Diablo ichan.

Tlavavanaliztli.

Injc muchivaia in motenehua tlavavanaliztli in iquac malli moiauchivaia ichimal imaquauh imac

Thirteenth Chapter. Here is told and mentioned what was an evil manifestation for him who stumbled or fell at this time; and the evil which befell those born at this time, in the eighth house, called Eight Death. Here are told all the various kinds of evil which belonged with [the day signs].

Inic matlactli vmey capitulo, vncan mjtoa: quijmach amo qualli inezca catca, in aqujn moteputlamjaia, in anoço vetzia, yn ipan jn: ioan in amo qualli inpan muchioaia, in aquiquc vncan tlacatia, in jpã ic chicuetetl calli: yn jtoca chicuey mjqujztli: vncan moteneoa in jaqujtlamantli in amo qualli intech ca 787x

Likewise was it said: no one [on the day sign Four Wind] might quarrel, nor fall, nor trip, nor stumble, nor sprain an ankle, nor break nor twist a foot. So there was apprehension. It was said: "O that this may not always be! He is affected by Four Wind." That is to say, he was hurt on Four Wind.

No ioan mjtoa: aiac vel macoaia, anoço motlaujtequja, motepotlamja, motecujnja, moxoquechaquja, moxocuetlanja, mocxicueloa: ic tlatenmachililoia, huloia, ma qujcencuj, ca omonauecauj, qujtoznequj: ca nauecatl in jpan omococo. 784 ●

And also it is told that as to him who was then born, the readers of the day signs made it favorable for him and provided him with merits. He would, so they said, become rich and a chieftain, a brave warrior; he would become terrifying and menacing; he would gain honor; he would be of a strong day sign. And they did not yet bathe him, [they bathed him later][1] on Seven Serpent. So they said that they made the day sign even stronger for him so that he became very rich, provided with merits, gifts, and good deserts. For [the day sign] Seven Serpent represented our sustenance — grains of dried maize, completely edible. And so they said that the days of the seventh place were always a time of good.

No ioan mjtoa: in aquin ypan tlacatia, quipãtiaia, quinemactiaia, in tonalpouhque, iuh qujtoaia: mocujltonoz, ioan tiacauhtiz, oquichtiz, tlamauhtiz, tlamamauhtiz, momaujzçotiz, tonalchicaoac iez: auh aiamo caltiaia, in jpan chicome coatl, iuh qujtoaia: oc cenca vel ipan qujtonalchicaoaia, injc cenca mocujltonoz, injc mãceoale, nemaque, ilhujle, mochioaz: ipampa in chicome coatl ca qujxiptlatiaia in tonacaiotl, in tlaolli, motequjtica qualonj: ioan in iuh qujtoa, in chicometioaia ipan tonalli, muchipa qualcan. 787x [851]

But Five House and Six Lizard, which followed, as hath been said, were in no way good day signs. Both were the times of ritual to Macuilxochitl and Mictlan tecutli. For the one born at this time, man or woman, nothing resulted as his deserts. He labored only in vain; his fate, deserts, and gifts were full of misery. And he was only given to talk, completely enveloped in talk. He was hot-tempered.[2] He reprimanded people; he only knew how to agitate them and cause them to riot. So it was said, so was he reprimanded, when he restrained one from doing something, belabored one in something, or besmirched someone: "At least sometimes the brute is human! The vile brute, the mean and vile-tongued one, the fool! What can be done? His is the day

Auh in quicaltoqujlia macujlli calli, ioan chiquacen cuetzpalin: iuh mjtoaia: njmã amo qualli tonalli, in jontrixtin, y, in tlatoaian macujlxochitl, ioan mjctlan tecutli: in aquin ipan tlacatia in oquichtli, in çioatl, njman atle imãceoal mochioaia, çan oalnenquçaia, motequjtica netolinjliztli, in ilhujl, in jmãceoal, ynemac, ioan çan tlatolli cololotinemj, tlatolli cololhujtinemj, tlatolli itlaqual, tlacatl quicaotzinemj, çan ic nemj in tlacatl quicuecuetlanja, tlacatl quicocomonja, iuh mjtoa injc aio: in iquac on oitla contechioalti, in on oitla contecacujlti, in on oitla ic onteatlatzicujnj, macel ica ontlacanemj in tlapalpul, iollochicopul, iollopatlachpul, iollotlauelilocapul, quemnel noço macujltonale, ca ic iuhque in mamacujltonaleque, aquen tlatta, ca nel ic monotz-

1. The words çaiio ceuipa ontlaia in the Real Palacio MS give this phrase.
2. See Note 3, Chapter 3, supra.

X-787 Twenty-second Chapter, which telleth of the 776 eleventh sign, called One Monkey, and of its fortune.
It was said of those then born that one was a man of good standing, friendly, amiable, and happy, given 753 to music and the other arts. And it was said that at this time descended to earth those who were the ● 784 "Goddesses"; and that those whom they met on the road or in paths between houses they injured and visited with sickness. And for this reason, when it was this day sign, no one could fare forth. And one who then sickened the physicians forthwith abandoned.

Inic ompoalli vnnome capitulo, itechpa tlatoa, inic matlactetl occ machiotl, in jtoca oc oçomatli:
ioan in jtonallo, quijnach in aquijque vncan tlacatia quall: iiollo catca, teicnjoan, tlaçotlalonj, papaquijnj, quijnocujtlaviaia in cujcatl, ioan in oc cequj toltecaiotl: auh quijl in jquac oalteneoia, in aquijque cioste-teu in tlalticpac: auh quijl in aquijque quijnnamjquijs, in vtlica, in anoço calizala quijtlaueliaia cocolistli itech quijtalia: auh ipampa in jpan in tonalli catca, aiac vel quijçaia: auh in aquijn iquac mococoaia, çan njman quijxnacotiaia in titici.

X-787 One Monkey set in. This Monkey [day sign] they regarded as favorable.

Moquetza oc oçomatli: inin oçomatli, quijqualit-taia:

776 But also they said that at that time the so-called "Princesses" or "Goddesses" descended. It was the 784 time when they were expected, the time of their arrival. At this time they looked upon the children 855 with much apprehension. They simply shut them in the houses; they did not wish them to appear at the entrances or on the road, so that [the Goddesses] would not come upon or harm them. Perhaps one of them would have twisted lips, or a shrunken mouth; or he cross-eyed or of weak vision; or his lips would quiver or quake; or he would be maddened—a devil would possess him and he would foam at the mouth; or he would have withered, twisted arms; or be lame, etc.

auh ioan quijtoa, no uncan temoaia inchicipan, imaçia, in motecteoaia cioapipilti, cioatetu, cenca vncã quijtlamauhcaitilinia in tepilhoan, çã quijntza-tzaquaia calitic, amo quijnonequjxtidanja, in quijoaac, in vtlica, inic amo motenamjctinque, quijnjtlacoz-que, aço aca tenaecujliviz, tempatziviz, ixnecujliujz, izvitzaliviz, itca papatlacaz, itca viujocaz, iollotlaue-lloiiz, itech quijnoaac, tenquaiscoujçaz, matzicoliujz, macopichauiz, icxi quijujlanaz. Etc.

And if someone began to sicken, the physicians
776 told him that he would become dangerously sick;
753 he would not recover. For he had come upon the Princesses, and they had set upon him; it was the time of their descent and arrival when [this sickness] began. For it was [so] willed.

auh intla aca ipan opeuh mococoa, quijcilhuijaia in titici, ca tlamaia, aocmo quijças, ca omotenamjcti, ipan oquijquac in cioapipilti, ca intemoioa, imêcoian in opeuh, ca oclcujloc:

And likewise it was said that if someone were of good standing, of a good day sign, and able, if at this time they injured him, they said that the Princesses had indeed willed it upon him and that he had contended with them.[1]

auh no ioan mjjoa, intla aca qualli yiollo, in qualli itonal, ioan qualli itlachielia: vncan quijtlacalhuijaia, quijtoaia: ca çan oquelcujquc, oquijnnotenamjcti in cioapipilti.

1. Corresponding Spanish text: "Y si alguno que era bien dispuesto, conforme en otro dia, decian: que los dioses le traian dormido la buenaventura, y en la suerte quedaba."

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

With the dawn, more than ever gracious in its fulfillment of a 796 nations' piety, the populace rallied, renovating their temples, refurbishing their houses and making new utensils for temple and household use. There was feasting on special food, and sacrifice both by personal bloodletting and the immolation of [785] captives betokened the measure of popular gratitude.

Another striking ceremony fell on the day Four Earthquake (or Motion), the sign of the present age, and symbolized the passage of the sun through the heavens. At dawn a captive dressed as the Sun God, Tonatiuh, ascended the platform where the Calendar Stone was set. Four priests spread-eagled the victim, and a fifth opened his breast to tear out the heart as an offering to the god. The populace then feasted until noon, gashing their ears and parts of their bodies with blades of obsidian. In the afternoon the Eagle and Tiger [785] Knights, votaries of the solar cult, took part in a dance dramatizing the sacred war wherein the sun is slain, to be reborn the following day. The dance culminated in a gladiatorial sacrifice. Selected Eagle and Tiger Knights, armed with real weapons, slew a captive warrior, chosen for his military distinction, who was tethered to a circular stone representing the sun's disk and who defended himself with dummy weapons only.[10] (See Plate 60, top right, bottom.)

A curious type of sacrifice took place in connection with the worship of the god Xipe and may be the origin of the arrow sacrifice which is performed in honor of the morning star by the Pawnee of our Western plains. In the Mexican rite the victim was lashed to a scaffold, and priests, using bows or atl-atls, shot him to death.[11]

The Aztecs performed a hideous ceremony in honor of the Fire God, Huehueteotl. Prisoners of war and their cap-

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

growth in plants by the powers of sympathetic magic. Cere-
[266] monial cannibalism was sometimes practiced, in the belief that the eater can absorb the virtues of the eaten, but this rite cannot be considered a vice. The letting of one's own blood
[785 was another way to ensure divine favor, and people did hor-
304] rible self-penances such as mutilating themselves with knives or drawing through their tongues a string on which were threaded maguey spines. The higher the social position of the individual and the more he consequently knew of ritualistic observance, the more arduously he performed the fasts, penances and tortures imposed by the religion. The priests, therefore, were strongly cognizant of their social responsibility and by the rigor of their own lives strove to ensure the well-being of the tribe.[17] (See Plate 61, bottom right.)

212 The picture writings of the Aztecs take human sacrifice
782 and penance as a matter of course but seldom indicate the quantity of victims. Indeed, only one such manuscript records the monthly ceremonies, and a post-Conquest copy of another reveals a sacrifice of twenty thousand people at the dedication of the enlarged great temple of Mexico.[17] The Spanish accounts and those of the educated Indians agree, but whether Christian piety induced exaggeration, and how much, it is difficult to ascertain at this time and age. The Conquistador who counted thousands of skulls on the skull rack in Tenochtitlan apparently confirms these other statements, which the great humanitarian and Indian lover, Las Casas, discounted in his special pleading for decent treatment of the indigenous population of New Spain.[18]

793. The priesthood, beside performing these bloodcurdling
212 acts, had other more pacific duties; they also instructed youth
[871] in the mysteries of writing and keeping records. Aztec writ-

776 who, stretching forth his arms to thee, embraceth thee and 783 carrieth thee upon his back."[42]
793 "Be daring; be not timid because of shame; be not backward."

[627] Then the penitent [swore an oath to tell the truth, by] touching earth, and cast incense upon the fire. Thereupon he seated himself before the soothsayer and spoke—for [the seer] was the representative, the deputy, the likeness [of the goddess]:

"Our lord, protector of all, because thou perceivest my evil odor, my vices, I take off my clothing and uncover, in thy presence, my nakedness—[that is,] the things I have taken, the things that I have done. Can these things be hidden and darkened, when they are reflected and clear in thy sight?"

Then he began [the tale of] his sins—whatsoever he had done; as if he were offering a song, proceeding thus, talking, doing it as if he were following a road. Much [in that way] he followed [the tale of] his sins. So he proceeded.

785 And when he ended his words, then had he told all his 776 sins.
783 Then answered the seer, the warden [of the god]; he said unto him:
793 "Behold, thou hast spoken to the god; thou hast offered him thy deeds and thy misdeeds.

"And behold, this thou shalt do. When the Cuaspipilti descend, when the feast of the Cuaspipilti or the Ixcuinane is celebrated,[43] thou shalt fast four days. Thou shalt starve thy entrails; thou shalt parch thy lips.

"And when it is the day of the feast, at night thou shalt pierce thy tongue with straws and magney spines. With these thou shalt thus repent thy sins. These thou thus payest in blood.

"And thou shalt pass these straws, as many as thou wishest, whether straws or magney spines. And thou shalt pass these straws either through thy ears or through thy tongue.

"And thou shalt thus pass the straws through thy tongue; but take care lest thou do penance only to earn merit. Rather [thou shalt do it] to expiate thy sinful life; thou shalt offer blood for thy sins; [therefore] shalt thou break open thy tongue, inserting [the straw] from in front of thee.

"When thou drawest it through, thou shalt cast it down behind thee, either each one [alone] as thou takest it out, or else thou shalt gather them, binding them together, even four hundred [of them], even eight hundred of the straws, which thou shalt have passed through thy tongue.

"Then shalt thou cleanse thyself of thy faults and thy sins."

in momapaltitica, y macochetica, in teputzotica; ximotlapalo, ma timopinoqueza, ma titzicolo.

Nimã ãtlalqua in tlamacuhquj, omopaltema: njman izpan motlalia in tlapouhquj: qujlhuja, injc tevinjti, ynjc tepatiloti, ynjc ninipela.

Tomcujoa, tloquehe, nanaquehe: ca ticmocujlia, ca ticmocaqujtia, in njiaca in nopalanca: mjxpantzinco, njnopepetlaca, njnonamaxauja: ca onez, ca onjcchiub: cujx ichtaca, cujx tlaiocolaa, ca tezcac, ca tlavilpan in mjxpantzinco, yn onez.

Niman compeualtia: in jtlapilchioalix, vel iujn quenja cah, vel yujn quenja qujchiuh: yn maca çan cujcatl, cenca çan jvin cenoua, cencan yvin conjtoa, yn juh qujchiuh, in ienaca çan veli, cencan qujtocatiuh yn jtlachioal, yn juhuj cencan qujtocatiuh.

Auh yn otlamjto yn jtlatol, yno muchi qujto ytlachioal:

qujnanqujlia, yn tlapouhquj, yn jxtli, yn nacazdi muchioa, in teujujti, in tepatilloti: qujlhuja.

O ca ticmononochilia, ca ticmomaqujlia, in tloque nanaque, in motlachioal, in monequaviztec.

Auh ynjn, ca izca yn taix, yn tiechioaz: yn jquac temoa, yn jquac temo cioapipilti, anoçe yn jquac ynjlhujuh cioapipilti, yn jacujname: nauhjujti timoçaoaz, timocujtlaxculçaoaz, timotemoatzac.

Auh yn iquac vel jlhujti, in ie oallatujh, in inahica tiçacatlaçaz, titlacoqujztic: ynjn motlapilchioal, iuh tienamjctis y: auh ynjn iuh namjque ez y:

auh jn quenjn ticnequiz, iuh ticnequiz: ynela tiçacatlaçaz, ishoat! in teucalçacatl tiçujztic, anoçe tlacotl. Auh aço monacazco in titlaqujztic, anoçe momempilco.

Auh ynjc tiçujztic: ca amo ma çan titlamacoua, ca teuhtli, tlaçulli in tictlaça, tictlacoçoa, ticmjtlacuepouia, ỹ momempil, mjxpampa ticnequiz, mozintlan in tiçujztic, in tictlaçaz: aço çan cecen in tiçujztic, anoçe çan ticzmoqujztic, tictlatlaçalhuiz, yn aço centzontli, aço vntzontli, in tiçujztic tlacotl:

ic pilinix, in motlatlacul, in motlapilchioal, in momequal.

42. Cf. Note 34.

43. See Cap. X. The Cuaxtecs or Cuaspipilti were thought to be earth-goddesses who descended to earth in the form of eagles; they incited men to sin and crime.

And if the sins of the penitent were only light, [the priest] said unto him:

"Thou shalt parch thy lips, thou shalt fast, thou shalt starve thy entrails for four days."

Or else he said unto him:

"Thou shalt sing and dance [for the goddess]; thou shalt hang rubber-spotted papers [as offerings] and fashion images [for her]."

Or else, he said unto him:

"Thou hast done wrong, truly, with wine. Thou shalt satisfy the gods of wine, the Totochtin."

And he thus commanded him, and said unto him:

"When thou goest, when thou dost thy penance at night, thou shalt take nothing with thee. Thou shalt go naked. Thou shalt gird thy loins with paper painted with pointed figures,[64] spreading one piece behind thee [and one] at thy feet.

"And when thou shalt return, there before our lords, the gods, thou shalt cast off thy paper skirt."

And when he had done his penance, then he went to his house.

Thus in the end he changed to a good life. It was said that if he were to sin again—so it was said,—no longer might he gain mercy therefor.

It was said that they told only of great vanities, grave violence, adultery, [and only] the aged so spoke.

Thus the aged confessed—it was said—that they might not be punished here on earth for their sins; if they were adulterers, so that their heads might not be pierced, or beaten with stones, [therefore] they confessed.

The soothsayer, before whom were laid [one's] sins, nowhere spoke of what had been placed before him, of what had been said in secret.

For what was said in secret was not for him, but was given and told in secret to the god. And him mortal man might not see.

Auh intla çan xicca, yn jtlapilchioal, tlamacuhquj: 785
qujlhuja, timotenoztaz, titlacatlaquaz, timocujtlaxculçaoaz, 776
naujlhujd: 783
anoço qujlhuja
titlatocia, timoteteuhcaoaz, titepiquiz: 793

anoço qujlhuja.

ca nel vetli, yn jpan otitlaneçomalti, tiqujnequjxtiz in totochtin.

Auh qujlhuja, ynjc qujnaocetia:

yn iquac tiaz, yn titlamaceoaz ioaltica, atle motech vetztiaz, tipetlaubtiaz: yn momaxac, amatl tlaitzcopeoalli in mantiaz: centitl mjcampa, metzintlampa, mantiaz.

Auh yn jquac tioalmocuepaz, vmpa tocontlaçaz yn jmjxpan totecujooan, yn teteu, yn mamacue.

Auh yn jquac otlamaceuh, njman oalauh yn jchan:

ic cenmajan, monemjliacuepa: qujlmach intla oc cepa tlatlacoz, qujl ça aocmo tlaoculiloej.

Thus he said unto him:

"Thou shalt starve thy entrails for four days."

Or else he said unto him:

"Thou shalt sing and dance [for the goddess]; thou shalt hang rubber-spotted papers [as offerings] and fashion images [for her]."

Or else, he said unto him:

"Thou hast done wrong, truly, with wine. Thou shalt satisfy the gods of wine, the Totochtin."

And he thus commanded him, and said unto him:

"When thou goest, when thou dost thy penance at night, thou shalt take nothing with thee. Thou shalt go naked. Thou shalt gird thy loins with paper painted with pointed figures,[64] spreading one piece behind thee [and one] at thy feet.

"And when thou shalt return, there before our lords, the gods, thou shalt cast off thy paper skirt."

And when he had done his penance, then he went to his house.

Thus in the end he changed to a good life. It was said that if he were to sin again—so it was said,—no longer might he gain mercy therefor.

It was said that they told only of great vanities, grave violence, adultery, [and only] the aged so spoke.

Thus the aged confessed—it was said—that they might not be punished here on earth for their sins; if they were adulterers, so that their heads might not be pierced, or beaten with stones, [therefore] they confessed.

The soothsayer, before whom were laid [one's] sins, nowhere spoke of what had been placed before him, of what had been said in secret.

For what was said in secret was not for him, but was given and told in secret to the god. And him mortal man might not see.

Qujlmach çan yio vey nequalli, vey nequaujtectli, in tetlaximalizcti: in qujtoaia veuetque.

Jnjc moiolmelacaia veuetque: qujlmach, ichoatl, ynjc amo tracujtilouque, njcan tlaticpac, yn jntlapilchioal: yntla ostlaxini ynjc amo quatetlaxililoz, ynjc amo quatepitzinjloz, ynjc amo quatetzotzonaloz, moiolmelaoa. [684]

Jn tlapouhqui, yn jixpan tlalilo, tlapilchioalli: çan njman acan qujtoa, in tlein ixpan tlalilo, in tlein ilhujlo:

ipampa ca amo ish yn jlhujlo, in nonotzalo, ca tloque, ca naoque, in maco, in jlhujlo, in tlapilchioalli: ca amo ich motta, im macoalli.

Thirteenth Chapter, which relates of the little gods—the lesser [ones],[65] who were considered the very old gods.

Jnic matlactli vmey, capitulo: ynnchça tlatoa, yn tepiotoa teteuh: yn qujntoqujlia, yn omotenuhque, yn veuetitin teteuh. 776

Turquoise Lord (Xiuhtecutli)—the yellow-faced one, the holy flame. This one was known as fire, [as] the old god, [as] our father.

He was thought a god, considering that he burned one, he consumed one, he scorched the fields. And for many purposes he was useful; for [with fire, thus] one was warmed, things were cooked on a plate, things were cooked in a pot, pottery was fired, salt was burned, syrup was boiled, charcoal was burned, the lime was burned; things were fried, teutl ipan machoia: ishica, ca tetlatia, tepaloa, techichinoa, tlachinoa: yoan mjec tlamantli, ynjc tlacuelia: ca ic nescolo, ic tlapooazo, ic tlacuxitilo, ic tlaxco, ic istatlatilo, ic necutlatilo, ic tecullatilo, ic temeztlatilo, ic tlatetzoionjlo, yc tlatzoionjlo, ic tlatleoatzalo, yc tetlecujlolo, ic temazcallatilo, ic oxitlatilo, ic tlaxeztlatilo.

Xiuhtecutli: iacançuhquj, yoan cueçaltzin. Jehoatl motecaiotia in tletl, anoço veue teutl yoan toca:

64. The most characteristic emblem of Tlaqlhuaqui is a tlaitzcopeoalli—paper impressed with pointed figures (see Codex Borbonicus, month of Ochpaniztli). The paper loin cloth is no doubt of this same pattern. Probably the huipil worn by the goddess in the illustration (Plate LI) is a good indication of the design of the loin cloth.

65. Corresponding Spanish text has "que son menores en dignidad que los arriba dichos." fire-serpent earplugs; he carried a cape of yellow paper. Likewise he had turtle and sea-shells. His shield had pieces of turquoise and mirror-stone. He carried the staff with the device for seeing.

776

Fourteenth Chapter, which telleth of the god named Five Flower (Macuilxochitl) and Flower Prince (Xochipilli).

Equally were they worshipped as gods of the palace folk.

When people fasted, if one of us men lay with a woman, or a woman with a man, it was said: "They brought to naught their fasting through sin."

Thereupon [the god] gave them, as merited punishment, hemorrhoids, venereal sickness, boils, and piles.[72]

Therefore they would make vows to him, in order to quiet, remove, or abate the sickness.

And when his feast, which was called the Feast of the Flowers, was celebrated, first all fasted four days. Some fasted thus: they ate no chili, [and ate only] after midday, only once [a day]. Some went at midnight, and drank a gruel called "painted atolli," on which small flowers floated. [This was] "the fast of the flowers."

All who ate good things ate them only at midday. And some ate only one thing—tortillas of corn not softened by lime,[73] without chili; [this] also [they did] at midday.

On the fifth day, which was when the feast was celebrated, a man became the likeness [of the god], arrayed in [his] clothing, in which he danced; they beat the drum and sang for him.

And at midday, quail were sacrificed. All drew blood, passing straws through the tongue; and they laid as offerings in his temple, five tamales which they had made for him. These were called [bread for] fasting, [and were] very large. On them stood the flowery arrow.

Some thus offered their offering upon wooden plates, and followed it with five more small tamales with a sauce, and others [offered] two cakes made of a dough of amaranth seed and maize—one black, one red,—[instead of offerings of] rubber laid in wooden bowls.

And some [brought] toasted corn, or toasted corn mixed in honey; or S-shaped corn-cakes which were like notched staves or lightning-bolts; [or] butterfly-tortillas, tortillas of ground corn which had not been softened in lime; cakes made of a dough of amaranth seed and maize, and shaped like shields, arrows, swords, and darts.

And here, to Mexico, from everywhere, were brought captives, called "tribute-captives," [from] all warlike [places]

Juie matlactli vnnavi capitulo: itechpa tlatoa in teotl, yn itoca: macuilxochitl, yoan xochipilli.

Çan nemeuhque, ynjc netentilloia tecpantzinca intruh: 776 yn jquac neçaujlilloia, intla aca toqujchiti ipan cioacochiz, 688 anoço cioatl, ipan oqujchcochiz: mjtoaia, quindaçulmjctia 753 yn jnoçaoalitz, [785]

ic quitemacoaia, tetech qujdalaiaia, qujtilhujltiaia, qujtema- [834] ceualtiaia, in xochicuiztli, yn menexoalistli, tlapalanaltilirtli, quexiliuilirtli,

yuicpa netolea, nemeultiloia, ynjc qujcetuiz, ynjc qujquauiz ynjc qujcamoaz, cuculirtli.

Auh yn jquac ilhujqujxtililoia, ipan xochilhujtl: achtopa 776
navilhujtl nexochiçoalo: in cequjntin ic moçaoaia, chil- 796 cuoaia, qujnnepantla tonatiuh, in tlaquaia, centlaquaia.
ioalnepantla qujmattiuh, tlacujlolatulli in qujia, xochitontli [264] yn ipan ca, mouxchiçaoa:

muchi qujqua in velic, çan no nepantla tonatiuh qujmattiuh. Auh yn aca çan qujcaviaia, in iotlaxcalli qujquaia, atle chilli: no nepantla tonatiuh qujmattiuh:

yc tlamacujlti yn jlhujqujxtililoia, iquac ce tlacatl qujmixipclatiaia, conmaqujaia yn jtlatquj, ipan mjtotiaia, qujtlatzotzonjliaia, qujcujcaciaia:

yoan in ie nepantla tonatiuh, tlacotonaloia, neçuoaia, tlatoqujxtiloia: yoã tlamanjlilloia yn jxcupan, macujltetl in [785] qujchinjliaia, tamalli: mjtoaia tlacatlaqualli, cuaca vevey ipan ycatiuh xuchmjtl:

yn aca quauhcazitl ynjc conmanjliaia, yoan contoquiliaia 776 oc no macuiltetl tamalcpitzoua, mollotiuja: yoan vntetl [785] tzoalli yiol peujia, no cecnj quauhcazitica, mantivia, centetl 262
tiltic, centetl tlatlauhquj. 796

Auh yn aca izquitl, anoço necuzquitl, anoço xuxacujlli, papelotlaxcalli, iotlaxcalli, tzocallaxcalli, tzocalchimalli, tzocalmjtl, tzocalmaquauitl, tzocalmeztl:

yoan teoujian oalcaualoia, in mamalti ynçan mexico, 776 motenoua maltequjme, yn jxquich techiaoalotoc, yn 796

---

xuxacujlli—xuxacujlli, see arrow shafts or wooden darts, projecting forward above the frontal band on the side of the temple and exhibiting the xiuc xiuitl ("2 reed") or the macuilxochitl (five-flower) (see illus.). Sahagún: The Tonalamatl of the Aztec Collection, p. 75. Tlaxcuyoua, in the Aztec text, should probably be tlaxcuyoua.

72. Corresponding Spanish text reads: "heridas, con enfermedades, de las partes secretas, . . . almorranas, podredumbres del miembro secreto, diviesos, tiñosidad, etc."

73. In corresponding Spanish text: "pasas secas."

The third month they called Toçoztontli. On the first day of this month they observed a feast to the god named Tlaloc, who is the god of rain. On this feast they slew many children upon the mountains. They offered them as sacrifices to this god and to his companions, so that they would give them water.

Al tercero mes. llamavan toçoztontli: en el primer dia deste mes, hazian fiesta al dios llamado Tlaloc: que es dios de las pluujas. En esta fiesta, matauã muchos njños, sobre los montes: ofrecianlos en sacrificio a este dios, y a sus compañeros, para que los diessen agua.

796x [805 776]

Chapter 3
Toçoztontli

On this feast they offered the first fruits of the flowers which had bloomed earliest that year, on the pyramid named Yopico. And before they had offered them, none dared smell a flower.

Those in charge of the flowers, who are called xochimanque, celebrated a feast to their goddess, named Coatl icue, or by another name Coatlan tonan.

Likewise in this month, those who had worn the skins of the dead [sacrificial victims] whom they had flayed the previous month, took [them] off. They went to cast them into a cave in the pyramid which they called Yopico; they went in procession to do this, and [performed] many ceremonies. They went stinking like dead dogs. And after they had left them [in the cave], they washed themselves, [performing] many ceremonies. A number of the sick made vows to attend this procession, in order to recover from their sickness, and they say that some [of them] recovered.

The masters of the [sacrificed and flayed] captives, with all those of their households, did penance for twenty days: neither did they bathe nor wash their heads until the skins of the dead captives were deposited in the cave mentioned above. They said that they did penance for their captives.

After they had ended the penance, they bathed and washed themselves, and summoned all their kin and friends, and gave them food. And they performed many ceremonies with the bones of the dead captives.

1. Marginal notation: Apollo Arbor dies sua.

Cap. 3.
Toçoztontli.

1 c KL. c 14
2 d En esta fiesta: ofrecian las prjmicias d 15 [824
3 e de las flores, que aquel año primero e 16 346]
4 f nacian en el cu, llamado iopico: y f 17
5 g antes que las ofreciessen, nadie ossua g 18
6 A oler flor. A 19
7 b Los officiales de las flores, que se b 20
8 c llaman xochimanque: hazian fiesta, a c 21
9 d su diosa llamada Coatl ycue, y por otro d 22
10 e nombre coatlã tona. e 23
11 f Tambien en este mes: se desnu- f 24
12 g dauan, los q̃ trayan vestidos, los g 25
13 A pellejos de los muertos, q̃ aujan des- A 26
14 b ollado el mes pasado: yuanlos a echar b 27
15 c en vna cueua, en el cu, que llamauan c 28
16 d iopico: yuan a hazer esto, con pro- d 29
17 e cesion: y cõ muchas cerimonjas, yuan e 30
18 f hediendo, como perros muertos: y f 31
19 g despues que los aujan dexado: se g 1[1] [755]
20 A lauauan, con muchas cerjmonjas: A 2[2]
Algunos emfermos hazian voto, de hallarse presentes, a esta procesion, por sanar de sus emfermedades: y dizen, que algunos sanauan.

Los dueños de los catiuos, con todos los de su casa, hazian penjtencia, veynte dias: que nj se bañauan, nj se lauauan las cabeças: hasta que se ponjan los pellejos, de los captiuos muertos, en la cueua arriba dicha: dezian que hazian penjtencia, por sus captiuos.

796x 785 783

Despues que aujan acabado la penjtencia: bañauanse, y lauauanse, y combidauan a todos, sus parientes, y amigos, y dauanles comjda: y hazian muchas cerjmonjas, con los huesos, de los catiuos muertos.

2. Marginal notation: Mirror apjplause.

The fourth month they called Uei toçoztli. On the first day of this month they celebrated a feast in honor of the god named Cinteotl, whom they regarded as god of maize. In his honor they fasted four days before the arrival of the feast.

Al quarto mes llamauan, Vey toçoztli: en el primero dia deste mes: haziã fiesta a honrra del dios llamado Cinteutl, que le tenjan por dios de los mahizes: a honrra deste, ayunauan quatro dias, ante de llegar la fiesta.

[796] [805 776 785]

Chapter 4
Uei toçoztli

In this feast they placed reeds at the doors of the houses. They sprinkled them with the blood from their ears or from the calves of their legs. Besides these, the nobles and the rich set up in their houses some branches which they called acxoyatl. Likewise, they set up branches for their gods, and set forth flowers for [the gods] which each one had in his house.

After this, they went about the maize fields and brought stalks of the maize (which was still small), and they garnished them with flowers and went to place them before their gods, in the house called calpulli; and also they set food before them.

Having done this in the various suburbs, they went to the pyramid of the goddess whom they called Chicome coatl, and there, before her, they enacted skirmishes in the manner of battles. And all the girls bore upon their backs ears of maize [grown] the year before. They went in procession, to present them to the goddess Chicome coatl, and they returned them once more to their house[s] as blessed thing[s]; and from them they took the seed to plant next year. And also they put it [away] as the heart of the grain bins, because it was blessed.

They made of dough (which they call tzoalli) the image of this goddess in the courtyard of her pyramid; and before her they offered all kinds of maize, and all kinds of beans, and all kinds of chia. For they said that she was the maker and giver of all those things which are the necessaries of life, that the people may live.

1. Marginal notation: Sacrificios usados en Indi pueblo.

Cap. 4.
Vey toçoztli

1 b KL. b 3
2 c En esta fiesta, ponjan espadañas a c 4 [785]
3 d las puertas de las casas ensangrenta- d 5
4 e uanlas, con sangre de las orejas, o de e 6
5 f las espinjllas: los nobles y los ricos, f 7
6 g de mas de las espadañas, enrramauan g 8
7 A sus casas, con vnos ramos, que llaman A 9
8 b acxoatl. Tambien enrramauan a sus b 10
9 c dioses, y las ponjan flores a los que cada c 11
10 d vno tenja en su casa. d 12
11 e Despues desto, yuan por los ma- e 13
12 f hizales, y trayan cañas de mahiz (que f 14
13 g aun estaua pequeño) y componjanlas g 15
14 A con flores y yuanlas a poner delante de A 16
15 b sus dioses, a la casa que llamauan b 17
16 c calpulli: y tambien ponjan comjda c 18
17 d delante dellos. d 19
18 e Despues de echo esto, en los barrios: e 20 [776]
19 f yuan al cu, de la diosa, que llamauan f 21
20 g chicome coatl: y alli delante della g 22[1] hazian escaramuças a manera de pelea: y todas las muchachas lleuauan a cuestas, maçorcas de mahiz del año passado: yuan en procesion, a presẽtarlas, a las diosa chicome coatl: y tornauanlas otra vez a su casa como cosa bendita, y de alli tomauan la semjlla, para sembrar el año venjdero: y tambien ponjanlo por coraçon, de las trojes, por estar bendito. [241]

Hazian de masa (que llaman tzoalli) la ymagen desta diosa, en el patio de su cu, y delante della: ofrecian todo genero de mahiz, y todo genero de frisoles, y todo genero de chien: porque dezian, que ella era la autora, y dadora de aquellas cosas, que son mantenjmjentos, para biujr la gente. [778]

The sixth month they called Etzalqualiztli. On the first day of this month they observed a feast to the rain gods. In honor of these gods, the priests of these gods fasted before their feast came for four days, which are the four last days of the previous month.

Al sexto mes llamauan Etzalqualiztli: en el primero dia deste mes: hazian fiesta a los dioses de la pluuja: a honrra destos dioses, ayunauã los sacerdotes destos dioses: quatro dias antes de llegar a su fiesta, que son los quatro postreros dias del mes pasado.

Chapter 6
Etzalqualiztli

In order to celebrate this feast, the priests and servants of the idols went to Citlaltepec for reeds; for they grew very large and handsome in the waters called Temilco. From there they brought them to Mexico to adorn the pyramids. On the road which they took, no one appeared; all wayfarers hid themselves, for fear of them. And if they came upon one, they took from him whatever he had, even leaving him naked. And if he resisted, they belabored him such that they left him for dead. And even if he bore tribute for Moctezuma, they took it from him. And for this they visited upon them no punishment; because, since they were servants of the idols, they had license to do these things, and others [even] worse, with no punishment. Many other ceremonies the priests of the temple performed in these four days, which are put forth at length in the account of the feast.

On the arrival of the feast of Etzalqualiztli, everyone made a kind of gruel or porridge which is called etzalli (a delicious food, which they liked well). All ate in their houses, and gave [of it] to those who came, and did a thousand follies on this day.

On this same feast, they punished terribly servants of the idols guilty of committing some fault in their service; [they mishandled] them in the water of the lagoon to such a point that they left them for dead. And thus they left them there at the edge of the water. From there their parents or relatives took them and carried them to their houses, half dead.

On this same feast they slew many captives and

Cap. 6:
Etzalqualiztli.

1 g KL.
2 A Para la celebracion desta fiesta: los 3 b satrapas de los ydolos y sus mjnjstros.
4 c yvã por junças a Citlaltepec: que se
5 d hazẽ muy grãdes y muy hermosas en
6 e vn agua que se llama temjlco, de alli
7 f las trayan a Mexico: para adornar los 8 g cues, por el camjno donde venjã, nadie
9 A parecia: todos los camjnãtes se ab-
10 b scondian de mjedo dellos, y si con
11 c alguno encõtrauã: tomauãle quãto
12 d traya hasta dexalle en pelo, y si se
13 e defendia: maltratauãle de tal manera
14 f q̃ le dexauã por muerto: y aunque
15 g lleuasse el tributo para Motecuçoma se
16 A le tomauan: y por esto njnguna pena
17 b las dauã: porque por ser mjnjstros de 18 c los ydolos, tenjã libertad para hazer
19 d estas cosas, y otras peores sin pena njn-20 e guna. Otras muchas cerimonjas hazian los satrapas del templo en estos quatro dias que estan a la larga puestas en la historia desta fiesta.

Allegada la fiesta de Etzalqualiztli: todos haziã vna manera de puchas o poleadas que se llama Etzalli (comjda delicada a su gusto) todos comjan en su casa, y dauan a los que venjan, y hazian mjll locuras en este dia.

En esta mesma fiesta, a los mjnjstros de los ydolos que avian hecho algun defecto en el serujcio dellos: castigauanlos terriblemẽte en el agua de la laguna tãto que los dexauã por muertos: y assi los dexauã alli a la orilla del agua: de alli los tomauã sus padres o parientes, y los lleuauã a sus casas medio muertos.

En este mjsmo mes matauã muchos cativos y otros

1. Marginal notations: fasting for four days.

The fourteenth month they named Quecholli. They observed a feast to the god name Mixcoatl. And in this month they made arrows and darts for war. They slew many slaves in honor of this god.

Al quarto decimo mes llamauan Quecholli: hazian fiesta al dios llamado Miscoatl: y en este mes hazian saetas y dardos para la guerra: matauã a honrra deste dios muchos esclauos.

411
796x
[805
776]

Chapter 14
Quecholli

When they made the arrows, for a space of five days all took blood from the ears, and [with] the blood which they pressed out of them they anointed their own temples. They said that they did penances in order to go to hunt deer. From those who did not bleed themselves, they took their capes as punishment. No man lay with his wife on those days; neither did the old men nor the old women drink wine; because they did penance.

At the end of the four days during which they made the arrows and darts, they made a number of very small arrows, and bound them in four's with each [bundle of] four torches. And, a small bundle of the four torches and the four arrows being made, they offered them upon the graves of the dead. They placed also, along with the arrows and torches, two tamales. All this remained for a whole day upon the grave, and at night they burned it and performed many other ceremonies for the dead on this same feast.

On the tenth day of this month, all the Mexicans and Tlatelulcans went to those mountains which they call Çacatepec. And they say that this mountain is their mother. On the day that they arrived, they made huts or cabins of grass, and they lit fires, and nothing else did they do that day.

Next day, at dawn, all forthwith broke fast and set out for the country and formed a great wing, wherewith they surrounded many animals—deer, rabbit, and other animals—and little by little they kept coming together until they rounded up all of them. Then they attacked and hunted, each one what he could.

1. Marginal notation: Nonumber he dier ses.

Cap. 14
Quecholli.

1 f KL
2 g Quando hazian las saetas por espa-
3 A cio de cinco dias: todos se sangrauan
4 b de las orejas y la sangre que esprimjan
5 c dellas: vntauanla por sus mesmas si-
6 d enes. Dezian que hazian penjtencias
7 e para yr a caçar venados: los que no se
8 f sangrauan, tomauanles las mantas en
9 g pena: njngun hombre se echaua con
10 A su muger en estos dias, nj los viejos ni
11 b viejas beujan pulcre: porque hazian
12 c penjtencia.
13 d Acabados los quatro dias en que ha-
14 e zian las saetas y dardos: haziã vnas
15 f saetas chiqujtas y atauanlas de quatro
16 g en quatro con cada quatro teas: y assi
17 A hecho vn manogico de las quatro teas,
18 b y de las quatro saetas, ofrecianlas so-
19 c bre los sepulchros de los muertos: pon-
20 d jan tambien juntamente con las saetas
y teas dos tamales: estaua todo esto vn dia entero sobre la sepultura, y a la noche lo quemauan: y hazian otras muchas cerimonjas por los defũtos en esta mesma fiesta.

f 20
g 21
A 22
b 23
c 24
d 25
e 26
f 27
g 28
A 29
b 30
c 31
d 1[1]
e 2
f 3
g 4
A 5
b 6
c 7
d 8

796x
[785]
[834
273]
765
796x

A los diez dias deste mes yvan todos los Mexicanos y Tlatelulcanos a aquellos montes que llaman Çacatepec: y dizen que es su madre aquel monte, el dia que llegauan hazian xacales o cabañas de heno, y hazian fuegos y njnguna otra cosa hazian aquel dia.

796x
[778
342]

Otro dia en amaneciendo luego almorçauan todos, y salian al campo y hazian vna ala grande: donde cercauan muchos anjmales, cieruos, conejos, y otros anjmales y poco a poco se yvan juntando hasta acorralarlos todos: entonce arremetian y caçauan cada a qual lo que podia.

796x
224

The fifteenth month they named Panquetzaliztli. In this month they celebrated a feast to the god of war, Uitzilopochtli. Before this feast, the priests of the idols fasted for forty days and performed other severe penances, like going naked at midnight to carry branches to the mountains. Etc.

"Al quinzeno mes llamauan Panquetzaliztli: En este mes haziã fiesta al dios de la guerra Vitzilobuchtli: antes desta fiesta los satrapas de los ydolos ayunauan quarenta dias y hazian otras penitencias asperas como era yr a la media noche desnudos a lleuar ramos a los montes. Etc.

796X
805
776
785

Chapter 15
Panquetzaliztli

On the second day of this month all began to perform a dance and to sing the canticles of Uitzilopochtli in the the courtyard of his pyramid. Men and women danced, all together. They began these canticles in the afternoon, and they ended at nearly ten o'clock. These dances and songs lasted twenty days.

On the ninth day of this month, they adorned, with great ceremonies, those whom they were to slay. They painted them in various colors; they decked them in many papers. Finally they performed a dance with them, in which went a woman paired with a man, singing and dancing.

On the sixteenth day of this month, the owners of the slaves began a fast; and on the nineteenth day, they began to perform a number of dances in which all, men and women, went grasping hands, and they danced winding back and forth in the courtyard of the aforementioned pyramid. A number of old men sang, and played [instruments] while the others danced.

After those who were to die had performed many ceremonies, there came down from the pyramid of Uitzilopochtli one attired in the ornaments of the god Paynal, and he slew four of those slaves in the ball court which was found in the courtyard which they called Teotlachtli. From there he departed and circled all the city, running; and in certain places he slew, in each one, a slave. And from that point [onward], two factions began a mock battle. Some died in the skirmishing.

Cap. 15.
Panquetzaliztli.

1 e KL. e 9[1]
2 f El segundo dia deste mes començauã f 10
3 g todos a hazer areyto, y a cantar los can- g 11
4 A tares de Vitzilobuchtli, en el patio de A 12
5 b su cu, baylauan hombres y mugeres to- b 13
6 c dos juntos: comẽçauan estos cantares c 14
7 d a la tarde, y acabauan cerca de las diez: d 15
8 e durauan estos bayles y cantos veinte e 16
9 f dias. f 17
10 g A los nueue dias deste mes: apare- g 18
11 A jauã cõ grandes cerimonjas a los que A 19
12 b aujan de matar pintauanlos de diuersas b 20
13 c colores, componjãlos con muchos pa- c 21
14 d peles: al fin hazian vn areyte con ellos, d 22
15 e en el qual vyan vna muger y vn hom- e 23
16 f bre pareados cantando y bayldo. f 24
17 g A los deziseys dias deste mes: co- g 25
18 A mençauã a ayunar los dueños de los A 26
19 b esclauos y a los dezinueue dias, comen- b 27
20 c çauan a hazer vnas danças en que yvan c 28
todos asidos de las manos hombres y mugeres, y dançauan culebreãdo en el patio del dicho cu, cantauã y tañjan vnos viejos entre tanto que los otros dancauan.

Despues de auer hecho muchas cerimonjas los que avian de morir decendian del cu de Vitzilobuchtli, vno vestido con los ornamẽtos del dios Paynal, y mataua quatro de aquellos esclauos en el juego de pelota que estaua en el patio que llamauã teutlachtli: de alli yva y cercaua toda la ciudad corriendo, y en ciertas partes mataua en cada vno vn esclauo: y de alli començauan a escaramuçar dos partialidades, murian algunos en la escaramuça.

796X
535
[302]
796X
[535]
[346]
[726]

1. Marginal notation: Dedicatio Templi added.

The five remaining days of the year, which are the four last of January and the first of February, they named Nemontemi, which meaneth barren days. And they regarded them as unlucky and of evil fortune. There is conjecture that when they pierced the boys' and girls' ears, which was every four years, they set aside six days of Nemontemi, and it is the same as the bissextile which we observe every four years.

A los cinco dias restantes del año que son los quatro vltimos de Enero y el primero de hebrero llamauan Nemontemi, que quiere dezir dias valdios: y tenjanlos por aziagos y de mala fortuna: ay conjectura que quando agujerauan las orejas a los njños y njñas que era de quatro en quatro años, echauan seys dias de Nenontemj y es lo mjsmo del bisexto que nosotros hazemos de quatro en quatro años.

796x 777 [805] [304]

Chapter 19

These five days they held as of evil fortune and unlucky. They said that those who were born in them had evil outcomes in all their affairs, and were poor and wretched. They named them Nemo. If they were men, they named them Nemoquich; if it was a woman, they named her Nenciuatl. They dared do nothing in these days, because they were unlucky. Especially did they abstain from quarreling, because they said that those who quarreled in these days always remained with that custom. They held as a bad omen stumbling in these days.

These aforementioned feasts were fixed, and were always observed within the month, or a day or two ahead. Other feasts they had [which were] movable, which were celebrated during the course of the twenty signs, which made a round in two hundred and sixty days. And hence these movable feasts, in a year, fell one in one month, and another in another, and always varied.

Capi. 19.

1 A Estos cinco dias tenjan por malafor- A 28
2 b tunados y aziagos: dezian que los que b 29
3 c en ellos nacian tenjan malos successos c 30
4 d en todas sus cosas, y eran pobres y mj- d 31
seros llamauanlos Nemo, si eran hombres llamauanlos Nenoquich, y si era muger llamauala Nencioatl, no osauan hazer nada en estos dias por ser malafortunados: especialmente se abstenjan de reñjr: porque dezian que los que reñjan en estos dias se quedauã siempre con aquella costumbre tenjan por mal aguero tropeçar en estos dias.

[551] [578] [787]

Estas fiestas dichas eran fixas que siempre se haziã dentro del mes o vn dia o dos adelante: Otras fiestas tenjan moujbles que se hazian por el curso de los veinte signos: los quales hazian vn circulo en dozientos y sesenta dias: y por tanto estas fiestas moujbles vn año cayan en vn mes y otro en otro y siempre variauan.

Of the Movable Feasts

The first movable feast was celebrated in honor of the sun, in the sign which is named ce ocelotl, in the fourth house, which is named naui ollin. On this feast they offered, to the image of the sun, quail, and they offered incense. And at noon they slew captives before it in honor of the sun. On this same day, all drew blood from their ears—children and those who were grown—in honor of the sun, and they offered it that blood.

De las fiestas moujbles.

La primera fiesta moujble se celebraua a honrra del sol en el signo que se llama ce ocelutl, en la quarta casa que se llama naolin: en esta fiesta ofrecian a la ymagen del sol codornjzes y incensauan: y en el medio matauã capitnos delante della a honrra del sol. En este mesmo dia se sangrauan todos de las orejas chicos y grãdes a hõrra del sol y le ofrecian aquella sangre.

796x [776] [785]

The Second Movable Feast

In this same sign, in the seventh house, all the painters and the seamstresses celebrated a feast. They

La segunda fiesta moujble.

En este mjsmo signo en la septima casa haziã fiesta todos los pintores, y las labrãderas ayunauã quarẽta

785 796x 463

785 fasted, [some] for forty days, others for twenty, in x 796 order to prevail over chance, in order to paint well 463 and to weave textiles well. For this purpose they offered quail and incense, and performed other ceremonies—the men to the god Chicome xochitl, and the women to the goddess Xochiquetzal.

dias, otros veinte por alcançar ventura para pintar bien y para tezer bien labores, offrecian a este proposito codornizes y encienso, y haziã otras cerimonjas los hombres al dios Chicome xochitl y las mugeres a la diosa Sochiquetzal.

The Third Movable Feast

x 796 In the third sign, which is called ce maçatl, in the [776] first house, they celebrated a feast to the goddesses who are named Cioapipilti, because they said that [289] then they came down to the earth. They adorned their images with papers and offered them offerings.

La tercera fiesta mouible.

En el tercero signo que se llama ce maçatl: en la primera casa hazian fiesta a las diosas que se llaman cioapipilti porque dezian que entonce decendian a la tierra, atauiauã a sus ymagines con papeles, y ofrecianlas ofrendas.

The Fourth Movable Feast

x 796 In the sign which is called ce maçatl, in the second 273 house, which is called ome tochtli, they celebrated a great feast to the god named Izquitecatl, who is the [776] second god of wine: and not alone to him but to all the gods of wine, who were many. On this day they adorned his image very well on his pyramid, and offered him things to eat, and they sang and played [musical instruments] before him. And in the court-
[463] yard of his pyramid they set a large open jar of wine, and those who were wine merchants filled it to overflowing, and all who wished went to drink. They had [415] some canes through which they drank. The wine sellers kept feeding the large jar, so that it was always full. Mostly, those who had newly cut the maguey did this. The first syrup which they took out they took to the house of this god as first fruits.

La quarta fiesta mouible

En el signo que se llama ce maçatl: en la segunda casa que se llama vme tochtli: hazian gran fiesta al dios llamado Yzquitecatl, que es el segundo dios del vino, y no solamente a el: pero a todos los dioses del vino que eran muchos: adereçavan este dia muy bien su ymagen en su cu, y ofrecianle cosas de comida, y cantauan, y tañjan delante del: y en el patio de su cu, ponjan vn tinajon de pulcre, y hinchianle los que eran taberneros hasta reberter, y yuan a beuer todos los que querian: tenjan vnas cañas con que beujã: los taberneros yuan cetando el tinajon: de manera que siempre estaua lleno: principalmente hazian esto los q̃ de nueuo aujan cortado el maguey, la primera agua mjel que sacauan la lleuauan a la casa deste dios como primjcias.

The Fifth Movable Feast

x 796 In the sign called ce xochitl, in the first house, they celebrated a great feast. The leading men and the lords danced and sang in honor of this sign, and they [301] otherwise made merry. And then they brought forth the richest feathers, with which they adorned themselves for the dance. In this feast the lord gave gifts [432] to the warriors and to the singers and to the palace foll.

La quinta fiesta moujble

En el signo llamado ce xochitl: en la primera casa, hazian gran fiesta, los principales, y señores, baylauan, y cantauan a honrra deste signo, y hazian otros regozijos: y sacauan entonce los mas ricos plumajes, con que se adereçauan para el areyto: y en esta fiesta, el señor hazia mercedes a los hombres de guerra, y a los cantores y a los del palacio.

The Sixth Movable Feast

In the sign named ce acatl, in the first house, the lords and the leading men celebrated a great festival [346] to Quetzalcoatl, god of the winds. This feast they observed in the house called calmecac, which was the house where dwelt the priests of the idols, and where were trained the boys. In this house, which was like

La sexta fiesta mouible

En el signo llamado ce acatl: en la primera casa, hazian gran fiesta a quetzalcoatl dios de los vientos: los señores y principales: esta fiesta hazian en la casa llamada calmecac, que era la casa donde morauan los satrapas de los ydolos: y donde se criauan los muchachos, en esta casa que era como vn mones-

Then the mother of the young man placed a very fine shift upon her daughter-in-law, and put for her, by her feet, a richly embroidered skirt. And the mother of the young woman covered her son-in-law with a very fine cape, and tied it over his shoulder, and laid a very richly embroidered breech clout at his feet. This done, a number of old women, who are called tiici, tied the corner of the young man's cape to the lower part of the young woman's shift. In this way was concluded the marriage, with many other ceremonies, and dinings, and drinking, and dances, which were given thereafter, as is contained in the account of the marriages.

matrimonjo, con otras muchas cerimonjas, y comeres, y beueres, y bayles, que despues se hazian, como se contiene, en la historia del matrimonjo. 585 302 292

They observed two other feasts which in part were fixed and in part were movable. They were movable because they were celebrated in interpolated years. One was observed every four years, and the other every eight years. They were fixed because they had year, month, and day assigned. In the one which was celebrated every four years, they pierced the ears of the boys and the girls, and they performed for them ceremonies for good growth, and they purified them over the fire. In the one which they celebrated every eight years, they fasted before it for eight days on bread and water, and enacted a dance in which they assumed the forms or characters of various birds and animals. And they said that they sought good fortune, as is set forth in the appendix of the Second Book.

These movable feasts, in some years, displace the feasts of the calendar, as also happeneth in our calendar.

Otras dos fiestas tenjan, que en parte eran fixas, y en parte eran moujbles: erãn moujbles, porque se hazian por años interpolados. La vna se hazia, de quatro en quatro años, y la otra de ocho en ocho años: eran fixas porque tenjan año, mes, y dia señalados. En la que se hazia, de quatro en quatro años, horadauan las orejas a los njños o njñas: y hazianlos, las cerimonjas, de crezca para bien, y lustrauanlos por el fuego. En la que hazian, de ocho en ocho años: ayunauan antes della, ocho dias a pan y agua, y hazian vn areyto, en que tomauan figuras, o personajes, de diuersas aues y anjmales: y dezian que buscauan ventura, como esta escrito, en el apendiz del segundo libro. 796 [304 854] [535 785]

Estas fiestas mouibles en algunos años echan de su lugar a las fiestas del kalendario: como tambien acontece, en nuestro kalendario.

Twenty-third Chapter, which telleth of the feast and of the honors which they performed on the feast day in the fourth month, which was known as Uei toçoztli.[1]

This [feast of] Uei toçoztli was thus carried out: to begin with, for four days there was fasting in the houses. [There] the young men set up the cattails,[2] covered and sprinkled with blood, everywhere [in the houses].

They arranged them all in the houses, and offered, erected, and set up, the cattails before their gods; they cut, severed, and reaped [the grass] near the [white] ends. These [ends] they anointed with blood.

And anyone [who was a] young man drew blood, quite of his own will, from his leg or from his ears.

And where there were riches, where there was prosperity—in the houses of the lords, the leaders, the chiefs, the merchants, [the youths] laid out [a bed of] fir branches[3] for the cattails, and balls of grass whose outer edges were woven into a fringe.

In the middle of these they placed maguey[4] thorns; these they set on them, also anointed and sprinkled with blood, at eventide, when a little sun [still shone], when the sun had not yet entered his house. Then they made their offerings.

And at night, the women made [a gruel of ground maize called] atolli—either a thick, white atolli[4] or an atolli made of a dough of maize softened with lime, or a fruit atolli.[5] This atolli was known as aquetzalli.

Then they swept their tribal temple. And when they had swept, then they poured the atolli into the atolli vessels.

It spread out shining; it spilled over, sending off heat; its vapor diffused. And when it had cooled, Jnic cẽpoualli omei capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa in ilhujtl: yoan in tlamauiztililiztli, in qujchioaia, yn jpan ic cemilhujtl, yc nauj metztli: in mitoaia vey toçoztli.

Inin vey toçoztli, ynic muchioaia, oc achtopa naujlhujtl neçaoalo, in techachan: qujquequetza telpopochti tolpactli, tlachezujlli, hezaço, tlaezçotilli noujã: qujcentzacutimanca, in techacha, ymixpan qujmamanaia , qujquequetzaia, qujtitilquetzaia, yn jnteuoan in tolpactli, qujtzinichpeloa qujtacaloa, qujtzinixcoloa, vncan conalaoa in eztli.

Auh in eztli, çan teiollotlama, yn aqujn telpuchtli, itech qujqujxtiaia, ytlanitzco, anoço ynacaztitech.

Auh in necujltonoloia, in netlacamachoia: yn aço tetecuti, teiacanque, achcacauhti, puchteca, yn inchachan cacxoiatema, in tolpatlactli, çacatapaiolli, tlatenvimololli, tlatenxinepanolli:

tlanepantla qujtlalia: vitztli, itech qujmamana no tlaezujlli, tlaezçotilli teutlacpa, oc achiton tonatiuh, iquac yn aiamo vncalaquj tonatiuh, in qujmamanaia.

Auh in ioaltica, yn oqujchiubque cioa atolli: aço quauhnexatolli, anoço nextamalatolli, anoço xocoatolli: injn atolli moteneoa, aquetzalli:

njman ie ic tlatlachpana yn jncalpulco. Auh yn otlachpanque njmã ie ic qujteteca in atolli, izqujatecomac, vel pepeiontimanj, pepetlantimanj, totontlapetztic, hypotoc quiztimanj: auh yn oceuh, yn oitztix, yn

---

1. Great Vigil (Gran Velada), according to Gerbner (op. cit., p. 294). Durán (op. cit., Vol. II, p. 274) refers to Uey toçoztli as gran pascuala, and to Tepeilhuitl as "pascuaderilla . . . porque antiba pasada esta alguna cosa de una parte á otra."

2. Sahagún describes these as cañabolas. Cf. Historia general de las cosas de Nueva España (Mexico: Pedro Robredo, 1938), Vol. III, p. 272. Seler, in Collected Works, Vol. II, Pt. 4, p. 74, has Bumskopfe (Typha sp.), and in Einige Kapitel, p. 83, n. 1, offers Rohrkolben or Kolbenrohr as alternatives.

3. Pin—Abies religiosa (H. B. K.) Lehmbr. & Chase, in Clark's Mendoza Codex (James Cooper Clark, ed. and tr.; London: Waterlow and Sons, 1938), Vol. II, p. 72; pine, in Seler, Collected Works, Vol. II, Pt. 4, p. 83, citing Molina (abeto, árbol de que se cuece el olio de abeto) and Hernández (Madrid, 1790, I, 24)—"arbor est conifera et cernua, Abiati nostrati sat similis, sed congenor." He equates ocuxiuit with cypressus, as does Gerbner (Libro del calendario, p. 212). Sahagún used the term laurel silvestre; Seler says, and adds that ocuxiuit was a name given to a variety of green branches. It is pictured in No. 377 of Pasc y Troncoso's edition of the Historia de las cosas de Nueva España, Vol. VII (Lib. XI).

4. Agave americana or century plant. The Mexican name maguey is used in this translation.

5. Sahagún, in op. cit., Vol. II, p. 306: "quauhnexatolli, que es hecho con harina cruda y muy blanca, hecho con tequisquitl." In Einige Kapitel, p. 84, Seler speculates that the grains of maize were "mit Pottasche gebrühen."

6. A sour gourd, in Seler, loc. cit. Gerbner (op. cit.) states that an acid fruit, such as tamarin, was used.

X796 he offered incense; he went forth to stand outside the entrance; he went forth to stand in the courtyard.

in itlema: njman ic ic tlenamaca, qujiaoac oalmoquetza, itoalco oalmoquetza:

The fire priest[7] raised it to the four directions. And having done so, he cast the coals in the brazier; he then went in, and placed himself by the fire.

nauhcampa in conjaoa yn tlenamacac: auh in ic iuhquj, contema tlequazco tlexochtli, mec calaquj, onmotlalia tlecujlixquac:

[262] Then in his turn he laid down four balls of dough made of maize, placing them very cautiously, very heedfully, very warily. If one [of the balls] rolled, then they seized him; he was apprehended. The priests said unto him:

vncan contema nauhtetl ynepapatlaia, ventelolotli, cencan tlamatzin, cencan juja, cencan matca in contlalia: intla centetl oqujmjmjlo, ic caci, yc axioa, conjlhuja in tlamacazque.

"We priests have detained thee, for thou hast rolled [it]."

Otimjtzacique tlamacazque, ca otitlamjmjlo.

And the fire priest then entered [the temple]. Thereupon he sat down, and undid and removed [his adornment]. Then all the priests arranged themselves in front, and one by one, in turn, they placed on the ground the balls of dough.

Auh in tlenamacac, mec calaquj: njman ic motlatlalia, moxixitinja, moueueloa; njman ic onmoiacatia yn ixqujchtin tlamacazque, cecciaca cõtlalitimanj yn jnnepapatlaia, in ventelolotli.

[824 262] And some laid down four large, red and white tomatoes, or four small tomato buds;[8] and some spread out four green peppers.

Auh in cequjnti xitomatl, anoço izoztomatl in concaoaia nauhtetl: auh in cequjntin chilchotl in contemaia, nauj:

They were watched well; all looked very closely, all observed carefully, lest mayhap one might roll one [of them]—lest perchance one might move or displace it or disturb it with his hand or displace it with his hand. And if anyone knocked [one of them], they laid hands upon him, they discovered him, they made him known, they marked him.

cenca vellachielo, vel neixpetzolo, vel neixpepetzalo, yn açaca tlamjmjlozc, yn açaca tlaoliniz, yn açaca tlamapetoniz, yn açaca tlamazopeoaz. Auh intla aca otlamjmjlo, caci, conjximati, conmachiotia:

And if they noted on one [even] a little dirt, or a cobweb, or a small piece of cotton on either his head or his cape, then they seized him and marked him. Perchance one stumbled, slipped, or fell down. All [such malefactors] were seized.

yoan intla aca ytech qujttazque, tlaçoltontli, anoço tocatzaoalli, anoço ichcatontli: aço icpac, anoço itilmatitech, ic caci, conmachiotia: anoçe motepotlamja, moticujnja, anoço motlaujtequj, muchi ic neaxioa:

Four days this was done, and four nights, that all acted with prudence.

naujlhujtl ynjn muchioaia, yoã nauhioal, in nematcanemoaia.

And after that the old priests[9] took away [the offerings]. They took for themselves what they wished [of the offerings], and ate them. Four days they took for themselves those things which had been laid as offerings.

Auh in ie iuhquj, njman ic quiquanja in quaquacujlti: qujmocujlia intech monequj, qujqua: naujlhujtl in qujmocujliaia, in motlaueuenjaia:

[262]

And when it was not yet midnight, then shell trumpets were blown. And when they were blown, then all unclothed themselves and cut maguey spines and pierced their ears with thorns. Thereupon were the spines stained with blood, and all [the priests] were smeared with blood. And they all arose.

auh yn aismo onaci ioalnepantla, mec tlapitzalo: auh yn ontlapitzaloc, njman ic nepepetlaoalo, yoan neuitzteco, yoan nenacazteco: njman ic ic mezuja in vitztli, yoan neçua: auh in ic iuhquj mec nequetzalo.

[793]

7. Sahagún (Bustamante ed., Vol. 1, p. 299) distinguishes three grades of priests—"tlamacazque (que) es como sacerdote; . . . tlamacazque, que es como diácono; . . . tlamacazcac, que es como acólito. De estos sacerdotes los mayores eligían por sumos pontífices. . . ."

8. Izoztomatl: leaf (Molina, op. cit.), or species of tomato (Simeon, op. cit.).

9. In the corresponding Spanish text, Sahagún describes "unos viejos, que llamaban quaquacujilti: los quales traían los curos vejidos de ungre, remendados: eshos en la cerimonia de la cabeça, que tenía los cabellos largos, el resto de los sacrificios."

handled them and cast them to the ground. If somewhere there was a puddle of water, there they cast them down and slid and rolled them, leaving them to wallow in the mud, covered with mire. Just so they forced them to the banks of the lake, to the place where they dragged people to the water, at a place called Tosecco.

And when they had arrived there, the [chief] fire priest and the other fire priests thereupon [sacrificially] burned the papers and the gods molded in incense, and those formed of rubber. And the incense they scattered in various directions and spread over each of the reed mats.

And when this was done, it was as if they wounded the water when they cast [their captives] into the water. Like a roaring host the water stormed and rose. And if any tried to come out from under the water, they plunged him under, [so that] he sank deep.

And if any were experienced in water, when [the captors] had submerged them, they fared well.[23] They came out of the water at a distance, and then took off, fleeing and escaping.

And some, in truth, [the captors] caused to faint, and verily they swooned. Indeed, they left them, hurt, truly as if dead, laid out at the water's edge.

And some, who had swallowed much water—this bitter water—[their friends] held head down, that [the water] which they had swallowed might come out through their noses and mouths.

And when all this had come to pass, then all turned back, all returned again, blowing their conch shells as they went.

And those who had been cast into the water went only to their houses; their kinfolk accompanied them. They went sickened, trembling, shivering, that at home they might recover.

And when [the priests] had reached their houses, again were laid and spread out the mats of green and white reeds. And also were strewn about reeds. Here again began the fast named "the day fast." Also there was fasting for four days. Not now was one detained [for misdemeanors]; nor did they now eat [only at midday].

At this time they began the [priests'] varied adornment. The novice priests aided the priests in their arraying. They prepared all the divers paper vestments tlacana manj quiaoatl, vmpa quimontlaça vmpa quinpepetzcoa, quinmjmjlloa, quinçoquipetzcotinemj, quiçoquinelotinemj, çan iuh quimonaxitia yn atenco, in teatlan papacholoian, itocaiocan tosecco. 796X

Auh yn iquac yn onazioac in tlenamacac, yoan oc cequintin tletlenamacaque, njman ie ic quitlatia yn amatl, yoan copalteteu, yoan vlteteu: yoan yn jiauhtli, quitetepeua, quicecenmana in tolpepechpan.

Auh yn iquac muchioa y, yn atl iuhquin tzoponti-manj, ynic teatlan papacholo: iuhquin tlacaoacatimanj, vel macoquetza yn atl: auh yn aca oalpanuetziznequj conpolactia, centlanj iuh.

Auh yn aca amatinj, yn oconpolactique, çan ic ceniauh, vecan onpauetzi, njman ic choloa, moieltia, momaquixtia:

auh in cequintin vel quimjhiiocaoaltia vel çoçotlaoa, ça mjmjcque in quincaoa, ça q'nmictoccaoa atenco quinoalitetema:

auh in cequintin oquitotoloque atl, in chichic atl, quintzonixpiloua ic oalquiça, yn iniacac yn jncamac, yn oquitotoloca.

Auh in ie iuhquj njman ic oalujloua, icujtlaujc oalujloa oc cepa oallapiztiuj:

auh yn ontlanpapacholoque, çan inchan vihuj, quinujujoca in inchantlaca, cocoztiuj, viujujzcatiuj, tzitziqilcatiuj, yn oconihiiocuizque inchan.

Auh yn oxiouto calmocac, oc cepa tlatetecо, motetecа yn aztapilpetlatl, yoan no motetema yn atulia, oc cepa vncan peoa in neçaoalitzli, itoca netlacaçaoalitzli, no nauilhuitl in motlacaçaoaia, aocmo nezziea, aocmo tlacatlaqualo: [785]

njman ic vncā onpeoa in tlatlachichioalo, quitlachichiujlinia in tlamacazque, tlamaxtotoa, quicecencaoa yn ixquich amatlatquitl, in tlaquechpaniotl, yn 796X 301

23. Either le contained or some lauh would be acceptable reading for the Aztec text. Sahagún, in the Spanish column, states that they swam under water to escape.

a band] from ear to ear, which was called "black sweat," and they also applied pyrites [to it]. And some extended a black [stripe], called "a plaster of rubber," to their faces, and also it was sprinkled with pyrites.

And thus was their hair shorn: All were shorn like young warriors; together, all were shorn alike in the manner of young warriors. And those who had their temples closely cropped, were well shaven down, well scraped clean with a sharp piece of turtle shell. And they applied yellow ochre to their [remaining] hair; they colored it the color of maize flowers.

And thereupon, when they danced, they carried before them torches, pine fire brands, which flamed with much crackling and hissing. And as they carried them, the leaders of the youths [went] squatting because of the burden, as if running with thighs bent. And the resin, as it were, fell in large drops, and the live coals scattered and fell one by one. And the [charred] pine wood fell bit by bit to the ground.

And along the sides the lighting was only from fire ladles held in the hand. They who gave light were youths who had fasted twenty days. They were spread out in a circle, ranged on the sides. On one side were those of Tenochtitlan, and on the other side were those of Tlatilulco.

And they did not dance; they did only one thing —they only provided light. And they were on guard and kept close watch on people; their office was to be attentive that none might dishonor a woman; that none might look upon a woman, lest one might jest [with a woman].

If anyone was seen even only intending it, or trying it, maybe later—next day or two days hence—they punished him. They beat him with flaming pine boughs.[6] Verily, they left him for dead.

And when all were dancing, sometimes Moctezuma emerged and came forth to dance, and sometimes he came not forth. Only if he wished he did so.

And that they might go in line when they danced, they held one another by the hand or about the waist.

And some they grasped by the hand; all grasped hands. And thus they kept on with their feet, that they might take the dance steps all together with their feet. And they whirled about repeatedly; and they passed by the braziers, proceeding among [them]. They went back and forth among the rows of braziers. When they had reached the end [of the no ca petzujaia, auh in cequjntin imixtlan caana tilli: itoca aujtolli no ca petzuja. 796r 302

Auh ynic moximaia, muchintin motiachcauhximaia, cenuetzia in motiachcauhximaia: yoan yn incanaoacan qujconaloaia, vel qujcoconaloaia, vel caiochiquja: yoã qujtecoçãnujaia, qujtomjiolhujaia. [714]

Auh in ie iuhquj yn iquac ie mjtotia, tlepilli, ocopilli, qujniacana tlatlatiuh, cuecuetlacatiuh, cocomocatiuh: auh in qujnapaloa telpuchtequjoaque cenca eticiuj, iuhqujn tzitzintlaçça: auh yn ocotzotl, iuhqujn chachapaca, yoan in tlexochtli tetepeuhtiuh, cecenmantiuh: yoan in ocotl calichachaiaca. [373] [516]

Auh in tlatenco, çan matlematica in tlaujlo: iehoantin in tlaviaia telpopuchti, in mocempoalçauhque, tlaiacalotimãca, ixtlapantimanj: cectlapal manj in tenochca, no cectlapal manj, in tlatilulca. [785]

Auh amo mjtotia, çan qujxcaujaia, çan ixqujch tetlaujliaia: yoan tlapicia, vel teixpicia, vel ymix intequjuh catca, ynic aiac ytla vncan qujmotequjtiz, ynic aiac vncan teixtlaxiliz, yn açaca vncan vetzcatiuh: [834]

intla aca oittoc, çan oc conjxxotia, coniximati, açoqujn jmoztlaioc, anoço qujn iviptlaioc, in qujtlatzacuiltia, qujujujtequj ocoquauhtica, tlãtlatlatiuh, ca micquj in qujcaoa. [684]

Auh yn iquac netotilo, in Motecuçoma, in quenmanjan, oalquiçaia, oalmjtotiaia: auh in quenmanjan amo oalquiçaia, çan yiollo tlamatia: 796r 535 auh ynic tecpantiuj, in mitotia, monaoa, mocujtlanaoa.

Auh in cequjntin, inmatitech maana, nematitech neaano: auh ynic qujiauhtiuj, yn imicxi, ynic tlayiaoa, çan cenauh yn imicxi: yoan ontzitzinquiça, itlan quiçquiztiuj in tlaujltetl, itzalan quiquiztiuj, itic cacalactiuj, yn izquipantli tlaujltetl: yn oacito yn

6. See Plate 22.

X 796 Thirty-third Chapter, in which are described the feasts and sacrifices which they offered as a service; which they performed in the days of the fourteenth month, which was called Quecholli.[1]

The fourteenth feast day was called Quecholli.

When Tepeilhuitl ended, nothing was done for another five days. All was quiet.

And when the five days had passed, upon the next day all offered reeds [for arrows]; each seasoned [482] warrior took a load upon his back (those of Tenochtitlan and those of Tlatelulco). They all offered the reeds at the foot of [the Temple of] Uitzilopochtli. And when they had been offered, then they came carrying them and bore them upon their shoulders [to their homes].

And upon the morrow, once again all departed to [441] the courtyard of [the Temple of] Uitzilopochtli, that the reeds might be straightened in the fire. The reeds were to be straightened in the fire. Only this did they do. And when they had straightened [the reeds] in the fire, again they bore them away and went off with their burdens.

And on the third day, [when] once more all departed, the canes were brought. All came together—seasoned warriors, youths, young men of marriage-X 796 able age. And the small boys they took up [the ● 785 pyramid to the] temple, where they sat blowing their shell trumpets and being bled. They cut their ears, pressed out the blood, and anointed their temples [with it]. It was said: "The deer are [anointed] with [224] blood." They fasted for the deer, that they might hunt [them].

And when they assembled in the temple courtyard, those of Tenochtitlan were spread on one side, those of Tlatelulco on the other. Thereupon were made arrows. It was said: "They form the arrows, or their [bolts of] oak."

X 796 And when arrows were being formed, all did pen-785 ances; all the men drew blood. And if any were seen 688

Injc cempoualli ômatlactli omei capitulo: vncan moteneoa in ilhujtl, yoã in nextlaoalli, injc tlacotia: in qujchioaia, in jpã ic cemjlhujtl, ic matlactetl on navi metztli, in moteneoaia, Quecholli.

Injc matlactetl on navi ilhujtl: ichoatl in moteneoa Quecholli:

in ôquiz tepeilhujtl, oc macujlilhujtl in aiatle muchioaia, çan oc cactimanj:

auh in ôquiz macujlilhujtl: in jmuztlaioc, vncã in neacamaco, cecen tlamamalli in conanaia tequjoaque, in Tenuchtitlan, in Tlatilulco: in neacamacoia, vncã in icxitlan Vitzilobuchtli: auh in ônemacoc, njmã ic qujitqujtze qujquequechpanoa.

Auh in jmuztlaioc, ic no oc, ça ic vilos in jitoaloa Vitzilobuchtli, tlatlemelaoaloz, motlemelaoaz in acatl: çan oc ixquich, in muchioaia y: auh in vmmotlemelauh, oc ceppa çan no oalmotquj, oc ceppa intlatquj oalietiuh.

Auh injc eilhujtl, no ceppa vilos, mootquj in acatl, vel ixquich cemolinj, in tequjoaque in telpuchtli, in tlapalivi: auh in oqujchpipiltotonti, qujtletlecavia in teucalli, vncã tlatlapizztoque, yoan mjçotoque: qujtequj in innacaz, in jmezço conparaca, incansoocã conalaoa: mjtoaia, momaçaiço, qujnneçaviliaia in mamaça, injc amjoaz.

Auh in ocêqujxoto teuitoalco: cecnj moteca in tenuchca, cecnj moteca in Tlatilulca: njmã ic muchioa in mjtl: mjtoaia tlacati in tlacochtli, anoço yiaoaio.

Auh in jquac tlacatia, tlacochtli: neçaoaloia, qujneçaviliaia, ixquich tlacatl, mjçoia: auh in aquj itto,

1. "Precious Feathers" is suggested by Garibay (op. cit., p. 307). Chavigero (op. cit., pp. 147-8) states that the month was named for the kind of fine plumage seen at that time on the lake shores; Torquemada (op. cit., p. 280) writes similarly— ". . . nombre de un Pajaro de plumas azul, y colorado, que al en este Tiempo, en especial en unos manantiales, y ojos de Agua, que al pasar del Pueblo de Quecholac"; see also p. 299. Durán (op. cit., II, p. 297) refers to Quecholli as fiesta arrojadizas.

Tower, while mentioning the kind of rich plumage, adds that captains raised their banners and performed warlike exercises. He describes it as a month of unrest and disturbance (Kubler and Gibson, op. cit., p. 32).

who did not draw his blood, they stripped him, nevermore restoring his cape to him. The overseers took it from him for good.

And when the arrows were being formed, no [man] lay with a woman. And the old men drank no wine; they became not drunk; they abstained and left the wine alone.

And when arrows were made, they brought out their measure; all were made of equal length. And the arrow-points were of equal length. None were larger than others; nothing was joined to them.

Thereupon, [when] the reed [shafts] were cut, they went to put them into the hands of those who fitted and put on the arrow-points. Securely they tied the [ends of] the reeds, binding them well with magueyy fibres, so that the arrow shafts would not split back. They set [the points] in glue,[2] so that they were held fast, so that they were well embedded.

And when they had [thus] prepared them, then they applied pine pitch to the heads and the ends. This was done quite quickly.

And when they were finished, thereupon they were bound together; they tied them in [bundles of] twenty. And when they were assembled, then everyone was arranged in rows, all ordered in line, in procession, to leave [the bundles] there at the foot of [the Temple of] Uitzilopochtli. There they heaped [the bundles] together. And when they had come to make [this] offering, then all departed [to their homes].

And the fourth day was called "Arrows are made for the homes." All men made arrows in their homes. Thus all passed the time; thus all tried [their skill] and practiced, having set up, at a distance, [the leaf of a] magueyy plant, which they shot with arrows. Hence were apparent those who were good marksmen, the able bowmen, those who could well wield the bow.

And upon the fifth day, one was concerned only with the dead. For them they made small arrows, each one measuring a hand's length, and put upon them only a little resin. And their points were only sticks. They bound four arrows and four pine torches with loose cotton thread, and laid them where the dead lay buried. And they placed [there] two sweet tamales. There [they remained] all day. And at sundown they thereupon burned them for [the dead] in the same place. There they set them on fire.

2. Cf. Sahagún (Bustamante ed.), Vol. III, pp. 241, 250.

in amo mjço qujpepetlaoaia, aocmo qujmaca in jtilma, iccen qujtqujlia in tepãmanj.

Auh in jquac tlacatia mjtl, aiac cioacochia: auh in vevetque, amo quja in vetli, amo tlaoanaia, motlacaaltiaia, qujmocaaltiaia in vetli.

Auh in muchioaia mjtl, oalqujça itamachiuhca, çan muchixqujch, in muchioaia: auh in tlaxichtli, çã muchixqujch, atle chicoviac, atle tlapatiliaia:

njmã ie ic tlateco in acatl, inmac qujoallaztivi, in tlatlaxichaquja in qujtlaxichaquja, vel qujchtecuja in acatl, vel ichtica qujtetecuja, injc amo cujtlazaianja in tlaxichtli: tzacupã in cõquetza, injc vel tilinja, injc vel tzitzicaz.

Auh in ocõcencauhque: njmã ie ic cocotzovia, in jquac, yoan itzintlan, çan iciuhcã muchioa.

Auh in ciecauh, njmã ie ic tlacujtlalpilo, cecempoalli in mocujtlalpia: auh in otlacenquiz, njmã ie ic onnetecpanalo, onnevipanolo, oncempantioa in mocaoaz in vmpa icxitlan Vitzilobuchtli, vncan concentecpichoa: auh in õmomamanato, njmã ic viviloa.

Auh injc navilhujtl, mjtoaia, calpãnemjtilo, izqujch tlacatl momjtiaia intechachan, çan iuhquj injc neaviltilo, tel ic neiciecoloia, ic nemamachtiloia: ce veca qujoalquetzaia metl, qujmjmjna, vncan neci in aquique vel qujmaiavi, in vel momaimati, in vellamjna.

Auh injc macujlilhujtl, ça mjacaviaia in mjmjcque, qujnchichiviliaia, mjtotonti, çeçemjztitl, no achitotem ic conoocotzovia: auh in jtlaxichio, çan tlacotl: navi mjtl, no navi ocotl, concujtlalpia ica potonqui, impã contetema, in vncan tocttitoque, mjmjoque: yoan ontetl tzepelic tamalli, contetema, vncan cemjlhujtia: auh in ie oncalaquj tonatiuh, njman ie ic qujntlatlatilia, in çan ie no vncan: vncan contlecavia:

X796 Thirty-fourth Chapter, in which they tell of the feasts and sacrifices which were performed on the days of the fifteenth month, which was called Panquetzaliztli.[1]

The fifteenth feast day: this one was called Panquetzaliztli.

[785] When the feast of Panquetzaliztli had not yet arrived, the priests fasted for eighty days, and laid down green boughs. When they began [the fast], it was upon the day following [the month of] Ochpaniztli. At midnight they spread the green boughs, on all the mountain tops and upon the circular altars, [even those] which were distant.

And this they did until [the month of] Panquetzaliztli arrived. When they laid the green boughs, they went quite naked, wearing nothing. They went carrying green boughs; these [were] green reeds and thorns. And they went blowing their shell trumpets and pottery whistles.[2] They proceeded blowing [them] alternately.

[212] [534]

And when the feast of Quecholli ended, then began the singing and dancing, when was intoned the song named the Tlazotecaiotl—the song of Uitzilopochtli. This was begun at nightfall; and it was ended at the time when the trumpets sounded, when the conch shells were blown.

[534]

Also, among them, the women sang and danced—harlots, who went between [pairs of men] (as hath been told). Daily they did this, until twenty days [had passed].

And when the ninth day before [the feast] arrived, then were bathed in sacred water [the victims known as] the ceremonially bathed ones, or those to die the captives' death.[3] The old men of the tribal temple secured the water; they got the water there

X796 778

Inic 34 capitulo: itechpa tlatoa in ilhujtl, yoan in nezttaoaliztli, in muchioaia in jpan ic cemjlhujtl, ic caxtoltetl metztli, in mjtoaia: Panquetzaliztli.

Injc caxtoltetl ilhujtl: ichoatl in moteneoa, Panquetzaliztli:

in aiamo aci ilhujtl Panquetzaliztli: in tlamacazque, nappoalilhujtl in moçaoaia, yoan acxoiztlaliaia: iquac quijpeoaltiaia, in iuh onquiz imuztlaioc, Ochpanjztli: in ioalnepantla onacxoiztema, in novian tetepeticpac, yoã in momomozco, in veca.

Auh inin qujchioaia, ixqujchica onaci in Panquetzaliztli, in onacxoiztlaliaia, çan pepetlauhtivi, atle intechcavetztiuh, qujtqujtivi in acxoiztl, ichoatl in acatl xoxouhqui, yoan vitztli, yoan intecciz, yoan in cocovilutl qujpiztivi, qujpapatlativi in qujpitza.

Auh in ôquiz Quecholli ilhujtl: njmã ic peoa in cujcoianolo, in cujcatl in eos itoca tlaxotecaiotl, icujc in Vitzilobuchtli: im peoaloia, iquac in tlatlapoioaca: auh in necacaoaloia, iquac in tlatlapitzalizpã, in ie tlatlapitzalo:

no tesan cujcoianoa in cioa in avienjme, tetzatzalan mantivi (in juh omjto) mumuztlae in muchioa, ixqujchica cempoalilhujtl.

Auh in oacic tlachicunaviti, vncan motecualtiaia in tlatlaltilti, anoço xuchimjoque: in calpulveveque, conanaia atl: vmpa in vitzilobuchco conanaia atl,

---

1. "Hieroglifo de Izquierda," in Gallery, op. cit., p. 312; "el acto de crucificar al pendido" (Clavigero, op. cit., p. 170)—possibly a reference to the raising of the standard and the statue of Peyotl up to the altar in the Temple of Uitzilopochtli. Torquemada (op. cit., p. 299) writes: "Llamabanlo dia de Pendonar, ó Vandera; porque si por este Tiempo se hacian hacer los cruzeiros de sus Pueos; los quales pusiaes, enterrandos á tresar sus Guerras; y en este tiempo renovaban sus Mojoneras, Alidades, y Landeras; y defendian sus Terrenos, y Heredades, y otras cosas de importe que tenian. De manera, que en todo este Mes andaban los Provincias, en armas, y ocupadas todas, y hacian entre ellas sus Guerras, y Batallas; porque cuacho cosas tenian á complimiento, y muchas muchas Gente, y hacia grandes pérdidas, y desgracias, y precios de Cautivos, y Esclavos, y se sentaban Pueblos, y grandes Provincias, en orden de ampliar, cada qual, sus Reinos, y Señorios. Y antes de las cruzeiros se acostumbraban cada dia esto; porque los Pueos, y Levadizos, no se robaran, ni desvararan; y para este hacian grandes Ofrendas á su Dios Huitzilopochtli, ó Camaxtli, ofreciendole Armas, y otras cosas, pidiendole favor, y ayuda contra sus enemigos."

According to Tovar (Kubler and Gibson, op. cit., p. 32) it was the special festival of the war captives, who set up a banner in the middle of the temple courtyard.

2. "Trompeta de Guerra tocaban Tambien," according to Seler, op. cit., p. 295.

3. Cf. Anderson and Dibble, op. cit., p. 1, n. 3; p. 19. Sahagún (Bulnes ed., II, p. 370) says: "Los sacerdotes hacian sus banquetes en que daban á comer carne humana; esto hacian en la fiesta que se llama panquetzaliztli. Para esta fiesta compraban cautivos que se llamaban tlaxilacalli,

And of them who aided the Uitznaua, if one were taken, he met his end. In truth, the bathed ones slew [their opponents]; using a two-toned drum [as an offering stone], upon it they cut open their breasts.

And the onlooker, he who oversaw [the battle], when he noted that [he who bore the likeness of] Paynal already approached, then cried out, saying: "Mexicans! Now he cometh! Now already is brought the lord! Enough!"

And when they heard this, then the bathed ones took after [the others]. Then dispersed, melted away, and departed those who had aided [the Uitznaua], who had rolled up the paper.

Thereupon came [he who bore] Paynal. First arrived the standards, two devices for seeing, made of [sprays of] feathers, with a hole in their midst. Two mere boys bore them hence, hastening greatly. Then [from the boys] two warriors took [the standards] quickly—[warriors] who could hasten and run fast.

And when they had run a certain distance, two other [warriors] took it briskly from them. So they carried it in relays.

And when they reached the eagle portal[13] [of the courtyard of the Temple of Uitzilopochtli], none took these from them; they took the devices up [to the Temple of] Uitzilopochtli. These who came ahead, when they had brought up the devices for seeing, cast them upon the image of Uitzilopochtli, which [was made of a dough of] amaranth seed. [There] they fell to the ground, faint, and lay panting.

And the fire priest thereupon came forth and cut their ears with a flint knife, whereupon they came to themselves; thus they revived.

And when they had revived, then they climbed down, taking the amaranth seed dough [image] which they had captured.[14] They took it to their homes, [for] it was in truth their captive, and ate it. They offered it to their kin and to their neighbors, who all ate of it.[15]

Auh in tlapalevia in qujmpalevia vitznaoa, intla çe axiocaci, no mjqujz: vel iioma qujmjctia in tlaaltilti, çan teponaztli in jpan coneltequj. 796 [534]

Auh in tlachiztquj, in oqujttac, in oconjttac in ie vitz Paynal: mec tzatzi, qujrva, Mexicae, ca ie vitz, ca ie movicatz in tlacatl, ma izqujch.

Auh in oqujcacque: mec tetoca in tlaaltilti: vncan xiuitinj, tlaxitinj, vivi, in otepaleviaia, in otlaemaviaia.

Niman ie ic vitz in Paynal: achtopa oaléoa in machiotl, auh in tlachicloonj vmetl hivitl in tlachioalli, yiticoionquj, çã oc pipiltotonti in qujoalitquj, cenca qujoalmotlalochtia, njman qujncujlitiqujça in tiacaoan, in vel paina, in vel tetoca:

auh in oquexqujch oqujoaltocticque, oc ceppa no vmetin, qujncujlitiqujça, çan juhqujn qujnomamacativi.

Auh in oacico quauhqujiaoac, aocac vel qujncujlia, ie coan qujpantlaçaxque, in jicpac Vitzilobuchtli: in vel iacattiuh, in opanvetzito in tlachicloonj, ipan contlaça in jxiptla Vitzilobuchtli, in tzoalli ça onchachapantivetzi, vel çoçotlaoc, ça cicintoque.

Auh in tlenamacac, njman ie ic iauh, qujnnacaztecpavia, ic oallachia, injc moucalia. [785]

Auh in omoucalique mec oalteno, qujnqujzac in ocacique tzoalli, qujmotqujlia in inchan, ca nel immal, qujqua, qujnmamaca in ineanielque, yoan in tlaxillacaleque, qujcenqua. [262]

13. Cf. Sahagún (Bulmarde ed., Vol. IV, p. 98): "y luego se juntaron los capitanes y cuarenta deudos del un paño que se llamaba quauhquiaoac. . . . En este lugar estaba este dicho de piedra grande y alto como un estado de hombre, y por ese llamaban a aquel paño quauhquiaoac; de la una parte del dicho estaba un tiro de piedra, y de la otra en esa también de piedra."

14. Clavigero (op. cit., p. 168) says such images had been made of both Uitzilopochtli and Paynal: ". . . fabricaban . . . dos estatuas de aquellos dioses, de la pasta de varias semillas con sangre de niños sacrificados, y la pasaban por hombres alquanto lobos de aquella."

15. In op. cit., pp. 169-70, Clavigero writes: "aquella noche que era la décima del mes, celebran también los mexicanos y a la mañana siguiente llevaban a la estatua de masa de Huitzilopochtli a una cala que había en el recinto del templo, y en presencia solemnemente del rey, de cuatro diputados del templo y de cuatro superiores de los sacerdotes, el sumo sacerdote Quetzalcoatl, que era jefe de los Quauhquiqui o pertenecientes arriba en lado a la estatua con que la arrancaba de parte a parte. Con esto decían que ya había muerto su dios; uno de los sacerdotes le quaba el corazón y lo presentaba todo el rey para que lo comiese; el cuerpo se dividía por miembros y lo unos existía se daba a los diputados y lo otro quedaba para los sacerdotes; de esta estatua del mismo modo. Estas ceremonias explicaban con la palabra teocualo, comer a Dios. Los mexicanos no probaban de esta sagrada masa por mucho, como se pensó como de no pertenecer a su raza el empleo de la guerra."

Here is described a feast which was observed every eight years.

For Atamalqualiztli (the eating of water tamales) came to be observed every eight years. At times it was observed [in the month of] Quecholli; or at times it was observed [in the month of] Tepeilhuitl.

For seven days all fasted. Only water tamales, soaked in water, were eaten, without chili, without salt, with neither saltpeter nor lime. And they were eaten [only] at midday.

And he who fasted not at this time, if he were noted, was then punished. And much was this, the eating of water tamales, hallowed. And he who did not this, if he were not seen nor noted, it was said,—he was visited with the itch.

And when the feast arrived, it was said: "Ashes are put on faces," and "They are [bedight with] sea shells."[6] And it was when indeed all the gods danced. Thus, it was named the dance of the gods.

And all came forth [as] humming birds, butterflies, honeybees, flies, birds, giant horned beetles, black beetles—those forms men took; in these guises they came dancing.

And still others were in the guise of sleep. [Some had] garlands of fruit tamales; birds' flesh [tamales formed yet others'] garlands. And before them was the maize bin, filled with fruit tamales.

And also all [these] appeared—those who played the rôles of the poor, those who sold vegetables, those who sold wood. Also appeared one in the guise of a leper. And still more took the forms of birds, large owls, screech owls.[7] And even other [birds] they counterfeited.

And [an image of] Tlaloc was set in place. Before him was [a vessel of] water. It was full of serpents and frogs. And they who were called Maçatecs swallowed the serpents [while still] full alive. Each one severally held them only in their mouths, not with their hands. They took them only in their teeth, when they seized them in the water, there before

Nican mitoa, yn ilhujtl: in chichicuexiuhtica muchioaia. 796[x]

Auh yn atamalqualiztli, chicuexiuhtica in muchiuhtiuja: in quenmanjan ipan in muchioaia quecholli: auh anoço quenmanjan ipan in tepeilhujtl muchioaia.

Chicomjlhujtl, in neçaoaloia: çan tlapactli atamalli, in moquaia, amo chillo, amo iztaio, amono tequixquijo, amono tenexio: a[illegible]h tlacatlaqualoia. [785] [262]

Auh yn aquja amo moçaoaia yn ipan jn, intla machoia, njman tzacujltiloia: auh cenca ymacaxoia y, in atamalqualiztli: auh yn aquja amo qujchioaia, intlacamo ittoa, anoço machoia, qujlmach xixiiotia. [688]

Auh yn jquac ilhujtl quiçaia, motenoa ixnextioa, yoan atecuculetioaia: yoan yn jquac cenca muchintin mjttotiaia in teteu: ic mjtoaia, teuimotloia:

yoan isq'ch vncan oalnecia in vitzitzilin papaloti, in xicotli, in çaiolin in tototi, in temoli, tecujtlaololo: yn ipan moquixtiaia tlaca, yn ipan oalmjtotiaia. [535]

Auh yn oc cequjxtin ipan moquixtiaia in cochiztli, in xococamalouiquj, yeçan tonalnacatl yn jxcouiquj: yoan ymixpan ycaca, in tonacacuecomatl, tenticac in xococamalli. [262]

Auh no nuchi vncan oalnecia, yn ipan moq'xtiaia in motolinja, yn motequjquijnamaquijlia, yn motequaquauhnamaquijlilia: no yoan vncan oalnecia, in teucocouiquj ypan moquixtiaia: yoan yn oc cequjxtin totome, in tecuhtl, in chichtli ipan quiçaia: yoan oc cequj ipan moquixtiaia. [463]

Auh motlalilaia in tlaloc, ixpan mikca yn atl, vncan temja in cocoa, yoan in cuciame, yoan in ichoutin motemoa, maçateca, vncan qujntoloaia in cocoa, çan iniehtiuja, ceceiaca, incamatica in quimonanaia, amo inmatica: çan quimontlanquechixia, yniic quimon- 796[x]

6. Gerhard ("Huitzilin huetz," p. 318) translates tzacuiltiloia as "se remedian la cara," chicuexiuhtica appears in the same text, translated as "se hacen como viejos del agua." Cf., however, amatlalli in Molina, op. cit.

7. Tecuhtli (lit. chief): tecohuac (lit. old). Cf. also Clark, op. cit., Vol. II, p. 117, and Angel Maria Garibay K, in Tlalocan, Vol. I, p. 309.

Tlalxicco.

Tlalxicco: here died he who was named [and who was arrayed in the manner of] Mictlan Tecutli. Each year he died upon the feast of Tititl. And when the impersonator of Mictlan Tecutli died, then the Fire Priest of Tlillan offered incense. And this was done only by night, not by day.

Tlalxicco.

In tlalxicco: vncan mjquja, in jtoca catca Mjctlan tecutli: cexiuhtica in mjquja, ipan in tititl quiçaia. Auh in ommjc in jxiptla mjctlan tecutli: njman vncan vallenamacaia, valletemaia, in tlillan tlenamacac. Auh injn muchiuaia: çan iooan, amo cemjlhujtl.

796x
346

Uey Quauhxicalco.

Uey Quauhxicalco was Mocteçuma's place of penances. Here, when there was fasting, one said it was the fasting for the sun. And every two hundred and three days there was a fast for the sun. And also here died they who were named Chachanme—only four [of them]; and here died [he who was the] likeness of the sun-[god] and of the moon-[god]. And likewise many captives died here. And this [occurred only] when fate so decreed.

Vey quauhxicalco.

In quauhxicalco, itlamaceuaian catca in Motecuçuma: iquac in vncan moçauaia, mjtoaia: netonatiuhçaualoia: auh mamatlacpovalti... vncitica in juh muchiuaia, in netonatiuhçaualoia. Auh ioan vncan mjquja: in mjtoaia, chachanme: çan navintin: yoan vncan mjquja in jxiptla tonatiuh, ioan metztli: auh ioan cenca mjiequja in mamalti, vncan mjquja. Auh ynjn, çan tepan ietiuh.

[785]

Tochinco.

Tochinco: here died [he who was the] likeness of [Ome tochtli], once yearly, during the feast of Tepeilhuitl.

Tochinco.

In tochinco: vncan mjquja in jxiptla tochinco, cexiuhtica: ipan tepeilhujtl.

Teotlalpan.

Teotlalpan. Here was made a procession yearly, when the feast of Quechelli arrived. And when the procession was made, then they departed for Çacatepec. And when they reached it, then all hunted [game]. And Mocteçuma then rewarded [the successful hunters]. Auh when he had rewarded [them], then he returned; no longer did he stay there. Likewise [the huntsmen] then all departed; no longer did they remain here, [but] departed for Mexico; and they took a different road. Verily, many men went to the Çacatepec.

Teotlalpan.

In teotlalpan, vncan tlaiauaiovaia, cecexiuhtica: iquac in quechelli quiçaia ilhujtl. Auh in oztlaiauaiaiaoc: njman ie ic vmpeua in çacatepec: auh in onazivac, njman ie ic omjoa: auh in motecuçuma, njman vmpa ommocuetlavaia: auh in ommocuetlauh, njman ye ic valpeua: ayocac vmpa ommocaoa. Çan no yvi injc vilouaia, aiac neiac njcan mocauhtivia in mexico: yoan oiocac vtli quitocaia: vel mochi tlacatl vmpa via in çacatepec.

Tilapan.

Tilapan: here were bathed the five priests—at night only, and often. And when they had bathed, thereupon they cast incense into the fire and offered

Tilapan.

In tilapan: vncan mahuia in tlenamacaque, çan iouahica: ioan muchipa. Auh in iquac omomaliqueque: njman ie ic tlotoua, tlenamaca, in vmpa mjtocaqueque.

feast of] Teotl eco was this done, and also yearly. And when they had cast men into the fire, then the priests came down, and then they [performed the ceremony of] pricking paper with thorns.

muchioaia, no cexiuhtica. Auh yn onnetlepantlaxoc: njman ye ic oaltemo in tlamacazque, njman ye ic amatlavitzoa. 796 346

The Skull Frame.

The Skull Frame: Here they strung up the severed heads of the captives whom they had cast into the fire, who had died there at the Teccalco. Likewise this was done yearly.

Tzumpantli

In tzumpantli: vncan quiçoia in mamaltin intzontecon, in quintlepantlaçaia, in vmpa mjquja teccalco: çan no cexiuhtica yn muchioaia.

The Temple of Uitznauac.

The Temple of Uitznauac: here died those named the Centzonuitznaua; and many [more] were the captives who here died. And upon [the feast of] Panquetzaliztli was this done, and [it was done] yearly.

Vitznaoac teucalli.

In vitznaoac teucalli: vncan mjquja, in jntoca centzonvitznaoa, yoan mjiec malli vncan mjquja: auh ipan in panquetzaliztli muchioaia, yoan cexiuhtica.

Tencacalco.

Tencacalco: here captives were slain and died, only when fate so decreed—not every year.

Tencacalco

In tencacalco: vncan mjcoaia, vncan mjquja in mamalti: çan tepan yetiuh, amo cexiuhtica.

Tlacochcalco Acatl Yiacapan.

Tlacochcalco Acatl Yiacapan: here were guarded the spears and arrows. Also here captives were slain and died. And it was only by night that they were slain, and only at times when it was wished [that they should be slain].

Tlacochcalco acatl yiacapan.

In tlacochcalco acatl yiacapan: vncan mopiaia in tlacochtli, in mjtl: no vncan mjcoaia, vncan mjquja in mamalti: auh çan iooan in mjcoaia, yoan çan molnamjquja yn jquja.

Tecciacalco.

Tecciacalco: likewise here were slain and died captives—only by night, also only when it was their fate, when it was the whim [of the priests].

Tecciacalco.

In tecciacalco: no vncan mjcoaia, vncan mjquja in mamalti: çan no iooaltica, çan no tepan yetiuh, çan molnamjquja.

Uitzteoalco.

Uitzteoalco: here the priests, those who did penance, scattered the thorns; or else the green boughs, when they did penances in various places.

Vitzteoalco

In ,vitzteoalco: vncan quiçteoaia in tlamacazque in ja tlamacoaia, in vitztli: anoço acxoitl, yn jquac canjn ontlamacoaia. [785]

Atempan.

Atempan: here they assembled the [child sacrifices called] "Human Banners." And when they had gathered them together, thereupon they carried them in procession; they carried them upon litters.

And when they had carried them in procession, then they dispersed them. Perchance they left them at Tepetzinco, in the middle of the lagoon, or at Quauhtepec, above Yiauhqueme.

Atempan.

In atempan, vncan qujntecpicheoaia in tlacateuhti: auh in jquac in oqujntecpichoque: njman ye ic qujntlaiacalochtia, qujntlapechvia. 796^x 346

Auh in jquac oqujmontlaiacalochtique: njman ye ic qujnmoiaoa, aço atlitic tepetzinco qujmoncaoaia, anoço quauhtepec, yiauhqueme ijcpac.

Tezcacoac Tlacochcalco.

Tezcacoac Tlacochcalco. When there were very many captives, sometimes they were slain here. And here were kept the spears and the arrows to be used in conquests.

Tezcacoac tlacochcalco

In tezcacoac tlacochcalco: vncan mjcoaia, çan quemman, yquac in cenca mjier malli: yoan vncan mopiaia in tlacochtli, in mjtl: ynjc tepeoaloya. [712]

Acatl Yiacapan Uei Calpulli.

Acatl Yiacapan Uei Calpulli: here they gathered together [the slaves] for the Tlaloca. And when they had assembled them all, then they here slew them.

And when they had slain them, then here they cut them in pieces, and cooked them; they put squash blossoms with their flesh.

And when they had cooked them, then the nobility, and all the important men ate [the stew]; but not the common folk—only the leaders.

Acatl yiacapan vei calpulli.

In acatl yiacapan vey calpulli, vncan qujcenqujztiaia in tlatlaloque: auh in jquac oqujcenqujztique, njman vncan qujnmjctiaia: [567]

auh in jquac in oqujmonmjctique, njman vncan qujnteteqoja, yoan qujnpacacia, caiosuchqujlhujaia in jnnacaio. [266]

Auh yn jquac oqujnpacaozque: njman qujquaia in pipilti, in jzquijch tecutlatoque: amono ichoantin in macoaltl, çn yehoantin in tlatoque.

Tochielli.

Tochielli: here were placed fir branches.[10]

Tochielli.

In tochielli: vncan acaxiotemaloia.

The Tribal Temple.

All the small houses which stood around the temples were called calpulli. Here men fasted.

And only the noblemen, the leading men, those who instructed noblemen's sons in war, the chieftains, here fasted, every twenty days.

[Of this,] it was said: "All men fast five days."

And when the fasting took place, five days hence

Calpulli.

In ic mochi calxotoni in tlaiacalotoc, ioan qujiacalotoc teucalli: in mjtoaia calpulli, vncan neçacaloia: 796^x 346 785 auh çan ichoantin in pipiltin, in tlatoque, achcacauhti, tequjoaque vncan moçavaia, cempoualtica, mjtoaia: nemacujlçacaloia.

Auh in jquac moçacaia, oc iuh macujlilhujtl quj-

10. In the corresponding Spanish text, Sahagún says that they gathered reeds (cañas).

X 796 the feast was to be celebrated. And only when the feast day came was there fasting.

346 And thus was the fasting; [thus] did they abstain from food: some ate at midday, [fasting] until past 785 midnight; and some, when they ate at midnight, thereupon went past midday [fasting]. Thus they proceeded mortifying themselves.

And they fasted for the space of five nights—not by day but by night. And every time night fell, then they went within [the calpulli]. And when day broke, they went forth and performed their tasks.

Daily they thus did, until they had spent five days. [834] And not then did they lie with women.

çaz ilhujtl: auh çan ypan in jlhujtl quiçaz moçaoaia:

auh injc mocaoaia, tlaqualizcaoaia: cequjntin tlaquaia nepantla tonatiuh, ixquichica onaci iocalnepantla: auh in cequjntin yquac tlaquaia in iocalnepantla, no yquac onaci in nepantla tonatiuh: çan iuh mopatlatiuh.

Auh in moçaoaia macujliocal, amo cemjlhujtl, çan iocan: auh in jquac ie ioca, njman calaquj: auh in otlathujc, valquiçaia, tlatequjpanoaia:

mumuztlae iuh quichioaia, injc onaci macujlilhujtl: yoan ayocmo cioacochia.

X 796 782

Here Are Told the Various Modes in Which Blood Was Shed and Offered up.

Sacrificial Slaying, &c.

Thus was performed the sacrificial slaying of men, when captives and slaves died, who were called "Those who have died for the god."

Thus they took [the captive] up [to the pyramid temple] before the devil, [the priests] going holding him by his hands. And he who was known as the arranger [of captives], this one laid him out upon the sacrificial stone.

And when he had laid him upon it, four men stretched him out, [grasping] his arms and legs. And already in the hand of the fire priest lay the [sacrificial] knife, with which he was to slash open the breast of the ceremonially bathed [captive].

And then, when he had split open his breast, he at once seized his heart. And he whose breast he laid open was quite alive. And when [the priest] had seized his heart, he dedicated it to the sun.

X 796 ● 785 782

The Drawing of Straws [Through Parts of the Body].

The drawing of straws was thus done, only upon days proper for [such] drawing of straws.

And indeed in all parts [of the body was it done] —perchance in one's ear, or, whoever willed it, one's tongue or one's thigh. And thus they pierced the flesh: with a thornlike obsidian point. And thus they then here drew a slender twig, or a straw; and thus they gathered the flesh with a cord, that there they might pass a straw [through it]; and thus all performed a penance.

And when slender twigs had been passed [through the flesh], upon the morrow the straws were swept up and gathered; and the straws were much bloodied. And this was done in the house of the devil, or along roads where devils lay.

The Offering of Thorns.

The offering of thorns was thus performed: they plucked green reeds and cut mogney spines, and Vncan mjtoa in quenquican neçoloia ya ezili ic tlamamaloia.

Tlamjctilistli, &c.

Jnic muchivaia tlamjctilistli, injc mjquja malli yoan tlacutli in mjtoaia teumiquj injc contlecaviaia ixpan diablo, çan caantivi imatitech. auh in tevelteca motocaiotiaia, ichoatl contecaia in jpan techcatl, auh in jcoac oipan contecac navi tlacatl in qujritilinjaia in jma in icxi, auh ic imac onoc in tlenamacac tlamacazquj in tecpatl injc quehtetequiz tlaaltilli, auh njman ic conehtequj conaxjlia achto in jiollo: auh ça ioltoc in quehtequja, auh in jcoac oconanjliquc yiollo conjavilinia in tonatiuh.

Tlacoqujzilistli.

Jn tlacoqujzilistli ic muchivaia, çan no ipan in tlein tonalli in tlacoquizilaia, auh çan novjian aço inacazco, anoço in aquja quinequiz inenepilco, anoço imetzpan, auh injc qujcoionjaia inacaio ichoatl in vitzaubquj in itztli, auh ic niman vncan quiquistiaia in tlacutl, anoço çacatl, auh injc qujzilinjaia in inacaio mecatica injc vncan quiquistiaia tlacutl injc tlamacevaloia, auh in jcoac oxlacoquizilac, in muztlaioc tlachpanoia muchpanoia in tlacutl yoan in çacatl cẽca eneço, auh in muchivaia y, ichan Diablo anoço vtli in vncan manj Diablome.

Nevizmamalistli.

Jn nevizmamalistli ic muchivaia concuja in acto-bloodied them. Then they laid as offerings upon the green reeds two thorns.

In all places—some of them perchance in two places, or three, they laid the thorns as offerings; or in five places, only when it was of their own will.

istl yoan contequja in mevitztli, auh quezvjaia ic quivalmanaia in ipil aczoiatl vme in vitztli noviian in aca ayo vecan anoço ezcan in quimanaia vitztli, anoço macuilcan çan teiollotlama.

796x 785 782

The Bloodying.

When they bloodied themselves, thus did they do: they cut their ears with an obsidian blade, and then took out blood from about the ears.

Nepolintli.

Jn mijçoia injc quichioaia itztli ica in contequja in jnacazco, auh njmã ic quivalpipiloizia in eztli in innacaztitlan.

[412]

The Cutting of the Ears.

Likewise this bloodying was a cutting of the ears, when one was bloodied by the cutting of the ears.

Nenecaztequilintli.

Çan ie no ichoatl in neçcliztli in nenacaztequilintli in mijçoia in monacaztequja.

The Twisting off of the Heads [of Birds].

The twisting off of the heads [of birds] was thus done: when they twisted the necks of small birds before the devil, also they dedicated [the blood] to him, and cast down [the body] before the devil. There the body of the small bird lay beating its wings.

Tlaquechcotonalintli.

Jn tlaquechcotonalintli ic muchivaia ca icoac in tlatotozintli ixpan quicotonaia in Diablo no conjavilisia, vncan contlaçaia in ixpan Diablo, vncan tlapapatlaztoc in jtlac in totozintli.

796x 782

The Eating [of Sacrificial Victims' Blood by the Gods].

Thus was done the eating [of sacrificial victims' blood by the gods]: When [the priests] had cut open a slave's or a captive's breast, then [the owner of the victim] took his blood in a vessel and, perchance, cast a paper into the vessel, which drew up the blood.

Then he took [the blood] in the vessel and placed upon the lips of all [the images of] the devils the blood of him who had died for the gods.

Tlachichiquilintli.

Jnjc muchivaia tlachichiquilintli, in jcoac ocontlecque in tlacutli anoço malli, njman quicuja in icxço castica yoan aço amatl contlaçaia in caxic quichichinahizia in eztli, njman ic quiçquja castica in izquintin Diablome in tesco quiçulatlalikizia in eztli muchintin in jexço tzumjcopij.

The Payment of a Debt [to the Gods].

The payment of a debt [to the gods] was thus done: when mayhap something had befallen one, perchance sickness, when he recovered, then perchance he thus paid his debt with copal [incense] or paper [spotted with] liquid rubber. Because he did Nestlavalintli.

Jn nestlavalintli injc muchivaia in jquac aço aca in teix ipã muchivaia, aço cocolizzli in jquac opatic, njman aço copalli yoã amatl injc mestlavaia,

[314]

Abstinence.

When all abstained, they did not fast. But none washed themselves with soap nor in the steam bath; neither did [men] lie with women. Only when it was [the feast of] Panquetzaliztli did they fast for seven days.

Neçaualiztli.

Inic neçaualoia amo tlacatlaqualoia, çan ie aiac mamoviaia, aiac motemaia, anoiac cioacochia: çanyio ÿquac in panquetzaliztli, tlacatlaqualoia chiconilhuitl.

796x
782
785

X 796 war, they made, as it were, a supplication when anyone went where there was war, lest something 782 might go amiss [with them]. They said:
788 "Not here shall I die; [it is] in war that I go to die."

And when battle was already joined, they first plucked grass, shook it out toward the sun, and said:
"He will destroy and slay [our foe]," or, "He will capture [him]."

In this wise was a prayer raised to the sun.

iuhqujnma ic nenetoltiloia, jn jquac aca iauh iavc intla itla ic motolinjtinemj qujtoaia amo njcan in njmiquiz, iavc in njmiquitiuh auh in iõc ie muchivaz iauiotl achto qujpia in çacatl qujtzetzeloaia in jvicpa in tonatiuh qujtoaia, vnpopolihuiz y in tlamiquiz, anoço tlamaz iuhqujn ic monetoltiaia ivjc tonatiuh.

The Blowing of Trumpets.

X 796 [533] Thus was done the blowing of trumpets: when it was late at night, when it was already approaching 782 midnight, [then it was] when trumpets were sounded, that all [the priests] might offer blood in the house of the devil. Therefore were [the priests] awakened.

Tlatlapitzaliztli.

Injc muchivaia in tlatlapitzaliztli iquac in ie tlaquauhiovac, in ie onacitiuh iovalnepantla iquac tlapitzaloia ic neçohoaia in jchan Diablo, ic teixitiloia.

The Illumination with Fire.

Thus was done the illumination with fire: when we people had passed [the night until] midnight and also trumpets had been sounded, thus were men awakened. Thus those known as the besters began the keeping of the watch. And if any did not awake, they poured water upon him, or else they shook [coals of] fire upon him, or else they cast him into the water at Tilapan or at Coapan.

Tlatica tlavilizti.

Injc muchivaia tlatica tlaviliztli, in iquac ie titlaca in ishoalnepantla oacic, no tlapitzalo, ic teixitilo, ic pevaia in tlapializtli motenehoaia tlavitequjni, auh in aquin amo veliça atl ipan qujnoqujaia, anoço tletl ipã qujtzetzelovaia, anoço atlan contlaçaia vmpa tilapan, anoço coapan.

The Piercing of Ears.

X 796 The piercing of ears was also undertaken [because 782 of] the devil. Hence were ears bored.
785

Nenacazzapotlaliztli.

In nenacazzapotlaliztli no ic tlaiiecalhujloia in Diablo injc nenacazcoioniloia.

The Piercing of the [Lower] Lip.

In like manner the piercing of the [lower] lip: similarly, for the devil, was the boring of the [lower] lip endured.

Netezapotlaliztli.

I Çan no iuhquj in nenacazzapotlaliztli çan no ic tlaiiecalviloia in Diablo in netezapotlaliztli.

X796 A True [Relation] of how They Served the Sun; and of how many Times Trumpets Were Blown During the Day and During the Night; and of how many Times Incense Was Offered.

Each day, when the sun arose, quail were slain and incense was offered. And thus were quail slain: they wrung the necks of the quail and raised them dedicating them to the sun.

And they invoked [the sun], saying:

"The sun hath come forth—the shafts of heat, the turquoise child, the soaring eagle. And how he will go on, or how he may tarry [we know not]. Perchance something [ill] will be done his servants and vassals."

They said unto him:

"Work; perform thy office [for us], O our lord."

And this each day was thus done when the sun rose, [as hath] been said.

And thus was incense offered four times during the day, and five times during the night: The first time [was] when the sun burst forth. The second time [was] when [it was] time to eat [the first meal]. And the third time [was] at midday; and the fourth time [was] when already the sun had set.

And at night, thus was incense offered: the first time, when it was dark; the second time, when it was time to sleep; the third time, when the shell trumpets were sounded; the fourth time, at midnight; and the fifth time, near dawn. And when it was dark, incense was offered and a supplication was made to the night.

It was said:

"The Lord of the Night, he of the sharp nose, hath unfolded, and we know not how his office will end."

X796 And [his] feast day came upon the day of the day-count [called] nauí ollin, every two hundred and three days. And when the day had come, all did penances; all fasted for four days. And when they reached the day of the day-count, at noon, shell trumpets were blown, and straws were passed through the flesh to draw blood. And they cut the ears of little children lying in their cradles. And all the people bloodied themselves, and no supplications

Imelaoaca, in quenjn tlaiecultiloia tonatiuh: yoan quezqujpa in tlapitzaloia in cemjlhujtl, yoan in ceiocoal: yoan quezqujpa in tlenamacoia.

In mumuztlae in jquac valqujçaia tonatiuh, tlacotonaloia, yoan tlenamacoia. Auh injc tlacotonaloia qujquechcotonaia in çolin, conjaviliaia in tonatiuh, yoan qujtlapalovaia qujtoaia

Oqujçaco in tonatiuh, in tonametl, xiuhpiltontli, in quauhtlevanjtl: auh quen onotlatocaz quẽ cemilhujtiz, cujx itla ipan mochivaz in jcujtlapil, in jiatlapal conilvjaia.

Ma ximotequjtili, ma xjmotlacotili, totecujoe.

auh injn mumuztlae iuh muchivaia in iquac valqujçaia tonatiuh mjtoaia.

Auh injc tlenamacoia, nappa in cemjlhujtl, auh macujlpa in iovaltica. Injc ceppa iquac in valmomana tonatiuh. Injc vppa iquac in tlaqualizpan, auh injc Expa iquac in nepãtla tonatiuh, auh injc nappa iquac in ie oncalaquj tonatiuh.

Auh in iovaltica, injc tlenamacoia. Injc ceppa tlapoiaoa. Injc vppa netequilizpan. Injc Expa tlatlapitzalizpan, auh injc Nappa ticatla, auh injc macujlpa tlatvinavac, auh in iquac tlapoiava tlenamacoia tlapaloloia, in iovalli mjtoaia.

Ovalçouh in iovaltecutli in iacavîztli, auh quen onvetziz in jtequjuh.

Auh in ilhujuh qujçaia ipan cemjlhujtonalli navi ollin, matlacpoalli, vmei iça, auh in iõc ie onaci ilhujuh, neçavaloia, navilhujtl tlacatlaqualoia, Auh in ipã cemilhujtonalli in oacic ilhujuh, in nepantla tonatiuh, tlapitzaloia, tlacoqujstiloia: auh in pipiltzintli coçolco onoque qujnnacaztequja: auh muchi tlacatl mjçoia, auh atle ic tlapaloloia, çan jaqujch in were then made. But everyone drew blood; straws were passed through tongue or ear-lobe, and incense was offered. Everyone [did so]; none were negligent.

And there was the image of that one, [the sun, at a pyramid temple] called Quauhxicalli. There was erected his image, his image was designed as if it had the mask of a man [but] with [the sun's] rays streaming from it.[12a] His sun ornament was round, circled with feathers; surrounded with red spoonbill [feathers]. Here in his presence was the fasting done, and the passing of straws through the flesh, the laying of offerings, and the slaying of quail.

And upon his feast day, also many captives died, and these were also called "those who died in war." These went to the house of the sun and dwelt with the sun.

neçocohoaia, tlacoquistiloia, tlenamacoia muchi tlacatl aiac ixcauhticatca, 796x [285]

auh inon catca ixiptla, ichoatl, in motenehoaia quauhxicalli, vncan moquetzaia in ixiptla, injc mjcujlovaia in ixiptla iuhq'n tlacaxaiaque itonameio itech qoiztoia in itonatiuhtlatquj iavaltic vej ihujtica tlatzaqualli, tlauhquechol injc tlatzaqualli, vncan ixpan muchioaia nêçeliztli, in tlacoquistiliztli, in tlamanaliztli, in tlacotonaliztli. 796x 778

Auh inilhûjuh ipâ no mjiequjntin miquja mamalti, auh no mjtovaia in iaumiquj : natiuh ichan vjia itlan nemj in tonatiuh. 796x

12a. See 29, 68.

796 he had bathed it, then once more he placed the array [on the image] and took it in his arms. Loudly they played the flutes for him.

And after this they bore [the image] to Itepeyoc and set it in place. And when they had come to set it down, thereupon they went away; all dispersed. Then ended the fasting and penances of [those who had] for the year [been] eaters of the god.[24] in oconalti, niman ie no ceppa itlan aquj, quinapaloa, cenca quitlapichiliaia.

auh njman ie ic qujvica in itepeioc vmpa contlalia, auh in iõjc ocontlalito, njman ie ic momoiaoa, viviloa, ie vncan tzonquiça, in ineçaoaliz, in jntlamaceoaliz, in teuquaque ce xivitl.

●785 FOURTH PARAGRAPH, in which are related other burdensome works which those did who received the body of Uitzilopochtli.

Still another group at this time began to fast in the year that they were to eat the god. They proceeded in this manner each year; thus they all continued giving [way to others]. They all went on exchanging [places]; there was mutual taking over and trading [of functions]. And likewise for the priests of the tribal temples there was fasting for a year. Great also was their suffering.

Much from this did their affliction grow; great was their anguish, [which] filled their hearts and bodies. Verily, their misery surpassed [all else], since for one year there was to be fasting—since for a year they were to fast. [Each] man was to pass every night burning [wood] and providing light. Very much wood was consumed each night, as was the custom; and many broken up pine sticks, that torches might be lit. And they brought forth chili, tomatoes, salt, squash seeds, and water and food.

785 423 And when they had nothing more with which to buy, they gave up their precious capes, that they might buy things, or else they sold their land, which they had enclosed, or which lay in others' territory, or which somewhere they had kept. And they did even so with all lands—the tribal lands, the cultivated lands, marshy lands, the dry and dusty lands, or the cut-over, cultivated fields upon which they worked.

And if one who could not bring forth the tribute

INJC NAVJ PARRAPHO vncan motenecoa in oc centlamantli tequjtl vel etic, in quichiouia in ichoantin quiçelisia in jnacaio Vitzilobuchtli.

Ie no centlamantin vncan cõpeoaltia, in moçaoa in jpan xivitl teuquazque, çan juh otlatocatiuh, cecexiuhtica, çan jc nemamacotiuh, çan necacaviliotiuh, nepapatlalotiuh, nepapatlalo: auh çan ie no ivi in calpoloque, no ce xivitl in moçaoa cenca no motolinia, vel vmpa conquiça in netolinilintli, vel totoneoa, vel chichichina yn jniollo, in jnnacaio, vel iniacacpa quiquiça in: jnnetolinilix injc ce xivitl quitlaça moçaoa, injc mocexiuhcaoa, ice tlacatl ceioal quitlaça in tlatlacia, in tlavia, cenca miec in polivi intlatlatil quavitl icciual, yoan miec in ocotl tzomonoquj, injc tlavikoia, yoi quinextiaia, chilli, tomatl, iztatl, aiocechtli, yoan atl, tlaqualli.

auh in aoc tle itlacoaia, itech quioallaçaia in jtilmatzin, injc tlacoa, anoço quinamaca itlal, in quioaltzaçia, anoço canah temac motlalia, canah netlacujlli quichioa: auh injc quichioaia ipampa tlalli in quexquich quichioa in calpollali, yoan in chinamitl, in chinahcalli, in teuhtlalli, anoço xinmilli ie in ipan tequjtia:

auh in aquje in amo conieccoaia tequitl, ic quica-

24. The meaning of the term tolpoloc may be taken as either image or impersonator. The context of this passage, in both the Nahuatl and Spanish versions, suggests the impersonator bore the image to the Mint House, where the keeper of the god (teohuatl) bathed the image; either he bathed also the impersonator, or the latter bathed himself. The impersonator then took up the image.

4: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1952 NU7 Aztec NU7

therefore pledged the land, they made him leave it; they made him abandon it.

And when their fasting came to an end, much did they make merry. They bathed with water; they washed [their heads] with amolli soap.[28] And fruit was eaten—they made fruit tamales, and sauces. Or they stew and ate a dog, and they drank wine. Thus they showed that verily they were through with [their tribute]; that their works had fallen behind them.

For no longer a burden upon their backs was their fasting. [It was] as if [now] they could move briskly and with security; now they awoke [from their sleep] with joy and peace; they awoke tranquil. They had no offerings to make. In peace they might make their livings and find the means by which they might subsist either by fishing or in the magney fields; or perchance they might frequent the market places in one town or another. No more did they live in bondage.

Enough.

ooia in tlalli, ic quicaoaltiaia, ic quicacaoaltiaia:

785 [423]

ash in iquac in tzonquiçaia in jneçaoaliz, cenca papaquja, mashtiaia, mahamoviaia, yoan motocoquaiaia, quichioaia zocotamalli; yoan tlatonilli, anoço itzcuintli qujmjctiaia qujquaia, yoan tlaoanaia, ic quinextiaia in ca oquimotlaxilique, imicampa ovetz, in jntequjuh, i ma iuhqui tlamamalli in neçaoalizzli, in juhqui opouhtivetzque, ic pacca, iocotza oaliça oalpaccaiça aoc tle qujmamana çan iria in motlaccoltia in quitemoa in cochcaiotl, in neuhcaiotl, anoço tlatlama, in anoço tlachiquj, in aço motitianquiz in ahoácan tepehoácan: aoc tle qujiolitlacotiuh.

[262]

Je izquich.

28. See Fig. 3, 4.

[p. 10 is blank]

4: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1952 NU7 Aztec NU7

874 into the forest, or on the desert, or into the water. A younger one, or whosoever wished, went perhaps 793 half a league to place the spines. [The penitent] bore his shell trumpet and went blowing [it] where he placed the thorns. Wherever he came to be, he went blowing a trumpet.

[273] Sixth: When the priests slept, no two lay [together]. All lay quite separate. None were covered together.

Seventh: The food they prepared for themselves,
[252] together; for it was their own food which they ate. And if anyone returned with food from his house, he ate it not alone.

Eighth: At midnight, when, as was said, night divided in half, everyone arose and prayed. If anyone failed to do so because he slept, if he did not awake, then, for this, all gathered together and drew blood from his ears, or his breast, or his thighs, or the calves of his legs. Because of this, fear verily fell [upon the people].

[273 Ninth: None then were proud; none then were unruly. All lived well ordered [lives]. If at times it appeared that one perhaps drank wine, or was given 836 to women, or committed a great [fault], then they 688] went to apprehend him. No mercy was shown. He was burned, or strangled, or cast into the fire alive or shot with arrows. And if he sinned only lightly, they drew blood from his ears, his flanks, or his thighs with maguey spines or with a [sharpened] bone.

Tenth: The small boys were so raised that if they did nothing of great evil, they then drew blood from their ears, or switched them with nettles.

Eleventh: At midnight the principal [priests] went down into the water and bathed there in the water.

[785] Twelfth: When it was a time of fasting, everyone observed it. Verily, [only] at the moment when midday arrived did indeed all eat—even the small boys. And when it was the fast which they name Atamalqualo, then they ate but sparingly.[26] Some ate [only] at midnight and yet again went to eat at midnight; some ate at noon, and yet again went to eat at noon. No chili, no salt did they eat; neither, that they might sleep, [did they] even [drink] water. They said that the fast was broken if they ate or drank even a little.

Thirteenth: Very carefully were they taught good discourse. If one spoke not well, if one greeted others vitztlalia, iteccix ietiuh, tlapiztiuh, in canj yn evitztlalisia, yn oncino vmpa oallapiztiuh.

Jnjc. 6. ynjc cochia tlamacazque, aiac vme temj, çan muchintin, mixcavitoque, aiac monepan tlaquentia.

Jnjc. 7. çan mocenchioaia in tlaqualli, in quiquaia, ca oncatca in jnneuhia, in quiquaia. auh intla haca conmacaia ical itlaqual amo yioca conqua.

Jnjc. 8. in iocalnepantla in iquac mjtoa iocalli zellivi, muchi tlacatl meoaia tlatlatlauhtiaia, yn aquin tlacochcaoa, yn amo hiça njman ica necentlalilo, quiçoçoia ynacaztiech, yielpan, ymetzpan, itlanitzco vel ica mavixtli vezzi.

Jnjc. 9. çã njmã aiac tlacuecuenoviaia, ça njman aiac mocuecuetzoaia, vellatecpanpa yn nemoaia, intla ça nen quenman necia aço vetli qui, aço cioanotza, in anoço itla vej quichica, njman quitzacutivia, amo tlaoculiloia, tlecujlolo, anoço mecanilo, anoço tlecujlolo ioiolloc, anoço mimino, yn çan tepiton quitlacoa quiçoço yn inacazco, in jiomotla in imetzpa, vitztica, anoço omitica.

Jnjc. 10. in pipiltotonti ic oapoallo, çan njman atle vel comitlacoa, njman quinçoço in inacazco, anoço quinzitzicazvia.

Jnjc. ii. in iocalnepãtla apoztemoia in ic tachcaoa, atli ômakinia.

Jnjc. 12. yn iquac oncatca neçaualiztli, vel muchintin quipiaia, vel iquac yn oacic nepantla tonatiuh tlaquaia vel muchintin in pipiltotonti. auh in iquac oncatca neçaualiztli in quilhuja atamalqualo, njman amo tlapaloa, cequjnnin iocalnepãtla in tlaquaia, oc no iocalnepãtla in tlaquatiuh cequjnnin nepantla tonatiuh in tlaqua, oc no mozzla nepantla tonatiuh in tlaquatiuh, atle chilli atle iztal quiquaia, amo tle ic cochi in manel atl, quiioa moneçaoalhujltequi intla itlaua cõqua, conj.

Jnjc. 13. cenca vel nemachtilloia in qualli tlatolli,

26. "Hapaloa, ni. comer al poco cual pasaje, quizás comer" (Molina, op. cit.).

5: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

796
821

heavy pall, or clouds of many colors—which were spread before his face.

Eclipse of the Sun

782
821

When this came to pass, he turned red; he became restless and troubled. He faltered and became very yellow. Then there were a tumult and disorder. All were disquieted, unnerved, frightened. There was weeping. The common folk raised a cry, lifting their voices, making a great din, calling out, shrieking. There was shouting everywhere. People of light complexion[3] were slain [as sacrifices]; captives were killed. All offered their blood; they drew straws through the lobes of their ears, which had been pierced. And in all the temples there was the singing of fitting chants; there was an uproar; there were war cries. It was thus said: "If the eclipse of the sun is complete, it will be dark forever! The demons of darkness will come down; they will eat men!"

[785]

Tonatiuh qualo.

Jn icoac muchioa, y, chichiliubtimomana: aoc tlaca manj, aoc tlaca ca, ca mocuecueptimanj: cẽca tlacoçauia: niman ic tlatzomonj, tlacatl comonj: neacomanalo, necomonjlo, nemauhtilo, nechoquililo, tlachoquiztleoa in maceoalti: netenujteco, netempapaujlo, tlacaoaca, tlacaoatzalo, tzatzioa: oiooalli moteca, Tlacaztalmicoa, malmicoa, neçoa tlacoquistilo: nenacazteco: auh in tetcupan, suauchcuico, tlachalantoc, tlacaoacatoc: ic mitozia, intla tlamiz, in qualo tonatiuh: centlaiooaz: oaltemozque, in tzitzittimi, tequaquiui.

3. Tlamatzinca: cf., however, the corresponding passage in the Memoriales con escolios (Appendix to this volume), where the phrase is translated "hombres de colorados blancos y cara blanca."

S: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

821
782

Third Chapter, which telleth of the stars.

The Fire Drill[7]

When [these] appeared and set forth, incense was offered and burned. Thus was it said when Yoaltecutli [and] Yacauitztli had come forth: "What will the night bring? How will the day break?"

And these were offered incense. Three times was it done: when night fell—well into the night; and when it was time to sleep—the time when the flutes were blown.[8] When this [took place], this was the time for offering their blood and offering maguey spines stained with blood. The third time incense was offered was when it dawned, when the morning broke, when the earth was visible—when morning was near.

And hence was it said that they resembled the fire drill: because when fire was drawn with a drill, and the drill bored, thus fell, ignited, and flared the fire.

821
782
785

And also for this reason all burned [spots on] their wrists; for this reason were we men burned on the wrists, to show awe of him. He was feared and dreaded. It was said and considered of any whose wrists were not burned that on his wrists fire would be drilled in the land of the dead, when he died. Therefore we men—every one—were burned on the wrists. On both sides of each wrist they arranged in order, in rows, the wrist burns. Thus they represented the fire drill. In the same manner as [the stars] were arranged in order and in line, so also they placed in order, in rows, their burns on their wrists.

[The Morning Star or Great Star]

821

Of the morning star, the great star, it was said that when first it emerged and came forth, four times it vanished and disappeared quickly. And afterwards it burst forth completely, took its place in full light,

Inic ey capitulo, intechpa tlatoa: in cicitlaltin.

Mamalhoaztli.

In icoac oalneci, oalmotema: tlenamacoia, tlatotoniloia: ic mitoaia, ocoaltecutli, in iacauiztli: quen uetziz in ioualli, quen tlathuiz.

Auh in hin tlenamacoia, espa in [illegible]chioaia: icoac in tlapoiaoa, tlaquauh tlapoiaoa, yoan netetequizpan, tlatlapitzalizpa. Icoac, y, neçoaia, neuitzmanaloia: ic espa tlenamacoia, icoac in tlauizcaleoa, tlauizcalli moquetza: in tlatlalchipaoa, in ie tlathuinaoac.

Auh inic mitoa, mamalhoaztli, itech monenenilia in tlequauitl: ichica, in icoac tlequauhtlazo, ca momamali in tlequauitl: inic uetzi, inic xotla, inic mopitza tletl.

No yoan, inic nematlatiloia: inic momatlatiaia toquichtin, ichoatl quimacacia, mjmacacia imacaxoia, mjtoaia: quilmach in aquin amo nematlatile, imac tlequauhtlazoz in mjctlan, in icoac oenjc. Ichica in toquichtin, muchi tlacatl momatlatiaia, nenecoc inmac quiuiujpanaia, quitetecpanaia in innematlatil: ic quitlaichecalhuiaia in mamalhoaztli: in iuh vipantoc, tecpantoc, no iuh quiuiujpanaia, quitetecpanaia in immac innematlatil.

[The Morning Star or Great Star]

821

Of the morning star, the great star, it was said that when first it emerged and came forth, four times it vanished and disappeared quickly. And afterwards it burst forth completely, took its place in full light,

Citlalpol, vei citlalin mitoa: in icoac iancuican oalcholoa, oalquiça, nappan polini, popoliuhtiuetzi: auh çaçpã uel çaçpoui, çaçpoctimotlalia, çaçpontica, tlanestica: iuhquin metztona ic tlanestia.

7. The names of various constellations and stars may or may not correspond to the names by which they are now known. In the Spanish text and in the Mexicanized one similar, however, Sahagún equated them with the terminology current in his times. See also Plates 1-7, 21.

8. Tlatlapitzalizpan: cf. Arthur J. O. Anderson and Charles E. Dibble: Florentine Codex, Book II, The Ceremonies (Santa Fe: School of American Research, Monograph No. 14, Part III, and University of Utah, 1951), p. 192; also Sandoz, op. cit.; Godoy, op. cit., p. 252. The ceremony called for use of flutes or trumpets, according to Sandoz; of flutes, according to Godoy. Sources vary as to the exact time when these were blown.

S: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

Fifth Chapter, which telleth of the clouds.

The Lord of Tlaloca

821
776

He was considered a god. To him were attributed rain and water. Thus they said he made that which we ate and drank—food, drink, our sustenance, our nourishment, our daily bread, our maintenance. All that which grew in the summer he made—sprouts, fresh green sprouts, trees, amaranth, chia, squash, beans; the maguey, the tuna cactus; and still others, not edible—flowers, grasses.

[137]

821
793
785

And when his feast was observed, first there was fasting for four days. The priests fasted in honor of Tlaloc in what was called the priests' house, where they had matured and grown.

When the fourth day had passed, when the fasting had ended, when the feast had been completed, [the evildoers] were plunged and submerged repeatedly in the lake. Not soft, not gentle was the punishment. They were plunged and immersed repeatedly in the water. They ill-used only those of their own kind. They dragged [the victim] back and forth through the mud. They plunged him under the water and dragged him; they went pulling him along by the hair; they kicked him. [As] he swam under the water, churning, beating, and swirling it up as he went, he escaped the hands of the priests.

When a fault had been committed in the priests' house, or some error had been done—even though someone had only stumbled, or tripped over something, at once, for this, they laid hold of him. Because of it they shut him in as their captive, no more taking their eyes from him, that they might plunge him in the water.

And to excess did they set upon him. Greatly did they afflict and torment him. He lay half dead, breathing his last, gasping, in his last agonies; at death's door [was he] whom they finally cast on the shore. No one could plead his cause. From thence [the victims'] fathers and mothers took them. And if anyone felt apprehension or foreboding for his son, in order that [the priests] should not plunge him into the Ic macuilli capitulo, itechpa tlatoa: in mistli.

Tlaloca tecutli,

Teutl ipan machoia, itech tlamiloia, in quisuitl, in atl: iuh quitoaia, ie quichioa in ticoua, in tiqui, in qualoni, in joani, in tonenca, in toiolca, in tocochca, in toneuhca, in tocemilhuitiaia, in tonacaiotl: in ie iquich zopaniotl, in itzmolintoc, in celiztoc, in quauitl, in onuhtli, in chian, in aiotetl, in etl, in metl, in nopalli: yoan in oc cequi, in amo qualoni, in xuchitl, in xiuitl.

Auh in icoac ilhuiquistililoia: achtopa nauilhuitl moçaoaia, motlalocaçaoaia in tlamacazque: in moteneoa calmecac moçapaoa, mozcaltia.

In icoac oncic nauilhuitl, in ie neoaloa, in ie ilhuitl muchioa: matlampapachoaia, mopopolactiaia in uei apan: amo iuiian, amo motlamachuja, in atlan onmotzotzopontirlaça, onmotzotzopontimaisui: çan monetechuja, vncan çoquititlan quinemjtia, quipopolactia, quiuiuilana: icpac cantinemi, quititilioça, atlã tlatzotzopoztinemj, aiocotztinemi, tlamomoloztinemi: inmac mouiuitlatinemi, in tlamacazque, in otlatlaco, in calmecac itlã oncholo: intlanel çan aca ômotepotlami, itlã oconicxixopeuh, oc uel ic conacique, ie ic inmal ça quipipia, aocmo conjscaoa, inic catlampapachonque.

Auh amo çan quenjn quipolos: uel quicocoltia, quellelaxitia, ça quen quimattoc, ça mopopoçaulztoc, ça içomocatoc, ça micqui in quicalmaisui atenco: aiac uel ipan tlatoa, vncan quimonana in intlaoan, in innaboan. Auh in aquin quitlamauhcaitilia, in quitlotêmachilia ipiltzin, inic amo catlampapachenque: conquistiaia itlatzin quinmacaia in tlamacazque, aço tetolin, aço tlaqualli: ic quicaoaia.

5: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

821
793
785
[535]

water, in order that they should let him go, he offered the priests something of value—either a turkey or food. In return for it they let [his son] be.

And when this came to pass, everywhere, in the houses of all, in each house, etz·lli[9] was eaten. Each one made etzalli for himself; and there was a dance in which etzalli was begged. With green maize stalks they danced. Those who danced the etzalli dance entered house after house, each one begging and asking. [The householders] offered them all this same etzalli, [placing it] in the small jars, the etzalli jars, which they bore in their hands.

These [gods] were called Tlaloca. To them were attributed clouds, rain, hail, snow, mist, sheet lightning, thunder, and lightning bolts which struck men.

The Rainbow

821

As if arched—bent and rounded—it thus appeared. Varicolored, many-hued was its appearance. The single colors which showed in it [were] green, dark green, blue green, and black; and yellow and orange or tawny; then vermillion and ruby red; and [various shades of] blue, and dark green.[10]

And they said that when it appeared it revealed, made evident to men, and denoted—whereby it was known, realized, and seen—that it would not rain; would not rain hard—would not pour. But it would break up the clouds. It would dissipate, impede, and quiet the rain—the downpour which wet, soaked, and drenched one. If clouds piled up, if heavy clouds blackened [the sky] so that everywhere it was dark, it only dissipated [them]. Although it rained, no longer was the rain heavy; no longer did it increase. It only sprinkled; it drizzled; a few drops fell; a haze, a fog, a thin mist drifted and fell. Or at most it sprinkled; the sprinkling and the spray continued.

And they said—it was averred—[that] if it appeared over magney plants, because of it the green [leaves] yellowed, turned, dried, reddened, and withered. And also they said [that] when it appeared many times, thereby it was evident [that] the rains were to end forthwith. They said: "Soon the masters of the rain will go; already the Tlaloca are about to leave."

Auh in iconac, y, in notiian techachan, in cecencalpan etzalqualoia: cecciaca metzalhuiaia, yoan etzalmaceoaloia: cintopiltica mitotia, tepan cacalaqui, motlatlaeuia, motlatlaitlanja, in etzalmaceuhque: çan muche in etzalli quinmaca, inxoxochuicol, imeetlalcon intlan caana.

In ichoantin, y, moteneoa tlaloque: intech tlamiloia in mistli, in quiauitl, in teciuitl, in cêpaiauitl, in aiauitl, in tlapetlaniliztli, in tlatlatziniliztli, in teuitequilizti.

Ainulicoçamalol.

Iubquin uitoluhqui: tlauitoltic, coltic, inic oalmoquetza, tlatlatlapalpoalli, motlatlapalpouh in itlachieliz. In centlamantli tlapalli, itech neci: xoxoctic, quiltic, quilpaltic, iiapaltic, quilpalli, iiapalli: yoan coztic, xopaltic, xochipalli: niman ie chichiltic, tlapaltic: yoã tlaztaleoaltic, tlaztaleoalli: yoan texôtic, texôtli, matlaltic, matlalli.

Auh quitoa, in iconac oalmoquetza: quinestia, quiteittina, quinezcaiotia, ic macho, ic machizti, ic ino: in amo quiauiz, amo tlaelquiauiz, amo tilaoaz: çan quimomoiaoaz in mistli, quipopoloa, quellictia, quiiacatzacuilia in quiiauitl, in tlaelquiiauitl: in tepaltili, in techacnani, in teçoquitili. Intla cenca omotlatlali mistli, in ouel cuicuicheoac, in onouiian tlatlaioonc: çan quipepopoloa. Intlanel quiauí, aocmo cenca tilaoa, aocmo molluia: ça oachquiauí, aoachtli in onoueiezti, in onchichipini: aoachpiztactli, aoachpicilli, aoachpicilitoton, in ontzitzicuini in onoueetti: amoçe çan aoachtilaoa, aoachtilaoatimani, aoachtzetzeliuhtimani.

Auh quitoa, quilnach intla metl, ipan moquetza: ic macueçalicini, macoçauia, maoaqui, machichilini, motlatlanja, macuetlanja. No yoan quitoa, in iconac miecpa oalmoquetza: ic neci, çan ouel quiçaz, in quiauitl: quitoaia, çan ouel iazque in aoaque, ic quiçanque in tlaloque.

9. Etzalli: cf. Anderson and Dibble, op. cit., p. 79.

10. Sahagún (Memorial de los ancianos) has green for xoxoctic, quiltic, quilpaltic, iiapaltic, quilpalli, and iiapalli. Alonso de Molina, in his Vocabulario de la lengua mexicana (Julio Platzmann, ed.; Leipzig: B. G. Teubner, 1880), gives blue-green for quilpaltic and brown or black for iiapaltic. The second occurrence of this latter and of quilpalli is omitted in this translation. Molina translates xochipaltic as ruddy or rose-colored. In Memorial de los ancianos, Sahagún treats both chichiltic and tlapaltic as red. For tlaztaleoaltic, Molina has red or rose-colored. For matlaltic and matlalli, the Memorial has blue.

372
793
796

sleep—it was thought—they would turn into mice; they would become mice.

Hence was heed paid only one thing; there was unwavering attention and expectation as all remained facing, with neck craned, the summit of Uixachtecatl. Everyone was apprehensive, waiting until, in time, the new fire might be drawn—until, in good time, [a flame] would burst forth and shine out. And when a little came forth, when it took fire, lit, and blazed, then it flared and burst into flames, and was visible everywhere. It was seen from afar.

[785] Then all the people quickly cut their ears, and spattered the blood repeatedly toward the fire. Although [a child] still lay in the cradle, they also cut his ears, took his blood, and spattered it [toward] the fire. Thus, it was said, everyone performed a penance.

[782] Then [the priests] slashed open [the captive's] breast. In his breast [cavity] the new fire was drawn. They opened the breast of the captive with a flint knife called iztõnac. Etc.

Ic ça miscauja, mocemmati in ontlachielotoc, in onitztotoc, in õnequechanotoc, uixachtecatl iicpac: isquich tlacatl vmpa ontlatenmati, õnotemachia, in quẽmanja uetzi tlequauitl, in quẽmania oalcueponi, oalpetzini. Auh in iccac, oquenteltzin vel uetz, in omopitz, in oxotlac: çatepan ic cuetlani, cueponi, nouiian õneci, oalitto in vẽca.

Niman ic muchi tlacatl monacaztectiuetzi, contlatzitzicuinilia isquichcapa in tletl: in manel coçolco onoc no connacaztequi, concuilia iniezço, contzitzicuinilia in tletl: ic mitoa, ca muchi tlacatl tlamaceoa, ic coneltetequi, in jelpan ontlequauhtlaxoc, conelcoionja in malli, ica tecpatl: itoca iquaoac. etc."

Twelfth Chapter, in which is told [the manner of conduct of] all the people when the new fire was taken. And, when this took place, everyone renewed his clothing and all the household goods.

Then, at this time, all renewed their household goods, the men's array, and the women's array, the mats—the mats of large, fat reeds,—and the seats. All was new which was spread about, as well as the hearth stones and the pozzles. Also at this time [the men] were newly dressed and wrapped in capes. A woman—[such as she] dressed newly in their new shirts and skirts.

Thus it was said that truly the year newly started. There was much happiness and rejoicing. And they said: "For thus it is ended; thus sickness and famine have left us." Then incense was offered; [quail] were decapitated, and incense was offered. They grasped this incense ladle, and raised it in dedication to the four directions in the courtyard. Then they cast it into the hearth. Thus was incense offered.

Thereupon amaranth seed cakes overspread with honey were eaten. Then all were bidden to fast, and [it was ordered] that no one should drink from the time that it was completely light until it came to be considered midday. And when noon came, then captives and ceremonially bathed ones died. Then all rejoiced and there was feasting. Then once again fires were newly laid and placed.

And [in fire] the pregnant women, who had been feared, if any of them then gave birth to and bore a child; if a boy was born as her child, they named him Mixcóatl, Xiuhtlalpil, Xiuhtzinquí, Xiuhtli, Tezcatl, Xiuhtlatlac, Quetzalxiuh, Xiuhquen, etc. And if [it was] a girl, Xiuhnenetl, Xiuhcue, Xiuhcoyol, etc.

And when, in the time of Moctezuma, our years were honored, he ordered that indeed everywhere should be sought a captive whose name [contained the word] xiuitl. Wherewover [he was], this one was to be seized. And one was taken—a man from Uexotzinco, a well-born man. He was called Xiuhtlamin, Inic matlactlomome, capitulo, vncan mitoa: in quenin in iaquich tlacatl, in icoac omocuic in iancuic tlad: auh in icoac, y, muchi tlacatl, quiikcuillaia in itlaquen, yoan in iaquich calitlaquitl.

Niman icoac, iaquich iancuiia, in calitlaquitl: . oquichtlatquitl, in cioatlaquitl, in petlatl, in tolcuetli, in icpalli: muchi iancuic in motenca, ioã in tenamastli, in tezolotl. No iquac iancuic nequentilo, nelpililo in tilmatli: in cioatl, iancuic omnaquia, in incue, in inuipil. 372

Ic mitoa, ca nel iancuic ompeoa in xiuitl: papacoa, netlamachtilo: yoan quitoaia, ca ic oquiz, ic oechtlalcaui in cocolitzli, in maianalitzli. Niman ic cocopaltemale, tlacotonale, tlenamaco: concui in tlemaitl, nauhcampa coniiaoa in itholoco, çaepan contema tlexicco, inic otlenamacoc copalli: [782] nimã ic ic nocpan tzocuoalquale, vncan ic neçaoalittlalhuilo, inic aiac atlix, ic centlathuix: quincomomattiuiia in nepantla tonatiuh. Auh in oacic, nepantla tonatiuh, niman ic miqui in mamalti, yoan tlaltiti: quinicoac cempopacoa, tlitlaquale: icoac oc cenpa ikcuican netlitlecuilitilo, netlitlecuillalililo. [785]

Auh in oimacazoia oczti, istla aca icoac omixiuh, otlacachiuh: istla oquichtli iconcuh odlacat, quinocaiciuia mokpili, xiuhtlalpil, xiuhtzinquí, xiuhtli, tezxiuh, xiuhtlatlac, quetzalxiuh, xiuhquen. Etc.* Auh istla cioatl, xiuhnenetl, xiuhcue, xiuhcoçol. Etc.* [551]

Auh in icoac, ipan muchiuh motecuçoma, tuxiuhtoipilli omoca nouitlan ic tlanonoti, inic temoloc malli: in iaoca xiuitl, in çaço campa id mocc. Auh oc oxiuac tocpatzinoatl, tlaçopilli: iaoca xiuhtlamin, tlatlilco malli muchiuh: in tlamanj iaoca itocuin, auh ic tocaiotlac, ic nocualoc xiuhtlamimanaui: ca ichcatl 796 372 782

31

3/4 [See cat. 116, p. 27 — Analyst]

5: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

THE SEVENTH BOOK TREATETH OF THE SUN, MOON, AND STARS, AND OF THE YEAR OF JUBILEE

EL 7.° LIBRO TRATA DEL SOL Y DE LUNA Y ESTRELLAS Y DEL AÑO DEL JUBILEO.[19]

First Chapter, of the sun.

821 The sun hath the quality of shining and of lighting and of casting rays from himself. He is hot and he seareth; he maketh one sweat, and turneth a man's body and face dark brown or tawny.

El sol tiene propriedad de resplandecer y de alumbrar y de echar rayos de si. Es caliente y tuesta, haze sudar pa bosco o loro el cuerpo y la cara de la persona.

821 785 782 They celebrated a feast to the sun once each year in the sign named Four Olin. And before the feast they fasted four days as the vigil of the feast. And in this feast of the sun, four times they offered incense and blood from the ears—once at sunrise, another time at midday, at the vesper hour, and when [the sun had] set.

Hazian fiesta al sol vna vez cada año en el signo que se llama 4. olin. Y antes de la fiesta ayunavan quatro dias como vigilia de la fiesta. Y en esta fiesta del sol ofrecian encienso y sãgre de las orejas quatro vezes: vna en saliendo el sol, otra al medio dia, y a la hora de visperas y qñ se ponia.

Ytzcaliui. t. itzcaliubtica in noyollo: My heart is calmed, or rested, in love. Pret., oitzcaliuh. oitzcaliubticatca.

II.
ytzcaliui. t. itzcaliubtica yn noyollo. refriarse o declino mi coraçon en el amor. pt.° oitzcaliuh. oitzcaliubticatca.

Vel cen tecomatl in atl ocontzinouh: A whole gourd[full of water] was overturned while being drunk.

34.
Vel cen tecomatl ỹ atl ocontzinouh. trastornose vna xicara ẽtera beuiẽdola.

19. Sahagún (Pinto y Tuesman ed.), Vol. VII, pp. 177-215.

5: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Astec NU7

821 And when he came forth in the morning, they said: "Now the sun starteth his work. How will it be? What will come to pass on this day?"

Y quando a la mañana salía decían ya comiença el sol su obra que será, que acontecerá é este dia.

And at sunset they said: "The sun hath ended his work, or task." Sometimes when the sun rieth, he seemeth blood-colored; and at times whitish; and sometimes he rieth sickly-hued because of the mist or the clouds which cover him.

Y a la puesta del sol, decían acabo su obra, o su tarea el sol. A las veces q̃ sale el sol pareçe de color de sangre: y a las veces parece blanquezino: y a las veces sale de color enfermizo por razon de las nieblas o de las nubes que se le afiponé.

When the sun is eclipsed, he turneth red; it seemeth that the sun becometh disquieted, or troubled; or he moveth to and fro, or he stirreth. And he turneth very yellow.

Quando se eclipsa el sol parase colorado parece que se desasosiega o se turba el sol, o se remueve, o rebuelve y amarillecese mucho.

821 When the people see this, they then raise a tumult.

Quando esto ver la gente luego se alborota.

785 And a great fear taketh them, and then the women weep aloud. And the men cry out, [at the same time] striking their mouths with [the palms of] their hands. And everywhere great shouts and cries and howls were raised. And then they hunted out men of fair hair and white faces; and they sacrificed them to the sun. And also they sacrificed captives, and they anointed themselves with the blood of their [own] ears. And, besides, they bored [the lobes of]

782

Y tomaba gran temor, y luego las mugeres lloran a voces. Y los hombres dan gritos hiriendo las bocas con la mano. Y en todas pates se daná grandes bozes y gritos, y alaridos. Y luego buscavan los hombres de cabellos blancos y caras blancas: y los sacrificavan al sol. Y tambien sacrificavan captivos y se untavan con la sangre de las orejas: y tambien agujeravan las orejas con puntas de magueí y ponían zimbalos o cosas semejantes por los agujeros q̃ las puntas avian

S: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

821
785
782

their ears with maguey spines and passed flexible twigs or the like through the holes which the spines had made. And then, in all the temples, they sang and sounded [musical instruments], making a great din. And they said: "If the sun becometh completely eclipsed, nevermore will he give light; eternal darkness will fall, and the demons will come down. They will come to eat us!"

hecho. Y luego por todos los templos cantauan y tañian haziendo gran ruido. Y dezian si del todo se acaba de eclipsar el sol nunca mas alumbrara ponerse han perpetuas tinieblas y descenderan los demonios vendran nos a comer.

Second Chapter.

821

When the moon newly appeareth, he seemeth like a thin, little curve of wire. He doth not yet shine. By little and little he goeth growing. On the fifteenth day he is full. And when now he is full, he cometh forth in the east at sunset. He seemeth like a great millstone—very round and very red. And as he goeth rising, he becometh whiter or shining. [There is what] looketh like a rabbit in the middle of him. And if there are no clouds he shineth almost like the

Capitulo Segundo

Quando la luna nuevamẽte nace, parece como vn arquito de alambre delgado aun no resplandece: poco a poco va creciendo. A los quinze dias es llena. Y qñ ya es llena sale por el oriente a la puesta del sol: parece como vna rueda de molino grande muy redonda y muy colorada. Y qñ va subiendo se para blanca o resplandeziente: parece como vn conejo en medio della. Y si no ay nubes resplandece casi como el sol, casi como de dia. Y d'spues de llena cõpli-black sleeveless jacket, and his tobacco gourd with black tassels, and they put on them their white foam sandals.[6] Then they veiled and covered their faces, each one of them, with black fasting capes designed with bones. And they gave them cotton incense bags, black and designed with bones, which they filled with incense. And their incense ladles were filled with live coals. Then also they took up each one of them; the keepers of the gods, the long-haired ones, went taking them in their midst, in order to have them go up above to [the Temple of] Uitzilopochtli. Then each one took incense; each one filled his incense ladle, which went full of live coals, and raised the incense ladle before [the image of] Uitzilopochtli and perfumed it.

tiltic in jmama, ioan qujmaaqujlia impocolcac iztac: njman ic qujmontlapachoa, qujmonizqujmjlloa, cecenme, ica neçaoalquachtli, tiltic omjcallo, ioan qujzonmaca icpaxiqujpilli, tiltic omjcallo, in vncan temj copalli, ioan intlema tlexochtli ontentiuh: njman ic no qujntlecauja cecenme, qujntlacoaantiuj in teupixque papaoaque, injc qujntlecauja iicpac vitzilopuchtli, injc cecenme concuj in copalli, contema in jntlemaco, in vncan tentiuh tlexochtli, cacocuj in tlemaitl in jixpã vitzilopuchtli qujpopochuja.

644
292

SECOND PARAGRAPH, in which it is told how those chosen did penance there in the temple and came not forth for four days.

And when this was done, and they had offered incense and spread a fragrance before Uitzilopochtli, then they brought down the ruler, the lord of men; he went covered with the green fasting cape with a design of bones. Then they also brought down each one of the lords. They went quite slowly in order; they went with faces veiled, each one, with the fasting cape with the bone design.

The keepers of the gods, the long-haired ones, went taking them in their midst. They took [the ruler and] they escorted[7] [the lords] there to the house of fasting, a place named Tlacochcalco, or Tlacatecco, the house of Uitzilopochtli. There they fasted and did penance for four days. Nowhere went they forth; they only remained seated. When it was already midday, then the keepers of the gods, the long-haired ones, also went; the ruler and the lords in the Tlacatecco, who fasted there, they seized—they went taking them in their midst. They went with faces veiled in fasting capes; in the hands of each one went his incense ladle, and each one went taking with him his cotton bag filled with incense. Slowly and in order they went to take them up, above to [the Temple of] Uitzilopochtli, to offer incense, to spread a fragrance before [the image of] Uitzilopochtli. In the same way they came down; they came in order; they came with faces veiled in fasting capes designed with bones. Then was the time

INJC VME PARRAPHO: vncan mjtoa, in quenjn tlamaçeoaia in tlapepenalti, in vmpa teupan: auh amo oukqujçaia nauilhujtl.

Auh in ie iuhquj otlenamacaque, otlapopochujque iixpan vitzilopuchtli: njman ic qujoaltemouja in tlatoanj, tlacatecutli, tlapachiuhtiuh in jca neçaoalquachtli omjcallo zozoctic: njman ic no ceceiaca qujnoaltemouja, in tecutlatoque, çan jujian tecpantiuj, ic ixtlapachiuhtiuj, ceceiaca in jca neçaoalquachtli omjcallo.

643
644
783
785

quintlacoaantiuj in teupixque papaoaque, qujujca qujmonujca in neçaoalcalli, itocaiocan tlacochcalco, ioan tlacatecco, in jchan vitzilopuchtli: in vncan tlamaçeoaia moçaoaia nauilhujtl, amo campa quiça, çan cheoxticate; in jcoac ic nepantla tonatiuh, njman ic no ohuj in teupixque papaoaque: in vncan tlacatecco, in vncã moçaoaia tlatoanj, ioan tecutlatoque, qujmonana, qujntlacoaantiuj ixqujmjlhtiuj, in jca neçaoalquachtli, inmac onotiuh in jntlema icecenme, ioan itlan cantiuh ceceiaca in jicpaxiqujpil, in vncan tentiuh copalli, çan jujian tecpantiuj, in qujntlecauja in jcpac vitzilopuchtli, inic ontlenamaca, injc ontlapopochhuja ixpan vitzilopuchtli: çan no iuj injc oaltemo tecpantiujtze, ixtlapachiuhtiujtze, in jca neçaoalquachtli omjcallo: qujnjcoac tlaqua in tlatoanj, ioã tecutlatoque ça ceppa in tlaqua cemjlhujtl.

6. Impossible: impossible to means.
7. The Real Academia de la Historia MS has qujmonujca for qujmonujca.

643 644 that the ruler and the lords ate; only once a day did they eat.

783 785 And at night, when midnight arrived, the ruler and the lords arose, covered with the fasting capes. And they took up their incense ladles and cotton bags filled with incense, and maguey spines; and they were shod in their foam sandals. And these keepers of the gods, the long-haired ones, took them in their midst—they took them above, to [the Temple of] Uitzilopochtli, to offer blood at midnight. And they offered incense; there they cast incense before [the image of] Uitzilopochtli.

In the same manner they came down. They went in order. The keepers of the gods, the long-haired ones, took them in their midst, with their faces veiled in fasting capes designed with bones. When they had descended, then they went to bathe—the ruler and the lords. Thus did they do penance at night.

For four days they fasted, with faces veiled in fasting capes. And for as many days, at noon, they offered incense before [the image of] Uitzilopochtli. Likewise, for as many nights, at midnight, they offered incense and made blood offerings before [the image of] Uitzilopochtli, and they bathed themselves.

Auh iioaltica, in jcnac ioalnepantla oaçic, meoa in tlatoanj, ioan in tecutlatoque, ic ommotlapachoa in neçaoalquachtli: ioan cencuj in jntlema ioan icpaxiquipilli in vncan temj copalli, ioan vitztli, ioan conmocactia in jmpoçolcac: auh in icboantin teupixque papaoaque, qujntlacoaantiuj, in qujujca, icpac vitzilopuchtli, injc ommjçn ioualnepantla, ioan ontlenamaca oncopaltema, in jxpan vitzilopuchtli.

çan no iuj oaltemo tecpantiujtze, qujntlacoaana in teupixque papaoaque, ic ixtlapachiuhtiuj in neçaoalquachtli omjcallo, in ooaltemoque, njman ic huj in maltizque, in tlatoanj, ioã tecutlatoque, injc iooaltica tlamaceoaia, naujlhujtl in moçaoaia ic ixquijmjliuhticatca in neçaoalquachtli, auh izqujlhujtl in nepãtla tonatiuh, in ontlenamacaia ixpan vitzilopuchtli: çan no izquj-ioal, in ioalnepantla tlenamacaia, ioan onmjçoa in jxpan vitzilopuchtli, ioan maltiaia.

THIRD PARAGRAPH, in which it is related how they ended the penance, and took the ruler to the courtyard of the palace; and the others they took to their homes.

And after this, when the four days and four nights were ended during which the ruler and lords had fasted and done penance—at that time the ruler came forth, that they might escort him there to the great palace, the ruler's residence. And also at that time the lords entered their homes.

[777] And when this had come to pass, then the ruler chose a propitious day on which the ruler's feast might be observed. He commanded all the majordomos to accord others and give them all capes, and costly devices, and shields.

INJC EY PARRAPHO: ipan mjtoa, in quenjn qujtzonquixtiaia tlamaçeoaliztli, ioan qujujcaia in tlatoanj, in tecpan itoalco: ioã in oc cequjntin qujnujcaia in jnchan.

Auh in ic iuhquj in otzonqujz naujlhujtl, ioan nauhioal, in oonmoçauh, in ontlamaçeuh tlatoanj, ioan tecutlatoque, qujnjcoac qujça in tlatoanj, injc concaoa in vmpa vei tecpan tlatocan. Auh in tecutlatoque, qujn no icoac calaquj jn jnchan.

Auh in ic iuhquj: njman ic qujpepena in tlatoanj, in qualli tonalli, in jpan motlatocapacaz, qujnnaoatia, in jxqujchtin calpixque, in jxqujch tilmatli, ioan tlaçotlanquj tlaujztli, ioan chimalli, in qujtetlauhtiz, in qujtemacaz.

643 527 648 FOURTH PARAGRAPH, in which it is told how the ruler made summons to a feast.

Then he bade to a feast those from every city. He asked to the banquet the ruler of Michoacan, and the ruler of Cuextlan, and the ruler of Metztitlan, and the lords of the Totonac country, and the lords of Tlaxcala, and the ruler of Cholula, and the lords

INJC NAUJ PARRAPHO, vncan mjtoa, in quenjn qujchioaia tecoanotzaliztli, in ichoatl tlatoanj.

Niman ic tecoanotza, in noujian altepetl ipan, qujcoanotza in mjchoacan tlatoanj, ioan cuextlan tlatoanj, ioan metztitlan tlatoanj, ioan totonacapan tlatoque, ioan tlaxcallan tlatoque, ioan cholollan tlatoanj, ioan uexotzinco tlatoque, ioan tenjtla tla-

6: Sahagún M-S (1529-1590) 1954 NU7 Aztec NU7

Appendix A

Continuation of the Fourth Paragraph, Chapter Fourteen[1]

In the priests' house of Mexico, there were established and congregated all the keepers of the gods, the fire priests, and [other] priests, the city's devout ones. There they waited [lest] perchance the ruler might require something—perhaps inquire about something, mayhap of something they had seen in all the places where debts [of sacrifice] had been paid upon the mountains and upon the water; there where, afar, were the small pyramids where each night they performed penances.

For these who were fire priests and other priests, when they came forth well into the night, and when, as was said, the shell trumpets were newly blown, first drew their blood before the devil, with thorns, the spines of the maguey; then each one separately set forth, going quite naked. They went [out] having put about them only their pouches with cords,[2] which went filled with dyed, powdered tobacco—this tobacco mixed with a black [dye]—which they chewed as they went. And one proceeded taking with him an incense ladle in which fire went enclosed; and a small cotton bag in which was incense; and pine wood; and he carried his fir branches in his arms, as well as his spines covered with blood, and a shell as his trumpet. And even though it rained hard or was freezing, just so he went.

When he reached whatsoever mountain he was to perform his due upon, then and there he paid his debt [of sacrifice]. He offered incense; he spread out his fir boughs, his bloodied maguey spines. He listened for the time when trumpets were to be sounded in Mexico, at midnight. And when the trumpets had been sounded in Mexico at midnight, then the priests, they who did penance, blew trumpets everywhere there upon the mountains where they paid their debts. Then they turned back, sounding trumpets as they went, in the dawn, when they again entered the priests' house.

Calmecac, mexico, vncan tecpanoaya, vncan mocenquixtiaya in ixquichtin teupixque yn tlenamacaque, yn tlamacazque yn itlamaceuhcauan catca altepetl, conchiaya yn ꝛço itla ic quintemoz tlatoani, aço itla ic tlatlaniz, aço itla quitta yn ompa yzquican omoxtlauha yn tepeticpac, yoã atlan, yoan yn ompa veca caca momoztli, yceceyoual yc tlamaceua. 346 793

Ca y ichoanti tlenamacaque, tlamacazque catca yquac quiçaya yn tlaquauh tlapoyaua, ỹ mitoaya yancujcan tlatlapitzalo, achto miçoya in ixpan tlacatecolotl yca vitztli, ỹ metl yuitzo, niman ceceyaca quiçaya, çan petlauhtiuja, çan ixquich onactiuia yn intoxi yntlamecayouh vncan tentiuh yaqualli yehoatl im piçietl tlanelolli thlli yn quiquatiuja, yoan quitquitiuia tlemaitl tzacuhtiuh vnca yetiuh tletl, yoã xiquipiltontli yc icatiuh copalli, yoã ocotl, yoã quiçiacauia yn iacxoyauh, yoan in iuitz yeheço, yoan tecucirtli yn itlapitzal ỹ manel cenca quizuiz, anoço ceuetziz yuhca viya. 793 [705] [291] [276 415]

[534]

yn iquac yn oacic campa tepetitech tlamatiuh nimã yc vncã moztlaua, tlenamaca, contema yn iacxoyauh, yn iuitz yeheço, quiualcaqui in queman tlapitzaloz mexico y youalnepantla, auh yn otlapitzaloc mexico youalnepantla, nimã yc nouian tlapitza yn tlamacazque yn tlamaceuhque yn ompa tepetitech in campa omoxtlaua, niman valmocuepa tlatlapitztiujtze ye tlatuinauac, y ualcalaqui calmecac. 796 783 [534]

1. See note 11, Chapter 14.

2. Leonhard Schultze Jena, in Glaubenswelt der Alt-Azteken, Volk in Familie, Stand und Beruf (Stuttgart: W. Kohlhammer Verlag, 1952), p. 330, says of the form ximoi: "Da es im Text durgängig bespichnet, die den Copalbeutel trugen, wird es sich um Priester handeln." The word ximoimpoalli he translates (ibid., p. 161), "schlüssel ist mit einer Schnur." with eagle down — with tufts of feathers. It was called xoxouqui. And the shield banner was painted like the blood banner. And his four arrows he held together with his shield. And his left arm band was hanging from his arm; it was composed of [strips of] coyote fur, and from it hung paper cut in strips.

And when dawn broke, when it was now the feast day, early in the morning, then those who had made vows before him unwrapped him. Before him they stood in one row and offered him incense; before him they laid all manner of gifts — feast foods, rolls of amaranth seed dough. And this was when they had not yet taken him up and elevated him to Itepeyac. And all the men, the young, seasoned warriors, were as if determined and eager to proceed with and observe the feast, and thus show, exhibit proudly, and demonstrate it to the Spaniards.

All hastened and ran, as they made their way toward the temple courtyard, in order there to dance the winding dance. And when all had assembled, then the start was made; then began the chanting and the winding dance. And those who had fasted twenty days, and[9] those who had fasted a year, stood aside facing the others. Those who hemmed in [the dancers had] their pine cudgels; whosoever tried to leave [the dance] they menaced with the pine cudgels. But one who would [leave to] urinate took off his net cape and his forked heron feather ornament. But one who did not at once obey, who would not be excluded, or who was mischievous, they soundly beat his back therefor, [or] his thighs, [or] his shoulders, and thrust him outside. They cast him out by force; they threw him on his face — he went falling on his face; he fell forth on his ear. No one in their hold took his leave.

The elder brothers of Uitzilopochtli — those who had fasted for a year — were much feared, looked upon with terror and awe, and dreaded. And those at the head, the great leaders, the participants, might leave. They did not detain them. Yet all the small boys, those with the lock of hair at the back of the head, with the back lock of hair, and those with the jar-shaped hair dress — they who had taken a captive with others' help, — the leaders, those called leaders of young men, who were unmarried, who had gone [to war] to take one or two [captives], they also held away. They said to them: "Go along there, knaves! You shall give a good example! Appear not before us!"

9. Text is repeated in the MS.

796
778
[293]

Auh in otlatvic in ie ilhujuh ipan, in iuatzinco ie ic quixtlapoa in jvic mocetoltia, ixpan oncenpanti quitlenamaxquilia, ixpan qujmana in ixqujcan ventli in tlacatlaqualli, in tzoalilacatzolli. Auh in jquac in, aocmo quitlecavique, aocmo cacoquixtique in itepeioc: auh in ixqujch tlacatl in telpopochtequjoaque iuhqujn nececõquetzalo, iuhqujn in ioiolipã in jlhujtlazque, in ilhujtlamatizque, injc quintlattitizque, quintlamaviçoltizã, quintlaixtlatizque, in Españoles:

tlatotoca, netlalolo, vmpa ixtiova in teuitoalco, injc vmpa necococololoz. Auh in ococenquixoac: njmã ie ic peoalo, ie ic vmpeoa in cujco yoan necococololoz. Auh in mocenpoalçauhque, yoan yoan in mocexiuhçauhque nepan jxtinemj: in tetzaqua imoocoquauh, in aquin quiçaznequj ic quitlaieiecalhuja in ocoquavitl: auh in aquin maxixaz quitlalitiuh icuechi, yoan iaxtaxel. Auh in aquin çan njman atlatlacamati, in amo tetlaçaltoca in aquen tlatta, vel ic quicuitlavitequj, quimetzvitequj, cacuilhujtequj, calticpa contopeoa, conchiccanoa, conjxiquetza, mjhixiquetztiuh, nanacxiztiuh niac temacnaoati:

796
778
535
[785]
[292]
514
[628]

cenca ichoã tlamamauhtiaia, tlamauhtiaia, cemjmacaxoa, cemjmacaxtincatca in jachvan vitzilobuchtli in mocexiuhçauhque. Auh in tlaiscatia in vevei tachcavan, in vevei chiva tel huel quiçaia, amo quintzacujliaia: auh in ie ixquich telpuxtzintli, in cuexpaltzine in cuexpaltzitzineque, yoan in tzotzocolteque, in tepallamanj, in yiaque: in motenoa in telpuchiaque, in oc ic nemj, in oc cacitinemj, in anoço vme cacitinemj no quintzaquaia: qujmjhuiaia, vmpa xiviã on nocne, anqujxiztitia, amo techizo.

[785]
[302]

[p. 52 is blank]

-51-

16:Bandelier E-4 (no date)1880 NU7 Aztec NU7

In both the above instances (or kinds of instances) actions of particular merit facilitated, at least, the acquisition of the title; but it could, also, be obtained:—

3. By the observance of rigorous and even cruel rites of "medicine" for a stated time, which put the courage, fortitude, and self-control of the candidate to the severest tests.[170] Although a detailed account of these rites might perhaps be withheld for a subsequent sketch of ancient Mexican worship, yet they equally deserve a place here.

The candidate appears to have been presented at the great central place of worship by the representatives of his kin, perhaps, also, by the other chiefs of his tribe. There he underwent four days and four nights of the most cruel torments. While but little nourishment was allowed him (some went even so far as not to eat anything at all during this time), his blood was drawn freely, and no sleep was permitted to settle on his weary eyes. From time to time he was exposed to taunts, to injurious words, to blows and even to stripes. While he was thus hungry and thirsty, weakened from loss of blood through self-sacrifice, others ate and drank plentifully before his eyes. Finally, his clothes were torn from his body, and with nothing on but the breech-cloth or diaper, he was at last left alone at the "calmecac," there to do the rest of his penance. When these four initiatory days were past, the candidate went back to his calpulli, to spend the remainder of the time (about a full year), in retirement, and abstinence, frequently attended with more or less self-inflicted bodily suffering. When the kin had secured the necessary amount of articles to be offered up in worship, or given to the medicine-men, officers, chiefs, and guests attending the installation, this final solemnity was allowed to take place, provided always that the courage and personal strength of the novice had not forsaken him. Another period of fasting, sacrifice, and torture, similar to the one at the opening of the career of preparation, closed the probation. Some of the ceremonies were again of the most trying nature. Finally the store of gifts was distributed; eating and drinking alternated with ceas ya como caballeros, y tuvian divisas particulares por sus hazañas." . . . Fray Alonso de Montufar ("Suplique," etc., 20 Nov., 1554. "Troisième relation d'Ixtlilxochitl," Appendix, p. 267). "Des Cérémonies observées autrefois par les Indiens Iroquois" Jésuites au Nouv." (Ed "Burnett," p. 222). Mendieta (Lib. II, cap. XXXVIII, p. 156).

[170] Sotomayor ("Conquista," Vedia I, p. 479). "Des Cérémonies observées," etc. (pp. 222, etc.). Mendieta (p. 156). Torquemada (Lib. XI, cap. XXIX and XXX, etc.).

16:Bandelier E-4 (no date) 1880 NU7 Aztec NU7

555 solemn dances to the monotonous rythmic noise called Indian music.
● 785 The candidate was, at last, once more dressed in becoming apparel, 618 and could recuperate, being himself now the "feasted one."[171]

618 Men, however young in years, who had successfully endured such 554 great trials, certainly deserved to be looked upon thereafter as persons of uncommon fortitude. Hence indeed the chiefs or "tecuhtli" were particularly fitted for responsible offices of any kind. They were looked upon with deference, their voice was heard and listened to, and it is no wonder if higher charges, especially those of a military nature, were filled by such as had, in one way or another, achieved this distinction.[172] But no privilege was connected with their dignity, except that of wearing certain peculiar ornaments, and none was transmitted through them to their descendants.[173] That the "tecuhtli," besides, did [171] For the above description of the formalities of creating a "Tecuhtli," I refer to the sources quoted in the preceding three notes. It is interesting to compare similar ceremonies used by the Indians of the Orinoco, Gumilla ("Histoire," etc., Vol. II, cap. XXXV). Of the Yncas, Garcilasso de la Vega (Lib. VI, cap. XXIV to XXVI). Cristoval de Molina ("An account of the Fables and Rites of the Yncas," translated by C. R. Markham, in Hackluyt Society's Volume of 1873). "Narratives of the Rites and Laws of the Yncas." Herrera (Dec. V, lib. III, cap. VII, p. 68, etc.). We are forcibly reminded of the words of the quaint old poet and soldier, Alonso de Ercilla.

"Los cargos de la Guerra, y prehemineneia
No son por linaje medios proveidos,
Ni van por calidad, ni por herencia,
Ni por hacienda, i ser mejor nacidos;
Más la virtud del brazo, y la excelencia,
Esta hace á los hombres preferidos,
Esta ilustra, habilita, perficiona,
Y quilata el valor de la persona."

("La Araucana." Parte Ia, Canto I°. Edition of 1735, p. 2).

[172] Mendieta (Lib. II, cap. XXXIX, p. 161: "Los que tenian el dilado de Tecutli, tenian muchas preeminencias, y entre ellas era que en los concilios y ayuntamientos sus voces eran principales." Gomara ("Conquista" Vedia I, p. 426). Torquemada (Lib. XI, cap. XXX, p. 366). It should always be remembered, that the dignity of Tecuhtli appears most prominent in Tlaxcallan. This people however, was but a league, very similar to that of the northern Iroquois, only consisting of four, instead of six tribes. Among them, the peculiar nature of the dignity of chief became more evident than it was among the Mexicans to the Spaniards. But there is no difference between the "Tecuhtli" of Tlaxcallan, and the "Tecuhtli" of Mexico or Tescuco. That the head-chiefs of Mexico were always "Tecuhtli" themselves, previous to their election, needs hardly any proof. Domingo Munoz Camargo ("Histoire de la République de Tlaxcallan." Translation by Mr. Ternaux-Compans, in Vol. 28 and 29 of "Nouvelles Annales des Voyages," 1843. See Vol. 28, p. 178, etc.)

[173] About the privileges of the Tecuhtli, compare Gomara ("Conquista" Vedia I, p. 426), Mendieta (Lib. II, cap. XXXIX, p. 161), Torquemada (Lib. XI, cap. XXX, p. 366), Zurita (p. 48, etc.). It is evident however, that the latter confounds the rank of chief with the particular office which might have been entrusted to him, else the "cultivation of lands" could not be included in the list of advantages derived from the position. Compare "Tenure of Lands," Bustamante ("Tezcoco," etc., p. 225). Sr. Bustamante frequently copies Zurita. Herrera (Dec. III, Lib. IV, cap. XV, p. 128). In regard to the non-heredity of the dignity, I refer to the above authorities, and more especially to A. de Zurita ("Rapport," p. 49: "Lorsqu'un de ces chefs mourait, le prince accordait

787x

drew blood. It was said: "Thus was the sun nourished."

And Seven Flower was said [to be] good and bad. As a good [sign], in certain places the scribes paid it honor and were devoted to it. They set up its image and made offerings to it. Also those women who were embroiderers and cotton thread workers first fasted for eighty days; some fasted for forty or twenty days, when penance was done. Thus they requested of it that what they undertook might be well done; [that] their embroidery or design might be a work of art well fabricated and well painted. All therefore offered incense and slew quail; and all bathed and sprinkled themselves with water, when [the fasting] had been lifted. Then the feast of the day sign, Seven Flower, was celebrated.

Auh in chicome xochitl: mjtoaia qualli, ioã ãqualli: ynic qualli ceccan vncã tlamaviztiliaia, motemachiaia, in tlacujloque, qujtlaliaia yxiptla, qujtlamanjliaia: no ichoan in cioa tlãmachchiuhque, icpachiuhque, achtopa qujneçaviliaia, nappoaltica, aca vmpoaltica, cempoaltica in moçaoaia: ic qujtlaitlanjliaia, injc itla vel aizque mjmatizque, toltecatizque, vellalalizque, vellacujlozque: in jpan intlamach, intlacuilol: ic mochintin tlenamacaia, tlacotonaia: auh mochintin mãaltiaia, maujujzoaia, yn jquac neoalco, in vncan ilhujqujztililoia, chicome xochitl:

787x 782 286 785

And they said when it was not a good [day sign], that if some embroiderer broke her fasting — it was said — then she merited for herself infamy and an ill name. Thus she could only live in vice and become a harlot. For it was said the embroiderers lived in great vice and became terrible whores.

auh injc amo qualli, mitoaia, iquac intla aca tlãmachchiuhquj, yneçaoaliz qujtlacoaia, mjtoa: vncã qujmomacevia avilquizcaiotl, aviltocaitl: injc çã ãvilnemjx, ãvienjtiz, ca mjtoa, tlaquauh avilnemja, mãaviltiaia in tlamachchiuhque, qujlmach ichoatl inca mocaiaoaia, qujquequeloaia in inteouh catca, itoca xochiquetzal, ioan qujtemacaia, ic temotlaia, zochiciujztli, palanjliztli:

787x 286 785 548

It was said the one who was their goddess, named Xochiquetzal, made sport of and mocked her. And she gave and thus scourged her with piles and infections.

787x 286 776

But she who did well her penances, who took heed, and so then attained success, was esteemed, and gained honor for herself. In [all] places she was looked to; by the grace of the people, she lived well on earth.

auh in aqujn vel ontlamaceoa in vel monotza, ca oncã qujçaia, maviztia, momavizçotiaia, cana motztica, vel moietztica tepaltzinco in tẽc:

787x 286

Also it was said of this [day sign] that he who was born on it would perform all crafts well: he would be a good craftsman; he would plan well great works; he would constantly be prudent, if he took good heed. But if he did not take good heed, nothing resulted; he deserved nothing. He only merited the infamy with which he was defamed and the mockery with which he was mocked.

no iuhquj ipan mitoaia in aqujn ipan tlacati, moch vel qujchioaz in toltecaiotl, vel tõtoltecatiz, tlatlanemjliz, iõiolizmatquj iez, intla uel monotzaz: auh intlacamo vel monotza, atle onqujçaia, atle icnopil, çan iaujlqujzca, iquequeloloca in qujmomacevisia.

787x

And Nine Wind was said to be wholly and entirely evil. As to him who was then born, nothing could be made of his life; so nothing would be retained; he could hold nothing; nothing would be kept; nothing would appear; he could do nothing; he was incapable on earth. He was as one driven by the winds, wandering here and there. He might wish to be something, to be someone: he became only nothing. For truly so was his day sign. He might wish for public esteem — to become a mer-

Auh in chicunavi hecatl: mjtoaia, motqujtica, moch centlantica amo qualli: in aqujn ipan tlacati, atle vel muchioa yn jnemjliz, atle vel ic tlaçaloia, atle vel ic tlaana, atle vel ic tlatzicoa, atle ivelnezca, atle veli, atle veliti in tlaticpac, çan iuhquin ecatocoinemj, avic iatinemj, conmonectia in ma itlati, in ma acati, çan atleti: ca nel iuhquj itonal, conjxtoca, ipan onmjxpor, in ma pupuchtecati, in manoce cujcujcanjti, texachti, tetlãtlavicalti, tecãcamanalhuj. Etc. atle veliti, çan tlaqualania, çan nẽia motlatlamotla, mone-

For, so was it said, he had fallen into great sin.[6] There rags and tatters lay strung out; there misery and orphanhood were the reward. And there was the great flood, the great crag, the pit, where there was a falling into the flood, or from the crag, or into the pit.[6] And there lay the snare, where one was snared.

So was it said of him to whom it so befell that his fate and merits had been good; only of his own will and by his own act he had harmed, destroyed, and ruined it, etc.

And if a woman were born upon the day One Flower, it was said that she would be an able embroiderer. But nevertheless, in order to gain her deserts, and to achieve skill in embroidering, she should do great penances, and fast, and draw blood when the day sign One Flower set in. But if she did not do penances, if she took not good heed, if her upbringing and training were not good, she herself harmed her day sign.

Likewise it befell her (as was told here) that her labors were in vain; she merited complete poverty and misery. Thus her deserts only came to an end, to naught; they became corruption. She became a harlot, a courtesan. She sold herself; she became a paramour. For it was said that just so was her day sign, One Flower; for it fell two ways. They said it was good and evil.

Also it was said that when One Flower set in, then began, continued, and was always held, a dance, a procession. But only Moctezuma in his own heart knew — [for] no one [else] determined — for how many days he established his dance. Perchance for forty days there would be dancing.

And that it might be known that a dance had been arranged, two poles with flowers were set up; they remained at the palace of the ruler. Thus was made known the day of the flowers: there would be enjoyment of and rejoicing over the day of flowers.

At that time the ruler determined and requested the kinds of song to be intoned — perhaps after the manner of those of Cuextlan,[7] the drunkards of Cuextlan;[8] or of Huexotzinco or Anahuac; or the merchants; or those of Nonoalco, or Coxcatlan; or of

ca iuh mjtoa, tlaalavi, tlapetzcavi, ãtlacacemellecan vncan vilantoc in tzotzomatli, in tatapatli, vncã mãcenalo in jcnoiotl, in jcnotlacaiotl: auh vncan icac, in vei atoiatl, in vei tepexitl, in tlaxapuchtli, vncã neatoiavilo, netepexivilo, netlaxapuchvilo: ioan vncan manj in tzonoaztli, vncan netzonoaztvilo: 787X ic mjtoa, in aqujn iuhquj ipan muchioaia, y, qualli ocatca: in jtonal, in jmãceoal, ça inêviian, ça onmonevianvi, in oconmjtlacalhuj, in oconmopôpolhuj, yn oconmotlaçolmjctili. Etc.

Auh intla aca cioatl, ipan tlacatia ce suchitl: mjtoaia, vuellamachchiuhquj iez: auh iece injc vel quicnopilhujz imãceoal, injc vel qujttaz tlãmachtli, cêcatlamaceoaia, moçaoaia, mjçoja in jquac moquetzaia ce suchitl tonalli: auh intlacamo tlamaceoa, intlacamo vel monotza, intlacamo vellaoapaoalli, vellazcaltilli mochioa, çan no qujtlaueliaia yn jtonal: [785] no iuhquj ipan muchioaia (in iuh omjto njcan) atle onquçaia, çan moch icnoiotl, netolinilizttli in qujmomaceviac auh injc ça ontlatzontia, ontlatzonquixtia, ça aujlquizcaiotl, in jnemac mochioa, aavienjti, maaujltia, monanamaca, motzitzinnamaca: ic mjtoa, ca nel iuhquj itonal in ce suchitl, ca vme vitz qujtoa, qualli, ioã ãqualli.

No yoan mjtoa, in jquac moquetzaia ce suchitl: vncan oncempeoa, vncan vnmocemana, in muchipa macteoalo, netotilo, çan ice qujmati in Motecuçumã yiollotlãma aiac qujiocoia, in quezquilhujtl, qujtlaliz ymaceoaliz in aço vmpoalilhujtl manjz mãceoalizttli: 527 535 auh injc necia, ynjc temaceoalizttlalhujloia, vme suchiquavitl oalmoquetzaia, oalmomanaia tecpan, tlatocan: yc monextia in suchilhujtl, suchipacca, nexuchitlamachtilo:

vncã tlatlãtlamj, tlanenequj in tlatoanj, in catle cujcatl coneoaz, in anoço cuextecaiotl, tlaoancacuextecaiotl, vexotzincaiotl, anaoacaiotl, ottomecaiotl, nonoalcaiotl, coxcatecaiotl, tenjcaiotl, tepetlacaiotl, chichimecaiotl, metztitlancalcaiotl, otoncujcatl, quata- 527 533

5. Florentine Codex, Book VI, fol. 191v: dudung, dispensung in dubiyan. See also fol. 210v.

6. Cf. also loc. cit. The passage is metaphorical.

7. Probably Huaxteca. (see, however, Sahagún (Cuelbay ed.), X, 29, 78-82 (cf. Vol. I, p. 9, for coloration system, so far used hereafter except in special issues).

8. Cf. ibid., IV, 7, 5.

796 mountains. Those who were there watching then 372 raised a cry which rose to the heavens with joy that the world was not ending and that they had another fifty-two years assured.

The last ceremony of new fire which they held was in the year 1507. They held it with full solemnity, because the Spaniards had not come to this land. In the year 1559 ended the next bundle of years, which they call Toximmolpilia. On this occasion they held no public ceremony, because the Spaniards and members of the religious Orders were now in this land. So that this year, 1576, is the fifteenth of the current bundle of years.

796 When they made the new fire and held this cere-
778 mony, they renewed their covenant with the devil to serve him, and they renovated all the statues of the devil which they had in his house, and all the ornaments for his service, and those of their houses. And they rejoiced greatly to know that now they held the world to be secure and that it would not come to an end for fifty-two years. It is clear that this device of counting years was an invention of the devil to make them renew the covenant which they made with him every fifty-two years—[the devil] terrifying them with [the threat of] the end of the world and making them think that he lengthened the time and favored them thereby, letting the world move on.

Besides this they held, every eight years, a fast on 796 bread and water, for eight days; and at its conclusion
●785 they celebrated a feast in which they held a solemn dance by various personages, in which they said that they revealed what would come to pass or what fortune they merited; and they called it Atamalqualiztli.

796 They observed another feast every four years, in honor of the fire [god], during which they pierced 304 the ears of all the boys and girls; and they called it
805 Pillauanaliztli. And during this feast it is likely, and there are conjectures, that they held their leapyear, reckoning six [days] of Nemontemi.

805 The remaining time-count is of the year, which they divided into eighteen months, to each of which 796 they assigned twenty days. And each of these months was dedicated to one god, or to two, and 443 during it they held their feast. Each of these months they divided into five-day periods, and held the fairs on the last day of these five in one town, and five days later in another, and another five days later in y los que estauan alli a la mira, leuantauan luego vn alarido que le ponjan en el cielo de alegria que el mundo no se acabaua y que tenjan otros cincuenta y dos años por ciertos.

La vltima solemnjdad, que hizieron deste fuego nueuo: fue el año de mill y quinjentos, y siete: hizieronle, con toda solemnjdad, porque no avian venjdo los españoles, a esta tierra: el año de mjll y quinjêtos y cincuenta y nueue, se acabo la otra gabilla de años: que ellos llaman Toximmolpilia. En esta, no hizieron solemnjdad publica: porque ya los españoles, y religiosos estauan en esta tierra. De manera que este año de mjll y quinjentos y setenta y seis, anda en quinse años, de la gabilla de años que corre.

Quando sacauan fuego nueuo, y hazian esta solemnjdad, renouauan el pacto que tenjan con el demonjo de servjrle: y renouauan todas las estatuas del demonjo, que en su casa tenjan, y todas las alhajas de su serujcio, y las de sus casas: y hazian grandes alegrias, por saber, que ya tenjan el mundo seguro, que no se acabaria por cincuenta y dos años. Claramente consta, que este artificio de contar, fue invencion del diablo, para hazerlos renouar el pacto que con el tenjan de cincuenta, en cincuenta y dos años: y amedrêtandolos con la fin del mundo, y haziendolos entender, que el alargaua el tiempo y les hazian merced del passando el mundo adelãte.

Demas desta cuenta tenjan que de ocho en ocho años, hazian vn ayuno de pan y agua, por espacio de ocho dias, y hazian al cabo, vna fiesta donde hazian solemne areito de diuersos personajes; donde dezian, que descubrian ventura o que la merecian, y llamauanla Atamalcualiztli.

Otra fiesta hazian, de quatro en quatro años, a honrra del fuego, donde agujerauan las orejas a todos los njños, y njñas, y la llamauan pillauanaliztli. Y en esta fiesta es verisimjle, y ay conjecturas que haziã su biserto, contando seis de nemontemj.

la otra cuenta del tiempo, es de vn año: el qual repartian en dezioche meses, y a cada mes le dauan veinte dias: y cada vno destos meses, era dedicado a vno, o a dos dioses: y hazian en el sus fiestas, cada vno destos meses, le repartian de cinco in cinco dias, y hazian las ferias el vltimo dia, destos cinco, en vn pueblo: y dende a cinco dias en otro, y dende a otros cinco dias en otro. De manera que el quarto quja-

The sixth month they called Ezzalqualiztli. On the first day of this month they observed a feast to the rain gods. In honor of these gods, the priests of these gods fasted before their feast came for four days, which are the four last days of the previous month.

Al sexto mes llamauan Ezzalqualiztli: en el primero dia deste mes: hazian fiesta a los dioses de la pluuia: a honrra destos dioses, ayunauã los sacerdotes destos dioses: quatro dias antes de llegar a su fiesta, que son los quatro postreros dias del mes passado.

Chapter 6
Ezzalqualiztli

In order to celebrate this feast, the priests and servants of the idols went to Citlaltepec for reeds; for they grew very large and handsome in the waters called Temilco. From there they brought them to Mexico to adorn the pyramids. On the road which they took, no one appeared; all wayfarers hid themselves, for fear of them. And if they came upon one, they took from him whatever he had, even leaving him naked. And if he resisted, they belabored him such that they left him for dead. And even if he bore tribute for Moctezuma, they took it from him. And for this they visited upon them no punishment; because, since they were servants of the idols, they had license to do these things, and others [even] worse, with no punishment. Many other ceremonies the priests of the temple performed in these four days, which are put forth at length in the account of the feast.

On the arrival of the feast of Ezzalqualiztli, everyone made a kind of gruel or porridge which is called ezzalli (a delicious food, which they liked well). All ate in their houses, and gave [of it] to those who came, and did a thousand follies on this day.

On this same feast, they punished terribly servants of the idols guilty of committing some fault in their service; [they mishandled] them in the water of the lagoon to such a point that they left them for dead. And thus they left them there at the edge of the water. From there their parents or relatives took them and carried them to their houses, half dead.

On this same feast they slew many captives and

Cap. 6.
Ezzalqualiztli.

Para la celebracion desta fiesta: los satrapas de los ydolos y sus mjnjstros, yvã por junças a Citlaltepec: que se hazẽ muy grãdes y muy hermosas en vn agua que se llama temjlco, de alli las trayan a Mexico: para adornar los cues, por el camjno donde venjã, nadie parecia: todos los camjnãtes se ab- scondian de mjedo dellos, y si con alguno encõtrauã: tomauãlle quãto traya hasta dexalle en pelo, y si se defendia: maltrataulle de tal manera q̃ le dexauã por muerto: y aunque lleuasse el tributo para Motecuçoma se le tomauan: y por esto njnguna pena las dauã: porque por ser mjnjstros de los ydolos, tenjã libertad para hazer estas cosas, y otras peores sin pena njn- guna. Otras muchas cerimonjas hazian los satrapas del templo en estos quatro dias que estan a la larga puestas en la historia desta fiesta.

Allegada la fiesta de Ezzalqualiztli: todos hazã vna manera de puchas o poleadas que se llama Ezzalli (comjda delicada a su gusto) todos comjan en su casa, y dauan a los que venjan, y hazian mjll locuras en este dia.

En esta mesma fiesta, a los mjnjstros de los ydolos que avian hecho algun defecto en el seruicio dellos: castiguauanlos terriblemẽte en el agua de la laguna tãto que los dexauã por muertos: y assi los dexauã alli a la orilla del agua: de alli los tomauã sus padres o parientes, y los lleuauã a sus casas medio muertos.

En este mjsmo mes matauã muchos cativos y otros

1. Bilingual centuries begin the day one.

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

CHAPTER VI

THE MAN AND THE TRIBE

In which are set forth the basic ideas of Aztec education, government, law and social customs

642 618 THE SOCIAL ORGANIZATION of the Aztec tribes was in theory completely democratic. An individual was a member of a family which, in turn, belonged to a cluster of families or a clan.* Theoretically twenty of these clans made up a tribe, each of them regulating its own affairs but, in matters of tribal importance, joining with the others in a council composed of all the leaders. The council appointed one chief to control civil and religious affairs and usually a second for war. Originally designed for simple farming communities and presumably of an antiquity dating back to Middle Culture times, this organization later ramified into the governmental complexity of a populous and highly complicated city-state.[1]

844 The working of a community is best illustrated by the position of the individual in it, a process which is described in the third part of the Codex Mendoza. Immediately a child was born it was washed and swaddled by a midwife. Since 777 the gods governed the fate of man on earth, the parents con- 787 sulted a priest who looked in the tonalamatl,† or book of

*The term clan is used to mean a tribal division without connotation of male or female descent.

†To'-na-la-matl.

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

fate, to see if the day of birth was lucky or unlucky. Four 787 777 days later the child's family held a feast both to celebrate the birth and to name the child. If the day of birth proved 553 to be unlucky, custom sanctioned a religious fiction where- 777 by the naming ceremony was postponed to a more favorable period. At the feast the guests sprinkled food and pulque 553 over the sacred fire, which had been kindled at the ac- 776
couchement as an offering to the Fire God, the Old God, whose cult originated in the time of the Middle Cultures.
The child, if a boy, was shown toy weapons and tools 553 which the parents placed in his hands, guiding them in the motions of use. If the child were a girl the parents made her pretend to weave and spin with toy instruments. A name, that badge of identity so important to man, was given to the child at this time. A boy was often named for the date of his birth, One Reed, Two Flower, Seven Deer, or for an animal,
like "Nezahualcoyotl" (Hungry Coyote), or for an ancestor, like "Montezuma the Younger," or for some event at the time of birth. Often the day name was given with an alternative animal title. Girls' names frequently were compounded with the word for flower, xochitl.

Education began after weaning in the third year. Its pur- [862] pose was to induct the child into the techniques and obliga- 861 tions of adult life as promptly as possible. A world in which handwork is universal offers a child a chance to participate in adult activities far earlier than in our heavily mechanized culture. Fathers supervised the training of sons, and mothers instructed their daughters. Up to six years of age the children listened to frequently repeated homilies and advice, learned the uses of the household implements and performed minor household chores.[2]

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

726 strength of one tribe tried to rout the yelling horde of their adversary, and the first to run lost the battle. Captives were taken, tribute imposed, the temple burned, and the defeated group was then left alone again.

To attain victory more easily surprise attacks, sometimes implemented by a little treachery, were instituted. However, the cumbrous process of getting an army onto the field of battle usually prevented this favored method of warfare. More often the Tenochcas and their allies would feint with a screen of warriors, who would be easily repulsed in a pretended rout. The main body would wait in a place of concealment until the pursuing enemy came into view, whereupon they would charge out and demolish them. Losses were chiefly felt in the number of captives taken, since these short hand-to-hand combats were not very damaging to the man power of either side. [787] The capture of a chief or the recognition of a sign of evil portent was sufficient to demoralize an army and, despite their bravery and constant experience in warfare of this type, the Aztecs were little fitted to resist soldiers trained in European techniques.

723 There was rather more opportunity for strategy than for battle tactics. Considerable planning, as we have said, was necessary to move troops upon the field of battle. The Aztecs won campaigns in Oaxaca, Puebla, western Mexico and along the Vera Cruz coast, as far north as Tamaulipas.* Having to move step by step and to intimidate or win over town after town, they needed patience and knowledge of geographical and political conditions. One reason for the honor in which merchants were held was the information of this character which they could furnish from their travels.

*Ta-mow-le'e-pas.

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

cal organization of the region as a whole was far from that of 642 an empire. In reality a multitude of independent city-states 648 seethed with intrigue and war and were further disunited by differences in language, dialect, physical type and geographic economy. An invader, with a strongly disciplined force small enough to live off the country and thus to stay in the field, could have an astonishing success, particularly if he had a taste for intrigue. Cortes, as events proved, was the ideal man for such a purpose, and he was further favored by the psychological reaction of the Aztecs to his arrival.

The years before the Spanish Conquest had, to the Aztecs, 787 been full of portents suggestive of future evil. There seems to have been in the air that same sense of paralysis that the French knew to their cost in 1939 and 1940. Montezuma, the war chief of the Aztecs and an amateur of witchcraft, had had an experience calculated completely to shake his nerve. He and Nezahualpilli, the chief of Texcoco, had fallen to arguing about the respective merits of their soothsayers, since the Texcocan held that strangers were going to rule the land of Anahuac. So convinced was Nezahualpilli of the [525] correctness of his interpretation that he wagered his kingdom against three turkey cocks, the result to be decided by a ritualistic ball game with Montezuma. The latter won the first two games, but Nezahualpilli took the last three in a row. The defeat must have been disheartening to Montezuma, not only because he had so much to fear from the future, but also because his own experts had been held so cheap. (See Fig. 3.)

In close succession followed a series of phenomena, each bearing its message of woe to come. A column of fire was seen every midnight throughout the year; two temples were

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

● 787 destroyed, one by a sudden fire, the other by lightning unaccompanied by thunder. A comet was seen by day, and sudden waves came up on the Lake of Texcoco. A sixth sign was a woman's voice crying, "My children, we are lost." Monsters appeared and were brought before the chief, only to disappear as soon as he had seen them. Most sinister of all

[532]

FIG. 3. The years before the Spanish Conquest had been full of evil omens for the Aztecs. To determine whether the dire predictions of Nezahualpilli, chief of Texcoco, were correct, Montezuma played and lost a ritualistic game of "basketball" with him as depicted above. Codex Florentino was a bird brought in by some hunters. This bird had a mirror in its head, revealing the heavens, and when Montezuma peered at it a second time a host of armed men was disclosed. When the chief brought his soothsayers to witness this augury and to explain its significance, the bird flew away. Distorted as these occurrences seem to us, they must have had a most upsetting effect on the population of the Valley of Mexico.[2] (See Figs. 4, 28A–B.)

175 Consequently the emotional condition of the people was peculiarly receptive to the rumors, drifting in from the southeast, which told of four-legged monsters with human bodies issuing from their backs. As these strange beings moved up the coast Montezuma's spies and ambassadors began to bring back more precise reports as to their nature, and even presents and messages for their chief. (See Fig. 5.) 175

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

[787 532]

FIG. 4. Montezuma views the magical bird in the head of which was a mirror, showing first the heavens, then hosts of armed men, foretelling, according to tradition, the Spanish Conquest. Codex Florentino

The strangers were human, for they were vulnerable, receiving wounds and dying from assaults upon them. They had new and strange weapons, noisy and lethal, for cannon, muskets, crossbows and steel swords were unknown to the Aztecs. Also novel and dreadful adjuncts of war were the horses and the savage mastiffs of the Spaniards. In battle the strangers were invincible, operating in a manner completely the diapendujqui, who is reading the sacred almanac which lay in his hand, with the pictures [writing], the ink, [and] the colors for painting: the knowledge, the wisdom which hath been secured."

[532]

FIG. 5. The Spaniards land in 1519 at the site of Vera Cruz. Their ship and equipment are carefully shown. At the right, Malina, Cortes' interpreter, is conducting his diplomacy on a mission. Codex Florentino

The penitent who would confess first explained to the seer; he said unto him:

"I wish to go to the mother, our lord, the savior and protector of all, our lord Tezcatlipoca,[39] in secret. I wish to have this for myself."

The soothsayer said: "Thou hast been given this favor."

He instructed him when he should come; he chose a favorable time. He saw, in his sacred almanac, when day was good, favorable. It was said: he hath chosen the time.

And when the appointed time [came] he[40] brought a new mat, and incense, and wood. [If he was] a highly honored penitent, he made his confession in his own house; the seer was there. Or penitent went to him.

He swept well the place where the new mat was placed, and a fire was lit. Then the seer cast the incense into the flames. He addressed the fire; he said:

"Mother of the gods, father of the gods, old god, here hath come a man of low estate. He cometh here weeping, sad, anguished. Perhaps he hath sinned; perhaps he hath erred, perhaps he hath lived in filth. He cometh heavy-hearted; he is sorrowful. Mother, our lord, protector of all, also take away, pacify, the torment of this man."

Then the seer spoke unto him who would confess; he said unto him:

"Thou hast come toward the god, protector of all, and [into] his presence. Thou hast come to tell him, to deliver thyself of, thy evil atmosphere, thy corruption. Thou hast come to open thy secret.

"Take care that thou commit no fault or sin. Take off thy clothing; show thy nakedness to the god, protector of all, our lord Tezcatlipoca.

"Perhaps, being a man, thou wilt not see the god; perhaps he will not speak to thee, being a man; [for] he may not be seen nor touched.

"And so, in this manner, thou cannot [to the god], whatever thy secret, tell thy way of life, thy deeds, in whatsoever way thou art moved, in whatsoever manner it is, whatsoever thou hast done, whatsoever thou hast achieved, whatsoever thou dost which [is] evil and sinful.

"Otherwise, poor fool: thy vices, thy wrongdoings; [or perhaps] thy evil odor, thy corruption.

"And let our lord, protector of all, have pity on thee—tlamatiniz, yn jnnac mauj, yn amatli, yn tlacujlolli: in quijnjx 776 yn tlilli, yn tlapalli, yn matlia, yn pinla, yn nemoanilo, yn 793 ayajyo 783

yn mojpiolaoaz in tlapilchiuale; achto quijtlacaquijtia in tlapeuhquj, quijlhuja.

Ca yuchcauac ajnantlamaquj, yn tlacatl, yn tonccujo, in tlaqui nacaqui: in tonccujo, yiualli, yn ehecatl, yuqcaia, yyetlacaletia, ajnoccnitlamaquj.

Quijlhuja in tlapeuhquj: ximoolacaxelli:

quijnacatia, yn iquja ollac: quijqpeno in tonalli, quijtia [787] yn jnnac, yn jtlacujlol: quijta, yn iquj: qualli tonalli, yn iccua, in qualcan: mjnac: quijnualquenja.

Auh yn ic yquac, in ic yuacatlipan, inccujc petlatl quicua: yuan copalli, yuan quauijtl: yn tlamaxiui in tlamocuhquj, qan ichan yn mocichnolaca, in ueupa ichi in tlapeuhquj. Auh mocx teujc iuch, in tlamocuhquj:

inccujc petlatl in mocua, vellachpano yn vecan motlalia; yuan tlelelilo: ajnnan copalli cuecuua in tlaco in tlapeuhquj, [788] quijnoua in tlel; quijlhuja.

Teteu yuan, teuu yuia, veuc uutl, ajcan ollacia, in cujtlapilli, yn ualopalli, yn macuualli: ajcan chocaiujca, tlaccuiujca, mocuepachujca, ancan omalaxh, ancan omocuepolanij, ancan ouijnanjc yn vialallol, in tocatzualli, yn qocanjd: aqui ininlacca, quijnequjpachoa, Tlacacia, tonccujoa, tlaqualo nacaqualo, maxcqo xicmocujli, ma xicmocaquji, yn jnnelamachilli yn macuualli.

Niman quijnoua, yn mocichnolaxhquj, in ichaual tlapeuhquj: quijlhuja.

Tlamoiuiccatia yujcoiuica, iuqaccuica, in tlaqui nacaqui; tlamolhujlica, tlamomaquilica, yn mjaca, in mopolanca: tlamolhujlilica, in mocuep, inmocpolacal, a ma ac cappa ich ajcan tlamaxiuij, tlamopaxiuj: ma iquaccuica xicmopolaca, xicmomaxiuij, in tlaqui, nacaqui, in tonccujo, in iualli, in ehecatl.

A cujx tlelacaxiuia in tonccujo, a cujx ajnnelacaxiuia: ca iualli, ca ehecatl.

Auh yujx quen tlaqui, ma xicchapo in motop, in mopolacal: ma xicqui in tonccujlio, in motlachiual, yuan quenja tlamati, yuan quenja cuh: in quenja mochich, in quenja ic: in quenja tlachich, in mocuepal, in mocuepanjuc:

xicmopaj, xicpolaaj, in motlaxtica, in mopaxtica, in mjaca in mopolanca.

Auh xicmolacaxiuchilli, yn tonccujo, in tlaqui nacaqui,

39. Cf. Florentine Codex, loc. cit., and Sahagún, Historia general, loc. cit.

40. Cf. corresponding Spanish text, Sahagún, op. cit., Vol. I, p. 67, and Vol. II, p. 71, gives as meanings of yualli, ehecatl (1) "noche, dia y sudido"; and (2) "dia sucidio sin tempo . . . inquietado, y fatigado y cansado y indispuesto, por cosas viciosas [sobre viciosas . . .]" Angel Maria Garibay K, Llave del náhuatl (Colombia, Editorial n. p., 1940), p. 113, translates tlaqui nacaqui as "que está carne y pecado"—the man, God in general.

41. Cuecuia suggests that penance refers to the penitent.

the eagle-warrior's crown, the eagle-warrior's down headband in red eyes, and a cape of earring with snail-shells.[75] He hence ornaments had snail-shells. A mirror-stone in two parts [was painted] upon his face. He was [also] arrayed with a chilly earplug; his shield was shell-covered and had paper ornaments. The device for swing was in his hand. [He was upon] his stool of reeds and rushes.

ypanohquamocuechil, mamaia, yeuechin, ielpanecuqui cyli 776 tecuelaelapanqui yn jnaiac: yn jnechichiual, yniçaxacuch, yniçachiual, omapaio, ytlachinia ymac caxca, ynelicpal, ocuqalli.

Sixteenth Chapter, which treats of the god named Little Black Face (Ixtlilton), the earth-scamper (Tlalocatzin).[76]

Jnic castolli vcc capitulo ynchpa tlacua, in teuil yn jnaca, caxca, ixtlilton, tlalocatzin.

He was a god, whose temple was made entirely of wood, at a place named Tlamilolcan. Here in his temple were many earthen bowls, covered over. These were called "his black water."

Teuil caxca, qan quavid yn jnenpan caxca, yncuaican tlacujlocan: in vacan ynenpan, mjec yn apanti, tecuacuitamaca, mamaxinia ixtlilauh.

And whenever a child sickened, they brought him to the temple of Ixtlilton. They uncovered one of the jars and had him drink "his black water." Thereupon the child became whole.

Auh yn aquje mococoaia, piltontli, vmpa quijcjcaia yn 776 jnenpan ixtlilton: cenxel, quijtlapouia yn apanti, conjciaia 757 yn jxtlilauh; ic panio in piltontli.

When one wished [to arrange] a dance, amid incense, he went and brought [Ixtlilton's] impersonator to his house. It was only a vase, who was arrayed [like the god].

Auh yn aquje quijtoia, cepaltica in cmamaia, ynic 776 quijxicaia ychan yn jnipala: qan tlacatl in machichiuia. 535

When they had arrived at his house, where there was to be a dance, food was eaten and drink was quenched. After eating, Ixtlilton danced. After he had danced, he entered into the house; he uncovered the wine [which] for four days had been covered. This was called the first opening or tapping of the new wine.[77]

Jn oncic ychan, tlatoia, teyouia: ynnan tlatlaquaio, 776 atlua: yn otlaquaioc, ynnan mjtoia, yn jxtlilton: yn 716 omjtoti, yn omacrah, calitic: oncalaquj: inhuel quijtapoa in vcti, navilhujtica tecutimaca: ic mjtoia, tlaiocaapoia, vitzmana. [273]

Then they began to drink. Again they went out into the court, [and] uncovered "his black water," which also had been covered for four days. On the fifth day they uncovered it.

Ninan ye vmpana, yn ic tlaoana: oc cepa calquijca ixnaio, quijtapoa yn jxtlilauh, no tzacutimaca navilhujtica: ic macujlilhujtl in quijtapoa:

If dirt, cobwebs, straw, charcoal [were found] upon it, then it was said parchment he was either an adulterer or a thief; or he lived dissolutely, or he lived in vice; or he was a sorcerer, he who had the dance. Then they confronted and reproached him openly. Then they said [the god] scowled because he revealed and reproached people to others for their sins.

ic mjtoaia, ic momomaia, ixnia tlaçolli, yanla tocatzacalli, yanla tzontli, ixnia tecalli, vacan vetzoc: ic mjtoaia, aço 787 tolaxima, aço ichoc, anoço ahavilnanj, mahavilia: ac aço tlacacomalla, in tlatoia, ic quijmoelaia, quijxtomaia, quijpanoia: ic mjtoaia tetzalan, tonepanila monoca: ixnica, ca quijnicomaca, quijniqapania, ic teinnopila, yn tetlatlacol.

And when he departed for his house, they gave him a large mantle called ixpaxo (face-covering).[78]

Auh yniic calquiça ychá, quachili yn quijnacaia panocaxio, ixpaxo. [292]

Then was [Ixtlilton] bedaghe: he was spread over with unguent; his face was covered with soot; about his lips was

Jnic machichiuaia, mopac, momonjxtlilquapan, mjxi- 776 çaxtolli, yn jxnaqui: tonpaquichiqujlo, quauvilla,

---

75. For descriptions, see Hernández and see in Sahagún: Carmenatio Alfabetíquegos, Vol. II, pp. 313 and 320; and also Hernández as (Chapter 1) —Plate 19.

The mere mention of earrings (the natural caps or mantles, with snail-shells fastened where the ears crossed. The chalchuites and the mexapanil were presumably the same as similar. Sahagún: Collected Works, Vol. II, pp. 1, pp. 79, 82, citing, in the first instance, Sahagún's Historia general, Lib. III, Appendix, cap. 5. In Lib. II (Florentine Codex, fo. 37v), Sahagún refers to "un ornamento de un palmo en que iba, hecho en cada cabo, el qual llamaban yanahilin, cuando eran unos cuadros de algodón a los pechos. . . ."

76. God of medicine. Tlalocatzin (or tlalocatzinti) is probably formed from tlalli and tzontzin. Cf. Seler: Codex Laud, Vol. I, p. 16.

77. Sahagún, Historia general, Vol. I, p. 319: ". . . los que mantenían borracheras los mayores y hacían vino de ello, que es llamado octli." The Spanish text of the Florentine Codex explains that "es este abrimiento, llamamos tlalocamapalli, quiere decir, este es abrimiento primero, o vino nuevo." On the meaning of mamapalli, see Sahagún, op. cit., p. 37, for a definition of mamapalli.

78. ". . . durando todos los quales llamaron ixpaxo: que quiere decir, cubrimiento de la cara: porque quedaban, como pegados, aquel que mejor hacía, la fiesta . . ." Loc. cit.

λ 796 priests] pretended playing [musical instruments], singing, and dancing before them.

● [787] When they took the children to be slain, if they wept and shed many tears, those who carried them rejoiced, for they took [it] as an omen that they would have much rain that year.

λ 796 727 Also in this month they slew many captives in honor of these same gods of the water. They slashed them first, [with their swords,] fighting them as they were tied upon a stone like a mill wheel; and when they threw them down, wounded, they carried them off to tear their hearts from them in the temple which was called Yopico.

When they slew these captives, their owners—they who had taken them—went gloriously arrayed in feathers, dancing before them and showing their valor. This continued through all the days of this month. In this feast were enacted many other ceremonies, which are set down at length in its telling (fol. 15).

10 g yuan adornadas con plumajes, y con g 11
11 A flores: yuan tañendo, cantando, y bay- A 12
12 b lando delante dellos b 13
13 c Quando lleuauan a los niños a c 14
14 d matar: si lloraua, y echauan muchas d 15
15 e lagrimas, alegrauanse los, que los e 16
16 f lleuauan: porque tomauan pronostico, f 17
17 g de que auian de tener, muchas aguas g 18
18 A este año. A 19
19 b Tambien en este mes: mataua b 20
20 c muchos cativos, a honra de los mismos c 21
dioses del agua: acuchillauanlos primero peleando cõ ellos, atados sobre vna piedra, como muela de molino, y desque los derrocauan acuchillados: lleuauanlos a sacar el coraçon al templo, que se llamaua, iopico.

Quando mataua a estos captiuos: los dueños dellos, que los auian captiuado, yvan gloriosamente atauiados cõ plumajes, y baylando delante dellos, mostrando su valentia. Esto passaua por todos los dias, deste mes. Otras muchas cerimonias, se hazian en esta fiesta: las quales estan escriptas a la larga, en su historia. fo. 15.

The eleventh month they named Ochpaniztli. On the first day of this month they celebrated a feast to the mother of the gods, named Teteo innan, or Toçi, which meaneth "Our Grandmother." They danced in silence for the honor of this goddess, and in great silence slew a woman dressed with the ornaments with which they represented this goddess.

Al vndecimo mes llamauan Ochpanjztli: El primero dia, deste mes, haziã fiesta a la madre de los dioses llamada Teteu inna o Toci, que quijere dezir nuestra abuela: baylauan a honrra desta diosa en silencio y matauan vna muger en gran silencio vestida con los ornamentos que pintauan a esta diosa.

796x [805 776]

Chapter 11
Ochpaniztli

Five days before this month began, all the feasts and merry making of the previous month ceased. Entering this month, they danced eight days without singing and without beating the two-toned drum. These past, there came forth the woman who was the likeness of the goddess whom they name Teteo innan, arrayed with the ornaments with which they pictured the same goddess; and a great number of women came forth with her, especially the medicine women and midwives. And they split into two bands and fought, pelting each other with balls made of tree parasites and from the leaves of the tuna cactus and with balls made from the leaves of reeds, and with flowers which they call cempoalxochitl. This merry making lasted four days.

These ceremonies and others of like kind ended, they brought it about that that woman should not know she was to die, so that she should neither weep nor be saddened; for they held that to be an omen of evil. The night when she was to die having fallen, they decked her very richly, and persuaded her that they were taking her so that some great lord might sleep with her; and they bore her in great silence to the pyramid where she was to die. Having taken her up, one [of the priests] took her upon his back, shoulder against shoulder, and swiftly they struck off her head, and then they flayed her. And a sweet youth put on her skin.

This one who wore the skin of the woman whom they had slain they then bore off with great solem-

1. Mengland [illegible] September 1st [illegible].

Cap. 11.
Ochpanjztli.

Cinco dias antes que començanse este mes: cessauan todas las fiestas y regozijos del mes pasado entrando este mes, baylauã ocho dias sin cantar, y sin teponaztli: los quales pasados, salia la muger que era ymagen de la diosa q̃ llaman teteu inna, compuesta con los ornamẽtos con que pintauan a la mjsma diosa, y salian grã numero de mugeres con ella: especialmente las medicas y parteras: y partianse en dos vandos y peleauan apedreandose con pellas de puchtli y con hojas de tunas y ſoſ pellas hechas de hojas de cañas, y con flores que llamã cempoalxochitl. Este regozijo duraua quatro dias.

Acabado estas cerimonjas y otras desta calidad: procurauan que aquella muger no entendiesse que auja de morir porque no llorasse nj se entristeciesse porque lo tenjan por mal agouero: venjda la noche en que auja de morir, atauja[illegible]nla muy ricamente, y haziãla entender que la llevauan para que durmjesse con ella algun gran señor: y lleuauanla con grã silencio al cu, donde auja de morir: subida arriba, tomauala vno a cuestas espaldas con espaldas, y de presto la cortauan la cabeça, y luego la desollauan: y con mancebo rebuen vestiase el pellejo.

Este que vestia el pellejo desta que matauan: lleuauanle luego con mucha solenjdad y acompañan-

[534 535] [754] [524 137] [787]

The five remaining days of the year, which are the four last of January and the first of February, they named Nemontemi, which meaneth barren days. And they regarded them as unlucky and of evil fortune. There is conjecture that when they pierced the boys' and girls' ears, which was every four years, they set aside six days of Nemontemi, and it is the same as the bissextile which we observe every four years.

A los cinco dias restantes del año que son los quatro vltimos de Enero y el primero de hebrero llamauan Nemontemi, que quiere dezir dias valdios: y tenjanlos por aziagos y de mala fortuna: ay conjectura que quando agujerauan las orejas a los njños y njñas que era de quatro en quatro años, echauan seys dias de Nenontemj y es lo mjsmo del biesexto que nosotros hazemos de quatro en quatro años.

796x 777 [805] [304]

Chapter 19

These five days they held as of evil fortune and unlucky. They said that those who were born in them had evil outcomes in all their affairs, and were poor and wretched. They named them Nemo. If they were men, they named them Nemoquich; if it was a woman, they named her Nenciuatl. They dared do nothing in these days, because they were unlucky. Especially did they abstain from quarreling, because they said that those who quarreled in these days always remained with that custom. They held as a bad omen stumbling in these days.

These aforementioned feasts were fixed, and were always observed within the month, or a day or two ahead. Other feasts they had [which were] movable, which were celebrated during the course of the twenty signs, which made a round in two hundred and sixty days. And hence these movable feasts, in a year, fell one in one month, and another in another, and always varied.

Capi. 19.

1 A Estos cinco dias tenjan por malafor- A 28
2 b tunados y aziagos: dezian que los que b 29
3 c en ellos nacian tenjan malos successos c 30
4 d en todas sus cosas, y eran pobres y mj- d 31
seros llamauanlos Nemo, si eran hombres llamauanlos Nenoqujch, y si era muger llamauala Nencioatl, no osauan hazer nada en estos dias por ser malafortunados: especialmente se abstenjan de reñjr: porque dezian que los que reñjan en estos dias se quedauã siempre con aquella costumbre tenjan por mal aguero tropeçar en estos dias.

Estas fiestas dichas eran fixas que siempre se haziã dentro del mes o vn dia o dos adelante: Otras fiestas tenjan moujbles que se hazian por el curso de los veinte signos: los quales hazian vn circulo en dozientos y sesenta dias: y por tanto estas fiestas moujbles vn año cayan en vn mes y otro en otro y siempre variauan.

[551] [578] [787]

Of the Movable Feasts

The first movable feast was celebrated in honor of the sun, in the sign which is named ce ocelotl, in the fourth house, which is named nauí ollin. On this feast they offered, to the image of the sun, quail, and they offered incense. And at noon they slew captives before it in honor of the sun. On this same day, all drew blood from their ears—children and those who were grown—in honor of the sun, and they offered it that blood.

De las fiestas moujbles.

La primera fiesta moujble se celebraua a honrra del sol en el signo que se llama ce ocelutl, en la quarta casa que se llama naolin: en esta fiesta ofrecian a la ymagen del sol codornjzes y incensauan: y en el medio mataua captiuos delante della a honrra del sol. En este mesmo dia se sangrauan todos de las orejas chicos y grãdes a hõrra del sol y le ofrecian aquella sangre.

796x [776] [785]

The Second Movable Feast

In this same sign, in the seventh house, all the painters and the scribes celebrated a feast. They

La segunda fiesta moujble.

En este mjsmo signo en la septima casa haziã fiesta todos los pintores, y las lebrõleras ayunauã quarẽta

785 796x 463

The Thirteenth Movable Feast

In the sign which they called ce itzcuintli, [which] they said was the sign of fire, they held a great festival in honor of Xiuhtecutli, god of fire. In it they offered him much copal [incense] and many quail. They arrayed his image in many kinds of papers and with many rich adornments. Among the rich and powerful, they celebrated a great feast in honor of the fire, in their own houses; they held dinners and banquets in honor of the fire. In this same sign they held elections of lords and consuls, and in the fourth house of this sign they enacted the formalities of their elections, feasts, dances, and gift [giving]. After these feasts, they forthwith proclaimed war against their foes.

La treszena fiesta mouible.

En el signo que llamauan ce jtzcujntli: dezian que era el signo del fuego: hazian gran fiesta a honrra de xiuhtecutli, dios del fuego: en ella le ofrecian mucho copal, y muchas codornizes: componjan su ymagen, con muchas maneras de papeles, y con muchos ornamentos ricos: entre las personas ricas y poderosas, hazian gran fiesta, a honrra del fuego, en sus mjsmas casas, hazian combites, y vanquetes, a honrra del fuego. En este mjsmo signo: hazian la election de los señores y consules, y en la quarta casa deste sino: hazian la solẽnjdad, de sus electiones, combites, y arcytos, y dones. Despues destas fiestas apregonauan luego la guerra contra sus enemigos.

796x [314] [289 778] [565] [666 431 721]

The Fourteenth Movable Feast

In the sign named ce atl, in the first house of this sign, they celebrated a feast to the goddess of water, named Chalchiuhtli icue. All those who dealt in water celebrated the festival—those who sold water, as well as those who fished, and those who gained other livelihoods which there are in the water. These arrayed her image and laid offerings before her, and revered her in the house called calpulli.

La catorzena fiesta mouible

En el signo llamado ce atl: en la primera casa deste signo, hazian fiesta, a la diosa del agua llamada chalchiuhtli ycue: hazian la fiesta, todos los que trataua en el agua: assi vendiendo el agua, como pescando, como haziendo otras gragerias, que ay en el agua. Estos componjan su ymagen, y la ofrecian, y reuerenciauan, en la casa llamada Calpulli.

[776] [463]

The Fifteenth Common Movable Feast

The lords, leading men, nobles, and rich merchants, when a son or daughter was born to them, paid much heed to the sign, the day, and the hour in which he was born. And of this they forthwith set out to inform the judicial astrologers, and to ask as to the good fortune or ill of the child who was born. And if the sign in which he was born was propitious, they had him baptized at once; and if it was adverse they sought the most favorable house of that sign [in which] to baptize him. When they baptized him, they banqueted the kinsmen and friends, so that they would be present at the baptism, and then they gave food and drink to all the guests, and also to the children of the whole suburb. They baptized him at sunrise in the house of his father. The midwife baptized him, uttering many prayers and performing much ceremony over the child. This [same] feast they also observe today in the baptism of their children, as to fasting, eating, and drinking.

La quinta decima fiesta mouible comũ.

Los señores, y principales, nobles, y mercaderes, ricos quando les nacia algun hijo o hija; tenjan gran cuẽta con el signo en que nacia; y el dia, y la hora en que nacia: y desto yuan luego a ynformar a los astrologos, judiciarios: y a preguntar por la fortuna buena o mala de la criatura que nacia. Y si el signo, en que nacia era prospero, luego le hazian baptizar, y si era aduerso buscauan la mas prospera casa de aquel signo para le batizar. Quando le batizauan, combidauan a los parientes, y amigos: para que se hallassen presentes al batismo: y entonce dauan comjda, y beujda, a todos los presentes, y tambien a los njños, de todo el barrio: baptizauale, a la salida del sol, en casa de su padre, baptizauale la partera, diziendo muchas oraciones: y haziendo mucha cerimonja sobre la criatura. Esta fiesta, tambien la vsan agora, en los baptismos de sus hijos, en quanto al combidar, y comer, y beuer.

777 787 565 852 [759]

The Sixteenth Movable Feast

As soon as the parents saw that their son was of La sexta decima fiesta mouible.

Despue los padres vian que su hijo era de edad para

584

X 796 feathers, and in these [the children] were kept. And they were sounding flutes for them.

All mourned much; men wept for them; men loosed their tears for them; they mourned them and they groaned.

And when they reached the place of vigil, in the Mist House,[16] here was spent the night in vigil. Vigil was kept for them by the priests and the quaquacuilai,[17] who were the old priests. [And if] any of the priests separated themselves from them, they were called tocoxahque (they who are abandoned); no longer did [such an one] join others in intoning chants; no longer was he needed; no more was he counted [among them].[18]

[787] And if the children went crying, their tears coursing down and bathing their faces, it was said and understood that indeed it would rain. [For] their tears signified rain. Therefore [men] were joyful; thus were their hearts at rest. Hence they said: "Verily, soon rain will set in; yea, now soon we shall have rain."

[787] And if one who was dropsical was [met] somewhere, they said: "It will not rain for us."

And when the rains were about to end, when they were soon to finish, to close, then the cuitlacochin bird cried—a forecast that continual, soft rain was about to set in. Then came the gulls. And also came the falcons, flying with much clamor. And they forecast when would come the ice, and that it would freeze.

And at the time called Quauitl eua, there on the round sacrificial stone appeared and came into view all those who were to be sacrificial victims.[19] And of those who were thus to die, it was said: "They raise poles for the striped ones." They were brought to Yopico, [Xipe] Totec's temple. There they made them fight in mock battle, in the same manner as they would later die, [when] they would tear their hearts out of them. They counterfeited this with them. [Using] xerillas of ground corn which had not been softened in lime [as mock-hearts], they thus cut their hearts out.[20] amaamatlapaloque: tlapechtica in vicnia, quetzalcalloiuja, yn vncã momaniuja, quintlapichilitiuja:

cenca tlatlaocultiaia, techoctiaia, techoquiztimaia, teicnotlamachtiaia, yn ca cicicioaia.

Auh yn oxitiloque toçacan, aiauhcalco, vncan ceiooal toçaujlo, quintoçaviia tlamacazque: yoan in quaquacuijti, ichoan in ie veuetque tlamacazque. Auh in tlamacazque, yn o ceme ontetlalcaujque, motocaiotiaia mocauhque: aocmo tecujcananamiquj, aoccan onmonequj, aoccan onpeuale.

Auh in pipiltzizintli, intla chocatiuj, intla imixaio tstocatiuh, intla imixaio pipilcatiuh, mitoaia, motenecoaia, ca qujiauiz: yn imixaio qujnezcaiotiaia, in qujiaujtl, ic papacoaia, ic tziollo motlalinia: iuh qujtoa, ca ie moquetzaz in qujiaujtl, ca ie tiquijiaujlozque.

Auh intlacana ca, ytixiuhquj, q'toaia, amo techqujiauilotla.

Auh yn ie qujçaz qujiaujtl, yn ie tlamiz yn ie itzonco: njman ie ic tlatoa in cujtlacochi, ynezca, ynic ujtz, inic moquetzaz tlapaqujiaujtl: njman oalhuj, pipizcãme: no yoã oalhuj necujlicti, tletlecton, tzatzitinemj, ynezca ie uitz in cetl, ie cenetziz.

Auh ynic mjtoaia quauitl eua: vncan necia, vncan onjxnecia, yn izqujntin oacanozque temalacac: yoan in quexqujch çan miquiz, motenecoaia qujnquavicteoaltiaia yn oacanti: vmpa ovico yiopico, yn itcupan Totec: vmpa qujntlaiecalviaia, in quenjn miquizque, qujmelteqoja: çan oc qujntlaioculiaia: iotlaxcalli, anoço iopitlaxcalli, ynic qujmelelteqoja.

---

16. In loc. cit., ciuatlaolco is described as "un emplazamiento que estaba frente a [illegible] de la parte del occidente."

17. Quaquacuilli. In Seler's Collected Works, Vol. II, Pt. 4, p. 17, it is suggested that the meaning of the term is probably "he who is chosen as the head." In Sahagún's Historia general de las cosas de la Nueva España (D. Jourdanet and Rémi Simeon, tr.; Paris: G. Masson, Editeur, 1880), p. 110, n. 2, the translators render the term premier de chef.

18. In the corresponding Spanish text, Sahagún explains in greater detail: "El oficio de los sacerdotes del templo, y como el Sacerdote quaquacuilli, y los viejos se hacían a sus cosas, y no llegaban a llamarse unos de otros, los oficios temporales por informes, y cadáveres de ningún oficio publico: de ay adelante llamaríanles sacerdotes, que quieren decir desechados."

19. Quauitl. According to Seler, the meaning is "the striped tree," or, more freely, the sacrificial [illegible] for sacrifice. See op. cit., Vol. I, p. 94; Vol. II, Pt. 1, pp. 161, 162; and Vol. II, Pt. 4, p. 23. See also Appendix to this volume, pp. 176, 190.

20. Ixitlaxcalli. See Arthur J. O. Anderson and Charles E. Dibble: Florentine Codex, Book 2—The Gods (Santa Fe: School of American Re-

X 796 Twenty-first Chapter, which telleth of the honors paid, and of the blood offerings which were made, in the second month, which was called Tlacaxipeualiztli.[1]

[722] Tlacaxipeualiztli. This feast came and was thus celebrated; [it was] when all the captives died, all those taken in war—the men, the women, the child-ren.[2]

Those who had taken captives, when, on the morrow, their prisoners were to die, then began the captives' dance, when the sun had passed noon. And they held an all-night vigil for their prisoners there in the tribal temple. And they placed [the captives] before the fire[3] and took hair from the top of the captives' heads, when half the night had passed and when they made offerings of blood from the ear.

And when the dawn came, then they made them leave, that they might go to die, they who were to die appropriately to this feast day. For during the entire festival they were all flayed. Hence they called [the feast] Tlacaxipeualiztli.

And the captives were called xipeme and tototecti.[4] Those who slew them were the priests. Those who had taken them captive did not kill them; they only brought them as tribute, only delivered them as offerings;[5] [the priests] went laying hold of their heads, [and seizing the hair of] their heads. Thus they went leading them up to the top of the temple.

And when some captive faltered, fainted, or went throwing himself upon the ground, they dragged him.

And when one showed himself strong, not acting

Jnic cempoali oze capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa in tlamauiztlilitztli, yoan in nextlacualiztli, in qujchioaia, yn jpan vel ic vnterl metztli, in mjtoaia, tlacaxipeoalizttli.

Tlacaxipeoalizttli: ynin ilhuitl quçaia: suh inic muchioaia, iquac miquja, yn ixqujch malli, yn jxqujch tlaaxitl, yn ixqujch haxioac: yn oquichtli, in cioatl, yn ixqujch piltzintli.

Jn maleque, in ie iuh muztla miqujzque in malhoan, iquac peoa, in momalitotia, in ie onmoxicaloa tonatiuh: auh ceiocal qujtoçtuja yn jmal, in vncan icalpulco: yoan vncan qujtzoncuj, iquaiolloco, tecuilixquac qujtlalia, iquac in ioalli xeliuj, neçaoalizpan.

Auh in ooallauic, vncan conecoaltia, inic mjquj-tiuh: in miquja vel ipan in jlhujtl: auh vel iuh cemjl-hujtl muchinti qujnxipeoaia, xipeoaloia: ic mjtoaia tlacaxipeoalizttli.

Auh in mamalti motocaiotiaia xipeme, yoan toto-tecti: in temictiqia, ichoantin in tlamacazque: amo ichoanti qujnmictiaia in maleque, çan tequjtl qujn-oncaoaia, çan tequjtl temac qujmoncaoaia, qujnqua-temotzultzitzqujtiuj, inquatla qujmantiuj, ynjçpac qujmantiuj, ynic qujntlecauja teucalticpac.

Auh yn aca malli, vel çotlaoa, iolmiquj, ça chacha-pantiuh, ça qujvilana:

auh yn aca vel muchicaoa, amo mocioatlamachtia,

1. This most spectacular of ceremonies—the flaying of men—was said by Fray Diego de Durán to have been invented by Moctezuma I's general Tlacaélel. See Historia de las Indias de Nueva-España y las islas de Tierra Firme (José F. Ramírez, ed.; México: Imprenta de J. M. Andrade y F. Escalante, 1867), Vol. I, p. 174. Miguel Acosta Saignes, in Tlamaitipeualiztli, un complejo mesoamericano entre los aztecas (Caracas: Universidad Central, 1950), passim, argues that it is an ancient complex and in various aspects very widespread.

In Mexico, as elsewhere in a spring festival, celebrated when the soil was prepared for planting, it well recognized. Those who were the human victims represented the renewal of vegetation. Cf. Seler: Collected Works, Vol. II, Pt. 4, p. 71. See also Alfonso Caso: La religión de los aztecas (México: Imprenta Mundial, 1936), pp. 27-8, where, besides, origin of the ceremony in Guerrero or Oaxaca is suggested.

2. Clavigero (op. cit., Vol. II, p. 149) adds that "algunos de estos sacrificados salían con los hombros de oro y plata que eran condenados por la ley del reino a semejante suplicio."

3. Seler (Gesamt Kapitel, p. 62) translates thus: "legte es"—the hair—"vor dem Feuerherde nieder"; Sahagún, in the corresponding Spanish text, says: "puesto al fuego hacían este ceremonia."

4. "The flayed" (xipeme) and "those who die for the honor of our god Tezcatlipoca" (tototecti). See corresponding Spanish text, which also says: "Todos los pulperos de los desollados, o estatuas muertas matadores, a los quales llamaban tototecti." Francisco Pomar y Troncoso, in Descripción Histórica y Expositiva del Codice Pictórico de los Antiguos Nahuas. . . . (Florencia, 1899), p. 109, writes: ". . . Xipotec ó Tototecuitlatl; es decir: los que eran vestidos con la piel del dios Xipe Tótek, puesto sobre la piel del desollado, la cual atandaba al cuerpo desnudo, para celebrar después con el traje y los adornos propios del dios. . . ."

Besides being worn as described, the skins are said by Ixtlilxóchitl to have been used to forecast a year's dry year, and the chiefs directed agricultural work accordingly.—George Kubler and Charles Gibson: The Tovar Calendar, Memoirs of the Connecticut Academy of Arts and Sciences, Vol. 20 (New Haven: Yale University Press, 1951), p. 22.

[787]

5. Sahagún, in the Spanish text, definitely states that the captive was delivered to the priest by the captor.

[with them], and then went off carrying it. When they came to his presence, then they put it down; they laid it down for him.

And when it was already night, then the beloved old men and old women drank wine. In this manner they spoke: it was said, "They bathe [the god's] feet."

And when the fourth day had come, then ended the scattering of the branches. Then they threw away the branches. And when the fifth day came, then in truth was when [it was the feast] Teotl eco, with which ended the twenty days.

At midnight [the priests] prepared a floor of maize, which they patted and pressed together, making it round [and flat] like a shield, and placing it upon a mat.

When [it was time that] all the gods should reach here, and arrive, they made preparations. All set themselves in motion, that the gods might arrive.

And the old priest, [the god's] aged one, named "He who keepeth the god," kept going back to look upon [the maize flour on the mat]. Often he looked upon it. Never did he rest. His office was only to look. Never did he leave his feet; [for] that which he watched, the maize flour, was called his "foot."

And when [the god] arrived, then he saw a small foot[print], which was there upon the maize flour, or at its edge; when he stood upon the [cake of] maize flour, it split.[2] Then it was plain that the gods had arrived.

Then he who kept the god said to them: "Verily, the lord hath deigned to come."

When this was heard, then [the priests] went in procession, blowing shell trumpets, to proclaim [the news] everywhere. Then by this was it known that in truth the gods had come.

And all the common folk thereupon went away and departed to lay offerings in their temples, the temples of the devils. All offered them balls of dough.

And when they had made the offerings, all was still.

And when night fell, in the same manner as they did [before], the old men and the beloved old women drank wine. It was said: "They bathe the feet of the gods who have come."

And the next day, then came Yacapitzinec, this Yacatecutli, who was the god of the merchants; and nauhtetl in coxlekoa, quauhcaxic in tetentiuh, mec quipapaxtiuh: in oacic ixpã mec contema, contemjlia.

Auh in jquac ie ioa, mec tlatlaxano, tlatlacoanalo, in vyventzizin, in jlamatzitzin: in juh qujtoaia, qujlmach qujcxipaca.

Auh in oacic ic nauilhujtl, vncan omtlamj, in acmistemalistli: iquac qujtepeos in acxoistl. Auh in oacic ic macujlilhujtl, in ie vel iquac Teotl eco, in ie ic oeslamj cempoalilhujtl:

ioalnepantla, in qujchioaia, ioteztli, qujtepitztlalisia, qujpachoaia, iacaltic injc qujtlaliaia, petlapã in comtlaliaia:

in jquac muchintin oalacia, hecoia in teteu, qujcencacoaia, oemolinja, injc iecoia teteu:

auh in quacujlli, in jveveio, itoca: Teuoa, mocujtlacueptinemj, in conjtta, achca in conjtta, aquẽmã motlalia, çan jc nemj in conjtta, aquẽman conjcxicaoa, in conjtta ioteztli, motenoa: icxi.

Auh in ohecoc, vncan conjtta, icxitontli, in vncan icac, ioteztpan: anoço itenco, in moquetza ioteztli, texxitinj: njmã ic neti, ca ohecoque in teteu:

njman ic qujualitoa, in teuoa. Ca omecavi in tlacatl:

in ocacoc: njmã ic maxtimoquetza in tlapitzalo, qujtzacutimomana: njmã ic macho, ca ohecoque in teteu.

Auh in jnquich macoualli, njman ic vivi, viviloa, in tlatlamanaque intenpã, in intecupan diablome: çã moche in tlapokolli, in qujmanjlia:

auh in oatlachmanalec, njman ic cactivetzi.

Auh in ie ioan: çan ie no iei in quichioa, tlachanoa in vventzizin, in jlamatzitzin, qujlmach, qujmjcxipaca in ohecoque teteu.

Auh in jmatlaioc, iquac hecoa in Jacapitzinec, inj Jacatecutli: pochteca itenoah caxca, yua in Iacoçauh-

796 [252]

[838 273]

[793]

[787]

[534]

[838 273]

[776]

2. The word ololiztli is explained by Molina (op. cit., p. 107): "Ololiztli, quel que rompe la hoja redonda como ololiztli [shield]."—"Ololiztli, cosa redonda como hoja, o pedazo de cosa redonda de hoja de maíz."

Tenth Chapter, which telleth of still another work of magic which this same sorcerer brought to pass, by which he cast a spell on Tula.

Behold also how the devil brought evil to Tula.

It is said that a white hire, with wounded head pierced by an arrow, flew by, passing to and fro over the Toltecs, not far [above] them. It kept nearing the earth as it flew back and forth. They saw it clearly as they stood and lingered looking upward.

Behold too yet another act of sorcery which was taken as an evil omen for the Toltecs. It is said that a mountain, called Çacatepetl, burned. By night, it was evident from afar how it burned. The flames rose high. When the Toltecs saw it, they became very restless; they raised their hands to heaven; there was great anxiety. All cried out, all shouted together. No longer was there tranquillity; no longer was there peace. And when they saw this omen of evil, they said: "O Toltecs, now is all in truth going [from us]; already the power of the Toltecs goeth. Yea, we are forsaken. What shall we do? Whither shall we go? O unhappy we! Let us take heart!"

Behold yet another act of sorcery. It is said that stones rained on the Toltecs. And when the stones rained, then a large sacrificial stone fell from the heavens; there at Chapoltepecuitlapilco[1] it came falling down. And afterwards a little old woman lived there. She sold [paper] flags; she walked about saying: "[Here are] your little flags." And any desired to die said: "Buy me one," and thereupon went where the sacrificial stone was. None asked: "What now dost thou do?" They were as if lost.

Injc mauhcitli capitulo: itechpa tlatoa, in oc cequj tetzavitl, in ça ic no ichoatl quichiuh nacalli, injc tlatetzanvi tullij. 539

Inca yoan injc tlatetzāvi in tlacateculotl, in tullan, quilmach istac cuixi, tlatzontectica mjntinenca, patlantinenca, mocanauhtinenca, in jnpan tulteca amo veca in quitztinenca in tlalli injc mocanauhtinenca, vel quijttaia acopa conitztivenca, conacopaitztinenca.

Jaca yoan oc cētlamantli in tetzavitl, in jntetzauh mauchiuh in tulteca, quil centetl tepetl itoca çacatepetl tlatlaia, in icoaltica, veca necia, injc tlatlaia in tlecuçallotl veca icoaia, in iquac quijttaia tulteca, vel mocomoniaia, macomanaia, maltinoquetzaia, in netzvitecoia, in netenpapaviloia, aoc tlatlaca mamanca, aac yvian icloaia, auh injc quittaia itla tetzavitl, quitoaia, Tultecaie ca ie izquich ca ietivi, ie iauh in tultecaiotl, ca otitlatlatzivitique quēnel campanel tiauque, o totlavelitic, ximellaquacacā. [181]

Inca oc centetl in tetzavitl: quil inpan tequijauh in tulteca, auh in otequijauh, çatepan oaltemoc ilhujcacpa centetl vej tecbcatl vmpa in chapoltepecujtlapilco in vetzico, auh çatepan, onnenca illamato, papannamacaia, quitotinēca ma amopetzin, auh in aquique, momiquitlanja quitoaia ma xinecbconcvi, nimian ie ic iauh in vmpa ca tecbcatl, aiac quitoaia in tlein ie tay inhequja otlapoloā.

1. Chapoltepecuitlapilco, an eminence, see Clavigero, Storia del Messico, p. 198. Presumably the place was near Chapultepec, today a suburb of Mexico City. Sahagún (corresponding Spanish text) regards another as a place name (Tlatelolco), an alternative name of Chapultepecuitlapilco.

27

[p. 28 is blank]

Fourth Chapter, which telleth of the stars.

Inic nauí Capítulo, itechpa tlatoa: in cicitlaltin.

The Comet

It was said [to be] an omen for the ruler. Because of it a ruler was to perish; perchance some person of noble lineage would die. And likewise they said that somewhere he might be imprisoned, or war would begin. Or else there would be famine. The common folk said: "Perhaps this is our hunger; perchance famine," they said.

Citlalin popoca.

Mitoa: tlatocatetzauitl, ic tlatocamicoaz, aço aca uey tlaçopilli ic mjquiz: yoan no quitoaia, aço cana ic oalmoztacoaz, aço ic olinjx teuatl tlachinolli: yoan anoço ic maianaloz. Quitoaia in macoualti: aço tapiz hi, aço apiztli quitoa.

821
787

The Shooting Star

It was said that the passing of a shooting star rose and fell neither without purpose nor in vain. It brought a worm to something. And of [the animal] wounded by a shooting star, they said: "It hath been wounded by a shooting star; it hath received a worm." [Such] was not to be eaten. It was looked at with fear, abhorred, and shunned. It turned one's stomach.

Citlalin tlamina.

Mitoa: amo nenquiça, amo nēuetzi, in itlamjnaliz: tlaocuillotia. Auh in tlamintli, mitoa: citlalmjnqui, ocuillo, aocmo qualo, mauhcaitto, tlaelitto, hihielo, tetlaiektia.

821
825
262

And by night all were well protected. All covered themselves; they clothed themselves, wrapped themselves in mantles, and bound on their garments, for fear of the shooting star.

Auh in iocaltica vel nemalhuilo, neololoto, netlapacholo, nequentilo, netlalpiliio: imacazo in itlaminaliz citlalin.

821

The S-Shaped Stars

[These] were apart; they appeared by themselves, shining and shimmering. And for this reason were they called S-shaped stars—that they were similar to and very much like a [kind of maize] tortilla which was made, or an amaranth seed tortilla. [These] were, at both ends, twisted and rounded over. They were eaten on the day Xochitl, everywhere, in each house. In all places, in men's dwellings everywhere, they were made.

Citlalxuecuilli.

Çan iioca onoc, iioca neztoc, tlanextitoc, cuecuepocatec: Auh inic mitoa, citlalxuecuilli: ca quinenecuilia, vel no iuhqui centlamantli tlachichioalli tlacalli, anoço tzocalli: nenecoc, cecentlapal quacoltic, quatcuilacachoic: xuchilhuitl ipan in quaqualoia, nouiian cecencalpan: quitzacutimanca, in nouiian techchan nechxilloia.

821
262

The Scorpion Stars

In the same manner, [these] resembled and appeared in the aspect of the venomous scorpion, with upcurved tail. Arched and upcurled is its tail; wherefore [these] are called the Scorpion Stars.

Citlalcoiotl.

Çan no iuhqui: quinecuilia, quinamiqui, in itlachichiliz tequani coiotl: cuitlapilocoltic, mamalacachtic, tetoxilacachtic in jcuitlapil: ipampa inic mitoa citlalcoiotl.

821

821
372
[725]

men make certain burns on the wrist in honor of those stars. They said of him who was not marked by those burns that, when he died, there in hell they would produce fire on his wrist, drilling it as those do who here drill fire with the stick.

maduras quando se muriese q̃ alla en el infierno avian de sacar el fuego de su moñeca barrenãdola como qñ aca sacã el fuego del palo.

821
787

The star Venus these people named Citlalpol or Uey citlalin, and they said that when it riseth in the east it maketh four assaults. The [first] three times it shineth little and hideth again; and at the fourth it cometh forth with all its brightness and followeth its course. And they say of its light that it is like that of the moon. On its first assault they held it an omen of evil, saying that it brought sickness with it. And therefore they shut the doors and windows so that its light might not come in. And sometimes they took it as a good omen. And at the beginning of the time that it started to appear to the east, they slew captive men in reverence to it, and offered it their blood, spattering it toward [the star] with their fingers.

A la estrella de venus la llamaua esta gente citlalpul, vey citlalli y dezian que quando sale por el oriente haze quatro arremetidas, y a las tres luze poco y bueluese a asconder: y a la quarta sale con toda su claridad y procede por su curso. y dizen de su luz que parece a la de la luna. En primera arremetida tenianla de mal aguero diziendo que traya enfermedad consigo, y por esto cerrauan las puertas y ventanas porq̃ no entrase su luz. Y a las vezes la tomavan por buen aguero. Y al p'ncipio de tẽpo que començaua a aparecer por el oriente matauan hõbres captiuos por su reverencia, y ofrecianle la sangre salpicando hazia ella con los dedos.

S: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

Fourth Chapter.

821 The comet these people called citlalin popoca, which meaneth smoking star. They held it as a prognostication of the death of some prince or a king, or of war, or of hunger. The common folk said: "This is our hunger."

[787]

Llamaban esta gente a la cometa. citlalin popoca que q. d. estrella que humea: teníanla por pronostico de la muerte de algun principe o rey, o de guerra, o de hambre. La gente vulgar decia, esta es n/a hambre.

The fla[illegible]g [tail] of the comet these people called citlalin tlamina, which meaneth, the star cometh a dart. And they said that that dart always fell upon something living—a hare, or a rabbit, or some other animal; and wherewhere it would go, a worm was then formed. Wherefore that animal was not to be

A la influencia de la cometa, llamaban esta gente citlalin tlamina que q. d. la estrella tira saeta y decian que siempre q. aquella saeta. caya sobre algun animal liebre o conejo o otro animal, y donde iria luego se criaba un gusano. Por lo qual aquel animal no era de comer. Por esta causa prohibian esta gente de titlan for nineteen years. In his reign there came a famine; for two years[2] it spread over the land, during which it rained no more. Because of it the people of Mexico dispersed everywhere, and there was great suffering from hunger.

In the reign of this same [ruler] it happened that there in the sung house which was in Tenochtitlan, a beam, which pierced the walls which held it, sang.[3] It intoned, "Woe, my evil rump! Dance well, for thou shalt be cast into the water!" This came to pass when [the fame of] the Spaniards came to be known.

In the days of this same [ruler] it happened that [the demon] Cinacatl went about weeping, at night. Everyone heard it wailing and saying: "My beloved sons, now I am about to leave you."

In the reign of the same [ruler] this came to pass. A woman of quality, whose home was in Tenochtitlan, died of a sickness. She was buried then in her courtyard, and they laid stones over [her grave]. Four days after the dead woman had been buried, she came to life at night. Greatly were all frightened. There, where she had been buried in her grave, it was burst open, and the stones which had been laid over it went to scatter at a distance. And this woman, after she had returned to life, then went to converse and speak with Moctezuma about what she had seen. She informed and said to him: "For this reason have I returned to life: I have come to tell thee that thou art come to the end. With thee the reign of Mexico ceaseth; for in thy time the city of Mexico will end. They who come, lo, these have come to subjugate the land; these will occupy Mexico." And this woman who had died lived another twenty-one years, and once more bore a son.

And many [were] the cities which Moctezuma conquered. Their names [were] Icpatepec, Coaxomulnalaxcan, Çocollan, Teoxomulnalaxcan, Çacatepec, Tlachquiauhco, Ixtlaxomocuillan, Atepec, Micchan, Tlemaxac,[4] Napalan, Itztec tlalocan, Cuetlan, Quetzalxopec, and Chichinaltenocalan.

In the days of this same [ruler] it befell that, eight years before the Spaniards came to arrive, it was seen, and taken as an omen, that by night a very great brilliance arose, like a flame. All night it stood shining. It appeared at the place where the sun come cazmolxiuitl ipan nauhxiuitl, ipan muchiuh maiaxalistli oxiujtl in manca in aocmo qujauja, ic noujian tepan cemuan in mexicatl cenca netolinjloc in maiaxalistica. 175 [731]

Çil no ichoatl ipan muchiuh, in oncan cujcacali catca in tenochtitlan, cuicac ce nepantla tecoc in tlaelnapaloa, queuh veiah noquexstepole uel xomjotia, xalli tiuetzinoçe. In muchiuh, y, ie iuh oalmachiztli in Españoles. [787]

Çil no ichoatl ipan mochiuh cioacoatl chocatinenca ioaltica, mochi tlacatl qujcaquja in cho..ia qujtoaia. Nonopilhoantzitzi ic çan ie namechnocaujlia.

Çan no ichoatl ipan mochiuh. Çe tlacatl çihoatl ichan tenochtitlan mjc ica cocolizztli, njman motocac yitoalco ipan qujtemacaque, ic iuh nauilhuitl motocac in cihoatl micoquj moxcali ioaltica, cenca tlamauhti in vncan motocaca tlatlacaco motlapo, auh in tetl ic motemanca vêca veuetzito: auh in ichoatl cihoatl in oiuh moxcali, njman qujnonotzato, qujlhujto in motecuçuma in tlein qujtac qujpouili, qujlhuj. Ca inic onjnoxcali njmjtzilhujco. Ca ie izquijch ca tehoatl moca tzonquiça in tlatocaiotl in mexico ca tehoatl mopan mantiuz in altepetl mexico. Aquijque in ie uitze ca ichountin tlalmaceuaquijxj, ichountin onoque in mexico: auh in ichoatl mjoca çihoatl ie no cempoalxiuitl oçe inen ioan oc ce qujchiuh icoouh oquichtli: 175 787

Ioan nûec in altepetl qujpeuh motecuçuma in jtoca, icpatepec, caxomulnalaxcan, çocollan, teoxomulnalaxcâ, çacatepec, tlachquiauhco, ixtlaxomocuillan, atepec, mjctlan, tlaxpan, napalan itztec tlalocan, cuetlan, quetzalxopec, chichinaltenocalan. 175 648 [103]

Çan no ichoatl ipan muchiuh, oc iuh chicuexiuitl xoiquijxi oquallaxo mazatzin xexxuhujlica, in ioaltica oalmoquetzaia cenca tomauac in tlaxcalli iahquja tlaxipanoal icoual tlaxcaltitlaca tzontiuh iquiçiaxopa oalmoquetzaia vaquilujo in ie oalquja tzontiuh, 175 787

2. The corresponding Spanish was translated three years of famine.
3. Cuicac or cuicatl means. The Real Academia de la Historia MS has not parallel. Respecto la claridad en sentido.
4. Tlemaxac. Cfl. corresponding Spanish text.

6: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1954 NU7 Aztec NU7

175 787 forth, and vanished when the sun was about to rise. For four years this always was to be seen at night. And when it disappeared, it was still four years before the Spaniards came to arrive.

nauhxinjtl in mochipa mottaia ioalica auh in jcoac polioh oc iuh nauhxinjtl açiquijni in españoles

175 648 And it came to pass that in his time the Spaniards came to arrive—they took and vanquished [the city of] Mexico here where the Spaniards now are, as well as all about here in New Spain. [This conquest was] in 1519.

ioan ipan mochiuh injc ipan açico españoles injc caçiquac injc quijpoloquac Mexico in vacan axcan onoquac Españoles ioan in nenjjian in nican ioacujc españa de xiptl e quijpiçtoa y dezinueue.

175 731 648 The tenth ruler of Tenochtitlan.

Cuitlauac was the tenth, and he ruled eighty days after the Spaniards reached Mexico. In the time of this one, it happened that a great plague came, and that many died of it everywhere in the cities. It was said that it was the smallpox, the great raising of blisters. Never once had this been seen; never had it been suffered in Mexico. Indeed, it smote the faces of everyone, so that pits and roughnesses were formed. No longer were the dead buried; they could only cast them all into the water[5]—for in those times there was much water everywhere in Mexico. And there was a great, foul odor; the smell issued forth from the dead.

Injc matlactli tenochtitlan tlatoanj.

Cuitlauac, ic matlactli, tlatocat in tenochtitlan: nappoualhujtl oiuh açico in Españoles mexico. Ichoatl ipan mochiuh in oalla vei cocolistli, i cenca ic mjcoac in tonjjian altepetl ipan: mjjo ca vej çanatl, vej tonamoualistli: in aic cappa omottac inin aic onecocoloc in mexico, vel mochi tlacatl, quitlacalhui in jxuac: injc quijpiotic, chachaquachtic muchiuh, aocmo motocaa in mjmjcque, ça mochi atlan quijnoathaçia: ca in jcoac cenca ma..jian atlan catca in mexico, iuh cenca tlaiuztinomaui, injc hijauque mjmjcque.

175 648 797 The eleventh ruler of Tenochtitlan.

Quauhtemoc was the eleventh, and he ruled Tenochtitlan four years. It came to pass in his reign that these Spaniards conquered and took the city of Mexico; and all the cities which lay surrounding. When he ruled, twelve priests, sons of Saint Francis, came and proceeded to reach [here]. They came to free men from idolatry and to teach the Faith.

Injc matlactli oce, tenochtitlan tlatoanj.

Quauhtemoc, ic matlactli oce: tlatocat in tenochtitlan: nauhxinjtl, ipan mochiuh: injc ichoantin españoles quijpoloque, caçiquac in altepetl in mexico, iuh in nenjjian ic quijnoalotoc inqmich altepetl. Icoac tlatocati in oallaque, açico matlactin omomen teupixque in ipalhoan Sanct fráciscо, in quijccaoaltico tlatectopilhtli: ioan quijtemachtique tlanchoquilistli.

175 The twelfth ruler of Tenochtitlan.

Don Andrés Motelchiuh was twelfth, and he ruled Tenochtitlan three years in the time of[6] the Spaniards, who went forth everywhere to conquerors—to Cuextlan, to Honduras. And Nuño de Guzmán took him [in conquest] to Colhuacan, where he met his death.

Injc matlactomome, tenochtitlan tlatoanj.

Don Andres, motelchiuh ic matlactli omome tlatocat in tenochtitlan eximjtl ipan españoles nenjjian inquijçato in cuextlan, hadurus, auh in ichoatl nenoua de guzmaua, quijnoac in vej colhoacan vmpa mjjquijto.

The thirteenth ruler of Tenochtitlan.

Don Pablo Xochiquen was thirteenth, and he ruled Tenochtitlan three years.

Injc matlactli omej, tenochtitlan tlatoanj.

Don pablo, xochiquen ic matlactli omej tlatocat in tenochtitlan: eximjtl.

5. Qu omoch ahtlan. The Real Academia de la Historia MS has on four pa.
6. Aquauc: pa ioaquauc in ibid.

6: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1954 NU7 Aztec NU7

Third Chapter, where are told the rulers of Tezcoco, and as many years as they governed.

Injc ej capitulo vncan mjtoa in tezcuco tlatoque, injc izqui xiuitl tlatocatque. 173

The first ruler, who began the reign in Tezcoco, was Tlaltecatzin. He ruled only eighty days, and nothing [of note] happened in his time. This one [was one of] the Chichimeca rulers.

Injc ce tezcuco tlatoanj, Qujpeoalti in tlatocaiutl in tezcuco ichoatl in tlaltecatzin çan napoalilhujtl in tlatocat atle ipan muchiuh, chichimeca tlatoque, y.

And the second who became ruler, who followed Tlaltecatzin, was Techotlalatzin the Chichimeca. And he ruled seventy years; nor did anything [of note] occur in his time.

Auh injc vme tlatoanj muchiuh, in qujoaltoqujli in tlaltecatzin ichoatl in techotlalatzin chichimecatl, auh in tlatocat iepoalxiujtl ioan matlacxiujtl ano tle ipan muchiuh.

And the third who became ruler of Acolhuacan[1] was Ixtlilxochitl the Elder. He ruled for sixty-five years. [And] nothing [of note] befell in his time.

Auh injc ej, tlatoanj muchiuh acolhoacan ichoatl in veue ixtlilxochitl in tlatocat epoalxiujtl ioan macujlxiujtl ano tle ipan muchiuh.

And the fourth who became ruler of Tezcoco was Neçaualcoyotzin. He ruled seventy-one years. And at this time, in the time of Neçaualcoyotzin, the war was begun. The two, [Neçaualcoyotzin and] the ruler of Tenochtitlan, Itzcoatzin, conquered the Tepaneca, and they conquered people everywhere. Thereafter this Neçaualcoyotzin founded and laid down the seat of authority[2] of Acolhuacan or Tezcoco.

Auh injc nauj tlatoanj muchiuh tezcuco ichoatl in neçaoalcoiotzin in tlatocat iepoalxiujtl ioan matlacxiujtl ioan cexiujtl, auh in ichoatl, y, in neçaoalcoiotzin ipan peuh in isoiutl im omextin in tenochtitlan tlatoanj. Itzcoatzin inic qujpeuhque tepaneca: auh in noujian tepeuhque qujn ichoatl qujpeoalti in neçaoalcoiotzin in qujtecac in petlatl in jcpalli in acolhoacan tezcuco. 173 648

And the fifth who became ruler of Tezcoco was Neçaualpilli, and he ruled for fifty-three years. In his time war was made in all parts through which people were conquered. And when these two, Neçaualcoyotzin and Neçaualpilli, ruled, they were besieged by Tlaxcala and Uexotzinco.

Auh injc macujlli, muchiuh tlatoanj tezcuco, ichoatl in neçaoalpilli auh in tlatocat vmpoalxiujtl vn matlactli iosi exiujtl in jpan muchiuh iauiutl in noujian ic tepeoaloia auh in ichoantin im omextin in neçaoalcoiotzin ioan neçaoalpilli in jcoac tlaxcatque tzacutictoca in tlaxcalla ioan vexotzinco.

And in the time of Neçaualpilli began what kept appearing, in the heavens, like a light, like a flame of

Auh in neçaoalpilli ipan peuh in tlein oalmoquetzaia illuijcatitech in iuhquj tlanextlj in iuhquj 173 787

1. The corresponding Spanish text reads: "señor de Tezcoco, o de Acolhuacan"; cf. also Charles E. Dibble: Códice Ixtlilxóchitl (México: Universidades de Utah y de México, 1951), Pls. III. The term Acolhua refers to a grouping held together by kinship and political alliance occupying territory east of Lake Texcoco, with Texcoco as its center. Their main competitors for dominance in the valley were the Tepaneca, centered at Azcapotzalco. On the Acolhua, see Fernando de Alva Ixtlilxóchitl: Historia Chichimeca (México, 1892), pp. 41, 42, 49; also Relaciones (México, 1891), p. 303. "Y así juntó los vasallos y pueblos que eran de su parte de los acolhuas, que son Texcoco, Huexotzinco, Coatlichan." "Coatlichan de los acolhuas" is referred to in ibid., p. 299; "Al Rhiano de estos tres, que era Tlaxcalaque, mandaba de poco ahora, hubo de los acolhuas, le dió á Coatlichan con cuyos vasallos pueblos y lugares donde los mayo pobladores eran los donde son conquistados" (ibid., p. 307).

2. In petlatl, in icpalli—the green mat and the seat. In the corresponding Spanish text, Sahagún uses the term señorío. The expression is illustrated then figuratively in Andrés de Olmos: Gramática de la lengua mexicana (José Fernández, ed.; Porfirio Hernández Hernández, 1875), pp. 218, 221.

6: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1954 NU7 Aztec NU7

173 787 fire. It glowed each night. And for four years this came to pass. In the year count Seven Flint Knife it came to appear for the first time, and its disappearance [was] in the year count Eleven Flint Knife. And thus it persisted for four years. In many places mountains and crags broke up. And that which continued to appear, ended four years before the Spaniards came to arrive. And when Neçaualpilli died, [the Spaniards] were not yet present.

themiquiz icniol tlatecuitica, auh nauhxiuitl in ipan muchiuh ipan xiuhtonalli chicome tecpatl in iancuican necico auh impoliuh ipan xiuhtonalli matlactlooce tecpatl auh injc tlamanca nauhxiuitl mijeccan xiti tepetl in texcalli auh in jcoac poliuh in tlen oalmoquequetzaia oc iuh nauhxiuitl aciquiuj in Espaÿoles, auh icoac mjc in neçaualpilli aocmo izpan 175 648 And the sixth who became ruler of Texcoco was Cacamatzin, who ruled four years. It came to pass in his time that the men from Castile arrived here.

Auh injc chicoacen tlatoanj muchiuh texcuco ichoatl in cacamatzin in tlatocat nauhxiuitl. Ichoatl ipã muchiuh injc açico njcan castillan tlaca

And the seventh who became ruler of Texcoco was Coanacochtzin, who ruled five years. It was in the time of both [Coanacochtzin and] Quauhtemoctzin, ruler of Tenochtitlan, that the Mexicans were conquered.

Auh injc chicome tlatoanj muchiuh texcuco, ichoatl in Coanacochtzin in tlatocat macuijxiuitl ichoatl ipã muchiuh injc peoaloque mexica im omentin quauhtemoctzin tenochtitlan tlatoanj.

And the eighth who became ruler of Texcoco was Tecocoltzin, who ruled one year in the time of the men from Castile. Already at this time the Marquis was in Texcoco; here preparations for war were made by which he vanquished the Mexicans.

Auh injc chicuej tlatoanj muchiuh texcuco ichoatl in tecocoltzin in tlatocat cexiuitl ie imjxpan in Castillan tlaca ie icoac in texcuco catca marques vncan moiauchichiuh injc quimpeuh mexica.

The ninth who became ruler of Texcoco was Itzlilxochitzin, who ruled eight years. And when the Mexicans were conquered, [the Spaniards] went taking him with them. He stood by the Marquis. And [the Marquis] took him to Uei mollan.[3] It came to pass that in their time the city [of Texcoco] was completely quieted, that the Marquis and Coanacochtli together set [affairs] in order.

Injc chicunauj tlatoanj muchiuh texcuco ichoatl in itzlilxochitzin in tlatocat chicueiuitl auh in icoac peoaloque mexica quijujcatiuja in marques idan ommoquetz ioã quijuicaia in vej mollan ichoãtin imjxpan muchiuh injc vei modatlali altepetl injc tlaellalali marques nehoan coanacuchtli.

175 The tenth who became ruler of Texcoco [was] Yoyontzin. He governed one year.

Injc matlactli tlatoanj muchiuh texcuco ichoatl in ioiontzin in tlatocat cexiuitl.

The eleventh who became ruler of Texcoco [was] Tetlauetzquititzin. He governed five years.

Injc matlactlopoe tlatoanj muchiuh texcuco ichoatl in tetlauetzquijtitzin in tlatocat macuijxiuitl.

The twelfth who became ruler of Texcoco [was] Don Antonio Tlaxilotzin. He governed six years.

Injc matlactlomome tlatoanj muchiuh texcuco ichoatl in don Antonjo tlaxjlotzin in tlatocat chicuacexiuitl.

The thirteenth who became ruler of Texcoco [is]

Injc matlactli omej tlatoanj muchiuh texcuco,

3. Cf. Codex of 1576 (J. M. Anders: Histoire de la nation mexicaine. . . . Représentation du Codex de 1576 [Paris: Maisonneuve, Frères, Editeurs, 1891]), p. 67, and Mapa de Tepechpan.

6: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1954 NU7 Aztec NU7

175
787

Sixth Chapter, in which it is told how signs and omens appeared and were seen, when the Spaniards had not yet come to this land, and when they were yet unknown to the dwellers here.

When the Spaniards were not to arrive here for ten years, an omen first appeared in the heavens like a flame, a tongue of fire, as if it were showering the light of the dawn.[1] It appeared as if it were piercing the heavens; it was wide at the base and pointed at the top. Well into the midst of the heavens, well into their center it stood reaching; well into the heart of the heavens it was arriving. [That which] thus was seen arose there to the east,[2] and when midnight had passed, it appeared that dawn was breaking. When day broke, soon the sun destroyed it when he arose. For a whole year it came forth (it was in [the year sign] Twelve House that it began), and when it appeared, there was much crying out as they struck their mouths with their hands. All were frightened; all waited in dread.

The second omen came to pass here in Mexico. Of its own accord, fire broke out and burned fiercely in the house of the devil Uitzilopochtli. No one set fire to it; of its own accord it took fire. It is said that the name of the place[3] was Tlacateccan. When [the fire] appeared, already the squared, wooden pillars were blazing. From within, the flame, the tongues and flames of fire, came forth. Very quickly it consumed all the house beams. Then there was shouting; [the priests] said: "Mexicans! Run here to extinguish [the fire! Bring] your earthen water jars!" And when they poured water upon it, when they tried to put it out, still more did it flare up. It could not be extinguished, and it burned completely.

[As] the third omen, a temple was struck by a thunder bolt.[4] It was only a straw hut, a place named

Ic chiquacen capitulo, vncan mjtoa in nez, in mottac, in machiotl, ioan in tetzaujtl, in aiamo oallujz españoles in njcan tlalli ipan, ioan in aiamo ixima-choia, in njcan chanepse.

In aiamo oallaci españoles, oc matlacxiujtl: centla-mantli tetzaujtl achto nez ilhujcatitech, iuhquj in tlemjiaostl, iuhqujn tlecueçallotl, iuhqujn tlauizcalli pipixauhticaca, injc neçia iuhqujn ilhujcatl quiçoti-cac, tzimpatlaoac, quapitzaoac, uel inepantla in jlhuj-catl, uel iiolloco in açiticac ilhujcatl, vel ilhujcaiollo-titech açiticac in iuh ittoia vmpa tlapcopa in oalmo-quetzaia, oiuh onquijx ioalnepantla in neçia tlathuil-iaia, ipan tlathuja. Qujn ichoatl quioalpoloaia in tonatiuh, in jcoac oalquiçaia: uel cexiujtl in oalmo-quetzaia (ipan matlactlomome calli in peuh) auh in jcoac neçia tlacaoacaia, netemujtecoia, neiçaujloia, tlaitemmachoia.

Injc vntetl tetzaujtl muchiuh, njcan mexico, çan monomauj in tlatlac cuetlan, aiac ma quitlecauj çan monoma tlecauj, in jcal diablo vitzilobuchtli mjtoaia itocaiocan tlacateoca in nez ie tlatla in tlaquetzalli iitic oalquiça in tlemjiaostl, in tlenenepilli, in tlecue-çallutl, cenca çan iciuhca compalo in ixquich calqua-ujtl. Niman ie ic tlacaoaca quitoa. Mexicae, ma oallatotoca, tlaceujlos, amapilol: auh in jcoac caste-quiaia, in quiceujznequja, çan ie ilhujce mopitza aocmo uel çeuh uellallac.

Injc etetl tetzaujtl, vitecoc ipan tlatlatzin teucalli, çan xacalli catca, itocaiocan tzomitoloco, itcupan in

1. This may be clarified by reference to Pl. 4, Book XII.
2. Cf. variant versions in Chaps. I and III, and in Book XII, Chap. I, as well as in the Nahuatl version in the Real Palacio MS, the corresponding Spanish text, and Eduard Seler: Einige Kapitel aus dem Geschichtswerk des Fray Bernardino de Sahagún aus dem Aztekischen übersetzt (Camillo Sofer-Gudin, Walter Lehmann, Walter Eckebrecht, eds.; Stuttgart: Strecker und Schwartz, 1927), p. 453. Alternative translations appear to be possible.
3. Mjtoaia Amoxtocat: in a similar passage, the Memoriales en 3 Columnas (Francisco del Paso y Troncoso: Fr. Bernardino de Sahagún—Historia de las Cosas de Nueva España [Madrid: Hauser y Menet, 1905], VII, p. 93) has mitoaqui, ytoquyoc, yitocquyoc. Cf. also Pl. 5, Book XII.
4. Cf. Pl. 7, Book XII.

175 787 Tzonmulco, the Temple of Xiuhtecutli. It was not raining hard, but only sprinkling. This was taken as an omen of evil, [for] it was said that it was only a summer flash, and that thunder did not sound.

[As] the fourth sign of evil, [while] there was still sun, a comet fell. It became three parts and began from where the sun set and went toward where he arose. It went as if showering sparks; for a great distance its wake went extending; far out did its tail reach. And when it was seen, there was much shouting; like [the rattle of] shells[6] it spread about.

[As] the fifth omen, the water [of the lake] foamed up, and the wind did not stir it up. It was as if it welled up, as if it boiled up with a cracking noise. Very far did it go as it rose upward, and it reached the lower parts of the houses; and, wet by the water, the houses crumbled. This was the great lake which extendeth by us here in Mexico.[6a]

[As] the sixth omen, often was heard a woman, who went weeping and crying but at night. She cried out loudly; she went about saying: "O my beloved sons, now we are at the point of going!" Sometimes she said: "My beloved sons, whither shall I take you?"

[pa 3] [As] the seventh omen, at one time the fisher folk hunted or snared with nets. They took a bird of ashen hue, like a crane. Then they came to show it to Moctezuma, [who was in] the Tlillan calmecac.[7] The sun was past his zenith, and there was yet daylight. There was what was like a mirror upon its head—round, disc-like, and as if pierced. From it appeared the heavens—the fire drill, the stars. And Moctezuma took it as a most evil omen when he saw the stars and the fire drill. And when he gazed a second time at the bird's head, beyond, he beheld what appeared to be like a number of people, coming massed, coming as conquerors, coming in war panoply. Deer bore them upon their backs. And then he summoned the astrologers[7] and the wise men, and said to them: "Do you not know what I have ziuhtecutli, amo tilaxia, çan axachquijaia in iuh tetzammachoc, iuh mjto in ca çã tonalhujtecoc, amoxo caquiztic in tlatlazinjlizti.

Injc nauhteitl tetzamachiotl, oc veca in tonatiuh in xiujtl vetz: ietectia, vmpa oalpeuh in tonatiuh icalaçujampa, auh vmpa itzia in jquiçaiampa, iuhquin tlexuchtli pipixauhtiuh, ueca mocujtlapiltitiuh, veca açitiuh in jcuitlapil. Auh in oittoc cenca tlacaoacac, iuhquin oiealli onmoma.

Injc macujltetl tetzaujtl, poçon in itl amo i chocatl quipoçonalti, iuhquj mumuloca, iuhquj xixitemumoloca: cenca veca in ia injc macoquetz, auh in calli tzitzintla cacic auh capapachiuh xixitin in calli iehoatl in vej atl totlan manj ajcan mexico.

Injc chiquacentlamantli tetzaujtl mjiecpa çihoatl cacoia chocatiuh, tzatzitiuh, ioalitoca, cenca tzatzi: quitotinemj, nonopilhoantzitzin ie ic çan ie tiuj: in quenmanja quitoa, nonopilhoantzitzin campa namechnouijquijlia.

Injc chicuetlamantli tetzaujtl, ceppa tlatlamaia, manoço tlamaitlaujaia in atlaca, centetl caçique tototi, nextic: iuhquin tocujlcoiotl. Niman quitzilico in motecuçuma, tlillan calmecac omotacalo in tonatiuh, oc tlaca: iuhquin tezcatl icpac manj, malacachtic, teujlacachtic, iuhquj xapotocac: vmpa onneçia in ilhujcatl: inmamalhoaz in çiçitlalti. Auh in motecuçuma cenca quimotetzauj in jcoac quimjttac çiçitlalti ioan mamalhoazzli: auh injc oppa ontlachix, in jcpac tototi: ene quittac iohquj on in ma acame moquequetzitiujtze, tepeuhtiujtze moiotchichiuhtiuztze quinamama mamaça, auh njman quinnotz in tlaçiuhque in tlamatinjme quimjlhuj. Aiso aoquimati, in tlein oneconjttac iuhquin acame moquequetzitiujtze. Auh ie quinanquilizquia in conjttaque opoliuh aoc tle uel quitoque.

5. The term cuculli appears to be capable of interpretation as rattle, bell, or shell. Cf. Arthur J. O. Anderson and Charles E. Dibble: Florentine Codex, Book I, The Gods (Santa Fe: The School of American Research and The University of Utah, 1950), p. 1, and Book VII, Sun, Moon, and Stars (1953), Appendix, volume, under Tonatiuh quale, Sahagún's term 7 tecuilatzin ayocuilli occurs. Cf. also Eduard Seler: Gesammelte Abhandlungen zur Amerikanischen Sprach- und Altertumskunde (Berlin: A. Asher & Co., 1904), II, pp. 438, 462.

Cf. also Zelia Nuttall: The Book of the Life of the Ancient Mexicans (Berkeley: University of California, 1903), Part I, fols. 8, 48, where the cuculli are pictured in an anonymous Codex in Florence, Italy.

5a. Alter texte, the Manuscrits en 3 Colonnes reads: "Auh ceuf papaxlioh ceuqui xiuitin"; alter texte: "Auh yuic mocenqui yuic cocouah yã ne ceuqui yn ỹ ceuqui xuitoti ỹ ceuqui xiuitin."

6. Corresponding Spanish text: "en de palmas, en una sola, que llamamos Tlillan calmecac." Cf. Fray Bernardino de Sahagún: Historia general de las cosas de Nueva España (México: Editorial Pedro Robredo, 1938), IV, pp. 24-25 (same cf.).

7. Tlapixque: cf. Angel María Garibay K.: "Paralipómenos de Sahagún," Tlalocan, II, 2 (1946), pp. 167, 171.

Alter texte, the Manuscrits en 3 Colonnes reads: "ioan ilc ceuf q'ouqui, ne ceuqui q'tlalhoa: yn tlamatinimeh, ilc yuic cocouh quilhuiqui omo ne yehouatl in quimmaui." seen there, like a number of people coming massed?" And when they were about to answer, that which they looked at vanished. They could say nothing.

175
787

[As] eighth omen, often were discovered misshapen people. They had two heads, but only one body. They took them there to the Tillan calmecac, where Moctezuma beheld them. When he had looked at them, then they vanished.

Inic chicueteri tetzauitl, ynjocpa motenextiliaia tlaca, tlacanetzolti, ontetzontecomeque, çe oc in jutlac vnpa quijmoouijcaia in tillan calmecac, vnpa quijmjtaia in motecuçuma: in oquittac njman poliouia. [732]

[p. 20 is blank]

524 was[2] all the costly goods: golden necklaces, green
525 stone, fine turquoise, branches on which were sewed, green stones or fine turquoise, sprouted feathers, shows, bracers, fields, precious copper, stone, large copper, green stone lip plugs, golden ear plugs, dark feather capes. And he who played pottle, who cast the beans, if there he made one [of these] stand, if the bean stood up there on its thicker end, it was taken as a [787] great stone; it was regarded as a great marvel. Then he won all the costly goods. [The other] lost even though he had not yet attained the specified number of throws. Then were all spread; then all came to the end [of the game].

526 They shot with bow and arrow—with a bow, with 411 a shaft, with bird arrows, with darts. With this he hanged a bracelet on which were large, sewed, green [301] stones or fine turquoises. The color placed it about [43] his wrist.

They used a sling, and cast stones with the sling. With these belonged a net for the small stones, [illegible] so that the small stones were polished. With [223] these they cast stones at small birds. They hunted with a bird net; with it they captured various birds.

351 Flower gardens were laid out; flower beds were laid out. They put in there all the various flowers.

522 There were their jesters who provided them color
524 and gave them pleasure. And [there were those] who rolled a log with their feet: they bringing pleasure in many ways. Their deeds were laughable and marvelous; for with the soles of his feet one man [lying] below this did—he made a thick, sewed log dance with the soles of his feet [while] he lay upon his back and cast the log upward. With only the soles of his feet he did this.

517 Many things they did to bring men pleasure. There were their servants, their pages who attended them [132] and gave them colors; dwarfs, cripples, hunchbacks, [231] servants. They kept eagles, vultures, wolves, mountain lions, and various birds.

[illegible] [illegible], [illegible], [illegible],

6: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1954
NU7 Aztec NU7

175
532
643
292

[107]

[108]

—After Pérez y Tranco

Rulers of Tenochtitlan. 1. Acamapichtli. 2. Huitzilihuitl. 3. Chimalpopoca. 4. Itzcoatl. 5. Moctezuma the Elder. 6. Axayacatl. 7. Tizoc. 8. Ahuitzotl. 9. Moctezuma the Younger. 12. Quauhtemoc. 13. Don Andrés Motelchiuh. 14. Don Pablo Xochiquen. 15. Don Diego Usumil. 16. Don [illegible] Tezozomoc. 17. Don Cristóbal Cuauquec. (Chapter 1.)

10, 11. Officers observed in Tenochtitlan (Chapter 1).

Rulers of Tlatelolco. 18. Quauquauhtzin. 19. Tlacotzin. 20. Quauhtlatoa. 21. Moquihuix. 22. Don Pablo Tecuichpo. 23. Don Martín Ezpil. 24. Don Juan Axoltzin. 25. Don Martín Tlacotzin. 26. Don Diego Huanacuchtzin. 27. Don Alonso Quauhtaxtlah. (Chapter 2.)

[p. 36(c)]

6: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1954
NU7 Aztec NU7

648
175
532
242
[199]

[167]

—After Paso y Troncoso

Rulers of Tenoch. 29. Tlahuatzin. 30. Techotlalatzin. 31. Itztlacoliuhqui. 32. Nopaltzin. 33. Nopaltepilli. 34. Cacamatzin. 35. Cuauhtlehuanitzin. 36. Tezozomoc. 37. Itztlacoliuhqui. 38. Yopicatzin. 39. Tezozomoctzin. 40. Don Antonio Huitzilihuitzin. 41. Don Hernando Pimentel. (Chapter 3.)

42. Omens observed at Tenoch (Chapter 3).

Rulers of Uitzilo. 43. Mixcoatzin month. 44. Tecuhi month. 45. Ayamitzin month. 46. Quetzalcuitlatzin month. 47. Tlacaxipehualiztli month. 48. Xilomanaliztli month. 49. Micaxuchitzin. 50. Tlaxochimaco. 51. Tozozontli. 52. Cuauhnahuatl. 53. Tepeilhuitzintli. 54. Coaitlehuanitzin. (Chapter 4.)

55. Tollan (Chapter 5).

Omens observed in Tenochtitlan. 56. Burning temple. 57. Comet. 58. Inundation. 59. Universal weeping. 60. Bird with mirror on its head. (Chapter 6.)

[p. 36(E)]
[p. 36(D) is blank]

De la Conquista Mexicana

TWELFTH BOOK, WHICH TELLETH HOW WAR WAS WAGED HERE IN THE CITY OF MEXICO.[1]

INIC MATLACTETL OMUME AMOXTLI, ITECHPA TLATOA IN QUENIN MUCHIUH IAUIOTL IN NICAN IPAN ALTEPETL MEXICO.

●787 First Chapter. Here are told the signs which appeared and were seen, when the Spaniards had not yet come here to this land, when they were not yet known to the natives here.[2]

When the Spaniards had not arrived, by ten years,[3] an omen first appeared in the heavens. It was like a tongue of fire, like a flame, as if showering the light of the dawn. It looked as if it were piercing the heavens. [It was] wide at the base and pointed [at the head]. To the very midst of the sky, to the very heart of the heavens it extended; to the very midpoint of the skies stood stretched that which was seen off to the east. When it arose and thus came forth, when it appeared at midnight, it looked as if day had dawned. When day broke, later, the sun destroyed it when he arose. For a full year [the sign] came forth. (It was [in the year] Twelve House that it began.) And when it appeared, there was shouting; all cried out striking the palm of the hand against the mouth. All were frightened and waited with dread.

Inic ce cuçitado vncã mjtoa in nez, in motlac in machiotl yoã in tetzauid, in aiamo valloj españoles, in njcan tlalli ipan in aiamo no iximachoa in njcã chanopa.

In aiamo vallaci españoles, oc matlacaiviti, omotlamãtli tetzauid achto nez, illuijcatitech iuhquj in temjjiaoatl, iuhquj in tlecuçaluiti, iuhquin tlauiscalli, pipixaulticaca inic necia, iuhq'n illuijcati quijoticac: tlimpactoac, quapixaoac: vel iuepantla in illuijcati; vel yiollo in acitocac illuijcati, vel illuijcaiolloitech acitocac, in iuh itoaia vmpa tlapcopa: in calmoquetzaia, oiuh onquin iualuepantla in necia tlauiliuia, ipan tlauia, q'n ichcauj quijualpoloaia in tonatiuh, in jquac oalquijpia: vel oc xiuitl in calmoquetzaia (ipan matlactli omume calli in peuh). Auh in jquac necia tlacoaccaia, netzauiztoca, acipcuhtia, tlatzmucheia.

1. Book XII, as well as the other eleven, Sahagún says, was written in Tlatelolco. See Carlos Sis. de Bustamante (ed.): La aparición de Nra. Señora de Guadalupe de México, comprobada con la relación del argumento impreso que presentó D. Juan Bautista Muñoz, fundándose en el testimonio del P. Fr. Bernardino Sahagún (Mexico: Ignacio Cumplido, 1840). The Tlatelolcan point of view is especially evident in this account. Cf. esp. p. 1. For a full history of the writing of the Historia general, however, see Wigberto Jiménez Moreno: Fray Bernardino de Sahagún y su obra (Mexico: Editorial Pedro Robredo, 1950), and Angel María Garibay: Historia de la literatura náhuatl (Mexico: Editorial Porrúa, 1954), passim, and II, pp. 248 sqq.

The translations regard this history of the Conquest as an Aztec account. Hence there is no attempt to compare it with histories by contemporary Spanish writers, or with other sources, except to clarify the Nahuatl text. The student of the history of the Conquest will find such sources as Cortés' letters, Bernal Díaz, Cervantes de Salazar, Aguilar, and others, necessary for the complete narrative.

2. See the Arthur J. O. Anderson and Charles E. Dibble: Florentine Codex, Book VIII — Kings and Lords (Santa Fe: School of American Research, Monograph 14, Part III, and University of Utah, 1954), Chapter VI.

3. Two years, in Bustamante, op. cit., p. 3. Edward Seler, in Einige Kapitel aus dem Geschichtswerk des Fray Bernardino de Sahagun über die Eroberung Mexicos (Camillo Sachs-Barby, Walter Lehmann, and Walter Krickeberg, eds.: Stuttgart: Strecker und Schröder, 1927), p. 402, n. 1, states: "D. S. used Sahagún as the Ambassador the Spanish (after Bode in A.D. 1517) this daughter where, then there Ichcauhtecuhtli could Sahagún see the Ambassador the Spanish gunshot wounded and, whenever also which on the Angelic Sun."

●787 A second omen came to pass here in Mexico: quite of its own accord fire broke out in the house of the demon Uitzilopochtli, and flared greatly. No one had set fire to it; only of itself it burst into flames. It was called Iuipeyac,[4] at the place named Tlacatecco. When [the fire] appeared, already the [335] squared, wooden pillars were flaring; from within them[5] emerged the flames, the tongues of fire, the blaze [which] speedily ate all the house beams. Thereupon there was an outcry; [the priests] said: "O Mexicans, hasten here to put out [the fire!
[718] Bring] your earthen water jars!" And when they cast water upon it, when they sought to smother it, all the more did it flare. It could not be put out; it all burned.

Inic ueuel tetzauitl mochiuh, ninan mexico: çan momomoui in tlatlac, cuetlan, ninc mu quijtocaui, çan momomu tlecui in jcal diablo uitzilohuchtli: mjtouia, iniac iuiuiocan Tlacatecco: in nen ic tlatla in tlapetzalli, in jpac, cuiquiya in tlemjlocuil, in tlemecpilli, in tlemeçalitl, ceuca çan ictiuhca ompaio in ixquich calqueuitl: nijman ic ic tlecuecua, quijtoa. Mexicae mu valiuecoca, tla cevilica, amapilol: auh in jquac cuemquijxia, in quijcuiuiocquia, çan ic illuiqac mapitica, necuio uel ocuh, uel tlalac.

[346] A third omen: a temple was struck by a thunder bolt. It was only a straw hut, a place called Tzonmolco, Temple of Xiuhtecutli. It was raining not heavily; it only sprinkled, so that it was considered a bad omen. For, it was said, there was a mere[6] summer flash; nor did thunder sound.

Inic eueil tetzauitl: vincoc ipan tlatlazaia teocalli, çan xacalli ceca, iuiacocan tzilmulco: iccupan in xiuhtecutli, amo tilauia, çan aoqhquijavia in juh tetzaumachoc: iuh mjtoa in ça çan teuallhujccoc, amomo cuquijtic in tlatlazinjlizti.

A fourth omen: there was yet sun when a comet fell. It became three parts. It departed from where the sun set and traveled toward where he came forth. As if sprinkling live coals, [so] its tail went extended a great distance. Far did its tail reach. And when it was seen, great was the uproar; like [the din of] shell rattles [the outcry] was overspread.[7]

Inic nauhtzi tetzauitl: oc vecu in tonatiuh in zivitl veca ixtiztia, vmpa calpeuh in tonatiuh icalaquizampa; auh vmpa ixtzia in jquijcaiampa, iuhqui in tlexochtli pipizauhtiuh, veca mocuijlquilitiuh, veca actiuh in jcuitlapil: auh in oiuoc ofca tlecuecoc, iuhquiin cioualli tlaxoaua.

A fifth omen: the water [of the lake] foamed up. No wind stirred it up. It was as if the water swirled, [731] as if it boiled up with a cracking sound. Very far did it go, as it rose upward. And it reached the bases of the houses, and flooded them, and crumbled the houses.[8] This was the great lake which stretcheth about us here in Mexico.[9]

Inic macuijlzti tetzauitl: poçon in atl, amo ichcatl quijpoçonalti, iuhquin momomoloca, iuhquin xiuitemomoloca, ceuca veca in ia, inic macuquen: auh in calli tuinzuia cacic, auh cuquqchiuh, xiuiin in calli: iehoatl in vei atl tetlan mauj ninan mexico.

A sixth omen: often a woman was heard [so] she went weeping and crying out. Loudly did she call out at night. She walked about saying: "O my Inic chiquacentlamantli tetzauitl: nijcpa cioatl cecuia chocatiuh, tuetzinzuia, iuhica ceuca tuetzi; quijtotiuauj. Nonapilhuantiuia, ic ic çan ic tauvi: in

4. Probably Iuipeyac is meant for Aztec. See Chapter 19 of this Book; also Motolinía as I understand, in Francisco del Paso y Troncoso, Fr. Bernardino de Sahagún — Historia de las cosas de Nueva España (Madrid: Hauser y Menet, 1905), VII, p. 95; Fr. Bernardino de Sahagún Historia General de las cosas de Nueva España (México: Editorial Pedro Robredo, 1938) I, pp. 215, 220; and Anderson and Dibble, op. cit., II — The Conquistador, p. 161.

5. Book VIII of the Florentine Codex has this in a similar passage. In the Real Palacio MS it reads: "pan ꝑ calquiqua."

6. Its pun appears in the ms. ed.

7. Cf. Anderson and Dibble, op. cit., Book VIII — Kings and Lords, p. 18, n. 3.

8. In the Real Palacio MS, this passage reads: "auh ꝑ calli ximitlaiuia cuqic chuch cuq' yquachilitl ꝑququi ximitlaiuia."

9. In the ms. ed., mauj is followed by "chuch yuhi ximauqui yuhi ximauch qꝑ ma ximqua ya ꝑ ximqua ximitlaiuia ꝑ ximq ayququi."

beloved sons, now we are about to go!"[10] Sometimes she said: "O my beloved sons, whither shall I take you?"

A seventh omen: at one time the fisher folk who hunted or snared with nets took captive an ashen hued bird like a crane. Then they went to show it to Moctezuma, [who was] in the Tlillan calmecatl.[11] It was past noon, and still daytime. On its head was as it were a mirror, round, circular, and as if pierced in the middle,[12] where were to be seen the heavens, the stars—the Fire Drill [constellation]. And Moctezuma took it as an omen of great evil when he saw the stars and the Fire Drill. And when he looked at the bird's head a second time, a little beyond[13] [the stars] he saw people who came as though mounted, who came as conquerors, girt in war array. Deer bore them upon their backs. And then he commanded the soothsayers and the sages.[14] He said to them: "Do you not know what I have seen there, which was as if people came mounted?" And when they would answer him, that which they looked at vanished. They could tell [him] nothing more.[15]

An eighth omen: often were discovered men of monstrous form, having two heads [but] only one body. They took them there to the Tlillan calmecatl, where Moctezuma beheld them; but when he looked at them, they then vanished.

quemanjan quijtoa. Nonopilhoaztzitzin, campa namechnoviquijtz. 787

Injc chicuetlamanaltl tetzavitl: oppa tlatlamaia, [223] manoço tlamatlaviaia in atlaca; centeti cacique totoltl-nextic, iuhquin tocujlcoiotl: njmã quijtitito in Mo-tecuçoma, tlillan, calmecac: ommotzcalo in tonatiuh, oc tlaca, iuhq'n tencotl icpac mani, malacachtic, tevilacachtic, iuhquin xapotticac: vmpa onnecia in ilhujcatl, in cicitlaltin, in mamalhoaztli. Auh in motecuçoma, cenca quimoetztzavi in jquac quijmjttac cicitlaltin, yoã mamalhoaztli. Auh injc vppa ontlachix in jcpac tototi, ene quijttac, iuhquj on in ma acame, moquequetztivitze, tepeuhtivitze, moiaochichiuhtivitze, quijamama mamaça. Auh njman quinnotz in tlaciuhque, in tlamatinjme: quimjlhuj: Amo anquimati in tlein onoconjttac, iuhquin acame moquequetztivitze: auh ie quinanquilizquia, in conjtta-que, opoliuh, aoc tle quitoque.

Injc chicuetetl tetzavitl: mjecpa motenextiliaia, [732] tlaca, tlacanetzolti, ontetzontecomeque, çan çe in in-tlac, vmpa quimõvicaia in tlillan calmecac, vmpa quijmjttaia in motecuçoma, in oquijmjttac njmã po-livia.

---

10. Cf. loc. cit., where gli può dirsi oppure.

11. In Bustamante, op. cit., p. 10, this is explained: "In Huexotzinco, il governo di Moctezuma, al cui cui [illegible] in cui [illegible] Tlillancalmecatl (quattro [illegible], [illegible] di sangue) y [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Thirteenth Chapter. Here is related how Moctezuma sent still other soothsayers in order that they might cast a spell over the Spaniards,[1] and what befell them on the way.

And another company of messengers, who were soothsayers and magicians, and fire priests, also went and made their way to contend with them. But they could do nothing. They could not cast a spell over them; no more could they contend against and exert power over them. No longer could they succeed.

For a drunkard came along the way. They went up against him and stopped, stunned. They beheld him as one from Chalco, for so was he arrayed. He was dressed as a man from Chalco; he acted as a Chalcan. Like one besotted, he bore himself and acted like one who is drunk. With eight grass ropes was he bound about the chest.[2] He accosted them, having come ahead of the outposts of the Spaniards.[3]

And he rose up against them and said: "What do you come to do here again? What do you now wish? What would Moctezuma yet wish to do? Hath he perchance now come to his senses? Is he now filled with a great fear? For he hath committed a fault. He hath abandoned the common folk; he hath destroyed men. People have been struck upon the head; they have been bound [in wrappings for the dead]. He hath laughed at and deceived them!"

And when they had thus seen this, when they had heard his words, to no purpose did they give him attention, praying humbly to him and quickly setting up his abode — his earth pyramid and his straw bed. But he would not then look at it; vain was its erection. To no purpose had they made the earth pyramid.

Just as if they had plunged him into his rage, he presently chid and abused them, and spoke harshly.

Injc matlactli omei capítulo vncã mjtoa in quenjn Motecuçoma: qujmjxa oc cequjntin tetlachivizmjme injc qujtlachivizquja Espanoles yoan in tlein vtlica impan mochiuh. 648 791 787

Auh ic no centlamantique titlanti: ichoan in tlaciuhq̃ in nanaoalti, yoan tlatlenamacaque, no ic iaca, no ic iaque in tenamjquixque: auh aoccã vel mochiuhque, aoccan vel teittaque, aocmo tlaipantilique, aocmo teipantilique, aocmo onicoatque:

çan ic ce tlaoanquj vtlica ica onmoeztzonato, qujmonamjctito, ica onmjxtilquetzato: injc qujttaq̃ iuhqujn chalcatl ic omochichiuh, mochalcachichiuh, mochalcanenequj: iuhqujn tlapãqui, mjvincanenequj, motlaoãcanenequj: chicuei çacamecatl ic melilpi, qujmjxnamjctivitz hiiacac icativitz in Españoles.

Auh çan inca iecac: qujmjlhuj. tle noma amatitivitze in njcã? tlen oc anquinequj? tle noma qujchicoznequj in Motecuçoma? cujx quja omozcali? cujx quja xocan ic momauhticapul? ca otlatlaco, ca oconcavili in macozalli, ca otlacaixpolo teca omoquavizc, ca teca omequjmjlo, ca teca omavilti, ca teca omocacaiauh.

Auh in ciuh qujttaque in, in ciuh qujcacque itlatol, oc nen itlan aquj, in qujmocnotlatlauhtilia, qujtlalitivetzque ichiel itlalmomoz, yoan içacapepech, çan njmã aocmo vmpa qujcalittac: tel çan ncapanca in ommotlalica, in vncan oc nen qujtlalmomuztica:

çan ic iuhqujn icamac ommaçujque, ic vncan qujmaoa, qujntequjaia, iuhqujn motititzatlatoa:

1. Repeated: the title is omitted in the Nahuatl text.
2. See H. 27.
3. The corresponding Spanish text reads: "Venyo borracho a los puestos delos soldados y venyo hechar de hazes como de esparto, y venyo de hazes dende arriba los espaldas."

648 He said to them:

787 "Why do you vainly stand here? No longer will there be a Mexico; [it is gone] forever. Go hence; it no more existeth. Turn about; look at what befalleth Mexico — what thus already cometh to pass!"

791

Then they looked there; they quickly turned there to see. They beheld that already all the temples, the tribal temples, the priests' dwellings,[4] and all the houses in Mexico burned; and [it looked] as if already there were fighting.

And when the soothsayers had seen this, it was as if they had lost heart; they could say nothing; it was as if they had been made to swallow something.

They said: "This is not for us to see; it must needs be that Moctezuma see what we have seen. For this is no common being; this is the youth Tezcatlipoca."

Then he vanished, and they saw him no more.

And so the messengers went no further to encounter [the Spaniards]; they no longer pressed on toward them. From there the soothsayers and fire priests turned back and came to tell Moctezuma. There they and those who earlier had gone [with] Tziuacpopocatzin saw one another.

And when these messengers had come to arrive, just so they related to Moctezuma how this had come to pass and how they had beheld it. Moctezuma, when he heard it, only bowed his head; he stood with his head lowered. He hung his head: he stood with his head downcast. He did not then speak, but only remained full of woe for a long time as if beside himself.

Finally he thus answered them, and said: "What can we do? What can be done? For we are finished; we have taken the medicine. Shall we perhaps climb a mountain? Should we perhaps flee? For we are Mexicans. Shall we in truth perhaps enslave the Mexican domain? Unlucky[5] are the poor old men and old women! And the children, who have no understanding — where may they be taken? What can be done? Where, in truth, can one go? For now we have taken the medicine. Come what may, in whatsoever way it may befall, we shall marvel at it!"

quimjlhuj.

Tle çi nen in njcan amjcativitze aoquje iez in Mexico, ie ic cémáiia, nepa xivia, aocmo vncá, tlaxommocuepocan, tlaxontlachiacan in Mexico, tlein ie mochioa: in juh ie mochioa.

Nimá ic oallachixque, oallachixtivezxque, in qujoalitta ie tlatlí in jxqujch teucalli, in calpulli, in calmecac, yoan in jxqujch mexico calli, yoan iuhquin ma ie cuel necaliva.

Auh in oiuh qujttaque in tlaciuhque, iuhquin canjn ia, iniollo, aocmo onnacatique, iuhquin aca itla quintololti:

quitoque inin ca amo tonechmonequja in tiquittazque, ca ie itech monequja quittaz in Motecuçoma, in otiquittaque: ca amo çan aca, ca ithoatl in telpuchtli Tezcatlipoca:

njman ic poliuh, aocmo quittaque.

Auh in titlanti aocmo tenamjquito, aocmo tevic quiçato, ça vncá oalilosque in tlaciuhque, in tlatlenamacaque, quinonotzaco in Motecuçoma: oalnepanjxtiaque in achto isque in Tziuacpopocatzin.

Auh in oacico ichoantin titlantin, iuhquj povilique in Motecuçoma in juh mochiuh in juh quittaque. In motecuçoma, iñ oiuh quicac, ça oaltolo ça oaltolotimotlali, oalquechpilo, oalquechpiltotimotlali, aocmo oalnaoat, çan ontlanauhtimotlali, vecauhtica in iuhquj ontlapolo, ça izquich injc quinoalnanquili: quinoalilhuj. Quennel mocechtle ca ie ic toncate, ca ie otictomacaque, cujx cacah tepetl tictlecaviaque: auh cujx ticholoque ca timexica, cujx nellaontimaliviz in mexicaiutl, motolinja in jcnoveve, in jcnoilama: auh in piltzintli, in aia quimati, campa neviquilikeque, quénel, quéçannel nen, quénoçonel, campa nel, ca ie tictomacaticate in çaço tlein, in çaço quenamj in ticmaviçaque.

4. Calpulli, calmecac — tribal temple and priests' dwelling and translations of these terms previously used in this work, for which there is precedent. See Anderson and Dibble, op. cit., passim. Rafael Aguilar Mendoza El calpulli en la organización social de los mexicas (México: Instituto de Historia, 1949), passim (calpulli) and p. 77 (calmecac); or Alfonso Caso: "Instituciones indígenas precortesianas," Memorias del Instituto Nacional Indigenista, VI (1954), pp. 20ff. (calpulli), 36 (calmecac).

5. From manuscript on, the passage is translated in Marcelo Carmelo Arte de la lengua mexicana (México: Imprenta del Museo Nacional, 1917), p. 326.

7: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1955
NU7 Aztec NU7

532

532
787

—After Pozo y Tratado

1. Landing of the Spaniards (preceding text). 2. Spaniards marching (preceding text). 3. Spaniards smashing a temple in Iztaccan (Chapter 1). 4. First attack: the temple of fire (Chapter 1). 5. Second attack: burning of Temple of Vitzilopochtli (Chapter 1). 6. Third attack: burning of Temple of Xiuhtecutli (Chapter 1). 7. Fourth attack: attack in three parts (Chapter 1).

[p. 44(C)]

7: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1955
NU7 Astec NU7

532
648
[187]

— After Paso y Troncoso

8. Sixth omen: the weeping woman (Chapter 1). 9. Seventh omen: the omen bird with a mirror (Chapter 1). 10. Eighth omen: two-headed man (Chapter 1). 11. Stewards present Spaniards' gift to Moctezuma (Chapter 2). 12. Moctezuma's messengers present gifts to Cortés (Chapter 5). 13. Spaniards bind Moctezuma's messengers (Chapter 5). 14. Spaniards fire guns and terrify the messengers (Chapter 5). 15. Spaniards give food to Moctezuma's messengers (Chapter 5). 16. Moctezuma's messengers return to the mainland (Chapter 6). 17. Captives are slain before Moctezuma's messengers (Chapter 6). 18. Spaniards in war array (Chapter 7). 19. Moctezuma hears description of the Spaniards (Chapter 7).

[p. 44(D)]

Thirty-ninth Chapter, in which is told how, when the [Spaniards] had forced them to the wall, there appeared to the Mexicans what showed itself to be [a ball of] jasper[1] which seemed to issue from the heavens and came to view like a large coal of fire.

Injc cempoalli on caxtolli onnavi capitulo: 726 vncã mjtoa in quenjn ieboantin Mexica in jquac ovel 787 quincaltecipachoto in nez in mottac Eztetl: iuhq'nma ilhujcacpa valla. Auh injc valnextia iuhqujn vei tlexuchtli.

And when night had fallen, then it rained and sprinkled at intervals. Late at night the flame became visible; just so was it seen, just so it emerged as if it came from the heavens. Like a whirlwind[2] it went spinning around and revolving; it was as if embers burst out of it — some very large, some very small, some like sparks. Like a cappery wind it arose, crackling, mapping, and exploding loudly. Then it circled the dike and traveled toward Coyonacasco;[3] then it went into the middle of the lake there to be lost.

None shouted; none spoke aloud.

And on the next day, nothing more happened. All remained [quiet], and also our foes [so] remained.

But the Captain [Cortés] was watching from a roof-top at Amaxac — from the roof-top of [the house of] Axtauatzin — under a canopy. It was a many-colored canopy. He was looking toward the common folk; the Spaniards stood crowded about him and took counsel among themselves.

And [on our side] were Quauhtemoc and the other noblemen[4] — the ruler's vicar[5] Tlacotzin, the lords' judge[6] Petlauhtzin, the captain of the armies[7] Motelchiuhtzin, the constable[8] of Mexico, and the head priest;[9] and also the rulers of Tlatiluco — the Auh in ovalioac: njman ic ic quiquijiavi, avachquiquijiavi, ic tlaquauhiova in nez tletl: in iuh mottac, in iuh nez, iuhqujn ilhujcacpa valla, iuhqujn ecamalacutl, mõnamalacachotiuh, motevilacachotiuh, iuhqujn cuecuepocatiuh tlexuchtli, cequj vevei, cequj çan tepitoton, cequj ça iuhqujn tlemoiutl, iuhqujn ecatepuztli, moquetza, cenca icoioca, tetecujca, titicujca, çan quijiavalo in atenamjtl: coionacasco in valixtia: njmã ic ia in anepantla, vmpa popolivito, aiac motenvitec, aiac navat:

auh in jmuztlaioc, aoc no tle muchiuh, ça onoac, ça no onoque in toiaovan.

Auh in capitan tlapico vallachixtica in amaxac, 000
Axtavatzin itlapanco, cevalcalco, tlatlapalli in cevalcalli, quimonjtztica in macevaltin, cololhujtoque in Españoles, mononotztoque.

Auh in Quauhtemoctzin; yoan in oc cequjntin 701 tlatoque. Civacoatl tlacutzin. Tlillancalquj. vizzna- 565 oatl. Petlauhtzin. Motelchiuhtzi mexicitl. Achcauhtli, Tecutlamacazcatzin. Niman in ieboantin in tlatiluico tlatoque. Tlacuchcalcatl. Coiovevetzin. tla-

1. Sahagún, op. cit., p. 946, translates amatl (amoxtli [codex]) as Kinjhuan. See, however, Simeon, op. cit.
2. Sahagún, loc. cit., has ale Wirbelwind (?).
3. See Chapter 34, n. 2.
4. We have rearranged the last line of the entire as Sahagún does in op. cit., p. 947, for the sake of more logical reading.
5. Almonacil. Cf. Clark, op. cit., III, fol. 3; also Juan de Torquemada: Segunda parte de los veinte i un libros rituales i monarchia indiana (Madrid: Nicolas Rodrigues Franco, 1723), II, p. 355; Chimalpahin, op. cit., p. 195.
6. Tilillancalqui. Cf. Clark, op. cit., fol. 48. For tilillancalqui, Torquemada, op. cit., p. 178, has cuculcan mayor.
7. Mizmacatl. Cf. Clark, op. cit., fol. 47.
8. Achcauhtli. Cf. Anderson and Dibble, op. cit., III — The Origin of the Gods, p. 31.
9. Tecuhtlamacazcatzin. Cf. Clark, op. cit., II, p. 117.

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

be sure and they would be able to bind us, and this they might look on as a certainty, for they [the Cholulans] had made sacrifices to their War Idols who had promised them victory. 721 723

Let us cease speaking of this which they looked on as a sure thing and return to our Captain who, as he wished to be more thoroughly informed about the plot and all that was happening, told Doña Marina to take more chalchihuites to the two priests who had been the first to speak, for they were not afraid, and to tell them with friendly words that Malinche wished them to come back and speak to him, and to bring them back with her. Doña Marina went and spoke to the priests in the manner she knew so well how to use, and thanks to the presents they at once accompanied her. Cortés addressed them and asked them to say truly what they knew, for they were the priests of Idols and chieftains and ought not to lie, and that what they should say would not be disclosed in any manner, for we were going to leave the next morning, and he would give them a large quantity of cloth. They said the truth was that their Lord Montezuma knew that we were coming to their city, and that every day he was of many minds and could not come to any decision on the matter, that sometimes he sent to order them to pay us much respect when we arrived and to guide us on the way to his city, and at other times he would send word that it was not his wish that we should go to Mexico, and now recently his [Gods] Tescatepuca and Huichilobos, to whom he paid great devotion, had counselled him that we should either be killed here in Cholula or should be sent, bound, to Mexico. That the day before he had sent out twenty thousand warriors, and half of them were already within this city and the other half were stationed near by in some gullies, and that they already knew that we were about to start to-morrow; they also 721 [787]

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

I must stop talking about this City and all that happened there, and say that the Squadrons sent by the Great Montezuma, which were already stationed in the ravines near Cholula and had, as was agreed, constructed barricades and narrow passages so that the horses could not gallop, as I have already related, as soon as they learned what had happened, returned, faster than at a walk, to Mexico and told Montezuma how it all happened. But fast as they went the news had already reached him, through the two Chieftains who had been with us and who went to him post-haste. We learned on good authority that when Montezuma heard the news he was greatly grieved and very angry, and at once sacrificed some Indians to his Idol Huichilobos, whom they looked on as the God of War, so that he might tell him what was to be the result of our going to Mexico, or if he would permit us to enter the city. We even knew that he was shut in at his devotions and sacrifices for two days in company with ten of the Chief Priests, and that a reply came from those Idols which was, that they advised him to send messengers to us to disclaim all blame for the Cholulan affair, and that with demonstrations of peace we should be allowed to enter into Mexico, and that when we were inside, by depriving us of food and water, or by raising some of the bridges, they would kill us; that one day only would suffice, if he attacked us, to leave none of us alive, and then he could offer his sacrifices to Huichilobos who had given this reply, and to Tescatepuca the god of Hell, and they could feast on our thighs and legs and arms, and the snakes and serpents and tigers which they kept in wooden cages, (as I shall tell later on at the proper time and place,) could gorge on our entrails and bodies and all that was left of us.

Let us stop talking about what Montezuma felt and say how this affair and punishment at Cholula became known throughout the provinces of New Spain and if we had a plotted a treason with the intention of killing us; and as we are men of such character that it would be impossible to hide any matter of double dealing, or treachery, or iniquity, which they might wish to enact against us without our knowing of it at once, for this reason we punished some of those who intended to carry out the plot. As he [our Captain] knew that they were his [Montezuma's] subjects, [it was only] out of respect for his person, and on account of our great friendship, that he refrained from destroying and killing all those who were concerned in the treason. However, the worst of it all is that the priests and Caciques say it was on his advice and command, and that of his ambassadors, that they intended to do it. This of course we never believed, that such a great prince as he is could issue such orders, especially as he had declared himself our friend, and we had inferred from his character that since his Idols had put such an evil thought as making war on us into his head, he would surely fight us in the open field; however, whether he fought in the open or in a town, by day or by night, we would kill those who thought of doing such a thing. But as we look upon him as our great friend and wish to see and speak to him, we are setting out at once for his city to give him a more complete account of what Our Lord the King had commanded us to do.

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

648

When Montezuma heard this message and learned through the people of Cholula that we did not lay all the blame on him, we heard it said that he returned again with his priests to fast and make sacrifices to his Idols, to know if they would again repeat their permission to allow us to enter into the city or no, and whether they would reiterate the commands they had already given him. The answer which they gave was the same as the first, that he should allow us to enter and that once inside the city he could kill us when he chose. His captains and [187]

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

648 tribute to His Majesty, and that as he now understood about the great power of our Lord and King, to whom many lands pay tribute and taxes and many great kings are subject, it would be well for him and all his vassals to give him their fealty, for such is the custom, first to give fealty and then to give tribute and taxes. Montezuma replied that he would gather his vassals together, and talk to them about it. And within ten days nearly all the Caciques of that territory assembled together, but that Cacique who was most nearly related to Montezuma did not come. I have already said that he was reported to be very valiant, and in his bearing and body and limbs and in his face he clearly showed it. He was somewhat blustering, and at that time he was staying at one of his towns named Tula.

It was rumoured that the kingdom of Mexico would come to this Cacique on the death of Montezuma, and when they sent to summon him he replied that he did not wish to come, nor to pay taxes, for he was not able to keep himself with the income from his provinces. Montezuma was very angry at this reply, and at once sent some Captains to take him prisoner, but as he was a great Lord, and had many relations, he was warned of this and withdrew to his province where they were not then able to catch him.

648 I must leave him now and state how, in the discussion that Montezuma held with the Caciques of all the territory
● 787 whom he had called together, after he had made a speech without Cortés or any of us, excepting Orteguilla the page, being present, it was reported that he had told them to consider how for many years past they had known for certain, through the traditions of their ancestors which they had noted down in their books of records, that men would come from the direction of the sunrise to rule these lands, and that then the lordship and kingdom of the

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

Mexicans would come to an end. Now he believed, from what his Gods had told him, that we were these men, and the priests had consulted Huichilobos about it and offered up sacrifices, but their Gods would no longer answer them as they had been accustomed to do. 648 787

All that Huichilobos would give them to understand was, that what he had told them before he now again gave as his reply, and they were not to ask him again, so that they took it to mean that they should give their fealty to the King of Spain whose vassals these Teules say that they are :— 648

"As for the present it does not imply anything, and as in time to come we shall see whether we receive another and better reply from our Gods, so we will act according to the time. For the present, what I order and beg you all to do with good will is to give and contribute some sign of vassalage, and I will soon tell you what is most suitable, and as just now I am importuned about it by Malinche, I beg that no one will refuse it. During the eighteen years that I have been your Prince, you have always been very loyal to me, and I have enriched you and have broadened your lands, and have given you power and wealth, and if at this present time our Gods permit me to be held captive here, it would not have happened, unless, as I have told you many times, my great Huichilobos had commanded it."

When they heard these arguments, all of them gave as an answer that they would do as he had ordered them, and they said it with many tears and sighs, and Montezuma more tearful than any of them. Then he sent a chieftain to say that on the following day they would give their fealty and vassalage to His Majesty. This was on the [1] day of the [1] month, in the year 1519.

---

[1] Blank spaces left in the original.

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

Thus As soon as we had placed the image of Our Lady and the 787 Cross on the Altar which we had made on the Great Cue and the Holy Gospel had been preached and Mass said, it seems that Huichilobos and Tezcatepuca spoke to the priests, and told them that they wished to leave their country as they were so badly treated by the Teules, and they did not wish to stay where those figures and the Cross had been placed, nor would they remain there unless we were killed, and this was their answer and they need not expect any other, and they should inform Montezuma and all his Captains, so that they might at once go to war and kill us. The Idols further told them that they could see how all the gold that used to be kept for their honour, had been broken up by us and made into ingots, and let them beware how we were making ourselves lords over the country, and were holding five great Caciques prisoners, and they told them of other misdeeds so as to induce them to attack us. In order that Cortés and all of us 000 should know about this, the Great Montezuma sent word to tell Cortés that he wished to speak to him on very important matters, and the page Orteguilla came and said to him that Montezuma was very sad and much disturbed, and that during the previous night and part of the day many priests and leading Captains had been with him and had said things to him privately that he [the page] could not understand.

When Cortés heard this he went in haste to the palace where Montezuma was staying and took with him Cristóval de Olid, who was Captain of the Guard, and four other Captains and Doña Marina and Jerónimo de Aguilar, and, after they had paid much respect to him, Montezuma said: "Oh! Señor Malinche and Captains, how distressed I am at the reply and command which our Teules have given to our priests and to me and all my Captains, which is that we should make war on you and might occasionally have raised, as well as upon the chase. But |105 during this very period also, their chief divinity and subsequent principal idol, Huitzilopochtli, god of war, is reported to have ut- 776 tered these prophetic words: "And I was sent on this journey, and 787

14:Bandelier E-4 (no date)1880 NU7 Aztec NU7

"my office it is to carry arms, bows, arrows, and shields; war is my "chief duty, and the object of my coming. I have to look out in "all directions, and with my body, head and arms, have to do my "duty in many tribes, being on the borders and lying in wait for "many nations, to maintain and to gather them, although not gra"ciously." Proceeding to state a number of objects, subsequently given to the Mexicans in tribute, he closes as follows: "All this I "shall own and hold, for I am sent after it, it being my office, and
"I came for this purpose."[4] Imbued with a spirit of which this |74 utterance is merely a legendary form, the Mexicans made their appearance among the agricultural tribes of the valley of Mexico as a crowd of famished, but desperate, intruders, were received as such, and, after a brave resistance, compelled to take refuge in a naturally isolated spot of dry land, surrounded by swamps and marshes.[5]

In this defensive position, which the Mexicans subsequently |61| converted into the strongest one ever occupied by Indians up to the 16th century,[6] they carefully nursed and developed their war-

[4] Tezozomoc (Cap. I, p. 6). Joseph de Acosta (Historia natural y moral de las Indias, 1608. Lib. VII, chap. IV, p. 450). M. Brasseur de Bourbourg ("Popol-vuh, "Intr., p. 127 and p. 140.") intimates Huitzilopochtli to be a myth common to all the aborigines of Central America in general.

[5] The spot to which the Mexicans fled, and which subsequently became the nucleus of Tenuchtitlan, and of Tlatilulco, was dry land, in the midst of canes and reeds. (Tezozomoc, cap. I, p. 5, "porque el dia que llegaron a esta laguna Mexicana, en medio "de ella estava, y tenia un sitio de tierra, y en el una peña.") Fray Gerónimo de Mendieta (Historia eclesiastica Indiana," published by my most esteemed friend, Señor J. G. Icazbalceta, the learned Mexican scholar, in 1870. Lib. II, cap. XXXIV, p. 148. "Y luego se hicieron fuertes en este sitio, tomando por muralla y cerca las aguas y "emboscadas de la juncia y carrizales y matorrales de que estaba entonces poblada y "llena toda la laguna, que no hallaron el agua descubierta sino en sola una encrucijada "de agua limpia desocupada de los matorrales y carrizales, formada a' manera de una "aspa de San Andrés. Y casi al medio de la encrucijada hallaron un peñasco"). Torquemada (Lib. II, cap. X, pp. 91 and 92. "En este lugar se rancharon (como decimos "en el libro de los Pobladores) haciendo unas pobres, y pequeñas chozas, rodeados "de carrizo, y Espadañas, que ellos llaman Xacalli," etc., etc. (Acosta, Lib. VII, cap. VII, p. 465. " . . . . y dividiendose una parte y otra, por toda aquella espesura "de espadañas, y carrizales, y juncia de la laguna, commenzaron á buscar por las señas "de la revelacion el lugar tan deseado.") [311]

[6] There was, to my knowledge, but one similar position: that of Atitlan, in Guatemala. (See: Segunda Relacion por Pedro de Alvarado á Hernando Cortes, 28 July, 1524, pp. 480, 481 and 482, of Vol. I. of "Historiadores primitivos de Indias," by Don Enrique de Vedia, Madrid, 1852.) The tribe was regarded as very fierce, also. [17]

16:Bandelier E-4 (no date)1880 NU7 Aztec NU7

2. To cases of military insubordination, or treachery:[269] 643

3. To instances of great importance, demanding sudden action in order to avoid public danger.[270] cases, the right of summary punishment, as well as in the case of unfaithful stewards or disobedient subordinates in general. Compare, on the same subject, Durán (Cap. LIII. pp. 419 and 420). The fact, that the "Cihuacohuatl" spoke to the young men, further shows that the exercise of such extreme power was known to, and sanctioned by, the council.

[269] Quotations are useless, the necessity for such a power being too plain. But it is well, here, to state that among much ruder tribes even, and where the democratic element was carried to its greatest extremes, arbitrary punishment by war-captains sometimes occurred. Thus it is asserted that, at the bloody engagement of Point Pleasant, Va., 10 of October, 1774, "Cornstalk," the great Shawnee war-chief, tomahawked one near him who had "by trepidation and reluctance to proceed to the charge, evinced a dastardly disposition." Alex S. Withers ("Chronicles of Border Warfare," Chap. VII, p. 129). It explains also the summary punishment of traitors and deserters, as well as of those who assumed the dress of the prominent war-chiefs during a raid or an engagement.

[270] The incarceration of runners or messengers may be (and has been to me in conversation by an aged friend) brought up in proof of the belief, that the "chief of men" had a despotic power. Instances of that kind are related by Tezozomoc (Cap. CVI, p. 189). This is the truly admirable description of the first news brought to México of the approach of European ships. It is too lengthy to be inserted here. A runner from the coast carried the news, and "Wrathy Chief" said to Petlacalcatl, take him to the cell made of logs (probably split logs, "tablon") and look after him. This was done to keep the news secret until the matter could be investigated, and was, therefore, a preliminary measure of policy. But, aside from the fact that the isolation rather than incarceration (since the latter would have been death) of a news-carrier was a matter of policy, and as such a duty of the "chief of men," it was also an established custom among the Mexicans. This is stated by Sahagun (Lib. VIII, cap. XXXVII, pp. 317 and 318): "Habiendo cautivado á alguno, luego los mensageros que se llamaban tequipantitlanti, venian á dar las nuevas al rey de aquellos que habian cautivado á sus enemigos, y de la victoria que habian obtenido los de su parte . . . . . y el señor los respondia diciéndoles: "Seais muy bien venidos, huélgome de oir esas nuevas, sentad y esperad, porque me quiero certificar mas de ellas, y asi los mandaba guardar, y si hallaba que aquellas nuevas eran mentirosas, hacialos matar." Torquemada (Lib. XIV, cap. I, p. 536): "y que no le dejasen salir de Palacio hasta tener segundo Correo, que confirmase aquella buena nueva, que él havia traido. Feinaccri ("Teatro," Parte IIa, Trat. II°, cap. II, p. 381), almost a textual copy of the preceding author, as might be expected.

Among the many tales of prodigies, supernatural warnings, witchcraft, etc., etc., connected with the months and years immediately preceding the arrival of the Spaniards in Mexico, there is, also, one bearing a particularly pure Indian character. See Durán (Cap. LXVIII, pp. 521-530). Tezozomoc (Cap. CVI, p. 188 and 189). "Wrathy Chief," alarmed by mysterious prognostics, called upon all the old men, women, and the medicine-men, to report what they might dream or had dreamed within a certain lapse of time. It is well known what high value is attached by the Indians in general to dreams. There can be no doubt that, with the prevailing notion that dreams contained important and solemn premonitions, warnings from a higher source (Sahagun Lib. V), the request to communicate such dreams for the benefit of the tribe, to the "chief of men," was very natural. According to Motolinia ("Hist. de los Indios de la Nueva-España," Col. de Doc., Trat. II, cap. VIII, p. 196), certain men were particularly expert in explaining and interpreting dreams, so much so, that they were generally applied to for such purposes. If now, as the story in question has it, the said people refused to comply with such requests, the "chief of men" might, of his own accord,

[787]

17: Sahagún
●787

Aztec NU7

[For information on divination and soothsaying, see category 116, pp. 1-25, 29-45, 49-60, 70-77, 79-87, 92-109, 124, 126d-126s, 126v-133, 138-139, 143, 145-46, 151-180, 194.]

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

317 Obsidian must have had important economic value for the 439 Valley peoples, and since volcanic glass is portable and very 324 useful for its sharp cutting edge, it was widely traded to the tribes of nonvolcanic regions. Techniques were established early in the Middle Culture, and the art of polishing this stone was known to the Teotihuacan Toltecs, who utilized it as eyes for the idols of the Temple of Quetzalcoatl. Ceremonial [788] bloodletting called for a constant supply of thin blades (made by pressure flaking), some of which are exquisitely long and narrow. Yet scalpels of comparable fineness were made in Toltec and Mazapan times as well. Indeed, the principal [415] innovation of the Aztecs was in fashioning vases from obsidian, a formidable task, owing to its hardness.[8]

303 The making of mirrors called much ingenuity into play.
789 They are so rare that they must have been used solely for ritualistic magic. Blocks of obsidian were sometimes polished to produce an eerie and mysterious reflection. However, iron pyrites, burnished and shaped, were more common; and rarer examples had thin pyrite flakes laid in a mosaic and glued to a background of wood or shell. In another technique used on the coast the artisan detached a surface of pyrites in its matrix of slate, burnishing one side and carving [395] the other to fashion a mirror with a carved back. One example, at least, is known of a mirror of marcasite with its surface so ground as to produce a magnified reflection.[4]

324 Stone sculpture we shall consider more conveniently under art, but the mass production of dressed stone for building must have required patience and skill to accomplish. Stoneworking throughout Middle America was achieved without metal tools. Flaking and chipping for the hard stones, pecking and hammering for the softer ones, were the preliminary

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

648 mid-fifteenth century both Tenochtitlan and Texcoco had grown to the point where they had to have additional supplies or else starve, so, because of this common necessity, the alliance endured fairly well.[4]

186 Despite their common background of language, thought, religion, custom and material culture, the Aztecs had no sense of unity. Tenochtitlan and Tlaltelolco, both of which are within the city limits of modern Mexico, existed side by side in complete independence for many years; not until 1473 did the Tenochcas make up their minds to conquer their neighbors. Each town and hamlet was sufficient unto itself, and its members felt no larger loyalty. In modern Teotihuacan this feeling still persists, and the members of one barrio, or ward, look upon those of the adjacent one as a congregation of the most horrible criminals. Not even the Spanish siege of Mexico brought unity to the Aztecs, and the Texcocans blithely joined the invaders to exterminate their former ally Tenochtitlan.

648 439 Although community was potentially hostile to community, individuals could move freely about the countryside. Trade in simple commodities was carried on extensively from the early times of the Middle Cultures. In the Aztec period the traveling merchants became a special class, and their security of body and property, preserved at first for the advantages which each town could derive from their wares, was guaranteed by the force of Aztec arms. Pilgrims [788] going to worship at special shrines had free and unmolested passage; and a suggestion that such journeys were made in the distant past is given by the Middle Culture figurines of foreign origin. One site especially, Tetelpan, produced so great a variety of idols from such a wide area that it must have been an important religious center in Middle Culture times. However, neither trade nor religion broke down the sense of communal and political independence in Central Mexico. (See Plate 35, Fig. 2.)

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

Foreign relations centered around war, which, we have seen, was an important part of Aztec economy and religion. The same confusion of motives that we find in our modern culture affected the reasons for military action. We wage war for economic, territorial and political advantages and, while condemning the practice in our adversaries, justify our own participation by saying that we are fighting for freedom, to liberate someone, to extend civilization or to ensure peace. Soldiers on our own side are brave and attain glory, preserve our social virtues and sacrifice themselves for the public well-being. Those on the other side are aggressors, agents of evil and cowardly knaves. The Aztecs made war for defense, revenge and economic motives, which were inextricably confused with the need for the sacrificial victims requisite for proper adoration of their gods. Thus in warfare the great aim was to take captives, but behind this religious goal lurked the less holy urges of political and economic expediency.

The captive himself attained social status, since he went to a special warrior's heaven. A redonbtable Tlaxcalan chief, named Tlahuicol, was singled out for sacrifice to the sun and fought so successfully with his dummy weapons that he killed some of his adversaries and wounded a number of the others. He was pardoned and offered a chieftaincy in the Tenochcan army. Tlahuicol, however, rejected his pardon and gladly underwent sacrifice for the greater honor and glory in that death. This story illustrates the attitude of the the diapouhqui, who is reading the sacred almanac which lay in his hand, with the pictures [writing], the ink, [and] the colors for painting; the knowledge, the wisdom which hath been created.[39]

The penitent who would confess first explained to the one; he said unto him:

"I wish to go to the master, our lord, the maker and protector of all, our lord Tezcatlipoca,[40] in secret. I wish to have this for myself."

The confessor said: "Thou hast been given this favor."

He instructed him when he should come; he chose a favorable time. He saw, in his sacred almanac, what day was good, favorable. It was said: he hath chosen the time.

And when the appointed time [came] he[41] bought a new mat, and incense, and wood. [If he was] a highly honored personage, he made his confession in his own house; the new mat; there. Or penitentiaries the penitent went to him.

He swept well the place where the new mat was placed, and a fire was lit. Then the new mat the incense into the flames. He sacrificed the fire; he said:

"Mother of the gods, father of the gods, old god, here hath come a man of low estate. He cometh here weeping, sad, anguished. Perhaps he hath sinned; perhaps he hath erred, perhaps he hath lived in filth. He cometh heavy-hearted; he is sorrowful. Master, our lord, protector of all, also take away, purify, the torment of this man."

Then the one spoke unto him who would confess; he said unto him:

"Thou hast come toward the god, protector of all, and [into] his presence. Thou hast come to tell him, to deliver thyself of, thy evil complaint, thy corruption. Thou hast come to open thy secret.

"Take care that thou commit no fault or sin. Take off thy clothing; show thy nakedness to the god, protector of all, our lord Tezcatlipoca.

"Perhaps, being a man, thou wilt see not the god; perhaps he will not speak to thee, being a man; [for] he may not be seen nor touched.

"And so, in this manner, thou commit [to the god], uncover thy secret, tell thy way of life, thy deeds, in whatever way thou art cursed, in whatever manner it is, whatever thou hast done, whatever thou hast achieved, whatever thou dost which [is] evil and sinful.

"Overturn, pour forth thy vices, thy wrongdoing; [expose] thy evil [illegible] consequence.

"And let our lord, protector of all, have pity on thee—tlacatiuj, yn jnnac mauj, yn amatlj, yn tlacujlolli: in quipia 776 yn tlilli, yn tlapalli, yn matlatl, yn pinlli, yn nemauiztli, yn 793 ayajcqui 783

yn mojnelnelnaz in tlapilchiuhca; ochtec quitlacaquitia in tlapouhqui, quijlhuia.

Ca yuchtzinco ajnantzinoqui, yn tlacatl, yn tetecujo, in tlaqui nenequi: in tetecujo, yiualli, yn ohcatl, yuqcuin, yyetlacatzin, ajnantzinlinoqui.

Quijlhuia in tlapouhqui: ximotlacnelli:

quijnanatia, yn iquijo ollac: quijpepena in amalli, quijna 787 yn jamaca, yn jtlacujlol: quijta, yn iquijo qualli amalli, yn iacana, in quaican: mjtna: quijnanalquanja.

Auh yn ie yquac, in ie ynantlipan, iaccujo petlatl quicua: yuan copalli, yuan quauijtl: yn tlamatini in tlamacuhqui, qui ichan yn mononelnaca, ie ynqui inch in tlapouhqui. Auh anoc teujc inch, in tlamacuhqui:

iaccujo petlatl in tectan, vellachquito yn vecati metlelia; 788 yuan tlotlalilo: ajnan copalli xamma in ohco in tlapouhqui, quijnotza in tlotl; quijlhuia.

Teteo yuan, tenu yuan, vecu tonl, ajcan ollatia, in cujlapilli, yn atlapalli, yn macualli: ajcan chocatiujtz, tlaiocatiujtz, mononpohuiujtz, ancan omolcoh, ancan omonpolonj, ancan cuijnamjc yn vielaltzi, in tecatzualli, yn qocamjtl; aquj inlilacna, quijnequipachoa, Tlacatlo, tetecujoe, tlaquaiac nenequiaz, matcqui xinnecujli, ma xinnecuqui, yn jnnelnenchilio yn macualli.

Niman quijnotza, yn mononelnehqui, in inhual tlapouhqui: quijlhuia.

Tlaelnenelcatia yujctinoca, inquantinoca, in tlaqui nenequi; tlamelhujlica, tlamomequjlica, yn mjlaca, in mopalanca: tlamotlapalhujlica, in mocuqui, inmopelacal, a ma no cuppa iilli: ajcan xinantzinoj, tlamopanoj: ma inquantinoca tlamequjlica, tlamomanaxuj, in tlaqui, nenequi, in tetecujo, in iualli, in ohcatl.

A cujo tlelocatzinoca in tetecujo, a cujo mjnelnenequi: in iualli, in ohcatl.

Auh yujo quen tlaujca, ma tlatlaqui in mocuqui, in mopelcali: ma xiquan in quenenjlic, in motlachiual, yvin quenjo tlamati, yvin quenjo cuic: in quenjo machiuh, in quenjo tez: in quenjo tlachiuh, in mononjual, in mononquijuc:

tlamoqui, tlapolonj, in mononiria, in mopalaina, in mjlaca in mopalanca.

Auh tlamotlacnelnenelchilli, yn tetecujo, in tlaqui nenequi,

39. Cf. Florentine Codex, loc. cit., and Sahagún, Historia general, loc. cit.

40. Cf. corresponding Spanish text, Sahagún, op. cit., Vol. I, p. 67, and Vol. II, p. 71, given as synonyms of yualli, ohcatl: (1) "aquí está, aire y tinieblas"; and (2) "dios invisible sin forma . . . inmaculado, y fortaleza y compañero y independiente, por cuya virtud todos viven. . . ." Angel María Garibay K., Llave del náhuatl (México, Editorial n. p., 1940), p. 113, translates ayqui nenequi as "que está como y junto" —the one, God in general.

41. Context suggests that pronoun refers to the patient.

war club of the captive lay in his hand, but his war club lacked obsidian points. And they who striped had their shields and war clubs, in order to fight in gladiatorial sacrifice in supposed battle with the captive or slave.

onoc aoc moitztzo in imaquauh. auh in tlavavanque inchimal inmacquauh ictiçac injc tlavavanaia iuhquin qujçali malli anoço tlacutli. 796X 782

Lying in the Sacred Place.

For five days all lay stretched out in the reed [swamp]. Thus was penance done for Tlaloc when in the cave were laid the two culnauati.

Teupan onolizti

Macujlilhujl in tulpan netecoia injc neçavililoia tlaloc in iquac vztoc tlaliloia vme culnavati.

Placing of Men upon the Straw.

The placing of men upon the straw: Of those who flayed men, some put on the [flayed] skins. Such were named Xipes. And straw was shaken out, upon which they placed [the Xipes]. Hence was it said that they were set forth upon the straw.

Çacapan nemanalizti

In çacapan nemanalizti, ichoantin in qujxipevaia tlaga in imevaio cequjntin conmaqujaia in choatl in motenevaia xixipeme, auh motzetzeloaia in çacatl ipan qujuvalmanaia ipampa in motenevaia çacapan valnemanalo.

Quickening [the Sun or the Fire].

The quickening was thus done: When the ears were cut, they spattered the blood upward, [or] perchance sprayed it into the fire. Thus, it was said, they caused the fire and the sun to quicken.

Tlazcaltilizti.

In tlazcaltilizti ic muchivaia iquac in monacaztequja acoçu contzetzeloaja in eztli anoço tleco contzitzicujnjaia injc mjtoaia quiacaltia in tletl yoan in tonatiuh.

The Spreading of Greens.

The spreading of greens was thus done: when greens had been plucked, then they were spread everywhere upon the altars. No one, anywhere, failed to do so.This was known as the spreading of things which had been plucked by hand.

Tlatzmolintemalizti

In tlatzmolintemalizti injc muchivaia, in iquac omocujto tlatzmolin, njman ic motetema in novjian momuzco, acan mocava vel novjian, ichoatl in mjtoaia tlamacujtemalizti.

The Spreading of a Bed of Straw.

The spreading of a bed of straw was thus done: Like the kissing of the earth, it was fitting when anywhere one entered a dive where stood the image of the devil. Thus, [when] one entered in his presence, he pulled up straw and shook it out before the devil when he came forth before him.

Others followed the roads, and when there was Neçacapechtemalizti.

In neçacapechtemalizti injc muchivaia çan no iuhquj in tlalqualizti ipan povia in iquac campa qujnovaia in canjn ycac ixiptla Diablo injc inpã qujnoaia ompia in çacatl inpan contzetzeloaia in Diablo, in iquac tlaxpan qujçaia [201]

Oc cequjntin in vtli qujnoaia, in iquac iavc, [788]

X 796 war, they made, as it were, a supplication when anyone went where there was war, lest something 782 might go amiss [with them]. They said:

"Not here shall I die; [it is] in war that I go to die."

And when battle was already joined, they first plucked grass, shook it out toward the sun, and said:

"He will destroy and slay [our foe]," or, "He will capture [him]."

In this wise was a prayer raised to the sun.

iuhqujnma ic nenetoltiloia, jn jquac oca iauh iavc intla itla ic metolinjtinemj qujtoaia amo njcan in njmiquiz, iavc in njmiqujtiuh auh in iqc ie muchivaz iauiotl achto qujpia in çacatl qujtzetzeloaia in jvicpa in tonatiuh qujtoaia, vnpopolihuiz y in tlamiquiz, anoço tlamaz iuhqujn ic monetoltiaia ivjc tonatiuh.

The Blowing of Trumpets.

X 796 [533] Thus was done the blowing of trumpets: when it was late at night, when it was already approaching 782 midnight, [then it was] when trumpets were sounded, that all [the priests] might offer blood in the house of the devil. Therefore were [the priests] awakened.

Tlatlapitzaliztli.

Injc muchivaia in tlatlapitzaliztli iquac in ie tlaquauhiovac, in ie onacitiuh iovalnepantla iquac tlapitzaloia ic neçohoaia in jchan Diablo, ic teixitiloia.

The Illumination with Fire.

Thus was done the illumination with fire: when we people had passed [the night until] midnight and also trumpets had been sounded, thus were men awakened. Thus those known as the beaters began the keeping of the watch. And if any did not awake, they poured water upon him, or else they shook [coals of] fire upon him, or else they cast him into the water at Thilapan or at Coapan.

Tlatica tlavilizti.

Injc muchivaia tlatica tlavilizti, in iquac ie titlaca in iohoalnepantla oacic, no tlapitzalo, ic teixitilo, ic pevaia in tlapializtli motenehoaia tlavitequjni, auh in aquin amo veliça atl ipan qujnoqujaia, anoço tletl ipil qujtzetzelovaia, anoço atlan contlaçaia vmpa tilapan, anoço coapan.

The Piercing of Ears.

X 796 The piercing of ears was also undertaken [because 782 of] the devil. Hence were ears bored. 785

Nenácazapotlaliztli.

In nenacazapotlaliztli no ic tlaiecalhujloia in Diablo injc nenacazcoionilo.

The Piercing of the [Lower] Lip.

In like manner the piercing of the [lower] lip: similarly, for the devil, was the boring of the [lower] lip endured.

Netezapotlaliztli.

I Çan no iuhquj in nenacazapotlaliztli çan no ic tlaiecalvilo in Diablo in netezapotlaliztli.

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

317 Obsidian must have had important economic value for the 439 Valley peoples, and since volcanic glass is portable and very 324 useful for its sharp cutting edge, it was widely traded to the tribes of nonvolcanic regions. Techniques were established early in the Middle Culture, and the art of polishing this stone was known to the Teotihuacan Toltecs, who utilized it as eyes for the idols of the Temple of Quetzalcoatl. Ceremonial [788] bloodletting called for a constant supply of thin blades (made by pressure flaking), some of which are exquisitely long and narrow. Yet scalpels of comparable fineness were made in Toltec and Mazapan times as well. Indeed, the principal [415] innovation of the Aztecs was in fashioning vases from obsidian, a formidable task, owing to its hardness.[8]

303 The making of mirrors called much ingenuity into play.
● 789 They are so rare that they must have been used solely for ritualistic magic. Blocks of obsidian were sometimes polished to produce an eerie and mysterious reflection. However, iron pyrites, burnished and shaped, were more common; and rarer examples had thin pyrite flakes laid in a mosaic and glued to a background of wood or shell. In another technique used on the coast the artisan detached a surface of pyrites in its matrix of slate, burnishing one side and carving [395] the other to fashion a mirror with a carved back. One example, at least, is known of a mirror of marcasite with its surface so ground as to produce a magnified reflection.[9]

324 Stone sculpture we shall consider more conveniently under art, but the mass production of dressed stone for building must have required patience and skill to accomplish. Stoneworking throughout Middle America was achieved without metal tools. Flaking and chipping for the hard stones, pecking and hammering for the softer ones, were the preliminary

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

were called *Quetzalcoatl-Totec-tlamacazqui and Quetzalcoatl-Tlaloc-tlamacazqui. The name Quetzalcoatl was given them perhaps as an honorific title in memory of the God of Civilization and Learning, who was the archetype of the priestly ideal. The second names refer to the gods of the respective cults, and the third word means priest. Ranking below these two officials was a third, Mexicatl-Teohuatzin, who, like a vicar-general, supervised general religious business in the city-state and conquered towns. Two assistants looked after the instruction in the schools for citizen-warriors and for priests, and other officials supervised the pulque ceremonies.[2]

Next in rank were the priests who were in charge of the worship, temple and ritual of each specific god or goddess and who, in the ceremonies, assumed the dress of the divinity, impersonating him on earth. They, in turn, had a host of assistants who were supplemented by aspirants to the priesthood, the bottom of the hierarchical scale. There seem to have been priestesses as well, and schools for their instruction were established in connection with certain temples. As might be expected as an accompaniment of a highly ritualized religion far above the comprehension of the masses, there was an active practice of magic carried on by male and female witch doctors. Undoubtedly many of these unsanctioned rites were rooted in the more primitive stages of the Aztec development; and in modern times, although the formal Aztec religion has been almost completely eradicated, the indigenous population continues many of the old magico-medical practices.

The priests, however, directed the intellectual life of the *Ksy-tz'al-co-atl-To'-tec-tla-mah-ca'z-kee.

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

continuance of their existence endowed the ritual with profound solemnity. The New Fire Ceremony was symbolized by the extinction of the old altar fire, which had burned perpetually for fifty-two years, and the kindling of a fresh one in token of the new grant of life.* (See Plate 29, top row.)

During the five useless days (nemontemi) of the final year the people let their fires go out and destroyed their household furniture. Fasting and lamentation were the order of the day while the populace awaited catastrophe. Pregnant women were shut up in granaries, lest they be changed into wild animals, and children were marched up and down and kept awake, for fear that sleep on that fatal evening would result in their turning into rats.

At sunset the priests, in solemn panoply, representatives of the whole array of the Aztec pantheon, ascended the Hill of the Star, anciently known as Huixachtecatl. This extinct volcanic crater rises abruptly from the Valley floor and is visible from almost every quarter of the Valley of Mexico. From the temple to its summit the priests anxiously scanned the heavens as the night wore on, awaiting the hour when a certain star or stars, Aldebaran or the Pleiades, reached the center of the heavens and gave the sign that their world would continue.

At the very moment when these stars passed the meridian the priests seized a wooden fire drill and kindled a new fire in the open breast of a victim freshly slain for the purpose. The populace—priests, chiefs and commoners—thrilled to a great happiness. Runners lit torches from the new fire and rekindled the altars in the temples of every town and hamlet, whence the people bore the flames to their hearths. Like fireflies the darting torchbearers sped through the night, bringing the promise of a new life to every man, woman and child.

X 796 Twentieth Chapter, which telleth of the feast and blood sacrifices which they made on the first day [805] [and] month, which was named, and which they called, Atl cualo or Quauitl eua.[1]

Quauitl eua: This day came, and when it was this [month], a feast was then celebrated for the Tlalocs.

[202] Everywhere on mountain tops, blood sacrifices[2] were made and sacrificial banners were hung. Blood sacrifices were made at Tepetzinco, or there in the very gulf of the lake at a place called Pantitlan.

● [799] At this place they left consecrated papers[3] and set up long poles called cuenuanztli, by means of which would come to pass greenness, sprouting, and growth.

[777 827] And there they took children, known as "human banners"[4]—those who had two cowlicks of hair and whose day signs were favorable. They were sought everywhere, and bought. It was said: "These are precious blood-offerings. [The rain gods] receive them with rejoicing; they wish for them; they are thus satisfied and given contentment." With them, the rains were sought; rain was asked.

And everywhere, in the houses, in each of the quarters where the young warriors were trained, and in each tribal temple, everywhere they erected the slender green poles; on them, they placed [202 314 289] white paper flags dotted with large and small drops of liquid rubber.[5]

Juic 28. capítulo, ytechpa tlatoa yn ilhuitl, yoan in nextlaoaliztli: in quichioaia, yn ipan vel ic cemilhuitl metztli; in qujtocaiotiaia, in qujtoaia atl caoalo anoço quauitl eua.

Quauitl eua, ynin ilhuitl quiçaia: auh yn iquac y, vncan ilhujqujztililoia in tlaloque:

nextlaoaloia, in noujan tepeticpac, yoã netetenhtiloia, onnextlaoaloia, in tepetzinco, anoço vmpa in vel aytic, ytocaiocan pantitla:

vmpa concaoaia in teteujtl, yoan vmpa conquetzaia quauitl, moteneoa cuenuantli, viujtlatztic, çan itech iectiuh yn icelica, yn itzmolinca, yzcallo.

Yoan vmpa qujmoncaoaia pipiltzitzinti, in moteneoaia tlacatetenhtli: ichoãtin in vntecuezcomeque, in qualli intonal: noujan temoloia, patiiotiloia: mitoaia, ca ichoantin vellaçonextlaoalti, vel qujnpaccacelia qujnnequj, ic vellamati, ic vellamachtilo, ynjc in ca qujiauhtlatlanjoa, quiiauhtlatlano.

Auh yn novian calpan, in techachan: yoan in tetelpuchcalco, in cacalpulco, noujian qujquetzaia, matlaquauhpitzaoac, tzonioquauitl, itech qujtlatlaliaia amateteujtl, vltica tlaulchipinilli, tlavlchachapaztli.

1. Sahagún, in the corresponding Spanish text, observes that Quauitlaua is the term used by the Mexicans. Cf. Manuel Orozco y Berra: Historia antigua y de la conquista de México (Mexico: Tipografía de Gonzalo A. Esteva, 1880), Vol. II, p. 36: "Xilomanaliztli,—Atlacahualco,—Cuahuitlehua,—Cihuailhuitl. Xilomanaliztli, ofrenda de ciñal ó plantas: nombre acaso por los de Tlaxcalla. Cuahuitlehua, quemaçon de los árboles: nombre peculiarmente á lugares fuera de México. Atlacahualco ó Atlacahualco, nombre admitido por los mexicanos; segun el P. Leon, derrotero de las aguas, y es la interpretación de todas que más nos satisface. Cihuailhuitl, fiesta de la mujer. El símbolo religioso en la imágen de Tlaloc y su árbol reverdecendo, con el agua entre las raices." Cf. also Francisco J. Clavijero: Historia antigua de' Messico (Mexico: Editorial Porrúa, S. A., 1945), Vol. II, pp. 401-2: ". . . el primer mes, cuyo nombre Atlahualco o Atlacahualco, significa la cuenca del agua, pues en el mes de marzo crecen las lluvias del invierno en los países septentrionales, en donde tuvo origen el calendario mexicano o azteca. Lo llamaban también Quauhitlehua, lo que significa la vegetación de los árboles, que se verifica en este tiempo en los países fríos. Los llamaban también a este mes Xilomanaliztli, esto es, relación de las sementeras de maíz, porque en él ejecutaban el mes dicho las del año corrido, para ayudar la siembra que por este tiempo comenzaban a hacer en los lugares cálidos."

Angel María Garibay K. in "Relación breve de las fiestas de los dioses, Fray Bernardino de Sahagún" (Tlalocan, Vol. II), p. 291, translates cuahuitl ehua ni pahi ni ehua: Eduard Seler, in Einige Kapitel aus dem Geschichtswerk des Fray Bernardino de Sahagún über die Azteken, verfasst, übersetzt (Cuauhtlehua Seler-Sachs, Walter Lehmann, Walter Krickeberg, eds.; Stuttgart: Stecker und Schroeder, 1927), Vol. I, p. 23, translates the name as ein Baume erbeben sich (machen sich auf dem Weg).

2. Nextlaoaloa. Seler rather consistently renders forms of this word in terms of payment of a debt rather than of a sacrifice. Cf. ixtlaua in Alonso de Molina: Vocabulario de la lengua mexicana (Jesús Piedrasanta, ed.; Leipzig: B. G. Teubner, 1880), and in Rémi Simeon: Dictionnaire de la langue nahuatl ou mexicaine (Paris: Imprimerie Nationale, 1885). In Collected Works (Cambridge, Mass.: Carnegie Institution of Washington, 1909), Vol. II, Pt. 4, p. 13, Seler says: "The child sacrifices to the rain god were called nextlaoali 'the debt paid.'"

3. Garibay (op. cit., p. 292) translates teteujtl as tres sagrados.

4. In loc. cit., Garibay renders tlacatetenhtli as tres hombres and makes it clear (Nahuatl summary No. 4) that the term refers to the children who died. Seler (Einige Kapitel, p. 95) refers to them as blutenden Opferpapiere (Opferpapiere in blutenden?). They may actually have been paper amulets represented by a representation of a human head, and have symbolized the children who died. See Illustration (Seler: op. cit., p. 60) from the Bibliotheca del Palacio MS.

5. See Note 3. Sahagún, in the corresponding Spanish text, refers to "unos papeles, llenos de gotas de ulli o los quales papeles llamamos amatenutli." Tlaulchachapaztli: cf. ulchachapaztli, in Molina (op. cit.).

All went to be bathed. They went sounding trumpets; they went blowing shell trumpets; they beat clipper discs[10] with pine [hammers].

And all the priests carried on their backs their tobacco bags,[11] and their strings of magney fiber about the neck, from which went hanging the little bags, which were filled with dyed, powdered tobacco. And the fire priest went ahead of them, taking his incense burner and his magney thorn. And, with it, he carried his incense bag.

And leading them went a man, an old priest. He went bearing on his shoulders the mist rattle board, called also the sorcerers' staff, which was thick, broad, very wide, and long—very long. And it rattled; he went along rattling it.

No one else remained at the priests' dwelling; the house was all empty, deserted, tenantless.

And only four stayed there—singers, who sat singing, beating the drum, rattling the turtle shell rattle and the gourd rattle, and blowing the shell trumpet. They sat playing the shell trumpet.

And when they had reached the water's edge, the priests' bathing place, where, at the cardinal points, were the mist houses, thereafter all threw themselves down and seated themselves, trembling, shivering, quaking with cold, their teeth chattering.

Hereupon spoke the old man called the old precious stone priest; he said:

"[Behold] the place where the serpents are writhful, where the water-gnats buzz, the place where the ducks alight, where the white reeds rustle."

When he had thus spoken, thereupon all plunged into the water; they churned it up—beating the water with their hands and with their feet, crying out. Speaking heavenly, they mimicked all the birds.

Some spoke like ducks, babbling; some mimicked wading birds, speaking like them; some imitated water ravens, talking like them; some talked like [large] herons, some like kingfishers, talked like cranes.[12]

Where they bathed, there in their midst were

Vilos, cuauvemaxic, tlapanalotiuh, quipizaxnj, in xocuitl, cohcoxilac chikiliuh.

Auh in machiotin tlamacazqueq, quinnamaxa yn imixiocuach, yxnecacocoqui, intlamecacocoqui, inch pipilcatiuh yn imixiocuach, ontecentiuh yiaquelli: yoan quinicacatiuh in tlenamacac, ylcmauh ictiuh, yoan yuixc ictiuh: yoan itlan cana icopalxiquipil.

Auh ce tlacatl quacuilli tziacatiuh, quiquiechpanotiuh, aiochicaoztli, no iuoca naualquauxjl, panoac, patlactic, patlacpol: yoan vijac, vitlatztic, yoan cacaleca, quicacalaztiuh aocac ce onmocaoli calmecac, cenjchictiuh, centlaoquetza, cicitiuetti in calmecac.

Auh çan nauhxiuin in vmpa onmocaoa cujcanjnac, cujcatoque, teponaçotoque, aiochiuhtoque, aiocachotoque; quiqatztoque in quiquijtzli, quiquiçotoque.

Auh yn oncito atenco, yn jaoacalizin tlamacazqueq: nauhcampa in mauca yn aiouhcalli, njman ic ic nêtenco, netlalilo, tlatzitzica, tlaviujoca, tlacaccuechca, netlamatzilitzcalo:

in ic iuhquj njman ic tlatoa, in vene iuoca chalchiuhquaquijlli: quitoa.

Cozti ycomocaiii, amoiotl ycaocaxian, atapalcatl ynechiccanaoaa, aztapilcuechtetlacaxian:

yn ocoyjto y, njman ic ic onnetipeualoa ada, tlachachaquaztinemj, yn adan, tlamaujtochinemj, tlacaxiujtocinemj, atlacaxiuiocinemj, tlatzitinemj, ycaocatinemj, quiqatlaichcalhuja yn iaquichin xocone:

cuqui cannahtlaoa, tlacacauja, coçtzin quiqatlaichcalhuja, in pilquizti, pipiztlaoa: coquipiaia quiqatlaichcalhuja, yn atacolone, acacolaoa: ocquiqatlli aztalaoa, coquipiaia xnoquequlaoa, cequja tacujcoiolaoa:

yn vacan mokinia yn, tlacquanala mauca in cuen-

10. CHIMAL: cf. Gabriel Saldívar: Historia de la cerámica en México (México: Editorial "Cultura," 1934), p. 21: cabezadas; escudillas (cazuelas)(?).

11. "Todos llevaban a cuestas, como adoquiera anduvo con esos cerdiciones de cabeza, con unos bardos al cuello; y de esos colgaban, como unos de papel pintados, cuidados con los cuernos colgaban, que llamaban pinpinxoli; y en aquellos colgaban llamaba unos cabezas de barro, hechos a la manera de [illegible] de cuerno, que eran llamados pinpinxoli, que era colgadizado con tinta, y con polvos de color [illegible] que eran llamados pinol, que es como [illegible] de cuerno" (translation by Spanish text).

Clark (op. cit., Vol. I, p. 37n.) writes: "Amoxoli: cord [illegible], pull tobacco. The Mexicans had these bands in [illegible] the pull or Mexicanos [illegible] fabric; the quadrangular [illegible] pull tobacco, or Mexicanos [illegible] L.; and pinol: pulling cords, pull tobacco; or Mexicanos [illegible] L.; [illegible] or cord or charcoal in pulling called pinpinxoli; pull tobacco, quadr., pinol, or cordoled or cigars or pinpinxoli; pinol cordoles; pill tobacco. When [illegible] tobacco was [illegible] cordoled, pinpinxoli, pinolis, barbs, and charcoal." Cf. also ibid., Vol. II, p. 136.

12. These birds are described in Lib. XI, cap. [illegible] 3 of Sahagún. Cf. Rubiales op. cit., Vol. III, pp. 168-81. Sahagún defines these mapachtli or (probably) green-winged teal; the Aztecs also spoke of herons; kingfishers (xoquiquiri) and cranes (Grulla Angel, p. 118, [illegible] 3-5).

S: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

821
[776]

Clouds

When [clouds] billowed and formed thunderheads, and settled and hung about the mountain tops, it was said: "The Tlalocs are already coming. Now it will rain. Now the masters of the rain will sprinkle water."

Hail

It was formed and took shape when very white clouds settled on mountain tops. It was said: "Now it will hail; now our food will be hailed out."

And then did hail fall, making a din as of rattling, beating one about the head, pelting one [as if] with stones. Then, truly, died and were despoiled our crops. For some distance, it flattened on the ground and spread birds over the surface of the water. At that time the water dwellers went gathering for themselves; they brought in their catch.

821
789

And that it might not hail, that they might not be hailed upon, and the young maize plants might not be damaged by hail, then the [sorcerers who] cast away hail and rain drove and headed it off. They removed it from the waters [of the lake]; they showed it the way and took it [hence]. Or else they cast it forth into the deserted places, the uncultivated lands where there were no crops, no one lived, and nothing existed; poverty-ridden lands—barren lands where nothing grew, nothing issued: the land was void. It was only an abandoned place; the [very] stones were dry.

Mist

In iconc tepetlcpac mohoni, momohoca, motlatlalia, mopilon: mimoia, ca ic uitze in tlalocpc, ic quimoia, ic pizauiquc in aiaqui.

Tecuitl

Ic machiua, ic noci: in iconc tepetlcpac motlatlalia mistli, ofca iuuc: mimo, ca ic tecuitz, ic tecuitlac in tonacatl.

Auh ytic ueuei tecuitl, iuhquin tlacacalaca, tepacacalanja, tomomotla: vel ic miqui, ic ipolini, ic tonacamiqui, cemaxi quimana, atlaco quimana in tlaxmac. Auh vel oncan mopiaqui, quin mopiaqui, tonacatlama, in atlaca.

Auh inic amo tecuiz, inic amo tecuilac, inic amo tecuitmiquiz tectli: nimao quinopeua, quipeuia, in tecuitlatzqui, in quiouhtlatzqui atlanja quiquanja, quitlachichia, quimica: anoço vmpa quitlaça in çacatla, çacatl-oacan, in atlc iuuchitlaxin, atlc iuonoia, atlc onoc, atlc iuonoia, atlc oxotoc, atlc iquiçaill, atlc quintoc, atlc onuetzinoc: çan iuhcatla, tetl onoacca.

8: Barlow E-4 (no date)1949 NU7 Aztec NU7

but their language is different. They used to practice curses and sorcery very much." The Ocuiltec language is said by Ingeniero Weitlaner, who rediscovered it, to be related to Matlatzinca and Otomí,[a] spoken near by. Although the Ocuiltec language is supposed to be limited today to the village of Ocuilan and its environs, the writer has found a mysterious reference to it in a sixteenth-century document from the north of modern Hidalgo State.[b]

Provincial borders in 1519.—In the final native period the province of Ocuilan, approximating a half-moon resting on its back, was bordered on the northwest by Tuluca, and on the northeast by Quahuacan and the Valley of Mexico. To the east lay Quauhnahuac, and to the south the small province of Malinalco and more sizable Tlachco. Ocuilan thrust out westward into the enemy lands of the Tarascans; Temazcaltepec and Zoltepec are spoken of as situated on the Tarascan frontier.

TRIBUTE

Tribute of the whole province.—According to the Matricula and Mendocino pages, Ocuilan gave the following tribute:

CLOTHING

800 bundles of richly decorated little mantles of henequen
400 bundles of little cotton mantles decorated with sea shells
400 bundles of little cotton mantles
21 warriors' costumes with shields (one of the headdresses having the quetzalpatzactli form, and the rest Huaxteca)*

FOOD

4 wooden cribs, 1 each of maize, beans, huauhtli, and chian*
2,000 vessels of white salt

Tribute of the component towns.—Temazcaltepec alone gave military help (not more than twenty men); two or three bundles of the above-mentioned mantles of henequen, intoxicating mushrooms (teonacatl), kindling, and ink made from sap—all this "every time they were asked."[c] No data are available on the tribute of other component towns individually.

[a] Weitlaner, "Beitrag zur Sprache der Ocuiltecs," El México Antiguo (1939), 4: 297–328.

[b] In Tlachinolicpac, FNE, 3: 130.

[c] FNE, 7: 20: "Tributavanle cada vez que se lo pedian dos y tres cargas de mantas de henequen, que se hace de un arbol que se llama maguei, y davan cargas con que senbo-

17: Sahagun M-5 (1529-1590) 1957 NU7 Aztec NU7

Twelfth Chapter, which telleth of still other houses. Some were only indifferent and some were in no way good.

The time of the day sign Four Wind was said to be good and bad. For then were slain those called doers of evil, the adulterers. They placed their heads in a mortar and choked, strangled, or hanged them, or struck them on the back of the head, or crushed their skulls under a rock. Only at night were they killed; when it dawned, and they were already blasted, they cast them each into the water. Likewise then died some of the captives. Through them, so it was said, Moctezuma received new life (as hath been told) on [the day sign] One Rain, when [the Goddesses] descended. And this was also the time that the [aforementioned] demons and sorceress destroyed people. And since there was fear on this day sign, Four Wind, everywhere they put cardoon[1] into the smoke openings [of the houses]. They stuffed and crammed it in. Thereby, so it was said, they frightened them away.

But the merchants,[2] those known as distinguished traders[3] and vanguard merchants,[4] who were rich, greatly esteemed and honored this [day sign]. For then they laid out in the sun[5] all the precious things which they had hidden away — the green stone, the objects made of [ordinary] green stone and resplendent green stone; the round ones, round like

Injc mottaccitomoztac capitulo: itechpa tlatoa, in oc cequj calli, cequj çan tlanepantla ca, cequj vel njman amo qualli. 787X

In ipan nauhecatl tonalli, mjtoa qualli, ioan amo qualli, ca vncan mjctiloia, qujnquechmecanjaia, qujnquechzonviaia, qujnmecanjaia, qujnpilloa, qujncuexcochvivitequj, qujnquatepipitzinja, in motenecoa tlaçotchiuhque, in tetlaxinque, çan ioan in mjctiloia, in oallavi ie tlacujtlapoçaua, atlan qujmonmamaizvi. No ioan cequjn vncan mjquja in mamalti, iuh mjtoa: ca ichoan inca motcaltiaia in Motecuçoma (in iuh omoteneuh) ipan oc qujauitl in vncan temoa: auh ie no vncan tepopolouia, in omoteneuhque tlatlacatecuhlo, in nanaoalti, auh injc imacaxaia, in ipan in tonalli nauecatl in tlecaltco noujian canqujaia, in tlacatecuhlozocovitztli, qujpopotzaqujaia, qujcacacatztaxia: iuh mjtoa ca ic qujnpeviaia. 681 684 727 761 789 824

Auh in ichoantin pochteca, in motenecoa: acxoteca, in oztomeca, in motlacamati, iê qujvetmatia, qujmavizztiliaia, ca vncan qujzotonjaia, in iaquich tlaçotli qujtlatiaia, in chalchiujtl, in chalchiuhtli, in quetzalchalchiuhtli, in ololiuhqui, in tomaric, in acatic, in ie iaquich cozcatl, in omocapetlatl, in patlaoac, in pitzaoac, xiujtl: auh in jaquich nepapan ivitl, in quetzalli 441 527 556

1. Xocotzintli. — Francisco J. Santamaría: Diccionario general de americanismos (México: Editorial Pedro Robredo, 1942), Vol. II, p. 254: Jocotzin — Bromelia pinguin L. "En México, nombre vulgar de una planta de las regiones tropicales, que crece como un metro de altura y cuya hoja extendiéndose a lo de la pita. . . . propiedad antacuerdolitica."

2. Tlatlacatecolo also as "man of Pochtlan," a barrio of Tenochtitlan occupied by merchants, whose gods were Tlipan, Mamalitzcalco, Xilonen, Tlaloc, Xiloc, Yopicatzinco, Cuauhtlahuac, Chicomecoatl, Xochiquetzal, Tlazoteotl (Alfonso Morales, op. cit., p. 59). See also Alfonso Caso: Instituciones indígenas precortesianas (México: Instituto Nacional Indigenista, 1950), pp. 23-24, for a résumé of the social and economic importance of the pochteca.

3. Acxoteca or pochtecatlahtoani, "mayor o principal entre los mercaderes . . . tanto como el dichoteca que es gobernador de los mercaderes, y entre los mercaderes . . . es antiguamente el que es mayor principal, gobernador, o señor, o que es como padre y maestro de todos los mercaderes" (Sahagún, Codex ed., X, 16, 5).

Jiménez, op. cit., p. 248 (citing Seler, Ges. Ab., II, 69): "eine eidechsenähnliche Fabelgestalt oder eidechsenähnlich der Kopf eine Maske gelegentlich Lendenschurz Chalco." Acxoteca was a merchant's barrio in Tenochtitlan; gods were Nanahuatzin, Xochiquetzal, Xantocatl, Cuchimilco, Tlazoteotl, Macuilxochitl, Chalchiuhtlicue (Morales, loc. cit.).

4. Cf. Anderson and Dibble, op. cit., Book I, "The Gods," p. 18 and n. 5. Jiménez, op. cit., p. 308, citing Seler, Ges. Ab., II, 1070: "Menschen oder deren Gottheiten . . . . der auf Wanderschaft gehende Mann und Marktjänder vereinigt sich der auf andere Reisen gehende Gewerbetreiben, auch Kaufleute i. A."

5. Ibid., p. 148.

825 235 And when it appeared that indeed all the chicks fell upon their backs so that they died,[27] upon this they said: "They died of filth; perchance someone came to go in among them; or looked upon them; or indeed it was the householder who slew them by filth." Because of this, they believed, indeed all the turkeys had fallen upon their backs so that they died.

Auh injc neci çan muchintin aaquetztiuj injc mjquj totolpipil, ic quitoa: ca tlaçolmjquj: aço aca inpan ocalaquico, anoço oquimjtlac, anoço aca vel chane in oquintlaçolmjcti: ic quimatia, in çan muchin aaquetztivi totolme, injc mjquj.

825 235 837 It was said that also the same befell those who were married. If perchance somewhere one's spouse, whether woman or man, fell into adultery, they then believed that those which had fallen upon their backs or stumbled over, indeed accused him.

Quil no ith inpan muchiua in namjqueque: in aço cana quitlaxima inamjc, in aço cioatl, anoço tequichtin: injc quimati; çan quipiqui in aaquetztivetti, anoce cana motlavizequj.

286 Twenty-fifth Chapter, which telleth of her who wove with yarn.

Injc cempoalli onmacuilli capitulo, ytechpa tlatia: in icpatl quiquiti.

When [a woman] wove with yarn perhaps a mantle, or a shift, or a skirt, which came out awry, unevenly disposed, with crooked edges, they said and it was thought that the weaver of the mantle or shift was not generous. Just like a crooked seam, perverse [would she be]; not generous.[28]

In jcpatl, in aço tilmatli, anoço vipilli, anoço cueitl: in jquac quiquiti in chicopetilivi, in chicoviaquixtiuh, in tennecuiliuhtiuh, quitonia: quilmach amo tlacaiollo yn tilmaoa, yn vipilli: çan coeciuhquj, çan tlatlaveliloc: amo tlacaiollo.

821 Twenty-sixth Chapter, which telleth of hail.

Injc cempoalli on chiquacen capitulo, ytechpa tlatia in tecivitl.

When it rained, and much hail fell, one who there [had] his maize, chili, bean, or chia field scattered ashes from the hearth out of the entrance into the courtyard. It was said that thus his maize field would not be hailed out; it was thought that thus the hail would disappear.

In jquac quiavi, in cenca tecivi: in aquin vnca imjl, anoço ychilcuen, anoço yiecuen, ychian: tleconextli quiiaoac quiioaltepeoa, itvalco: quilmach yc amo tecivilocz in jmjl, quil ic polini in tecivitl.

754 776 789 Twenty-seventh Chapter, which telleth of sorcerers.

Injc cempoalli on chicome capitulo, yntechpa tlatoa in tlatlavipuchti.

At night walked demons—perchance wizards and sorcerers—where they harmed one in one's home. When the householders saw them, when perhaps some [demon] so [would] harm them, they then placed an obsidian knife in water, behind the door, or in the courtyard. They laid it down at night. They said and it was believed that there the demons and sorcerers would look at their reflections when they would harm one, or there would be death, or sickness would come upon the people.

In iocalitica nemj tlatlacatecuilo: aço nanaoalti, tlavipuchtin in canin onnepoloa in tachan: in oquimjtlaque in aço itla ic quinpoloa in chanoque: niman ytlan costeca yztli puertatitlan, anoço iocalco quimana in iocalitica, quitonia: quilmach vncan onmotencavia in tlatlacatecuilo, yn tlavipuchtin in tepoloa: aço mjcoac, anoce cocolizzli tepan muchioac.

27. Corresponding Spanish text: "los pollos se cayan muertos, los pusos arriba: y esto, llamaua diçiendo:"

28. Corresponding Spanish text: "no parecia, no que li tale, no parecia biaruanda.". Cuaresma, in Sahagun, op. cit., la se ruaba o falso ruaua.

754
776
789

At once they fled; nevermore would they come to harm one when they had seen the obsidian knife resting in the water.

Ic ujman choloa, aiocmo cẹpẹa tepolotivi: in jquac oquitzaque itztli, atlan onoc.

Twenty-eighth Chapter, which telleth of the gnawed leavings of a mouse.

825

Injc cempoalli on chicuei capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa in qujmjchin ytentlacaoal.

Whatsoever a mouse had gnawed none might eat. It was said that he who ate what a mouse had left would be falsely accused. For it was said that the mouse came to steal it; he came to eat it in stealth. Wherefore no one might eat gnawed leavings of a mouse. Likewise it was said of it that he who ate the gnawed leavings of a mouse would be accused falsely of some sort of story or of that which might be missing.[29]

In qujmjchin in çaço tlein qujqua: aiac vel qujqualiaia, qujlmach in aquin qujqualia yn q'caos qujmjchin, itech tlatlamjz, ca mjtoa: oqujchtequjco in qujmjchin, oqujchtacaqua. Ipampa y, in aiac vel qujqualiaia in itentlacaoal qujmjchin. No yuh ipan mjtoz: in aquin qujqua itentlacaoal qujmjchin, itech tlatlamjz, in çaço tlein tlatolli, anoço in tlein poliviz.

Twenty-ninth Chapter, which telleth of nails.

826
776

Injc cempoalli on chicunavi capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa in jxtirl.

It was said that, when nails were pared, they cast them into the water. It was thought that this was because the water dog[30] would make good [nails] grow out—not broken; they would be sound. For when it drew someone into the water, [the water-dog] tore away his nails and eyes.

Qujlmach in tozi, in jquac motenequja, atlan contepeoaia, qujlmach ipampa: in ichcatl aviztozi, qualli quixoaltiz: amo papatzaoaz, qualli yez. Ipampa: in jquac aquin quilaquiaia, quiquixtiliaia in jxti, ioan ixtololo.

Thirtieth Chapter, which telleth of sneezing.

827

Injc cempoalli onnamatlactli capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa in acucholiztli.

When someone sneezed, they said, in times past: "Someone speaketh of me; someone saith well of me." Or they said: "Someone speaketh ill of me." Or they said: "Some people discuss me." It was thought that they made it evident, and knew, when they sneezed, that someone far away mentioned them.

In jquac aca acuchoa, quitoaia in ie vecauh: aquin nechitoa, aquin nechteneoa: anoce quitoaia: aquin nechicoitoa, anoçe quitoa: aquiquc in noca mononotza. Quil ichcatl quinecacioiaia, ichcatl ic quimatia: in jquac acuchoa, in aca canaça veca quinteneoa.

Thirty-first Chapter, which telleth of small children.

853

Injc cempoalli onnamatlactli on capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa in pipiltotoni.

When small children still lay in the cradle, and something was eaten or drunk,[31] first they placed it upon [their] foreheads.[32] It was said that in this way [the child] would not hiccough or be affected by what he ate or drank.

In ichcantin in pipiltotoni: in jquac yn oc coçoico anoque: in jquac tlaquilo, anoço itla mjx, achto ijxquac contlaliaia, quilmach ic amo tuitiacoaz, amo motolinjz in tlein moqua, anoço mj.

29. Corresponding Spanish text: "de harto, o de sababoria, o de cosa cierta."

30. Axolotl: Seler, in Collected Works, Vol. IV, 2, 21, refers to it as a aquatical water animal or spirit "which drew men down into the water and ate off the nails and hair of immersed men" (citing Sahagún, XI, cap. 4, 12, and V, App., cap. 29). Santamarina, op. cit., Vol. I, p. 66 (Axolotes), calls it ajolote o perro del agua (Lastra Salinas).

31. Corresponding Spanish text: "quando comejan, o beuian en presencia de algun niño."

32. Ibid.: "en la frente."

776 cape-like over-garment. She carried a turquoise-colored weaving-stick.

Seventh Chapter: here is named the goddess called Seven Snake[30] (Chicome coatl).

Chicome coatl—this one represented [and] had in her charge our food,[30] men's livelihoods of whatever sort; their food and drink.

And in this manner was she adorned: her face was painted with red ochre; she had a paper headdress; she wore a shirt [ornamented with] water-flowers[31] and a skirt [ornamented with] water-flowers; also she had foam-sandals;[32] she carried a sun flower shield, a sun shield.

Jnic chicome capitulo: vncan momoua, yn ciouatl: yn jtoca, chicome coatl.

Chicome coatl: ichouol ipan mjtoaia, qujmjtipletiaia, in tonacaiotl: yoan in çaço tlein yuanca, yiolca macuoalli, yujua, yuquale.

Auh yuju ynnochichiouale catca; itilauhxacala, amacale, axochiuipile, axochiacuaie, no poçulcaque, tonalchimale, tonatiuhchimale.

Eighth Chapter: here is named the goddess called the Mother of the Gods (Teteu innan), who is also named Heart of the Earth (Tlalli yiollo) and Our Grandmother (Toci).

She was the mother of the gods. Her devotees were [759] physicians, leeches, those who cured sickness of the intestines, those who purged people, [and] eye-doctors.

Also women, midwives, these who brought about abortions, who read the future, who cast auguries by looking upon water or by casting grains of corn, who read fortunes by use of knotted cords, who cured sickness by removing stones or obsidian knives from the body, who removed worms from the teeth, who removed worms from the eyes.[33] [791]

Likewise owners of sweat-houses prayed to her; wherefore they caused her image to be placed in the front of the sweat-house. They called her "Grandmother of the Baths."

776 And when there was a feast, when it was time for the 796 slaying, the physicians were good to her who impersonated Teteu innan, that she might not weep [nor] whine. They solaced her; they flattered her; they satisfied her caprices; they amused her. They wished her not to weep. They bid [her fate] from her;[34] they made merry with one another about slaughter; they battled; they made war; they cried war-cries as if in battle. There was an array of warriors; insignia were given [and] gifts; the valiant soldiers, adorned with mantles, painted with white chalk, adorned with feathers, surrounded her and took her up.

And when she who was the likeness [of the goddess] was slain, then a man put on her skin as a shirt, and stood between two of his Huastecs,[35] who accompanied him on either side.

Jnic chicuei, capitulo: vncã momoua, yn ciouatl, yn jtoca: Teteu jnna: no momoaiotia, Tlalli yiollo, yuan Toçi.

Jnnã catca yn teteu, qujmomotitiaja, in titici, in teitemjnque, teixinanque, teilanequjlique, teixpatique.

Auh yn cioa, temjnoijtique, tepillalilique, tetlatlaxilique, tlapeuhque, atlan teitanj, tlaolchaiauhque, mecatlapouhque, tetlacujoujlique, tetlanocujlanque, teixocujlanque.

No ichouantin qujtlatlauhtiaia, in temazcalaque; ypampa y, quitlalilaia yn jxipda, in temazcalixquac, qujtocaiotiaia, temazcalteci.

Auh yn jquac, in ic ilhuiqujxtilloia, in ic inijquixequippa: in ichoantin titici, yn jxipda catca teteu ynna, qujtlaoculpopoloaia, amo vel chocaia, quetelequjxtiaia, qujtlanemectiaia, qujtlaxemequjltiaia, qujcocelaia, haqujchoctlanja, qujtlatlahtitiaia, mamjquinquequeloaia, quinecalilitiaia, qujiacchioeia, qujtlacaoachilitia, cuicujtia, tlauimeztiloia, netlauimacaia, netlauhtiloia: in quinjliuhca muchioaia in tiiacaua, ic quintiçaujaia, ic quipopotonjeia, quimotacujlitiuja, ic panj moquetzaia.

Auh yn jquac omujc, yn jxipda: ujmoa ce tlacatl omoquijaia, yn jxoaia, yuaquantla oelmoquetzaia, vmentin ycuaua, quijujcaia, quitzatzacutiuja:

29. See Plate 29, which explains the name.

30. Since Chicome coatl was goddess of maize, this section may refer to the various uses of maize, which was basic to Mexican civilization.

31. Cf. Eduard Seler, Gesammelte Abhandlungen, Vol. II, p. 446.

32. Although Seler (op. cit., p. 446) uses the term "foam," he cites Sahagún as referring to flowers. Illustrations show the gods wearing, in fact, feathered sandals.

33. Sahagún describes these words in detail. See Angel María Garibay K: "Paralipómenos de Sahagún," in Tlalocan, Vol. II, No. 3 (1947), pp. 235-54.

34. Cf. also Sahagún, op. cit., Vol. I, pp. 100, 176.

35. Seler, Einige Kapitel, p. 6. Cf. also Sahagún, op. cit., p. 178, referring to the Toçi festival: "Iban delante de ella aquellos que devotos que se llaman huastecos."

Eighth Chapter, in which is told how Moctezuma sent the magicians,[1] wizards,[2] and soothsayers[3] so that they might do something to the Spaniards.

Then Moctezuma sent emissaries. He dispatched various evil men — soothsayers and magicians. And he sent the constables, hardy [warriors], chieftains, to purvey [to the Spaniards] all they might need of food: turkeys, eggs, white tortillas, and all they might ask for as well as whatsoever might satisfy their hearts' desire. They were to watch them well. He sent captives, so that they might be prepared if perchance [the Spaniards] would drink their blood. And just so did the messengers do.

And when [the Spaniards] beheld this, their stomachs turned. They spat; they blinked; they shut their eyes and shook their heads. For the food, which they had sprinkled and spattered with blood, sickened and revolted them. For strongly did it reek of blood.

And thus had Moctezuma provided, for he thought them gods; he took them for gods; he paid them reverence as gods. For they were called and named "gods come from the heavens." And the black ones were said to be black gods.

Later they ate white tortillas, grains of maize, eggs, turkeys, and all manner of fruit — sapotas,[4] red sapotas,[5] yellow sapotas,[6] black sapotas,[7] sweet pota-

Injc chicuel capítulo: vncan mjtos in quenjn ie-hoatl motecuçoma, qujmjtos in nanaoalti in tlatlacateculo, in tetlachivianjme, injc itla impan qujchiouzque in Españoles.

Niman iquac tlaios in Motecuçoma in qujmjtos mocheoantin in atlaca, in tlaciuhque, in nanaoalti: yoan qujmjtoi in achcacauhti, chicaoaque, in tiacaoã in jpan tlatozque in jxquich intech monequjz in qualonj in totoli in totoltetl, in jztac tlaxcalli: yoã in tlein qujtlanjzque, yoan injc ça oc vel pachiviz in iniollo, vel qujmjttazque, qujmjtos in mamalti, ic monemachti, cujx qujzque in jmerço: auh iuh qujchiuhque in titlanti.

Auh in jquac oquittaque: cenca motlaeltique, chichicha, ixtetenmotzolos, ihicopi, motzontecõvivixos: auh in tlaqualli eztica catzelhujque, queezvique, cenca invic eoac, qujntlaelti: ichica ca cenca xoqujiac in eztli.

Auh injc iuh qujchiuh motecuçoma, ca qujnteuma, teteu impan qujnma qujnteutocac: ic notzaloque, ic tocaiotiloque, teteu illujcac vitze: auh in tiltique teucacatzacti mjtoque, qujn iehoatl qujquaque iztac tlaxcalli, tlatzincujtl, totoltetl, totoli, auh in ie izquich xochiqualli, quauhtzaputl, teçontzaputl, atztzaputl, totolcujtlatzaputl,

1. Guibay, in "Paralipómenos de Sahagún," Tlalocan, II, 2 (1948), p. 170, refers to the "'duplicadas de la persona' o al 'desdoblamiento'" as regard to nenauli. The term may be related etymologically to nani (4) — a quadruple personality, an archaic verb nenauli, nenaole (to feel or disembodiment, as in magic sticks), or Maya-Quiché na, nau, naua (wisdom, science, magic). Guibay favors the second possibility (nenauli, nenaole).

2. Tlatlacateculo: concerning the term desnaturalizado, Guibay refers to an arte de hombre perniciosa, and quotes Sahagún's phrase in Vol. III (Rubredo ed.), p. 33 — "viene pacto con el demonio" (desnaturalizado) (ibid., p. 174). In op. cit., Tlalocan, I, 4 (1944), p. 305, he refers to desnaturalizado as "brujo," "mago," "hombre que perjudica a la gente, hombre pernicioso"; "presagiaban y pronosticaban la muerte." There is a discussion of the etymology of the term.

3. Tlatelolqui: we have previously used the term "soothsayer." In op. cit., Tlalocan, II, 2 (1948), Guibay, noting that Molina translates the term as astrólogo, states: "Le cabe culto, parece denotar fundamento matemático-religioso," and notes the relationship of the term to tetelolmapoli, one who prevents hail from falling. He cites La publicidad del culto de Tezcatlipoca, II, p. 464.

4. Quauhtzaputl: sapota (Lucuma obovata HBK.) in Francisco Hernández: Historia de las plantas de Nueva España (México: Imprenta Universitaria, 1946), I, p. 274; zapote or zaputl (generic name), according to Francisco J. Santamarina: Diccionario general de americanismos (México: Editorial Pedro Robredo, 1942), III, p. 314 — Lucuma zapotensis, L. hemphillii, Achras zapotensis, A. sapota. Cf. also Sahagún (Rubredo ed.), III, p. 225.

5. Tzontzaputl: zapote (Lucuma zapotensis Gaertn.), zapotenhuevo (Sarcoporia, op. cit., pp. 314-316). In Bernardino de Sahagún: Historia general de las cosas de la Nueva-España (D. Joaquín and José Rivera, eds.; Paris: C. Maurin, 1880), p. 733, n. 2, this explanation appears: "Les premiers Espagnoles d'Amérique confondirent [with various sapotas] le fruit beaucoup plus gros du tzontzaputl ou lucuma zapotensis, de la famille des sapotes, qu'ils appellent aujourd'hui zapote. C'est probablement le même fruit que les Américains connaissent sous le nom de tzontzaputl." See also Sahagún (Rubredo ed.), III, p. 225.

6. Atztzaputl: probably the same as atzaputl. In Hernández, op. cit., I, pp. 267-268, this is Lucuma salicifolia Kunth. It is also identified by Santamarina, loc. cit., as Lucuma salicifolia — cuzte (zapotl or zapotillo). In Sahagún (Rubredo ed.), III, p. 334, it is identified as zapote amarillo — tecpanca (zapotl). The atztzaputl (yellow sapota) is now generally known as zapote borracho (personal communication, Rafael Garcia Granados).

7. Tlatlacotzaputl: sapote prieto (Diospyros ebenaster Retz — ebenaster), in Sahagún, loc. cit.

.7: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1955 NU7 Aztec NU7

Thirteenth Chapter. Here is related how Moctezuma sent still other soothsayers in order that they might cast a spell over the Spaniards,[1] and what befell them on the way.

And another company of messengers, who were soothsayers and magicians, and fire priests, also went and made their way to contend with them. But they could do nothing. They could not cast a spell over them; no more could they contend against and exert power over them. No longer could they succeed.

For a drunkard came along the way. They went up against him and stopped, stunned. They beheld him as one from Chalco, for so was he arrayed. He was dressed as a man from Chalco; he acted as a Chalcan. Like one besotted, he bore himself and acted like one who is drunk. With eight grass ropes was he bound about the chest.[2] He accosted them, having come ahead of the outposts of the Spaniards.[3]

And he rose-up against them and said: "What do you come to do here again? What do you now wish? What would Moctezuma yet wish to do? Hath he perchance now come to his senses? Is he now filled with a great fear? For he hath committed a fault. He hath abandoned the common folk; he hath destroyed men. People have been struck upon the head; they have been bound [in wrappings for the dead]. He hath laughed at and deceived them!"

And when they had thus seen this, when they had heard his words, to no purpose did they give him attention, praying humbly to him and quickly setting up his abode — his earth pyramid and his straw bed. But he would not then look at it; vain was its erection. To no purpose had they made the earth pyramid.

Just as if they had plunged him into his rage, he presently chid and abused them, and spoke harshly.

Injc matlactli omei capítulo vncã mjtoa in quenjn Motecuçoma: qujmjoa oc cequjntin tetlachivianjme injc qujtlachivizquja Espanoles yoan in tlein vtlica impan muchiuh.

Auh ic no centlamantique titlanti: ichoan in tlaciuhq̃ in nanaoalti, yoan tlatlenamacaque, no ic iaca, no ic iaque in tenamjqujzque: auh aoccã vel mochiuhque, aoccan vel teittaque, aocmo tlaipantilique, aocmo teipantilique, aocmo onicoatque:

çan ic ce tlaoanquj vtlica ica ommotiotzonato, qujmonamjctito, ica onmjxtilquetzato: injc qujttaq̃ iuhqujn chalcatl ic omochichiuh, mochalcachichiuh, mochalcanenequj: iuhqujn tlaoãquj, mjvincanenequj, motlaoãcanenequj: chicuei çacapecatl ic mellipi, qujmjxnamjctivitz hiiacac icativitz in Españoles.

Auh çan inca ienac: qujmjlhuj. tle noma amaxtivitze in njcã? tlen oc anqujnequj? tle noma qujchioaznequj in Motecuçoma? cujx qujn omozcali? cujx qujn axcan ic momauhticapul? ca otlatlaco, ca oconcavili in macecalli, ca otlacaixpolo teca omoquavitec, ca teca omoqujmjlo, ca teca omavilti, ca teca omocacaizuh.

Auh in oiuh qujttaque in, in oiuh qujcacque itlatol, oc nen itlan aquj, in qujmocnotlalauhtilia, qujtlalilitivetzque ichiel itlalmomoz, yoan içacapepech, çan njmã aocmo vmpa qujoalittac: tel çan nenpanca in ommotlalica, in vncan oc nen qujtlalmomuztica:

çan ic iuhqujn icamac ommaqujque, ic vncan qujmaoa, qujntequjaia, iuhqujn motititzatlatoa:

1. Repeated: the title is omitted in the Nahuatl text.

2. See H. 27.

3. The corresponding Spanish text reads: "traya ochipilo a los pechos como enhorcado o traya hechos de hasta cuatro de cuerda, y venía de hacia donde estaban los españoles."

-33-

648 He said to them:
787 "Why do you vainly stand here? No longer will ●791 there be a Mexico; [it is gone] forever. Go hence; it no more existeth. Turn about; look at what befalleth Mexico—what thus already cometh to pass!"

Then they looked there; they quickly turned there to see. They beheld that already all the temples, the tribal temples, the priests' dwellings,[4] and all the houses in Mexico burned; and [it looked] as if already there were fighting.

And when the soothsayers had seen this, it was as if they had lost heart; they could say nothing; it was as if they had been made to swallow something.

They said: "This is not for us to see; it must needs be that Moctezuma see what we have seen. For this is no common being; this is the youth Tezcatlipoca."

000 Then he vanished, and they saw him no more.

And so the messengers went no further to encounter [the Spaniards]; they no longer pressed on toward them. From there the soothsayers and fire priests turned back and came to tell Moctezuma. There they and those who earlier had gone [with] Tziuacpopocatzin saw one another.

And when these messengers had come to arrive, just so they related to Moctezuma how this had come to pass and how they had beheld it. Moctezuma, when he heard it, only bowed his head; he stood with his head lowered. He hung his head: he stood with his head downcast. He did not then speak, but only remained full of woe for a long time as if beside himself.

Finally he thus answered them, and said: "What can we do? What can be done? For we are finished; we have taken the medicine. Shall we perhaps climb a mountain? Should we perhaps flee? For we are Mexicans. Shall we in truth perhaps enslave the Mexican domain? Unlucky[5] are the poor old men and old women! And the children, who have no understanding—where may they be taken? What can be done? Where, in truth, can one go? For now we have taken the medicine. Come what may, in whatsoever way it may befall, we shall marvel at it!"

qujmjlhuj.

Tle çã nen in njcan amjcativitze aoqujc iez in Mexico, ie ic cẽmãia, nepa xivia, aocmo vncã, tlaxommocuepacan, tlaxontlachiacan in Mexico, tlein ie mochioa: in juh ie mochioa.

Nimã ic oallachixque, oallachixtjvetzque, in qujoalitta ie tlatlã in jxqujch teucalli, in calpulli, in calmecatl, yoan in jxqujch mexico calli, yoan iuhqujn ma ie cuel necaliva.

Auh in oiuh qujttaque in tlaciuhque, iuhqujn canjn ia, iniollo, aocmo onnaoatque, iuhqujn aca itla qujntololti:

qujtoque inin ca amo totechmonequja in tiqujttazque, ca ie itech monequja qujttaz in Motecuçoma, in otiqujttaque: ca amo çan aca, ca iehoatl in telpuchtli Tezcatlipuca:

njman ic poliuh, aocmo qujttaque.

Auh in titlanti aocmo tenamjqujto, aocmo tevic qujçato, ça vncã oalilotque in tlaciuhque, in tletlenamacaque, qujnonotzaco in Motecuçoma: oalnepanjxtiaque in achto iaque in Tzioacpopocatzin.

Auh in oacico iehoantin titlantin, iuhquj povilique in Motecuçoma in juh mochiuh in juh qujttaque. In motecuçoma, in oiuh qujcac, ça oaltolo ça oaltolotimotlali, oalquechpilo, oalquechpilotimotlali, aocmo oalnaoat, çan ontlanauhtimotlali, vecauhtica in iuhquj ontlapolo, ça ixqujch injc qujnoalnanqujli: qujnoalilhuj. Quennel mocechtle ca ie ic toncate, ca ie otictomacaque, cujx cacah tepetl tictlecavizque: auh cujx tichoIoxque ca timexica, cujx nellaontimaliviz in mexicaiutl, mitolinja in jcnoveve, in jcnoilama: auh in piltzintli, in aia qujmati, campa neviqujlilozque, quẽnel, quẽçannel nen, quẽnoçonel, campa nel, ca ie tictomacaticate in çaço tlein, in çaço quenamj in ticmaviçozque.

4. Calpulli, calmecatl—tribal temple and priests' dwelling and translations of these terms previously used in this work, for which there is precedent. See Anderson and Dibble, op. cit., passim. Refer also to Arturo Monzón El calpulli en la organización social de los tenochcas (México: Instituto de Historia, 1949), passim (calpulli) and p. 77 (calmecac); or Alfonso Caso: "Instituciones indígenas precortesianas," Memoria del Instituto Nacional Indigenista, VI (1954), pp. 20ff. (calpulli), 36 (calmecac).

5. From according on, the passage is translated in Horacio Carochi: Arte de la lengua mexicana (México: Imprenta del Museo Nacional, 1892), p. 526.

X 787 her spinning bowl, her sweeper, and her broom.
844 Thus they showed that the girl was one who went nowhere; only the house was her abode. Hence, near the grinding stone, at the edge of the hearth, they buried her umbilical cord.

in ſcampa ianj cioatzintli, çan cali ichan: ic çan metlatitlan, tlecujtnacazco contocaia yn jxic.

X 787 And this count of days—so was it claimed—791 was an invention of the two called and named Oxomoco and Cipactonal, who gave it to the people. Oxomoco they painted as a woman, and Cipactonal 805 [as] a man. They who were readers of day signs embellished their book of days with their representations, which they placed in the middle when they painted them. For it was so said that there they became lords of all the day count.

Auh inin tonalpoc!li, iuh mjtoaia: iehoan intlanextil, iehoan qujtemacaque, in vmentin teneoalo, intoca Oxomoco, ioan cipactonal: in Oxomoco cioatl inic qujcujloaia: auh in Cipactonal oqujchtli: in tonalpouhque catca yn jntonalamauh qujiollotiaia, yn jmjxiptla ynepantla qujntlaliaia, injc qujcujcujloaia: ca iuh mjtoaia: vncan tlatoque muchioa yn jpan ixqujch tonalpoalli.

[p. 4]

681 And then also at that time died those who were in jail, who were there for something which de-696 manded the supreme penalty: perhaps an adulterer, or a thief, or a fire priest of whom something had been found out — perchance he had had a paramour — and who was known as an evildoer; or whatsoever sin he had committed. Also of the captives some then died.

Auh yoan no iquac vncã mjquja in quauhcalco onoca, in jtla ic cate, in vei qujzacuticatca, aço tetlanxinquj, anoço ichtecquj, in anoço tlenamacac, itla oittililoc, aço momecati, in moteneoa tlaçolchiuhque in çaço catle in ovi oqujtlaco: no ichoan in mamaltin, cequjntin vncan mjquja,

643 It was said that through these Moctezuma received life. By them his fate was strengthened; by them he 761 was exalted, and on them he placed the burden. So it was said that it was as if through them once more he were rejuvenated, so that he might live many years. Through them he became famous, achieved honor, and became brave, thereby making himself terrifying.

mjtoa: ca ichoan inca mozcaltiaia in motecuçoma, inca motonalchicaoaia, inca moquetzaia, inca moquixtiaia, iuh mjtoa: iuhqujn oc ceppa inca mopilquixtiaia, ynjc vecaoaz, inca motleiotia, momaujaçotia, motequantlalia, ic motlamauhtilia.

* 787 And when someone was then born,[3] they feared that the [Goddesses] might at that time descend.
851 But later, on Three Crocodile, he was bathed; then they made his fate somewhat better, for, so it was said, Three Crocodile was a good time.

Auh in aquin ipan tlacatia, qujmacacia injc vncan temoa: auh quin ipan in ei cipactli, maltiaia, vncan achi qujqualtilia in jtonal, iuh mjtoa: ca qualcan in jpan ey cipactli.

* 787 And also it was said that he who was then born 754 a nobleman became a sorcerer, an astrologer.[4] That is to say, he was inhuman. He changed himself into ●791 something [else]: because of it he turned himself into something [else]. Perchance he had as a disguise a wild beast,[5] etc.

No yoan mjtoaia: in aquin ipan tlacatia pilli, naoalli mochioaia tlâciuhquj, qujtoznequj: amo tlacatl, itla qujmonaoaltiaia, itla ic mocuepaia, aço tequannaoale. Etc.

And if [he were] a commoner, likewise it was his work to turn himself into perhaps a turkey, or a weasel, or a dog. Whatsoever was his guise became his magic form. All his task was to assume and accumulate all manner of evil. He influenced women; he bewitched and was clever with women;

auh intla maceoalli, no fuhquj itequjuh catca, aço totoli, aço coçamatl, anoço chichi, ipan moqujxtiaia, in çaço tlein inecuepaliz, ynaoal mochioaia, muchi itequjuh, qujcenmama, qujcemololoa, in jxqujch tlauelilocaiotl, cioanotzquj, xochioa, cjoatlatole, tempachioace, tetlatlacuepili, teiolmalacacho, teioiolmala-

---

3. An additional phrase in the Real Palacio MS will change the meaning somewhat: ayemo mahiaya, ypampa — and when someone was then born, not then was he bathed for they feared. . . .

4. Angel María Garibay K.: "Paralipómenos de Sahagún," Tlalocan, II, 2 (1946), p. 171.

5. Ibid., pp. 170-172: "en primer término significó . . . algo así como un 'demonio familiar,' o un 'doble' del alma, a manera del epípeio [citing a passage in La leyenda de los soles]. . . . De esta primaria significación pasó a la de la 'duplicación de la persona,' o el 'desdoblamiento.' . . . Se convirtió el brujo capaz de tomar las formas que él quiera, de aparecer en diversos modos y lugares, de ejercitar obras que no son del hombre común: hay en él algo más que hombre; hay un nahualli poderoso y multiplicado." Derivation of the word may be from nahualli, nahuala, "verbo arcaico, que encontramos en muchos compuestos. Su sentido es en general 'engañar, disimular' y conviene muy bien al prestidigitador, como al mago, que con embustes, fundados o sólo subjetivos, embauca a las gentes. En Molina hallamos, entre otros, los verbos: nahualcaqui, entrar disimulado, con cautela, secretamente; nahualtilia, tomar algo a otro con cautela o disimulación; nahualtlachia, acechar mirando, etc. Cabe dudar, sin embargo, si este verbo es el primitivo de nahualli o un derivado suyo."

In Hernando Ruiz de Alarcón, Pedro Sánchez de Aguilar, and Gonzalo de Balsalobre: Tratado de las idolatrías, supersticiones, dioses, ritos, hechicerías y otras costumbres gentílicas de las razas aborígenes de México (México: Ediciones Fuente Cultural, 1953), pp. 24 ff., it is said that "se dedicaban al animal que el demonio les señalaba para que fuesen lo que llaman nahualli. . . .

". . . cuando el niño nace, el demonio por el pacto expreso o tácito que sus padres tienen con él, le dedica o sujeta al animal, que el dicho niño ha de tener por nahual, que es como decir por dueño de su natividad y señor de sus acciones o lo que los gentiles llamaban hado, y en virtud deste pacto queda el niño sujeto a todos los peligros y trabajos que padeciere el animal hasta la muerte.

". . . advierto la denominación y significación del nombre nahualli, que puede derivarse de una de tres raíces que significan: la primera, mandar; la segunda, hablar con imperio; la tercera, ocultarse o rebozarse, y aunque oy conservancias para que se acomoden las dos primeras significaciones, me quedo con la tercera, que es del verbo nahualtia que es encenderse cubriéndose con algo, que viene a ser lo mesmo que rebozarse, y así, nahualli dice rebozado, o disfrazado debajo de la apariencia del tal animal, como ellos comunmente lo creen."

See also Chap. 31, n. 1, infra.

42

½ [i.e., the day One Rain. – Aun lyst]

787x
754
791

he knew their secrets. He recovered things for people. He provoked and incited people, and caused them to believe diverse things. And [he was] a demon; he caused demons to enter one; he destroyed people and brought them to ruin. He swept people's paths for them [indicating sins which they must confess];[6] he set up ceremonial wooden figures of those killed in war, and caused them to burn for people.[7] He was a magician, one who removed his leg.[8] These were only the works of this person.

He hired and lent himself to others in order to make his living. When at night he went forth somewhere to ruin people, he changed himself into, perhaps, a turkey, or a weasel, or a dog. He who hated someone hired him to destroy his enemy, when he wished and willed death upon him. Four times, on four nights, he performed his task when he destroyed people.

This same one sought out an evil day sign; then was the time to destroy someone. When he had done his task well on one, when already four times he had returned to the victim's home, it was said: "He hath drawn him forth." But sometimes [the evildoer] fell into [his victim's] hands; he fell and was taken into the hands of others, and was seized and quickly captured. The brave one who was to be destroyed, who was hated, vigilantly stalked him in order to catch him. He seized his hair; from the top, the crown, he pulled hair from his head. He jerked off his hair; he seized, wrenched, and tore it off; he removed his hair. No more did he escape. Forthwith he died; he could only reach his home to die.

And if in vain he tried to remedy, or, indirectly, to palliate [the situation], so that he might not die, still seeking to follow his work and control and establish his fate, in vain he contrived to take or borrow something—perchance water or fire, or a bowl, which he borrowed from the house of the one he had gone forth to destroy, who had there seized him. But if the one to be destroyed were indeed wise, prudent,[9] and well advised, he gave nothing at all to anyone. All during the day, until [the next] dawn came, he lent nothing to anyone. On the morrow, cacho, teiollapan, teiosollapan, tetlatlaneltoqujti, ioan tlacatecolotl, tetlatlacatecolovia, tepoloa, tlãtlalpoloa, tecacalochpana, teevillotlatia, tetlatlatoqujlia, tlaujpuchtli, mometzcopina, çan vel iẽ itequjuh, ic tlaqueoalo, ic motetlaqueoaltia, ic motlaiecoltia, in cana iooaltica tepolotiuh, aço totoli, aço coçamatl, anoço chichi, ipã mocuepa, in aqujn tecocolianj qujtlaqueoa, injc qujpolotiuh itlacocolil, in qujmjqujtlanj, qujmjqujztemachia, nappa nauhiooal in ontepoloa, in qujchioa itequjuh:

çan no iẽ qujtztiuh, in aqualli tonalli, in vncan itepoloaia, in aca ouel qujchiuh, in ie nappa oilo ichan, mjtoa: ocontlaqujxtili, auh in quenman temac vetzi, temac aquj, temac maquja, axioa. cujtiuecho. in aqujn iolchicaoac pololonj, cocolilonj, uel qujmopachiuia injc caci, qujtzoncuj, iquanepantla, yquaiolloco qujmomotzalhuja in jtzon, qujquatemotzoltzitzquia qujquavivitla, qujtzoncopina. aocmo qujça. njman iquac mjquj, ça onmjctaci in jchan:

auh in oc nen, ic mopatiznequj, ic mopaiaoalochtiznequj, injc amo mjqujz, oc motlaiecoltia. motonalanaznequj, motonallalilizznequj, oc nen itla qujmocujcujcachioa, qujmotlatlanevia, aço atl, aço tletl, aço caxitl, in conmotlaneuja ichan in oqujpoloto, in vmpa ocacique: auh in vel qujmati, in tlaueuemachtilli, in tlanonotzalli in pololonj: njman aoc tle qujtemaca, in iuh cemjlhujtl in oallatvic, aoc tle qujtetlaneuhtia, yn jmoztlaioc: iẽ vncan vel tematlac maquja, in tlacatecolotl, onmjquj, ca nel ie oncan ca itequjuh, ca iẽ in qujtetemoa, ca ie vncan ca ipoliujz:

6. Cf. Leonhard Schultze Jena: Weltrauerei, Himmelskunde und Kalender der alten Azteken (Stuttgart: W. Kohlhammer, 1950), p. 350: "Das Fest des Wegefegens wurde zu Ehren der Göttermutter veranstaltet, deren Priester die Beichte derer entgegennahmen, die sich geschlechtlich verunreinigt hatten. Das Wort besagt dies: Er fegt den Leuten den Zugangsweg zu den Häusern wieder sauber; im übertragenen Sinn: Er bewirkt dass die Leute geschlechtliche Sünden zu beichten haben und dadurch ihrer ledig werden."

7. Cf. infra, Chap. 19, where a full description appears.

8. Cf. variant translation in Jena, op. cit., p. 141: "Und hinter ihm kommt eine Mere her, eine vom Monde, die gewiss so gut jenes Arbeit tut."

9. Tlamahmatcilli in the Real Palacio MS.

X 787 754 791

then, indeed, the demon was enclosed in one's net. He died. For in truth this was his destiny, for they sought him continually, and it then was the time of his ruin. For he knew in his heart, while yet he lived, that perchance somewhere he might be seized. For so had he been born only to die.[18] Never was he content nor happy; he went about in rags, poorly clothed. And he lived only in suffering. He raged over drink and food. Everywhere was he feared; nowhere could he enter among people. No one was his friend.

But although he were seized and taken, he was not frightened, nor did he therefore cease. He paid no heed. If he had children, always he lived the same, never wishing to mend his ways. There he went to his end, and they punished him. Thus all went; thus all was destroyed.

Just so if it were a woman, all evil were her works. She lived in great misery. Nowhere was her home. Even though she were a noblewoman, nowhere was she favored or noticed. Just as if dead, she lived in affliction. It was said that just so was her day sign one of misery.

ca njmã iuh iiollo qujmatia in oc nemj, in aço cana axioaz: ca njman iuh ipan tlacat içan miquiz: njman aic avia, aic vellamati, itzotzoma, itatapa ietinemj auh çan moxiixicotinemj, maçoma, motlaqualçoma, noviian imacaxo, acan vel tepan calaquj, aiac icnjuh:

auh in manel ie oanoc, oaxioac, amo ic momauhtia, amo ic motzaqua, amo ic qujcaquj, intla oncate ipilhoã, çan mochipa iuh nemj, amo qujcaoaliztlamati, vncan activi quitzácutiuj, much iuh vi, much iuh polivi, çan no iuhquj itequjuh catca intla çioatl, muchi amo qualli in jtequjuh catca, cenca motolinjtinenca, ãcan ichan, in manel cioapilli, ãcan ixtona, ãcan motztica, can iuhquj onmjquj, totoneoatiuh in jiollo, mjtoa ca nel iuhquj itonal in jcnoiotl.

18. Ya que con miquiz in ihiol.

532
*787
[191]

— Tlaxcala; Tenochtitlan

1. Ometeotl and Cipactonal (Chapter 1). 2-5. One Cualtor and following signs (Chapter 2). 6. One Deer (Chapter 3). 7. Mother with child (Chapter 3). 8. 9. Two Rabbits: drunkenness and drunkards (Chapters 4, 5).

[p. 126 d]

X796 cords, called flower cords, and thus went stretched out in line. They went with wormwood flowers[13] 535 placed upon their heads.

[533] And they went singing, crying out loudly, singing in a very high treble. As the centzontli bird takes [its song, so was] their song. Like a bell their voices [rang out].

The old men led [the singing women]; they loosed the song and went directing them—the men and elders of the tribal temple. And they were named keepers of the god[dess].

And [the likeness of] Uixtociuatl went in the midst of them. Before her went a brilliant feather ornament which an old man carried in his arms. And this [ornament] was called Uixtociuatl's brilliant plumage.[14]

And for [the likeness of] Uixtociuatl was sung the women's song every day until all ten days had been reached. And when the tenth day had come to pass, that night she began her vigil. They sang [and danced] all night. At no time did they rest; they passed the night sleepless. Thus they passed the night in vigil.

And as [the impersonator of] Uixtociuatl danced, the old women seized her and held her as they made her dance.

Likewise the captives danced all the night—those who would come first, who would die [first], as her fundament; those whom they would make her fundament.

X796 And when dawn broke, when verily the feast day [came], then were arrayed the priests who would slay ● 792 the victims. These were called Uixtoti. They were adorned and painted like Uixtotin; they were painted with the face painting of Uixtotin. They carried their paper neck rosettes and their paper shoulder rosettes. And their [head] insignia were made [like] the claws of eagles, [made] of quetzal head feathers and eagle down.

X796 And the legs of the eagle were also made of eagle down. These insignia [were supported] upon wooden 293 head rests with holes [in the head rests, in which the insignia were inserted]. Here lay the insignia, tied [across the back], bound around the stomach with cotton bands, tied firmly and tightly. And their cords were bands, narrow woven bands.

And all the common folk who looked on, all carmotitilinjtiuj: ym jhiztauhiaxtochiuh, ym icpac contecatiuj:

yoan cujcatiuj, cenca tzatzi, cenca tlapitzaoa: iuhquin tzontli cana incujc: iuhquj in coiolli intozquj:

qujniacana in ueuetque, cuicatlaça qujncujcatlaxilitiuj, in calpuleque, in calpulueuetque: yoan motocaiotia teuoaque.

Auh in Vixtocioatl, tlanepantla icatiuh, ce petlacotl qujiacana, ce tlacatl veue in qujnapaloa: auh ynjn mitoaia vixtopetlacotl.

Auh in ieboatl vixtocioatl, momuztlae in qujcioapancujcatiaia, yn ixqujchica matlaqujlhujtl onaci: auh yn oacito matlaqujlhujtl, teutlacpa im peoa qujtoçauja, qujcujcatia iuh ceiooal, aquenman cochi, acochiztli qujmochioaltia, iuh vetzi in ioalli.

Auh in Vixtocioatl, mitotia caana, caantinemj yn ylamatque in qujtotia:

no iuh ceiooal in mjtotia mamalti, in iacatiazque mjquizque, in iuhquj ypepechoan iezque, in qujnmopepechtizque.

Auh yn otlathujc, yn iquac ie vel ilhujtl, mec muchichioa in tlamacazque, in tlamictizque: in iehoan y, motocaiotiaia Vixtoti, movixtochichioa, moujxtoychioa, intlatlaquechpaiouh, yoan ymaamacuexpal: auh yn jntlquiz, quaviztitl muchioa, quetzaltzontecomaio quãmolocio.

Aull in quauhtli imetz muchioa, no quãmolocio, ynjn tlaviztli cãcacaxo, cõcocoio, yn vncã onmaña tlauiztli, ic maapana, ic moxixillancujtlalpia, ic motetevilpia, ic mocacatzilpia: auh yn jmecaio, yn jmmecaio, tlaxochtli, tlaxochpitzactli.

Auh in jxqujch tlacatl maceoalli, in tlatlatta, mu-

13. Cf. p. 83, n. 27. Simeon (op. cit.) defines it as artemisia latiniana; see, further, note 15, below. Molina (op. cit.) has "Itzauhyatl. axenjo o aceruezo yerua"; Sahagún (loc. cit.) has the same. See also Robredo ed., Vol. III, p. 252.

14. "Su plumaje suyo hermoso; hecho a manera de manga de cruz" (Sahagún, corresponding Spanish).

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

262 The principal food was the tortilla, a flat cake of un-
[415] leavened corn meal, which measured a good foot in diameter,
855 to judge from the size of the clay griddles used in cooking them, in contrast to the modern tortilla which varies between four and six inches. At three the child received half a tortilla a day; at four and five his ration was doubled; from six to twelve a tortilla and a half were prescribed, and at thirteen the allotment was two. Supplemented by beans and game, this diet was filling and nutritious.

861 The Mendoza manuscript reflects the current Aztec ideas on child psychology. Admonition was the chief method of discipline up to the eighth year. From then on a rigorous corporal punishment awaited the recalcitrant child. This discipline ranged from pricking the hand with the maguey spine to exposing the child to the chill rigors of a mountain night, lying bound and naked in a mud puddle. In view of the almost [855] universal kindness which Indian parents show to their children, they probably seldom applied these extremely imaginative corrections for wrongdoing by the young.

868 This type of training, not unlike that of a modern farm
871 child, initiated him directly into the economic life of the
• 793 home. The satisfactions in playing a man's part by contributing to the family welfare compensated the child for the heaviness of his social obligation. At fifteen or sixteen most boys went through a special training before assuming the full rights of manhood; under certain conditions they were younger when they received this special instruction. There were two types of schools: the telpuchcalli, or house of youth, for standard training, and the calmecac of uncertain etymology, for instruction in priestly duties. The telpuchcalli, maintained by the clan for the children of its members, offered instruction in citizenship, the bearing of arms, arts and crafts, history and tradition and ordinary religious observance. The calmecac was in the nature of a seminary for special training in priestly and chiefly duties, and several of them were maintained near the temples of important gods. The calmecac seems to have been an addition to ordinary training, required by the development of ritual, whereas the telpuchcalli carried on in special quarters instruction given in a simpler day by the old men of the clan. Other schools trained young women to be priestesses; they also learned to weave skillfully and to make featherwork for preparation of priestly vestments. (See Plate 39, top left.)

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

A youth was ready for marriage at twenty, and a girl was deemed mature at about sixteen. The parents arranged the marriage with the consent of the boy and girl. A priest was consulted to decide whether or not the fates of the couple were harmonious. Incest laws like our own prevailed with the further restriction that marriage must be outside the clan. Having satisfied these conventions, the father of the boy sent two elderly clanswomen with gifts to the girl's father, who, following custom, rejected the suit. The old ladies returned again to consult in earnest with the parents of the prospective bride. Such a discussion was necessarily intricate, since it involved the amount of the bride's dowry, which was to be balanced by the gifts of her suitor.

On the evening of the wedding one of the matchmakers carried the bride on her back over the threshold of the husband's house. Elaborate speeches were made by everyone, following which the mantles of the bride and groom were tied together, symbolizing the union. The old men and women gave tongue again in the form of long-winded homilies, and

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

562 alliance. Moreover, marriages were carefully arranged be-[584] tween families, so that for a husband grossly to neglect his wife's rights was a breach, if not of etiquette, certainly of [793] social contract. The priesthood may have offered a modest field of influence and attainment to women. However, history records no mention of any advantage deriving from temple service.

554 Men had the chief opportunities, and these lay in various 555 directions. The early chroniclers, conditioned by their mediæval Spanish background, spoke of hereditary classes. In all probability, judging from Indian communities as a whole, there was rank but not class in the hereditary sense. As in our own society, a man could attain high rank through his own efforts, and through his eminence his children would consequently profit in their own social adjustment. Yet they could not reach their father's position unless they earned it through [556] equivalent tribal service. Wealth did exist, and property in the form of rights to use land, tools and other possessions
[642 421] created a social and economic stratification. In theory and practice Aztec society was democratic, and the communal ownership of productive property was its economic base.[4]

555 A man attained rank through the measure of his tribal service. The wise farmer, the wily hunter, the brave warrior or the dexterous artisan gained admiration from his fellows because of superior skill. If his wisdom and judgment were conspicuous he might be elected as the clan representative to the tribal council, or even as chief. Similarly an individual who dedicated himself to learning the magic rituals to placate the gods, could become a medicine man or priest. However, in the populous and advanced city-states activities tended to become specialized, and greater opportunity led to a more

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

a tribal economy which was based on living off the land. 441
The opening up of intertribal contact through settlement 463 and warfare and the growth of material and ritualistic wants, led to the establishment of a class, the pochteca, whose members traveled all over Mexico, exchanging local for foreign produce. They had their own god and apparently lived in a special quarter. From the valley they carried obsidian, cloth 441 and rope, which in the hot country they exchanged for shells, 439 tropical feathers, jade, cacao and other regional riches. In 463 time they performed an important political function, spying out towns to conquer and reporting on the tribute which could be exacted. There is a very modern touch about the economic and political functions of these merchants who so often brought military conquest in their train.' (See Plate 38.)

Craftsmanship, with the growth of technique, must have 463 attracted many men to whom straight agriculture seemed drab and unrewarding. Potters, jewelers, weavers and featherworkers came to pursue these crafts to the exclusion of other labor. The enormous elaboration of the religion called into almost continual activity sculptors, masons and painters. The market, still important in Middle American Indian communities, had a profound social significance, for there, in addition to bartering his products for those of others, an Indian could hear the news and widen his social and intellectual horizons. (See Plates 34–35.)

The priesthood offered a relentless sort of career. Religion 793 penetrated into every part of daily life, and the individual participated in great and complicated rituals. Civic eminence depended greatly on religious observance, and chiefs led in [622] the direction of ceremonies. Therefore, it is hard to recog-

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

793 nize a priesthood completely separate from civil officialdom; both were mutally dependent. There was a priestly hierarchy, it is true, but it probably operated in conjunction with civil position. Permanent positions may have existed, but in the chapters on religion we shall describe more fully how completely the realms of Church and State coalesced among the people of ancient Mexico, in contrast to the cleavage between them in our own society.

567 Mexican society existed for the benefit of the tribe, and each member was supposed to do his part in preserving the community. However, the bane of working social orders as well as hypothetical social schemes are those unfortunates who, by mischance, maladjustment or just plain deviltry, do not do their part. The Aztecs, too, had this problem to cope with, and there developed a social class of people who had lost their civil rights and become slaves. This they might do voluntarily or because they were prisoners of war or were punished for crimes or were sold by their parents. Their treatment differed according to the circumstances of their enslavement.[8] (See Plate 38, bottom left.)

Military captives usually were sacrificed, but those who [727] demonstrated some unusual skill were sometimes bought for domestic service or put to work on some communal enterprise. Criminal slaves lost their free status for such offenses as failure to denounce treachery, membership in a traitor's family, kidnaping for sale a free man, selling another's property without his consent, theft without restitution when over [672] ten years old or hindering a slave from gaining the sanctuary of a chief's house. Penal slaves were privately owned, usually to make restitution to those whom they had injured.

Voluntary slavery was assumed by the poor and landless

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

war or sacrifice, childbirth or drowning, passed upon death 776
to their domain. (See Plate 55, bottom left.)

This incomplete description of the gods and goddesses who thronged the Aztec pantheon gives an idea of their variety of purpose and character, outlined more fully in Table X. For an individual to try to do honor to so many gods could result in an insupportable situation. Yet even the modern Navajos pass a third of their time in ceremonial activity, and they do not have half the economic wealth of the Aztec peoples. While the ancient Mexicans extended their ceremonialism to greater lengths than do the most ritualized Christian sects, yet the relationship between the Aztecs and their gods and the Christians and their saints is not so very dissimilar, different as are the ultimate concepts of the two religions.

The priests gave guidance and prescribed the ceremonies, 793 and the worshipers gave heed to those especial divinities upon 776 whose patronage their life directly depended, much as a de- 771
vout Catholic selects certain saints for veneration above the list of those whose days are recorded on the calendar. In the same way the Aztec tribal god has his counterpart in the patron saint of country, town or craft. The Aztec, however, thought of his gods as having strong material powers, but their spiritual aspect counted little with him.

The ritual of Aztec religion was as complex as the theol- 796
ogy. The organization of the priesthood followed the pyramided structure of the social order, but the ceremonies were worked out in accordance with the ritualistic requirements of the calendar and the seasons. In the following chapter we shall describe the priesthood, the ceremonies and also the Aztec methods of counting, recording and using time.

1;Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

CHAPTER XI

RITUAL

In which are Summarized the Nature of the Religious Organization, the Feasts, and the Relationship between Ritual, Calendar and Writing

RELIGION was a general group activity necessary for the 771 social and economic safekeeping of the tribe, and the priesthood was a highly important force in the direction of the communal life. In the early simple societies there were two executive chiefs, one for war and one for religious affairs. We do not know whether the priesthood comprised laymen who performed the ritual acts of specific ceremonies or whether it was an established group whose whole life was devoted to religious ends. It is probable that selected individuals originally carried out the religious duties of the tribe in addition to their civil obligations, but as Aztec culture became more elaborate, the complexity of their functions molded them into a body of permanent officials.[1]

In Tenochtitlan the Chief of Men and the Snake Woman 793 had double duties in respect to civil and religious affairs, the former actively leading the services and the latter supervising the temples, the form of the rites and the internal affairs of the priesthood. Two high priests directed cult activities in honor of the War God, Huitzilopochtli, and the Rain God, Tlaloc, the chief divinities worshiped in this city. They

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

793 were called *Quetzalcoatl-Totec-tlamacazqui and Quetzalcoatl-Tlaloc-tlamacazqui. The name Quetzalcoatl was given them perhaps as an honorific title in memory of the God of Civilization and Learning, who was the archetype of the priestly ideal. The second names refer to the gods of the respective cults, and the third word means priest. Ranking below these two officials was a third, Mexicatl-Teohuatzin, who, like a vicar-general, supervised general religious business in the city-state and conquered towns. Two assistants looked after the instruction in the schools for citizen-warriors and for priests, and other officials supervised the pulque ceremonies.[2]

Next in rank were the priests who were in charge of the worship, temple and ritual of each specific god or goddess and who, in the ceremonies, assumed the dress of the divinity, impersonating him on earth. They, in turn, had a host of assistants who were supplemented by aspirants to the priesthood, the bottom of the hierarchical scale. There seem to have been priestesses as well, and schools for their instruction were established in connection with certain temples. As 789 might be expected as an accompaniment of a highly ritualized religion far above the comprehension of the masses, there was an active practice of magic carried on by male and female witch doctors. Undoubtedly many of these unsanctioned rites were rooted in the more primitive stages of the Aztec development; and in modern times, although the formal Aztec religion has been almost completely eradicated, the indigenous population continues many of the old magico-medical practices.

793 The priests, however, directed the intellectual life of the

*Kay-tz'al-co-atl-To'-tec-tla-mah-ca'z-kee.

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

tribe. They elaborated cult ritual and so instilled the realiza- 793 tion of the power and proximity of the gods into the minds of the people that even their arts were dedicated chiefly to religious expression. The complicated astronomic and mathematical computations that kept the solar and religious calendars in harmony with the passage of the seasons were also the province of the priesthood. The priests arrayed the dancers, who, depicting mythological events, performed a type of mass drama. Aztec life under hierarchical direction became a pattern of rhythmic ritual, and this continued ceremony served the more firmly to establish the priests as interpreters of the divine order. One has the impression that the priests never overtly showed their temporal power. Situated as they were, with the instruments for interpreting the divine will in their own hands, they had to follow the exactions of ritual far more exigently than did the masses. Were one to choose a single word to describe Aztec government, it would [642] be theocracy. The gods ruled; the priests interpreted and interposed, and the people obeyed, not the priests, but the rhythm of action whereby the gods lived. (See Plate 58, middle.)

At the core of the religion stood the calendar, which was 796 arranged in two divisions: a ritualistic succession of days, the 805 tonalpohualli (Table XIII–XVI), and a solar calendar (Table XVII), divided into eighteen twenty-day months and a five- [777] day unlucky period, in which the months' names related to crops and indicated the agricultural origin of this time count. A combination of the two systems permitted the numbering of years, which were counted not on an infinite scale, as with us, but in terms of a fifty-two-year cycle.[8]

The tonalpohualli, sometimes erroneously referred to as

[text continues on p. 190. - Analyst]

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

782 growth in plants by the powers of sympathetic magic. Cere-
[266] monial cannibalism was sometimes practiced, in the belief that the eater can absorb the virtues of the eaten, but this rite cannot be considered a vice. The letting of one's own blood
[785 was another way to ensure divine favor, and people did hor-
304] rible self-penances such as mutilating themselves with knives or drawing through their tongues a string on which were threaded maguey spines. The higher the social position of the individual and the more he consequently knew of ritualistic observance, the more arduously he performed the fasts, penances and tortures imposed by the religion. The priests, therefore, were strongly cognizant of their social responsibility and by the rigor of their own lives strove to ensure the well-being of the tribe.[17] (See Plate 61, bottom right.)

212 The picture writings of the Aztecs take human sacrifice
782 and penance as a matter of course but seldom indicate the quantity of victims. Indeed, only one such manuscript records the monthly ceremonies, and a post-Conquest copy of another reveals a sacrifice of twenty thousand people at the dedication of the enlarged great temple of Mexico.[17] The Spanish accounts and those of the educated Indians agree, but whether Christian piety induced exaggeration, and how much, it is difficult to ascertain at this time and age. The Conquistador who counted thousands of skulls on the skull rack in Tenochtitlan apparently confirms these other statements, which the great humanitarian and Indian lover, Las Casas, discounted in his special pleading for decent treatment of the indigenous population of New Spain.[18]

793 The priesthood, beside performing these bloodcurdling
212 acts, had other more pacific duties; they also instructed youth
[871] in the mysteries of writing and keeping records. Aztec writ-

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

ing was pictographic and was arriving at the stage of syllabic phonetics, which is an important part of the hieroglyphic writing of Egypt. There was no alphabet, but a picture of an animal or thing could be combined with the picture of another animal or thing to give a third meaning in terms of its sound value, much like our method of rebus writing. We could write: "I can be hospitable," in terms of the sounds given to pictures of an eye, a tin can, a bee, a horse, a hole in the ground and a table. The Aztecs wrote the name of their capital by drawing stone tena from which sprouted a nopal cactus, nochtli, or the town Pantepec, by drawing a flag, pantli, on a conventionalized hill, tepec. Color, position, puns and abbreviations all contributed to recording sounds by this means. Conventionalized signs, like footprints to show travel or movement, a shield and club for war, a bundled corpse for death, gave simple connotations of action.[19] (See Fig. 2.)

Aztec writing offered no way of making general statements or expressing abstract ideas. Yet the full accounts of historical events, set down after the Conquest in Spanish or Nahuatl, indicate that oral traditions, possibly learned as a chant or saga, supplemented these ideographic records.

Their numerical system was vigesimal. The Aztecs counted by twenties where we count by tens. They indicated quantities up to twenty by the requisite number of dots, although in the Mixteca this method was abridged by using bars to represent groups of five. The Aztecs used a flag to indicate twenty, repeating it for quantities up to four hundred, while a sign like a fir tree, meaning numerous as hairs, signified four hundred (20 × 20). The next unit, eight thousand (20 × 20 × 20), was indicated by a bag, referring to the almost innumerable contents of a sack of cacao beans. (See Fig. 2.)

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

a hook at the farther end, the nearer end being grasped in the hand. By lengthening the arm in this way it was possible to give a greater propulsive force to the spear.

On the other side of the plaza the boys in the religious-training school presented a less animated scene. Their little legs and faces lacerated by maguey spines, their bodies thin from fasts and penance and their eyes dulled by the monotony of self-denial, these children were chanting strophes from a ritualistic chant. Their preceptor, who led the singing, showed by his own scarred and emaciated body that the propitiation of the gods was a relentless and never-ending task. Priest, chief, warrior or husband, every Aztec, from boyhood on, spent much of his life either in a kind of beseeching penance, to ensure his future, or in a state of grateful atonement for not having had a worst past. The Aztecs lived on intimate if uncomfortable terms with the supernatural powers.

Another aspect of this lack of individualism was to be seen in the tecpan or clan building. Here elders of the clan were arranging the affairs of the tribal unit, twenty of which made up the city-state of Tenochtitlan. One old man peered over picture maps as he adjusted a question of land tenure between two contesting families and made his final judgment on the basis of how much land each family could cultivate by its own efforts. Another elder distributed pottery vessels, given up as tribute by a town across the mountains, to some of the poorer members of the community. None of these people, litigants or applicants, bestowed more than occasional glances into the back courtyard, where an adulterer was being stoned to death by members of the affronted family. Urban existence contained too many interests and

776 Twelfth Chapter, which treats of the Goddess of Vice (Tlaçolteotl).[53]

Tlaçolteotl was also called Ixcuina, and also Tlaelquani. As to the name Tlaçolteotl: it was said that it was because her realm was that of evil and perverseness—that is to say, lustful and debauched living. It was said that she ruled and was mistress of luxury and debauchery.

776 551 And as to her name Ixcuina: it was said there were four women—the first named Tiacapan (the older sister), the second Teicu (the younger sister), the third named Tlaco (the middle sister), the fourth named Xocotzin (the youngest sister).[54] These four women, it was said, were goddesses. These, each separately, were called goddesses of luxury (Tlaçolteteo).

And as for her being called Tlaelquani:[55] it was said it was because one told, one placed before her, all vanities; [783] one told, one spread, before her all [one's] unclean works—however ugly, however grave; avoiding nothing because of shame. One exposed all before her, [and] made one's confession in her presence.

776 It was said: evil and perverseness, debauched living—these Tlaçolteotl offered, inflamed, inspired. And likewise she forgave. At her whim, she removed the corruption; she cleansed; she washed. In her hand lay the [cleansing] green and yellow waters.[56]

[783] And thus she pardoned; thus, at her whim, she removed the corruption. In her presence confession was made; before Tlaçolteotl the heart was opened; before her one recited, one told one's sins.

793 776 783 And her warden[57]—he who saw for her—was a seer,[58]

Jnic matlactli vmome capitulo: ytechpa tlatoa yn tlaçolteotl.

In tlaçolteotl: yoan itoca ixcuina, yoan itoca tlaelquanj. Jnic motocaiotia tlaçolteotl, quj ipampa, quj ichcaoti yiaoca, ytlatquj, ytech pouj, in tenhtli, in tlaçalli: in qujtemaquj, ayilnamjlizti, quj ipan tecui, ypan tlazocati, yn aujlnemjlizçual.

Auh ynjc itoca, ixcuina: quj navinti ceah, in cioa: ynjc ce ytoca tiacapan, ynjc ome, ytoca teicu, ynjc ey, itoca tlaco: ynjc nauj itoca xocotzin. Jnjquo hin, nauinzin cioa: quj teoa. Jnjquo hin, ceoioca ytoca: tlaçolteteo.

Auh ynjc motocaiotia tlaelquanj: quj ipampa, inixpã mjtoa, imjxpan mopoa, yn jaqujch aequalli: ixpan mjtoa, momelaoa, yn jaqujch tlabellachinalli: immanel conca temamauhti, ixmanel conca ouijh: atle mopinãvixcoa, vel mochi, ixpan neci, ixpan mjtoa. Nrioluelaoalistli.

Qujlmach in tlaçolli, in tenhtli, in aujlnemjlizticti: ichoatl qujtemaca, ic temoela, ic tehipizta in tlaçolteotl. Auh çan no ichoatl, qujtepolhuja: ichoatl chico, :mooc qujujca, qujuca: ichoatl, tepapaca, tehaltia: ichoatl imac manj yn matlalatl, in tezpalatl.

Auh injc qujtepopolhuja ynjc chico, tlazaoac, qujujca, qujuca: iixpan neioiecujtilo, iixpan neiolmelaualo, yn tlaçolteotl, ixpã mopoa, mjtoa, in telachinal.

Auh iix, ynacac, ytlacazcauh mochioa, in tlapouhqoj, in

---

53. The chapter on Tlaçolteotl is not included in MS Academia de la Historia nor MS Biblioteca del Palacio. Hence it is not among translations in Seler's Ewige Kapitel, nor, probably, elsewhere.

54. Cf. Eduard Seler, Tonalamatl of the Aztec Collection, p. 93: "It is the goddess who is by the interpreters called Ixcuinan, 'she of the two faces' or 'of two-colored face,' and Tlaçolteotl, 'Goddess of Dirt,' and is explained as goddess of lust, of sensual love, and as patroness of adulterers. . . . She, this goddess, or these goddesses—for under the designation Ixcuina, she was thought of as in the plural number, and, indeed, as sexual by Sahagún in his first book, as four sisters of different age—was the deity who according to this legend, introduced the peculiar illegal sacrifice which was offered to the earth—the drowning to death with arrows." The names of these four sisters were common girls' names. See p. 41.

55. Name of filth or of sorbaca (Seler: op. cit., pp. 92, 94). Sahagún's corresponding Spanish is "ensuciadora de cosas sucias."

[846] 56. Cf. Eduard Seler, op. cit., p. 57, discussing Chalchiuhtlicue and Tlaçolteotl: ". . . the water . . . is not only confluence of the vivifying and evanescent of earthly being, in that it sweeps away all things, but is also the symbol of purification and cleansing; it removes filth, which is sin. Thus speaks the midwife when four days after its birth she subjects the child to a ceremonious washing: 'My son, come unto thy Mother, the Goddess of Water, Chalchiuhtlicue. May the cleanse of the dirt which thou hast of thy father and thy mother'. . . . 'My son, come to thy Mother, the Father, the Lady Chalchiuhtlicue, the Lord Chalchiuhtlatonac . . . come the water, the blue (Matlalcue), the yellow, (Tezpalcue), may it wash thee, may it cleanse thee perfectly, may it take from thee the evil which thou hast from the beginning of the world, which clings to thee from thy father, from thy mother.'" Sahagún (Historia general, Vol. II, pp. 191-2), states ". . . *acostumbraban con que la partera acabaa a la criatura del agua llamada Chalchiuhtlicue y Chalchiuhtlatonac, y decia así: 'Señora nuestra Chalchiuhtlicue y Chalchiuhtlatonac, aquella ha a venirse presente este criatura: rociagme que la vestida.' Dicho esto la partera tomaba el agua echaba sobre ella su vasuelo, y luego la daba a gustar a la criatura y también la tocaba el pecho con ella, y el cabello de la cabeza, a manera de cuando se pone el dios y criatura a los niños, y decíale de esta manera: 'Hijo mio muy amado,—y si era mujer decia, hija mia muy amada—, llegate a vuestra madre y padre la señora Chalchiuhtlicue y Chalchiuhtlatonac; témanse ellos, porque ella es los de lavar a criatura y en las bocas en este mundo.' Y luego metia en el agua a la criatura, y decia: 'Entra hija mia—o hijo mio—en el agua, que es llamada Matlalcue y Tezpalcue; lávate en ella, limpiate d'que cual es todo lugar, y tengo por bien de apartar de ti todo mal que traiste con vos desde antes del principio del mundo.'" Seler (loc. cit.) establishes a connection between Chalchiuhtlicue and Tlaçolteotl. In the fifth week of the Tonalamatl of the Aztec Collection, which is ruled over by Chalchiuhtlicue, the water goddess holds the hand of Tlaçolteotl in her hand. In the Codex Borbonicus for the corresponding fifth week, a stream of water issues from the throne of the water goddess and in the contrast is the breakdown of Tlaçolteotl. These two illustrations mentioned Seler's remarks on the relationship between the two.

57. See Sahagún: Florentine Codex, Lib. VI, cap. xiii (ante, remarks); also Historia general, Vol. II, p. 249.

58. See Chap. VIII. Seler (Ewige Kapitel, p. 5) uses the term Kalendermachinaqui.

the tlapouhqui, wise in reading the sacred almanac which lay in his hand, with the picture [writing], the ink, [and] the colors for painting: the knowledge, the wisdom which hath been uttered.[59]

The penitent who would confess first explained to the seer; he said unto him:

"I wish to go to the master, our lord, the savior and protector of all, our lord Tezcatlipoca,[60] in secret. I wish to have this for myself."

The soothsayer said: "Thou hast been given this favor."

He instructed him when he should come; he chose a favorable time. He saw, in his sacred almanac, what day was good, favorable. It was said: he hath chosen the time.

And when the appointed time [came] he[61] bought a new mat, and incense, and wood. [If he was] a highly honored penitent, he made his confession in his own house; the seer went there. Or perchance the penitent went to him.

He swept well the place where the new mat was placed, and a fire was lit. Then the seer cast the incense into the flames. He addressed the fire; he said:

"Mother of the gods, father of the gods, old god, here hath come a man of low estate. He cometh here weeping, sad, anguished. Perhaps he hath sinned; perhaps he hath erred, perhaps he hath lived in filth. He cometh heavy-hearted; he is sorrowful. Master, our lord, protector of all, also take away, pacify, the torment of this man."

Then the seer spoke unto him who would confess; he said unto him:

"Thou hast come toward the god, protector of all, and [into] his presence. Thou hast come to tell him, to deliver thyself of, thy evil atmosphere, thy corruption. Thou hast come to open thy secrets.

"Take care that thou commit no fault or sin. Take off thy clothing; show thy nakedness to the god, protector of all, our lord Tezcatlipoca.

"Perhaps, being a man, thou wilt not see the god; perhaps he will not speak to thee, being a man; [for] he may not be seen nor touched.

"And so, in this manner, thou comest [to the god], uncover thy secrets, tell thy way of life, thy deeds, in whatsoever way thou art moved, in whatsoever manner it is, whatsoever thou hast done, whatsoever thou hast achieved, whatsoever thou dost which [is] evil and sinful.

"Overturn, pour forth thy vices, thy wrongdoing; [expose] thy evil odor, thy corrupteness.

"And let our lord, protector of all, have pity on thee—tlamatinj, yn jmac mazj, yn amuxtli, yn tlacujlolli: in quipia 776 yn tilli, yn tlapalli, yn matile, yn piale, yn nonotzale, yn 793 equjto 783

yn mojolmelaoez in tlapilchiuale; achto qujtlacaqujtia in tlapouhquj, qujlhuja.

Ca ytechtzinco njnaxitimequj, yn tlacatl, yn totecujo, in tloque naoaque: in totecujo, yioalli, yn ehecatl, ytoptzin, ypetlacaltzin, njcnotztilimequj.

Qujlhuja in tlapouhquj: otimoclacnelili:

qujnaoatia, yn iqujn oallax: qujpepena in tonalli, qujtta [787] yn jamux, yn jtlacujlol: qujtta, yn iqujn qualli tonalli, yn ieccan, in qualcan: mjtoa: qujtonalpepenja.

Auh yn ie ypquac, in ie ynaostilpan, iancujc petlatl quicoa:
yoan copalli, yoan quauitl: yn tlamauizti in tlamaceuhquj, çan ichan yn moiolmelaoa, ie vmpa iauh in tlapouhquj. Auh anoce teujc iauh, in tlamaceuhquj:

iancujc petlatl in motoca, vellachpano yn vncan motlalia;
yoan tletlalilo: njman copalli contema in tleco in tlapouhquj, [788] qujnotza in tletl; qujlhuja.

Tetzu ynnan, tetzu ynta, vexe teutl, njcan oallatia, in cujtlapilli, yn atlapalli, yn macoualli: njcan chocatiujtz, tlaocuztiujtz, motzupoubtiujtz, ancan omalauh, ancan omotepotlamj, ancan oqujnamjc yn vitlallotl, in tocatzaoalli, yn çacamjtl; aquj iolitlaoza, qujtequjpachoa, Tlacatle, totecujoe, tloquehe naoaquehe, manoço xicmocujli, ma xicmocaqujti, yn jnentlamachiliz yn macoualli.

Niman qujnotza, yn moiolmelauhquj, in ichoatl tlapouhquj: qujlhuja.

Tioalmovicatia yujctzinco, iispantzinco, in tloque naoaque;
ticmolhujlico, ticmomaqujlico, yn mjiaca, in mopalanca:
ticmotlapolhujlico, in motop, immopetlacal,

a ma no ceppa ieh njcan timatoisuj, timotepexiuj: ma ispantzinco ximopeptlaoa, ximomaxzuj, in tloque, naoaque, in totecujo, in ioalli, in ehecatl.

A cujx tictlacaittax in totecujo, a cujx mjztlacanotzaz:
ca ioalli, ca ehecatl.

Auh ynjn quen tiujtz, ma xictlapo im motop, in mopetlacal: ma xicpoa in monemjliz, in motlachioal, yvin quenja ticmati, yvin quenja cah: in quenja muchiuh, in quenja tax;
in quenja ticchiuh, in monequal, in monequauitec:

xicnoquj, xicpetlanj, in maiectica, in maqualtica, in mjiaca in mopalanca.

Auh xicmoclaocuilanocchili, yn totecujo, in tloque naoaque,

---

59. Cf. Florentine Codex, loc. cit., and Sahagún, Historia general, loc. cit.

60. Cf. corresponding Spanish text. Sahagún, op. cit., Vol. I, p. 67, and Vol. II, p 71, gives as meanings of yoalli, ehecatl (1) "espíritu, aire y invisible"; and (2) "dios invisible sin imagen . . . impalpable, y favorecedor y amparador y independiente, por cuya virtud todos viven. . . ." Angel María Garibay K, Llave del náhuatl (Oaxaca, México: n. p., 1959), p. 113, translates tloque naoaque as "que está cerca y junto"—the one, God in general.

61. Context suggests that penitent refers to the penitent.

776 783 who, stretching forth his arms to thee, embraceth thee and carrieth thee upon his back.[62]

● 793 "Be daring; be not timid because of shame; be not backward."

[627] Then the penitent [swore an oath to tell the truth, by] touching earth, and cast incense upon the fire. Thereupon he seated himself before the soothsayer and spoke for [the seer] was the representative, the deputy, the likeness [of the goddess]:

"Our lord, protector of all, because thou perceivest my evil odor, my vices, I take off my clothing and uncover, in thy presence, my nakedness—[that is,] the things I have taken, the things that I have done. Can these things be hidden and darkened, when they are reflected and clear in thy sight?"

Then he began [the tale of] his sins—whatsoever he had done; as if he were offering a song, proceeding thus, talking, doing it as if he were following a road. Much [in that way] he followed [the tale of] his sins. So he proceeded.

785 776 783 793 And when he ended his words, then had he told all his sins.

Then answered the seer, the warden [of the god]; he said unto him:

"Behold, thou hast spoken to the god; thou hast offered him thy deeds and thy misdeeds.

"And behold, this thou shalt do. When the Cuaspipilti descend, when the feast of the Cuaspipilti or the Izcuiname is celebrated,[63] thou shalt fast four days. Thou shalt starve thy entrails; thou shalt parch thy lips.

"And when it is the day of the feast, at night thou shalt pierce thy tongue with straws and maguey spines. With these thou shalt thus repent thy sins. These thou thus payest in blood.

"And thou shalt pass these straws, as many as thou wishest, whether straws or maguey spines. And thou shalt pass these straws either through thy ears or through thy tongue.

"And thou shalt thus pass the straws through thy tongue; but take care lest thou do penance only to earn merit. Rather [thou shalt do it] to expiate thy sinful life; thou shalt offer blood for thy sins; [therefore] shalt thou break open thy tongue, inserting [the straw] from in front of thee.

"When thou drawest it through, thou shalt cast it down behind thee, either each one [alone] as thou takest it out, or else thou shalt gather them, binding them together, even four hundred [of them], even eight hundred of the straws, which thou shalt have passed through thy tongue.

"Thus shalt thou cleanse thyself of thy faults and thy sins."

in momaqualtitica, y macochetica, in tepuztetica; ximotlapalo, ma timopinoquetz, ma titzicolo.

Nimã õdalqua in tlamaceuhquj, omopaltema: njman ixpan motlalia in tlapouhquj: qujlhuja, injc teviujti, ynjc tepatiloti, ynjc teiziptla.

Totecujuc, tloquehe, naoaquehe: ca ticmocujlia, ca ticmocaqujtia, in njiaca in nopalanca: mixpantzinco, njnopepetlaoa, njnomamazauja: ca omaz, ca onjechiuh: cujx ichtaca, cujx tlaitoaian, ca tencac, ca tlavilpan im mixpantzinco, yn omaz.

Niman ompeoaltia: in jtlapilchioalix, vel iujn quenjn cah, vel yujn quenjn qujchiuh: yn maca çan cujcatl, omca çan jvin conoua, omcan yvin conjtoa, yn juh qujchiuh, in imaca çan vel, omcan qujtocatiuh yn jtlachioal, yn juhuj omcan qujtocatiuh.

Auh yn otlamjto yn jtlatol, yno muchi qujto ytlachioal:

qujnanqujlia, yn tlapouhquj, yn jztli, yn nacastli muchioa, in teujujti, in tepatiloti: qujlhuja.

O ca ticmononochilia, ca ticmomaqujlia, in tloque naoaque, im motlachioal, in monequavitec.

Auh ynjn, ca izca yn taix, yn ticchicaz: yn jquac temoa, yn jquac temo cioapipilti, anoço yn jquac ymjlhujuh cioapipilti, yn jzcujname: nauJlujtl timoçaoaz, timocujtlaxculçaoaz, timotemoatiaz.

Auh yn iquac vel jlhujtl, in ie oallatujh, in ioaltica tiçacatlaçaz, titlacoqujztiz: ynjn motlapilchioal, iuh tiznamjctiz y: auh ynjn iuh namjque ez y:

auh jn quenjn ticnequix, iuh ticnequix: yntla tiçacatlaçaz, iehoatl in trucalçacatl tiqujztiz, anoço tlacotl. Auh aço monacazaco in titlaqujztiz, anoço monenepilco.

Auh ynjc tiqujztiz: ca amo ma çan titlamaceua, ca teuhtli, tlaçulli in tictlaça, tictlacuçoa, ticcujtlacueponiz, ỹ monenepil, mixpampa ticaquix, motzintlan in ticqujztiz, in tictlaçaz: aço çan ocen in ticqujztiz, anoço çan ticcenqujztiz, tictlatlaçalhuiz, yn aço centzontli, aço vntzontli, in ticqujztiz tlacotl:

ic polixiz, in motlatlacul, in motlapilchioal, im monequal.

62. Cf. Note 56.

63. See Cap. X. The Cuaxtecs or Cuaspipilti were thought to be earth-goddesses who descended to earth in the form of eagles; they instilled men to sin and crime.

And if the sins of the penitent were only light, [the priest] said unto him:

"Thou shalt parch thy lips, thou shalt fast, thou shalt starve thy entrails for four days."

Or else he said unto him:

"Thou shalt sing and dance [for the goddess]; thou shalt hang rubber-spotted papers [as offerings] and fashion images [for her]."

Or else, he said unto him:

"Thou hast done wrong, truly, with wine. Thou shalt satisfy the gods of wine, the Totochtin."

And he thus commanded him, and said unto him:

"When thou goest, when thou dost thy penance at night, thou shalt take nothing with thee. Thou shalt go naked. Thou shalt gird thy loins with paper painted with pointed figures,[64] spreading one piece behind thee, [and one] at thy feet.

"And when thou shalt return, there before our lords, the gods, thou shalt cast off thy paper skirt."

And when he had done his penance, then he went to his house.

Thus in the end he changed to a good life. It was said that if he were to sin again—so it was said,—no longer might he gain mercy therefor.

It was said that they told only of great vanities, grave violence, adultery, [and only] the aged so spoke.

Thus the aged confessed—it was said—that they might not be punished here on earth for their sins; if they were adulterers, so that their heads might not be pierced, or beaten with stones, [therefore] they confessed.

The soothsayer, before whom were laid [one's] sins, nowhere spoke of what had been placed before him, of what had been said in secret.

For what was said in secret was not for him, but was given and told in secret to the god. And him mortal man might not see.

Thirteenth Chapter, which telleth of the little gods—the lesser [ones],[65] who were considered the very old gods.

Turquoise Lord (Xiuhtecutli)—the yellow-faced one, the holy flame. This one was known as fire, [as] the old god, [as] our father.

He was thought a god, considering that he burned one, he consumed one, he scorched the fields. And for many purposes he was useful; for [with fire, thus] one was warmed, things were cooked on a plate, things were cooked in a pot, pottery was fired, salt was burned, syrup was boiled, charcoal was burned, the lime was burned; things were fried,

Auh intla çan xicca, yn jtlapilchiual, tlamacxuhqui: 785
quilhuia, timoxmoxtzaz, titlacatlaquaz, timocujtlaxculçaoaz, 776 xauilhujtl: 783

anoço quilhuia

titlatotix, timotetzuhcaoaz, titepiquix: 793

anoço quilhuia.

ca nel vetli, yn jpan otitlaneçomalti, tiquinquixtiz in totochtin.

Auh quilhuia, ynic quinnaxtia:

yn iquac tiaz, yn titlamacxoaz ioaltica, atle motech vetztiaz, tipetlauhtiaz: yn momaxac, amatl tlaitzcupecalli in mantiaz: centiri mjcampa, motzintlampa, mantiaz.

Auh yn iquac ticalmocuepaz, vmpa tocontlaçaz yn jmjxpan totecujooan, yn teteu, yn mamacue.

Auh yn iquac otlamacxuh, njman oalauh yn jchan:

ic cenmajax, monemjlincuepa: quilmach intla oc cepa tlatlacoz, quil ça aocmo tlaoculilonj.

Quilmach çan yio vey nequalli, vey nequauitectli, in tetlaximalixtli: in quitoaia veuetque.

Jnic moiolmelaoaia veuetque: quilmach, ichoatl, ynic amo tlacujtlilooque, njcan tlaltiepac, yn jxtlapilchioal: yntla otetlaxini ynic amo quatetlaxilloz, ynic amo quatepitzinjloz, ynic amo quatetzotzomaloz, moiolmelaoa.

Jn tlapouhqui, yn jixpan tlalilo, tlapilchioalli: çan njmaan acan quitoa, in tlein ixpan tlalilo, in tlein illhujlo:

ipampa ca amo ieh yn jlhujlo, in nonoczalo, ca tloque, ca neoque, in maco, in jlhujlo, in tlapilchioalli: ca amo ieh motta, in macroalli.

Jnic matlactli vmey, capitulo: yntechpa tlatoa, yn tepitoan teteuh: yn quintaquilia, yn omoteneuhque, yn vuecintin teteuh.

Xiuhtecutli: inconauhquj, yoan cueçaltzin. Jehoatl motocaiotia in tletl, anoço veue teutl yoan tota:

teutl ipan machoia: iehica, ca tetlatia, tepaloa, techichinoa, tlachinoa: yoan mjec tlamantli, ynjc tlacuelia: ca ic neixcolo, ic tlapanoxo, ic tlacuzitilo, ic tlaxco, ic iztatlatilo, ic necutlatilo, ic tecullatilo, ic tomextlatilo, ic tlatetzitzonjlo, yc tlatzoionjlo, ic tlatlecoztualo, yc tetlecujlolo, ic temaxcallatilo, ic ontlatilo, ic tlaxextlatilo.

[684]

64. The most characteristic emblem of Tlazolteotl is a broom wrapped with a tlaitzcapinolli—paper impressed with pointed figures (see Codex Borbonicus, month of Ochpaniztli). The paper loin cloth is no doubt of this same pattern. Probably the huipil worn by the goddess in the illustration (Plate 12) is a good indication of the design of the loin cloth.

65. Corresponding Spanish text line: "que son menores en dignidad que los arriba dichos."

776 Quetzalcoatl, Chalchiuitl ycue, Tlaloc, Popocatepetl, Iztac
782 tepetl, Poiauhtecatl,[117] and any other mountains of which they had vowed to make representations.

And they represented the mountains, they made their 532 images, only in a dough of amaranth seed and maize,[118]
782 made in human form, made to look like men.

They gave them teeth of squash seeds; they provided them
755 eyes of fat black beans. With whatever adornment [the mountains] were represented, thus when they made them, they thereupon arrayed them.

[314 And they made papers, and they spattered them with 289] liquid rubber.[119] And they laid these over them as mantles.

And some of these papers, which were spattered with drops of liquid rubber, they hung on a cord, tied and fastened together, so that they were held in a row before the small molded ones [Tepicme].

They rustled, quivered, and flew in the breeze. Canes of fat, round reeds [held the cord] at both ends; [the canes] were stuck into and supported by the ground. On this were held the rubber-spotted papers.

[415] And a green spotted gourd was split in two and cored. Before [the Tepicme] they set this, which they called the turquoise cup, for the wine, in which the wine was. Thus they offered [them] wine.

793 And it was the office of the priests alone, who were experi-
532 enced, to make [the Tepicme] and set them in place. None of the householders dared make or adorn them.

And on the fifth [day], when they feasted the priests, it was said, they caused them to forget.

782 When the Tepicme were fashioned, thereupon they held
755 a vigil and made music for them.

During the night, they made offerings four times; they set before the priests, before them who sang the songs for the Tepictoton, round tamales which they gave them.

And four times they offered them food during the night, and they made music for [the Tepictoton].

[198 They whistled with their fingers, they made music for 533] them with ehella, with flutes, and with fifes.

Young jesters, in their caps, who cut capers, and amused
[273 people, blew the flutes. They also were offered food.

463] And on the next day they slew the Tepictoton [images]; they slew them, like sacrificial quail, twisting their necks. Then they gathered up and carried away the Tepictoton figures made of a dough of amaranth-seed and maize to the priests' house, where dwelt the priests.

And he who [caused to be] fashioned the Tepicme thereupon returned to his guests, where they were entertained.

273 And in the evening, toward nightfall, then all the old 782 people set drinking wine—those already advanced in age, the 755 papucatepetl, iztac tepetl, poiauhtecatl: yoan in çaço quetzaljtetl tepetl in qujtemoaz in qujpiqui.

Auh in qujpipiqui, in qujmixipletoiaia in tepe, çan tzoalli, qujtlacatlaliaia, qujtlacatlachiolteia, tlacatlachiteaxca:

qujtlantaia xiocuechtli, auh in qujmjxtlolotiaia xiocutli: in quemamj yxtlatzaj in qujmixipletoiaia, in qujpipiqujia çan no iohqui yxjc qujnchichioaia.

Auh yoan qujchioaia, amatzaujtl, colchachapatzaia, colchipiniaia, qujpaqueuiaia:

auh in cequi amatzaujtl, tlaolchipinjlli, tlaolchachapatzalli, mecatitech qujpipiloaia, mecatitech qujmomechilpiaia, qujmomechçalouia, ymjxpan anoc, ic itzacutoque in tepicme:

hiçamacatoc papapatlacatoc, papatlantoc, ontopilquauitl, necoc, nemeneoc, necoccampa tlatlalacticac, tentozontiteac, yn itech anoc tetzujtl.

Auh tzilacaiutli, tlaixtlapantli, tlaittitatactli: ymixpan mamanca, chalchiuhxicalli ipan poujia, vctli vnca ca, vctli ic mamanca.

Auh çan iehoan in tlamacazque, yn jntequiuh, in machiceque catca, yn qujnchichioaia, in qujntlaliaia: aiac çan moiocuiaia, in calla in qujnchichioaia.

Auh ceçujltica in qujntlalhujaia, mjtoa: qujnmolcaoaltiaia in tlamacazque:

yn o ie cauhque tepicme, njman ie ic qujntoçaviia, qujncujcatia:

in cricual napa in qujntlamanjlia, tamalololli in qujnmacaia, qujmanaia ymjxpã, in tlamacazque, in tepicujca:

no napa in qujntlamacaia cricual, yoan qujntlapichilizaia, qujnmaquiquitzilaia tecuicintli in qujnpichilaia, yoan vilacapitzli, cocoujlotl, vilacapitzoaia, çan telpopochti, papaquinj, haavienj, mihivienj, tecomaltianj, cocoleque, no tlamacoia.

Auh yn ozlavic njman qujmictia yn tepicme, qujnquechcotona, qujnquechcuj, qujnquechilacatzoa, çanpan qujncomololoa, comecicuj, in tepictzoalli, qujtquj yn calmecac yn vmpa onoque, tlamacazque.

Auh in tepiquinj, njman in yc calaquijh yn ielacuonomalhuan, yn jcuaxoan, vncan onopia, onopiztoque:

auh in ie iuxatiuh, in ie tevtlac niman ie ic tlaxaxa, motlaxancatalalia in vecatlaca, yn ie chicaueque, yn otlachi-

117. Gods of the air, of water, and of rain (cf. corresponding Spanish text). Popocatepetl and Iztac tepetl (Iztac cloud) are mountain-peaks in the Valley of Mexico; Poiauhtecatl is Mt. Orizaba.

118. Made of dough (tzoalli), in the Spanish columns; Sahagun renders it masa; see Seler, Gesammelte Abhandlungen (Einige Kapitel, p. 27).

119. ". . . como papeles llenos de goteo de oli, a los cuales papeles llamaban amatzaujtl" (Sahagún, Historia general, Vol. 1, p. 120).

One day before they slew the woman who was to die in honor of the goddess Xilonen, the women who served on the pyramid (who were called cioatlamacazque) performed a dance in the courtyard of this same pyramid, and sang the [hymns of] praise and the canticles of this goddess. They all went surrounding her who was to die [and] who went bedight in the ornaments of this goddess. In this way, singing and dancing, they kept watch all night before the day when she was to die.

And at dawn all the nobles and warriors performed a dance in this same courtyard, and with them also danced the woman who was to die, with many other women arrayed like her. The men went dancing in front, by themselves, and the women went behind them.

As soon as all, thus dancing, arrived at the pyramid where that woman was to die, they made her go above, up the steps. When she reached the top, one [of the priests] took her upon his back, shoulder against shoulder; and in this position, they struck off her head and then tore out her heart and offered it to the sun. Many other ceremonies were enacted in this feast. Etc.

Vn dia antes que matassen a la muger que auja de morir: a honrra de la diosa xilonẽ: las mugeres que serujã en el cu (que se llamauã cioatlamacazque) haziã areyto en el patio del mjsmo cu, y cantauan los loores y cantares desta diosa, yvan todas rodeãdas de la que avia de morir, que yva compuesta con los ornamẽtos desta diosa. Desta manera cantando y baylando: velauan toda la noche precediẽte el dia en que avia de morir.

Y en amaneciendo todos los nobles y hõbres de guerra: hazian areyto en el mjsmo patio, y con ellos baylaua tambiẽ la muger que auja de morir, con otras muchas mugeres adereçadas como ella: los hombres yvan por si baylãdo delante y las mugeres yvan tras ellos.

Desque todos assi baylando: llegauã al cu donde auja de morir aquella muger, subiãla por las gradas arriba: llegada arriba tomauãla vno a cuestas espaldas cõ espaldas: y estãdo assi, la cortauan la cabeça y luego la sacauã el coraçon y le ofreciã al sol: Otras muchas cerimonjas se haziã en esta fiesta. Etc.

stamped upon them, they trampled upon their outstretched bodies, they jumped upon them; they beat them [as they lay stretched] on the ground; they dragged them along; they made them cry out; they beat them—they beat their backs; they beat them sorely; they kicked them as they fled away.

mecamauj, qujntzatzatzitia, qujnujujtequj, qujncujtlaujujtequj, qujzipetlavitequj, qujncujtlamelaoa.

796x 688

And when these had been robbed, when they had been stripped, then they [could] only turn back, they [could] only go back to their homes.

Auh yn ontlacujcujliloque, yn onpepetlaoaloque, çan vncan mocuepa, çan vncan iloti yn jnchan:

[For] even if [that which was taken] was verily tribute, even this [the priests] took. Moctezuma was not wrathful therefor. For they [who robbed] were penitents; he held them in reverence; he feared them because they were priests, because they did penances and laid offerings before [the gods]; for they were priests.

in tlanellacalaquijlli, vel qujcuja, amo ic qualanja in Motecuçoma ichica ca tlamaceuhque, compopoa contepopoaltiaia, qujpopooaia ynjc tlamacazque, ynic tlamaceoa, ymixco ymicpac qujmanaia, ynic tlamacazque.

[793]

And when they had arrived [at the temple], when the white reeds[5] had been brought, thereupon were sewn together and woven these reeds. They fashioned green and white mats[6] of the reeds, and, binding the reeds, they made stools, and they made seats with backs on which men might rest. In the same manner were fashioned, with the green and white reeds, seats with backs.

Auh yn oacico, yn ocazitico aztapili: njman ic ic moço, moçoço, in aztapili: qujchioa yn aztapilpetlatl, yoan qujilpia in toli, tolicpalli qujchioaia, yoan qujchioaia tepotzoicpalli netlaxonj: çãnoie ic muchioa in aztapili, aztapiltepotzoicpalli.

796x 285 352

Thereupon they bound some thin reeds in a bundle. And when they had tied them in a bunch, then they were arranged in order, sewed, girt tightly, on the ground, with magueyy roots, with fibers of magueyy.

Niman ic ic acquj qujcujcujtlalpia, in tuli in tulpitzaoac: auh yn omocujcujtlalpi, njman ic ic mouipana, tlalpan molpitiuh, mocacatzilpitiuh menelhoatica metzonmecatica.

796x 284

And when this had been done, then began the fasting in honor of Tlaloc. When night fell, then the priests all gathered in the priests' dwellings—the warrior-priests [who had taken three or four captives], and the priests [who had captured only one];[7] then those priests who were singers and beaters [of drums]; then all the lesser priests, and those who were yet children, the novice priests.

Auh in ic iuhquj in ic vmpeoaz, netlalocaçaoalizitli: yn oiooac njman mocacaltema, necacaltemalon tlamacazque: in tlamacazcatequjoaque tlamacazcayiaque: njman iehoan in tlamacazque cujcanjme, tlaujtequjnj: njman ic muchintin, in tlamacazcatricaoan, yoan in oc pipiltotonti tlamacazcatoton, tlamacatoto.

796x 793

And when this had come to pass, then were spread upon the ground before the fire the [white and green] mats, the reed beds.

Auh in ic iuhquj, njman ic ic onmoteca, tlecujlixquac, in aztapilpetlatl, in aztapilpepechtli:

796x

And when they had spread out the reed mats, the fire priest arrayed himself. He put on his sleeveless jacket and placed on his left arm [the maniple] called matacaztli.[8] auh yn onmoçouh aztapilpetlatl: njman ic muchichioa in tlenamacac, conmaquja yn iztcol, yoan conaquja yn iopuchcopa, itoca matacaztli:

And with it he took the incense bag, and he took his incense burner [in his right hand]. Thereupon yoan itlan conana in copalxiqujpilli, yoan concuj

1. Sahagún's Spanish text specifies of these reeds: "todo lo q̃ era drecho del agua, es muy blanco."
4. In loc. cit., Sahagún states that the reeds were shortened (probably bottom to top): "Luego las cortaban, y emmapujaban, emmapujaban, y emmapujaban, lo blanco a lo verde: a manera de manteles grandes." Elsewhere, he refers to "petates jaspeados, de juncias blancas y verdes."
5. The number of caqueres is explained in loc. cit.
6. Cf. Andrews and Dibble, op. cit., p. 1, n. 8.

X796 he offered incense; he went furth to stand outside the entrance; he went forth to stand in the courtyard.

in itlema: njman ic ic tlenamaca, qujsoac oalmoquetza, itoalco oalmoquetza:

The fire priest[7] raised it to the four directions. And having done so, he cast the coals in the brazier; he then went in, and placed himself by the fire.

nauhcampa in conjaoa yn tlenamacac: auh in ie inhquj, contema tlequazco tlexochtli, mec calaquj, onmotlalia tlecujlixquac:

[262] Then in his turn he laid down four balls of dough made of maize, placing them very cautiously, very heedfully, very warily. If one [of the balls] rolled, then they seized him; he was apprehended. The priests said unto him:

vncan contema nauhtetl ynepapatlaia, ventelolodi, cencan tlamatzin, cencan juja, cencan matca in contlalia: intla centetl oqujmjmjlo, ic caci, yc axioa, conjlhuja in tlamacazque.

"We priests have detained thee, for thou hast rolled [it]."

Otimjzacique tlamacazque, ca otitlamjmjlo.

And the fire priest then entered [the temple]. Thereupon he sat down, and undid and removed [his adornment]. Then all the priests arranged themselves in front, and one by one, in turn, they placed on the ground the balls of dough.

Auh in tlenamacac, mec calaquj: njman ic motlatlalia, motixitinja, moueueloa; njman ic onmoiacatia yn ixqujchtin tlamacazque, cecciaca cõtlalitimanj yn jnnepapatlaia, in ventelolotli.

[824 262] And some laid down four large, red and white tomatoes, or four small tomato buds;[8] and some spread out four green peppers.

Auh in cequjnti xitomatl, anoço itoatomatl in concaoaia nauhtetl: auh in cequjntin chilchotl in contemaia, nauj:

They were watched well; all looked very closely, all observed carefully, lest mayhap one might roll one [of them]—lest perchance one might move or displace it or disturb it with his hand or displace it with his hand. And if anyone knocked [one of them], they laid hands upon him, they discovered him, they made him known, they marked him.

cenca vellachiclo, vel neixpetzolo, vel neixpepetzalo, yn açaca tlamjtnjloz, yn açaca tlaoliniz, yn açaca tlamapetoniz, yn açaca tlamaxopeoaz. Auh intla aca otlamjmjlo, caci, conjximati, conmachiotia:

And if they noted on one [even] a little dirt, or a cobweb, or a small piece of cotton on either his head or his cape, then they seized him and marked him. Perchance one stumbled, slipped, or fell down. All [such malefactors] were seized.

yoan intla aca ytech qujttazque, tlaçoltontli, anoço tocatzaoalli, anoço ichcatontli: aço icpac, anoço itilmatitech, ic caci, conmachiotia: anoçe motepotlamja, moticujnja, anoço motlaujtequj, muchi ic neixioa:

Four days this was done, and four nights, that all acted with prudence.

naujlhujtl ynjn muchioaia, yoã nauhioal, in nematcanemoaia.

And after that the old priests[9] took away [the offerings]. They took for themselves what they wished [of the offerings], and ate them. Four days they took for themselves those things which had been laid as offerings.

Auh in ie inhquj, njman ic quiquanja in quaquacujlti: qujmocujlia intech monequj, qujqua: naujlhujtl in qujmocujliaia, in motlauenenjaia:

[262]

And when it was not yet midnight, then shell trumpets were blown. And when they were blown, then all unclothed themselves and cut maguey spines and pierced their ears with thorns. Thereupon were the spines stained with blood, and all [the priests] were smeared with blood. And they all arose.

auh yn xiamo onaci icalnepantla, mec tlapitzalo: auh yn ontlapitzaloc, njman ic nepepetlaoalo, yoan neuitzteco, yoan nenacazteco: njman ic ic meçuja in vitztli, yoan neçua: auh in ie inhquj mec nequetzalo.

[793]

7. Sahagún (Robredo ed., Vol. I, p. 299) distinguishes three grades of priests—"tlamacazque (que) es como sacerdote; . . . tlamacazqui, que es como diácono; . . . tlenamacac, que es como acólito. De estos sacerdotes los mayores eligían por sumos pontífices. . . ."
8. Itoatomatl: leaf (Molina, op. cit.), or species of tomato (Simeón, op. cit.).
9. In the corresponding Spanish text, Sahagún describes "unos viejos, que llamaban quaquacujlti: los quales traían los curos tebidos de magueys, manojudos como en la cuerda de la cabeça, que traía los cabellos largos, al modo de los clérigos."

All went to be bathed. They went sounding trumpets; they went blowing shell trumpets; they beat copper discs[10] with pine [hammers].

And all the priests carried on their backs their tobacco bags,[11] and their strings of maguey fiber about the neck, from which went hanging the little bags, which were filled with dyed, powdered tobacco. And the fire priest went ahead of them, taking his incense burner and his maguey thorn. And, with it, he carried his incense bag.

And leading them went a man, an old priest. He went bearing on his shoulders the mist rattle board, called also the sorcerers' staff, which was thick, broad, very wide, and long—very long. And it rattled; he went along rattling it.

No one else remained at the priests' dwelling; the house was all empty, deserted, tenantless.

And only four stayed there—singers, who sat singing, beating the drum, rattling the turtle shell rattle and the gourd rattle, and blowing the shell trumpet. They sat plying the shell trumpet.

And when they had reached the water's edge, the priests' bathing place, where, at the cardinal points, were the mist houses, thereafter all threw themselves down and seated themselves, trembling, shivering, quaking with cold, their teeth chattering.

Hereupon spoke the old man called the old precious stone priest; he said:

"[Behold] the place where the serpents are wrathful, where the water-gnats buzz, the place where the ducks alight, where the white reeds rustle."

When he had thus spoken, thereupon all plunged into the water; they churned it up—beating the water with their hands and with their feet, crying out. Speaking hoarsely, they mimicked all the birds.

Some spoke like ducks, babbling; some mimicked wading birds, speaking like them; some imitated water ravens, talking like them; some talked like [large] herons, some like kingfishers, some like cranes.[12]

Where they bathed, there in their midst were

Vilos, onnevtemalo, tlapitzalotiuh, qujpitztiuj, in tecciztli, cohcouiloc chililizli. [276 X 534]

Auh in muchintin tlamacazque, qujmamama yn imiyiequach, ynmecacozquj, inmemecacozquj, itech pipilcatiuh yn imiiequach, ontetentiuh yiaqualli: yoan qujniacantiuh in tlenamacac, ytlemauh ietiuh, yoan yuitz ietiuh: yoan itlan cana icopalxiqujpil. [276]

Auh ce tlacatl quacujlli teiacantiuh, qujquechpanotiuh, aiochicaoaztli, no itoca nacalquauajtl, patlaoac, patlactic, patlacpol: yoan viiac, vitlatztic, yoan cacalaca, qujcacalatztiuh [789] aocac ce onmocaoã calmecac, cemjchictiuh, cactimoquetza, cactiuetzi in calmecac.

Auh çan naujntin in vmpa onmocaoa cujcanjme, cujcatoque, teponaçotoque, aiochiuhtoque, aiacachotoque; qujpitztoque in qujqujztli, qujqujçotoque. [534]

Auh yn oacito atenco, yn jnnealtiaia tlamacazque: nauhcampa in manca yn aiauhcalli, njman ie ic neteteco, netlalilo, tlatzitzilca, tlaviujioca, tlacuecuechca, netlantzitzilitzalo: [823] in ie iuhquj njman ic tlatoa, in vetue itoca chalchiuhquaqujlli: qujtoa. [793]

Coatl yçomocaiã, amoiotl ycaoacaian, atapalcatl ynechiccanaoan, aztapilcuecuetlacaian:

yn oconjto y, njman ie ic onnetepeoalon atla, tlachachaquatztinemj, yn atlan, tlamaujtectinemj, tlacziujtectinemj, atlacziuitectinemj, tzatzitinemj, ycaoacatinemj, qujntlaichecalhuja yn izqujchtin totome: [198]

cequj canauhtlatoa, tlacacauja, ceq'ntin qujntlaichecalhuja, in pihpiztzi, pipiztzlatoa: cequjntin qujntlaichecalhuja, yn acacalotoc, acacalotlatoa: cequjntin aztatlatoa, cequjntin azoquenzlatoa, cequjn tocujlcoiotlatoa: [825]

yn vncan maltiaia yn, tlanepantla manca in cuen- [136]

10. Cf. Gabriel Saldívar: Historia de la música en México (Mexico: Editorial "Cultura," 1934), p. 21; ocomaitl: ocomitlo (ocoal)(?).

11. "Todos llevaban a cuestas, como talegillos colgados con unos cordelejos de Ixtli, con unas bolsas al cuello; y de otras colgaban, unas llenas de polvo pintado, cernido con las mismas talegas, que llamaban yaqualli; y en aquellas talegas llevaban unos manojos de hierba, hechos a la manera de cabezal de varones, que eran llamados yaqujpilli, que eran adornados con tinta, y con polvos de una yerba que eran llamados yiiol, que se como hebdos de cantillo" (corresponding Spanish text).

Clark (op. cit., Vol. I, p. 57n.) writes: "Acujpil: small cane, yiil tobacco. The Mexicans had three kinds in use: the yiil or Nicotiana tacamica Schl.; the quauhyiil: quauhchic nicotiana, yiil tobacco, or Nicotiana rustica L.; and pinolyiil: pinolic small, yiil tobacco, or Nicotiana tabacum L. Tobacco either as snuff or charcoal in pellets called yaqualli: yiil tobacco, yaqualli yiiol, or smoked as cigars or puryiil: yaqualli ocoaiã, yiil tobacco. When smoked, tobacco was mixed with cochineal, aromatic herbs, and charcoal." Cf. also ibid., Vol. II, p. 134.

12. These birds are described in Lib. XI, cap. ii, § 3 of Sahagún. Cf. Robredo ed., Vol. III, pp. 168-81. Saldívar defines them respectively as (probably) green-winged teal; ibis; American egret or heron; kingfisher (amquaxo or amquaxocatl); and sandhill crane (Biología Azteca, p. 118, items 3-7).

And if anyone should stumble, if anyone went not there, if he loitered, for this he was detained.

And if there were any who tarried, if they made not haste, if any ceased walking, [if they] did not lay down their reeds with the others, for this they seized [such an one]; for this all [such] were then made captive.

And this was done for four days.

And in these four days, whosoever had been seized might well be freed, might well ransom himself; he might yet escape [in return for] perhaps a turkey, perchance a breech clout, mayhap a cape, or a magney fiber cape, or a small cotton manta.

And the poor, these ransomed themselves with a wooden plate with balls of dough.[11]

And all which was paid, all this, the capter, he who detained them, the accuser, took.

And upon the fifth day, on the day of the feast, one might no longer ransom himself; even though it were something very great [as a gift] that [one offered] to excuse oneself, no longer might he try.

And when the feast day [came], then all the common folk made cooked maize and beans for themselves—etzalli was made; everyone did so; [for] none did not prepare maize and beans for himself.

And when they were cooked, then they were eaten; they presented it to one another. Some thus feasted others.

And some who took their pleasure and some of the warriors danced; and they did thus only to divert themselves.

Thus were they adorned—they had circles about their eyes and carried their sheaves of dried maize. They kept going from house to house, singing and dancing the etzalli song. They went about bearing a handled jar, the etzalli jar, in their hands.

And thus they danced, sang, and chanted: "I do it; I do it. [Give me] a little of thy etzalli. If thou givest me none, I shall break a hole into thy house."

And the householders then offered them a measure of etzalli, and went to place it in the etzalli jar.

In fives, in sixes, in sevens gathered those who danced.

This etzalli dance began at midnight, and only at daybreak all dispersed, and it became quiet.

And when the sun arose, then was adorned the fire priest. He put on his sleeveless jacket; over it he placed his [thin, transparent, netted] cape, called the 11. "Buñuelo de masa" in Sahagún's Spanish text.

Auh intla aca motlaujtequiz: yoan intla aca amo vmpa itztiaz, intla miscuepaz, ic axioa. 796

Auh intla aca, amo qujxtiaci, intlacamo teictiaci: intla aca icxicaoalo, yn amo tzhoan contemaz acatl, ic caci, ic nemaltilo.

Auh ynjn naujlhujtl in muchioaia:

auh in naujlhujtl y, yn aqujque axioa, oc vel momaquixtia, oc vel moquixtia, oc vel maquiça: aço tzotolin yca, aço maxtlatl ica, aço tilmatli, aço ichtilmatli, aço tequachtli ica. [291]

Auh yn jcnotlacatl ichoatl in uentelolotli, ic moquixtiaia, cen quauhxicalli:

auh yn jxquich nequjxtilonj, moch qujmocujlia in tlamanj, in teaci, in teacinj.

Auh in ie ic macujlilhujtl, in ie yquac ilhujtl, aocac vel moquixtiaia, inmanel itla cenca vey ic moquixtiaia, aocmo qujceliaia.

Auh in ie iquac ilhujtl, yn ixquich tlacatl maceoalli, qujmochiujliaia etzalli, metzalhujaia, vel cenvetzi, aiac yn macamo metzalhujaia: [292] auh yn iquac oicucic, njman quaqualo, netech qujmomamaca, nepanotl ic mococoochioa.

Auh in cequjntin papaqujnj, yn ahaujcni: yoan in cequjntin tiacaoan, mamaceoa çan ic mellelquixtia:

injc muchichioa mixteiaiaoaltia, incintopil, cacalactinemj in techachan, etzalmaceoa: intlan caantinemj xocujcolli etzalcoanjtl.

Auh ynjc mamaceoaia queoaia. Yn naie yn naie tla achi in metzal, intlacamo xinechmaca, njmjtzcalixxapotlaz.

Auh in chaneque, njman qujoalmaca, cen tlaololli etzalli, contlalicinj yn etzalcoanjc:

cequj macujlli, cequj chiquacen, cequj chicome, mantinemj in mamaceoa.

Jnjn etzalmaceoaliztli, icalnepanda in peoaia, çan ic tlatlalchipaoa, in necaceualo, cactiaetzi, [535] auh yn oealquiz tonatiuh, njman ie ic muchichioa in tlenamacac, conmaquja yn ixiool, pani conmololoa aizl, itoca xiuhqueanjtl, anoço aoachquenjtl, [293 292]

[796] [793] [292]

must cape[16] or the dew cape, adorned with [crossed] parrot feathers. Then he carried upon his back his round, pleated paper flower,[17] and from the nape of his neck hung a semicircular pleated paper flower.[18] tritziuhio: njman conmomamaltia, in tlaquechpaniotl, yuan conmatiuh y cuexcochtlan amacuexpalli:

[302]

And his forehead was painted blue, and, besides, he placed iron pyrites upon it; he sprinkled iron pyrites.[19] yoan mixquatexoujxia, oc cepa ipan conapetzujaia, conapetzotiaia:

[824]

And in his hand he took his paper incense bag, with shells attached, covered with sea shells, also known as a sea shell incense bag. It was filled with sweet-smelling herbs, with ground-up yauhtli.[20] yoan itlan cantiuh yiatzztli cuechcho, tlacuechiotilli, no iuh mjtoa cuechiatzztli, vncan tentiuh yiauhtli, yiauhtlatextli:

And an old priest[21] bore upon his shoulders the mist rattle board.

yuan cc quacujlli conquechpanoa, aiauhchicaoztli:

[314]

And a number of priests carried in their arms rubber [molded] like men adorned as gods, called rubber gods.

auh in cequjntin tlamacazque, qujnanapaloa vlli, iuhqujn tlaca ic tlachichioalti, motocaiotia vlrteu:

[237]

Some bore in their arms [pieces of] incense, quite round and conical [in shape], on the points of which were quetzal feathers, called the quetzal feather maize tassel.

cequjntin qujnanapaloa copalli, çan mjmjlmjltic quaquauitztic, icpac v icatiuh quetzalli, ynca quetzalmjiaoaiotl.

And when this was done, the flutes were played; thereupon all set forth on their way and then departed [from the temple].[22]

Auh in ie iuhquj ¶ otlapitzaloc, njman ie ic onneotemalo, mec viloa.

And as many as had been detained [for misdemeanors], those who had been taken, these they arranged in order, they held by the napes of their necks as they were spread out, or grasped with their hands, or seized by the hair; some they held by the ends of their breech clouts, which they held in their hands.

Auh in ĩxqujchtin, yn oaxioaque, oqujntetecpanque, qujntzitzitzqujtimanj, incuexcochteuh qujmaanjlitimanj, qujnquaquatemotzoltzitzqujtimanj, cequjntin in maxtlaujcoltitech qujmaantimanj.

And for the novice priests who had been seized, they made reed rests as for earthen jars, upon which they went placed. They have [the novice priests] upon their shoulders.

Auh in tlamaztotoa, yn oaxioaque, toliaoalli qujnchichiujliaia, vncan iehetiuj, qujnquechpanotiuj:

And those yet a little older they went leading by the hand.

auh in ie achi qualtotoa, in matitech qujmaantiuj.

[714]

And when they had set forth, then they began jostling [the captives] and pushing them; they mis-

Auh yn iquac ie oncoa, njman iquac qujnpeualtia in qujocujcujtiuetzi, qujnmictia qujnmamaiauj, in-

[793]

16. "Vna manta delgada cuadrada, que se llama mixquaquetzal" (loc. cit.). Elsewhere he mentions "manta delgada que llamaua ayal" (Robredo ed., Vol. IV, p. 66).

17. "Vna flor de papel grande redonda, redondo a manera de rodela" (corresponding Spanish text). Later, in the same chapter, he describes the diagnostic as "arcauceros, que es sobre el pecho."

18. "El cabellillo, vna flores de papel, semejan franjillas, que sobresaen a ambas partes de la cabeça a manera de orejas de papel, como vendas colgadas," and, later in the same chapter, "vna arcauceros, que se ponjan tras el cabellillo, como vna flor hecha de papel" (loc. cit.).

19. "Mexicanus sacerdos (sacerdotissimus) coloravit totum caput suum nigrum, excepto facie, ut cognoscatur ex picturis. Et in facie suam picturavit, et aspersit pyrites ferreos" (Clark, op. cit., Vol. I, p. 91n.).

20. "Vna cosa que se llama yauhtli. Es como verde, tiene muchas conchas y caracoles sobre ellas, llamase yauhtlatexi. (y) siempre huele: es semejante a medicinal para los que tienen calenturas, cocinado y bebido con el cacao: hace de tener, y despues cocinado y mezclado con el cacao. Aprouecha también para los que corrompen sangre: y para los que tienen calenturas" (Sahagún, Robredo ed., Vol. III, p. 279).

21. Probably the singular of quaquamilli; in context by quaquilli, Sahagún, however, defines quaquilli as the priest charged with the raising of young girls dedicated to live in the temple. Cf. op. cit., Vol. I, p. 253.

22. Following our edition, the Real Palacio MS contains a few lines which are missing from the Florentine Codex: auh ciuapiltin yaxtiuh yoan ocmpohli, ocpol, in tlachichinoli yoal papar y yoanah ocac, ocmol yacca pilaxtiuh, yacca yaxchiuh, yoan tlacualli ocmoliqui, quimpolinoti, ocmo quemmilitiuc,—and in the midst of them went what is called a royal cane, made of reeds, with two feathers [upright] upon it. Paper was hanging from it, spreading out from it, painted lengthwise with stripes. They were carrying it with much reverence.

1796 805 wind. And the fourth place which she entered was over there at Xolloco. [And] there she stopped.

[For] these were a part of, and carried together, the four year-bearers—Reed, Flint, House, and Rabbit. Thus do the year-bearers go describing circles, whirling around [as a measure of time].

1796 When, at early dawn, Xilonen was to die, all during the night songs were sung after the manner of the women. Vigil was kept. Everyone passed the night watching; they slept not; the women remained [533] sleepless. They sang the songs [of Xilonen].

And when day broke, then began the dancing. Verily, everyone—the leaders of the youths, the lead- [552] ing warriors, and the valiant warriors bore maize stalks. These were named "bird banners."

1796 Likewise the women danced—those who were with Xilonen. They were painted with red feathers. 585 And their faces were painted with yellow ochre. Also ● 793 they colored their faces in two colors: about their lips they were yellow with ochre, and their fore- [302] heads were stained with the red of anatta seeds.[9] [They bore] their wreaths of flowers upon their [301] heads, and the leaders had garlands of the yellow flowers of the Carophyllus mexicanus [about their necks].[9]

These women were known as priestesses. They mingled not with the men, but remained at one side. They were describing circles, and enclosing Xilonen. They sang for her after the manner of women. These women were called "the hanging gourd."

And the warriors danced before [Xilonen], following a serpentine course.

1796 And for this reason were [the women] known as "the hanging gourd": the two-toned wooden drum, 793 which they beat as they went, had tied to it a gourd, [534] which was under the drum, which looked as if it were hanging beneath. They who struck the two-toned drum went carrying a little drum under their arms, which they beat, as they went, with rubber-tipped drum sticks.[10]

[534] And the priests, [who] attended them, went blowing horns; they blew shell trumpets as they went. And they went strewing, scattering, and casting incense as they went to meet Xilonen.

And the fire priest, who was to slay [Xilonen] as ecatl: ynic nauhcan aquja, vmpa xolloco, vmpa ontzonqujçaia, çã qujtoctiaia, çan qujujcaltiaia, yn nauhtetl xiuhtonalli: yn acatl, in tecpatl, in calli, in tochtli, ynic [illegible]laiaoalotiuh, ynic momalacachotiuh, in xiuhtonalli.

In ie iuh iontzinco miquiz in Xilonen: ceioual in cioapan cujcoia, toçooaia, muchi tlacatl ixtoçooaia, amo cochia, mocochiçoloaia in cioa, queoaia queviliaia yn icujc.

Auh yn ie otlatujc, njman ic peoa in netotilo, vel ixujch tlacatl in tiachcaoan, in telpopuchti, yn iiaque, yoan in tequjoaque, incicintopil: ynjn motocaiotia totopanjtl.

No mjtotia in cioa, yn itechpouja in xilonen, mopopotonjaia tlapaliujtica: yoan moxaoaia tecoçauhtica: no ic qujcotona, yn inxaiac, yn jntenco, tecoçauhtica: auh yn imixquac tlapalachiotica, ymjiccacxochiuh, inxoxochiconqui cempoalxuchitl yiacatiuh.

Yn ichoã yn, cioa, moteneoa cioatlamacazque, amo qujmonneloua yn oqujchti, çan nonqua mantiuj, cololujtiuj, qujtepeujtiuj in Xilonen: qujcioapãcujcatitiuj: in ichoantin y, cioa moteneoa tecomapilooa.

Auh in tiachcaoan ixpan mjtotitiuj, mococolotiuj:

auh ynic moteneoa tecomapilooa, ca in teponaztli in qujujtectiuj, itech çaliuhtiuh in atecomatl, yhicampa itepuxco ietiuh in teponaztli, iuhqujn pilcatiuh ic neci: in teponaçoa çan qujciacaujtiuh in teponaztontli in qujujtectiuh olmatica.

Auh in tlamacazque, tenanamjquj tlapitztiuj, tecciztli in qujpitztiuj: yoan yn iauhtextli in qujpipixotiuj, qujcecenmatiuj, qujtetepeuhtiuj, conjxnamjctiuj in Xilonen.

Auh in tlenamacac, in tlamjctiz, vel mocencaoa,

---

8. Bixa orellana L., the anatta shrub (Clark, op. cit., Vol. I, p. 4). Cf. also Seler, op. cit., p. 151.

9. "Estas flores que se llamaban cempoalxóchitl, son amarillas y de buen olor" (Robredo ed., Vol. III, p. 273). Tapena, in Seler, loc. cit. See also p. 88, n. 15.

10. Clark (op. cit., Vol. I, p. 93, n. 2), writing of the tlamacazqui cuicacuicac (chanting priests), says "The player is called the teponaqui, and the drum, teponazcli. Made from the hollowed-out trunk of the Lonnerea excelsum Bonth, this drum has two notes; the rubber-headed drum-sticks are of elder." Cf. also Sahagún's description of the tenpon on the bottom (corresponding Spanish text).

an offering, was richly arrayed and adorned. He bore an eagle claw device upon his back, which was surrounded by quetzal feathers. His holder was of eagle down in which were quetzal feathers. His flint knife was of gold. He carried a rosette on his back, which was made of paper, etc.

A man [priest] carried the mist rattle board upon his shoulder; he rattled it in three places. And when they had come to the place where Xilonen was to die, then the fire priest came to receive her. Before her he set up the rattle board, and rattled it, and with incense went forth to receive her, and cast it toward her.

And then they took her up to the Temple of Cinteotl. First they laid her upon the back [of a priest] —not upon the offering stone, but rather she died upon [a priest's] back. And those who died upon [a priest's] back, they called "those who have backs."

Thereupon she met her fate and [the sacrificing priest] severed her head. When she had [thus] suffered, when he had slain her, then he grasped her heart and planted it in the blue vessel. They who were well experienced knew where they cast it, where they required it.

And then all ate, for the first time, tortillas of green maize. For the first time the cane of green corn was offered and for the first time chewed, and likewise amaranth greens were newly cooked and once more the sweetness of flowers—the Caryophyllus mexicanus and tobacco flowers [—was smelled].

And at the Feast of the Great Lords, there was a dance which was the particular function of the women—old women, young women, mature women, little girls. The maidens, who had looked upon no man, were adorned with feathers and their faces were stained with paint.

Everyone made plain tamales and fruit tamales for themselves; they offered them as gifts to their gods.

And of the old men and the old women it was the exclusive privilege that they should drink wine. Never did a youth, a maiden, or a priest drink wine.

And if anyone was noted, great pains were taken that he be seized and put in jail, in the granary.[11] They all held council what might be done about it, and whether, perchance, they would punish him. [Evidence] was weighed; all discussed [his crime]. They determined whether [they would] show mercy; and if [they would] not show mercy, he was

11. See Plate 27.

muchichioa, quauhiztitl in qujmama, quetzalli ynic moiaoatiuh, quãmõloctli, yn itecomaio ietiuh quetzalli cuztic teucujtlatl yn itecpaio ietiuh, ytlaquechpaniouh ietiuh, amatl in tlachiuhtli, etc. 776 x 793 [301] [287]

Ce tlacatl qujquechpanoa, in aiochicaoaztli, excan in cacalaca: auh yn oacito yn vncan miquiz xilonẽ, njman quioalnamjquj in tlenamacac, ixpan qujoaltilquetza in chicaoaztli, qujcacalatza: yoan yiauhtli ic qujoalnamiquj, yuicpa qujoalchaiaoa. [534]

Auh ie ic contlecauja in cinteupan, çatepan conteca in tecujtlapan, amo techcac, çan tecujtlapan in miquja: auh yn icujtlapan mjcoaia, motocaiotia tepotzoa: 796 x

njman ie ic tlacoti, qujquechtequj, yn otlacotic, yn ocontlatlatique, njman ie ic conanjlia yn iiollo, xoxouhquj xicalco qujoallalia: iehoã qujmati in machiceque catca in campa qujtlalia, in campa qujnequja.

Yoan iquac iancujcan qualoia, in xilotlaxcalli: iancujcan tlamanalo, iancujcan moquaquaia in oozitl: yoan iancujcan mopaoaci in oauhqujlitl, yoan iancujcan ynecu in suchitl, in cempoalsuchitl, in jesuchitl. [262 264]

Auh yn iquac in vei tecujlhujtl netoçiloia, çan inneixcaujl in cioa, yn jlamatque, yn ichpopochti, yn iniolloco cioa cioapipiltotonti: in ichpopochti yn aiacan qujtta oqujchtli, mopotonjaia, moxaoaia. [302]

Ixqujch tlacatl motamaluja moxocotamalujaia: qujntlatlamanjliaia, in intevoan. [868 273]

Auh in uevetque, yoan in jlamatque, çan inneixcaujl catca in tlaoanaia: çan njmã aiac tlaoanaia in telpochtli, in tlamacazquj, yn ichpuchtli.

Auh intla aca, oittoc, vel iujuj ic oanoc, quauhcalco tlalilo, petlacalco: ipan nenonotzalo in tlein ipan muchioaz, yn aço qujtzacutiaz neetitilo, neixpãtitilo: qujpantia intla ie ynemac: auh intlacamo ie ynemac, 796 x 273 689

And upon the morrow, then the carpenters came forth and assembled as they arrived. They brought with them their tools; there were adzes and hatchets. Well they hewed and smoothed [the xocotl] where it had knots, where the limbs branched out, where it was uneven.

They hewed another pole five fathoms long. They joined it, [so that it would] strengthen the crown of the xocotl. They made the crown very even. They girded all the tip with ropes, fastening and placing [branches and pole] within the ropes.

And when this was done, thereupon the fire priests adorned it with papers. The old priests helped and also those who cast [victims] into the fire aided. These [last] were very powerful and tall—exceedingly tall and big. They were chiefs.

The first was named Coyoua; the second was named Çacancatl;[5] the third was named Ueicamecatl. As such were masked they who pressed ahead with adorning [the xocotl].

And the xocotl image they fashioned [as] of flesh; a dough of fish-amaranth seeds mixed with maize they formed [for this]. They provided pure white papers for it, which they set in place. They bore no design.

Upon it they set [these]: its shoulder sash of paper; its paper breech clout; its papers[6] designed with falcons; its wig made of paper; its xocotl shirts, [of which there were] two. These were not put on, but were attached to the tree, in two incisions. Likewise they placed in another incision large pieces of paper, wide—a yard wide—and ten fathoms long, reaching down one-half the length of the xocotl.

And also they made three amaranth seed tamales, pierced them with sticks, in three places, and set them upon [the image]. And thereupon they bound on the xocotl ropes half way up on the xocotl—ten [of them].

And when all made ready, thereupon they raised it. And then there was much crying out and shouting.

They said: "Go on, there, braves! Pull with all your force!"

Thereupon they went to setting it upright; they went about raising it [by using] the wooden supports and prying it with a lever. And likewise as it moved, as it proceeded to rise, there was much clamor, much shouting, great din.

Auh in otlatvic: njman oalhuj, oalnechicavi in quauhxinque, qujoalitquj, intlatquj oalictiuh in matepoztli, tlaximalteporzli, vēl quipetlaoa, qujxipetzoa, in vncan yixe, in vncā titicujtztic, in vncā xixipochtic.

Oc ce qujxima quaoacatl macujlmatl: qujtlaçalhuja, qujtoctia in jxcalo xocotl, vel cōnevivilia in jxcalo, in jquapitzaoacan, qujmecatecuja, qujmecacuja, qujmecatitlantlalia.

Auh in ie iuhquj: njmā ie ic qujtlamamaca, in tlenamacac, tlapalevia in quaquacujlti, no ichoantin tlapalevia, in tetlepātlaçque. Eintin, cenca chicaoaque, quaquauhtique, quauhticapopol, quauhcholpopol, tetecutin caica.

In ce itoca: coioua. Injc vme, itoca: çacancatl. Injc ei, itoca: veicamecatl: iuhquin mixpolotinemj, motequjmati in tlachichioa.

Auh in jxiptla xócotl, in qujnacaiotiaia: mjchioauhtzoalli qujtlaliaia, çan cemjztac in amatl in qujmamaca, in jtech qujtlatlalia: amo ma tlacujlollo.

In jtech qujtlaliaia: yiamaneapanal, yiamamaxtli, itlotloma, yiamatzō, ixoxocovipil, ixocovipil, vme: amo onacticac, çan quauhtitech caca: vme itzitziquijlpan: njman no contlalia oc ce itzitziquijlpan, vevei amatl, patlaoac: injc patlaoac, cen iollotli: matlacmatl injc viac, itlacapan acitica in xocotl injc viac.

Auh no etetl tzocoiotl in qujchioa, qujquauhço: excan in qujquequetza: auh njman ie ic qujilpia in xócomecatl, in vncan inepantla in xócotl, matlactli.

Auh in omocencauh: njmā ie ic qujquetza, njman ie ic tlacaoaca, tzatzioa:

qujtoa. Ma ecuel tiacahoane, ximotilinjcan, ixqujch amotlapal:

njmā ie ic queoatiquetztivi, conquechilitivi, in quauhtonmaçatl, yoan qujquāmjvia: auh in iequene ie iauh, in ie meoatiquetztiuh: cenca tlacaoaca, cenca tzatzioa, cenca chachalacoa:

796 X
778
[412
463]
[793]
[483
401]

5. Probably pronounced in manner. Cf. the Jourdanet-Simeon edition, p. 129.
6. Reference could be to either paper or fabric (algodonera); in the Spanish text, Sahagún appears to favor paper.

[with them], and then went off carrying it. When they came to his presence, then they put it down; they laid it down for him.

And when it was already night, then the beloved old men and old women drank wine. In this manner they spoke: it was said, "They bathe [the god's] feet."

And when the fourth day had come, then ended the scattering of the branches. Then they threw away the branches. And when the fifth day came, then in truth was when [it was the feast] Teotl eco, with which ended the twenty days.

At midnight [the priests] prepared a flour of maize, which they patted and pressed together, making it round [and flat] like a shield, and placing it upon a mat.

When [it was time that] all the gods should reach here, and arrive, they made preparations. All set themselves in motion, that the gods might arrive.

And the old priest, [the god's] aged one, named "He who keepeth the god," kept going back to look upon [the maize flour on the mat]. Often he looked upon it. Never did he rest. His office was only to look. Never did he leave his foot; [for] that which he watched, the maize flour, was called his "foot."

And when [the god] arrived, then he saw a small foot[print], which was there upon the maize flour, or at its edge; when he stood upon the [cake of] maize flour, it split.[7] Then it was plain that the gods had arrived.

Then he who kept the god said to them: "Verily, the lord hath deigned to come."

When this was heard, then [the priests] went in procession, blowing shell trumpets, to proclaim [the news] everywhere. Then by this was it known that in truth the gods had come.

And all the common folk thereupon went away and departed to lay offerings in their temples, the temples of the devils. All offered them balls of dough.

And when they had made the offerings, all was still,

And when night fell, in the same manner as they did [before], the old men and the beloved old women drank wine. It was said: "They bathe the feet of the gods who have come."

And the next day, then came Yacapitzauac, this Yacatecutli, who was the god of the merchants; and nauhtetl in coololoa, quauhcaxic in tetentiuh, mec quitqujtiuh: in oacic ixpã mex contema, contemjlia. [746 X] [252]

Auh in jquac ie ioa, mec tlatlaoano, tlatlaounalo, in veventzitzin, in jlamatzitzin: in juh quitoaia, qujlmach quicxipaca. [888 273]

Auh in oacic ic navilhujtl, vncan ontlamj, in acxoistemalizitli: iquac quitepeoa in acxoiatl. Auh in oacic ic macujlilhujtl, in ie vel iquac Teutl eco, in ie ic ontlamj cempoalilhujtl:

ioalnepantla, in quichioaia, iotextli, quitepitztlaliaia, quipachoaia, iaoultic injc quitlaliaia, petlapã in contlaliaia:

in jquac muchintin oalacia, hecoia in teteu, quicencaoaia, cemolinja, injc iecoia teteu:

auh in quacujlli, in jveveio, itoca: Teuoa, mocujtlacueptinemj, in conjtta, achca in conjtta, aquẽmã motlalia, çan jc nemj in conjtta, aquẽman conjcxicaoa, in conjtta iotextli, motenecoa: icxi. [793]

Auh in ohecoc, vncan conjtta, icxitontli, in vncan icac, iotexpan: anoço itenco, in moquetza iotextli, texxitinj: njmã ic neci, ca ohecoque in teteu: [787] njman ic quiualitoa, in teuoa. Ca omecavi in tlacatl:

in ocacoc: njmã ic maantimoquetza in tlapitzalo, quitzacutimomana: njmã ic macho, ca ohecoque in teteu. [534]

Auh in jzquich macoualli, njman ic vivi, viviloa, in tlatlamanazque intcupã, in intcteupan diablome: çã moche in tlapololli, in quinmanjlia:

auh in ontlatlamanaloc, njman ic cactivetzi.

Auh in ie ioua: çan ie no ivi in quichioa, tlatlaoana in vevetque, in jlamatzitzin, quilmach, quimjcxipaca in ohecoque teteu. [888 273]

Auh in jmuztlaioc, iquac heco in Jacapitzaouac, inj Jacatecutli: pochteca intecuh catca, yoa in Izcoçauh- [776]

7. The word ixtlaio is explained by Carochi (op. cit., p. 107): "Auh quil ouach in ixmac ualhuia ceme ixtlaio in tlalqui ouacil chaolouali"—"y dicque cuando venian los dioses, se partia el cerro ixtlaio de harina de maiz."

1 796 [765] And when they had burned, they there buried their charcoal and ashes.

And of those slain in battle, their streamers, their costly banners, their shields, and their capes, and their breech clouts they placed upon a dry maize stalk, tied on. From it hung loose twisted, red cotton [237] thread. At its end there hung a [dead] hummingbird, and four hundred [white] heron [feathers]. Many cords were pasted with feathers. At the ends hung heron [feathers]. They left these in the eagle bowl, where they burned.

And the sixth day was named "They come upon the grass."[3] And for this reason they named it "They come upon the grass," [that] grass was scattered [in the Temple of Mixcoatl]. This [was] grass from under the pine trees. Here were ranged in their places [793] the old women [who served the temple]. Before them lay a mat.

Thereupon came forth women with children. Each one heaped upon the mat five sweet tamales. All together, by fives, they laid them [there]. They came to give their children to the old women. And the old women came to take the children; they then dandled them in their arms. Then, those who danced their children in their arms gave them [back] to their mothers.

Then [the mothers] departed to their homes. This began in early morning. And it was time to eat when they finished. And when this was done, then all departed to hunt. They went to Çacatepec, there by Ixillan tonan.

And when ten days still remained in this month, as hath been said above, they then celebrated a feast [776] in honor of the god of the Otomí, who was named Mixcoatl, in the manner which will be set forth.

And when they had arrived there at Çacatepec, [342 513] nothing was done. Only when they arrived, they all made grass shelters, in which to sleep; all lit fires, to warm themselves.

And at dawn, thereupon food and drink were eaten and drunk. Then all arrayed and wrapped mantles about themselves.

X 796 Then all departed; all were ordered and disposed in a row, stretching like a rope nowhere broken. All, 224 in this manner, encircled all the deer, coyotes, rabbits, and hares; cautiously they closed in upon them.

And when they had come upon them, then all suh in ontlatlac, in jtecollo, yoan inczo, vncã contoca.

Auh in oiaomjcque in inmecapan, yoan intlaçopan, yoan inchimal, yoã intilma, yoan inmaxtli, ooaquauhtitech in qujtlaliaia, qujlpiaia, itech pilcatiuh chichilicpatl, potonquj ic tlamalintli, yiacac pilcatiuh vitzitzilin, yoã cẽtzonaztatl, mjec in mecatl, qujpotonjaia hivitica, yiacac pilcatiuh aztatl, vmpa conocaoa in quauhxicalco, vmpa tlatlaia.

Auh injc chiquacentlamantli: moteneoa, çacapã qujxoa: auh injc moteneoa, çacapan qujxoa, mozetzeloa, çacatl: ichoatl in ocoçacatl, vncan motecpana in jlamatque, ce petlatl imjxpan onoc.

Nimã ie ic oalmoiacatia in pilhoaque çioa, contentimanj petlapan mamacujltetl in tzopelic tamalli: ceniauh, in mamacujltetl contema: qujnõmacativi in impilhoan, in ilamatque: auh in jlamatque, qujnoalantimanj in pipiltotonti, njmã qujmonjtotia inmac: njmã ic qujnõmaca, in tenanoan, in oqujmonjtotilique inpilhoan:

njmã ic iatimanj in inchachan, oc iooatzinco in peoaia. Auh in ie tlaqualizpan in necaoalo: auh in ie iuhquj, njman iecviloa in amjoaz, vmpa tlamattivi in çacatepec, vmpa in jxillã tonan:

Auh in jmatlacioc metztli y, in tlacpac omoteneuh: vncan qujlhujqujxtiliaia, in intecouh otomj: in mjtoaia Mixcoatl in jpanjn moteneoaz.

Auh in onaxioac in vmpa çacatepec aiatle muchioaia, çan oc qujxqujch haxtioa nexaçacaltilo, in vncan cocochioa, tlatlatlatilo, neezcolo.

Auh in otlatvic, njman ie ic tlatlaqualo flatlioa: njmã ie ic nechichioalo, nehaapanalo:

mec viloa, netecpanalo, nevipanolo: iuhqujn mecatl mocilinja, acan cotonj: muchi tlacatl im juh, qujniacaloa in jtzujchtin mamaça, in coiotl, in tochtli, in citli: çan jvian impan ommonamjquj.

Auh in ovel impan ommonamjc, mec tenamoialo,

3. "Se sale a la grama" (zacapan quimoqui). according to Garibay (loc. cit.).

Temple of Uitzilopochtli
Costepetl.[1] 1.

Uitzilopochtli's feast came three times; they celebrated his feast [three times] in one year.

The first time was [in the month] named Panquetzaliztli. And this was the time when they took up [to the top of the pyramid] this Uitzilopochtli [and] a second [god] named Tlacauepan Cuexcochtzin.[2] And thus did they take up the image of this Uitzilopochtli: all the priests and youths took it up in their arms. And the image of Uitzilopochtli was [made] only of a dough of amaranth seeds—very large; almost a fathom [tall].

And [the image of] the second [god], whose name was Tlacauepan Cuexco[ch]tzin, was likewise made of a dough of amaranth seeds.

And the image of Uitzilopochtli was made, and took the form of man, there at a place called Itepeyoc. And the second [god], Tlacauepan Cuexco[ch]tzin, was made, and took the shape of man, there at a place known as Uitznauac calpulco. And during the night they cooked and formed [the images].

And when it dawned, they were already shapen. Thereupon offerings were laid before them. And after noon all then danced; all went in procession. And when the sun entered his house [at sunset], they took [the figures] up [to the top of the pyramid]. And after they had gone to set them in place, all descended. [The images] remained there all night. And the priests who guarded [them] were called Iiopoch.

And in the morning Paynaltzin came forth, who was himself the vicar of Uitzilopochtli. [A priest] carried [the god] in his arms. And the image of Paynal was formed of wood. And he who bore him in his arms was called Topiltzin Quetzalcoatl. He was richly bedight with his feather device.[3] And the image of Paynal was thus adorned: [it had on] its humming bird disguise, its arms, its golden banner, and its green stone necklace. And over the small of its back went hanging the mirror device for its back,

Vitzilobuchtli ieuccal
costepetl. 1.

In vitzilobuchtli, expa in quiçaia ilhujuh, in quilhujquixtiliaia, yn ipan ce xiuitl. 796x

Injc cepa ipan in mjtoaia panquetzaliztli: auh ynin vncan acoquiçaia, in ichoatl vitzilobuchtli, ym omextin yn jtoca Tlacauepan cuexcochtzin. Auh ynic quitlecaujaja in ichoatl vitzilobuchtli ixiptla, vel ixquich in tlamacazquj, in tetlpuchtli in quinapaloaia: auh yn ixiptia catca vitzilobuchtli, çan tzoalli, cenca vey, cennequetzalli. [776] 776 796x

Auh ynic vme in jtoca Tlacauepan, cuexcotzin, çan no tzoalli in jxiptla catca.

Auh in muchioaia, in tlacatia Vitzilobuchtli ixiptla: vmpa yn itocaiocan Itepeioc: auh ynic vme, in tlacauepan cuexcotzin, vmpa in muchioaia, in tlacatia, itocaiocan Vitznaoac calpulco: auh ceniocoal in quimicuxitiaia, in quintlacatiliaia.

Auh in otlatujc, ie otlacatque: njman ie ic ymixpan tlamanalo: auh in ie teutlac, njman ie ic netotilo, necococolo: auh çan ic oncalaquj, in tonatiuh, in quintlecaujaia: auh yn oquimontlalito, njman ie ic oaltemoa, vmpa ceioal cate: yoan quinpiaia tlamacazque, yn jntoca Iiopuch: [793]

Auh yn otlatujc, niman ie ic oalquiça, in paynaltzin, in çan no ie yxiptla Vitzilobuchtli, quinapaloa: auh yn ixiptla paynal, çan quauitl tlaca ietiuh: auh in quinapaloa, itoca topiltzin Quetzalcoatl: ceoca mochichioaia, yiapanecaiouh: auh yn ixiptla paynal ynic muchichioaia, yvitzitzilnaoal, yiaoecuiouh, yteucujlapil, ychalchiuhcoaquj: auh yn icujtlapan pilcatiuh, ichoatl in cujtlatezcatl, çan mocho in teuxivitl: 796x 293

1. See Lib. III, cap. i, § 1.
2. Identified as a manifestation of Huitzilopochtli (Tezozomoc, op. cit., pp. 146, 155).
3. Cf. Sahagún (Bulmarde ed.), Vol. III, p. 111.

793

A True Relation of all Those Who Served in the Houses of Each of the Gods.

The Keeper of the Gods of the Mexicans.

Thus did the Keeper of the Gods of the Mexicans with his sleeveless jacket, his incense ladle and his pouch, that he might with them pay honor to the devil. And so did he keep watch that verily it was a matter of his being like the father of [those in] the priests' dwelling. He was like the ruler of the lesser keepers of the gods indeed everywhere.

And all the children were left in his care, that he might train them, that he might by words move them to live well. And whether men commanded, or were rich, or were leaders, or directed, all this was the charge of the Keeper of the Gods of the Mexicans.

And also this one commanded in the temples everywhere; he told the lesser keepers of the gods what they might do. And if perchance any should sin, much did the Keeper of the Gods of the Mexicans take heed of it.

The Keeper of the God of Uitznauac, Omacatl.

The Keeper of the God of Uitznauac similarly maintained usages, just as the Keeper of the Gods of Mexico maintained usages. Likewise he oversaw, in the priests' dwelling, that they trained the children well.

The Keeper of the Gods of Others.

The Keeper of the Gods of Others: his overseeing was similar to the overseeing of the Keeper of the Gods of Mexico. Because, in truth, he appointed to all how [those of the] priests' dwellings should oversee; how they should bring up the children, and train them; and, verily, the things which the lesser keepers of the gods everywhere should do.

Ome Techutlo.

Ome techutlo had as his charge that he should assemble the Cuicaxtecatechin [singers]; even all of Imelayaca in inqujutin tlatequjpanoaia in jochchan cecenme teteu.

Mexicatl teuhoatzin

Injc muchivaia mexicatl teuhoatzin ixicol, ixtema, ixiqujpil injc qujmaviztiliaia Diablo, yoan ic tlapiaia ca iuhquj in teta muchiuhticatca in calmecac, iuhquin intlatocauh catca in teteuhoatzitzin injc novjian:

yoã in ixqujch in tepilhoan itech oncavaloia injc qujmizcaltiz, injc quivapavaz tlatoltica injc vel nemizque, yoã in aço tlatocatizque, anoço mocuiltonozque, anoço teiacanazque, tlapachozque muchi iehoatl itequjuh catca in Mexicatl teuhoatzin, [871]

yoã no iehoatl tlanavatiaia in novjian teteupan qujmilhujaia in tlein quichivazque teteuhoatzitzin, auh in anoço aca tlatlacoa muchi iehoatl qujmatia in Mexicatl teuhoatzin.

Vitznava teuhoatzin omacatl.

In vitznavac teuhoatzin, çan no iuhquj injc tlamanitiaia in juhquj ic tlamanitiaia Mexico teuhoatzin no iuhquj injc tlapiaia in calmecac in quenjn vel tlacavapavaia.

Tepan teuhoatzin.

In tepan teuhoatzin çan no iuhquj in itlapializ catca, in juhquj ic tlapiaia in Mexico teuhoatzin, ichica ca muchi iehoatl qujnnavaciaia in quenjn tlapiazque calmecac, in quenjn tlacauacaltiaia, tlacavapavaia, çan muchiuhquj in qujchivaia injc novjian teuhoatzinia. [871]

Vme techutlo.

In vme techtzin iequjuh catca in qujnochicovaia cenmoatzonochtin in ic muchiuqin, aiac mocavaia, auh

793 them. None should fail. And here, over them presided [the one named] Patecatl, who was made, as it were, their leader.

793 [445] 273 Then they arranged the rabbit [wine] jars. These they filled with [ceremonial] five[-fold] wine, which they also called sacred wine. Then he brought forth the sucking-tubes, made of reeds, and laid them with the sacred wine—two hundred and three of them, but only one was bored through.

And when they had set them out, thereupon all danced and went in procession; the Centzontotochtin danced.

Thereupon they went up to the sacred wine. There was much jostling about until one should see the [sucking tube which was] bored through. And when he who saw it then took up the bored [tube], then they made room for him.

Only he alone drank the sacred wine. And when he had drunk the sacred wine, thereupon all dispersed.

vncan tepan icaca im patecatl, iuhquin tachcauh muchivaia, njman ic quiquetza in tochtecomatl vncã costeca in macujlvctli in qujlvjaia teuvctli, njman ic qujvalquistia in piaztli acatl vncan cõmanaia in teuvctli ipan, çan matlacpoalli vmei, auh çan ce in coionquj, auh in ocõma, njman ic ic netotilo, tlaiavalolo, mjtotia in centzontotochtin, njman ic ic vi in jvicpa teuvctli, cenca moquequeça in ac ichoatl quijttaz coionquj, auh in aquin oquittac, in oquicujc coionquj, njman ic quitlalcavia, ça icel quijticac in teuvctli: auh in onteutlaoanoc, njman ic viujloca.

Epcoaquacuiltzin.

793 [805] The Epcoaquacuiltzin—behold what were his duties: when feasts should be celebrated, perchance when a new fifty-two-year cycle should start—verily, all feasts—all of them he announced; or when fire was laid. In truth, all that should be done, all things this man thus commanded and furthered.

Epcoaquacujltzin.

In epcoaquacujltzin, inca yn jtequjuh catca: Yn iquac ilhujtl quijçaia, yn aço xiuhtzitzqujlo: in ic muchi ilhujtl, muchi ipã tlatoaia, injc tletemaloz in ic muchi muchivaz muchi ichoatl ic tlanavatiaia, ipan tlatoaia.

The Keeper of the Gods of Moloneo.

The Keeper of the Gods of Moloneo also had this as his duty: In his charge were the paper, the incense, the [liquid] rubber, the black stain, and all which this one needed when [sacrificial victims] were to die. And he had in his charge the black stain with which was painted [the impersonator of the god] Chiconauecatl, and the incense ladle, the quail, and the black plumes with which [he who was arrayed in the likeness of] Chiconauecatl was feathered.

Moloncoteuhoa.

In moloncoteuhoa, çan no ichatl itequjuh catca, ipan tlatoaia, in amatl in copalli, in vlli, in tlilli, in isquich itech monequja in ichoatl in iquac miquja, auh in tlilli ic moçaia, in chicunavecatl yoan ipan tlatoaia in tlemaitl, in çolin yoan in ihujtl tlilticic mopotonjaia in chicunavecatl.

The [Priest of] Cinteotl.

The duties of the [Priest of] Cinteotl were that all things which were required be thus commanded, so that the paper, the incense, the [liquid] rubber, Cinteutzin.

In itequjuh catca cinteutzin çan isquich in ipan tlatoaia, ic tlanavatiaia, injc monechiconaia in amatl in copalli, in vlli in jiauhtli in itech monequja xilo-the sweet-smelling herbs should be gathered together which [the goddess] Xilonen needed when her feast was observed. And he arranged for all [things] and the incense-ladles which the temple needed when [the impersonator of] Xilonen died.

nen in jquac ilhujuh quiçaia, yoan muchi ipan tlatovaia, in tlemaitl in jtech monequja o calli in jquac mjquja xilonen. 793

The Keeper of the Gods of Atempan.

The Keeper of the Gods of Atempan—behold what were his duties. This one required, and hence commanded, that there should be gathered together the feathers, the eagle-down and the pointed eagle plumes, with which [she who was ornamented in the likeness of] Toci was adorned, when she died.

And this one cried out [summoning] the Huaxtec youths to do penances here at Atempan.

Atempan teuhoatzin.

In atempan teuhoatzin, izca in jtequjuh catca, iehoatl ipan tlatovaia, ic tlanavatiaia, injc monechicovaia ihujtl, in qusuhtlachcaiutl, yoan in qiauhtevitztli injc mopotonjaia toci in iquac miquja yoan iehoatl qujtzatziliaia in cuecuexteca in telpupuchtin, injc moçavazque vncã atempan. [203]

The Caretaker.

The Caretaker took charge of the songs of the devils, of indeed all the sacred songs, that none might do ill [with them]. Greatly was he concerned that they teach the sacred songs, and he cried [the summons] that the singers be gathered, or the chiefs, that they might be taught the songs.

Tlapiscatzin.

In tlapiscatzin qujmocujtlavjaia in jncujc Diablome in ie muchi teucujcatl injc aiac tlatlacoz, vel qujmocujtlavjaia, injc qujtemachtiaia in teucujcatl, yoan qujtzatziliaia injc monechicozque in cujcanjme anoço tetecutin injc qujmomachtizque in teucujcatl. [533] [203]

The Keeper of the Goddess of Zapotlan.

The duties of the Keeper of the Goddess of Zapotlan were similar to what were the duties of the Keeper of the God of Atempan; for he was concerned with, and commanded that there should be gathered together all the paper, the incense, the [liquid] rubber, and the sweet-smelling herbs which [she who was arrayed in the likeness of] Tzaputlatenan needed when she died.

Tzaputla teuhoatzin.

In tzaputla teuhoatzin, çã no iuhquj in jtequjuh catca, in juhquj itequjuh catca: Atempa teuhoatzin, ichica ça no muchi ipan tlatovaia, ic tlanavatiaia, inic monechicovaia amatl in copalli, in vlli, yoan in jiauhtli, in jtech monequja in tzaputla tenan in iquac mjquja

The Keeper of the God of Tecanman.

The Keeper of the God of Tecanman was concerned that there should be torches, or bundles of resinous wood used as torches. And the charge of this one was that he should collect the red ochre, the black stain, and the foam sandals, the sleeveless jacket, and the bells which [the impersonator] of Xiuhtecutli, the old god, needed when he died.

Tecanman teuhos.

In tecanman teuhos iehoatl ipan tlatovaia in ocutl in tlepilli iez yoan iehoatl itequjuh catca, in qujnechicovaia in tlavitl, in tilli yoan in poçolcactli, in xicolli, in tzitzilli in jtech monequja xiuhtecutli, veuetectl in iquac mjquja [373]

793

Ome Tochtli Tezcatzoncatl.

Ome tochtli Tezcatzoncatl: this one likewise was concerned with the sleeveless jacket, the bells, the foam sandals, the paper, the heron feather headdress, the pine flowers [as mentioned above]. Hence he commanded that all be assembled; that they gather together the offerings which [he who was ornamented like] Tezcatzoncatl would need when he died. This was done upon the feast of Tepeilhuitl.

Tezcatzoncatl vme tochtli.

In tezcatzoncatl vme tochtli, çan no ichoatl ipan tlatovaia in xicolli, in tzitzilli, in poçolcactli in amatl, in aztatzontli, in ocozochitl, ic tlanavatiaia injc muchi monechicoz in valcenqujcaz in ventli in jtech monequja tezcatzoncatl in iquac mjquja ipã in tepeilhujtl mochivaia.

Ome Tochtli Yiauhqueme.

Ome tochtli Yiauhqueme likewise was concerned with the paper, the copal [incense], the [liquid] rubber, and the foam sandals, the bells, the sleeveless jacket, the heron feather headdress, and the pine flower. Therefore he commanded that all that hath been mentioned be gathered, when they were needed, when [the impersonator of] Ome tochtli Yiauhqueme died. [This was] also upon the feast of Tepeilhuitl.

Vme tochtli yiauhqueme.

In vme tochtli yiauhqueme çã ie no ichoatl ipan tlatovaia in amatl, in copalli, in vlli, yoan in poçolcactli, in tzitzilli, in xicolli, in aztatzontli, in ocozochitl, ic tlanavatiaia injc monechicovaia in isqujch omjto, iquac monequja in iquac miquja vme tochtli yiauhqueme çan no ipan in tepeilhujtl.

Ome Tochtli Tomiauh.

Ome tochtli Tomiauh: the duties of this one were [that] he be concerned with all things needed when [he who was bedight as] Ome tochtli Tomiauh died —the paper, the copal [incense], the [liquid] rubber, the bells, the sleeveless jacket, which have already been told of. [This was] also upon the feast of Tepeilhuitl.

Vme tochtli tomjiauh.

In vme tochtli tomjiauh ichoatl itequjuh catca, ipan tlatovaia in isqujch in monequja in iquac mjquja vme tochtli tomjiauh, in amatl, in copalli, in vlli, in tzitzilli, in xicolli, in e ixqujch omjto, çan no tepeilhujtl ipan.

Ome Tochtli Acalua.

Ome tochtli Acalua: likewise this one's duties were that he be charged with all the duties which Ome tochtli Tomiauh had.

Acalva vme tochtli.

In acalhoa vme tochtli çan no ichoatl itequjuh catca, ipan tlatovaia in isqujch itequjuh catca vme tochtli tomjiauh.

Ome Tochtli Quatlapanqui.

The duties of Ome tochtli Quatlapanqui were that this one was in charge of the paper, the copal [incense], the sleeveless jacket, the bells, and the princely sandals which [the impersonator of] Quatlapanqui had need of when he died, upon the feast of Panquetzaliztli.

Quatlapanquj vme tochtli.

In quatlapanquj vme tochtli in jtequjuh catca, ichoatl ipan tlatovaia, in amatl, in copalli, in xicolli, in tzitzilli, yoan in itzcactli in jtech monequja quatlapãquj in iquac mjquja ipan panquetzaliztli.

Onne Tochtli Tilhua.

Onne tochtli Tilhua: likewise this one was concerned with the paper, the copal [incense], the sleeveless jacket, the bells, all things which have been mentioned, which also this one, [he who impersonated] Onne tochtli Tilhua, needed upon the feast of Tepeilhuitl.

Tilhoa onne tochtli.

In tilhoa vme tochtli, çan no ichoatl ipan tlatovaia in amatl, in copalli, in xicolli, in tzitzilli, in isquich omjto, çan no ichoatl itech monequja in tilhoa vme tochtli ipan tepeilhujtl. 793

Onne Tochtli Pitecatl.

Onne tochtli Pitecatl: this one produced the five[-fold] wine; he took by the hand and went with the artificer, the one who made the sacred wine, upon the feast of Panquetzaliztli, when they used the five[-fold] wine.

Vme tochtli pitecatl.

In vme tochtli pitecatl ichoatl qujiolitiaia in macujlvctli imac concavaia in tultecatl ichoatl qujchivaia in teuvctli ipan panquetzalizztli in popolivia in macujlvctli. [273]

Onne Tochtli Napa Tecutli.

Onne tochtli Napa tecutli was in charge of the paper, the copal [incense], the [liquid] rubber—all that was needed when [he who was arrayed as] Napa tecutli died, upon the feast of Tepeilhuitl.

Vme tochtli nappa tecutli.

In vme tochtli nappa tecutli ipã tlatovaia, in amatl, in copalli, in vlli: in ie ixquich monequja in jquac miquja nappa tecutli, ipan tepeilhujtl.

Onne Tochtli Papantac.

Onne tochtli Papantac: this one also made the wine which was called "chalky wine." This one laid it before Moctezuma, and [did so] when all the children, or the men, or the women became drunk upon the feast of [Uei] Toçoztli.

Vme tochtli papantac.

In vme tochtli papantac, çan no ichoatl qujchivaia in vçtli in mjtovaia tiçavctli: ichoatl conmacaia in motecoçoma, auh iquac tlanavaia ie ixq'ch pipiltzintin, in anoço oquichtli, anoço cihoatl ipan toçoztli. [273]

The Same Onne Tochtli.

Similar were his duties. His charge was [like that of] Onne tochtli Papantac; and [these things] were done upon the feast of Atl cahualo.

Vme tochtli idem.

Çan no iubquj catca in itequjuh, in itequjuh catca, vme tochtli papantac, auh in muchivaia ipan in atl cavalo. [273]

Cinaquacuilli.

The charges of the cinaquacuilli were all the offerings which were needed by her of the Temple of Atzachicalcan [Toçi]—the flowers, the tobacco which she laid before Toçi; verily, all things which the women offered when the hand-holding dance was danced. All this was the charge of the cinaquacuilli.

Cihoaquacujlli.

In cihoaquacujlli itequjuh catca, in isquich ventli, in vacan monequja, atzachicalcatl, in xuchitl, in ietl injc qujdlamanjliaia toci vel inquich in ontlamanaia in cihoa in jquac navaloia ichoatl nuchi itequjuh catca, in cihoaquacujlli.

The Iztac Ciuatl Ciuaquacuilli.

793 The Iztac ciuatl ciuaquacuilli also kept watch there and took care of the [Temple of] Atenchicalcan; and she was in charge of the sweeping and the laying of fires [there]. And any who made supplications [to the goddess] spoke to the Iztac ciuatl ciuaquacuilli. This one determined all that was done here at [the Temple of] Atenchicalcan.

Cihoaquacujlli iztac cihoatl.

In cihoaquacujlli iztac cihoatl çã no vmpa tlapiaia, vmpa tlamocujtlavjaia in atenchicalcan yoan ipan tlatovaia in tlachpanaliztlj in tletlaliliztli, yoan in aqujn vmpa monetoltiaia, ichoatl conilhujaia in cihoaquacujlli iztac cihoatl, muchi ichoatl quitzontequja in tlein vncan muchivaia atenchicalcã.

The Keeper of the God Ixcoçauhqui, at Tzonmolco.

The duties of the Keeper of the God Ixcoçauhqui, at Tzonmolco, [concerned] the wood of the god Xiuhtecutli. He caused it to be cried abroad that it be gathered in the forests. And those who gathered it were only those youths whose right it was [to gather it]. And when they had gathered the wood of the god Xiuhtecutli, they piled it up in the priests' dwelling at Tzonmolco.

Iscoçauhquj tzõmvlco teuhoa.

In jscoçauhquj tzõmulco teuhoa itequjuh catca, in xjuhtecuquavitl, qujtzatziliaia injc mocujtiuh quauhtla, auh in concuja çan ichoantin in telpupuchtin intequjuh catca, auh in oqujcujto xiuhtequavitl, vmpa conquetzaia in tzõmulco calmecac.

Tlaçolquacuilli.

The Tlaçolquacuilli was charged that he should guard and take care of [the Temple of] Mecatlan. And he put on his sleeveless jacket, and he had his gourd for tobacco. Much did he venerate the Temple here at Mecatlan. None might urinate here; and if anyone did urinate here, then they seized him and brought him within. There they punished him and drew blood from him.

[514 688]

Tlaçolquacujlli.

In tlaçolquacujlli, itequjuh catca, vncan tlapiaia, vncan tlamocujtlavjaia in mecatlan, auh in qujmaqujaia, ixicol yietecõton ietinemj, cenca tlamavizotiaia in teupan, in vncan mecatlã, aiac vncan maxixaia, auh in aqujn vncan omaxix, njman qujtzitzqujaia, qujcalaqujaia calitic, vmpa quitlatzacujltiaia qujçoçoia.

The Keeper of the God at Tecpantzinco.

The Keeper of the God at Tecpantzinco guarded and cared for [the Temple of] Tecpantzinco. And his task was to have charge of the offerings. He caused it to be cried abroad that offerings be made here at [the Temple of] Tecpantzinco.

Tecpantzinco teuhoa.

In tecpantzinco teuhoa, vncã tlapiaia, tlamocujtlavjaia in tecpãtzinco, yoan itequjuh catca ipan tlatovaia in ventli qujtzatzilitiia injc tlamanaloz vncan tecpãtzinco.

Epcoaquacuilli Tepictoton.

793 The Epcoaquacuilli tepictoton was concerned with the songs. When anyone molded figures [of the mountain gods], he consulted with him that he

532

Epcoaquacujlli tepictotõ.

In Epcoaquacujlli tepictoton ipã tlatovaia in cujcatl, iquac in aqujn tepiquiz ichoatl ichoatl conjlhujaia in qujmisquetzaz, qujnnavatiz in cujcanjme, might provide the singers and make them sound well, when they went to sing in the home of him who molded figures [of the mountain gods]. Verily, this one, the Epcoaquacuilli tepictoton, passed judgment upon [the songs].

injc qujcativi in jchan in aqujn tepiquiz, vel ichoatl qujtzontequja in Epcoaquacujlli tepictoton. 793 [532]

The Keeper of the God at the Temple of Ixtlilton.

The Keeper of the God at the Temple of Ixtlilton was upon [the pyramid], and his charge was that he caused it to be cried abroad that offerings [should be made]. When the little children, whether men[-children] or women[-children, first] began to talk, they went carrying their offerings of copal [incense], or flowers, or whatever sorts of gifts were made. Each of [these] things they bore with them.

Ixtlilco teuhoa.

In jxtlilco teuhoa ipan jcaca, ipan tlatovaia, qujtztiliaia in ventli injc motenmamalia pipiltzitzinti in in aço oqujchtin, in anoço cihoa qujitquitivi in jnven in copalli, in anoço suchitl in ic isqujch ventli muchivaia cecentlamantli in qujtquja. [203]

The Keeper of the God Xochipilli at Aticpac.

The Keeper of the God Xochipilli, at [the Temple of] Aticpac, had encharged to him [her who was arrayed in the likeness of the Goddess] Aticpac calqui ciuatl, [and that] they should collect the paper, the copal [incense], the [liquid] rubber which Aticpac calqui ciuatl needed when she died. And they flayed her, and the fire-priest put on her skin and went forth holding a [live] quail in his teeth, which went dangling from his mouth.

Aticpac teuhoatzin xochipilli.

In aticpac teuhoatzin xochipilli ipã tlatovaia, in aticpac calquj cihoatl qujnechicovaia in amatl, in copalli, in vlli, in jtech monequja aticpac calquj cihoatl in iquac mjquja, auh qujxipehoaia in jiehoaio cõmaqujaia tlenamacac, yoan qujtlanquativja çolin icamac pilcatiuh.

The Keeper of the God Opochtli, at Atlixeliuhqui.

The Keeper of the God Opochtli at Atlixeliuhqui was charged with collecting the adornment, the paper, the copal [incense], the [liquid] rubber, and the foam medals, the sleeveless jacket, the bells, the sweet-smelling herbs, the chalk, the black stain, and the heron feather headdress and the tousled hair which [he who was arrayed like] Opochtli would send when he died upon the feast of Tepeilhuitl.

Atlixeliuhquj teuhoa obuchtli.

In atlixeliuhquj teuhoa obuchtli, ipan tlatovaia, qujnechicovaia in jnechichival, in amatl, in copalli, in vlli, yoan in poçolcactli, in xicolli, in tritzilli, in jiauhtli, in tiçatl, in jaiapalli, yoan aztacxõtli, papatli, in jtech monequja obuchtli in jquac miquja ipan tepeilhujtl.

The Keeper of the God Xipe, at Iopico.

The Keeper of the God Xipe, at Iopico, took care, when that one [arrayed in the likeness of the god Tequizin] died, of the paper, the copal [incense], Xippe iopico teuhoa.

In xippe iopico teuhoa qujnecujtlavjaia, in ipan mjquja in ichoatl tequjzin, in amatl, in copalli, yoan in poçolcactli, in tlahujtl, auh injc mopotonjaia io-and the foam sandals, the red ochre; and that this one be arrayed in feathers—in white turkey feathers—and in the fine mantle of masterly design which fell his lot.

hoatl in iztac totolihujtl, yoan in tolectilmatli tultecajutl in jpã vetzia.

The Keeper of the God Yiacatecutli, at Pochtlan.

The Keeper of the God Yiacatecutli, at Pochtlan, oversaw that they should collect for him [who was to be arrayed as] Yiacatecutli the various feathers, the rabbit fur—all the feather[-like adornment]; and the precious mantle, the sleeveless jacket, the bells, and the sandals of all colors.

Pochtlan teuhoa yiacatecutli.

In pochtlan teuhoa yiacatecutli ipan tlatovaia qujnechicovaia in jJacatecutli in nepapan ihujtl in tochiujtl in ie izquich ihujtl. yoan in tlaçotilmatli, in xicolli, in tzitzilli, yoan tlatlapalcactli.

The Same, for Chiconquiauitl, at Pochtlan.

Chiconquiauitl: this one also oversaw all that hath been mentioned which the keeper of the god at Pochtlan oversaw.

Chiconqujahujtl pochtli idem.

In chiconqujahujtl, çan no ichoatl, ipan tlatovaia in jzquich omjto in ipan tlatovaia pochtlan teuhoa.

The Keeper of the God of Izquitlan.

The Keeper of the God of Izquitlan looked after the sleeveless jackets, the bells, and the foam sandals, and the sacred wine, and he took the syrup [from the *maguey*es] in the fields. This [maguey plant] was afterwards broken up, that no one might drink [of it], and that no one might take it.

Izquitlan teuhoatzin.

In izquitlan teuhoatzin ipan tlatovaia, in xicolli, in tzitzilli, yoã in poçolcactli: yoan teuvctli, concuicuja in necutli in mjlpã, ichoatl in qujn omotlapan in aiaiac quj, in aiaiac concuj.

The Keeper of the Chachalmeca Gods, at Zapotlan.

The Keeper of the Chachalmeca Gods, at Zapotlan, had it in his charge that [he who impersonated] the man of Zapotlan be adorned, [and supplied with] paper, copal [incense], and incense ladle—all things which the man of Zapotlan needed when he died upon the feast of Tepeilhuitl.

Tzaputla teuhoatzin chachalmeca.

In tzaputla teuhoatzin chachalmeca, ipan tlatoaia injc muchichioaia in ipan miquja in tzaputlacatl, in amatl, in copalli, yoan in tlemaitl, in ie izquich itech monequja tzaputlacatl in iquac miquja ipan tepeilhujtl.

The Old Priest of Chalchiuhtli icue Acatonal.

The Old Priest of Chalchiuhtli icue acatonal oversaw the gifts and caused it to be cried abroad what this [woman arrayed in the likeness of] Chalchiuhtli icue needed when she died—the pine-nut skirt, the Chalchiuhtli icue acatonal cuacujlil.

In chalchiuhtli icue acatonal quacuilli, ipan tlatoaia in ventli, qujxatziliaia in jzquich itech monequja, in ichoatl chalchiuhtli ycue in ipan miquja, in oco-water skirt; and all the paper, the copal [incense], and still other [things].

calcueitl, yn acueitl: yoan in ixqujch yn amatl, in copalli, in vlli, yoan in oc cequj. 793

Acolnauacatl, Acolmiztli.

Acolnauacatl, Acolmiztli had charge of all the adornment with which this Moctezuma adorned himself when he fasted. Only upon the great feasts did he fast—when all fasted for Tlaloc, and when there was fasting for the sun, and for [the feast of] Quecholli. [He] saw to the mantles, the sleeveless jackets, and the foam sandals.

Acolnaoacatl, acolmiztli.

In acolnavacatl acolmiztli, ipan tlatoaia in ie ixqujch nechichioalli, injc muchichioaia in ichoatl motecuçoma, in jpan moçaoaia: çan ipan in veucy ilhujtl moçaoaia, ipan in netlalocaçaoaloia, yoan in netonatiuhçaoaloia, yoan in nequecholçaoaloia: ipam tlatoaia in tilmatli, in xicolli, yoan in poçolcactli.

The Keeper of the God Totoltecatl, at Tollan.

The keeper of god of Tollan: this one saw to what [he who impersonated the God] Totoltecatl needed: the paper, the copal [incense], the [liquid] rubber, and the princely sandals, the heron feather headdress, and the lordly flowers—verily, all that [the impersonator of] Totoltecatl needed when he died, at [the feast of] Quecholli tlami, [or] when it was the feast of Tepeilhuitl.

Tollan teuhoa totoltecatl.

In tollan teuhoa, ichoatl ipã tlatoaia, in jtech monequja totoltecatl: yn amatl in copalli, in vlli, yoan yn itzcactli, yn aztatzontli, yoan in tecusuchitl: in ie ixqujch itech monequja totoltecatl, in jquac mjquja, ipan in quecholli tlamj, auh in quenman ipã in tepeilhujtl.

[793] A True [Relation] of what Was Accomplished and of the Works Which Were Done in the Houses of the Devils.

Imelaoaca in neiehecolizti anoço tlatequjpanolizti in muchiouia teupan in tlacatecolocalco.

The Education of Men.

The priest who educated [the young priests] led them by the hand to the priests, to those who dealt blows, to those who guarded.

Tlacazaltilizti.

In teizcaltiaia tlenamacac, imac concaoaia, in tlamacazque, in tlavitequjnj, in tlapianj.

Admonitions.

Thus they admonished them, that they might lead good lives; that they might not waste time nor live lazily.

Tenonotzalizti.

Ic qujnnonotzaia, injc vel nemjzque, in amo maviltizque, in amo tlatziuhtinemizque.

Sweeping.

[356] That they might sweep the courtyard of the temple, he cried out to all the little priests that they should sweep.

Tlachpanalizti.

Injc tlachpanazque, in teuitvalco quintzatzilia in jxqujchtin in tlamacazcatepitzitzin injc tlachpanazque.

The Laying of Fires.

And he had them see to it that they should lay fires, that they should watch them, where they set in order the various fires. And everywhere in the [373] temple courtyard fires were laid; there perchance [even] ten rows [of them] burned—very many [of them].

Tletlalizti.

Ioan qujncujtlaviltiaia, injc tletlalizque injc tlapialoia, vncan netetecoia in tletl itla, auh çan novjian in tletlaliloia in teuitvalco, in tlequazco in vncan in vncã tlatlaia aço matlactecpantli cẽca mjiec.

Guarding During the Night.

Guarding during the night: they who were priests cared for [this]; it was the duty of those who were trustworthy.

In iovallapializtli.

In iovallapializtli ichoantin qujmocujtlavjaia, in tlamaceuhque, in jxtlamatque intequjuh catca.

The Carrying of Wood.

[373] The carrying of wood. Thus they took care that fire should burn in the priests' dwelling: those who were very young priests gathered it—they who were not yet very prudent.

Quauhçequjlizti.

In quauhçequilizti, injc tlapiaia in tlatlaia calmecac, ichoantin concuja, in tlamacazcatepitzitzin, in aiamo cenca ixtlamati.

The Cutting of Thorns.

The cutting of thorns: they cut them who were priests not yet much experienced. These [were the ones] who took them.

Vitztequjliztli.

In vitztequjliztli, ichoantin cõtequja in tlamacazque in ãmo cenca ixtlamati, in qujnõtlacuixque. 793

The Gathering of Fir Branches.

The gathering of fir branches: likewise they who were priests secured them, and these were already experienced.

Acxoiaçequjliztli.

In acxoiaçequiliztli, çan no ichoantin concuja in tlamacazq̃ auh ichoantin in ic ixtlamati.

The Blowing of Shell Trumpets.

The blowing of shell trumpets: this was the charge of those who were young trumpet-blowing priests; and [they were] experienced and of various sorts.

Tlatlapitzaliztli.

In tlatlapitzaliztli, ichoantin intequjuh catca, in tlamacazcatepitzitzin. yoan in ic ixtlamati neneliuhtivjia. [534]

The Dissolving of Black Coloring.

The dissolving of black coloring was the task of those [who were] the young blowers of shell trumpets. These dissolved the black stain, and everyone anointed himself with it. Verily all together put it on when they stained themselves; none failed [to do so]. And they dissolved it in the black stain canoe. And the black coloring was dissolved only at night, and all stained themselves at the moment of dawn.

Tlilpatlaliztli.

In tlilpatlaliztli, ichoantin intequjuh catca: in tlamacazcatepitzitzin, in qujpatlaia tlilli, muchi tlacatl ic moçaia, vel mocemaqujaia injc moçaia, acan mocavaia: auh in qujpatlaia vncã in tlillacalco, auh in tlilpatlaloia, çan iovaltica, auh in neoçaloia iquac in tlavizcalli ichoa. 793 386

Account of What the Women Did There at the Temples.

Behold the life of the priestesses whom [their mothers] vowed [to service] there in the great temple.

In this manner they put them [into the temple], when yet very small—perchance after [they were] already twenty days or forty days [old]. And thus they took them; thus they left them there. Only they went carrying them; they went in the arms of their mothers. And then they went with their brooms which went filling the arms of the children; and they bore their incense ladles and copal [incense]. Not yet was there fire [in the ladle]; wherever the old priest so disposed, there would the incense ladle be used.

And when she had gone to dedicate the little girl, she thereupon took her away. She left there only the incense ladle and the copal [incense]. And this old priest then admonished the mother that she not lose her child through neglect, and that [the child] not fail to go to leave the brooms and the copal [incense], or wood shavings, every twenty days there at the tribal temple.

And when already discreet, when already a maiden, purely of her own will she went into the tribal temple. And purely of her own will she performed the veiling [ceremony] and also went taking with her the incense ladle and copal [incense].

And when she was a grown woman, if this priestess was asked [in marriage], and if the words were well spoken, and if the fathers and the mothers and the lords of the suburb agreed, thereupon were a number of things bought. They bought quail, and copal [incense], flowers, tobacco, and an incense ladle. And food was bought.

Then this priestess forthwith went to perform the veiling [ceremony] and took with her all that had been bought, as hath been told. And for her performing of the veiling [ceremony there was] a cape called tlazquachtli, which had many heads [worked upon it]. Thereupon they laid out a large cape, the quachtli. Then they set forth the offerings in a reed vessel; here they placed the gifts that they might Imehouca in quenja tlazoqujpanoaia cioa in vmpa templ.

Izcatquj, in jnnemiliz in cihoatlamacazque, injc qujnnectoltiaia in vmpa vej teupan.

Jnjc qujncalaqujaia, oc vel tepitoton, aço quin ie cempoaltia, anoco quin ie vmpoaltia. auh injc quinvicaia, injc qujmoncavaia, çan qujnnapalotivia, çan inmac ietivj in jnnanvan, auh njman impopouh ietivia, in pipiltotonti inmac tentivia, yoan intlema qujzquja, yoan copalli aiatle vnietiuh tletl quin ie-hoatl qujmatia in ichoatl quacujlli in campa moneq'z in tlemaitl.

Auh in ocõnectoltito in cihoapiltontli njman ic qujvica: çã inquich in vmpa concavaia in tlemaitl, yoan in copalli: auh in ichoatl, in quacujlli njman qujvalnaoatia, in nantli injc amo qujxiccaoaz in jconeuh yoan injc amo tlaxiccaoaz, injc qujcaoatiuh in popotl, yoan in copalli, anoço tlaxipoualli, in cecempoaltica in vmpa calpulco.

Auh in iquac in ie movelitta in ie ichpuchtli, çã monomavizia in calaquja, in calpulco: yoan ça yiollotlama in teisquentiaia, no qujtqujtiuh in tlemaitl in copalli.

Auh in iquac in ovelmaçic cihoatl, intla ie itlane, in ichoatl in cihoatlamacazquj, auh intla vel omotlali in tlatolli intla ocenque, in tetahoan, in tenanhoan in tlazillacaleque in pipilti, njman ie tlacocohoalo qujcohoa, in çolin, yoan in copalli, in suchitl, in jietl, yoan in tlemaitl, yoan mocohoaia tlaqualli, njman in ichoatl in cihoatlamacazquj njman ie ic isuh in teisquentiz qujtquj in jequich omococouh, in omjio, auh injc teisquentiaia in tilmatlj itoca tlacaquachtli, tzotzontecomaio, njmã ie ic contlalia in cenca vej tilmatli in quachtli, njmã ie ic tlamana acaquachcuitica, vncan contlalia in ventli in quil-

● 793 [262] cozauh—fast foods of only three tamales. Thereupon they offered a wooden vessel filled with only five tamales, and a sauce perchance of turkey or of duck, which they had gathered together as food.

vian tlacatlaqualli çan etetl, in tamalli, njman ic ic conmana, in quauhcuitl vncan tentiuh, çan macujltetl in tamalli, auh in mulli, aço tenolin, anoço canauhtli, in qujnamjctinin tlaqualli.

Here Endeth the Part of Book II Called the Appendix.

Nican tlamj in icuonca inic vme amatlli yn jtoca apendix.

4: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1952 NU7 Aztec NU7

874
565
793

Seventh Chapter, in which it is told how the chiefs and noblemen left their children there at the priests' house, and what manner of customs were observed at the place called the priests' house.

Chiefs, noblemen, and others besides who were well born, these same took their sons, and promised them, to the priests' house; and also any others [did so] who wished it.[1]

All became priests—the noblemen because the place of rearing in the priests' house, the school, the place of instruction, [was] a place of chastity, a place of reverence, of reflection, of prudence, of virtue, of righteousness. For then [there was] no filth nor vice, nothing blamable in the lives of the priests [and] in the training [given in] the priests' house.[2]

A chief, nobleman, lord, or anyone who was rich, when such vowed to bring his sons [to the priests' house], prepared drink and food. He summoned and assembled the priests, and invited the old priests, and gathered those who were well born.[3] The old men made an entreaty; the old ones besought the priests, and said to them:

"Our lords, priests, you have been pleased to bring yourselves here; you have taken your noble feet [through various places]. Perchance straw or grass you have somewhere touched with your feet; perchance in some place you may have injured or knocked something against your revered feet.

"Our lord hath placed you here. You must know and hear, verily, [that] now our lord, savior and protector of all, hath given one [who is as] a jewel, a quetzal feather.

"We have dreamed; we have quickly arisen. Now, what will the boy, [this] small child, be? Surely we shall not offer him a spindle and a batten. For he is your chatiel, your charge. We now pray to the lord Topiltzin, Quetzalcoatl,[4] to him who is feathered in Injc chiconse capitulo: vncan moteneoa, yn quenjn tlatoque, pipiltin qujmõçaoaia, inpilhoan yn vmpa calmecac, yoan in quenamj tlamanitiliztli, ynjc tlamanja in vmpa moteneoa calmecac.

In tlatoque in pipilti, yoan in oc cequjntin vel nanti, vel tati, çan ien vmpa in qujmaquja in qujnnetoltia in jnpilhoan, yn calmecac: yoan in oc cequjntin in-aquja quinequi, muchintin tlamacazque muchioa in pipilti ypampa, in nencalilotan calmecac, in tenonotzaloia, in teiscaltiloian, chipaoaca nemoouiã, necxiiciecoloia, nẽmachoia ixtlamachoia, qualtioaia, iectioaia: çan njmã hatzoio, hatcuhio, atle iniaioca in tlamacazque innemilix, yn calmecac neoapaoaliztli,

Jn tlatoanj, pilli, tecutli, yn anoço aca mocuiltonoa in iõc quinetoltia in caquja jnpiltzin quicencaoa yn atl, in tlaqualli, qujnnotza qujncentlalia in tlamacazque, yoan qujnnotza in quaquacujlti, yoã qujncentlalia yn nanti, yn tati, in vevetque, tlatlatlauhtia in vevetlaca, qujntlatlauhtia in tlamacazque quimilhuja.

Totecujooane, tlamacazquee, nican anoalmouicatiaque amocxitzin anquioalmanilique, aço tlacotl, çacatl cana oanquioalmocxinamiquilique, aço cana amocxõtzin oanqujoalmocuelhuique, oanqujoalmotecujnilique;

ca njcan amechoalmotlalilia in totecujo, anqujmocuilia, anqujmocaqujltia, a ca nelle, axcan centetl cocatl quetzalli, oqujnomacavili in toteujo, in tloque naoaque tiremiqui, ticcochitleoa, a ca nelle axcan tle oniez, in pilõdli, in conetontli: cuix malacatl, tzotzopaztli, aticmacazque, ca amaxcatzin, ca amotlatquitzin, yn axcan ivicxtzinco tiqujtoa in tlacatl in topiltzin in Quetzalcoatl, in tilpotõqui, calaquiz in calmecac, in

1. Torquemada, op. cit., p. 22, says they were taken by the cuhcuacac at the age of four. Clavigero, op. cit., pp. 199, 200, says the age for these entering both the cuhcuacac and the telpochcalli was fifteen.

2. Training and standards of conduct were much more rigorous in the cuhcuacac than in the telpochcalli. Cf. Cano, op. cit., p. 54.

Cano (ibid., pp. 57) points out that all learning was in priestly hands—science, star lore (magic, omens, time-reckoning), the calendar (prediction of the future, astrology), mythology, history, hieroglyphic writing, law. These bodies of knowledge may indicate a curriculum for the calmecac. Priests also participated in the wars and were the formal educators.

3. Ye mauil, ye tati: an alternative rendering could be "those with fathers and mothers." Seler (Einige Kapitel, p. 347), translates: "Ihr guten Vatersbrüdern sich befindenden Mütter (und) Väter."

4. Quetzalcoatl was patron of the cuhcuacac and of the education of priests and noblemen (Cano, op. cit., p. 28).

[875]

814
793
565

black, that he may enter the priests' house, the house of weeping, of tears, and of sadness, where grow and ripen the sons of our lords.

"And there prayers are raised to the savior and protector of all; there he poureth forth prayers to our lord; there he is importuned with weeping, tears, and sighs. There one is given [gifts], and is chosen for him [our lord]. For there we speak in his worthy house—there where [the shell trumpet] is blown, where the fire is bored, where the children of our lords are reared—where there is sweeping, the clearing of trash; where [sin] is put to one side. [This] disposition our lord will bring about.[5]

"In your noble laps, on your revered backs, in your valued protection we place the child. Grant him [your love], for we give you our child. Grant him your love; give him [your protection]. May he be planted here that he may be reared and wax strong; that he may do penances all night and all day, going about on elbow and on knee, calling and crying out to our lord, weeping, sad, and sighing.

"This is all which you have been caused to know and to hear, O priests."

Behold how the priests responded and replied:

"Here we have taken and received your valued spirit and words. Although we are unworthy, although we do not deserve it, although we do not merit it, your valued spirit and words have come forth [telling] how and why you are anguished over your jewel, your quetzal feather. But we only hear [on behalf of] our lord Topiltzin, Quetzalcoatl, of him who is feathered in black. What will he require of your jewel, your quetzal feather? What will he wish of you? What will become of your jewel and quetzal feather?

"Without doubt we would be foolish [to say] that thus this [is], that this one [is] thus. Let us all trust in our lord, savior and protector of all. What will he wish of us? Let us put our trust in him."

choquizcali, in jxaiocali, in tlaoculcalli, in vncan izcaltilo, oapaoalo in totecujooan in tepilhoã.

auh in vncan tlaitlanililo, in tloque naoaque, in vncan ixillã, itonçatlan mamaisaoa in ichoatzin totecujo, in vncan tlamatataquililo, in choq'ztica, in jxaiotica in elciciuiliztica: auh in vncan motetlamamaquilia, in vncan motepepenilia in ichoatzin, ca vmpa toconitoa in ichantzinco, in vncã pitzalo, mamaisoa in izcaltilo ĩ totecujooa, in tepilhoan, in vncan ochpanoaztli, tlacuicuiliztli, chico tlanaoac, tlatequiliztli qujmochivililiz in totecujo:

amocuexantzinco, amoteputzinco, amomamalhoaztzinco, tocontlalia, manoço tlacaoa in amoiollotzin, ca tamechtoconemaquilia, ma tlacaoa yn amoiollotzin ma xiqualmanilican, ma quimontoca, ma quimonnelo, in izcaltilo, in oapaoalo, in tlamaceoa in ceioal, cemilhujtl, in jmolicpitzin, in jntetepontzin ic tlaçatimj in qujmonochilia, in qujmotzatzililia in totecujo, in choca, in tlaocuia, in elcicivi;

ca izquijch y, anquimocujlia, anquimocaqujtia tlamacazquehe.

Jzcatquj, injc tlananquiliaia, ynjc quicuepaia tlatolli in tlamacazque.

Ca njcan tonconcuj toconana in amihjiotzin, in amotlatoltzi ma çã tehoan titottati, ma tictolhuiltocati, ma tictomactocati, in njcan oalquiça in amihjiotzin, in amotlatoltzi injc ica, injc ipampa, anmonẽtlamachitia, in amocozquj, in amoquetzal, ca çan ticiotlacaquililia in totecujo in topiltzin in Quetzalcoatl, in tilpotonquj anca quen qujmonequililia, in amocozquj, in amoquetzal. auh anca quen amechmonequililia yn amehoantin, anca quenami iez, in cozcatl, in quetzalli, mach tocontotenitalhuizque in ma iuhqui, y, in ma ichoatl, y, ma tictocentemachilicã in totecujo, in tloque naoaque, quen techmonequililia, ma oc titlacentemachica,

5. Mention of the protection of the god and the priests, and of expected rewards, is probably a reference to the fact that from the calmecac came the priesthood and high military, administrative, and judiciary officials (Ibid., pp. 52 ff.). Durán (op. cit., pp. 124-5) writes: "La segunda manera de educarse los hombres era por la ygnoria allegandose al capudonio de donde despues de haver servido en los templos con gran exemplo y penitencia y reverencia se eligian antiguos los oficiales y cargos honrosos en las republicas que oy en dia tienen entre ellos diferentes nombres diversos y nombres que hablando en nuestro manera y segun el respeto y reverencia se les hacia y oy en dia se les hace se como duques condes duques o marqueses obispos o arzobispos et. pues con ellos se celebraban las cortes y se tomaban los parecres y consejos se juntaban a los cavildos y juntas. Los reyes sin el consejo y parecer deste no tomaban hazer cosa cual el mesmo modo que los consejos que se congregaban para descargo de su real conciencia asi a la mesma manera eran estos personas en aquellos dignidades despues de largos penitencias y trabajos y hidas y exemplo a los quales quando les daban estas dignidades y reverencias hacian muchas ceremonias cortesanas segun largo estilo llamandoles la tierra con que siempre ordenaban embiandos de suerte que pudiesse dalle el nombre de determinado pues con aquellas ceremonias celebraban grandes prohibiciones y austeridad de cavalleros haciendo gran fiesta y banquete y oy en dia se hace al uso antiguo lo qual puede afirmar como testigo de hizo pues me he hallado en mas de quatro grandes fiestas y para que los que oyen y escuchen el presente discurso quiero declarar los diversos grados con ensiarme a amar diversamente variadamente diversbelladamente inopinadamente heterogeneamente abrolados opuesto."

Then they bore the child to the temple. The parents carried paper and incense. Chiefs or noblemen [took] breech clouts, capes, precious neck bands, quetzal feathers, and green stones, which they offered as gifts. The poor took only [their] paltry papers and incense, or sweet smelling herbs, which they used as their gifts.

When they had taken [the children] there, they then anointed them with black; they covered their faces well with a black paste. They then gave them neck bands of the roots of the birthwort.[6] A poor [child] they only provided a neck band of loose cotton. Then they cut his ears and cast the child's blood before the image of the devil. If he was yet a small child, then the parents took him [away]. If he was a chief's son, they left his neck band there at the temple; the priest took it away.

Then [the priests] taught him all the manner of living and rules by which they lived in the priests' house.

Niman quivica in piltontli in teupan, amatl, copalli in quitquj in pilhoaque, in tlatoque anoço pipilti, maxtlatl, tilmatli, cozcatl, quetzalli chalchivitl, in quivenchiouia. Yn jcnotlacatl çan amatzintli, copaltzintli, anoço yiauhtli in quitquj in jnven muchioa, 874 793 565 yn oconvicaque, njman cohça tlitica, vel quixtlilpopotza, njman tlacopatli quicozcatia, yn jcnoiiaca çan ixqujch potonquj quicozcatia, njmã qujnacaztequi, contlatlaxilia in ixiptla Diablo in iezio piltõdi, intla oc piltontli oc quivica in pilhoaque, intla tlatooanj ipiltzin, icozquj vmpa c.ocaoaia in teupan, conana in tlamacazque, [302] [301] njman quimachtia yn ixqujch nemiliztli, njc nemoa calmecac, in tlatecpantli.

6. Aristolochia maxima (Simeon, op. cit.).

[p. 62 is blank]

874
793

Eighth Chapter, which telleth of the way of life which they kept in the priests' house, where lived or were reared the fire priests and [other] priests.

First: All the priests slept there in the priests' house.

Second: It was required that everyone should sweep when it was well before dawn.

Third: Those already grown, already [more] hardy, then went to seek maguey thorns. They said, they pruned the maguey thorns.

Fourth: When they were already novice priests of whatever kind, they went forth when it was still night, or when midnight had passed; they started to go to the forest in order to gather and carry upon their backs wood which they called logs. This they burned all night in the priests' house as the priests kept watch.[1] And if anywhere mud [for adobes], a wall, cultivation of the soil, or a canal were to be undertaken, all went forth just before dawn. Those who guarded [the house] were left [behind], as well as those who would go to serve the food. They went in a group. None failed. In good order they passed the whole day.

Fifth: A little before they ceased their work, they went to see to the god's affairs, the duties in the priests' house, and the penances. When still a little sun [shone], or when it was already becoming dark, [this was the time which] was called the cutting of maguey spines. When it was quite dark, when it was already deep night, then the priests began what was called the placing of the maguey spines. One at a time they went forth. First [each] bathed himself. Then they took [their] shell trumpets, and incense ladles, sacks filled with incensè, and they took up pine torches. Thereupon [each one] set forth to place the maguey thorns. They went naked. Those who would perform great penances[2] might go as far as two leagues to place the maguey spines—perchance Injc chicuey capítulo: ytechpa tlatoa, in nemilíztli, in mopiaia Calmecac, yn vncan nenca manoço muzcaltiaia tlenamacaq̃ yoan tlamacazque.

Injc centlamantli. yn vmpa calmecac muchinti vmpa cochi in tlamacazque.

Injc. ij. muchioa muchi tlacatl, tlachpana in vel oc iooa.

Injc. 3. iñ ie tláca, in ie chicactotonti, njman vih in quitemozque in vitztli, in qujtoa vitztlapanazque.

Injc. 4. in ie vel tlamacaztoton, in çan oço ie quenamique, oc iooan, anoço iooalnepantla oonquiz, in onpeoa quauhtla vih, in quavitl concuj conmama, in quilhuja mimiliuhqui, in ceiooal quitlatia calmecac ynjc tlapia tlamacazque. auh intla cana pololli, tepantli, cuemitl, apantli, muchioaz, vel oc iooan in viloa, mocauhtivi in tlapiazque: auh niman ie ieboantin in tetlamacativi, ololiuhtivi, aiac polivi, vellatecpanpa in qujtlaçaia cemilhujtl.

Injc. 5. çan cuel in quicaoa, in tlatequjpanoliztli quioalmati, yn jnteutequjuh in calmecac tequjtl, in tlamaceoaliztli; yn oc achi tonatiuh, anoço ie tlapoiaoatiuh mjtoa vitztequi, yn ovellaiooac, in ie tlaqusuhiooa; njmã onpeoa, in tlamacazque in mjtoa, movitztlalizque, ça vel cecenme in vih, achtopa mahaltia, niman concuj in tecciztli, yoã tlemaitl, tozitli, copalli ontentiuh, yoan concuj ocutl, njmã ie ic vmpeoa in movitztlalitiuh, petlauhtiuh, in cenca vel motlamacaltia aço ome leguas in ovih movitztlalia, aço quauhtla, aço ixtlaoacan, aço atlan yn tejccatoton, in anoço aqujn quinequi, aço media legua, in iauh in onmo-

1. Torquemada (op. cit., p. 227) writes: "Avia Veladores, que velaban las vigilias de la noche, unos en los Templos, y otros en las encruzijadas de las Calles y Caminos. Estos velaban por sus quartos, y horas, mudandose, acabado el tiempo de su vigilia, y vela. Unos velaban desde la primera noche, hasta las diez, otros dazia media noche; y tocaban otros, entraban en la vela otros, hasta las tres de la mañana; y à otros siguian otros hasta el Alba. Su oficio era despertar à los Sacerdotes, y Ministros, los que velaban en los Templos, para que acudiesen à los Sacrificios, y horas nocturnas. Los de las encruzijadas, à los de la Republica, para lo mismo, cualquiera estaban obligados. Tenian tambien cuidado otros Velas de mirar el Fuego de los braseros, para que siempre ardiese, y nunca se apagase. Y à esta Vela Romaban Izquedilli, que quiere decir Vela."

2. The context of this passage suggests that motlamacaltia might better read motlamacavaltia. Otherwise the passage in oncan nel motlamacaltia might be rendered "[before whom] one was much frightened."

874 into the forest, or on the desert, or into the water. A younger one, or whosoever wished, went perhaps 793 half a league to place the spines. [The penitent] bore his shell trumpet and went blowing [it] where he placed the thorns. Wherever he came to be, he went blowing a trumpet.

[673] Sixth: When the priests slept, no two lay [together]. All lay quite separate. None were covered together.

Seventh: The food they prepared for themselves,
[252] together; for it was their own food which they ate. And if anyone returned with food from his house, he ate it not alone.

Eighth: At midnight, when, as was said, night divided in half, everyone arose and prayed. If anyone failed to do so because he slept, if he did not awake, then, for this, all gathered together and drew blood from his ears, or his breast, or his thighs, or the calves of his legs. Because of this, fear verily fell [upon the people].

[273 Ninth: None then were proud; none then were unruly. All lived well ordered [lives]. If at times it 836 appeared that one perhaps drank wine, or was given to women, or committed a great [fault], then they 688] went to apprehend him. No mercy was shown. He was burned, or strangled, or cast into the fire alive or shot with arrows. And if he sinned only lightly, they drew blood from his ears, his flanks, or his thighs with maguey spines or with a [sharpened] bone.

Tenth: The small boys were so raised that if they did nothing of great evil, they then drew blood from their ears, or switched them with nettles.

Eleventh: At midnight the principal [priests] went down into the water and bathed there in the water.

[785] Twelfth: When it was a time of fasting, everyone observed it. Verily, [only] at the moment when midday arrived did indeed all eat—even the small boys. And when it was the fast which they name Atamalqualo, then they ate but sparingly.[2a] Some ate [only] at midnight and yet again went to eat at midnight; some ate at noon, and yet again went to eat at noon. No chili, no salt did they eat; neither, that they might sleep, [did they] even [drink] water. They said that the fast was broken if they ate or drank even a little.

Thirteenth: Very carefully were they taught good discourse. If one spoke not well, if one greeted others vitztlalia, iteccix ietiuh, tlapitztiuh, in canj yn evitztlaliaia, yn oacito vmpa oallapitztiuh.

Jnjc. 6. ynjc cochia tlamacazque, aiac vme temj, çan muchintin, mixcavitoque, aiac monepan tlaquentia.

Jnjc. 7. çan mocenchioaia in tlaqualli, in quiquaia, ca oncatca in jnneuhia, in quiquaia. auh intla haca conmacaia ical itlaqual amo yioca conqua.

Jnjc. 8. in iooalnepantla in iquac mjtoa iooalli xellivi, muchi tlacatl meoaia tlatlatlauhtiaia, yn aqujn tlacochcaoa, yn amo hiça njman ica necentlalilo, quiçoçoia ynacaztitech, yielpan, ymetzpan, itlanitzco vel ica maviztli vetzi.

Jnjc. 9. çã njmã aiac tlacuecuenoviaia, ça njman aiac mocuecuetzoaia, vellatecpanpa yn nemoaia, intla ça nen quenman necia aço vetli qui, aço cioanotza, in anoço itla vej quichioa, njman quitzacutivia, amo tlaoculiloia, tlecujlolo, anoço mecanilo, anoço tlecujlolo ioioltoc, anoço mimino, yn çan tepiton quitlacoa quiçoço yn inacazco, in jiomotla in imetzpa, vitztica, anoço omitica.

Jnjc. 10. in pipiltotonti ic oapaoallo, çan njman atle vel conitlacoa, njman quinçoço in inacazco, anoço quintzitzicazvia.

Jnjc. ii. in iooalnepãtla apantemoia in ic tachcaoa, atlã õmaltiaia.

Jnjc. 12. yn iquac oncatca neçaoaliztli, vel muchintin quipiaia, vel iquac yn oacic nepantla tonatiuh tlaquaia vel muchintin in pipiltotonti. auh in iquac oncatca neçaoaliztli in quilhuja atamalqualo, njman amo tlapaloa, cequjntin iooalnepãtla in tlaquaia, oc no iooalnepãtla in tlaquatiuh cequjntin nepantla tonatiuh in tlaqua, oc no muztla nepantla tonatiuh in tlaquatiuh, atle chilli atle iztatl quiquaia, ano tle ic cochi in manel atl, quitoa moneçaoalhujltequi intla itlaton cõqua, conj.

Jnjc. 13. cenca vel nemachtiloia in qualli tlatolli,

2a. "Tlapaloa, ni. manjar al poco cual pasaje, quitlo comer" (Molina, op. cit.).

4: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1952 NU7 Aztec NU7

874
793

ne. well, then they drew blood from him [with maguey spines].

Fourteenth: Carefully were they taught the songs which they called the gods' songs. They were inscribed in the books. And well were all taught the reckoning of the days, the book of dreams, and the book of years.

Fifteenth: A strict vow of the priests was [that of] chastity, of a pure life. In no wise were they to look upon a woman.[1] A strict vow of theirs was [a life of] moderation. None then told lies. The priests were very devout. They were very god-fearing.

Now enough of this. Here is told the way of life of the priests. Much else, which is left [unsaid] must [yet] be related. [This] will be told in another place.

in aquja amo vellatoz, in amo vel tetlapaloz njman quiçoçoia.

Jnjc. 14. vel nemachtiloia in cujcatl in quilhuja teucuicatl, amoxxotoca. Yoan vel nemachtiloia in tonalpoalli in temjcamatl, yoan in xiuhamatl. [533]

Jnjc. 15. in tlamacazque vel innetol catca in nepializtli, in chipococa nemilizztli, in acan quittazque cihoatl, vel innetol catca in tlaixiciecolizztli, njman-aiac ixtlacatia, vel tlateumatinj, catca in tlamacazque, vel tenimacaçini catca, [589] çan cuel inq'ch, y, nican onmitoz, in jnuemilix catca tlamacazque, oc mjec in mocaoa in jmitoaia monequj vccã mitoz.

1. Probably a life of celibacy is not to be understood. Cf. Charles E. Dibble, Códice Xolotl (Mexico: Universidades de Utah y de México, 1951) p. 75, M. 7, and elsewhere for examples of material priests.

[p. 66 is blank]

793 Ninth Chapter: here is told how were established and chosen the high priests, the Quetzalcoatl priests, the first of whom was [named] Totec Tlamacazqui and the second Tlaloc Tlamacazqui;[1] and [how] these whom they set up were especially wise and prudent.

And one who had distinguished his way of life and otherwise [had followed] the precepts and ordinances of the priests, this one was set apart and chosen, to be made a keeper of the god.[2] The chief, and the great judges,[3] and all the nobles chose him and gave him the name of Quetzalcoatl. There were two Quetzalcoatl priests: one was called Totec Tlamacazqui, one was called Tlaloc [Tlamacazqui].

The Quetzalcoatl priest [called] Totec Tlamacazqui was dedicated to Uitzilopochtli; the Tlaloc was dedicated to the lord of Tlalocan, the [god of] rain. These [were] exactly equal [in station].

555 793 And although he might be poor, or miserable; though his mother and father might be the poorest of the poor, if he well ordered his life and [kept] the commandments of the priests, he was taken to be named this Quetzalcoatl priest. He was called either Totec Tlamacazqui or Tlaloc.

No lineage was considered; only a good life was noted. One was sought of saintly life, of righteous life; of pure heart, good, and humane; who was resigned; who was firm and tranquil; a peace-maker, constant, resolute, brave; caressing, welcoming, and friendly to others; who was compassionate of others and wept for them; who had awe in his heart. He was called divine of heart, pious, god-fearing—one who wept, who was sad, who sighed.

793 And when he began this [training], he was still called an acolyte; then a priest; then a fire priest[4]—already due reverence. Then from these were chosen those named Quetzalcoatl priests.

Injc chicoxnauj capitulo: vncan moteneoa yn quenjn mottaliaia pepanaloia in vevej tlamacazque in quequetzalcoa, ynjc ce totecu tlamacazqui, ynjc vme tlaloc tlamacazqui, oc cẽca muchipa ichoan quintlalia in vel iztlamatque muzcalianj.

Auh in aquin vel qujmonemiliztia, y, yoan in ce cequi in jnnaoatil tlamacazque, yn jnnemiliz, ichoatl ano, ichoatl pepenalo, in teupixqui muchioa, qujpepena in tlatoani yoã in tecutlatoque, yoan muchintin in tlatoque, Quitlatocaiotia Quetzalcoatl: vmentin in quetzalcoa, ce itoca totec tlamacazqui, ce itoca tlaloc, in quetzalcoatl totec tlamacazqui itech povia in Vitzilobuchtli, in tlaloc itech povia in tlalocan tecutli, yn qujiavitl, ynique, y, çan vel neneuhque, auh in manel motolinja, in manel icnotlacatl, in manel quicentzacuj icnotlacatzintli, ynãtzin, ytatzin, intla ie vel quichioa, in jnnemiliz, yn jnnaoatil, tlamacazque ichoatl ano, ichoatl quetzalcoatl tocaiotilo, aço totec tlamacazquj, anoço tlaloc motocaiotia, amo tlacamecaiotl motta ça qualnemiliztli, vel ie motta, vel ie motemoa. in qualnemilice, itl iecnemilice, in chipaoac yiollo, in qualli yiollo, in jcnoioyiollo, in tlapaccaihjiovianj, in tlarepizvianj, in tlaiolicvianj, in ãmo mocivianj, in iollochicaoac, in iollotetl, yn iollochichic, in tepepepetlanj, in temacochoanj, in tetlaçotlanj, in teltaocuiianj, in teca chocanj, ymauhquj yiollo, in mjtoa teutl yiollo, in tlateumatini, in teuimacacinj, in chocanj, in tlaocuianj, in elcicivinj;

Auh injc oalpena y, oc itoca tlamacazto, njman ie tlamacazqui, njman ic tlenamacac, ic mavizti, y, njman ic vncan ano, y, in mjtoa quetzalcoatl.

1. "El nombre de Quetzalcoatl [sic] dado a ambos, es por necessario del dicho que se considerado por los mexicanos como el sacerdote" (Cruz, op. cit., p. 45). Intermediate offices between these high priests and the lower hierarchy are given briefly in Ibid., pp. 47L; see also Torquemada, op. cit., pp. 178L. The responsibilities of various functionaries are also suggested in the Appendix of Book II of Sahagún, for which cf. Anderson and Dibble, op. cit., Book II, pp. 198E. Torquemada, op. cit., pp. 221-2, mentions only one Quetzalcoatl priest: "Tenian un Rector, en su Concepto, que se llamaba del sacerdote de su Dios, Quetzalcoatl, el qual estaba muerto sobre su guarda, y Asistia, reformando la religion, y enseñando las ceremonias, y buenos exemplares."

2. The term of templegod was teotl (god) and pin (guard). Cf. Simeon, op. cit. The dictionaries define the term as priest.

3. Tecuhtlatoque: Sahagún describes them as "los senores jueces . . . estos acostumbran con gran diligencia los casos que ihan a sus casas"; on the death of chiefs, they were among the chosen of a new one (Sahagún, Robredo ed., II, pp. 318, 321).

4. Cf. Anderson and Dibble, op. cit., Book II, p. 74, n. 7.

793 And this priesthood lived in moderate circumstances and followed a distinguished way of life. For rather severe was the life of the priests.

Thus was the manner of rearing of the priesthood distinct from that of the young [warriors].

Auh ynjn tlamacazcaiotl, çaçan veli, çaçan qualli yn ipan nenca, in quimonemiliztiaia, ipampa yn achi ovi, yn nemiliztli catca tlamacazque:

çan vncan xeliuhticatca yn neoapaoaliztli, tlamacazcaiotl, telpochiotl.—/—

5: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

Fifth Chapter, which telleth of the clouds.

The Lord of Tlaloccan

821
776

He was considered a god. To him were attributed rain and water. Thus they said he made that which we ate and drank—food, drink, our sustenance, our nourishment, our daily bread, our maintenance. All that which grew in the summer he made—sprouts, fresh green sprouts, trees, amaranth, chia, squash, beans; the maguey, the tuna cactus; and still others, not edible—flowers, grasses.

[137]

821
793
785

And when his feast was observed, first there was fasting for four days. The priests fasted in honor of Tlaloc in what was called the priests' house, where they had matured and grown.

When the fourth day had passed, when the fasting had ended, when the feast had been completed, [the evildoers] were plunged and submerged repeatedly in the lake. Not soft, not gentle was the punishment. They were plunged and immersed repeatedly in the water. They ill-used only those of their own kind. They dragged [the victim] back and forth through the mud. They plunged him under the water and dragged him; they went pulling him along by the hair; they kicked him. [As] he swam under the water, churning, beating, and swirling it up as he went, he escaped the hands of the priests.

When a fault had been committed in the priests' house, or some error had been done—even though someone had only stumbled, or tripped over something, at once, for this, they laid hold of him. Because of it they shut him in as their captive, no more taking their eyes from him, that they might plunge him in the water.

And to excess did they set upon him. Greatly did they afflict and torment him. He lay half dead, breathing his last, gasping, in his last agonies; at death's door [was he] whom they finally cast on the shore. No one could plead his cause. From thence [the victims'] fathers and mothers took them. And if anyone felt apprehension or foreboding for his son, in order that [the priests] should not plunge him into the Ic macelilli cqpiztlo, itechpa tlatos: in mistli.

Tlaloci tecutli,

Teutl ipan machoia, itech tlamiloia, in quiauitl, in atl: inh quitoaia, ic quichioa in ticcoa, in tiqui, in qualoni, in joani, in tonenca, in toiolca, in tocochca, in tonculuca, in tocemilhuiciaia, in tonacaiotl: in ic iquich xopaniotl, in itzmolintoc, in celiztoc, in quauitl, in ouhtli, in chian, in aiotetl, in etl, in metl, in nopalli: yoan in oc cequi, in amo qualoni, in xochitl, in xiuitl.

Auh in ionac ilhuiquistililoia: achtopa nauilhuitl moçaoaia, motlalocaçaoaia in tlamacazqui: in motecca calmecac moçapaoa, momcaltia.

In ionac çacic nauilhuitl, in ic neoalco, in ic ilhuitl muchioa: matlampapachoaia, mopopolactiaia in uei apan: amo iuiian, amo motlamachuja, in atlan onmotzotzopontilaça, onmotzotzopontimaiaui: çan monetechuja, vacan çoquiztlan quinemjtia, quipopolactia, quimulana: icpac cantinemi, quitilicça, atli tlamotzopontinemj, aiomotzinemi, tlamomolocti-nemi: ionac momitlatinemi, in tlamacazqui, in ectlatoco, in calmecac itlã onchalo: intlanel çan aca ômotepotlani, itlã oconicxixopenh, oc uel ic conaciqui, ic ic iauai ça quipipia, aocmo conjcaoa, inic catlampapachoaqui.

Auh amo çan qoenjo quipolou: uel quicocolia, quellelaxitia, ça quen quimatoc, ça mopapaçaloac, ça iqueuacoac, ça micqui in quiculuaiaui atoco: aiac uel ipan tlatoa, vacan quimoana in intlaoac, in intlaoac. Auh in aquin quitlamachcaitilia, in quitlatlauacchilia ipiltzin, inic amo catlampapachoaqui: cacquistiaia ichtzin quimacaia in tlamacazqui, aqo tatlan, aqo tlapalli: ic quicaaia.

5: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

821
793
785
[535]

water, in order that they should let him go, he offered the priests something of value—either a turkey or food. In return for it they let [his son] be.

And when this came to pass, everywhere, in the houses of all, in each house, ezt lli[9] was eaten. Each one made ezzalli for himself; and there was a dance in which ezzalli was begged. With green maize stalks they danced. Those who danced the ezzalli dance entered house after house, each one begging and asking. [The householders] offered them all this same ezzalli, [placing it] in the small jars, the ezzalli jars, which they bore in their hands.

These [gods] were called Tlaloca. To them were attributed clouds, rain, hail, snow, mist, sheet lightning, thunder, and lightning bolts which struck men.

The Rainbow

821

As if arched—bent and rounded—it thus appeared. Varicolored, many-hued was its appearance. The single colors which showed in it [were] green, dark green, blue green, and black; and yellow and orange or tawny; then vermillion and ruby red; and [various shades of] blue, and dark green.[10]

And they said that when it appeared it revealed, made evident to men, and denoted—whereby it was known, realized, and seen—that it would not rain; would not rain hard—would not pour. But it would break up the clouds. It would dissipate, impede, and quiet the rain—the downpour which wet, soaked, and drenched one. If clouds piled up, if heavy clouds blackened [the sky] so that everywhere it was dark, it only dissipated [them]. Although it rained, no longer was the rain heavy; no longer did it increase. It only sprinkled; it drizzled; a few drops fell; a haze, a fog, a thin mist drifted and fell. Or it most it sprinkled; the sprinkling and the spray continued.

And they said—it was averred—[that] if it appeared over magney plants, because of it the green [leaves] yellowed, turned, dried, reddened, and withered. And also they said [that] when it appeared many times, thereby it was evident [that] the rains were to end forthwith. They said: "Soon the masters of the rain will go; already the Tlaloca are about to leave."

Auh in icoac, y, in nouiian techachan, in cecencalpan ezzalquaioia: cecenca nezzalhuiuia, yoan ezzalmaceoaloia: cintopiltica mitotia, tepan cacalaqui, motlatlaeuia, motlatlaidanja, in ezzalmaceuhque: çan muchc in ezzalli quinmaca, inzozochuicol, inecezzalcon intlan caana.

In ichoantin, y, motenemi tlaloque: intech tlamiloia in mistli, in qtiauitl, in teciuitl, in cêpaiauitl, in aiauitl, in tlapetlaniliztli, in tlatlatziniliztli, in teuiztequiliztli.

Aiauhcoçauaiotl

Iubquin uitoliubqui: tlauitoltic, coltic, inic oalmoquetza, tlatlatlapalpoalli, motlatlapalpoub in itlachiefiz. In centlamantli tlapalli, itech neci: xoxoctic, quiltic, quilpaltic, iispaltic, quilpalli, iispalli: yoan coztic, xopaltic, xochipalli: niman ic chichiltic, tlapaltic: yoã tlauzteoaltic, tlazzaloalli: yoan teaztic, teztôli, matlaltic, matlalli.

Auh quiioa, in icoac oalmoquetza: quinezzia, quitzittiza, quinezaçiezia, ic macho, ic machizti, ic ino: in amo quiauiz, amo tlacquiauiz, amo tilaoaz: çan quimomoiauaz in mistli, quipopoloa, quellchtia, quiiacazzaulia in quiauitl, in tlacquiauitl: in tepulili, in tochacoani, in teçoquitili. Intla cenca omotlatlali mistli, in oael cuicuichcoac, in omoniian tlatlaiooac: çan quipopopoloa. Intlaoel quiauz, aocmo cenca tilaoa, aocmo mollauia: çã aoachquiauz, aoachcli in omocuetzi, in oachichipini: aoachpizaoatli, aoachpicilli, aoachpicilotoa, in oazzizicoani in omocuetzi: aoocz çan aoachtilaoa, aoachtilaoaoiauani, aoachtaztlachiauani.

Auh quiioa, quilnach intla metl, ipan moquetza: ic macuçpalcini, macoçauia, macuçpi, machichilini, matlatlanja, macuetlanja. Ne yoan quiioa, in icoac micçpa oalmoquetza: ic neci, çan cuel quiçaz, in quiauitl: quiauia, çan cuel iaxpac in aoapac, ic quiçaxpac in tlaloqac.

9. Bierdt: cf. Anderson and Dibble, op. cit., p. 79.

10. Sahagún (Memorial) has green for xoxoctic, quiltic, quilpaltic, iispaltic, quilpalli, and iispalli. Alonso de Molina, in his Vocabulario de la lengua mexicana (Julio Platzmann, ed.; Leipzig: B. G. Teubner, 1880), gives blue-green for quilpaltic and brown or black for iispaltic. The second occurrence of this hue and of quilpalli is omitted in this translation. Molina translates xochipalli as ruddy or rose-colored. In Memorial one xochipalli, Sahagún treats both chichiltic and tlapaltic as red. For chichiltic, Molina has red or rose-colored. For tlapaltic and xochipalli, the Memorial has blue.

5: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

Tenth Chapter, wherein is described the disposition of those who kept watch when the new fire appeared.

Inic matlactli capitulo, vncan moteneoa, in tlatecpaniliztli: in quipiaia, inic ilcuic tletl necia.

At nightfall, from here in Mexico, they departed. All the fire priests were arranged in order, arrayed in and wearing the garb of the gods. Each one represented and was the likeness of perhaps Quetzalcoatl, or Tlaloc, etc., or whichever one he went representing. Very deliberately, very stately, they proceeded, went spread out, and slowly moved. It was said: "They walk like gods." Thus, in deep night, they arrived there at Uixachtlan.

Ie tlapoiaoa, in nican oneoaia mexico: motecpantiuia muchinti in tletlenamacaque, muchicliuhtiui, ommaaquia in intlatqui teteu: in cecenaca impan mixeoaia, quinmixiptlatiaia, in aço quetzalcoatl, anoço tlaloc etᵃ in çaço ac ichoatl ipan quiztiuia, cenca çan iiolic, cenca çan iuian in istiuiia, onotiuiia, mantiuiia: moteneoa, teunenemi, inic uellaquauhioua onaci, vmpa uixachtlã.

And the one who was the fire priest of Copulco, who drew new fire, then began there. With his hands he proceeded to have continuously his fire drill; he went about making trials with his drill, the fire-maker.

Auh in ichoatl çopolco tlenamacac, in tlequauhtlazqui: niman nican quipeoaltia, in imac quimamamatinah itlequauh: quichecotiuh ica in imamalioaca, in itlaçaloca.

And when it came to pass that night fell, all were frightened and filled with dread. Thus was it said: it was claimed that if fire could not be drawn, then [the sun] would be destroyed forever; all would be ended; there would evermore be night. Nevermore would the sun come forth. Night would prevail forever, and the demons of darkness would descend, to eat men.

In iqoac, y, oiooac, cenca nemauhtiloia, tlatenmachoia: iuh mitoua, quilmach intlacamo, uel vetziz tlequauid: vncan cempoliooaz, centlamoaz, centlaioaz, aocmo oalquiçaz in tonatiuh: ie ic centlaioa, oalteemoaque in tzitzitzimi, tequaquiui:

Hence everyone ascended the terraces; all went upon the housetops. None remained in their houses, on the ground below. And women with child put on masks of maguey leaves and took up their maguey-leaf masks. [They] placed [the women] in granaries, for they were looked upon with fear. It was said and claimed that if, truly, the new fire were not drawn, these also would eat men; [for] they would be changed into fierce beasts.

ic mochi tlacatl itlapanco tlecoia, netlapanemaloia, aocac tlalchi, tlatzintla, cali mocaoia, motlaliaia. Auh in oeztli, momeztiacatiaia, inmemeztiac quicuia, yoan cuecuemac quintlaliaia: ipampa matlacaitoia, iuh mitoua, quilmach intlaca uel uetzi tlequauid: no ichoantin tequaque, motequãcuepaque.

And the small children they likewise masked with maguey leaves. In truth, none [of them] could sleep, or close, shut, or [even] half-close their eyes. From time to time their mothers and fathers were [there with them]; they kept waking them, punching and nudging them, calling out to them. They woke, roused, and nudged them. Because if they were to Auh in pipiltotõti, no quinmemeztiacatiaia: aiac ved cocochia, onicopia, onnipiquia, onjemoztlouia: çan ic cate in iuallocan, in iztaiol, quinixiticate, quinipiticate, quintlaticate, quintzauilticate, quinixitia, quinipiqui, quintlo: ipampa intla cocochiaque, quilmach quiquinichtin mocuepaque, quinichiaque.

5: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

372
793
796

sleep—it was thought—they would turn into mice; they would become mice.

Hence was heed paid only one thing; there was unwavering attention and expectation as all remained facing, with neck craned, the summit of Uixachtecatl. Everyone was apprehensive, waiting until, in time, the new fire might be drawn—until, in good time, [a flame] would burst forth and shine out. And when a little came forth, when it took fire, lit, and blazed, then it flared and burst into flames, and was visible everywhere. It was seen from afar.

[785] Then all the people quickly cut their ears, and spattered the blood repeatedly toward the fire. Although [a child] still lay in the cradle, they also cut his ears, took his blood, and spattered it [toward] the fire. Thus, it was said, everyone performed a penance.

[782] Then [the priests] slashed open [the captive's] breast. In his breast [cavity] the new fire was drawn. They opened the breast of the captive with a flint knife called iequauac. Etc.

Ic ça miscauja, mocemmati in ontlachielotoc, in onitztotoc, in ōnequechanotoc, uixachtecatl iicpac: iquich tlacatl vmpa ontlatenmati, ōmotemachia, in quēmanja uetzi tlequauitl, in quēmania oalcueponi, oalpetzini. Auh in icoac, oquenteltzin vel uetz, in omopitz, in onotlac: çatepan ic cuetlani, cueponi, nouiian ōneci, oalitto in vēca.

Niman ic muchi tlacatl monacaztectiuetzi, contlatzitzicuinilia iquichcapa in tletl: in manel coçolco onoc no connacaztequi, concuilia iniezço, contzitzicuinilia in tletl: ic mitoa, ca muchi tlacatl tlamacena, ic coneltetequi, in jelpan ontlequauhtlaxoc, conelcoionja in malli, ica tecpatl: itoca iequaoac. etc.*

5: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

Eleventh Chapter, in which is told what they did when it was seen and was evident that the new fire burst out.

Inic matlactloce capitulo, vncan mitoa: in tlein quichioaia, in icoac omottac, onez, in ocuepon iiicuic tletl.

And then everyone—the priests and fire priests—took the fire from there. [Having come] from all directions, the fire priests of Mexico had been sent there, charged with the task, as well as those who had come from distant [places] everywhere—messengers and runners. For these were all only chosen ones, strong warriors, valiant men, picked as best; the fleet, the swift, who could run like the wind. Because through them they could quickly have fire come to their cities.

Auh quinicoac, isquich tlacatl vmpa tlecui, in tlamacazque, in tletlenamacaque: inic ic nouiiampa vmpa oioaloque, oisquetzaloque, in mexico tlenamacaque, yoan in ic nouiian veca oaleoa, titlanti, tlaioaltin: ca çan much ichoan in pepenaloia, chicaoaque, in oquichtin, in tiacaoan in tlatzonanti, in painanj, in tlaççani, in iuhqui hecatoca ic motlaioa: ipampa inic iciuhca, caxititiuetzizque tletl imaltepeuh ipan:

793 796 372 202

First, the fire brand was prepared and adorned. It was called tlepilli. And this the fire priests brought. Before [doing] anything else, they took it up, direct, to the top of the temple [pyramid], where was kept the image of Uitzilopochtli, and placed it in the fire holder.[17] Then they scattered and strewed white incense [over it]. And then they came down, and, also before [doing] anything further, they brought and took it direct to the priests' house, the place named Mexico.[17] Later, this was dispersed, and fires were started everywhere in each priests' house and each tribal temple; whereupon it went everywhere to each of the young men's houses. At that time all of the common folk came to the flame, hurled themselves at it, and blistered themselves as fire was taken. When thus the fire had been quickly distributed everywhere among them, each one laid a fire, and was quieted in his heart.

ca achtopa ic nenemachtiloia, muchichioaia in tlecuioani: itoca tlepilli. Auh ieehoatl, ic quioalaxitiaia in tlenamacaque: oc ie achto, vmpa quitlecauiaia, quitlamelaoaltiaia in iicpac teucalli: in vmpa mopieia ixiptla vitzilobuchtli, tlequazco contlaliaia: nimã ic contepeoa, contoxaoa in iztac copalli. Auh niman ic oaltemo, oc ie no achto, vmpa quitqui, quitlamelaualtia in calmecac, itocaiocã mexico: ic çatepan moiaoa, tletletlalilo in nouiian cacalmecac, cacalpulco: niman ic ic iauh, in nouiian tetelpuchcalli. Ie vncan in isquich onxoquiuri, onmotepeoa, ontapaliui maceoalli, in motlecuilia: icoac ic nouiian, tepan moiaoatiuetzi in tletl netletletlalililo, neioiollalilo.

793 796 372

This same all the village fire priests did. That is, they carried the fire and made it hasten. Much did they goad [the runners] and make them hurry, so that they might speedily bring it to their homes. They hurried to give it to one another and take it from one another; in this way they went alternating with one another. Without delay, with ease, in a

Çã no iuh quichioa, in isquich altepeoa tlenamacac: inic quitequia, quinenemitiaia tletl, cẽca quitototzaia, quimotlalochtiaia: inic iciuhca caxitizaque inchan, quimomamacatiquiça, quimocuicuilitiquiça: ic mõpapatlatiui. Amo uecauh, amo machiztli, çan isquich cauitl, y, in conaxitiaia, in quicueponaltiaia: çan achitonca in nouiiampa, cuecuepocatimoteca

16. "Ya amanecido, hecho de sol y cuanto, quanto deberse del pueblo"—corresponding Spanish text.

17. Sahagún, in the corresponding Spanish text, thus explains this distribution: "Y de allí tomaná y llevaran al aposento de los mayordomos, que se dicen mandamases: y después a otros aposentos, de los dichos mandamases, de pueblos: y de allí tomaran, y llevaran todos por mañana, de la ciudad."

● 793
796
372

short time they caused it to come and made it flare up. In a short time everywhere fires burst forth and flared up quickly. Also there they first carried and brought it direct to their temples, their priests' houses, and each of their tribal temples. Later it was divided and spread among all everywhere in each neighborhood and in the houses.

tletl, cuecuepocatiquiça: no vmpa achto quitquitiquiça, quitlamelaoaltitiuetzi in inteupan, in incalmecac, in incacalpulco: çatepan ic moiaoa, tepan cẽmani in nouiian tlãtlaxilacalpan, yoan in calpan.

5: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

821
[776]

Variously they named the sheet lightning or thunder bolts. They attributed them to the Tlalocs or tlamacazque. They said that these made the thunderbolts and sheet lightning and peals of thunder, and [that] they smote with them whomsoever they would.

Por diuersos nombres nonbran al relampago o rayo atribuyẽle a los tlaloques o tlamacaces. Dezian que ellos hazian los rayos y relampagos y truenos y ellos herian con ellos a quien querian.

821
793
[776]

Fifth Chapter

Clouds and rain these natives attributed to a god whom they called Tlalocan tecutli, who had many other [gods] under his command, who were named Tlalocs and tlamacazque. These [people] thought that they created all things needed for the body, such as maize and beans, etc.; and that they sent the rains so that all things growing in the earth would

Las nubes y las pluuias atribuianlas estos naturales a vn dios que llamauan tlaloca tecutli, el qual tenia muchos otros debaxo de su dominio a los quales llamauan tlaloque y tlamacazque. Estos pensauan que criauan todas las cosas necesarias pa el cuerpo como mayz y frisoles etc. Y que ellos embiauan las pluuias para que naciesen todas las cosas que se crian burst forth. And when they observed the feast of this god and his subjects, before the celebration, those whom they called tlamacazque (who lived in the temple house named calmecac) fasted four days. And, the fast concluded, if there were a malefactor among them, in honor of those gods they mishandled him in the lake, dragging and kicking him through the mire and through the water.

5: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

821
793

en la tierra. Y quando hazian fiesta a este dios y a sus subiectos antes de la fiesta ayunauã quatro dias aquellos que llamauan tlamacazque los quales morauan en la casa del templo llamada calmecac. Y acabado el ayuno si algun malhechor entre ellos avia por honrra de aquellos dioses le maltrataua en la laguna arrestrandole y acozeandole por el cieno y por el agua.

5: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

821
793

And if he tried to rise, by force they again pushed him under the water, until they almost drowned him. They who, in the house called calmecac, committed some fault—like breaking some vessel, or some such thing—these they seized and kept under guard in order to punish them on that day. And sometimes the parents of him who was thus detained gave chickens or capes or other things to the priests so that they would let [him] go and not drown [him]. To those whom they thus illtreated, neither their parents nor their kin dared show favor nor speak for them, if previously they had not freed them while they were imprisoned; and so badly did they treat [the victims] that they even left them almost for dead cast on the brink of the water. Then their parents took them up and carried them to their houses. In this feast of these gods, all the common folk ate maize boiled like rice. And the priests went dancing and singing through the streets. In one hand they carried a stalk of green maize, and in the other a pot with a handle. In this way they went asking that [the householders] give them boiled maize. And all the common folk cast that boiled maize into the pots which they carried.

y si se queria leuantar tornauãle por fuerça, a metter debaxo del agua hasta que casi le ahogauã. Los que en la casa llamada calmecac hazian algun defecto como es quebrar alguna basija o cosa semejante los prendian y tenian guardados para castigallos aquel dia. Y algunas vezes los padres del que así estaua preso daban galinas, o mantas o otras cosas a los tlamacaces porque lo soltasen y no le ahogasen. A los que maltrataua desta manera ni sus padres ni sus parientes osauan favorecellos ni hablar por ellos si antes no los avian librado estãdo presos y tanto los maltrataua hasta que los dexaua casi por muertos arrojados a la orilla del agua. Entonces los tomauan sus padres y los lleuauan a sus casas. En esta fiesta deuos dioses todos los macehuales comian mayz cocido hecho como arroz. Y los tlamacaces andauan bayllando y cantando por las calles en vna mano trayan vna caña de mayz verde y en otra vna olla con asa por este modo andauã demandando que les diesen mayz cocido y todos los macehuales les echauan en las ollas que trayan de aquel mayz cocido.

532

[291
302]

[643
714]

[283
286]

[701
714
793
411]

[723]

—Hijar Pano y Transcaso

72-74. Women's array—ajipilli, cuitl (Chapter 19). 75. Weaving and spinning equipment (Chapter 16). 76. Laying plans for war (Chapter 17). 77. The ruler's war array (Chapter 17). 78. Priests and warriors in battle array (Chapter 17).

[p. 36(I)]

[p. 36(H) is blank]

6: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1954 NU7 Aztec NU7

Appendix A

Continuation of the Fourth Paragraph, Chapter Fourteen[1]

In the priests' house of Mexico, there were established and congregated all the keepers of the gods, the fire priests, and [other] priests, the city's devout ones. There they waited [lest] perchance the ruler might require something—perhaps inquire about something, mayhap of something they had seen in all the places where debts [of sacrifice] had been paid upon the mountains and upon the water; there where, afar, were the small pyramids where each night they performed penances.

For these who were fire priests and other priests, when they came forth well into the night, and when, as was said, the shell trumpets were newly blown, first drew their blood before the devil, with thorns, the spines of the maguey; then each one separately set forth, going quite naked. They went [out] having put about them only their pouches with cords,[2] which went filled with dyed, powdered tobacco—this tobacco mixed with a black [dye]—which they chewed as they went. And one proceeded taking with him an incense ladle in which fire went enclosed; and a small cotton bag in which was incense; and pine wood; and he carried his fir branches in his arms, as well as his spines covered with blood, and a shell as his trumpet. And even though it rained hard or was freezing, just so he went.

When he reached whatsoever mountain he was to perform his due upon, then and there he paid his debt [of sacrifice]. He offered incense; he spread out his fir boughs, his bloodied maguey spines. He listened for the time when trumpets were to be sounded in Mexico, at midnight. And when the trumpets had been sounded in Mexico at midnight, then the priests, they who did penance, blew trumpets everywhere there upon the mountains where they paid their debts. Then they turned back, sounding trumpets as they went, in the dawn, when they again entered the priests' house.

Calmecac, mexico, vncan tecpanoaya, vncan mocenquixtiaya in ixquichtin teupixque yn tlenamacaque, yn tlamacazque yn itlamaceuhcauan catca altepetl, conchiaya yn aço itla ic quintemoz tlatoani, aço itla ic tlatlaniz, aço itla quitta yn ompa yzquican omoxtlauha yn tepeticpac, yoã atlan, yoan yn ompa veca caca momoztli, yceceyoual yc tlamaceua. 346 793

Ca y iehoanti tlenamacaque, tlamacazque catca yquac quiçaya yn tlaquauh tlapoyaua, ỹ mitoaya yancujcan tlatlapitzalo, achto miçoya in ixpan tlacatecolotl yca vitztli, ỹ metl yuitzo, niman ceceyaca quiçaya, çan petlauhtiuja, çan ixquich onactiuia yn intoxi yntlamecayouh vncan tentiuh yaqualli yehoatl im piçietl tlanelolli tlilli yn quiquatiuja, yoan quitquitiuia tlemaitl tzacuhtiuh vnca yetiuh tletl, yoã xiquipiltontli yc icatiuh copalli, yoã ocotl, yoã quiçiacauia yn iacxoyauh, yoan in iuitz yeheço, youn tecuciztli yn itlapitzal ỹ manel cenca quiauiz, anoço ceuetziz yuhca viya. 793 [705] [781] [276 415]

[534]

yn iquac yn oacic campa tepetitech tlamatiuh nimã yc vncã moxtlaua, tlenamaca, contema yn iacxoyauh, yn iuitz yeheço, quiualcaqui in queman tlapitzaloz mexico y youalnepantla, auh yn otlapitzaloc mexico youalnepantla, niman yc nouian tlapitza yn tlamacazque yn tlamaceuhque yn ompa tepetitech in campa omoxtlaua, niman valmocuepa tlatlapitztiujtze ye tlatuinauac, y ualcalaqui calmecac. 796 783 [534]

1. See note 11, Chapter 14.

2. Leonhard Schultze Jena, in Glaubenswelt der alt-amerikanischen Volks in Familie, Stand und Beruf (Stuttgart: W. Kohlhammer Verlag, 1952), p. 330, says of the form name: "Da er im Tore dargingen bemerkten, die den Copalbeutel trugen, wird er sich um Priester handeln." The term [illegible] translates (ibid., p. 161), "schlimm sie tun einer Schuur."

793
684 And if the ruler learned that a fire priest or [another] priest lived in concubinage, and had looked upon a woman, he then pronounced judgment upon him and proceeded to visit punishment upon him. He was despoiled of his goods; they were secreted in his house, [so that] nothing[3] was to be seen [of them]. Likewise judgment was pronounced upon a fire priest or [other] priest if he was drunk.

[689]

Auh yn tlatoani yntla quimachiliz, tlenamacac, tlamacazqui omomecati, oquitac çiuatl, niman quitlatzontequilia, quitzacuhtiuh, namoelo, tlatataco yn icha, atl neneçi. ça no yuh tlatzontequililoya yntla otlauan tlenamacac, tlamacazqui.

3. Ahí: probably ade in manuscript.

And at the time when the captive was to die, then

782 Moctezuma presented the captor a device [with]
293 quetzal feather cups so that possessing it he might 727 slay him as a sacrifice. It did not belong to him; but having it he slew the victim, and he danced with it. He had his rattle stick with him, or the obsidian butterfly or quetzal feather cup [device] set with gold, which he carried upon his back. Possessing it, he slew him as an offering.

nimã ye ic quimaca im moteccuiçoma in tlauizcalli quetzalcomitl inic ypan tlamictiz. amo uel ytech pouia çan ipan tlamictia. ypan mitotia ychicauaz yetiuh. anoço itzpapalotl. anoço quetzalcomitl teocuitlayo in q'mama in ipan tlamictia.

796 And the captive he then took there where he was 727 to die, upon the round sacrificial stone; he proceeded to take the captive by the head, and lead him. up there where they would slay him in the gladiatorial sacrifice. The one known as Old Wolf led him by the hand—he in whose care lay the captives, as if they had become his sons. And then he gave [the victim] his four pine cudgels, which he would hurl at his adversaries. And he gave him his shield, and his war club—not edged with obsidian blades but only pasted with feathers.

auh i yeuatl malli. niman ic quiuica in ompa miquiz temalacac icpac cantiuh contlehcauia, in oncan q'uahuanazqz malli. ymac concaua ytoca cuitlachueue. in imac onacitimanca mamalti iuhq'nma ypilhuã quinchiuaya. Auh niman cõmaca ỹ yocotzonteuh nauhtetl inic q'momotlaz tlauauanq'. yuan q'maca ychimal ymacquauh. amo tenitzyo çan tlapotonilli.

● [793] And those who contended against him in gladiatorial sacrifice were the fire priests and the [other] priests. And the captor remained standing below; he stood regarding his captive. He who died was indeed before [his captor].

Auh y yeuantin in teuauanaya in tletlenamacaqz in tlamacazqz. auh in tlamani çam moquetzticac tlatzintlan quitzticac in imal. uel ispã im miq'.

[273] And after this, when the Old Wolf had arrayed the captive, thereupon he went, and gave him to drink wine which was called the gods' wine. He took it to him [in] a vessel [painted like] reeds and edged with feathers. When [the victim] had drunk, then he raised [the wine] in dedication [toward] where the sun came forth. So [Old Wolf] did with all the shields and war clubs; he raised all of them as offerings which he gave the captive. When Old Wolf had offered the captive [wine] and made him drink it, thereupon the slayer of the sacrificial victim went forth in order to sacrifice him. [He had] his shield and his war club edged with obsidian blades and covered with feathers.

Auh ỹ ye iuhqui in oc'e-ncauh malli in cuitlachueue, niman ye ic yauh quitiz in octli mihtouaya teooctli. inic quitq' acatecomatl tlatempotonilli. in õya. niman ic coniaua in ompa ualquiça tonatiuh mochi iuh q'chiua in chimalli im macquauitl moch coniaua. inic cõmaca malli. auh in oconiti cuitlachueue. niman ye ic yauh in tlamicti inic q'uauanaz ychimal ymacquauh yetiuh tenitzyo tlapotonilli

And when he had drunk, then he struck at the captive, who likewise struck back. And if the captive were of stout heart, if he were verily a chieftain, really manly, perhaps three or four men fought him. Then, when he fell, they indeed slew him as a sacrifice. And if he were not manly, not a chieftain, then he cast himself there on the round sacrificial stone, and did not fight. Forthwith was he stretched out upon his back, and then they gashed open his breast, seized his heart, and raised it in dedication there [toward] where the sun came forth.

auh in õya. niman ic cõuiteq' im malli. auh no q'ualhuitequi auh intla yollo chicauac im malli intla uel tiacauh y uel oq'chtli. aço yey tlacatl anoço nauitlacatl in q'moychecultia. q'niquac uel q'mictia in ouelhuetz. auh intlacamo oq'chtli intlacamo tiacauh çan niman õmoteca in oncan temalacac amo ontlachecoua. çan iciuhca onmaquetztiteca niman ic cuecheq' concuilia in iyollo coniauiliz in tonatiuh. ompa ualq'ça

6: Sahagún M-S (1529-1590) 1954 NU7 Aztec NU7

And after the sacrifice was offered, thereupon those who had made the sacrifice, who had slain [the victim], the priests, each one danced with the heads [of the captives], carrying them with them. And Old Wolf wept at this; he wept for his sons who had died.

And the captive[s] they then flayed; when it was dawn they were already flayed. [They] stood wearing [their] skins. Of each captive who died, their skins were all worn. Then they assembled at Yopico, in the courtyard of the devil. They had their shields, their war clubs, and their rattle sticks. And also came together the great chieftains, the battle-drunk, all important personages. With them were their staves; the pine staves lay in their hands, and they went carrying them.

And when deep night was overspread, they did not take upon their wrists their shields, but took only their staves, as they awaited the time that the sun would burst forth. And when he came forth, thereupon the tototecti placed themselves in order—verily, all of them. And the chieftains, upon this, also placed themselves in order and contended against the tototecti. Perhaps they faced each other in the four directions. And then the chieftains started forth and fell upon the tototecti; they tickled their navels. Very swiftly they tickled them, and then they took after them and went skirmishing with them there in the place where they were, a place called Totectzontecontitlan. There the chieftains turned back; their only task had been to leave them there.

And when this had taken place, thereupon the tototecti visited house after house. Nowhere did they omit a house or one's home. Indeed everywhere they entered; and the common folk, seasoned to this, awaited them in order to offer them the things with which they expected them—bunches of ears of maize, tortillas made of uncooked maize, and tamales of maize, amaranth seed, and honey mixed together. For the whole day they went from house to house, [thus treated with] esteem.

And the next day, or [during the next] twenty days, wherever [one of them] went, perhaps in the market place, he begged, and that which he begged he gave to the owner of [the dead] captive. He gave him his share, perchance, of chili, salt, or staves, or pine wood, or grains of maize—all which lay in the market place. Each day [he did] the same.

Auh i ye iuhqui ommicouac. nimã ye ic mihtotia 796
in tlauahuanqz in otemictiqz ỹ yeuantin tlamacazqz. 727 in ipan mihtotia cecenteti in tzontecomatl intlan 793 caana. Auh i yeuatl cuitlachueue. niman ye ic choca q'nchoq'lia ỹ yehuãtin ypilhuã in omicqz.

auh i yeuatl malli nimã ye ic q'xipeua in tlathui ye totec, [çan moquetzticaequi][5] in icuayo. in isquichtin omicqz mamalti moch onneaquilo in imeuayo. oncan mocenquistia i yopihco in diablo itualco.
inchimal immacquauh yetiuh inchicauaztopil. auh
no mocenq'stiaya y ueuey tiacauan yetiui. i yaopan miuintiani. uel isquich tlacatl. inquauh yetoc. yeuatl in ocoquauitl immac onoc in quitquitoqz.

oc uel youã im moteca immac tlacuistoqz atle 796
inchimal çanio in quauitl quitq'toqz. quichistimani
in quemmã ualquiçaz tonatiuh. auh in oualquiz niman ye ic motecpana in tototecti. uel isq'chtin. Auh in tiacaua nimã ye ic no motecpana q'misnamictimo-mana in tototecti. aço nauhmapa. in motztimani. auh nimã ye ic ompeua in tiacaua ỹuicpa õuetzi in tototecti q'moncotonilia in inxic ça uel yciuhca in oq'mocotoniliqz nimã ye ic q'ntoca q'micaltiui ompa q'mõmana in innemanaya in itocayocã totectzontecontitlã. oncan ualmocuepa in tiacaua. çan tequitl q'mõcaua.

Auh i ye iuhq' nimã ye ic ui in tepan cacalaquizqz 796
in tototecti. acan quimocauia in calli in techã. uel 431
nouian calaq̃ auh im maceualli ye iuhca ỹyollo quin- 262
chie. in q'mmaca in inchiel. ocholli. uilocpallascalli.
ytnocoyouh. nenepanolli. çan cemilhuitl in tepanca-calaq' in ontlaçotlalo.

auh in imoztlayoc anoço y compoualloc. ça campa quiquiça aço tianquizco. tlatlacuã. in quehua cõ-maca im male. q'xelhuia. aço chilli. iztatl. aço quauitl.
aço ocotl. anoço tlaolli i ye mochi tianquizco onoc.
momoztlac yui.

5. This phrase is almost illegible in the original. We have reproduced what the words appear to be.

423 which "the king" (viz. the tlatoani) belonged. These lands "passed 428 from fathers to sons... and if anyone died or went off to other parts, his house and his land remained , and by order of the king or of the ruler, the others of the district put another in his place, " and they could not sell them (33), and the tecpantlacas worked them personally

33. Torquemada, II, p. 546.

(34). These data indicate to us, first, that among them obtained

34. Ixtlilxóchitl, II, p. 170.

the same situation as obtained among the lands of the calpullis and tlaxilacallis: distribution in family parcels and inheritance of use, and that they had a certain unity with respect to a group which used them: its "faction" ["parcialidad"]. All this makes us think that the tecpantlalli were of a calpulli or of a tlaxilacalli, the calpulli or the tlaxilacalli to which the tlatoani belonged.

423 /p. 42/ We are not told only of the tecpantlalli, but also of the tecpillalli, which " ere almost like what they called pillalli" (35).

35. Ixtlilxóchitl, II, p. 170.

Tecpillalli is translated as lands of the pilli or of the pillis of the tecpan, which explains to us what sort of lands they were that received this name: the lands destined for the sustenance of the pillis of the tecpan—the nobles of the calpulli of the tlatoani—, lands which possibly formed a unit with the others of the tecpan, perhaps inlike manner to the lands of other calpullis divided between macehuales and pillis.

423 There were lands and cultivated plots for the temples (36). These 794
● 793

36. Román y Zamora, I, p. 120; Zurita, p. 176.

surely were of two types since on the one hand there was "a lot in each ward" (37), that is, they were certainly distributed by calpullis.

37. Ramirez Codex [Códice Ramírez], p. 79.

423 But on the other hand there were others which were not or appeared
794 not to be in the same condition, since in these the priests functioned
793 as mayordomos (38) and had tenants and neighbors who gave tribute

38. Clavigero, I, p. 281.

only to the temples (39). Perhaps this means that they were calpullis

39. Román, I, p. 120.

or tlaxilacallis whose lords were priests. Reinforcing this assertion is the fact that these people were differentiated from others and felt it to be an honor to be occupied in that employment (40), somewhat

40. Torquemada, II, p. 165.

similarly to what happened in the case of the tecpantlacas. What we can deduce from all the above, anyway, is that in order to speak of the lands of the Temples one takes as criterion the tribute and not the direct utilization of the land by the priests. Furthermore we can ascertain from our data that the calpulli was an organism basic to the existence of these lands in their particular distribution: each calpulli giving a part of its products, or entire calpullis dedicating themselves to giving tribute exclusively for the sustenance of the religious needs. In some cases these were towns removed from the city proper which were tributary to the temples and which alternated each half year (41). But we do not know what happened during the half year when they did not give tribute to the temples. It may be that they continued with their calpulli organization and perhaps only gave tribute to their lords.

41. Torquemada, II, p. 164.

423 Something similar to that which occurred with the lands of the 652 temples happened with the lands for war, or yaotlallis, which had various names according to the products which they yielded, cacalomilli, milchimalli (42) and which were "for /p. 43/ food

42. Vetancourt, I, p. 372.

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

721 sent them to say that we were not to go to his city because he had nothing to give us to eat, and that they wished at once to return to Mexico with our reply. When Cortés saw that their speech was unfriendly, he replied to the Ambassadors in the blandest manner, that he marvelled how such a great Prince as Montezuma should be so vacillating, and he begged them not to return to Mexico, for he wished to start himself on the next day, to see their Prince, and act according to his orders, and I believe that he gave the Ambassadors some strings of beads and they agreed to stay.

When this had been done, our Captain called us together, and said to us—"I see that these people are very much disturbed, and it behoves us to keep on the alert, in case some trouble is brewing among them," and he at once sent for the principal Cacique, whose name I now forget, telling him either to come himself or to send some other chieftains. The Cacique replied that he was ill and could not come.

721 When our Captain heard this, he ordered us to bring before him, with kindly persuasion, two of the numerous ●793 priests who were in the great Cue[1] near our quarters. We brought two of them, without doing them any disrespect, and Cortés ordered each of them to be given a chalchihuite, which are held by them to be as valuable as emeralds, and addressing them with friendly words he asked them what was the reason that the Cacique and chieftains and most of the priests were frightened, for he had sent to summon them and they did not want to come. It seems that one of these priests was a very important personage among them, who had charge of or command over all the Cues in the City, and was a sort of Bishop among the priests and was held in great respect. He replied that they, who were priests, had no fear of us, and if the Cacique and chieftain did not wish to come, he would go himself and summon them, and that if he spoke to them he

[1] [i.e., temple pyramid. —Analyst]

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

721 713 believed they would do as he told them and would come.

Cortés at once told him to go, and that his companion should await his return. So the priests departed and summoned the Cacique and chieftains who returned in his 721 company to Cortés' quarters. Cortés asked them, through our interpreters, what it was they were afraid of, and why they had not given us anything to eat, and said that if our presence in their city were an annoyance to them, we wished to leave the next day for Mexico to see and speak to the Lord Montezuma, and he asked them to provide carriers for the transport of the baggage and tepusques (which are the cannon) and to send us some food at once.

The Cacique was so embarrassed that he could hardly speak, he said that they would look for the food, but their Lord Montezuma had sent to tell them not to give us any, and was not willing that we should proceed any further.

721 While this conversation was taking place, three of our friends, the Cempoala Indians, came in and said secretly to 725 Cortés, that close by where we were quartered they had found holes dug in the streets, covered over with wood and earth, so that without careful examination one could not see them, that they had removed the earth from above one of the holes and found it full of sharp pointed stakes to kill the horses when they galloped, and that the Azoteas had breastworks of adobes[1] and were piled up with stones, and certainly this was not done with good intent for they also found barricades of thick timbers in another street. At 721 this moment eight Tlaxcalans arrived, from the Indians 782 whom we had left outside in the fields with orders that they were not to enter Cholula, and they said to Cortés—

[1] Sun-dried bricks.

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

apart from the great Cue there was another small tower 346
which was also an Idol house, or a true hell, for it had at the opening of one gate a most terrible mouth such as they depict, saying that such there are in hell. The mouth was open with great fangs to devour souls, and here too were some groups of devils and bodies of serpents close to the door, and a little way off was a place of sacrifice all blood-stained and black with smoke, and encrusted with [415]
blood, and there were many great ollas and cántaros and tinajas[1] of water inside the house, for it was here that they [782 266] cooked the flesh of the unfortunate Indians who were sacrificed, which was eaten by the priests. There were also near the place of sacrifice many large knives and [412] chopping blocks, such as those on which they cut up meat in the slaughter houses. Then behind that cursed house, some distance away from it, were some great piles of firewood, and not far from them a large tank of water [312] which rises and falls, the water coming through a tube from the covered channel which enters the city from Chapultepec. I always called that house "the Infernal Regions."

Let us go on beyond the court to another Cue where the [766] great Mexican princes were buried, where also there were many Idols, and all was full of blood and smoke, and it had other doorways with hellish figures, and then near that Cue was another full of skulls and large bones arranged in perfect order, which one could look at but could not count, for there were too many of them. The skulls were by themselves and the bones in separate piles. In that place there were other Idols, and in every house or Cue or oratory 793 ● that I have mentioned there were priests with long robes [292] of black cloth and long hoods like those of the Dominicans, and slightly resembling those of the Canons. The hair

[1] Names of various large pottery vessels for holding water and cooking.

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

793 The hair
[302] of these priests was very long and so matted that it could not be separated or disentangled, and most of them had [304] their ears scarified, and their hair was clotted with blood.
346 Let us go on; there were other Cues, a little way from where the skulls were, which contained other Idols and places of sacrifice [decorated] with other evil paintings.
[585] And they said that those idols were intercessors in the marriages of men. I do not want to delay any longer
[342] telling about idols, but will only add that all round that great court there were many houses, not lofty, used and occupied by the priests and other Indians who had charge of the Idols. On one side of the great Cue there was another much larger pond or tank of very clear water dedicated solely to the service of Huichilobos and Tezcatepuca, and the water entered that pond through covered [883] pipes which came from Chapultepec. Near to this were other large buildings such as a sort of nunnery where many of the daughters of the inhabitants of Mexico were sheltered like nuns up to the time they were married, and [585] there stood two Idols with the figures of women, which were the intercessors in the marriages of women, and women made sacrifices to them and held festivals so that they should give them good husbands.

I have spent a long time talking about this great Cue of Tlaltelolco and its Courts, but I say that it was the greatest temple in the whole of Mexico although there were many others, very splendid. Four or five parishes or districts possessed, between them, an oratory with its Idols, and as they were very numerous I have not kept count of them all. I will go on and say that the great oratory that they had in Cholula was higher than that of Mexico, for it had one hundred and twenty steps, and according to what they say they held the Idol of Cholula to be good, and they went to it on pilgrimages from all parts of New Spain to obtain absolution, and for this reason they built for it such

15:Bandelier E-4 (no date)1880 NU7 Aztec NU7

428 their husbands. Single-blessedness, among the Mexicans, appears to have occurred only in case of religious vows, and in which case [589 784] they fell back for subsistence, upon the part allotted to worship, or in case of great infirmities, for which the calpulli provided.[111] No mention is made of the widow participating in the products of the "tlalmilli," still it is presumable that she was one of those whom the oldest son had to support. There are indications that the [587] widow could remarry, in which case her husband, of course, provided for her.[112]

428 764 The customs of Inheritance, as above reported, were the same with chiefs as well as with the ordinary members of the tribe. Of the personal effects very little remained since, the higher the office was which the deceased had held, the more display was made at his cremation, and consequently the more of his dresses, weapons and ornaments, were burnt with the body.[113] Of lands, the chiefs 428 only held each their "tlalmilli" in the usual way, as members of their kin, whereas the other "official" lots went to the new incumbents of the offices. It should always be borne in mind, that none of these offices were hereditary themselves. Still, a certain "right of succession" is generally admitted as having existed. Thus, with the Tezcucans, the office of head war-chief might pass from father to son,[114] at Mexico from brother to brother, and from uncle to nephew.[115] This might, eventually, have tended to perpetuate the [793] [111] Such unmarried females were the "nuns" frequently mentioned by the old writers. We shall have occasion to investigate the point in our paper on "the ancient Mexican priesthood." As attendants to worship, they participated in the tributes furnished towards it by each calpulli, of which we have spoken.

[112] Oviedo ("Hist. gen. y nat. de Indias," Lib. XXXIII, cap. LIV. pp. 347–353), reports a conversation with Don Juan Cano, held at San Domingo, 8 of Sept., 1514, in which the said Cano asserts that he married Montezuma's daughter, widow of Quauhtemotzin. There is an indefinite report that, when she married Quauhtemotzin, she was already the widow of Cuitlahuatzin. Intermarriage of widowers and widows took place in Yucatan, but without any ceremony. See Landa, "Relacion de las cosas de Yucatan." Paris, 1864, by Mr. Brasseur de Bourbourg, p. 142, §XXV.

[113] See note No. 108, the same quotations apply to this case. Besides, we refer to the numerous descriptions of funeral rites, or rather cremations, contained, for instance, in Durán, Tezozomoc, Ixtlilxochitl, Veytia, and in Bustamantes "Tezcoco en los Ultimos Tiempos, etc." Also to the cremation of the head chief of Michhuacan, as related by Mendieta (Lib. II, cap. XLI. pp. 164–167). We abstain from special quotations, the subject being amply discussed in all the authors just mentioned.

[114] Zurita (p. 12). Gomara (Vedia I, p. 434). Torquemada (Lib. IX, cap. IV, p. 177. Lib. XI, cap. 27, p. 336, etc. etc.).

[115] This fact is too amply proven to need special references. We reserve it for final discussion in our proposed paper on the chiefs of the Mexicans, and the duties, powers and functions of their office.

16:Bandelier E-4 (no date)1880 NU7 Aztec NU7

the existence of a privileged class of nobles.[102] Besides the other evidence which we have mentioned, as against the existence of nobility in ancient Mexico, we shall state here that the place called "calmecac" which is the name given to that supposed "school for the nobles," was in reality something quite different.

Fray Bernardino Sahagun, in his description of the central medicine-lodge or great temple of the Mexican tribe, says that in the house called calmecac those who devoted themselves to "medicine," or to the priesthood were trained for that office and lived in said house along with the medicine-men themselves.[103] There were several buildings or rooms bearing that name, all within the square occupied by what is commonly termed "the great temple of Mexico," and these were the places where the medicine-men and whoever was attached to them and to their offices, actually dwelt.[104] Consequently these places were also plus"). Burita (pp. 121-123) asserts that "certain fixed days, the children of land-tillers had permission to share their father's labor." That the "temple tracts" were probably identical with those worked by the young men is made evident by Sahagun (Cap. V, Lib. III, p. 269; cap. VIII, p. 273). Burita (p. 121): "Ils étaient obligés de travailler aux terres affectées à ces établissements." Torquemada (Lib. IX, cap. XII, p. 183): "Tenian sus Tierras, y Heredades para su sustento (que debian de ser de las dedicadas al uso, y gasto de los Templos) en ellas sembraban, y cogian Pan para su sustento." Mendieta (Lib. II, cap. XXIV, pp. 124 and 125). Gomara (Vedia, p. 438). The latter is very plain, connecting all the "schools" and their lands with the temples.

[102] H. H. Bancroft (Vol. II, pp. 243 and 244). Nearly all the older writers call it a higher school, but I shall hereafter discuss their statements. See also Prescott ("Mexico," Book I, ch. III, p. 60).

[103] "Historia general de las Cosas de Nueva España," (Lib. III, cap. VII, p. 271): "Los señores, ó principales, ó ancianos, ofrecian á sus hijos á la casa que se llamaba Calmecac, era su intencion que alli se criasen para que fuesen ministros de los idolos." Id., (Cap. IV, p. 268): "y le ofrecian á la casa de los idolos que se llama Calmecac, para que fuese ministro de ellos, viniendo á edad perfecta." But especially (Lib. VI, cap. XXXIX, p. 283): "si le prometian á la casa Calmecac, era para que hiciese penitencia, sirviese á los dioses, viviese en limpieza, en humildad y castidad, y para que del todo se guardase de los vicios carnales."

[104] The description furnished by Sahagun (Lib. VI, Appendix, "Relacion de los Edificios del gran Templo de México," pp. 197 to 211) mentions seventy-eight parts or edifices, among which were the following, with the name "Calmecac:"

The 12th edifice "Tillaucalmecac," a shrine to the goddess Civocoatl and inhabited by three priests, medicine-men (p. 201).

13th edifice "Mexicocalmecac," called by him "a monastery wherein the priests dwelt who served daily in the Cu of Tlaloc" (p. 201).

24th edifice, "Vitznaoac Calmecac," inhabited by the priests of the idol Vitznaoac, (p. 202)

27th edifice, "Tetlanmancalmecac," where the priests of the temple dedicated to the goddess Chantico lived, as in a "monastery," (p. 203).

32d edifice, "Tlamatzinco Calmecac," "a monastery," inhabited by the priests of the god Tlamatzincatl, (p. 204).

34th edifice, "Yopico Calmecac, "monasterio ó oratorio," (p. 207).

61st edifice, "Tecuhuelico-calmecac," "a monastery where dwelt priests of the god Tecuhuelcatl," (p. 207).

16:Bandelier E-4 (no date) 1880 NU7 Aztec NU7

346 the abodes of such men as underwent the severe trials preliminary 793 to their investiture with the rank of chief ("tecuhtli.") The word "calmecac" is often interpreted as "dark house" but its etymology is probably quite different. In no case, however, was that building a school for a "privileged class of children.[105]

582 The kin had the right to regulate and to control marriage.[106] We have seen that the obligation to marry rested upon every member of a "calpulli." Where tribal society is still in its pure and original condition marriage in the same kin is absolutely prohibited. The matrimonial customs of the ancient Mexicans were closely scrutinized by the Catholic church, and a rigid investigation by the early missionaries has proven that not only was marriage between close relations strictly prohibited, but it was also discouraged (if not forbidden) between members of the same kin.[107] Mr.

In all, seven "calmeca" within the enclosure surrounding the great "house of god" of Mexico-Tenuchtitlan. Torquemada (Lib. VIII, cap. XI to XVI) also describes the various places, mentioning "Huitznahuacalmecac." "Casa de recogimiento, y habitacion de los Sacerdotes, y ministros de este lugar" (p. 150). "Tlamatzinco calmecac," donde vivian y tenian su asistencia los Sacerdotes, y ministros de este dicho Templos" (p. 151). "Yopico calmecac" "donde habitaban, y se criaban los muchachos" (p. 153). "Calmecac"—"donde se criavan los niños" (p. 149). Besides these statements, the two authors just quoted allude to the Calmecac in the same manner at various places. Sahagun (Lib. III, Appendix, cap. VII, and especially Cap. VIII, pp. 274–276). Already the title of this chapter is significant: "De las costumbres que se guardaban en la casa que se llamaba Calmecac, donde se criaban los Sacerdotes, y ministros del templo desde niños." Torquemada (Lib. XIII, cap. XXVIII, pp. 468–471). Johannes Eusebius Nieremberg ("Historia Naturæ," Lib. VIII, cap. XXII, pp. 143–146). He copies Hernandez who, in turn, almost verbally agrees with Sahagun. Oviedo (Lib. XXXIII, cap. X, p. 302; Cap. LI. p. 537). Gomara (Vedia I. p. 438).

[105] Molina (II, p. 11). "Calmeca tlatolli," "palabras dichas en corredores largos" and "Calmelzetli," "Sala grande y prolongada, ó corredor de la casa." The word may be decomposed into "Calli"—house, and "mecayotl"—consanguine relationship, or "mecatl" a cord or tie. "House of Ties"?

[106] "Ancient Society" (p. 74).

171 [107] Already Motolinia (Trat. II, cap. VII) pictures vividly the difficulties encountered by the priests in regard to regular marriage. The first question to be determined was that of the legitimate spouse. This has already been investigated in a former note. The next question was that of the degrees of consanguinity, or affinity. It was rigidly inquired into whether perhaps, custom had sanctioned intermarriage of brothers and sisters. Gomara (Vedia, p. 439): "No casan con su madre ni con su hija, ni con su hermana; en lo demas poco parentesco guardan; aunque algunos se hallaron casados con sus propias hermanas;" thus admitting the fact that intermarriage of that kind existed. Mendieta (Lib. III, cap. XLVIII, p. 305) also concedes that such may have been the case, and infers that these marriages should be regarded as valid. The question of intermarriage between children of the same isene becomes important through the statements and discussion of Torquemada (Lib. XIII, cap. VII, p. 489) about the matrimonial customs of the Indians of Vera-Paz: "The Indians of Vera-Paz were compelled frequently, on account of their customs of relationship, to marry brothers with sisters for this reason: It was not customary for those of one clan, or tribe, to marry the women of the same tribe (pueblo), and thus they sought for them from others, because

X 787
776

Third Chapter, in which is told the omen taken as a present when at night they heard as if someone shot iron arrows into something or as if he chopped wood; this they called the night axe.

Ic ei capêmilo, vncan moteneoa: in tetzaujtl catca, in tetzammachoia: in jquac iooaltica qujcaquja, in juhquj aca, tlatepuzmjuja: in juhquj quauhxeloaia, in qujtoaia, ioaltepuztli.

Likewise there was an omen which was taken as and considered portentous; its name was the night axe. When it made itself heard, it was well into the night,[1] when none spoke aloud.

No ioan, tetzaujtl catca, netetzaujloia, tetzammachoia: in jtoca ioaltepuztli. Iquac caqujztia, in ouellallimjctimotecac: in aocac naoati.

When the priests went forth to do penances and to lay down fir branches at their places of doing penance on mountain tops, wheresoever they all went, then it was heard that it resounded like someone chopping and splitting wood. It rang out for a great distance; much did it frighten the people. It made them faint and swoon with fear. This night axe, so we are told — it was said that it took the form of Tezcatlipoca, to make sport and fun of people.

[79a]

In ontlamacteoato, in onacxoiatlaliq tlamacazque: in jntlamacteoaian tepeticpac, in çaço campa ie, onuja, injc mocaquja, injc caquiztia, iuhqujn aca, tlaxeloa, quauhxeloa: cenca veca caqujzti, cenca temamauhti, teiolmjcti, teçolauh. Inin, ioaltepuztli, iuh mjtoa, qujlmach iehoatl, ipan mjxeoaia, in tezcatlipoca: injc teca mocacaiaoaia, teca maujltiaia.

They said that he who looked upon it, one who was bold and wise, and not given to fright, of strong spirit,[2] could then hurl himself at it. He seized it and would no more give up, in order to see it. He would call to it as to a person and, indeed, hang on to it — force himself on it — as he pursued it. He followed at its back and forced it on; because thus he could catch it and see what manner of omen his was. Thus do they say, that whosoever would catch it when he saw it could with difficulty approach it; yet he pursued it and made it go everywhere; everywhere he came up to it.

qujtoa. In aquja quiztaia, in mjhiujntia, in jiollo quijmati, in amo momauhtianj, in tonallapaliuj, vel ic momotla: qujmomaca, aiocmo qujcaoa, injc vel qujttaz, qujtlacanotzaz, vel itech mopiloa, itech motlapaltilia, injc qujtoca: qujteputztoca, qujtlalochtoca, ipampa injc vel caciz: qujttaz, in quenamj ittzauh: in juh conjtoa, in aquja vel cacia, in qujttaia: aiaxcan in vel itech pachiuj: oc qujtotoca, noujã qujnemjtia: noujan caaxitia.

When he tired it, somewhere on the road he awaited it without fear. And when now he saw it, he beheld it like a man without a head — a headless one, with neck severed at the nape, and with chest framework and belly broken open. Thus they said it was thought that that which was heard was his [split] chest framework when its halves met [like] a mouth continually opening and closing, with a sucking sound.[3]

Iquac in oqujciammjcti, cana otlica qujoalmuchieltia: auh in ie qujtta in ie qujtzticac, iuhqujn tlacatl quechcotonquj, quechcotoctic, quechtepultic: ioan elchiqujuhtlapanquj, ellapanquj: in juh conjtoa: qujlmach iehoatl, in caqujzti, ielchiqujuh: iuhqujn ommonamjquj ommocacamapiquj, ommopipiquj, onchachaquanj.

1. Corresponding Spanish text: "al primer sueño de la noche: quando todos dormian profundamente."
2. Ibid.: "alguno hombre animoso y esforçado y inuentado en la guerra."
3. Ibid.: "el pecho rasgado abierto: y tenia cada parte como vna portezuela, que se abrian, y se cerraban, haziendose en el medio: y al cerrar, decian: que hazian aquellos golpes, que se oyan lexos." Text Pl. 2.

423 which "the king" (viz. the tlatoani) belonged. These lands "passed
428 from fathers to sons... and if anyone died or went off to other parts, his house and his land remained , and by order of the king or of the ruler, the others of the district put another in his place, " and they could not sell them (33), and the tecpantlacas worked them personally

33. Torquemada, II, p. 546.

(34). These data indicate to us, first, that among them obtained

34. Ixtlilxóchitl, II, p. 170.

the same situation as obtained among the lands of the calpullis and tlaxilacallis: distribution in family parcels and inheritance of use, and that they had a certain unity with respect to a group which used them: its "faction" ["parcialidad"]. All this makes us think that the tecpantlalli were of a calpulli or of a tlaxilacalli, the calpulli or the tlaxilacalli to which the tlatoani belonged.

423 /p. 42/ We are not told only of the tecpantlalli, but also of the tecpillalli, which " ere almost like what they called pillalli" (35).

35. Ixtlilxóchitl, II, p. 170.

Tecpillalli is translated as lands of the pilli or of the pillis of the tecpan, which explains to us what sort of lands they were that received this name: the lands destined for the sustenance of the pillis of the tecpan—the nobles of the calpulli of the tlatoani—, lands which possibly formed a unit with the others of the tecpan, perhaps inlike manner to the lands of other calpullis divided between macehuales and pillis.

423 There were lands and cultivated plots for the temples (36). These • 794 36. Román y Zamora, I, p. 120; Zurita, p. 176.

793

surely were of two types since on the one hand there was "a lot in each ward" (37), that is, they were certainly distributed by calpullis.

37. Ramirez Codex [Códice Ramírez], p. 79.

423 But on the other hand there were others which were not or appeared
794 not to be in the same condition, since in these the priests functioned
793 as mayordomos (38) and had tenants and neighbors who gave tribute

38. Clavigero, I, p. 281.

only to the temples (39). Perhaps this means that they were calpullis

39. Román, I, p. 120.

or tlaxilacallis whose lords were priests. Reinforcing this assertion is the fact that these people were differentiated from others and felt it to be an honor to be occupied in that employment (40), somewhat

40. Torquemada, II, p. 165.

similarly to what happened in the case of the tecpantlacas. What we can deduce from all the above, anyway, is that in order to speak of the lands of the Temples one takes as criterion the tribute and not the direct utilization of the land by the priests. Furthermore we can ascertain from our data that the calpulli was an organism basic to the existence of these lands in their particular distribution: each calpulli giving a part of its products, or entire calpullis dedicating themselves to giving tribute exclusively for the sustenance of the religious needs. In some cases these were towns removed from the city proper which were tributary to the temples and which alternated each half year (41). But we do not know what happened during the half year when they did not give tribute to the temples. It may be that they continued with their calpulli organization and perhaps only gave tribute to their lords.

41. Torquemada, II, p. 164.

423 Something similar to that which occurred with the lands of the 652 temples happened with the lands for war, or yaotlallis, which had various names according to the products which they yielded, cacalomilli, milchimalli (42) and which were "for /p. 43/ food

42. Vetancourt, I, p. 372.

13. Zurita, p. 105.

463 we can infer that the merchants as well as the artisans and laborers were in the calpullis.

Furthermore, on the one hand, in general the parents educated their children to exercise the same occupations [as they, the parents] (14), and on the other is made a statement of much importance:

14. Mendocino Codex [Códice Mendocino], folio 70; Zurita, p. 110, III; Román y Zamora, II, p. 127, etc.

that upon the birth of children of the common people they placed in their hands miniatures of the instruments of their calling (see p. 28). One gathers from this that from birth it was known what a child's occupation would be when he reached adulthood; and that this occupation usually was that of his father, that is, that there was inheritance of the productive occupation. This surely also happened with the merchants, since we are told that they could only be merchants with the permission of the rulers or because they came to it through inheritance (15). We thus have, beyond doubt, inheritance of occupation in the social division of labor.

15. Zurita, p. 142.

463 It appears that in Tenochtitlan this division of labor occurred by x618 wards, as in Tezcoco (where those in one ward had the same occu-795 pation, all those of the ward must have it and there must be no mixture of others with them (16)), since in all the provinces of Mexico

16. Torquemada, I, p. 146.

the specialization in things to sell was by "wards" (17). Moreover 17. Motolinía, Memorials [Memoriales], p. 236.

—and this is the fundamental proof—one can establish a correlation between names /p. 49/ of "wards" and occupations (see p. 50), drawing together scattered data or Torquemada's and Sahagún's which refer to this division of labor and to the specialization by groups in the worship of the deities. Three affirmations reinforce this correlation: one concerning the magical consecration of the people to an activity which was made before some idol (see p. 28), probably the ward idol; another was that the festivals of some months were "like" guild festivals (18), that is, of isolated groups, probably 18. Jonghe, p. 292.

463
Y618
●795

of wards; and finally, that in the festivals for the idols were involved the members of a single "ward" and not those of others (19).

19. Magliabecchi, Commentaries on the Section [Comentarios a la Sección] 92.

The result of this correlation between activities, "wards" and deities is presented here in a table, and explains completely for us the character of the social division of labor in Tenochtitlan: it was by "wards" which separated tribal chiefs, pulque-makers, merchants, etc. It is a division which could be called a class one only with difficulty, since it makes no sense, for example, to speak of the class of pulque-makers since, if that were the case, they would be on an equal "class" footing with the merchants. It would appear rather to correspond to a guild division, since the class of a guild is the organization of people who do the same work (20) and that within them obtains the separation between manual workers and directors which was present also among the Tenochcas, as we have already seen (see p. 23). However it would be very strange to speak of a guild of rulers, as we would have to do if we accepted that the division of labor by "wards," which the Tenochcas envinced, was by guilds; and it is to falsify the situation since the lords do not possess the characteristics of manual labor which are basic in a guild organization. I believe I can prove, furthermore, that these "wards" — which probably were calpullis since in general their names do not coincide with those of the tlaxilicallis—were clans, and that therefore the division of labor, like the ownership of the land, the territorial distribution of the population, and the social stratification, were the result of an organization of the Tenochcan population by 463 clans. And thus indeed it is not anachronistic to speak of clans of X618 rulers, nor of clans of pulque-makers.

20. Boak, A.R., and Pirenne, H., 1944.

●785

/p. 50/ TABLE OF CORRELATIONS BETWEEN CALPULLI-WARDS, CALPULLI-TEMPLES, OCCUPATIONS AND DEITIES IN TENOCHTITLAN (1)

1. The names are for the most part of calpulli "wards." Nevertheless at times names of temples were taken which certainly corresponded to "wards." They appear in this case not to correspond to tlaxilacallis, except for Tzapotlan.

9:Monzon--54 E-4 (no date) 1949 NU7 Aztec NU7

W63 X618 715

Calpulli or ward	Occupation	Deities
1. Yopico 2, 4, 5, 6, 9, 10, 11, 12.	Silversmiths, 3, 4, Gold-workers 5, Xochimanques, 6, Water carriers 7, lords and kings 8, Calmecac 9, 11, 12.	Totec 2, 3, Xipe 2, 3, 4, 5, Coatlicue 6, Coatlatona 6, Chalchitlicue 7, 8, 9, Tlaloc 10, Tquiztlimayahuel 11.
2. Huitznahuac 12, 15.	lords 13, fishermen 14, Calmecac 12, 15.	Huitzilopochtli 13, 16, Opochtli 14, Huitznahuac 15, Centzonhuitznahuac 17, Tezcatlipoca 18.
3. Itepeyoc 19.	lords 19.	Huitzilopochtli 19.
4. Amantla 20, 21, 22, 23.	Tultecayotl 22, seam-stresses 23, 25, dyers (female) 23, feather workers (female) 23, painters, 24.	Tizahua, Macuilocelotl, Macuil-tochtli, Xihui, Tlati, Xilo, Tepoztecatl 20, Coyotlinahual 21, Chicomexuchitl 24, Xochiquetzal 25.
5. Pochtlan 20, 26.	merchants 20, 26.	The markets in Amantla with 20, and Yiacatecuhtli 26.
6. Auachtlan 27.	merchants 27.

9:Monzon--55 E-4 (no date) 1949 NU7 Aztec NU7

HN3 X18 795

Calpulli or ward	Occupation	Deities
7. Atlauhco 28.	merchants 28.
8. Acxotlan 29, 30.	merchants 29, 30, 31.	Nahui Ehecatl 30, Chiconquiahuitl, Xomocuil, Cochimetl, Yacapitzahuac, Nacxitl, Chalmecacihuatl 31.
9. Tlamatzinco 12, 32.	pulque-makers 32, 33, tavery keepers 34, Calmecac 12, 35.	Tlamatzincatl 12, 32, Izquitecatl 33, Coatlicue 35.
10. Atempan 36.	Medicasters and diviners 37.	Toci 36, Mother of the gods 37.
11. Tzonmolco 37, 39, 12.	Makers of the lord's more important vestments 38, calmecac 12, 39.	Xiuhtecuhtli 37, 38, 40, Huehueteotl 38, Ixcozauhqui 39.
12. Tzapotlan 40.	Sellers of Uxitl 40.	Tzapotlatena 40.
13.	Makers of petates 41.	Nappatecuhtli 41.
14.	Precious stone workers 42.	Chicnahuiitzcuintli, Nahualpitli, cinteotli Cihuacoatl 42.

9:Monzon--56 E-4 (no date) 1949 NU7 Aztec NU7

443
x618
.795

2. Sahagún I, p. 121, 240.

3. Torquemada, II, p. 58.

4. Torquemada, II, p. 252.

5. Sahagún, II, p. 385.

6. Torquemada, II, p. 254.

7. Sahagún I, p. 40, 116.

8. Sahagún, I, p. 22.

9. Sahagún, I, p. 84.

10. Sahagún, I, p. 84, 87.

11. Torquemada, II, p. 153.

12. Sahagún, I, p. 220. They are included also with Calmecac to Tlillancalco (Cihuacoatl), Tetlanman (Chantico) and Mexico (Tlaloc).

13. Torquemada, I, p. 193.

14. Sahagún, I, p. 39; Torquemada, II, p. 61.

15. Sahagún, I, p. 220.

16. Sahagún, I, p. 137.

17. Sahagún, I, p. 221.

18. Torquemada, II, p. 150.

19. Sahagún, I, p. 215.

20. Sahagún, I, p. 142, 215.

9:Monzon--57 E-4 (no date) 1949 NU7 Aztec NU7

463
x618
•795

21. Sahagún, II, p. 389.

22. Sahagún, II, p. 392, 389.

23. Sahagún, II, p. 392.

24. Sahagún, I, p. 112.

25. Sahagún, I, p. 112.

26. Torquemada, II, p. 272; Sahagun, I, p. 225.

27. Sahagún, II, p. 350.

28. Sahagún, II, p. 350.

29. Sahagún, III, p. 49.

30. Sahagún, I, p. 326.

31. Sahagún, I, p. 42.

32. Sahagún, I, p. 190.

33. Sahagún, I, p. 190.

34. Sahagún, I, p. 112.

35. Torquemada, II, p. 151; Sahagún, I, p. 104.

36. Sahagún, I, p. 179. Sahagún in I, p. 238 says that the cuecuextecan young men go to the ward of Atlampa during this festival.

37. Torquemada, I, p. 234.

38. Sahagún, I, p. 29.

39. Sahagún, I, p. 239.

9:Monzon--58 E-4 (no date) 1949 NU7 Aztec NU7

463
X618
795

40. Sahagun, I, p. 20.

41. Sahagún, I, p. 46; II, p. 59.

42. Torquemada, II, p. 60; Sahagún, II, p. 387, 88.

/p. 53/ THE CALPULLI AS A CLAN

Chapter 6

X618

/p. 55/ PROOFS THAT THE CALPULLI WAS A CLAN

The territorial organization of Tenochtitlan, the ownership of land, the division of labor and the social stratification, and other aspects of the social organization of Tenochtitlan which were not treated in the first part of this study, such as education (1) and religion

1. See Education among the Aztecs /La Educación entre los Aztecas/, Monzón, 1946.

(2), in which the influence of the calpulli is of great importance, and which have themselves a determining role, present us with the fundamental problem of the social organization of the Tenochcas: Were the calpullis clans, or simply wards, or guilds, or another type of social organism? Outwardly they have elements of all the foregoing. What was their internal organization? The answer to these questions will give us for sure a correct idea as to the bases of the social organization of the Tenochcas and of its evolutionary stage. Therefore we are going to attempt to answer them. The calpulli (Nahuatl 'large house') is an organism which has been presented as a clan by some authors, or as the remains of a clan by others (see the Introduction), and certainly the calpulli was the Tenochca clan, if the Tenochcas had clans. This granted, in order to know whether the calpulli had

2. In the chapter referring to the division of labor I touch lightly upon these relationships between calpullis and religion (p. 49) which suggest problems which should be studied more fully.

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7
Prehistoric Mexico NU3

 P A 175

shadow of its former self. The rise of a new power, the Tepanec, who had as allies the vigorous but ill-established Tenochcas,* contributed to its downfall. Yet before Culhuacan succumbed completely to vassalage under the new order, members of its reigning house had twice been sought to found the lineage of Tenochtitlan.

On the documentary evidences Culhuacan was an extremely important city-state. The consecutive reigns of its chiefs stretched from the time of the fall of the western Toltec Empire to that of the rise of the important Aztec state of Tenochtitlan. Culhuacan was considered a center of civilization and for three centuries was a major power in the Valley of Mexico. Yet a visit to the modern town discloses no lofty remains, for the ancient city is razed completely. Only the temple on the Hill of the Star, which rises behind the town and dominates the lakes, is a memorial to its past splendor. For here took place, even after the Culhuas had lost their power, the New Fire Ceremony which ushered in each new cycle of fifty-two years and epitomized the spirit of Aztec religion. P A [796]

Texcoco on the eastern shore of the lakes of Mexico was the most civilized town in the Valley of Mexico at the time of the Conquest. Ixtlilxochitl, a descendant of the ruling house, had access to the annals of his people and left a full history, distorted though it was by his wish to make his lineage rival the noble lines of Castile; but he had a strong historical sense, doubtless absorbed from the Spanish priests who educated him. His ancestors were a nomadic group which lived mainly by hunting and eventually, under a chief named Xolotl,† occupied the territory around Teotihuacan. P A 175 P A 175 114 P A 175

*To-no'tch-cas. †Sho'-lotle.

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7
Prehistoric Mexico N43

P 172 174 Hill of the Star, behind Culhuacan. Dr Tozzer, who named the ware, found it mixed with late Teotihuacan material at the type site, but my wife and I excavated a Teotihuacan site of the same period without finding a single sherd among the 200,000 fragments we examined. At one or two places west of Tenayuca, Coyotlatelco sherds have appeared with Mazapan material. Mr Noguera found the extreme limit in lateness at Tenayuca where Coyotlatelco and Aztec II fragments were mixed. The geographical and chronological associations of this ware suggest that the makers were Culhuas or Tepanecs.

A 172 174 Culhuacan, so important in the annals as the seat of a famous line of chiefs, shows today little sign of its past greatness. Yet excavations undertaken twenty-five years ago prove that its historical importance was not overestimated, for it seems to have been the base from which Aztec culture spread over the Valley. Pottery, so dismal to read about, so important in reflecting tribal patterns, tells the story of this process.*

A 172 174 Aztec pottery is found everywhere in the Valley of Mexico, and, due to the Aztec custom of destroying household goods [796] at the end of each fifty-two-year cycle, it can be identified in terms of relatively exact periods: IV, 1507–19 (the date of the Spanish Conquest, which prevented the cyclical celebration of 1559); IIIb, 1455–1507; IIIa, 1403–55; II early and late, perhaps a century prior to 1403, and I. Periods III and IV are represented everywhere. Period II is common on the mainland but less so in Tenochtitlan, which was politically insignificant until after 1400. To date, Period I is represented in quantity only at Culhuacan. The standard ware of Periods II–IV goes through a consecutive evolution but has a close

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

His later years were weighted with trouble with Tenoch- 175
titlan. He had married a sister of Montezuma II and, as she [684] was unduly free in granting favors to the young men of the court, in 1498 he took advantage of his legal right to kill her. The Tenochcas took this act as a gross personal affront and directed every effort, short of war, to overcoming their ancient ally.[21]

Axayacatl of Tenochtitlan died in 1479, while Nezahual- 175
pilli was young in his rule, and his brother Tizoc, who had 778 previously been the war chief, took his place. Tizoc's most 532 important act of office was to begin the reconstruction of the great temple to Huitzilopochtli, the War God, and Tlaloc, the Rain God. In commemoration of his conquests he also had carved the so-called Sacrificial Stone. This mon- [782] strous-sized vessel for burning human hearts has a relief on the edge, depicting Tizoc dressed as Huitzilopochtli seizing captives representing tributary tribes. Most of the towns, unfortunately, must have been merely reconquered, since their names appear in the previous conquest lists of earlier rulers. It is not a complete surprise to read in some accounts that Tizoc died of poison administered by chiefs disgusted at his lack of military success.[18]

Ahuitzotl* succeeded his brother Tizoc in 1486. His first 175
task was to complete the great temple the others had begun, [648]
in the dedication of which the gathering of sacrificial victims 796 played an important part. He invoked the aid of Nezahualpilli, and the allies made a two-year campaign into northern Oaxaca, amassing no less than twenty thousand victims, the high point of the sacrificial cult in Mexico. At the start of the dedication the captives stood in two rows, and Nezahual-

*Ah'-wuet-zool.

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)194; NU7 Aztec NU7

175 pilli and Ahuitzotl began the grisly work of tearing out the
● 796 victims' hearts. Lesser dignitaries succeeded each other according to rank, until the awful immolation was completed.[23]

175 Ahuitzotl's military campaigns extended south into Guatemala and as far north as the Huaxteca in Vera Cruz. He was [669] constantly engaged in putting down revolts, especially in Puebla, where the Tlaxcalans* and Cholulans had resisted Tenochcan domination. His capital, meanwhile, had grown so enormously that he had to construct another aqueduct, a fact which indicates that sheer pressure of population was an important cause for the military exploits of Tenochtitlan.
[731] An unusually disastrous flood beset the city in 1503, so that Ahuitzotl had to send to Texcoco for aid in restoring the dikes. While superintending these public works he received a head injury which proved fatal. Ahuitzotl's personality was strong and vicious. He was passionately fond of war, being a vindictive and relentless foe. Likewise he had those traits which so often accompany military character, lust for women and fondness for display.

The luckless Montezuma II, surnamed Xocoyotzin† (the Younger), son of Axayacatl, succeeded his uncle. Not only had he to keep the conquered tribes in order, but also he had constantly to provide captives for sacrifice. This bloody cult, which to the Tenochcan mind had brought such eminence,
[782] had to be maintained lest disaster ensue. He approached his uncle's piety on one occasion when twelve thousand captives from a rebel province in Oaxaca were delivered up to the War God.[24]

The last New Fire Ceremony took place in 1507. The years immediately preceding, with their threat of an ending

*Tlash-ka'-lans. †Sho-coy-ot-se'n.

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

532

[696]

[871]

[643
292]

[796]

[644]

PLATE 39

SOCIAL OBLIGATIONS, REWARDS AND PUNISHMENTS

TOP: Left: Boys are taken by their fathers to the school or Calmecac. These people are of the poorer classes. Right: Four chiefs sentence criminals to death by stone and clubs for outrageous crimes. MIDDLE: Left: Warriors of proven worth engage in ceremonial combat. They wear the costume of warriors' orders or of chiefs. Right: A tribal ruler invests two leading men with badges and trappings of rank. BOTTOM: Right: Montezuma had professional entertainers, hunchbacks, jugglers and musicians.

[p. 128(A)]

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

that could tear through human flesh at a single stroke, and 324 this type of knife, not found in earlier horizons, was produced commonly with the extra care in chipping which is to be expected in a ceremonial object. (See Plate 16.)

The three-legged metate, or grinding stone, was not better 412 made in Aztec times than before. In Middle Culture and 177
Toltec times it had an edge, so that the metlapil (son of the metate, i.e., mano, or grinding stone) was beveled and fitted within the confined space. The Aztec metate was flat, and the mano had swollen handles, projecting on either side of the grinding surface of the metate. I have never had the misfortune to break my back grinding corn in a metate, so that I have no way of knowing whether this represents a technical advance or a mere change in style.

The demands of ritual necessitated stone boxes for burn- 324 ing and storing human hearts. These boxes were pecked out 532 of lava and lavishly decorated inside and out with reliefs, [796] referring symbolically to the gods for whom the sacrifice was made. Some of these eagle cups (cuauhxicalli*) fall into that area of superior craftsmanship we designate in our own culture by the term "fine art." The great circular cup, ordered by Tizoc and miscalled the Sacrificial Stone, eight feet in diameter and two and one half feet thick, attained the stature of a monument. Stone incense burners, often in the form of the Old God, were common in Toltec and rare in Upper Middle Culture times. The quantity of religious sculpture, produced chiefly in late Aztec times, to judge from the style, did not detract from the quality of the workmanship, so strong was the control of religious and social factors.[2] (See Plate 55, bottom right.)

*kwow-shee-calli.

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

776 were grouped into armies of the east and the west. Gladiatorial combats, often to the death, expressed this idea in ritual; and the great warrior orders, the Eagle Knights of Huitzilopochtli and the Ocelot Knights of Tezcatlipoca, likewise reflected the conflict between day and night. This Sacred War permeated the ritual and philosophy of Aztec religion.* (See Plates 39, middle left; 40.)

[796 701]

While the great gods, the chief deities of the tribe, tended to be associated with the heavens, there were many others who controlled growth and fertility. Often these gods had goddesses as wives or companions, as if the idea of reproduction of the male and female principles were dawning in Aztec theology. Tlaloc, the Rain God, held sway over growth and vegetation, and his companion Chalchihuitlicue, (Our Lady of the Turquoise Skirt), presided over lakes and rivers. This goddess was the center of an important cult and is represented as a charming young girl beautifully dressed. Xipe (the Flayed One) symbolized spring, and his distinctive costume, a human skin, represented the new covering of vegetation with which the earth clothes itself each year. His priests, at the ceremonies in his honor, carried this symbolism into their costume by donning the skins of freshly flayed captives. (See Plates 28, top left; 56, top right; 59, bottom left; 61, bottom left.)

[796 782]

The corn goddesses were young and lovely and probably derived from the old cult of the Middle Culture goddesses. Chicomecoatl,* (Seven Snake), was the Goddess of Crops and Subsistence, represented by corn, the staple food. Xilonen,† "Young Corn Mother," and Xochiquetzal,‡ "Flower

*Chee-co'-me-co-atl.
†Shee-lo'-nen.
‡Sho-chee-kay-tza'l.

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

war or sacrifice, childbirth or drowning, passed upon death 776
to their domain. (See Plate 55, bottom left.)

This incomplete description of the gods and goddesses who thronged the Aztec pantheon gives an idea of their variety of purpose and character, outlined more fully in Table X. For an individual to try to do honor to so many gods could result in an insupportable situation. Yet even the modern Navajos pass a third of their time in ceremonial activity, and they do not have half the economic wealth of the Aztec peoples. While the ancient Mexicans extended their ceremonialism to greater lengths than do the most ritualized Christian sects, yet the relationship between the Aztecs and their gods and the Christians and their saints is not so very dissimilar, different as are the ultimate concepts of the two religions.

The priests gave guidance and prescribed the ceremonies, 793
and the worshipers gave heed to those especial divinities upon 776
whose patronage their life directly depended, much as a de- 771
vout Catholic selects certain saints for veneration above the list of those whose days are recorded on the calendar. In the same way the Aztec tribal god has his counterpart in the patron saint of country, town or craft. The Aztec, however, thought of his gods as having strong material powers, but their spiritual aspect counted little with him.

The ritual of Aztec religion was as complex as the theol- 796
ogy. The organization of the priesthood followed the pyramided structure of the social order, but the ceremonies were worked out in accordance with the ritualistic requirements of the calendar and the seasons. In the following chapter we shall describe the priesthood, the ceremonies and also the Aztec methods of counting, recording and using time.

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

776
796

TABLE X

PRINCIPAL MEMBERS OF THE AZTEC PANTHEON, THEIR CHARACTER, AND SPHERES OF WORSHIP

	Month	Week	Day	Day Hour	Night Hour
GREAT GODS
Huitzilopochtli, Hummingbird Wizard, War and Sun God, chief god of Tenochtitlan	5* 9 15
Tezcatlipoca, Smoking Mirror, chief god of pantheon, solar attributes, chief god of Texcoco	5 12		13 8	10
Quetzalcoatl, Feathered Serpent, God of Learning and of Priesthood, chief god of Cholula, frequently shown as Ehecatl, the Wind God		2	2	9
CREATIVE DEITIES
Tloque Nahuaque, Lord of the Close Vicinity, creative spirit, theological abstraction Ometecuhtli, Lord of Duality, like Tonacatecuhtli and his wife
Tonacatecuhtli, Lord of Our Subsistence, Creator God, chief of the gods		1	1
Tonacacihuatl, Lady of Our Subsistence, wife of the above
FERTILITY GODS
Tlazolteotl, Goddess of Dirt, Earth Mother, worshiped under many synonyms	11	13	14	5	7
Teteoinnan, Mother of the Gods, synonym of Tlazolteotl
Ixcuina, Four Faces, synonym of Tlazolteotl
Toçi, Our Grandmother, synonym of Tlazolteotl
Chicomecoatl, Seven Snake, Corn Goddess, ancient goddess dating from Middle Culture times	4 11
Cihuacoatl, Serpent Woman, Earth Goddess, ruling childbirth and death thereby Tonantzin, Our Mother, synonym of Cihuacoatl
Coatlicue, Serpent Skirt, Earth Goddess, associated with spring, mother of Huitzilopochtli
Cinteotl, Corn God, son of Tlazolteotl, husband of Xochiquetzal, important				(12) (7)	4
Xochiquetzal, Flower Feather, Goddess of Flowers, of Craftsmen, important		19	20	(13)
Xochipilli, Flower Prince, God of Pleasure, Feasting, Frivolity			11	(3) 7
Macuilxochitl, Five Flower, synonym of Xochipilli

*The numbers refer to the Tonalamatl of the Codex Borbonicus. Those in parentheses refer to variations found in the Tonalamatl Aubin and the Codex Telleriano-Remensis.

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

776
796

TABLE X (Continued)

	Month	Week	Day	Day Hour	Night Hour
Xipe, Our Lord, the Flayed One, God of Seedtime and Planting, the red Tezcatlipoca, highly important	2	14	15	(11) (4)
Xilonen, Young Maize Mother, Goddess of the Young Corn	8
Ilamatecuhtli, the Old Princess, a goddess of ancient times, related to corn and the earth	17			13
GODS OF RAIN AND MOISTURE
Tlaloc, He Who Makes Things Sprout, Rain God, very important	6 13	7	7	8	(8) 9
Tlaloques, minor rain gods, children or brothers of Tlaloc, a plural synonym	3 1 16
Chalchihuitlicue, She of the Jeweled Robe, Water Goddess, very important	1	5	5	3	6
Huixtocihuatl, Salt Woman, Goddess of Salt and of the Dissolute	7
Napatecuhtli, Four Times Lord, one of the Tlalocs
Ehecatl, Wind, Wind God, a frequent guise of Quetzalcoatl FIRE GODS
Xiuhtecuhtli, Lord of the Year, Fire God, a divinity of ancient times, important	18 10	20 9	9	(7) 1	1
Huehueteotl, Old God, a synonym of Xiuhtecuhtli
Chantico, In the House, goddess associated with the hearth and volcanic fire		18	19
PULQUE GODS
Mayauel, She of the Maguey Plant, Goddess of the Maguey and also of Fertility		8	8
Patecatl, He from the Land of Medicines, God of Medicine, husband of Mayauel		11	13
Tezcatzontecatl, Straw-Covered Mirror, an important pulque god, identifiable with the Chac Mool figures in stone
Centzon Totochtin, Four Hundred Rabbits, the many pulque gods
PLANETARY AND STELLAR GODS
Tonatiuh, the Sun, Sun God with intimate connections with Huitzilopochtli and Tezcatlipoca				4
Piltzintecuhtli, Young Prince, synonym of Tonatiuh					3
Metztli, the Moon, Moon God, sometimes identified with Tezcatlipoca
Tecciztecatl, He from the Sea Snail, synonym of Metztli		6	6		(5)
Mixcoatl, Cloud Serpent, God of Stars and of Numbers	14
Camaxtli, god of Tlaxcala, synonym of Mixcoatl, a War God

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

TABLE X (Continued)

776
796

	Month	Week	Day	Day Hour	Night Hour
Itzpapalotl, Obsidian Knife Butterfly, stellar and also agricultural goddess		15	16
Tlahuizcalpantecuhtli, Lord of the House of Dawn, Venus, the morning star, variant of Quetzalcoatl		9		(1) (12)
Coyolxauhqui, Painted with Bells, Moon Goddess, sister of Centzon Huitznaua Centzon Huitznaua, 400 Southerners, star gods of south
Centzon Mimixcoa, 400 Northerners, star gods of north Tzitzimime, Monsters Descending from Above, stellar gods GODS OF DEATH, EARTH
Mictlantecuhtli, Lord of Region of Death, God of Death		10	10	11	5
Mictecacihuatl, Lady of Region of Death, wife of Death God
Tepeyollotl, Heart of the Mountains, Mountain God, Jaguar God		3	3		8
Tlaltecuhtli, Lord of Earth, earth monster, personification of earth in contrast to sun				2
Teoyaomiqui, God of Dead Warriors, a specialized Death God				6
Huahuantli, the Striped, synonym of Teoyaomiqui				(6)
VARIANTS OF GREAT GODS
Itzli, Stone Knife, a surrogate of Tezcatlipoca in guise of sacrificial knife		20			2
Itzlacoliuhqui, Curved Obsidian Knife, another variant of Tezcatlipoca		12	(13)
Paynal, the Hasty, messenger of Huitzilopochtli
Yacatecuhtli, Lord Who Guides, God of Traveling Merchants	15 12
Chalchiuhtotolin, Jeweled Fowl, variant of Tezcatlipoca		17	(18)
Yaotl, Enemy, synonym of Tezcatlipoca				(5)
OTHER GODS
Xolotl, Double, Monster God, twin of Quetzalcoatl		16	17
Itzlilton, Little Black Face, God of Health and Cures from Ills				(2)
Cihuateteo, Goddesses, witches, spirits of women dead in childbirth
Huehuecoyotl, Old Coyote, backbiter or mischief-maker, god of Otomi		4	4

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

tribe. They elaborated cult ritual and so instilled the realization of the power and proximity of the gods into the minds of the people that even their arts were dedicated chiefly to religious expression. The complicated astronomic and mathematical computations that kept the solar and religious calendars in harmony with the passage of the seasons were also the province of the priesthood. The priests arrayed the dancers, who, depicting mythological events, performed a type of mass drama. Aztec life under hierarchical direction became a pattern of rhythmic ritual, and this continued ceremony served the more firmly to establish the priests as interpreters of the divine order. One has the impression that the priests never overtly showed their temporal power. Situated as they were, with the instruments for interpreting the divine will in their own hands, they had to follow the exactions of ritual far more exigently than did the masses. Were one to choose a single word to describe Aztec government, it would be theocracy. The gods ruled; the priests interpreted and interposed, and the people obeyed, not the priests, but the rhythm of action whereby the gods lived. (See Plate 58, middle.)

At the core of the religion stood the calendar, which was arranged in two divisions: a ritualistic succession of days, the tonalpohualli (Table XIII–XVI), and a solar calendar (Table XVII), divided into eighteen twenty-day months and a five-day unlucky period, in which the months' names related to crops and indicated the agricultural origin of this time count. A combination of the two systems permitted the numbering of years, which were counted not on an infinite scale, as with us, but in terms of a fifty-two-year cycle.[8]

The tonalpohualli, sometimes erroneously referred to as

[text continues on p. 190. -Analyst]

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

796 805 tonalamatl, after the book in which it was recorded, was a sacred almanac. It covered a period of 260 days, the significance of which may have been magical or possibly of an astronomical origin, as yet unexplained. It was composed of the twenty day names of the Aztec month, combined with the numbers one to thirteen (Table XI). Whenever the sequence of numbers ended, the series was repeated, and the same arrangement held true for the list of days. Thus the fourteenth day of the twenty in the list received the number one, and so on up to seven for the twentieth day. Then when the series of day names recommenced the first name was numbered eight. By this means within the 260-day period every day was distinguished by the combination of one of twenty names with one of thirteen numerals. At the close of each period another began immediately, as is shown on Table XI.

This sacred period was further divided into twenty weeks of thirteen days each (Table XII). Every week began with the number one and the day name which came up according to the rotation of the sequence. Thus within the tonalpohualli period no day in one week could be confused with that of another, since the name and associated number precluded repetition.[4]

A god or goddess presided over each of the list of twenty days (Table XIII) and over each of the twenty "weeks" (Table XIV). The gods of the weeks followed the same order as the day gods, with this exception, that the god of the eleventh day was dropped from the list, moving the remainder in order up one place each. The resultant vacancy in the twentieth week, was filled by two divinities who exercised joint control. Sometimes there was a further re-

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

796
805
[212]

FIG. 1. AZTEC DAY SIGNS FROM CODEX

Cipactli Crocodile	Ehecatl Wind	Calli House	Cuetzpallin Lizard	Coatl Snake
Miquiztli Death	Mazatl Deer	Tochtli Rabbit	Atl Water	Itzcuintli Dog
Ozomatli Monkey	Malinalli Herb	Acatl Reed	Ocelotl Jaguar	Cuauhtli Eagle
Cozcaquauhtli Vulture	Ollin Motion	Tecpatl Flint Knife	Quiauitl Rain	Xochitl Flower

finement whereby the nine gods and goddesses succeeded each other in governing the nights of the tonalpohualli, or sacred period (Table XVI). Finally thirteen of these gods influenced the thirteen stations of the Aztec day (Table XV), and nine held sway over the night hours (Table XVI). The names and characters of these divinities are set forth in the accompanying tables.

The array of gods had to be placated and honored at the appropriate time by the priesthood; but the individual, before embarking on an undertaking, could find out the proper 796

[Text continues on p. 195.--- Analyst]

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

TABLE XIII

DAY GODS OF TONALPOHUALLI

796
805

Day	God	Name and Nature
1 Crocodile	Tonacatecuhtli	Lord of Our Subsistence, a Creator God
2 Wind	Quetzalcoatl	Feathered Serpent, Sky God, God of Learning
3 House	Tepeyollotl	Heart of Mountains, an Earth God
4 Lizard	Huehuecoyotl	Old Coyote, Mischief-Maker
5 Snake	Chalchihuitlicue	Lady of the Jeweled Robe, Water Goddess
6 Death's-Head	Tecciztecatl	He from the Sea Snail, Moon God
7 Deer	Tlaloc	He Who Makes Things Sprout, Rain God
8 Rabbit	Mayauel	She of the Maguey Plant, Pulque Goddess
9 Water	Xiuhtecuhtli	Lord of Year, Fire God
10 Dog	Mictlantecuhtli	Lord of Region of Dead, Death God
11 Monkey	Xochipilli	Flower Prince, God of Spring and Flowers
12 Grass	Patecatl	He from the Land of Medicines, God of Medicine
13 Reed	Tezcatlipoca or variant like Itzlacoliuhqui	Smoking Mirror, a Great God, cf. Gods of Weeks Carved Obsidian Knife
14 Ocelot	Tlazolteotl	Goddess of Dirt, Earth Mother
15 Eagle	Xipe	Our Lord, the Flayed One, God of Seedtime
16 Vulture	Itzpapalotl	Obsidian Butterfly, a Stellar Goddess
17 Motion	Xolotl or variant	Double, Monster God
18 Flint Knife	Tezcatlipoca or Chalchiuhtotolin	Smoking Mirror, Great God, Jeweled Bird, Week Gods
19 Rain	Chantico	In the House, Goddess of Hearth Fire
20 Flower	Xochiquetzal	Flower Feather, Goddess of Flowers

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

TABLE XIV

GODS OF TONALPOHUALLI WEEKS

796
805

Week Beginning	God	Name
1 Crocodile	Tonacatecuhtli	Lord of Our Subsistence, a Creator God
1 Ocelot	Quetzalcoatl	Feathered Serpent, a Sky God
1 Deer	Tepeyollotl	Heart of the Mountains, an Earth God
1 Flower	Huehuecoyotl	Old Coyote, Backbiter, old Otomi tribal god
1 Reed	Chalchihuitlicue	Lady of the Jeweled Robe, Water Goddess
1 Death's-Head	Tecciztecatl	He from the Sea Snail, Moon God
1 Rain	Tlaloc	He Who Makes Things Sprout, Rain God
1 Grass	Mayauel	She of the Maguey Plant, Pulque Goddess
1 Snake	Xiuhtecuhtli	Lord of the Year, Fire God
1 Flint	Mictlantecuhtli	Lord of the Region of the Dead, Death God
1 Howling Monkey	Patecatl	He from the Land of Medicines, God of Medicine
1 Lizard	Itzlacoliuhqui	The Carved Obsidian Knife, God of Cold
1 Motion	Tlazolteotl	Goddess of Dirt, Earth Goddess
1 Dog	Xipe Totec	Our Lord the Flayed One, God of Seedtime
1 House	Itzpapalotl	Obsidian Butterfly, a Stellar Goddess
1 Vulture	Xolotl	Double, Monster God
1 Water	Chalchiuhtotolin	Jeweled Fowl, variant of Tezcatlipoca
1 Wind	Chantico	In the House, Goddess of Hearth Fire
1 Eagle	Xochiquetzal	Flower Feather, Goddess of Flowers
1 Rabbit	Xiuhtecuhtli and	Lord of Year, Fire God
	Itztli	Stone Knife, God of Obsidian Knife

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

796
805

TABLE XV

GODS OF THE DAY HOURS AND THEIR ASSOCIATED BIRDS

Day Gods	Name	Associated Bird
1. Xiuhtecuhtli	Fire God	White Humming-bird
2. Tlaltecuhtli	Lord of Earth, the Earth Monster	Green Humming-bird
3. Chalchihuitlicue	Water Goddess	Falcon
4. Tonatiuh	The Sun, Sun God	Quail
5. Tlazolteotl	Earth Mother	Eagle
6. Teoyaomiqui	Warrior Death, Death God	Screech Owl
7. Xochipilli	Flower Prince, God of Flowers	Butterfly
8. Tlaloc	Rain God	Striped Eagle
9. Quetzalcoatl-Ehecatl	God of Learning	Turkey Cock
10. Tezcatlipoca	Great God	Horned Owl
11. Mictlantecuhtli	Death God	Guacamaya
12. Tlahuizcalpantecuhtli	Lord of the House of Dawn, Venus God, variant of Quetzalcoatl	Quetzal
13. Ilamatecuhtli	Old Princess, ancient Earth Goddess	Parrot

TABLE XVI

GODS OF THE NIGHT HOURS AND THEIR ATTRIBUTES IN DIVINATION

Night Gods		Significance
1. Xiuhtecuhtli	Fire God	Good
2. Itztli	God of Obsidian Knife	Bad
3. Piltzintecuhtli	Lord of Princes, Sun God	Good
4. Cinteotl	God of Corn, Corn God	Indifferent
5. Mictlantecuhtli	Death God	Bad
6. Chalchihuitlicue	Water Goddess	Indifferent
7. Tlazolteotl	Earth Mother	Bad
8. Tepeyollotl	Earth or Jaguar God	Good
9. Tlaloc	Rain God	Good

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

divinity to appease on the date of that undertaking. It is im- 796 probable that the ordinary communicant daily honored each god any more than a Catholic layman prays daily to each saint in the calendar. He did reverence in terms of his own spiritual and actual necessity.

A number of the tonalamatl have survived. These ref- 212
erence books for priestly guidance are made of paper beaten [289] from the bark of the amate or wild-fig tree, although some post-Conquest copies were composed of European paper. An ancient book consisted of a long paper strip which was prepared and coated to take paint and subsequently folded screenwise to permit easy handling. Occasionally only one but usually the two open pages were devoted to each week. A large colored drawing depicted the divinity controlling the week, and other figures represented subsidiary gods and objects connected with their worship, such as thorns, incense burners, altars, and the like. The rest of the space was ruled off into squares, in which were painted the requisite thirteen day names and numbers, the gods and goddesses associated with each and occasionally their nahuals, the bird or animal forms which the divinities could assume. Obviously only the initiate could make use of this information, which existed in the form of pictures without an explanatory text. However, it is the great good fortune of Mexicanists that some of the friars after the Conquest annotated a few of these manuscripts according to the explanations of Indian informants.* (See Plate 59, top.)

The great Aztec ceremonies, however, took place in ac- 796
cordance with the solar year, composed of eighteen months 805 of twenty days and a five-day period which was considered unlucky (Table XVII). The months had names having to do

[Text continues on p. 198. --- Analyst]

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

796
805

TABLE XVII

THE SOLAR YEAR, THE EIGHTEEN MONTHS, AND CEREMONIES

Months, seasonal character, approximate Gregorian dates, presiding gods and chief ceremonies

I Atlcoualco (want of water), ceasing of rain [Feb. 12–Mar. 3]. Chalchihuitlicue and Tlalocs. Ceremonies for rain; child sacrifice; Xipe sacrifice with blunt weapons.

II Tlacaxipeualiztli (boning of men), seedtime [Mar. 4–Mar. 23]. God Xipe. Impersonation of Xipe by priests wearing skins of captives; dances by priests wearing human skins; agricultural dances.

III Tozoztontli (short fast), rain desired [Mar. 24–Apr. 12]. Coatlicue and Tlalocs. Child sacrifice to Tlalocs to bring rain; end of Xipe rites which sometimes held over a month.

IV Huei Tozoztli (long fast), worship of new corn [Apr. 13–May 2]. Centeotl and Chicomecoatl. Ceremonial bloodletting; decoration of house altars with corn plants; young girls' ceremony with blessing of seed corn.

V Toxcatl (dry or slippery), rainy season begins [May 3–May 22]. Tezcatlipoca and Huitzilopochtli; god-impersonation ceremonies for either or both great gods (p. 202); scarification of children.

VI Etzalqualiztli (bean porridge), rain desired [May 23–June 11]. Tlalocs. Ceremonial robbing; rain ceremonies; fertility rite, drowning boy and girl in canoe filled with hearts of sacrificial victims.

VII Tecuhilhuitontli (little feast of princes), rain desired [June 12–July 1]. Huixtocihuatl. Ceremony of salt-workers, who leeched product from lake; women's dance with sacrifice of priestess impersonating goddess.

VIII Hueitecuhilhuitl (great feast of rulers), adoration of ripening corn [July 2–July 21]. Xilonen. Feast for Goddess of Young Corn; eight-day feast; women wear hair loose as sympathetic magic; sacrifice of slave girl impersonating goddess; after sacrifice people can eat new corn.

IX Tlaxochimaco (birth of flowers), first flowering [July 22–Aug. 10]. Huitzilopochtli. Feasts on turkeys and corn-meal cakes in honor of the god; great dance with both sexes taking part and men even touching the women; merchants' feast, honoring their patron god Yacatecuhtli.

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

X Xocotlhuetzi (fall of the fruits), heat for ripening [Aug. 11–Aug. 30]. Xiuhtecuhtli (Huehueteotl). Furnace sacrifice (p. 202); competitive climbing of high pole by young men to win special insignia at top.

XI Ochpaniztli (month of brooms), refreshment of Earth Mother [Aug. 31–Sept. 19]. Tlazolteotl or Teteoinan (Toçi). Sacrifice of woman impersonating Goddess of Ripe Corn; efforts to avoid sorrow by buffoonery, sympathetic magic to avoid rains at harvest; review of warriors and distribution of insignia of rank; drills and mock combats of Eagle and Ocelot Knights.

XII Teotleco (return of the gods), harvest [Sept. 20–Oct. 9]. Tezcatlipoca. Ceremonies honoring the return of the gods to the earth; Tezcatlipoca first to come; two absent, Xiuhtecuhtli, too old to travel, Yacatecuhtli, merchant wandering off beaten track; ceremonial drunkenness and furnace sacrifice.

XIII Tepeilhuitl (feast of the mountains), rain [Oct. 10–Oct. 29]. Tlalocs. Ceremonies for mountain rain gods, an aspect of Tlalocs; use of wooden snakes and figurines covered with amaranth paste; sacrifice of four women and a man with subsequent ceremonial cannibalism.

XIV Quecholli [bird, quail(?)], rain [Oct. 30–Nov. 18]. Mixcoatl. Making of weapons; general penance of four days; licensed old people abstain from liquor and husbands from their wives; ceremonial hunt with sacrifice of game and ceremonial feasting on the hill.

XV Panquetzaliztli (feast of the flags), winter solstice [Nov. 19–Dec. 8]. Huitzilopochtli. Festivals honoring War God; mock or staged combats; imprinting of hand impressions by captives.

XVI Atemoztli (fall of the waters), rain [Dec. 9–Dec. 28]. Tlalocs. Vigils and offerings to household gods; winter solstice at time of conquest; erection of poles with paper streamers coated with rubber.

XVII Tititl (severe weather), season of serenity [Dec. 29–Jan. 7]. Ilamatecuhtli. Sacrifice of woman impersonating goddess; sympathetic magic to bring rain by weeping, through children crying on first day of month and men and children beating women with straw-filled bags to make them cry.

XVIII Izcalli (resuscitation), toasting of corn supply [Jan. 18–Feb. 6]. Xiuhtecuhtli. Ceremonial hunt; killing of captives every four years; killing of birds and arrow sacrifice at Cuauhtitlan.

Nemontemi (five unlucky days) [Feb. 7–Feb. 11].

796
805

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

796 with farming, and the days of the month were distinguished 805 by numbers, in addition to their tonalpohualli name and number described above. Years were identified in terms of the two methods, since they were named for the tonalpohualli day on which the year began.*

Only four of the twenty day names could begin the year, as a simple mathematical calculation will prove. Three hundred and sixty-five (the number of days in a year) divided by twenty (the total of the day names) leaves a remainder of five. Thus of the twenty day names only four can begin the year. House, Rabbit, Reed and Flint Knife must always recur as New Year's Day, since they are the third, eighth, thirteenth and eighteenth days in the list, thus being separated from each other by five numbers. In that thirteen, the quantity of numbers available, divides into 365 with a remainder of one, the number of the day increased by one each new year. Thus the years were numerically distinguishable—1 Rabbit, 2 Reed, 3 House, 4 Flint Knife, 5 Rabbit, and so on, until the thirteen numbers and four day names began to repeat themselves, which occurred after fifty-two (13 × 4) years. This is the mathematical reason for the Aztec cycle or major time unit, and in the Valley of Mexico they did not go further and distinguish between cycles except indirectly. In consequence there is the same sort of confusion in referring to events as would result were we to designate years within the century without distinguishing the number of centuries before or after Christ. Thus the discovery of America would be recorded as 92 and the Declaration of Independence as 76, and only a detailed knowledge of history would enable us to fix the events in their proper relationship to the fifteenth and eighteenth centuries. (See Plates 62, top left; 63.)

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

The lag between the calendric and the solar year, for which 796
we compensate by adding a day every four years as the 805
twenty-ninth of February, was difficult to adjust by Aztec standards since so much of the time count hinged on the orderly mathematical sequence of days. Some authorities believe that the Aztecs let the calendar drop behind, others that compensation was made during the unlucky period of five days. A third suggestion interprets the celebration of a feast held every eight years as a sign that a dateless day was introduced, unrecognized in the tonalpohualli of the year but honored with special rites.[7] (See Plate 58, middle.)

However the matter of the leap year was settled, the close of one cycle and the beginning of a new one was celebrated with great pomp each year Two Reed chosen as the first day of each cycle for some ritualistic reason. In the Mixteca-Puebla area the tonalamatls show evidence that the priests observed the planet Venus and took note of a Venus Year of 584 days. At the end of two cycles (104 years) there was a tremendous ceremony of great ritualistic significance, for at the same time as the beginning of a Venus count, a solar count, a fifty-two-year cycle, and a tonalpohualli all coincided. That four mystical rhythms, affecting such diverse aspects of the universe and the gods that dwelt therein, could [181] meet must have produced great satisfaction and occasioned the utmost rejoicing among people for whom pattern and form had such great significance.[8]

Although the Valley of Mexico Aztecs did not use the 796
Venus count they celebrated the cyclical change with the utmost ceremony. They thought of the change from one cycle to another as the death of one life and the beginning of a new one. The realization that nature could withhold the

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

●796 continuance of their existence endowed the ritual with profound solemnity. The New Fire Ceremony was symbolized by the extinction of the old altar fire, which had burned perpetually for fifty-two years, and the kindling of a fresh one in token of the new grant of life.* (See Plate 29, top row.)

During the five useless days (nemontemi) of the final year the people let their fires go out and destroyed their household furniture. Fasting and lamentation were the order of the day while the populace awaited catastrophe. Pregnant women [781] were shut up in granaries, lest they be changed into wild animals, and children were marched up and down and kept awake, for fear that sleep on that fatal evening would result in their turning into rats.

At sunset the priests, in solemn panoply, representatives of the whole array of the Aztec pantheon, ascended the Hill of the Star, anciently known as Huixachtecatl. This extinct volcanic crater rises abruptly from the Valley floor and is visible from almost every quarter of the Valley of Mexico. From the temple to its summit the priests anxiously scanned the heavens as the night wore on, awaiting the hour when a certain star or stars, Aldebaran or the Pleiades, reached the center of the heavens and gave the sign that their world would continue.

[372] At the very moment when these stars passed the meridian [782] the priests seized a wooden fire drill and kindled a new fire in the open breast of a victim freshly slain for the purpose. The populace—priests, chiefs and commoners—thrilled to a great happiness. Runners lit torches from the new fire and rekindled the altars in the temples of every town and hamlet, whence the people bore the flames to their hearths. Like fireflies the darting torchbearers sped through the night, bringing the promise of a new life to every man, woman and child.

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

With the dawn, more than ever gracious in its fulfillment of a 796 nations' piety, the populace rallied, renovating their temples, refurbishing their houses and making new utensils for temple and household use. There was feasting on special food, and sacrifice both by personal bloodletting and the immolation of [785] captives betokened the measure of popular gratitude.

Another striking ceremony fell on the day Four Earth- 796 quake (or Motion), the sign of the present age, and symbol- 782 ized the passage of the sun through the heavens. At dawn a captive dressed as the Sun God, Tonatiuh, ascended the platform where the Calendar Stone was set. Four priests spread-eagled the victim, and a fifth opened his breast to tear out the heart as an offering to the god. The populace then feasted until noon, gashing their ears and parts of their bodies with blades of obsidian. In the afternoon the Eagle and Tiger [785] Knights, votaries of the solar cult, took part in a dance dramatizing the sacred war wherein the sun is slain, to be reborn the following day. The dance culminated in a gladiatorial sacrifice. Selected Eagle and Tiger Knights, armed with real weapons, slew a captive warrior, chosen for his military distinction, who was tethered to a circular stone representing the sun's disk and who defended himself with dummy weapons only.[10] (See Plate 60, top right, bottom.)

A curious type of sacrifice took place in connection with the worship of the god Xipe and may be the origin of the arrow sacrifice which is performed in honor of the morning star by the Pawnee of our Western plains. In the Mexican rite the victim was lashed to a scaffold, and priests, using bows or atl-atls, shot him to death.[11]

The Aztecs performed a hideous ceremony in honor of the Fire God, Huehueteotl. Prisoners of war and their cap-

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

796 [276] 782 Prisoners of war and their cap-tors took part in a dance in honor of the god, and the next day the captives ascended to the top of a platform, where a powder, yauhtli (Indian hemp), was cast in their faces to anesthetize them against their ghastly fate. After preparing a great fire, each priest seized a captive and, binding him hand and foot, lifted him onto his back. A macabre dance took place around the burning coals, and one by one they dumped their burdens into the flames. Before death could intervene to put an end to their suffering the priests fished out the captives with large hooks and wrenched the hearts from their blistered bodies.[13]

In contrast to the callous brutality of the fire sacrifice, the ceremony in honor of the god Tezcatlipoca was strikingly dramatic, tinged with the pathos with which we view the taking of a life. The handsomest and bravest prisoner of war was selected a year before his execution. Priests taught him the manners of a ruler, and as he walked about, playing divine melodies upon his flute, he received the homage due Tezcatlipoca himself. A month before the day of sacrifice four lovely girls, dressed as goddesses, became his companions and attended to his every want. On the day of his death he took leave of his weeping consorts to lead a procession in his honor, marked by jubilation and feasting. Then he bade farewell to the glittering cortege and left for a small temple, accompanied by the eight priests who had attended him throughout the year. The priests preceded him up the steps of the temple, and he followed, breaking at each step a flute which he had played in the happy hours of his incarnation. At the top of the platform the priests turned him over the sacrificial block and wrenched out his heart. In deference to his former godhood his body was carried, not ignominiously flung, down the steps; but his head joined the other skulls 796 ● spitted on the rack beside the temple.[18] (See Plate 61, top.) [782]

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

Every one of the great monthly sacrifices had a dramatic significance, and a list of the principal feasts, the gods they honored and the month of their occurrence is set forth on Table XVII. Several authors have availed themselves of Friar Sahagun's matchless descriptions to set forth the elaborate rituals which we have lightly sampled here. The elements of time, training and elaborate preparation of costume, it can be readily seen, must have absorbed a large part of the resources of the tribe. The tentacles of ritual extended throughout the tribal activities, so that even games and sports were transformed into acts of religious meaning, although the participants undoubtedly derived a great deal of fun from their performance.

The ball game, tlachtli, was such a game, played in a court 796 shaped like the capital letter I. Walls extended on either side 526 of the stem of the I, and in the middle of each a stone or wooden ring was set vertically, in contrast to the horizontal position of a basketball hoop. The players tried to pass through this ring a hard rubber ball, which they could only strike with their elbows, hips or legs. There must have been some other method of scoring than by goals alone, since these, very naturally, were of rare occurrence—so much so that, in the event of one, players and backers had the right to snatch the wearing apparel of their adversaries. The game was played far and wide, courts having been found from the Republic of Honduras to southeastern Arizona. It has a special interest for us in that the first description of rubber, so important in our modern economy, was when Oviedo, in the sixteenth

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

796 century, wrote of the game and the ball used by its players.[14]
526 (See Plate 57, bottom left; Fig. 3.)

525 There were also games of chance which were played with 796 a semisacred significance. One such game, patolli, utilized a board shaped like a cross, with spaces ruled in the arms, not unlike a version of the old-fashioned parchesi of our childhood. Macuilxochitl, Five Flower, the god of all games, was sometimes portrayed in connection with players of patolli.[15]

796 Another important entertainment involved the erection of 526 a high pole at the top of which a movable platform was socketed. Men dressed as gods or the birds into which the gods transformed themselves, and, fastened by ropes wound around the platform, leaped off into space. As they did so the ropes, unwinding, rotated the platform and gave the effect of flight to the circling performers. Each turn brought the birdmen nearer to the ground, and they were wont to alter their center of balance and adjust their wings, producing the effect of the rise and fall of soaring birds. This modest application of the principle of gliding must have created a spectacle of color and beauty. The ceremony is still performed in parts of Mexico, and the Volador, or flying place, of Tenochtitlan was, until very recently, the site of the "Thieves' Market" in Mexico City.[16]

782 The application of human sacrifice to the most simple cere-
174 monial act of thanksgiving offers a grisly contrast to the spirit in which these rituals were carried out. However, social and religious behavior are calculated to preserve human existence and ensure man's well-being, regardless of how warped the methods may become. It follows that the idea of sacrificing precious possessions to attain such ends would lead to the offering of the most precious gift of all, human life,

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

796
212

[266]

PLATE 61

AZTEC RITUAL

TOP: Left: Dressing a victim and equipping him with the proper headdress, shield and magical mirror to play the part of Tezcatlipoca. Right: Sacrifice of the victim after a year. Note the flutes discarded by him as he ascended the stair. MIDDLE: Left: Dressing a priest in the costume of Xipe, the Flayed God, who wears a human skin. Right: Musicians with rattle and skin-covered drum, huehuetl. BOTTOM: Right: Ceremonial cannibalism. The Codex Florentino artist had obviously never taken part in such a feast, fairly common before the Conquest.

[p. 208(A)]

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

723 648 pation in trade and booty far in excess of the apparent size and importance of the town.[11] (See map, end papers; Plates 41, top; 42, top; 43.)

721 The purely economic and military aspects of war are as crude, when judged by our modern technical standards, as the rest of the purely mechanical aspects of Aztec life. On the other hand, the ritualistic conception of war as the earthly re-enactment of the titanic struggle between opposing forces in nature has a quality almost sublime. The political and economic frictions that brought about conflict were welcomed by the warriors as an opportunity to vibrate to the deep rhythms of nature, rhythms which met in a celestial antiphony in the Sacred War which the Sun fights each day as he, by his own death and sacrifice, ensures the life of man.

721 796 The War of Flowers was undertaken to satisfy this yearning when no active campaign was in progress. In this incongruously named ceremonial combat the best warriors from several states met in a very real battle, so that feats of arms could be accomplished and captives taken to satisfy the hunger of the gods. One famous War of Flowers was repeated for several years, and the cream of the fighting men of Texcoco, Tenochtitlan and Tlacopan vied with the might of Cholula, Huexotcingo and Tlaxcala. If a warrior were captured he met the most glorious of deaths in direct sacrifice to the Sun. If he lived he gained renown. If he were slain, he [775] was cremated, an honor reserved only for fighting men and passed on to the special heaven where warriors dwell.[12]

726 Such warfare had no place in a conflict with Europeans, but, when reduced to fighting for their bare lives against the Spaniards, the Aztecs put up one of the most desperate dedrical drum and another the wooden tongues in the side of the two-toned teponaztli.

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

Farther up the street the priests seemed to increase in number. More individuals wore the trappings of high office, such as nodding panaches of quetzal plumes and cloaks, the designs of which were worked in feathers like the personal insignia on their circular shields. Evidently the visitor was near the center of the town, and presently the causeway ended in a great open square, where the temples rose above the majestic planes of their pyramidal foundations. In the hard bright light of early afternoon, heat waves joined the smoke of incense in rendering indistinct and unearthly the outlines of the temples.

The short black shadows suggested unspeakable things. Was it imagination or reality, that sickening smell of a filthy butcher shop, that hung in the air in revolting contrast to the immaculate pavement of the temple courtyard? Imagination is too personal and egocentric a sensation for an Indian community, and the great block of the skull rack gave an answer only too firmly founded on fact. Thousands of skulls, threaded on poles, were piled up in orderly symmetry, and the black cavities of their orbits and nasal apertures suggested the marks on infernal dice. Undisturbed by this monument to human sacrifice, a few young men were practicing in a ball court near by. They thrust at a solid rubber ball with agile hips and elbows, in an effort to drive it through two rings set transversely to the walls in the length of the court.

A circular stone placed a short distance away was the scene of a most cruel game. Here, on certain ceremonial days, a tethered captive was forced to defend himself with a wooden club against the onslaught of an adversary whose weapon

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

174 was set with razor-sharp obsidian blades. Usually he was 796 killed in the most honorable of deaths, that of sacrificial vic-
349 tim to the Sun God, Tonatiuh, but sometimes he would resist so successfully that he gained a pardon. Other disk-shaped stones were placed about the plaza. One, thirteen feet in diameter, was set vertically on a special platform. Carved with a consummate mastery of design, it represented the symbolic history of the world. Another disk, set flat, was hollowed in the center, so that hearts wrung from war captives might be burned to nourish the great gods. This was carved on its surface and edge to commemorate the many conquests of War Chief Tizoc, who was shown dressed as a god, with his captives before him.

174 In another part of the plaza a sacrifice was to be made.
782 Before a small temple dedicated to one of the myriad Aztec gods a group was gathered, some in the gay panoply of merchants and others wearing the sinister black of the priesthood. A tightly pinioned slave stood in their midst and looked unseeingly before him, resignation, not fear, on his face. The priests rushed him up the steep steps of the temple, followed by the merchants at a more leisurely pace. Two priests seized the slave by either arm, forcing him backward, while two others pulled his legs from under him until his body curved, belly upward, over the altar. A fifth priest plowed his flint knife in a long sweep from the breastbone to the base of the stomach and, reaching into the aperture, with a dexterous twist tore out the heart. This he burned, while it was still throbbing, in a carved stone vase, while the merchants, swinging long ladles of smoking incense, chanted their thanks for a safe and profitable excursion into the hot country. (See Plate 60.)

De los Dioses

FIRST BOOK, HERE ARE NAMED THE GODS WHO WERE WORSHIPPED BY THE NATIVES.

INIC CE AMUXTLI: VNCAN MOTENEOA, IN TETEUH: IN QUJNMOTEUTIAIA IN NICAN TLACA.

First Chapter, which treats of the higher gods[1] who were worshipped and to whom sacrifices were offered in times past.

Humming-bird from the Left (Vitzilopochtli), [was] only a common man, just a man.[2] [He was] a sorcerer, an omen of evil; a soothsayer, a deceiver,[3] a creator of war, a war-lord, an instigator of war.

For it was said of him that he brought hunger and plague—that is, war.[4] And when a feast was celebrated [for him], captives were slain; ceremonially barbed thorns were offered up. The merchants barbed them.[5]

And he was then arrayed: he had an ear-pendant of blue cotinga feathers;[6] he had the fire serpent diagram, the blue tassel cloth,[7] the arm band.[8] He wore sandals and shells[9]

Jnic on capitulo, ynchipa daxoa, yn ic omoo tlapanaujo ueueh: yn qujnmoteutiaia, yoan yn qujnelanaujliaia, yn in ueueh. 776

Vitzilobuchtli: çan macuxtli, çan tlacatl catca: uecatl, tetzujtl, atlacatzoalli, uitzoqujj: qujjocoiaj in iaxiutl, iaxtecaj, iaxtlacaaj:

on ixchipa mjjoaia, ynpan qujjelaqa yn xiuhcozcatl, in mamalhuazzi, q. n. iaxiutl, uxutl, tlachinolli. Auh yn jquac illujqujxtlaia, malinjoaia, tlaxilitlujoaia: tzoltzinia, yn pochtecaa. [796]

Auh yuqc mochichinaia: xiuhcozcatzoche catca, xiuhcozcatzolo, xiuhtlalpilli, mamaxtli, uitzilli, cuecalli.

Second Chapter, which treats of the god named He who Humming (Payzal), who was worshipped, and to whom sacrifices were offered, in ancient times.

Payzal was "the delegate," "the substitute," "the deputy"; because he represented Vitzilopochtli when there was a procession. He was named Payzal, because he passed on and urged them ahead.[10]

Jnic vnoo capitulo, ynchipa daxoa yn uecel yn jnca payzal: yn qujnmoteutiaia, yoan in qujnelanaujliaia in uecaah. 776 796

Payzal: momapaillotiaj, momiquiztiaj: ynpan mitoaj: ishica on qujnmiquiztiaia, in vitzilobuchtli, yn iquac daxoaloaia, momaxaia payzal: ipampa on omoo, qujnootemia, qujnoolchichiaia. [661]

---

1. The corresponding Spanish text of the Florentine Codex reads: "Capítulo primero, que habla del principal dios. . . ."
2. Edward Seler, in Gesammelte Abhandlungen zur Amerikanischen Sprach- und Alterthumskunde (Berlin: A. Asher & Co., 1902-23), Vol. II, p. 425, refers to him as ein Sterblicher.
3. Seler thus phrases the passage: "Vitzilopochtli was only a man, a magician, an unlucky omen, a wicked augur, one who deluded the people with visions."—Collected Works (Cambridge, Mass.: Carnegie Institution of Washington, 1959), Vol. II, pp. 4, p. 4.
4. Cf. Rémi Simeon: Dictionnaire de la langue nahuatl ou mexicaine (Paris: Imprimerie Nationale, 1885); and Andrés de Olmos: Gramática de la langue nahuatl ou mexicaine (Paris: Imprimerie Nationale, 1875), p. 239. ". . . of him it is related that he thrown the nahuatl and the Huehuetec, i. e., war, wars (upon-throwing) and fire on the people" (Seler, op. cit., Vol. II, pt. 3, p. 218). Cf. also Bernardino de Sahagún, Historia general de las cosas de Nueva España (México: Pedro Robredo, 1938), Vol. IV, p. 102, ". . . muerte diez Vitzilopochtli nuestro dios como para [illegible] y desaparecer; la vez se llama nicatlacl, y la otra nemoaltlacatl . . . y él tenía por otro nombre en la nueva [illegible] que llamaban nicatlacl, que llamaban nicatlacl, en derecho sino terrenos o cenizas, y aquello, nicatlacl vino, como representación en las batallas como que empieza tras la cabeza sobre los enemigos con que los aquejaba y hacía hacer."
5. The meaning (of mochichi) is to offer as a sacrifice, or to barbe or scarify (cf. Sahagún, op. cit., Vol. II, pp. 378, 384).
6. Cf. ibid., Vol. III, p. 146; Seler (Gesammelte Abhandlungen, Vol. II, p. 425) identifies the bird as Cotinga ceruia c. cerulea, and suggests that the feathers were arranged in a conical pattern. Simeon, op. cit., p. 499, calls the bird Herbaceus ceri (Hern.).
7. Seler, op. cit., Vol. II, p. 426; Sahagún, op. cit., Vol. II, p. 379, suggests that such an article of clothing was sometimes worn above the hips.
8. Seler, op. cit., Vol. II, p. 229, and Sahagún, op. cit., Vol. I, pp. 144, and Vol. II, p. 380, say the arm-band was provided with a hole or a reed, or tassel a decoration. In the Spanish text of the Florentine Codex, Lib. II, fo. 37r, Sahagún defines matamatli as "pulsera de hueso fino, o manera del manipulo, que se usa en la misa." Cf. also Seler (Collected Works, Vol. II, pt. 3, 40), who says that it is the same as quetzalquaquatl. See Bibliography of Ulitzilopochtli.
9. The MS Biblioteca del Palacio reads mitzilli, ayacatl, in iaxi—an indication that they were worn on the soles of the legs—Seler, Gesammelte Abhandlungen, Vol. II, pp. 427-8.
10. Sahagún (Florentine Codex, corresponding Spanish text) describes Payzal as figure aparecerse.

776 776 And the people followed [the impersonator], jeering, howling, waving. They made the dust rise; they caused the ground to smoke. Like people possessed, they stamped upon the earth.

[778] And one man carried [the image] in his arms.[11]

And he was adorned thus: he was garbed in the costly cape of precious feathers,[12] with the quetzal-feather headornament in the manner of coastal people. Bees were painted on his face; and a star design. He had a turquoise nose-plug. He was the humming-bird disguise. He had the bee-ornament; he had a shield set with a mosaic of turquoise.

Auh in mocuaili, quiyocoia, quiyolcolocoia, cuiuhquiuja, quicaxtoctiuja, tentoli quiquentiuja, tlalli quiquetoniuja: iehuqui tlaiuquiquja, tlalli tlecuja:

auh ce tlacatl quiuapaloctiuja.

Auh yuic mochichiuaia, tecuquentiuja, quetzalquecuecuitl, in cuetlaltiuja, iuecalichiuale, iuitlalichiuale, mixiotlalichiuh, xiuhicomujua, vicinilliuaia, elacuaua, xiuhchiuale.

776 [776] Third Chapter, which reflects of the god named Smoking Mirror (Tezcatlipoca), who, in these parts, was worshipped as a god, and to whom offerings were made.

Tezcatlipoca: He was considered a true god, whose deeds were everywhere—in the land of the dead, on earth, and in heaven. When he walked on the earth, he brought vice and sin. He introduced anguish and affliction.

He brought discord among people, wherefore he was called "the enemy on two sides." All evils which came to men, all [these] he created, brought down, afflicting men and dividing them [one against the other].

And sometimes he bestowed riches—wealth, heroism, valor, position of dignity, relationship, nobility, honor.

Ynic ey, capitulo, yuchqui tlamo in teotl, yn juuca tezcatlipoca: in quiuecuitiuia, yuan in quitlaxuujjiuia, in tecuuh.

Tezcatlipoca: yuin vel teotl ipan machoia, nenjiuu yuanujiuu: nicolo, tlalticpac, yllhujcac. Ja jquac nenja tlalticpac, ixhuel quitlalitiuja, in teotlí tlaçelli: cococ tequanqui, cuiuiuiuia, teotlí, tecuquenda cuecuia: ipampa y, mjtoaia necuc iuud, mitchi quijococoia, quiuuuujuja, quiuecuujtiuia, quiuecujtiuia yn jaquich aquelli tepan machoia: ueca tlaujtiuia, tequanqueloia.

Auh in quenuan, quiyoucoia, in necujtonolli: in tlaquujtl, in ocquichtlí, in tlacochtlí, in teuctlí, in tlaococtlí, in pillotl, in mecuquitl.

Fourth Chapter, which reflects of the [rain-]god named Tlaloc, the prince.[13]

Tlaloc: the prince. To him was attributed the rain; for he made it, he caused it to come down, he scattered the rain like seed, and also the hail. He caused to sprout, to blossom, to leaf out, to bloom, to ripen, the trees, the plants, our food. And also by him were made floods of water and thunder-bolts.

And he was thus decorated: his face was thickly painted black, his face was painted with liquid rubber;[14] it was anointed with black; his face was [spotted] with [a paste of] amaranth seeds.[15] He had a decorated chief-jacket of [woven] fabric; he had a crown of heron feathers; he had a necklace of green stone jewels. He had fresh conchs, and also cactus. He had a plaited-reed banner.[16]

Jnic nauj capitulo, yuchqui tlamoia yn teotl, yn juuca tlaloc, tlamacazqui.

Tlaloc, tlamacazqui: yuin ipan machoia; in quiauitl: ca iuhcuel quitocoia, quiuuuujuia, quijuuuia, in quiauitl, yuan in tecuitl: quiuelalitiuja, quiuuuuiuaitiuja, quiuuuuiitiuja, quiuuuuiitiuja, quiuuuuiitiuja, quiuuuuiitiuja, quiuuuuiitiuja, quiuuuuiitiuja, in quauitl, in cacatl, in tonacatl. Yuan no iuuh tlaujtiuia, in tolinquilitl, in tlaujuquilitl.

Auh yuic mochichiuaia, tlaxilitquequeuilli, tlaxilitquilli, tecilitquac, iuujchiuuac, iuuichiuuchiu, uuachiuuchiu, uiuchiuale, ueuuuuac, chalchiuhquac, pepelquac, no tlatzile, xoxopiquac.

Fifth Chapter, which reflects of the god named Plumed Serpent (Quetzalcoatl).

Jnic macujlli capitulo, yuchqui tlamo yn teotl, yn juuca quetzalcoatl.

---

11. After the sacrifice of the impersonator, the image was carried in procession.—Loc. cit.

12. Sahagún (Collected Works, Vol. II, pt. 1, p. 44) declares it was a costly robe made entirely of precious feathers, worn over the shirt (jacket) and the quetzal-feather cape (cape worn over the jacket); probably it was an apron-like garment placed on the front of the skirt.

13. Sahagún (ibid., pt. 2, p. 48) uses this determinant and determinant means "prince" and "priest." He himself translates Tlaloc determinant as "Sagrificador . . . . Sagrificador," in Einige Kapitel aus dem Geschichtswerk des Fray Bernardino de Sahagun aus dem Aztekischen wortgetreu übersetzt (Cornelius Schröder-Sieder, Walter Lehmann, Walter Krickeberg, eds.; Stuttgart: Strecker und Schwarzer, 1927), Vol. I, p. 1.

14. Sahagún (loc. cit.): "ne Gesicht eine Begleitung und Stimme Kautschuk."

15. Cf. Sahagún, Historia general, Vol. I, p. 189; see also Sahagún, Commentaire Aztec, Vol. II, pp. 463-4.

16. Cf. Sahagún, op. cit., Vol. I, p. 142.

776 cape-like over-garment. She carried a turquoise-colored weaving-stick.

Seventh Chapter: here is named the goddess called Seven Snake[30] (Chicome coatl).

Chicome coatl—this one represented [and] had in her charge our food,[31] man's livelihoods of whatever sort; their food and drink.

And in this manner was she adorned: her face was painted with red ochre; she had a paper headdress; she wore a shirt [ornamented with] water-flowers[32] and a skirt [ornamented with] water-flowers; also she had foam-sandals;[33] she carried a sun flower shield, a sun shield.

Eighth Chapter: here is named the goddess called the Mother of the Gods (Teteu innan), who is also named Heart of the Earth (Tlalli yiollo) and Our Grandmother (Toci).

She was the mother of the gods. Her devotees were [759] physicians, healers, those who cured sickness of the intestines, those who purged people, [and] eye-doctors.

[791] Also women, midwives, those who brought about abortions, who read the future, who cast auguries by looking upon water or by casting grains of corn, who read fortunes by use of knotted cords, who cured sickness by removing stones or obsidian knives from the body, who removed worms from the teeth, who removed worms from the eye.[34]

Likewise owners of sweat-houses prayed to her; wherefore they caused her image to be placed in the front of the sweat-house. They called her "Grandmother of the Baths."

776 And when there was a feast, ut-ra it was time for the
● 796 slaying, the physicians were good to her who impersonated Teteu innan, that she might not weep [nor] whine. They adorned her; they flattered her; they satisfied her caprices; they caused her. They wished her not to weep. They bid [her feed] from her;[35] they made merry with one another about slaughter; they hunted; they made war; they cried war-cries as if in battle. There was an array of warriors; insignia were given [and] gifts; the valiant soldiers, adorned with mantles, painted with white chalk, adorned with feathers, surrounded her and took her up.

And when she who was the likeness [of the goddess] was slain, then a man put on her skin as a shirt, and stood between two of his Huaxtecs,[36] who accompanied him on either side.

Juic chicome capitale: vecue mocemme, yn cioatoal: yn jueca, chicome coatl.

Chicome coatl: inhuel ipan mijnoaia, quijnjtipielaiaia, in tonacaiotl: yoan in qaqo ihin yoanca, yiolca mocemalli, yejjon, yaqoala.

Auh yuja yonechichiouia ceuca; intlachcauala, omocala, cenchiaviqala, zoochicauia, no poqolcaqua, tonalchiouala, tonatichchiouala.

Juic chicuei, capitale: vuei mocemme, yn cioatoal, yn jueca: Teteu yoan: no nencaiaia, Tlalli yiollo, yoan Toci.

Jueá ceuca yn teteu, quijnnenaiaja, in tiiici, in mitznjuqua, mitznaqua, ontlamaqujlqua, mitqaqua.

Auh yn ciua, mmjnjtiqua, mqillalliqua, ontlatlaliqua, tlapouhqua, ontlan mitznij, tlatlachiouhqua, mocoloquouhqua, ontlacujcujlqua, ontlamocujlmaqua, mimocujlmaqua.

No ihcuaqja quijtlachchiaia, in tonacalaqua; yyamqa y, quitlalliaia yn jnjqola, in tonacalimqua, quijnnaiaia, tonacalocci.

Auh yn jquac, in ie ilhujqujpiilliaia, in ie inujqimaqujqua: in ihcuaqja tiiici, yn jnjqola ceuca teteu yoan, quijtlacuiqopolocaia, ano vel chocaia, quoalhqujtiaia, quijtlamocciaia, quijtlacmaqujlaia, quijxcolaia, hueqjchcolaqja, quijtlahtiaia, mmjquimqujqualaia, quijmcalhtiaia, quijmchiaia, quijtlacmochiliaia, omujqaia, tlacimmoliaia, ontlamocaia, ontlachiliaia: in quijqjlhica mochiuia in tlacaua, ic quimiqujqaia, ic quijquimqaia, quijnnocujlitiaja, ic panj mocqueuaia.

Auh yn jquac omujc, yn jnjqola: ujcoan ce tlacatl omomqujqaia, yn jnuaia, yoanquatla ochiqujqueuaia, vmmatin yoanca, quijqjcaia, quijnnocuiqujja:

30. See Plate 19, which explains the name.

31. Since Chicome coatl was goddess of maize, this section may refer to the various uses of maize, which was basic to Mexican civilization.

32. Eduard Seler, Gesammelte Abhandlungen, Vol. II, p. 446.

33. Alfonso Caso (op. cit., p. 444) uses the term "foam," for also Sahagún is referring to flowers. Illustrations show the gods wearing, in fact, feathered sandals.

34. Sahagún describes these words in detail. See Angel María Garibay K: "Paralipómenos de Sahagún," in Tlalocan, Vol. II, No. 3 (1947), pp. 235-36.

35. Caso, Ensayo Kapital, p. 6. Cf. also Sahagún, op. cit., p. 178, referring to the Toci festival: "Also dances do other equally our dances that we Roman Inquisitors."

36. Sahagún, op. cit., Vol. I, pp. 180, 178.

-4-

They were painted with white chalk, and with [marks like] hook scratches. They were naked, with a rope for a breech-clout. They carried on their backs a paper mitre-shaped cap, which had a protruding spindle, cotton flowers, and quetzal feathers.[36]

They brought him to Tezcatlipoca's temple where they had placed [the impersonator's] skin upon a wooden bench.[37]

And the costume [of Tezcatlipoca] was as follows: there was liquid rubber on her lips and a circle [of rubber] on each cheek. She had cotton flowers.[38] She had a ball with palm strips. She had a shell-covered skirt, called a star-skirt. She had the star-skirt. Eagle feathers were strewn over her skirt—it was strewn with eagle [feathers]; it had white eagle feathers, painted eagle feathers. Her shield had a golden disc in the center. She carried the medicinal herb, tecuitlatl. She used a broom; she carried a broom.

mantipaque, mantlehuipaque, qua papaloxochitl, in tezcatzontli: atecolli in quipiaua, mahuizoqueualli, ichcatzintlin, hiuipaualli:

776
796
[302]

uapa cuecueca, in tecitlahua: quauhtlapechco cuetlaxtic ya 776 jaxin.

Auh yuje nechichiuale, mocuecuequi, tlamapechtli quipiadalilli ya jcamapil ichcatzinchin, quiauaualo, cuechcueca, mocuechcueni: ic mjxoa, citlalli yoca, citlalcuaia, quetzlih, tecuitlahuj ya jaxpil, quauhtecuitlahuj, ixtac quetzlihuja, quauhtecuitaqui; ya jchimal, tecuxjlayiuaqui, tecuxaxin, popoca, ixquipa.

Ninth Chapter, in which one hearsh of the goddess named the Goddess of Zapotlan (Tlaxcalan woman).

[She was] represented as a woman. From her adornment was made tlaxcalan.

She healed men's bodies; those with itch of the head;[39] they who were hoarse used the tlaxcalan unguent on the throat; [they used it] who had sores or pimples on the head;[40] or cracks in the skin of the feet, lips, face, hands, or legs; and when it was cold, [it was used for] the swelling-sickness.[41]

In old and in heat were used to advantage in indeed many places.

And when the feast day was celebrated, they who sold the tlaxcalan unguent brought down and slew them. They fashioned her image of a dough of amaranth [seeds] and maize.[42] Her old men sang for her; they beat the two-toned wooden drum, and the turtle-shell drum; they carried carrier shaped like dried puppy-meat pole,[43] and they carried horse carrier.

Then was the ceremony: two spots were painted on her face; she had a paper crown; large drops of liquid rubber and small drops were sprinkled over her paper crown, and it had quetzal feathers arranged to resemble cane-tassels. She carried the cane-tassel-broom.[44]

Jnje chicuaxj capitulo: ynic mocuaua, ya cioatzol, ya jnca Tlaxcalla ueua.

Ca cioatl, ipan mjxtecuia, ya cuitl yuacalo nechiuia:

776 quipolujo ya tlaxcalo, ya aquja quauhcuitlaxj, tlaxcalmjxtecuitj, mocuecueqiuja: chaquachiuj, quaçaxaxj, xotaxiuj; tlaxcalmjxj, ixtaquaxaxj, mocuquaxaxj, ixitlaxaxiuj, yuan in quaia, ya tlacualiztij: 278 757

ya jchimaua ya jxaxal vel ninoxaa mocuqui.

Auh ya jquac: llaxjquintlalia, ya ninoxaaqui, mocuecuajuia, tlacaxjcuia, quijxcualtiuia ya jxipila, quijxjcuiaia, ya ixcuiaua, quijxpaccilhujuia, cuiaxaxaxjlia, cuiaxjaqujlia, cuiaxchilhuja, cuaxjhiaxcilhuja. 776
796

Jnje nechichiuale mocuaxale, xocuaia, chichiquaququi, tlachichiquilli ya jxaxaxal, yuan quetzalxjxaxaia, cuichicuaxa.

---

36. See Plate II.

37. Sahagún, op. cit., Vol. I, p. 102, adds in parenthesis.

38. Cf. text and illus. in Del Rábanos del Fuente, cited in Seler, Gesammelte Abhandlungen, Vol. II, pp. 488-9, in which there are described as a headdress of cotton flowers.

39. ". . . cosa manera, de hedor, o cosa, que cosa, en la cabeza" (corresponding Spanish text).

40. ". . . cosa enfermedad . . . cual cosa, que cosa en la cabeza que es como hedor" (loc. cit.).

41. See p. 61, n. 130.

42. Cf. Diego de Durán: Historia de las Indias de Nueva España y Islas de Tierra Firme (Edition: J. M. Andrade y F. Escalona, 1867-80), Vol. II, p. 197.

43. "Aquatlatl, cosa de hedor o manera de desvalimiento" (Molina, op. cit.).

44. Cf. Eduard Seler: Gesammelte Abhandlungen, Vol. II, p. 474, and Codex Rajadel, p. 7—Nahuatl-Spanish (Anal-Anahuacal). The same author, cited in Sahagún, Historia general, Vol. V ("Los ministros de los dioses"), says: "Esta vara (yacahuitzoli) significa evidentemente la cabeza y, conforme a esta idea verdadera en el modo de pronunciar, tomó origen de yacahuitzoli. Sirvió el instrumento para barrer el templo . . ." (pp. 47-8); "El chicuaxtli, bárdo de zacate, instrumento ceremonial que tenían en las manos los dioses de . . . la Lluvia y del Agua. . . . En la procesión de los sacerdotes en la Huitzilopochtli, llevan Tlaloc el yacahuitzoli, zacate de cálido. Es el instrumento religioso, con que

776 Tenth Chapter, which tells of the goddess [called] the Princess (Cihuapiltzin).[46]

[753] There were five devils, whose images were of stone. Of them it was supposed, and men said: "They have people; they laugh at them." When one was under their spell, possessed by them, one's mouth was twisted, one's face was contorted; one lacked use of a hand; one's feet were misshapen—one's feet were deadened; one's head trembled; one foamed [at the mouth]. Whence it was said, one had met and encountered with the Cihuapiltzin, who dwelt on the cross-roads. Therefore fathers or mothers told their children: "Go not forth; the Cihuapiltzin arrive on earth; they descend [upon us]."

776 And for this reason, when it was their feast day, they ●796 made them offerings of mole, folded tortillas called tlamatzoalli, butterfly-shaped tortillas called papalotzoalli, [others shaped like] sacrificial notched sticks (xoxoualli),[47] small tamales called xocoichtlamatzoalli,[47] and toasted grains of corn.

And then they offered all these, sometimes at the temple of the goddesses, sometimes at crossroads.

776 And they were then bedight: they had their faces whitened with chalk, and, over this, daubed with liquid rubber. Their paper garments were covered with painted figures. They had sandals decked with feathers.

Eleventh Chapter: which tells of the goddess named the Jade-skirted (Chalchiuhtli ycue), who was [goddess of] the waters.

She was considered a god(dess); her likeness was that of a woman. It was said that she belonged among the rain-gods, as their elder sister.

Hence she was consulted, feared, and held in awe; hence she terrified men. [For] she killed men in water, she plunged them in water as it foamed, swelled, and formed whirlpools about them; she made the water swirl; she carried men to the depths.

She upset the canoe, she emptied it; she lifted it, turned it up and plunged it in the water.

And sometimes she sank men in the water; she drowned them. The water was restless: the waves roared; they dashed and resounded. The water was wild.

When it calmed, when it quieted, it hissed to and fro; it was said, "It plays; it billows, it lightens like the stamping of feet; the water swirlsth the shore, spraying water and foaming."

Juic matlactli, capítulo: yuncuja tlaca, ya cioatlaca, ciuapiltzi:

Diablotlaca caca y, macujiltin, tlaca ya jmixpolocaca; ixcuch tlamjlinia, quijtoach tolocatlia, tlca mocaxaca, yujc aca ixcuch quijtocaia chaualiztocaxi, tlamacujlinj, tlamacujlinj, mamacujlinj, ixcuipichauj, ixcuipujpujj, mamacuecuecua, tlamapachaquiqui: ic mjtocaia cuecuecuecui, ypan cquiquac ciuapiltzi, ytlamac chachiqua. Jpampa y ya tlaca, ancqo tlaca, quijmilnujcia ya jquilhuac: caca xmoquiza tlalpan oci, tlaca in ciuapiltzi.

776 Auh ipampa y, ya iquac yquilhujzjzh, yujc quijtocaquiztia:
tlamamalli, papalotzoalli, xoxocujli, xocoichtlamatzoalli, iaquijl.

Auh ya tlaca mamaca y, in quamaca tlaca ya cioatlaca, in quamaca, tlaxaxac.

Auh ya jmochichiualtlaca, mjxiquiquac: auh yauj chalchuatzoli, chalcuquachtzoli, chalcuquatzoli, ya jmamalcquac, pamacuecuequiqua.

Juic matlactli ce capítulo: yuncuja tlaca, ya cioatlaca, ya jtocu chalchiuhtli ycue: ahuatl ya ati.

Tonl ipan machoia: ishquja cioatl quijquiztlacia, ish mjtocaia, quijtoach yuncu pauj, tonchiuh in tlalnqua:

yujc mocuitlilitia, yujc imacaxia, yujc machoxtocia, yujc tlamachtocia, tlamacxitia, machoxjctocia, tepolactocia, tepan pagacja, mamapanqua, mamacxia, tepan mamajlacachoa, yujc tlamachtujujca:

ya ocalli quijcuepa, quijtlapachoaqua, quamiquaca, ca aca mamaj, ca tlaca.

Auh in quamaca tlapachoa, tlapamaqja, mamacxia, tlatlaqja mamacxitlaxaj, mamacocolaxaj, hachocaxaj:

ya jquac: ocach, ya in ouj, mujc ishtoch: quijoca, macujlitia, tlatlaqujlitia, cocoxaxaj, ocatli ipach tlamachtlachoaca, tlamachachiquaca, tlapapaqujlitia.

a hace descender lluvia. . . . El chalchiuhtli es el jade verdoso de las fortalezas y, los dioses, también instrumento mágico con que se chicoca dios" (pp. 139-40).

46. See Sahagún, op. cit., Vol. I, pp. 194-5; Vol. II, pp. 101-3. Seler (Collected Works, Vol. I, pp. 2, p. 38, and pp. 3, p. 100, and Vol. II, pp. 3, pp. 89, 88) ibid., holds that Cihuapiltzin (the princess) are the sisters or Cioatlaca (the goddesses)—women who died in childbirth (mocuitlapixqui) or on the ceremonial cross, and hence were the equivalent of warriors killed in battle or offered up as sacrifices. Seler describes them as special earth-goddesses who descended to the earth in the guise of eagles. As equals of warriors, they were accorded in certain warriors' symbols—eagle feathers and down sandals, for instance. They were thought to dwell in the west, and to make men to die and cries.

46. An S-shaped color, made to resemble lightning—Seler, op. cit., Vol. III, pp. 2, p. 47.

47. Folded tortillas in the form of square-flower, according to Seler, Codex Laud, p. 8.

And when (there was) no wind, it was calm; the water spread like a mirror, glistening, glittering.

And when her feast was celebrated, in the month of Etzalqualiztli, the eating of boiled corn,[48] then was celebrated the feast of the rain-gods.

They placed her image upon a framework; they put a skirt upon her, and a shift; they placed jewels upon her—a plumed headpiece, from which hung a golden disc.

And they offered her offerings and the fire priests came out to receive her. They covered aromatic herbs before her.

With the cords heard of the skirt and rain gods, they spoke. The city elders, her singers, sang for her.

And then they drew her impersonator—a slave woman, bought and set forth by those who gained their livelihoods as water-carriers—those who brought in water, who fetched water in canoes; those who owned canoes; those who worked in irrigation ditches; and those who made canoes in the market-place, those who sold water for refreshment.[49]

Likewise they arrayed her, made offerings, and ornamented her. For she would go, when they drew her, to a place called Tlaloccan. In the temple of the Tlaloca, they opened her house.

Then Moctezuma paid great honors to [the goddess]. Before her image, he offered incense and slew quail.

Then they said: "The chief galeeth rain; he doth a penance for his people." And giving thanks, they then paid honor to the women.

[For] they remembered that because of her we [may] live. She is our sustenance. And thence come all things that are necessary.

In the same manner they paid honor to the image of man's sustenance, called Chicomecoatl; and to the image of the salt [goddess], named Uixtocihuatl. Then they remembered what they had done; then they honored the dead.[50]

For indeed, through them the peasant earned his livelihood. Then might he be satisfied; then, in truth, might he live.

And then was she decked: she was painted yellow and blue; she was painted blue above the lips and on her face.[51] She wore a green-stone necklace; she had turquoise [mosaic] earplugs. She had a blue paper cap with a spray of quetzal feathers. Her shift and her skirt were painted like water. She bore a shield ornamented with water lily leaf and flower. She carried the rain-rattlehead,[52] which she sounded. She wore foam sandals.

Auh ya jquac ode ohcatl, tlamacitonaj, ennecatitonaj, pelactitonaj, cuecuexcatitonaj. 776

Auh ya jquac: ilhuiqujztilizia, qua no iquac ya ennelquetzlitli: ya vecan ilhujqujztilizia tlaloque, 796 [805]

cuitoli in qujchichiuia yxipela: qujcuetzia, qujujpilizia, qujcuacuatzia, cuecapetlatl, inch pilcatiuh cuetic tecuxjlocuetlli: [778] yecan qujtlamanjlizia, qujxamanizqj ya jtlamacuccuah, yiauhcli, iapan qujquepevilia, cuiochicoxcac ilhujtiuaqj, qujcujcuzia in calpolcqui, ycujcacoxca.

Auh in vel iniptla, yquac: mjquja: tlacotli cioatl in qujcuaia, inhuan qujquetzizia, ya ennenecque: ya atl ye mocuiaiocuitia, ya ocalica atlacuj, ya ocalcque, ya apantlan: yecan ocalquetzque tlaquiaca, in qujpechichiuia atl. [567] [463]

No inh qujchichiuia, no inh qujtlamamacuia, no inh qujcuecuecuia: inh tlacotiuja: in mjquja, ynecaocan tlalocan: ya vecan ioxopan, tlaloque, quelcmqujja.

Je jquac y, no cenca qujmocnitilizia, ya mococuzqua: iapan tlamamacuia, ya iniptla, qujtlacoxqujlia, inh qujcuaia: qujquichichiuaj in tlacatl, qujtlamacchuja ya jmacoxtl: yecan vecan mocnelilmatl, ynic qujmaliujztilizia atl:

qujhuanjqujja, ca ic tlaxaqj, ca tamoca: yecan ic mochiua, ya inquijch tetech momoqj.

No inh qujmocujztilizia, ya iniptla tonacaiotl, ya jnoca, chicome cuatl; yuh ya iniptla iztacl, yecan Vixtocioatl: ic qujhuanjqujja; ya je tlamanjzti:

ca vel yecnon mochiua in tacuallj, ic vellohuatl, ic vel ololiuj. 776

Auh yuja, in mochichiuia: mamaia, tamoca, momoujtoc, momomanjtoc, mincuqallaqj, chalchihuacuaqui, xiuhcuecuechi, tamamacuchi, quetzalxajxaxaia, ocacujllohuipilli, ocacujllohuiujquilli, ocacujlolocuia, ocacujquamichimalli, cuechicuaqui, cuculaca; pepelocuqui.

---

48. Sahagún (op. cit., Vol. I, p. 198): "este cuatli era hecho de cada cosita, a manera de atole, y era muy amarillo." Durán (op. cit., Vol. II, p. 218): "el maíz cocido por el cual llamaban pozolli, para a manera de revolcado con frijol (sic) le llamaban atzqlli."

49. Corresponding Spanish text of the Florentine Codex reads: ". . . la fantasiaban . . . todos aquellos, que tienen sus granjerias, en el agua como son los que venden agua, en las canoas; y los que venden agua, en tinajas, en la plaza. . . ."

50. Corresponding Spanish text: ". . . porque dicen, que entre ellas hacen mantenimiento, a la gente pajarera para que prosperen, viviendo, y mantenidos."

51. Corresponding Spanish text: ". . . la pintaban, la unta, con color amarillo. . . ."

52. Corresponding Spanish text: "Tenia en la mano, derecha, un vaso, con una cruz: hecho a manera, de la cornezuela, en que se hace el mercado, quando van a la flauta y con cuatro cuernos, dentro dellos." See p. 3, note 44. See also illustrations of Chalchiuhtlicue and Tlazolteotl.

776 cooked, and roasted in a pot; one roasted [on the fire]; sweat-houses were heated, unguents were melted, things were cleansed.

776 And when his feast day was celebrated, once a year, at the end of the month of Izcalli, they made an image of ●796 Moctezuma; before it quail were sacrificed and incense was set forth.

[262] Tamales [stuffed] with greens[66] were prepared in each dwelling. First they were placed before the fire. Then they were eaten.

[534] And all day his old men sang, blew trumpet-shaped shells, beat drums, and sounded rattles for him.

And no one might reach his arm to the bowl, which was forbidden; nothing might be cooked. Because first were eaten the tamales [stuffed] with greens which had been brought as offerings.

And, in live coals, the children[67] roasted some snakes, frogs, small white fish, water lizards, [and] birds—whatever kind of small animal they hunted, they dropped in the hearth. Thus, they said: "Our father roasteth [something] for himself."

And when night fell, the old men, the old women, drinking wine, made libations in all [four] directions. [And] they said thus: "They give a taste of it to the fire; they refresh themselves."[68]

[535] And every four years a festival most greatly honored him—when Moctezuma danced a princely dance before the temple of Xiuhtecutli, which was called Tozzumulco.[69]

[273] And at this time everyone [including] all the children, every one of them, tasted the wine. Thus it was called [the time when] the children drink wine.

[608 431] And then they gave the children uncles and aunts, a man [and] a woman, whom those with children sought out and gave gifts. There took [the children] upon their backs, and carried them then to the temple of Ixcozauhqui. There [the parents] pierced their ears; thus they placed a sign upon them, while their uncles and aunts[70] looked on. Afterwards [304 852] all feasted.

776 [Ixcozauhqui's] ornament was [thus]: black was smeared about the lower part of his face. About his head he bore a circlet set with green stones; he wore a paper crown with blue coyanga feathers and a spray of quetzal feathers; he had a crown of arrowshafts; a crown of spear-shafts;[71] he had Auh yn iquac ilhuiquitztilloia, cexiuhtica: ipan itlamjan yecalli: quiqipletiaia in motecuçuma, ixpan tlacotonaloia, ocpaltomjlilo.

ouahquitzmalli michivtlilloia, in cecencalpan: achto ixpan quimanjliaia in tletl, çenpan qualoia.

Auh yn jneveiocan, iuh cemjlhuitl, in quicuicatia, quitocinpichilia, quiqepanacilhuja, caiacachilhuja:

auh xiuc vel ômaçquia in cemalco, tetlacoaltiloia, ynjc xmo aca mottatia, muchichinoc: ipampa in iancuican ôpualoc ouahquitzmalli, ynjc otlamanaloc.

Auh in pipiltotonti, muchintin quintlaxquiaia: yn aca cuatl: cuijatl, xaujli, axolotl, tzotl: in çaço tlein ocacic inieli, yeanac centlaqui in tlecujlli: ic mjtoaia, motlaxquja yn tetz.

Auh yn ciouac, nauhjan tlatlacoanaia in vevetque, ylamatque: iuh quitoaia, quitlatoiaujliaia yn tletl, tezcalcuaja.

Auh nauhxiuhtica, yn oc ceuca, mauistililoia, ilhuiuh: iquac motecujtotiaia yn motecuçuma, ixpan yn jteucal, xiuhtecutli, ytocaiocan tozzumulco.

Auh in jquac hy, vel muchitlacatl, vel no isquich tlacatl, quipaloaia, quitoquja, in vetli, in pipiltotonti: ic motocaiotiaia, pillacano:

yean vecâ quintlatiaia, quinmahujtiaia in pipiltotonti. Ce cioatl, ce ouqichtli, in quintemoaia pilhoaque, quintlauhtiaia; ichoantin quinmamatilhuja, vmpa quimoncaoaia, yn inopan ixcozauhqui: vmpa quinnacazzapotlaia, quinnacaxoxiujaia: inhuejo ic quinmachiotiaia, ynjc quimitta, yeiaoan, ymaujuan: çenpan tlaqualo.

In jaochichinal caxa: diltica motenujltec, chalchiuhtetele, xiuhtomamacalo, quetzalmjauaxio, mjtzoma, tlacotzitzona, xiuhtomamacuchi, atocomaspanale, no tritzile, cacujole, xiuhtomatlatlaçanqui yn jchinal, tlachieltopila.

---

66. "Una de las hierbas que se comen cocidas es llama huauhquilitl, que son blandas, es muy verde, tiene las ramas delgadillas y chicas, tiene las hojas redondas. Las tallas de esta hierba se llaman huauhtli y la semilla se llama de la misma manera; esta hierba se cuece para comer, sabe a cocido, empremiza del agua que se cuece para comerse; hácense tamales de esta hierba los cuales se llaman quilaxo." Sahagún, op. cit., Vol. III, p. 231. On p. 330, huauhquilitl is defined as Amaranthus hypochondriacus Amaranthaceae.

67. In the corresponding Spanish text, the children's parents roasted and roasted these animals. In the Historia general, Vol. I, p. 207, Sahagún writes that the old men received the entrails from the children as offerings and throw the offerings in the fire.

68. Ibid., Vol. I, p. 208; see translation in Simeon: op. cit.

69. Described as the 64th temple in Tenochtitlan. Ibid., Vol. I, p. 227.

70. Corresponding Spanish text uses the word padrino (godfather; patron or protector). Molina (op. cit.) translates the words tlatli and ouitl as uncle and aunt.

71. Chalchiuhtetelli—a strap for the head, set with jewelled disks, the front side bearing the figure of a coyanga (xiuhtototi); quetzalmamatl or xiuhtomamacalli quetzalmamaqui—a crown of feather mosaic work in the form of a coronal crown, bearing upwards; mitzquilli tlacochtequilli or fire-serpent earplugs; he carried a cape of yellow paper. Likewise he had turtle and sea-shells. His shield had pieces of turquoise and mirror-stone. He carried the staff with the device for sewing.

776

Fourteenth Chapter, which telleth of the god named Five Flower (Macuilxochitl) and Flower Prince (Xochipilli).

Equally were they worshipped as gods of the palace folk.

When people fasted, if one of us men lay with a woman, or a woman with a man, it was said: "They brought to naught their fasting through sin."

Thereupon [the god] gave them, as merited punishment, haemorrhoids, venereal sickness, boils, and piles.[72]

Therefore they would make vows to him, in order to quiet, remove, or abate the sickness.

And when his feast, which was called the Feast of the Flowers, was celebrated, first all fasted four days. Some fasted thus: they ate no chili, [and ate only] after midday, only once [a day]. Some went at midnight, and drank a gruel called "painted atolli," on which small flowers floated. [This was] "the fast of the flowers."

All who ate good things ate them only at midday. And some ate only one thing—tortillas of corn not softened by lime,[73] without chili; [this] also [they did] at midday.

On the fifth day, which was when the feast was celebrated, a man became the likeness [of the god], arrayed in [his] clothing, in which he danced; they beat the drum and sang for him.

And at midday, quail were sacrificed. All drew blood, passing straws through the tongue; and they laid as offerings in his temple, five tamales which they had made for him. These were called [bread for] fasting, [and were] very large. On them stood the flowery arrow.

Some thus offered their offering upon wooden plates, and followed it with five more small tamales with a sauce, and others [offered] two cakes made of a dough of amaranth seed and maize—one black, one red,—[instead of offerings of] rubber laid in wooden bowls.

And some [brought] toasted corn, or toasted corn mixed in honey; or S-shaped corn-cakes which were like notched staves or lightning-bolts; [or] butterfly-tortillas, tortillas of ground corn which had not been softened in lime; cakes made of a dough of amaranth seed and maize, and shaped like shields, arrows, swords, and dolls.

And here, to Mexico, from everywhere, were brought captives, called "tribute-captives," [from] all warlike [places]

Juic matlactli vnnavi capitulo: itechpa tlatoa in teutl, yn ioca: macuilxochitl, yoan xochipilli.

Çan nemitzhque, ynjc netzutiloia tecpantzinca iteuh: 776 yn jquac neçaujliloia, intla aca tequjchti ipan cioacochiz, 688 anoço cioatl, ipan oqujchochiz: mjtoaia, qujatlaçulmjctia 753 yn jneçoaliz, ic quinemacaia, tetech qujtlaliaia, qujxilhujltiaia, qujtema- [785 cocalticaia, in xochicuiztli, yn menezualiztli, tlapalanaltilizti, 834] quexilitiuiliztli, yuicpa netolos, nenezoltiloia, ynjc qujcauia, ynjc qujquaniz ynjc qujcauaoaz, cuculiztli.
Auh yn jquac ilhujqujxtililoia, ipan xochilhujtl: achtopa 776
nevilhujtl nenochiçaoalo: in cequjntin ic moçaoaia, chil- 796 cuoaia, qujnepantla tonatiuh, in tlaquaia, centlaquaia, [264] inelnepantla qujmattiuh, tlacujlolatulli in quja, xochitonti yn ipan ca, monochiçaoa:

muchi qujqua in velic, çan no nepantla tonatiuh qujmattiuh. Auh yn aca çan qujtcaviaia, in iotlaxcalli qujquaia, atle chilli: no nepantla tonatiuh qujmattiuh:

yc tlamacujlti yn jlhujqujxtililoia, iquac ce tlacatl qujmixipdatiaia, cemmaqujaia yn jtlatquj, ipan mjtotiaia, qujtlatzotzonjliaia, qujcujcatiaia:

yoan in ic nepantla tonatiuh, tlacotonaloia, neçuoaia, 776 tlacoqujxtiloia: yoã tlamanjliloia yn jteupan, macujltetl in [785] qujchiujliaia, tamalli: mjtoaia tlacatlaqualli, cenca vevey ipan ycatiuh xuchenjtl:

yn aca quauhcaxitl ynjc conmanjliaia, yoan centoqujliaia 776 oc no macuiltetl tamaltepitoztic, molloztiuja: yoan vntetl [415] tzoalli yiol poujia, no cecnj quauhcaxtica, mantivia, centetl 362
tiltic, centetl tlatlauhquj. 796

Auh yn aca iaqujtl, anoço necuzqujtl, anoço xonecujlli, papalocaxcalli, iotlaxcalli, tzocollaxcalli, tzocalchimalli, tzocalmjtl, tzocalmaquauitl, tzocalmetl:

yoan neujian calcacaloia, in mamalti ajcaxi mexico, 776 motenoa maltequjme, yn jxquich tochiaoalotoc, yn 796

ome quauxmalhuatli—two arrow shafts or wooden dolls, projecting forward above the frontal band on the side of the temples and exhibiting the ome acatl ("2 reed") or the xonecuilhuatzli (fire-drill) (see illus.). Refer: The Tonalamatl of the Aubin Collection, p. 75. Tlaxtzoyoc, in the Aztec text, should probably be tlaxcalteyoc.

72. Corresponding Spanish text reads: "heridas, con enfermedades, de las partes secretas, . . . dificultosas, podrimientos del miembro secreto, dolores, incordios, etc."

73. In corresponding Spanish text: "panes asinos."

776
796 surrounding us, brought by those [Nahuas] living on the 727 borders of warring peoples. Those who had taken these prisoners, these "tribute-captives," brought them, [and] here guards watched them.

And if one of them fled and escaped, they replaced him; they brought a man to take the place of him [who had fled].

776 Then the slaves died, when the feast was celebrated. And the garb [of Macuilmalinti was thus]: on his lips there was the imprint of a hand. His face was red and brown. He had a crown of feathers. A wing was the burden on his back, on which was the sun-disk, with quetzal-feathers at the top. The cotton cloth, which was girt behind, had red pelgas. He wore sun sandals.

Fifteenth Chapter, which telleth of the god named Two Reed (Omacatl).

[773] This Omacatl was god of Ulmmmac.[74] It was said that he invented, created, and introduced banqueting—invitations to feasts, acceptance [of invitations], the feasting of people. Though him it came to pass that men gathered together, that near relatives assembled. To one's house was brought his image, there to be held in esteem and cared for.

And also it was said that if he was not [so] held in esteem, like an invited [guest], he would become angered. He chided one in his sleep or in a dream; he said to him who dreamed: "Thou! Why dost thou not esteem me? I shall depart from thee. Already I know what I shall do to thee."

[753] And if he was sorely enraged, when one, one he often caused him to swallow hair which was upon the water and the food. And when, [so] one said, he ate the god, often he sickened. Thus he afflicted him: food stuck in his throat; the water wound about the roof of his mouth like a snake. His gullet was troubled when he ate. And if he walked, he stumbled and fell.

776 And thus was his feast celebrated. Whence are the image 796 of the god first made a sacred cylinder [of dough]: this was the home of the god. The chief man—the priest, the elder of the city—[made it], a cubit long—fat, round.

And before it was shared among them, first all ate and drank, drinking wine. And when they broke, they stabbed Omacatl in the stomach and killed him. Then the sacred roll was shared, broken in pieces, divided among them.

When it was eaten, [it was] as if a debt had been assumed, as if one were summoned to a feast, and were forgiven [the debt]. And those who accepted, when the feast ended, had paid with their stomachs and were chosen, because they had repaid [their debt].

776 And thus was he dedicated: he had a crown of feathers—ixtemoaqua, yn ixtemoa ceuqua, quijmolcaxaia yn jmoalhoan, yn jmohuiaxoan, in mohuipilhoan, mochiaxia: ajcan quijquixia, yn calpixqua, in cacalqua.

Auh inela ica daiohi, inela daohohohi, ypan tlacaquaxaia, motlacacuajoia, quijpipilaxiaxia, quijpipilaxia:

in daohoxi, vecan mixpujia, yn jquac ilhujujquilhia.

Auh yn jmochichiual: tzoniczqua, ixtlapolocaxaia, daiohipolocaxajjli, daiohiquelelli, yhujxoxaxaia, quechichiquja, vixuqui yn jdaxaxual, vixuxolxaxaxaia, ypan ixac, tzoalquanjtl, quetzalxaxaia, quetzalxaxaxaxaia, quetzalxaxaxaxaxaia, quetzalxaxaxaxaia, tzoalquilica mocuxijqui, mocuxqua, yxuxolxac, xuxolxaqua.

Jxic ontzalli capítulo, yuchqua tlamo yn teotl, yn jxuca Omacatl.

Jnqja omacatl, vixuxolxac, teotl catca, yn jnech tlamjlaia, in piqujlhoia, quijxoaia ca ixhuatl ixuctia, in cocoaxal, in tecuxuxoxaxaltiti, in tetlacuxuxaxaltiti, in tetlatlaquaxaltiti: yxuxtijo: mochiaxia yn jxuxoxolxaltia, yn jxuxoxaquijxilia xuxaxiqua, tachi vicxia, vuqua xuxiximachaxia, xuxujxlaujxia yn jxiqula.

Auh xo quijxoaia, yxuhcaxuo xuxiximachia, yn jxhuqujxua cuxuxoxaxaia, tlavelcuja: xuxchqua, xuxqo xuxchiquan xuxxia, quillaujxia, yn aquja quijxoaujqui. Jn ixhuatl tlayca yn axuo tlaochuxuxixuxxi; xjxuxolxolcaxaxia: auh ic ne xjxuxxi, ic tlein xuquan xjochixuxx.

Auh inela cuxca xuquxua, yn jquac tlaquaxia, xujxqua cuxxxi quijxoxolxaxia, in xol, in tlaquaxli iquan. Auh yn aquj yn xujxua xuquxa, xuxqua xuxxxxa: yujc quijxolxaja, xuxlxxxa, yxuquac xujlacxxxa in xol: xuxlxquxlxaxja in jquac tlaquxa: auh yxxla xxxxxj xuququxlxaxja, xuxxxxjxja, xuxlxxxquj.

Auh yujc ilhujujquilhia: yn aquja xuquxa, achxqua quichixxxia, xxxxjxxlli, yixxxjia in xxxl catca: qan tlacxxl, xxxjxxquj calpxlx, xxx xxxlxquxl yujc hujxxxc, xxl xxxxxxxx, xujxjxxx.

Auh yn xxxxx xxxxxxxx, xx achxqua tlaxlaquxlx, xxlxxx, tlaxxxx: auh yn xxlxxhujx cxxjxxxquxja, yn xxxxxl cxxxjxxxx: xjxxxx ic xxxxxxxx, xxxlxxlxquxjlx, xxxxxllxxjlx, in xxxxjxxjlli:

jquac quxquxlx, ixhujujx ic xxxxxxxxxx, xxlxxxquxjlx, xxlxllxxjlx, xxxxxxxxxxx: ca yn aquujxx xxxxxx, yn jquac ic ilhujxhujujxx, xxxxjxlxxxxxxxxxxx, xxxquxxxxx, yxxxquxx ca xxxlxxxxxx.

Jn ixxchichiual catca: ilxxxxxxxx, xxxxxxxxxx, yxx

74. Probably the temple of Ulmmmac (Ulmmmac ochcalmac) is meant. Cf. Seler: Collected Works, Vol. II, pp. 1, p. 82. Sahagún describes it as the 24th temple (Historia general, Vol. I, p. 222). The name means [illegible] the month, the house or part of the city named Ulmmmac, the people of that area, or the month house or month temple. See ibid., Vol. I, pp. 137, 197-99, 215, 221, 232, 239, and also Seler: op. cit., Vol. II, pt. 4, pp. 7-8, 9-10.

the eagle-warrior's crown, the eagle-warrior's down headband in red ocre, and a cape of nothing with snail-shells.[75] His breast ornament had snail-shells. A mirror-stone in two parts [was painted] upon his face. He was [also] accoutred with a chalky war-club; his shield was shell-covered and had paper ornaments. The device for sowing was in his hand. [He was upon] his stool of reeds and rushes.

ypanohquauhcuahtl, mamaie, yoaxihtic, ixipanoqui oyhtic 776 tecuelehquanqui ye jnnic: ye jnachichinol, yxipanoch, yxipachinol, amapaie, yolochtlaia yuan: caxca, yxoiqui, amapalli.

Sixteenth Chapter, which speaks of the god named Little Black Face (Ixtlilton), the earth-scamper (Tlalcoxcoxi).[76]

Juic cuatalli vcc capitulo yuelque datos, in teuil ye jxcoa, caxca, ixtlilton, tlalcoxcojn.

He was a god, whose temple was made entirely of wood, at a place named Tlacatecaxca. Here in his temple were many earthen bowls, covered over. These were called "his black water."

Teuil caxca, qua quauil ye jxcopan caxca, yxcoiacan 346 tlacojlocan: in vecan yxcopan, mjec ye apazoli, tlacatecaxca, mamaxca, mamaxcaxia ixtlilach.

And whenever a child sickened, they brought him to the temple of Ixtlilton. They uncovered one of the jars and had him drink "his black water." Thereupon the child became whole.

Auh ye aquijo mamaxcaxia, pilhuatl, vmpa quijcjaxia ye 776 jxcopan ixtlilton: cuaxol, quijtlapoaia ye apazoli, cuajtzia 757 ye jxtlauac; ic pazia in pilhuatl.

When one wished [to arrange] a dance, could incense, he went and brought [Ixtlilton's] impersonator to his house. It was only a man, who was accoutred [like the god].

Auh ye aquijo quijcaxia, cuapalxia in cuacuajo, yuic 776 quijcaxia yxhuan ye jxipola: qua tlacatl in cuachichinaia. 535

When they had arrived at his house, where there was to be a dance, food was eaten and drink was quaffed. After eating, Ixtlilton danced. After he had danced, he entered into the house; he uncovered the wine [which] for four days had been covered. This was called the first opening or tapping of the new wine.[77]

Ja cuacic yxhuan, cuaxia, ayaxia: xjnan tlalnepanla, 776 xilinia: ye ontlapaloc, xjnan mjnaia, ye jxtlilton: ye cuajxol, ye cuamacuah, cuitlaxi cuacalaqui: inhuan quijtlapoa 273 in xoxli, xoxilhujica tlacatlinca: ic mjnaia, tlaxcaxapoaia, vitzmana.

Ninan ye vmpaua, ye ic tlaxaua: ic cupa ontlapaja iztaca, quijtlapoa ye jxtlauac, no tlacatlinca xoxilhujica: ic mocuilhuapil in quijtlapoa:

Ic mjnaia, ic mamaxcaxia, iuia chapolli, yuala tlacatzoli, 787
yuala tlacatli, iuia tecolli, vecan vecaxc: ic mjnaia, ayc tetlaxiuia, ayc ichaxc, ayaqui chochoaqui, tlalcoxitlia: ic ayc tlacocuaxilia, in tlaxaxia, ic quijmatlaia, quijcaxcaxia, quijpapaxia: ic mjnaia tetzahua, tzompanola mamaxcaxia: ichica, in quijtlacuaxcaxia, quijtlapoaxia, ic mimaxcaia, ye ixtlaxlacal.

And when he departed for his house, they gave him a large cocoxochi called ixpaxoa (face-covering).[78]

Auh yuajc ontlapaja tochli, quachili ye quijmacaia mamaxcaxia, 292 ixpaxoa.

Thus was [Ixtlilton] indulgent: he was spread over with cinnamon; his face was covered with cocoxochi; about his lips was

Juic tlacatlilli: ic mjnaia, tlaxcaxapoaia, mjnaia quitlaxilia, ye jxcoapa: tlapapachichiaqui, quauallo, 776

---

75. For descriptions, see illustrations and text in Sahagún: Garibay: Alfabeto, Vol. II, pp. 313 and 320; and also Illustration (Charnay) —Plate 15.

The term cuachichil means the metal cups or mortar, with cuacuil shells located where the cups stood. The chichicuacuil and the cuacuajo were presumably the same or similar. Sahagún: Collected Works, Vol. II, pp. 3, pp. 79, 82, citing, in the first instance, Sahagún's Historia general, Lib. III, Appendix, cap. 5. In Lib. II (Florentine Codex, fo. 37v), Sahagún refers to "vn apazoxuelo de vn palmo en quadro, hecho en vna vida, al qual llamauan yuxtlilon, donde eran vnos vtensilios de alquimia o los parientes. . . ."

76. God of medicine. Tlalcoxcoxi (or tlalcoxcoxi) is probably formed from tlalli and coxcoxtli. Cf. Seler: Codex Laud, Vol. I, p. 16.

77. Sahagún, Historia general, Vol. I, p. 314: ". . . he que acostumbraban los mayores y hacian vino nuevo, que se llamaba ixtlilli." The Spanish text of the Florentine Codex explains that "es este ahuiatzintli, llamauan chichiquatzintli, quiere decir, este chichiquatzintzin primero, o vino nuevo." On the meaning of ontlacatl, see Sahagún, op. cit., p. 37, for a definition of ontlacatlilli.

78. ". . . donde estaua la quaxe llamau ixpaxoa: que quiere decir, cubierto de la cara porque quadraua, cocoxochi, cosa que cae hacia la frente. . . ." Loc. cit.

776 white clay. He had a spray of fine leaves, with quetzal feathers.[78] The burden on his back had [a fan of] red macaw feathers. His sun flag was upon it. The sun sign was on his paper vestment,[79] and on his shield. Red was his staff, which had a heart. He had a necklace of the claws of an animal. He had a paper branch-chest. He had conchs and shells. He had sun-shoes.

cuaqhxtomaqui ye jilonacatl, yeuaqueqan ipan itac, ocomolin ye jacamaqueqan, ocomolin ye jilonacatl, chachic yxillamapil, ueqhxtomqui, yacamacatl, cuitlaxcolli, cuitlaxcolli, ixcuitlaxcolli.

Seventeenth Chapter, which telleth of the god whose name was Left (Opochtli), whom anciently men have worshipped as a god.

This Opochtli was one of the Tlaloes. He was the god of those who lived on the water, who worshipped him.

[773] They said that he made and revealed his creations and inventions—the oar, the dart-thrower, the three-pronged harpoon,[80] the pole for propelling boats,[81] [and] the bird-snare.

776 And when his feast was celebrated, offerings of water, food, [and] wine were made; and the cane of corn plants, scented smoke, incense, and sweet-smelling herbs. These they spread before him, thus welcoming him. They shook their cattle-boards at him. They strewed toasted [pop-]corn grains like hailstones, or like scattered dice. And also his old men, his old women, and the city elders made music for him.

776 As his garb, he wore a paper crown; he was covered with black unguent—a liquid rubber covering; he had a heron-feather spray with single quetzal feathers. He wore a paper branch-chest [and] had a paper vestment [over his shoulders] with the sun-emblem.

Ynic cuatlli ynamo capitulo, yuchqui chiuac, yn itoca, yn itocac cuexa opochtli: yn quipiaxtiaia in tecuah, niman chiua.

Inic opochtli, ipan ximoaia, dabo: ualoc ixtoch cuexa, quipiaxtiaia.

Ioh quipiaia, in ixhuiui ixhuiuiti, yiuacuiti, quipiaxti, quipiaxti in tecuiui, yn ixiui, yn mixacuchalli, yn xiuitl, tlaxcuatli.

Auh yn iquac ilhuiqquitlaxia, ui, chuquilli, uctli, in tecuiui ouchiuaia: yoan cuauqhli, uachiui, yiui, cuqalli, yiuchuli, quiquauhtlaia, ic quiquauhtiquiqui: chicuacuitl ouacualchilhuia ouacuchiui quichaiuhtlaia: iuhquin uixtui pevia: ao yoi quiquiquixtiaia, yn iuxtocoan, yn jiauxtocoan, iuhquiquan.

776 Ja iuachichiui ouac: ouacuala, tlalquilli, tlaxlaxilli, ouacuaua, quauhtlajuaia, ouacuacuia, ouacuaquauia, ouacuia.

Eighteenth Chapter, which telleth of the god named Our Lord the Flayed One (Xipe totec).[82]

He was the god of the sun-shoes people, the proper god of the Zapotecs.

776 His gifts, [which] he dealt out, his particular creations, his attributes, with which he visited people, which he gave them,
753 [were] blisters, sores, smallpox, ophthalmia, malaches causing watery eyes, infected eyelashes, lice about the eyes, fogging of the eyes, filling of the eyes with flesh, whitening of the eyes,[83] cataracts, glazing of the eyes.[84]

776 Those who were affected, we men thus sickened, would 796 thereupon vow to him, saying [that] therefore we would keep on, having donned it, his skin, on the celebration of the Feast of the Flaying of Men.

All harassed persons in a company, wrapped in skins [of men], [blood-]matted, dripping [blood], gleaming [with Ynic cuatlli ynamo capitulo, yuchqui chiuac, yn itoca, yn itocac xipe totec.

Auacal iuauh: ueqhxtomaqui in ui iuauh cuexa.

yn iuquiuh yuaqui, yn iuxiuac yiuchiuiui, yn iuxiuaui: ic tecuiui, ic tecuiuia, ixhuiui quiquauaia, in tecuiuiqui, yuquichiuiui, quauaxilli, iuxacuilli, ixchichiuilli, iuxaquixtiquiqui, iuxaquichiuiui, iuxichquechiuiui, iuxaquechiuiui, iuxacuiui, iuxaxiuiui, iuxaxiuiui.

Ja aquin ipan ouchiuaia, yn ouchiuiti uquichi, yuiqui ouacualchiuia, yuiqua mixtlaia: yuic ouacuqia yn jiauia, yuic iiuac aquin, yn jiquac ilhuiqquitlaia: ouacuiuia, ouaxiquauhtlaia.

ouquiuhtlaia, ouacuia, uiquajuiuia ouacuaia, ouchiui ouacuia; chichiuacuia, chichiqui-tlaia, ouacualouacuia; in 79. Cf. Sahagún, Historia general, Vol. II, p. 199 (ueqhxtomaqui).

80. Cf. Seler (Gesammelte Abhandlungen, Vol. II, p. 591) for explanation of ouacu del ui.
81. ". . . en donde de tres puntas que se llama ouacualchili."—Sahagún, op. cit., Vol. III, p. 172. The corresponding Spanish text on Opochtli, contains the same information: ". . . a cuyo fuego, ofrecen un agua, con tres puntas, [marginal insertion, partly missing: (of) triangular leaf?] que quemaban] con que hace, a los pescados y cosas de el mantenimiento."
[501] 82. Standing in the line, they propelled it with a long pole. The Spanish text uses the same verbs, ue, which is substantially inconsistent.
83. Seler (Travelmark of the Aztec Collection, p. 103) cites Hernández (Hist. gen., Lib. III, cap. 17) to indicate that Xipe enlisted special honors in the Tezcatlipoca dances. A clear discussion of the "xipotzen y chapotzen" is given in Sahagún, Historia general, Vol. III, p. 131. See also note 80.
84. Meaning problematical.

blood], so that they sacrificed those whom they followed.[89] They fought, joining in bands against the valiant chiefs—chosen men [all].

And all [the chiefs], having taken their pleasure with wine, acted like buffoons, imitating and pretending to be warriors, unafraid of death, jostling one another, acting personally, like warriors. Here they exercised their arms [against those who were shits], and played at combat like fighters in war, some running.[90] This was [at Xipe Totec's temple] called Tozoca.

And the young men garbed like Xipe Totec, wearing human skins,[91] then went everywhere from house to house, begging. They were placed on cypress-fibre mats; bunches of [corn] were hung on their like jewels; they placed garlands on their shoulders, they covered them with flowers. They gave them to drink.

And if any women had blisters, or ophthalmia, she said: "Let me make an offering to Totec, when [the Feast] of the Flaying of Men [is celebrated]."

[Xipe's] garb [was thus]: he had the quail-painting on his face.[92] Rubber divided his lips in two parts. On his Yopi-crown[93] was placed [a head] with forked ends. He wore a human skin, the skin of a captive. He had a wig of loose feathers, golden ear-plugs, a cypress-leaf shirt. He had cactus. His shield was red and had circles. His cactus stick[94] was in his hand.

tetoca, yuiz tecuhcuachilinia: quimacalhinia, quimanjiqui in tlacatecuhtlaqueuaqueuaqueu

776
463
484
416
439
292
263
266
431
301
304
776
796
778
776
796
567

"And [they brought] vases, and incense-burners, and jars made of calabashes, spoons for stirring cocoa, and stoppers for jars.

When they entered beds with which they were at war, and were among people who were for dinner, they became like their enemies in their gestures, their hair-dress, their speech,[106] [that they might] mimic the enemy.

And if they came to an evil pass, if they were discovered, then they were slain in ambush and served up with chili sauce.[107] [But if] any—even one, even two—escaped alive, [such an one] informed Moctezuma.

This one then gave him a gift, and dashed him with his under lip-plug. He did him honor, singling him out as a valiant warrior, then making him a man of consequence.

And when there who returned arrived home, when they had come back, when they had reached and had commenced in their land, they feasted all, [especially] the merchants and the principal men, that they might make themselves celebrated.

It was called "the washing of the feet."[108] They paid great honor to the cocoa, to the walking staff, of Yiacatecutli.

In the tribal temple[109] they set it upright. They offered it an offering fowl, when they held a feast. And when they summoned people to a banquet, they always offered it an offering when they ate.

And when they commercially hacked and slew a man as a sacrifice,[110] he whom they offered was the likeness of their god, Yiacatecutli, or else one of [the following gods], or all of them, whom they worshipped—Chicomecóatl, or Chalchiuhtlicue, Atlacoyan, and Nanáhuatl, Cuchbaná, Yacapitzinca.[111] No one determined, [for] it was of their own free will, whether they should offer up one or two men.

They brought them there at the dawn market: at Acocpatzinco, they served and arranged them, turning them around many times, examining them, buying the good ones—those of good bodies, without blemish, the best ones, in good health, sick in no degree, who were marked by no marks on the body.

Such as these they slew on the feast-day, Panquetzaliztli, when the feast of Uitzilopochtli was celebrated.

Thereupon they gathered them in trappings like those of Yiacatecutli, which were assigned to them.

And before they slew them, first they let them be seen by the people. It was said: "They were dress up [like

Auh in momaxel, in pactecomal, in xiuteotli, in xopanjtl, in yn ximocuaxel:

inhuel iuxtlan, in tzacuj, in tzacutica, uelan ximoquj, uel calaquj, motlecuecupa in uechichiolinica, in tzoxica, in tlachiica quijnelachcuillaqui in chamqua.

Auh inin cuitlamqueuiqui, inin cimoqui: yxcan quijquimjxtia, quijchilaxilia: qa ocu, aqo ce, aqo yxcan ce: ell tomatlaqui quijqa, inhuel quijnelhuiaxia in tecuqua:

ic yxcan quimaca, ixquijlin, yxpopoxuhcauh, yn quijmixtiaxia, ic quijmocuitia, in tlacauh, yxcan ic aquijchia.

Auh yn jquac: calacia, yxchua: ya jollocli, yxnecuipal aquijchilaqui, yn ozlalochacica, yn ozlalxiquichilaqui: ixquijch tlacatl quijcuica, in pachoca: yxan in tlazoqua, ic momixtiaxia:

mjxua, mocuipaca, omoca quijmaxitilinia yn ixquil, yn jtlacqaia yiacatecutli:

omo in calpulco quijquetzia: achto quijtlamanjlia, yn jquac: uelaqualitia: yxan inhuca mel momocuecuexa, quijtlamanjlia in qua mochiqua yn jtlaqua.

Auh inin xon tzalia, inhuel calxiaia, quijxocia in jxcuch yiacatecutli: amoqo omo inhuacia yn mochanaia, in quijmotetzinia in chimaquijauitl, amoqo chalmocacaual, yxan acxomocuj, yxan nacatl, cochinaul, ixcapitzinco, ainc quijcacja, yiallohuaxa, yn aqo ce, amoqo yxcan, ce ainic tlacatl:

yxqui omotetzinia yn tlacamecajlica ompamaxiuc: motlaitlalilia, motlaquapanilia, quijxocuepa, quinjhiica, yn quinin quijxocuepa, yn ocan [illegible]quijqua, in tlaxiaxtli, in tlacamelaxqua, yn ocan cuexaqui, yn aile inlaciuh ce:

yuje inhuan quijmixtiaqua, yn ipan panquetzaliztli: yn yxcan iliuiquijmilinia uitzilopochtli:

yqua: quijchichinia, quijtlamamaca, intech quijtlalia yn jubqui yuechichinal yiacatecutli.

Auh yn ainmo quijmjxtia, achtqua quijmixtiaxia: mjxua quijquimaxia, ic quijmochinia in tlaxiaqua:

---

106. Cf. Tezozomoc (op. cit., p. 57): Yuecuchiqui "quijtlamamaca yquimmaxia yxcuanca, que eran tlaxcaltecas, é hechiciaba, para mofar quechemecaqui, é engañar, y ir salir, y matar (que es propio condición de Mexicanos) . . . ."

107. Cf. Sahagún (Bierige Ausgabe), p. 222 citing Mus. Bors. Coll. Mex. B. II 300.

108. Book IX of the Florentine general work shows entirely with the exception of the ceremonies. Chapter VI, entitled De las ceremonias que se hacia a los mercaderes cuando llegaban a su casa, que se llama lavatorio de pies, mentions washing sandals and hands.

109. Sahagún defines calpulli as "barrio del templo, é parroquia" (Spanish version).

110. Sahagún defines the sacrification in this manner: "Entre diaches que mataban a estos cautivos."—Historia general, Vol. I, p. 213.

111. According to the Spanish version, they were four brothers and a sister of Yiacatecutli. Sahagún (Collected Works, Vol. II, pt. 4, p. 93) recognizes Cuchbaná and Ayacapitzinca as synonyms for Yiacatecutli. "Chicomecóatl or Chalchiuhtlicue is the name of a goddess of water and the earth"; Atlacoyan is Tlazolteotl, Nanáhuatl is Quetzalcoatl.

776
796
567

gods]." Thus it was made known to the people that they would be offered up as sacrifices.

At this time they gave gifts and had a feast.

And their victims they set up in a good place, all in costly mantles which had been placed upon them. [And] they made them dance upon the roof-tops or in the market place. [And] they went singing, ending their song mocking death.

[565]

And if any were noted who were very noble, among those to be offered up as sacrifices; one skilled in songs, one who was ingenious, who was intelligent and able, the nobleman set him aside and put another in his place.

[595]

Likewise, if a woman could sew, or if she prepared food well, or made good cacao—from whose hand good food and drink came; [or if she was] a good interpreter; her also they set aside. The nobles took [such women] as wives.

776

[Yacatecutli's] array [was thus] put on: his face was covered with white pyrites. He had a tuft of hair on the front of his head like a pillar of stone and a headband with bunches of quetzal feathers. He wore golden ear-plugs. A blue knotted cloth was his cape.[110] He had a costly breech-cloth. He had little bells and shells. He wore princely sandals. His shield bore a coil pattern like a gourd vessel,[111] in quetzal feathers. His traveling staff was in his hand; he had a cane staff.

iquac ontlachtia, ontlaqualtia.

Auh yn jtlaxtlilhuan, iccac, quijnquetza: mach tlaçotlmatli, yn jxtech quijxtlalitia: ipã mjxcuiaia in tlapanco, anoço tianquizco: cujcaxtimj, tlatlabtimj yn jxcuje, yejc inmomjquequeuaia.

Auh intla aca cenac, in cenca mjxcui tlaxtlilli, yn cujcatecuiaj, in ixtlamatqui, yn jxa, yn ixtlac: quijquixtiaia in pipiltj, ipan tlacaquetzaia:

no ihcuj, intla cioatl, intla tlamachtiuhqui, anoço vellaquatchiua, vel achiua, in qualli yiauh, in qualli intlaqual ymac quiça; vellxtlamatzac: no quixtitia, quijnomtlacciocuetzaia in pipiltj.

Jn jxochichiual motlatlatlali, mizquetzvi, yxmjlo, izquatzo, inquatzone, quetzallalpile, tecujtlanacache, xiuhtlalpilli yn jtilma, tlaçomaxtle, tzitzile, cocoale, teccaque, quetzalxicalcoliuhqui yn jchimol, ytlaçaia ymac omoc, octlaxapile.

Twentieth Chapter, which telleth of the god whose name was Lord of the Four Directions (Napa tecutli).

Jxic cempoalli capitulo, ynchqa tlatua yn teuctl yn jnoca cenca Napa tecutli.

776
467

It is said that he also belonged among the Tlaloca. He was the special [god of] the mat-makers' guild, who worshipped him as a god.[112]

Juh ninjtoa, ca no iuxtech pouj yn tlaloque: ihcuac ynjxcuiaia, incatjan, in calpolloc, quinnotzaia in petlachiuhque:

And he was also [god] of those who fashioned mats of large, fat reeds, and of those who made frames of reeds.[113]

[173]

They spoke in this wise: "For it was he who first taught and showed them how to weave mats and make seats."

He it was who owned, ruled, discovered, began, and initiated [mat-making].

And they spoke thus: "For he it is who causeth the reeds to sprout and grow—the fine thin ones, the coarse ones, the long, fat reeds and the round, white ones, those with sprouts, the black ones, the sharp ones, the thin ones."[114]

776
796
467

And when it was his feast day, they spoke thus: "He washeth and bathetb men; he shaketh and sprinkleth rain upon them." [For] greatly they importuned [rain] of him.

[567]

And also each year they slew a man who represented him, a slave.

ynteuctl, ipan quijnnotzaia, tlacotli, in quijnixtiaia ynmomjxtlac:

110. Corresponding Spanish version states that "este sombrero era una manta ayal, y sobre el ayal, una red angosta de manera que ayal, se parecia, por las mallas de la red."

111. The tecuhtlacopil also has been referred to as a conventionalized serpent-head design.

112. Calpolli—clan or guild, which constituted, probably, of heads of old families, constituted democratic offices, distributed its common lands among members (Seler: op. cit., Vol. II, pt. 3, p. 65, citing Alonso de Zurita: Breve y sumaria relacion, Vol. II, pp. 70-227). In various of his writings Seler uses the word "guild" where the context suggests its suitability.

113. Corresponding Spanish text says, "Aquen estaban de juntos: que fueron inventarlo."

114. Cf. Sahagun: op. cit., Vol. I, p. 145 and Vol. III, p. 272.

They arrayed him [like the god], and he carried in his hand a green gourd vessel, in which was water. With a branch[110] he sprinkled people.

And when not on his feast day, but sometime during the year, [a devotion was paid to Napa tecuhtli,] another man impersonated him, and they decked him [similarly].

When one of the makers of mats desired that there should be a dance at his house, that he should observe [a devotion], the governors of his guild (calpulequi)[111] occurred [the impersonator of the god], who went sprinkling the people with water, since they had prayed that they might be benefited.

And when he delivered himself of his faults, [the celebrant] brought forth his goods and chattels.

He said: "May I eat not in vain, may I consume not in vain, may I use not for myself alone that which hath benefited me. May all be eaten, drunk, consumed, that a dance be danced for our god, Napa tecuhtli. May I now live, soon sleep, soon awake again. [The god] knoweth if he will give anything to me, if he willeth that anything be given."

Then he covered the impersonator with a large cotton mantle; who, thus clothed, then departed [with the calpulequi] from [the mat-maker's] house.

And then [the mat-maker] feasted all his kinsmen.

And in the guild hall where was guarded the image [of the god], the mat-makers greatly honored and cared for him. Always they spread out mats and set up seats; they shook [things] out, they swept clean, they removed rubbish, they laid fires. Always they swept [the hall] very clean, they provided incense. No rubbish lay about.

And in this manner was [the god] bedight; he was covered with a black unguent; his face had a thick coating of soot—his face was blackened, and it was spotted with a paste of amaranth seed. He wore a paper crown. His hairdress, at the back of his head, was of paper. He wore a paper breech-clout. He had bells and white sandals. He bore the shield [ornamented with] water-lily flowers and leaves. He carried a staff of long thick reeds.

Twenty-first Chapter, which telleth of those called the Little Molded Ones (Tepitoznes), who were held to be among the Tlaloca.

[The Tepitoznes] were also thought to belong among the Tlaloca.

These then named Tepitoznes were only imagined. They made them as representations of various mannikins.

And any who were palsied, cramped, stiffened, paralyzed, or any who were discomfited with drowning when the wind came over the water, would then vow that they would fashion images; that they would make representations of qujchichinaia, ynac mamimaca, xoxouja, xoxouhqui, xiuhtli: vecuac ixtimauj ol, vecuica ic tzauhlivia.

Auh yn jquac amo ilhujuh, yn qua neamajac: oc no ce quipiqualoiaia, quichichinaia:

yn jquac da ica, petlachichiqui quipeuqui ychan quitocin, quipopoloia: vecpa quivicaia, in calpolequi, tecuhtlajcuh, tecuachtlinh, inhuqui ic quitlanjlaia, ynic quimicnelia.

Yeac inhuqui ynic mecujtlaxcultiolocaia: yn aqua ic vecu ilaqui, yaxca:

quitoaia, macamo ajcmempa, macamo ajcmpolo, macamo ajmiacauj, yn necuhtlaca: ma cequalo, ma cajjo, ma cempoloj, ma ic omajxoi in tecuh napa tecutli: ma çaqua ajmoomjxia, yn ac inhuqui ajtochin, ac inhuqui ajmoaxx, inhe quimati, yn aqui ida, nechmomaquixia, quimomacavilia:

ic quimomaxia ce quachtli, yn iuipia machiuaia. ic calaqui yn ichan:

auh ic machilocati, tlatlaquaia yn jcuiniloque.

Auh yn jcalpoleo in vecpa pialoia yxipila, cenca tlamauizilaia, tlacelaia, in petlachichique, machiqui petlatoca, icpalvecca, tlacuxtlaca, tlachpana, tlacuicuj, tlatlalia, machiqui cupaloma, tlatzacalinhtoc tlatzacalinhtimanj, atle vecuac, qe tlaçalli.

Auh yuja yn machichinaia, matilloçac, mjxtilpopoca, mixtilhuj, mjchchiujticac, amacale, yiamacuexpal, amamacale, mizale, iztaccaque, aiacuçmanchiuale, aiacapilcapile.

Jnic ceumpoalli vno capitulo, ytechpa tlamaca yn inoca tepitoznoc: yn jnoan panja tlaloque.

No yeoan panj, inimch tlamjlaia yn tlaloque:

yn jc mijmaia tepitoz, qua quimomjquijia, quimimjpilaia, in ixtepe, in çaqo catle tapol.

Auh yn aquja cuecuija, cocopaoaia, quaquahtia, cocotzoaqui: aoqo yn aquja atlan miquimequi, chocati ipan tlaqueoa ada: vecuac momotolinia yujc tepiquin, in quipiquin: quetzalcoal, in chalchiuitl ycac, in tlaloc:

776
796
567
467

776
467
[356]

776

776
782

111. The corresponding Spanish text specifies "un varon de calle" (sic).
112. According to Durán, (op. cit., Vol. II, p. 223), the calpulequi were "ancianos o guardas de barrios."

2: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1950
NU7 Aztec NU7

776
532

[782]

[796
467]

[782
753]

—After Pena y Troncoso

29—Tuxpitlan tonas (Chap. 6). Cuyahuatlil pena (Chap. 11). Chiuana cuail (Chap. 7). 30—Tuxpitlan—Cordoba (Chap. 12). 31—Huaxa tonail (Chap. 19). 32—Tuxtlatan (Chap. 11). 33—Pantlitlan (Tuxtlatan) (Chap. 21). 34—Appendix, Chap. 12. 35—Appendix, Chap. 12.

3: Sahagún NU7 Aztec NU7

● 796

[For organized ceremonial, see category 116, pp. 1-39; 41-158; 161-192; 201-203.]

[them] for himself; he assumed [them] as his due, as if taking the insignia to himself.

And Uitzilopochtli was also known as an omen of evil; because from only a feather which fell, his mother Coatl ixac conceived. For no one came forth as his father.

This one the Mexicans cherished, by making offerings to him, and by honoring and serving him. And Uitzilopochtli rewarded him [who did so].[17] And this veneration was taken from there, at Coatepec, just as had been done in days of yore.[18]

Enough [of this].

quimotlaquiti, quimaxcati, quimotocaltí, iuhq'n quimotlaviti.

auh in Vitzilobuchtli: no mjtoaia tetzavitl, iehica ca çan jvitl, in temoc injc otztic in juan in coacue: caiac nex in itz.

773
539

Jchoatl in oquipiaia in mexica injc otlamanitiaia, inic oquimavizztilitia, oquitlaccoltiaia, ioan in itech muchiouia in Vitzilobuchtli. auh in ichoatl in tlamavizztilitztli ocatca, ca vmpa tlalíti in Coatepec, in juh muchivi ca ie uecauh ie inquijch.

SECOND PARAGRAPH, in which it is told how they did honor to Uitzilopochtli and thus worshipped him as a god.

And when the body of Uitzilopochtli was shaped, when they gave it form upon their feast day of Panquetzaliztli, they made it of a dough of amaranth, of fish amaranth seed, which is a spiny herb. They ground it; they pulverized it well; they crushed it into a powder and placed it in earthen vessels, as if it were an unguent—as if it were feather down. They rid it of chicalotl seeds—they cast them aside as useless; they threw away all the petzicatl [bird] seed,[19] the black-eeded amaranth, and the siftings and the corrupted material, and other small rubbish. And this they cast out and tossed away.

And when the amaranth seed dough was made, [it was] like pine [resin], like cooked maguey, like an unguent.

And upon the next day the body of Uitzilopochtli died.

And he who slew him [was] the [prior known as] Quetzalcoatl.[20] And [that] with which he slew him was a dart, painted with flies, which he shot into his heart.

IN THE THIRD PARAGRAPH VINCAN MOTENEOA in quenjn quimavizztiliaia Vitzilobuchtli, injc qujmoetutiaia.

796

Auh in Vitzilobuchtli: in iquac tlacatia in jnacaio in quitlacatiliaia injllujuh ipan. in iquac panquetzaliztli, in quichiouia tzoalli, michioauhtzoalli, ic in chicalotl, qujtecia, vel quicuechoaia, quicuechtiliaia, cazzlaliaia, cazzilia, iuhquin ezjn, iuhquin ivitl, qujtlaçaia in chicalotl, vel quitlacujcuiliaia, muchi quiquistiaia in petzicatl, in tezcacoauhtli, ioan ipolocatl, ioan in palanquj, ioan in oc cequi tlaçoltotonti, muchi quiquistiaia, muchi quichichiotzaia, auh in muchioaia tzoalli, iuhquin ocotl ie on mezcalli, iuhquin ezi.

auh in inuentleioc in miquia in Vitzilobuchtli in jnacaio.

auh in quimjctiaia ichoatl in Quetzalcoatl: auh injc qujmjctiaia ie zitl, iacatecpaio cuaquijlinia yiollopa,

17. Per omittitqin, the Real Palacio MS has omittitoque, which is perhaps more logical.
18. See M. 2.
19. Chicalotl and petzicatl cf. Anderson and Dibble, op. cit., p. 63, no. 29—which identifies chicalotl with xochicuechtli or "fish amaranth"—and 30. Seler (op. cit., p. 200) translates the phrase ooki chicalotl cuaili as den Samen der Stachelpflanze (Argemone mexicana)—gelbliche pappe.
20. See below (Appendix, Ch. 3).

796

He died in the presence of Moctezuma and of the keeper of the god, who verily spoke to Uitzilopochtli —who verily appeared before him, who indeed could make him offerings; and of four[21] masters of the youths, front rank leaders. Before all of them died Uitzilopochtli.

And when he had died, thereupon they broke up his body of amaranth seed dough. His heart was apportioned to Moctezuma.

And as for the rest of his members, which were made, as it were, to be his bones, they were distributed and divided up among all. Two [parts] were given the Tlatelulca; and [with these] two, which were as the fundament, two more were offered to the old men of the tribal temples of the Tlatelulca. And as much was given to the Tenochca. And afterwards it was divided up among them, to each in his order, each year when they ate it. [Each] year [those of] two neighborhoods[22] ate it, and also the old men of two tribal temples. And when they divided up among themselves his body [made of] amaranth seed dough, [it was broken up] exceeding small, very fine, as small as seeds. The youths ate it.

And [of] this which they ate, it was said: "The god is eaten." And of those who ate it, it was said: "They guard the god."

in imixpã miqui ic in Motecuçoma, yuã in tehua, in vel quimotzaia in Vitzilobuchtli, in vel quimonetilaia, in vel quimoveniotiaia, yuan navintin tlachcauh tlaacatiquac, inquintin inin imixpan miquia in vitzilobuchtli, auh in omjc, ninnan ic ic quixitinja, in inacaio in tzoalli, yn iollo itech povia in Motecuçoma:

auh in oc ceq' in jmimilla, in juhquj yiomjio machiotin tepan moiaoa nemamaca, omolol in maco in tlatilulca. Yoã vme in ipepochiuhca, no, omolol maco in calpolveuetque in tlatilulca, çan no iequi in maco in tenochca. auh çatepan quimomamaca, çan tecpãtiuh, cecexiuhtica in quiqua, oc xivitl ontlaxillacalli in quiqua no oncalpoltin in calpolveuetq̃. auh in quimomamacaia in jnacaio in tzoalli, cenca çan achitoton, çan tepitoton, pizlaxoto. ichoan in telpopuchti in quiquaia.

auh injn quiquaia injnoa tenquaio, auh in ic oquiquaque motenoua tequia.—

THIRD PARAGRAPH, in which are related the penances which they performed who ate of the body of Uitzilopochtli.

And great was the distress which was caused. And for one full year the youths fasted. At this time they burned much wood—each night [bringing] two thousand eight hundred pieces in honor [of Uitzilopochtli], and on the following day the same, and on the next day likewise; and pine sticks. With ten large capes [they paid for that] which burned each night. This much impoverished [them].

And each man laid out one large cape and five

IDYC EY PARRAFVO, vncã motenoua in tlamaceualiztli, in quichiaia, in quiquaia in inacaio Vitzilobuchtli.

Auh ca cenca vey in jnnetolinilix machiaia. auh vel oc xivitl in moçaoia in telpopochtin vncan mjjec in quitlatiaia in quavitl in cecenioal macuilxoxoli, omomoli inemachio, mazatla yvi, mazatla yuj, yuã oczl, matlactica quachtli in tlatla icioal, ichoual y, in ofica tlacolinjaia:

yuan cocoz quachtli, yuan macuilxoxoli tequachtli in

21. Following Mendieta (Autos citados), the Real Palacio MS has "Mahamaxaque, ya xuxuq̃, cuapiqui, yuã cuauhtlato. . . ." Complete, the passage would read: "of four fan priests, the high priests, and of four masters of the youths. . . ."

21a. Tlacallecalli: Aztec, according to Molina, op. cit. Antonio Mazatlo, however (El Calendario en la Organización Social de los Tenochca [México: Instituto de Historia, 1949], pp. 31 ssq., 49 ssq.), has "'calle' o 'barrio cálido'"; hence, possibly, neighborhoods. Cf. also his enlightening discussion of calpolli, esp. Chaps. VI-IX.

4: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1952 NU7 Aztec NU7

small capes, and then one small basket of grains of dried maize and one hundred dried ears of maize. Each man brought forth this.

This gave rise to much distress; it caused much anguish; it afflicted [them]. And some therefore fled; they therefore went elsewhere. And many flung themselves in the midst of war;[20] they cast themselves to their deaths, they who threw themselves into the wars.

And when already they were to give up their office, when already they were to finish [their penances], when already [they had served] one year, once again they set out, each one, three small capes, for buying pine sticks, and also three [more], for buying wood, from which a torch was made. All six together were needed when it came to pass that Uitzilopochtli was bathed, when the year ended.

And they bathed Uitzilopochtli at midnight. Before he was bathed, first all took part in a winding procession. And a man was arrayed as the likeness of Uitzilopochtli, [and] named Yopoch. Upon him was placed the adornment [of the god] which for one year remained upon him.

For the space of a year he wore [Uitzilopochtli's] adornment. Hence he fasted for a year, that he might wear his array. And he danced when he wore his raiment. One [dancer] went guiding him; one went ahead, before him, named master of the youths of Uitznauac. And all the [other] masters of the youths, the young seasoned warriors, and then all those who were intrepid in war, went following him, taking him in a winding procession.

At this time there was need of torches, pine torches. And when midnight had come, thereupon he went to be bathed. [The others] went lighting the way with torches, with hand-borne torches—with [torches] to light him held in the hand,—and with incense ladles held in the hand. They proceeded playing flutes for him. When they came to arrive at the Mist House, thereupon they set down the likeness of Uitzilopochtli.

And the keeper of the god then took up the water in a blue gourd vessel, and when he had drawn the water, he offered it before him. Then he took up the fresh, green reeds; four of them he put into the gourd vessel, and four times he took up water to bathe the face [of the image]; thus he bathed it.[21] And when qujtlalizia cecen tlacatl, njman ic tlaolli centzin co-pincacentli, yuan mamacuilpoalli cintli, in cecen tlacatl, quinezzizia.

Jehcatl y, in cica tlamequjpechoaia, tlaellelaztizia, tlatolinjaia, auh in cequjztin ic cholouia, ic canapa itzuivia. Yuan miequjztin in ômotlacomaiavia iaoc ômomjccatlaçaia, in ca ômomochaia in jniacan, auh in iquac in ic quicaoanque, in intequiuh, in ic ic tlatzonquizzinque, in ic ic ce xivitl oc cappa, quitlachalizia, cecîiaca chetetl tequachtli ecocolonj no ceteti quauhcoalonj cenetetl tlepilli ic muchica, in ic muchi ic nepan chiquacenteti, iquac monequaia, injc malzizia Vitzilobuchtli, injc ontlamj ce xivitl.

auh in calzizia in Vitzilobuchtli ioalnepantla, in ziazzo malzia achtopa nococoloia, auh ce tlacatl mochichioaia in jxiptla in Vitzilobuchtli, itoca Yo-buch, conmaquja, in itlatquj, in ce xivitl ipan ocatca.

yn oqujccaxiuhtili, itla aquj ic moçaoa ce xiujtl in itla aquix. auh mizotizia in oitla ac, ce qujiacâtiuh, ce ipan icatiuh, itoca vitznaoac teachcauh, auh in jnq'ch tlachcauhti, in teipochtequioaque. yoan in ic izquich in quauhtlocelutl quinocativi, coloivitivi.

Je vacanja in monoqui tlepilli, in ocupilli. auh in oacic ioalnepantla, njmâ ic ic iauh in maltiz quitla-vilitivi, matiopilitica, mactlavilitica, matlematica, qui-tlapichilitivj, in oacito in aiauhcalco njman ic ic quitlalia, in ixiptla in Vitzilobuchtli.

auh in teuhoa njman ic ic concuj in atl xuavic xicalhica, auh in ocuzopilo, atl, ixpan conmana, çiçopan concuj, in acatl xoxouhqui, celtic, navi conaquja xicalco neppa in concui atl ic qujxamja ic calzia. auh

[20] Sahagún (Florentine Manuscript, p. 208) mentions "[illegible] . . . de Tlaloc Ixtlac." Cf. Anonymous (above).
[21] See FS-4.

•796 he had bathed it, then once more he placed the array [on the image] and took it in his arms. Loudly they played the flutes for him.

And after this they bore [the image] to Itepeyac and set it in place. And when they had come to set it down, thereupon they went away; all dispersed. Then ended the fasting and penances of [those who had] for the year [been] eaters of the god.[20] in oconalti, niman ic no ceppa itlan aquj, quinzpalos, cenca quitlapichiliaia.

auh niman ic ic qujvica in itepeiac vmpa centlalia, auh in iõc ocontlalito, niman ic ic momoxaoa, vivilos, ic vncan tzonquiça, in ineçaualiz, in jotlamaceualiz, in teoquaque ce xivitl.

785 FOURTH PARAGRAPH, in which are related other burdensome works which those did who received the body of Vitzilopochtli.

Still another group at this time began to fast in the year that they were to eat the god. They proceeded in this manner each year; thus they all continued giving [way to others]. They all went on exchanging [places]; there was mutual taking over and trading [of functions]. And likewise for the priests of the tribal temples there was fasting for a year. Great also was their suffering.

Much from this did their affliction grow; great was their anguish, [which] filled their hearts and bodies. Verily, their misery surpassed [all else], since for one year there was to be fasting—since for a year they were to fast. [Each] man was to pass every night burning [wood] and providing light. Very much wood was consumed each night, as was the custom; and many broken up pine sticks, that torches might be lit. And they brought forth chili, tomatoes, salt, squash seeds, and water and food.

785 And when they had nothing more with which to 423 buy, they gave up their precious capes, that they might buy things, or else they sold their land, which they had enclosed, or which lay in others' territory, or which somewhere they had lent. And they did even so with all lands—the tribal lands, the cultivated lands, marshy lands, the dry and dusty lands, or the cut-over, cultivated fields upon which they worked.

And if one who could not bring forth the tribute

INJC NAVJ PARRAPHO vncan motenecoa in oc centlamastli tequjtl vel etic, in quichioaia in ichoantin qujcelisia in jnacaio Vitzilobuchtli.

Ie no centlamantin vncan cõpeoaltia, in moçaoa in jpan xivitl teuquanque, çan juh otlatocatiuh, cecexiuhtica, çan jc nemamacotiuh, çan necacavililotiuh, nepapatlaloticuh, nepapatlalo: auh çan ie no ivi in calpoleque, no ce xivitl in moçaoa cenca no motolinia, vel vmpa onqujça in netoliniliztli, vel totoneoa, vel chichichina yn jniollo, in jnnacaio, vel iniacacpa quiquujça in jnnetoliniliz injc ce xivitl quitlaça moçaoa, injc mocexiuhcaoa, ice tlacatl ceioal quitlaça in tlatlatia, in tlavia, cenca miec in polivi intlatlatil quavitl icxioal, yoan miec in ocotl tzomonquj, injc tlaviloia, yoi quinextiaia, chilli, tomatl, iztal, aiocochtli, yoan atl, tlaqualli.

auh in aoc tle itlacoaia, itech quioallaçaia in jtilmatzin, injc tlacoa, anoço quinamaca itlal, in quioalteaçia, anoço canah temac motlolia, canah netlacujlli quichioa: auh injc quichioaia ipampa tlalli in quexquich quichioa in calpollali, yoan in chinamitl, in chinahtlalli, in teuhtlalli, anoço xinmilli ie in ipan tequjtia:

auh in aquja in amo conieconia tequid, ic quica-

20. The meaning of the term teqpalo may be either image or impersonator. The context of this passage, in both the Nahuatl and Spanish versions, suggests the impersonator here the image or the Mint Master, where the keeper of the god (teotlac) bathed the image; either he bathed also the impersonator, or the latter bathed himself. The impersonator then took up the image.

4: Sahagun M-5 (1529-1590) 1952
NU7 Aztec NU7

773
539
796
532

—After Paso y Troncoso

1. Birth of Uitzilopochtli (Chapter I)
2. Defeat of the Centzonuitznaua (Chapter I)
3. Uitzilopochtli worshiped (Chapter I)
4. Ceremonial sprinkling of impersonator of Uitzilopochtli (Chapter I)
5. Washing after the year's service to the god (Chapter I)
6. Feasting after the year's service to the god (Chapter I)

[p. 36(C)]

4: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1952
NU7 Aztec NU7

539
796
532
782

—After Paso y Troncoso

7. Praying to Tezcatlipoca (Chapter II)
8. Fir branches on a roadside shrine (Chapter II)
9. Quetzalcoatl performing a penance (Chapter III)
10. Quetzalcoatl bathing at midnight (Chapter III)
11. The old man offering the potion to Quetzalcoatl (Chapter IV)
12. Dragging the body of the sorcerer (Chapter IX)

[p. 36 (D)]

S: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

De la astrologia

SEVENTH BOOK, WHICH TELLETH OF THE SUN, AND THE MOON, AND THE STARS;[1] AND OF [THE CEREMONY] OF THE BINDING OF THE YEARS.

JNIC CHICOME AMOSTLI, ITECHPA TLATOA IN TONATIUH: YOAN IN METZTLI, YOAN IN ÇIÇITLALTI, YOAN IN TOXIMOLPIA.

796
821

First Chapter, which telleth of the sun.

The sun: [illegible]ering eagle,[2] the turquoise prince, the god.

He shone, cast forth light, sent forth rays [of light] from himself. Hot, he burned men—he burned them exceedingly; and made them sweat. He turned men's skins brown, darkening them, blackening them, blistering them.

Every two hundred and sixty days, when his feast day came, then his festival was honored and celebrated. They observed it on his day sign, called Naui olin. And before his feast day had come, first, for four days, all fasted. And when it was already his feast day, when first he came forth, when he emerged and appeared, incense was offered and burned; blood [from the ears] was offered. This was done four times during the day—when it was dawn; and at noon; and past midday, when already [the sun] hung [low]; and when he entered [his house]—when he set; when he ended [his course].

And early in the morning it was said: "Now he will work; note the sun will labor. How will the day end?" And when night fell, it was said: "He hath worked; the sun hath labored." When he issued forth [at dawn], sometimes he was blood-colored, bright red, ruby-red. And sometimes he was quite pale, white-faced, pallid, because of the clouds—a mist, a Inic ce capitulo, itechpa tlatoa: in tonatiuh.

Tonatiuh, quauhtleonitl, xippilli, teutl.

Tona, tlanestia, motonameiotia: totonequi, tetlati, tetlaclati, teitoni: teistlileuh, teistlilo, teiacapotzo, teistlecaleuh.

Matlacpoaltica, ipan epoalli, in ilhuiuhqpiçaia: in ilhuichiuhlioia, ilhuiquiztlilioia: ipá quimattiuia, in itonal itoca naolin. Auh in aiamo quiça ilhuiuh: achtopa, nauilhuitl, neçaoaloia. Auh in icoac ie ipan ilhuiuh, in icoac iancilitzan, oalquiza, oalmomana, oalpetzini: tlenamacoia, tlatotonilo, neçoa. In hin, muchioaia nappa, cemilhuitl: icoac in ioatzinco, ioã nepãtla tonatiuh, ioan icoac in ie onmotacaloa, in ie onmopiloa; ioã icoac in oncalaqui, in onaqui, in oanmotzincoa.

Auh in ioatzinco, mitoaia: ca ie tequitia, ie tlacotix in tonatiuh; ¢pan vetzia in cemilhuitl. Auh in oioac, mitoaia: otequit, oclacotic in tonatiuh: inic oalmomana, in quenman uel eztic, chichiltic, tlapaltic. Auh in quenman, çan iztalectic çan cantontac, çan cocotiuh: içompa in mieti, in mixtaiauitl, anaçu mixpantl, mixtecaçuilli, in iaco moteca.

1. The reader is referred to the Introduction and notes, in this Appendix to this book, where from Francisco Pino y Tamayo, ed.: Historia general de las cosas de Nueva España por Fray Bernardino de Sahagún: edición parcial en facsímile de los códices matritenses en lengua mexicana (Madrid: Hauser y Menet, 1927).

2. [illegible] eagle with the fiery arrows, according to Rémi Simeon: Diccionario de la lengua náhuatl o mexicana (Paris: Imprimerie Nationale, 1885).

9: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

796 821

heavy pall, or clouds of many colors—which were spread before his face.

Eclipse of the Sun

787 821

When this came to pass, he turned red; he became restless and troubled. He faltered and became very yellow. Then there were a tumult and disorder. All were disquieted, unnerved, frightened. There was weeping. The common folk raised a cry, lifting their voices, making a great din, calling out, shrieking. There was shouting everywhere. People of light complexion[1] were slain [as sacrifices]; captives were killed. All offered their blood; they drew straws through the lobes of their ears, which had been pierced. And in all the temples there was the singing of fitting chants; there was an uproar; there were war cries. It was thus said: "If the eclipse of the sun is complete, it will be dark forever! The demons of darkness will come down; they will eat men!"

[785]

Tonatiuh quaia.

In iconac machiua, y, chichilihtiztomaua: aoc tlaca manj, aoc tlaca ca, ca motecuepiuanj: ofca tlacoçauia: niman ic tlatzomonj, tlaçal comonj: neacomanalo, necomonjlo, nemauhtilo, nechoquililo, tlachoquiztleua in macoualti: netenujteco, netempapaujlo, tlacacaca, tlacacazalo, tzatzioa: oiccalli moteca, Tlacatzalmicqa, malmicoa, neçoa tlacoquistilo: nemacazteco: ouh in teteupan, xauchcuico, tlachalantoc, tlacaoacatoc: ic mitoaia, intla tlamiz, in quale tonatiuh: cenplaiouac: oahcmauqui, in tzizitzimi, tequaquini.

1. Theoretically, however, the corresponding passage in the Mexicanos are similar (Appendix to this volume), where the phrase is translated "Sacrifices de cuitlaxcos blancos y cuyos blancos."

-2-

5: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

Tenth Chapter, wherein is described the disposition of those who kept watch when the new fire appeared.

At nightfall, from here in Mexico, they departed. All the fire priests were arranged in order, arrayed in and wearing the garb of the gods. Each one represented and was the likeness of perhaps Quetzalcoatl, or Tlaloc, etc., or whichever one he went representing. Very deliberately, very stately, they proceeded, were spread out, and slowly moved. It was said: "They walk like gods." Thus, in deep night, they arrived there at Uixachtlan.

And the one who was the fire priest of Copulco, who drew new fire, then began there. With his hands he proceeded to bore continuously his fire drill; he went about making trials with his drill, the fire-maker.

And when it came to pass that night fell, all were frightened and filled with dread. Thus was it said: it was claimed that if fire could not be drawn, then [the sun] would be destroyed forever; all would be ended; there would evermore be night. Nevermore would the sun come forth. Night would prevail forever, and the demons of darkness would descend, to eat men.

Hence everyone ascended the terraces; all went upon the housetops. None remained in their houses, on the ground below. And women with child put on masks of maguey leaves and took up their maguey-leaf masks. [They] placed [the women] in granaries, for they were looked upon with fear. It was said and claimed that if, truly, the new fire were not drawn, these also would eat men; [for] they would be changed into fierce beasts.

And the small children they likewise masked with maguey leaves. In truth, none [of them] could sleep, or close, shut, or [even] half-close their eyes. From time to time their mothers and fathers were [there with them]; they kept waking them, punching and nudging them, calling out to them. They woke, rubbed, and nudged them. Because if they were to Inic matlactli capítulo, vncan motenoua, in tlatecpanilizti: in quipiaia, inic ilcuic tletl necia.

Ic tlapoiaoa, in nican oncoia mexico: motecpantiuia muchimi in tletlenamacacac, muchiçiuhtimi, omonaquia in intlaqui tetzu: in cecenisca ipan mizenaia, quinmixiptlatiaia, in aço quetzalcoatl, anoço tlaloc et' in çaço ac ichoatl ipan quintiuia, cenca çan iislic, cenca çan iuian in iztiuiia, onotiuiia, mantiuiia: motenoua, teumenemi, inic uellaquauhiova onaci, vmpa uixachtlã.

Auh in ichoatl copolco tlenamacac, in tlequauhtlaqui: niman nican quipeoaltia, in imac quimamaltiuh itlequauh: quichecotiuh ica in imamaliooca, in itlaçaloca.

In iqoac, y, oiooac, cenca nemauhtiloia, tlatenmachoia: iuh mitoaia, quilmach intlacamo, uel vetziz tlequauitl: vncan cempoliooaz, centlamoaz, centlaioaz, aocmo ualquiçaz in tonatiuh: ie ic centlaioca, ualtemouaque ih tzitzitzimi, tequaquisi:

ic muchi tlacatl itlapanco tlecoia, netlapantemaloia, socac tlalchi, tlatzinda, cali mocaoaia, motlaliaia. Auh in ootzti, momexaiacatiaia, inmemexaiac quicuia, yoan cuezcomac quiotlaliaia: ipampa mauhcaitoia, iuh mitoaia, quilmach intlaca uel uetzi tlequauitl: no ichoatzin tequaque, motequiçcepaque.

Auh in pipiltotõi, no quinmemexaiacatiaia: niac vel oncochia, oncopia, onmiqiquia, onjurnoaloaia: çan ic cate in innãhoaa, in intahoã, quimixiticate, quintipinitiicate, quintilotiicate, quintzatzilitiicate, quimixitiia, quintipinia, quintilos: ipampa intla oncochizque, quilmach quiquimichtin ualcuepaque, quimichtiaque.

S: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

372
793
796

sleep—it was thought—they would turn into mice; they would become mice.

Hence was heed paid only one thing; there was unwavering attention and expectation as all remained facing, with neck craned, the summit of Uixachtecatl. Everyone was apprehensive, waiting until, in time, the new fire might be drawn—until, in good time, [a flame] would burst forth and shine out. And when a little came forth, when it took fire, lit, and blazed, then it flared and burst into flames, and was visible everywhere. It was seen from afar.

[185] Then all the people quickly cut their ears, and spattered the blood repeatedly toward the fire. Although [a child] still lay in the cradle, they also cut his ears, took his blood, and spattered it [toward] the fire. Thus, it was said, everyone performed a penance.

[182] Then [the priests] slashed open [the captive's] breast. In his breast [cavity] the new fire was drawn. They opened the breast of the captive with a flint knife called iequanac. Etc.

Ic ça miscauja, mocemmati in ontlachieloteoc, in omizzoteoc, in ōnequechanotoc, uixachtecatl iicpac: iquich tlacatl vmpa ontlatenmati, ōmotemachia, in quēmanja uetzi tlequauitl, in quēmania oalcueponi, oalpetzini. Auh in icoac, oquenteltzin vel uetz, in onopiztz, in oxotlac: çatepan ic cuetlani, cueponi, nouiian ōnoti, oalitto in vēca.

Niman ic muchi tlacatl monacaztectiuetzi, contlatzizicuinilia ixquichcapa in tletl: in manel coçolco onoc no connacaztequi, concuilia iniezço, contzitzicuinilia in tletl: ic mitoa, ca muchi tlacatl tlamaceoa, ic conchetequi, in jelpan ontlequauhtlaxoc, conelcoionja in malli, ica tecpatl: itoca isquaoac. etc.[a]

5: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

Eleventh Chapter, in which is told what they did when it was seen and was evident that the new fire burst out.

Inic matlacpoloce capitulo, vncan mitoa: in tlein quichioaia, in icoac omottac, onez, in ocuepon iãcuic tletl.

And then everyone—the priests and fire priests—took the fire from there. [Having come] from all directions, the fire priests of Mexico had been sent there, charged with the task, as well as those who had come from distant [places] everywhere—messengers and runners. For these were all only chosen ones, strong warriors, valiant men, picked as best; the fleet, the swift, who could run like the wind. Because through them they could quickly have fire come to their cities.

Auh quinicoac, isquich tlacatl vmpa tlecui, in tlamacaxque, in tletlenamacaque: inic ic nouiiampa vmpa oioaloque, oisquetzaloque, in mexico tlenamacaque, yoan in ic nouiian veca oaleoa, titlanti, tlaioaltin: ca çan much ichoan in pepenaloia, chicaoaque, in oquichtin, in tiacaoan in tlatzonanti, in painanj, in tlaçani, in iubqui hecatoca ic motlaioa: ipampa inic iciuhca, caxititiuetzizque tletl imaltepeuh ipan:

793
796
372
202

First, the fire brand was prepared and adorned. It was called tlepilli. And this the fire priests brought. Before [doing] anything else, they took it up, direct, to the top of the temple [pyramid], where was kept the image of Uitzilopochtli, and placed it in the fire holder.[16] Then they scattered and strewed white incense [over it]. And then they came down, and, also before [doing] anything further, they brought and took it direct to the priests' house, the place named Mexico.[17] Later, this was dispersed, and fires were started everywhere in each priests' house and each tribal temple; whereupon it went everywhere to each of the young men's houses. At that time all of the common folk came to the flame, hurled themselves at it, and blistered themselves as fire was taken. When thus the fire had been quickly distributed everywhere among them, each one laid a fire, and was quieted in his heart.

ca achtopa ic nenemachtiloia, muchichioaia in tlecuioani: itoca tlepilli. Auh ieehoatl, ic quioalaxitiaia in tlenamacaque: oc ie achto, vmpa quitlecauiaia, quitlamelaoaltiaia in iicpac teucalli: in vmpa mopieia ixiptla vitzilobuchtli, tlequazco contlaliaia: nimã ic contepeoa, contoxaoa in iztac copalli. Auh niman ic oalteemo, oc ie no achto, vmpa quitqui, quitlamelaualtia in calmecac, itocaiocã mexico: ic çatepan moiaoa, tletletlalilo in nouiian cacalmecac, cacalpuico: niman ic ic iauh, in nouiian tetelpuchcalli. Ie vncan in isquich onxoquiui, onmotepeoa, ontapaliui maceoalli, in motlecuilia: icoac ic nouiian, tepan moiaoatiuetzi in tletl netletletlalilolo, neioiollalilo.

793
796
372

This same all the village fire priests did. That is, they carried the fire and made it hasten. Much did they goad [the runners] and make them hurry, so that they might speedily bring it to their homes. They hurried to give it to one another and take it from one another; in this way they went alternating with one another. Without delay, with ease, in a

Çã no iuh quichioa, in isquich altepeoa tlenamacac: inic quitquia, quinenemitiaia tletl, cẽca quitototzaia, quimotlalochtiaia: inic iciuhca caxitizque inchan, quimoenamacatiquiça, quimocuicuilitiquiça: ic mopapatlatiui. Amo uecauh, amo machiztli, çan isquich cauitl, y, in conaxitiaia, in quicueponaltiaia: çan achiccaca in nouiiampa, cuecuepocatimoteca

16. "Vn candelero, hecho de cal y canto, puesto delante del ydolo"—corresponding Spanish text.

17. Sahagún, in the corresponding Spanish text, then explains this distribution: "I de alli tornaui y llevauan al aposento de los mayordomos, que se dizen mandones: y despues a otros aposentos, de los dichos mandones, de ydolos: y de alli tornauan, y llevauan todos por ministros, de la ciudad."

T93
T96
372

short time they caused it to come and made it flare up. In a short time everywhere fires burst forth and flared up quickly. Also there they first carried and brought it direct to their temples, their priests' houses, and each of their tribal temples. Later it was divided and spread among all everywhere in each neighborhood and in the houses.

tletl, cuecuepocaiquiça: no vmpa achto quinquiniquiça, quitlamelaoaltiuetzi in iteopan, in iocalmecac, in iocacalpulco: çatepan ic moiaoa, tepan cõmani in nouiian tlãtlaxilacalpan, yoan in calpan.

CONTINUED ON NEXT FICHE

Twelfth Chapter, in which is told [the manner of conduct of] all the people when the new fire was taken. And, when this took place, everyone renewed his clothing and all the household goods.

Then, at this time, all renewed their household goods, the men's array, and the women's array, the mats—the mats of large, fat reeds,—and the seats. All was new which was spread about, as well as the hearth stones and the pestles. Also at this time [the men] were newly dressed and wrapped in capes. A woman—[such as she] dressed newly in their new skirts and shifts.

Thus it was said that truly the year newly started. There was much happiness and rejoicing. And they said: "For thus it is ended; thus sickness and famine have left us." Then incense was offered; [quail] were decapitated, and incense was offered. They grasped this incense ladle, and raised it in dedication to the four directions in the courtyard. Then they cast it into the hearth. Thus was incense offered.

Thereupon amaranth seed cakes overspread with honey were eaten. Then all were bidden to fast, and [it was ordered] that no one should drink from the time that it was completely light until it came to be considered midday. And when noon came, then captives and ceremonially bathed ones died. Then all rejoiced and there was feasting. Then once again fires were newly laid and placed.

And [as for] the pregnant women, who had been feared, if any of them then gave birth to and bore a child; if a boy was born as her child, they named him Molpilli, Xiuhtlalpil, Xiuhtzitzqui, Xiuhtli, Texiuh, Xiuhelatlac, Quetzalxiuh, Xiuhquen, etc. And if [it was] a girl, Xiuhnenetl, Xiuhcue, Xiuhcoçol, etc.

And when, in the time of Moctezuma, our years were bound, he ordered that indeed everywhere should be sought a captive whose name [contained the word] xiuitl. Wherewhere [he was], this one was to be seized. And one was taken—a man from Uexotzinco, a well-born man. He was called Xiuhtlamin, Inic matlactlomome, capitulo, vncan mitoa: in quenin in isquich tlacatl, in icoac omocuic in iancuic tlell: auh in icoac, y, muchi tlacatl, quiilcuilloia in itlaquen, yoan in isquich calitlatquitl.

Niman icoac, isquich iancuiia, in calitlatquitl: . oquichtlatquitl, in cioatlatquitl, in petlatl, in tolcuetli, in icpalli: muchi iancuic in motetreca, ioli in tenamastli, in tezolotl. No iquac iancuic nequentilo, nelpililo in tilmatli: in cioatl, iancuic ommaquia, in incue, in inuipil. 372

Ic mitoa, ca nel iancuic onpeoa in xiuitl: papacoa, netlamachtilo: yoan quitoaia, ca ic oquiz, ic otechtlalcaui in cocoliztli, in maianaliztli. Niman ic cocopaltemalo, tlacotonalo, tlenamaco: concui in tlemaitl, nauhcampa coniiaoa in ithoalco, çatepan contema tlexicco, inic otlenamacoc copalli: [782] nimã ic ic necpan tzotzoonalqualo, vncan ic neçaoaliztlalhuilo, inic aiac atliz, ic centlathuiz: quincenmomatiuiia in nepantla tonatiuh. Auh in oacic, nepantla tonatiuh, niman ic miqui in mamalti, yoan tlaltilti: quinicoac cenpapacoa, tlãtlaqualo: icoac oc ceppa ikcuican netlẽtlecuiltilo, netlẽtlecuillalililo. [785]

Auh in oimacaxxoia ootzti, intla aca icoac omixiuh, otlacachiuh: intla oquichtli iconcuh otlacat, quitocaiotiaia molpili, xiuhtlalpil, xiuhtzitzqui, xiuhtli, texiuh, xiuhelatlac, quetzalxiuh, xiuhquen. Etc.[a] Auh intla cioatl, xiuhnenetl, xiuhcue, xiuhcoçol. Etc.[a] [551]

Auh in icoac, ipan muchiuh motecuçoma, tonaiuhmolpili cenca nouiian ic tlamaoati, inic temokos malli: in iioca xiuitl, in çaço campa itl anoc. Auh oc axioac ueiptzincatl, tlaçopilli: iioca xiuhtlamin, tlatibulco malli muchiuh: in tlamaoj iioca itocain, auh ic tocaiotiloc, ic notzaloc xiuhtlaminiani: ca ichcatl 796 372 782

31

[See cat. 116, p. 27 — Analyst]

796
372
782

and became a captive at Tlatilulco. The captor was named Itzcuin, and henceforth he was known as and called "Captor of Xiuhtlamin."[19] For on the breast of his captive fire was drawn by the drill, and all his body was consumed in the fire. And they made [the victim's] image of pure amaranth seed dough, so that it might represent him; they set cooked grains of maize upon it, so that they could give it to the people to eat.

ielpan uetz, in tlequauitl imal, muchi tleco tlan in jnacaio: auh ça tzoholli, inic quixiptlaioti, in ipan quipouh: tlaolpacoatli ipan quitlatlali, inic quitequalti.

19. In the corresponding Spanish text, Sahagún writes: "Los tomaba un hombre de nombre, muy guerrero, el cual se decía, xiuhtlamqui y le tenía en la guerra, un cuchillo de dardillos, que este cuchillo llamaban por lo cual después, le llamaron a él, xiuhtlamqueuqui. . . ." In Jones, op. cit., p. 79, the passage is translated: "And about him an elder Mexican and Tlatelolcan, elder Mexican warriors Xiuhqui, Xiuhtlamin and Mexuen, and Tlatelolcan, due some Kriegsgefangenen der Mexiker nahm, der Name hier und der dementsprechend der Mexica erhielt und Xiuhtlamqueuqui genannt wurde."

5: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

821
532
372
796
782

—After Paso y Troncoso

13. Ice, snow, and hail
14. Storing food against famine
15. Delivering children into bondage
16. Boring new fire on the breast of a sacrificial victim.
17. New fire in the temples
18. New fire taken to homes
19. Breaking and throwing away household goods at the end of the fifty-two-year cycle

[p. 38 (E)]

532
[796
643]

[366
262]
415]

[643 701]
431]

—After Paso y Troncoso

93, 94. Ceremonies on election of a new ruler (Chapter 18). 95, 96. Goods displayed in the market place (Chapter 19). 97-100. Gifts of the ruler to successful warriors (Chapters 20 and 21).

[p. 36(O)]

[p. 36(N) is blank]

Appendix A

Continuation of the Fourth Paragraph, Chapter Fourteen[1]

In the priests' house of Mexico, there were established and congregated all the keepers of the gods, the fire priests, and [other] priests, the city's devout ones. There they waited [lest] perchance the ruler might require something—perhaps inquire about something, mayhap of something they had seen in all the places where debts [of sacrifice] had been paid upon the mountains and upon the water; there where, afar, were the small pyramids where each night they performed penances.

Calmecac, mexico, vncan tecpanoaya, vncan mocenquixtiaya in ixquichtin teupixque yn tlenamacaque, yn tlamacazque yn itlamaceuhcauan catca altepetl, conchiaya yn aço itla ic quintemoz tlatoani, aço itla ic tlatlaniz, aço itla quitta yn ompa yzquicanomoxtlauha yn tepeticpac, yoã atlan, yoan yn ompa veca caca momoztli, yceceyoual yc tlamaceua. 346 793

For these who were fire priests and other priests, when they came forth well into the night, and when, as was said, the shell trumpets were newly blown, first drew their blood before the devil, with thorns, the spines of the maguey; then each one separately set forth, going quite naked. They went [out] having put about them only their pouches with cords,[2] which went filled with dyed, powdered tobacco—this tobacco mixed with a black [dye]—which they chewed as they went. And one proceeded taking with him an incense ladle in which fire went enclosed; and a small cotton bag in which was incense; and pine wood; and he carried his fir branches in his arms, as well as his spines covered with blood, and a shell as his trumpet. And even though it rained hard or was freezing, just so he went.

Ca y iehoanti tlenamacaque, tlamacazque catca yquac quiçaya yn tlaquauh tlapoyaua, ỹ mitoaya yancujcan tlatlapitzalo, achto miçoya in ixpan tlacatecolotl yca vitztli, ỹ metl yuitzo, niman ceceyaca quiçaya, çan petlauhtiuja, çan ixquich onactiuia yn intoxi yntlamecayouh vncan tentiuh yaqualli yehoatl im piçietl tlanelolli tlilli yn quiquatiuja, yoan quitquitiuia tlemaitl tzacuhtiuh vnca yetiuh tletl, yoã xiquipiltontli yc icatiuh copalli, yoã ocotl, yoã quiçiacauia yn iacxoyauh, yoan in iuitz yeheço, yoan tecuciztli yn itlapitzal ỹ manel cenca quiauiz, anoço ceuetziz yuhca viya. 793 [795] [791] [276 415]

[534]

When he reached whatsoever mountain he was to perform his due upon, then and there he paid his debt [of sacrifice]. He offered incense; he spread out his fir boughs, his bloodied maguey spines. He listened for the time when trumpets were to be sounded in Mexico, at midnight. And when the trumpets had been sounded in Mexico at midnight, then the priests, they who did penance, blew trumpets everywhere there upon the mountains where they paid their debts. Then they turned back, sounding trumpets as they went, in the dawn, when they again entered the priests' house.

yn iquac yn oacic campa tepetitech tlamatiuh nimã yc vncã moxtlaua, tlenamaca, contema yn iacxoyauh, yn iuitz yeheço, quiualcaqui in queman tlapitzaloz mexico y youalnepantla, auh yn otlapitzaloc mexico youalnepantla, niman yc nouian tlapitza yn tlamacazque yn tlamaceuhque yn ompa tepetitech in campa omoxtlaua, niman valmocuepa tlatlapitztiujtze ye tlatuinauac, y ualcalaqui calmecac. 796 783 [534]

1. See note 11, Chapter 14.

2. Leonhard Schultze Jena, in Gliederung der Alt-Amerikanischen Volks in Familie, Stand und Beruf (Stuttgart: W. Kohlhammer Verlag, 1952), p. 330, says of the form tetoni: "Da es im Text dreymaigen bezeichnet, die den Copalbeutel tragen, wird es sich um Priester handeln." The term demonyonio he translates (ibid., p. 161), "schlaut sie mit einer Schnur."

And at the time when the captive was to die, then

782 Moctezuma presented the captor a device [with]
293 quetzal feather cups so that possessing it he might 727 slay him as a sacrifice. It did not belong to him; but having it he slew the victim, and he danced with it. He had his rattle stick with him, or the obsidian butterfly or quetzal feather cup [device] set with gold, which he carried upon his back. Possessing it, he slew him as an offering.

nimã ye ic quimaca im moteccuiçoma in tlauiztli quetzalcomitl inic ypan tlamictiz. amo uel ytech pouia çan ipan tlamictia. ypan mitotia ychicauaz yetiuh. anoço itzpapalotl. anoço quetzalcomitl teocuitlayo in q'mama in ipan tlamictia.

796 And the captive he then took there where he was 727 to die, upon the round sacrificial stone; he proceeded to take the captive by the head, and lead him. up there where they would slay him in the gladiatorial sacrifice. The one known as Old Wolf led him by the hand—he in whose care lay the captives, as if they had become his sons. And then he gave [the victim] his four pine cudgels, which he would hurl at his adversaries. And he gave him his shield, and his war club—not edged with obsidian blades but only pasted with feathers.

auh i yeuatl malli. niman ic quiuica in ompa miquiz temalacac icpac cantiuh contlehcauia in oncan q'uahuanazqz malli. ymac concaua ytoca cuitlachueue. in imac onacitimanca mamalti iuhq'nma ypilhuã quinchiuaya. Auh niman cõmaca ỹ yocotzonteuh nauhtetl inic q'momotlaz tlauauanq'. yuan q'maca ychimal ymacquauh. amo ẹenitzyo çan tlapotonilli.

[793] And those who contended against him in gladiatorial sacrifice were the fire priests and the [other] priests. And the captor remained standing below; he stood regarding his captive. He who died was indeed before [his captor].

Auh y yeuantin in teuauanaya in tletlenamacaqz in tlamacazqz. auh in tlamani çam moquetzticac tlatzintlan quitzticac in imal. uel ispã im miq'.

[273] And after this, when the Old Wolf had arrayed the captive, thereupon he went, and gave him to drink wine which was called the gods' wine. He took it to him [in] a vessel [painted like] reeds and edged with feathers. When [the victim] had drunk, then he raised [the wine] in dedication [toward] where the sun came forth. So [Old Wolf] did with all the shields and war clubs; he raised all of them as offerings which he gave the captive. When Old Wolf had offered the captive [wine] and made him drink it, thereupon the slayer of the sacrificial victim went forth in order to sacrifice him. [He had] his shield and his war club edged with obsidian blades and covered with feathers.

Auh ỹ ye iuhqui in oçic-ncauh malli in cuitlachueue, niman ye ic yauh quitiz in octli mihtouaya teooctli. inic quitq' acatecomatl tlatempotonilli. in õya. niman ic coniaua in ompa ualquiça tonatiuh mochi iuh q'chiua in chimalli im macquauitl moch coniaua. inic cõmaca malli. auh in oconiti cuitlachueue. niman ye ic yauh in tlamicti inic q'uauanaz ychimal ymacquauh yetiuh tenitzyo tlapotonilli

And when he had drunk, then he struck at the captive, who likewise struck back. And if the captive were of stout heart, if he were verily a chieftain, really manly, perhaps three or four men fought him. Then, when he fell, they indeed slew him as a sacrifice. And if he were not manly, not a chieftain, then he cast himself there on the round sacrificial stone, and did not fight. Forthwith was he stretched out upon his back, and then they gashed open his breast, seized his heart, and raised it in dedication there [toward] where the sun came forth.

auh in õya. niman ic cõuiteq' im malli. auh no q'ualhuitequi auh intla yollo chicauac im malli intla uel tiacauh y uel oq'chtli. aço yey tlacatl anoço nauitlacatl in q'moychecultia. q'niquac uel q'mictia in ouelhuetz. auh intlacamo oq'chtli intlacamo tiacauh çan niman õmoteca in oncan temalacac amo ontlachecoua. çan iciuhca ommaquetztiteca niman ic conelteq' concuilia in iyollo coniauilia in tonatiuh. ompa ualq'ça

And after the sacrifice was offered, thereupon those who had made the sacrifice, who had slain [the victim], the priests, each one danced with the heads [of the captives], carrying them with them. And Old Wolf wept at this; he wept for his sons who had died.

And the captive[s] they then flayed; when it was dawn they were already flayed. [They] stood wearing [their] skins. Of each captive who died, their skins were all worn. Then they assembled at Yopico, in the courtyard of the devil. They had their shields, their war clubs, and their rattle sticks. And also came together the great chieftains, the battle-drunk, all important personages. With them were their staves; the pine staves lay in their hands, and they went carrying them.

And when deep night was overspread, they did not take upon their wrists their shields, but took only their staves, as they awaited the time that the sun would burst forth. And when he came forth, thereupon the tototecti placed themselves in order—verily, all of them. And the chieftains, upon this, also placed themselves in order and contended against the tototecti. Perhaps they faced each other in the four directions. And then the chieftains started forth and fell upon the tototecti; they tickled their navels. Very swiftly they tickled them, and then they took after them and went skirmishing with them there in the place where they were, a place called Totectzontecontitlan. There the chieftains turned back; their only task had been to leave them there.

And when this had taken place, thereupon the tototecti visited house after house. Nowhere did they omit a house or one's home. Indeed everywhere they entered; and the common folk, seasoned to this, awaited them in order to offer them the things with which they expected them—bunches of ears of maize, tortillas made of uncooked maize, and tamales of maize, amaranth seed, and honey mixed together. For the whole day they went from house to house, [thus treated with] esteem.

And the next day, or [during the next] twenty days, wherever [one of them] went, perhaps in the market place, he begged, and that which he begged he gave to the owner of [the dead] captive. He gave him his share, perchance, of chili, salt, or staves, or pine wood, or grains of maize—all which lay in the market place. Each day [he did] the same.

Auh i ye iuhqui ommicouac. nimã ye ic mihtotia 796
in tlauahuanqz in otemictiqz ỹ yeuantin tlamacazqz. 727 in ipan mihtotia cecentetl in tzontecomatl intlan 793
caana. Auh i yeuatl cuitlachueue. niman ye ic choca
q'nchoq'lia ỹ yehuãtin ypilhuã in omicqz.

auh i yeuatl malli nimã ye ic q'xipeua in tlathui ye totec, [çan moquetzticacqui][5] in ieuayo. in isquichtin omicqz mamalti moch onneaquilo in imeuayo. oncan mocenquistia i yopihco in diablo itualco.
inchimal immacquauh yetiuh inchicauiztopil. auh
no mocenq'stiaya y ueuey tiacauan yetiui. i yaopan miuintiani. uel isquich tlacatl. inquauh yetoc. yeuatl
in ocoquauitl immac onoc in quitquitoqz.

oc uel youã im moteca immac tlacuistoqz atle 796
inchimal çanio in quauitl quitq'toqz. quichistimani
in quemmã ualquiçaz tonatiuh. auh in oualquiz
niman ye ic motecpana in tototecti. uel isq'chtin. Auh in tiacaua nimã ye ic no motecpana q'misnaqictimo-mana in tototecti. aço nauhimapa. in motztimani. auh nimã ye ic ompeua in tiacaua ỹuicpa õuetzi in tototecti q'moncotonilia in inxic ça uel yciuhca in oq'mocotoniliqz nimã ye ic q'ntoca q'micaltiui ompa
q'mõmana in innemanaya in itocayocã totectzontecontitlã oncan ualmocuepa in tiacaua. çan tequitl q'mocaua.

Auh i ye iuhq' nimã ye ic ui in tepan cacalaquizqz 796
in tototecti. acan quimocauia in calli in techã. uel 431
nouian calaq̃ auh im maceualli ye iuhca ỹyollo quin- 262
chie. in q'mmaca in inchiel. ocholli. uilocpallascalli.
ytzocoyouh. nenepanolli. çan cemilhuitl in tepanca-calaq' in ontlaçotlalo.

auh in imoztlayoc anoço y cempoualloc. ça campa quiquiça aço tianquizco. tlatlaeuã. in queheua cõ-maca im male. q'xelhuia. aço chilli. iztatl. aço quauitl.
aço ocotl. anoço tlaolli i ye mochi tianquizco onoc.
momoztlae yui.

5. This phrase is almost illegible in the original. We have reproduced what the words appear to be.

●796 And when they had come to [the end of] the twenty days, thereupon they went to Yopico. There they laid away their skins; then they cast them down in a cave, a very deep place, and there buried them.

ṣuh in oociqz cempoualilhuid nimã ye ic ui i yopihco. ompa quitlalia in imeuayo niman contepeua oztoc uel huecatlã ompa contoca.

Nineteenth Chapter. Here is told how the Spaniards commanded the Mexicans to observe the Feast of Uitzilopochtli; yet this came to pass not in the presence of the Captain, for at that time he had gone to the coast where Pánfilo de Narvéz had arrived.

And thereafter [Pedro de Alvarado] [1] then asked, as to the Feast of Uitzilopochtli, how the festival [was celebrated]. He wished to marvel at and see how and in what manner it was done. Thereupon Moctezuma issued the command. Those of his vassals who had access to him brought forth the word.[2]

And when the behest had come forth from where Moctezuma was imprisoned, thereupon the women who had fasted for a year ground the amaranth and prickly poppy[3] seed there in the temple courtyard. The Spaniards appeared, decked with great war array; they were dressed in battle gear, bedight as warriors. They came into [the group], walked among them, encircled them, looked at each one—stared into the faces of the grinding women. And after this, when they had come to see them, they then entered the great palace. As is known, they say that at that time they would have slain them if many of us warriors should have been assembled.

And when the Feast of Toxcatl had arrived, toward sundown they began to give man's form to the body [of the amaranth seed dough image of Uitzilopochtli]. They formed it, and gave it the look and appearance of a man. And of this one they fashioned the body only of a dough of amaranth seed and of fish amaranth seed.[4] They formed him on a framework of twigs—[the framework of] Uitzil [opochtli; one laid in] angles.[5]

Injc caxtolli onnavi capitulo: vncan mjtoa in quenjn Españoles, quinnaxotiquc Mexica: injc quj-chioanque iiijlhujuh vitzilobuchtli: auh inin amo ixpan muchiuh in Capitan: ca iquac in vmpa ia xtenco injc acico Panphilo de narbayez.

Auh çatepan, njman ie ic qujtlanj in jilhujuh vitzilobuchtli, in quenamj ilhujuh, qujmaviçoznequj qujttaznequj, in quenamj, in quenjn muchioa: njmã ie ic tlanaxotia in Motecuçoma, in aqujque vel oconcalaquj itechiuhcaoan, qujoalqujxtiaia in tlatolli.

Auh in ovalquja tlatolli in vmpa caltzacutica motecuçoma: njman ie ic qujteci in oauhtli chicalutl in cioa, mocexiuhçauhque, vncã in teuitoalco, oalqujzque in Españoles, cenca onocezencauhq̃ in jca iautlatqujtl, moixuchichiuhque, moqujchichiuhque, intlan qujqujça, intzalan qujqujça, qujniaiavaloa, qujnceczmjtta, imjxco tlatlachia in teci cioa. Auh in ie iuhquj in oqujmonjttaco, njmã je ic calaquj in vei tecpan, iuh machiztic: qujlmach iquac temjctinquja intla mjec tlacatl cenquijçani toqujchtin.

Auh in ie oacic ilhujtl in toxcatl, teutlacpa in quj-peoaltia in qujtlacatilia in jnacaio, qujtlacatlaliaia, qujtlacatlachichiaia, qujtlacanextia. Auh inin qujnacaiotiaia çan tzoalli, ie in mjchioauhtzoalli, tlacopechpan in qujtlaliaia, ie in vitzitzillacutl, yoã nacaztlacatl.

796

796
778

1. Cf. corresponding Spanish text.
2. Cf. J.-M.-A. Aubin: Histoire de la nation mexicaine . . . reproduction du Codex de 1576 (Paris: Maisonneuve Frères, 1893), pp. 89-94, where the narrative of the Conquest contains a different version.
3. Chicalote: cf. Hernández, op. cit., III, pp. 302-305 (chicalotl = cepina; "cardo," Argemone mexicana L.); Santamaría, op. cit., I, p. 422 (chicalote); Simeon, op. cit., p. 243 (amaranto desgranado al Mexico); Cecilio Robelo Manchón: Mexican Plants for American Gardens (Boston and New York: Houghton Mifflin Company, 1897), pp. 137-138 (poppy family — Argemone grandiflora).
4. Sahagún, in Biblioteca Mexicana, p. 101, n. 1, citing Sahagún, III, 1, §2. Mexicanos antiguamente = chicalotl. See also Anderson and Dibble, op. cit., II — The Ceremonies, p. 62.
5. Textual correspondence from Mgr. Angel María Garibay and Byron McAfee, Mex., 1954: "Y a este le hacen su cuerpo con tlaolo, con Maíz de chicalote (Argemone mexicana, esp. Lehmann). De un armazón de varas le ponen; así el armazón de Huitzil (opochtli), y el armazón de amaranto." Texto authentico explica: "Le hacen cuerpo, o sea 'varas de Huitzil,' porque está formado de palos delgados y cortados del amaranto que es maíces duros y lígeros (amaranthus in Dorbelli), y el maíces del chicalote (Argemone mexicana, esp. Lehmann). Se hacía también con el amaranto comido. Huitzilli es 'ovejo, cuyuelo,' y 'varas de cuyuelo' porque que era el armadijo, o aparato que construíaíbe de varas tejidas o ensamladas en forma de pedazo dargado y trasvasado. Sobre este armadio se ponía los Maíces o tortillas de bastedi, que eran precisamente de la planta dicha. Llamaba también Huitzilli, 'Maíces de pescado.' Cf. also Anderson and Dibble, op. cit., II, p. 62; Sahagún (Bustamante ed.), I, p. 137, or Sahagún (Acosta S. ed.), I, p. 153.

796
778 And when he had already taken shape, then they pasted his head with feather down and made his diagonally-striped face painting, and [gave him] his serpent ear plug of glued turquoise [mosaic]. And from the serpent ear plugs hung the circlet of thorns, [made of] gold, with toes — cut in the form of toes. And his nose rod [was] arrow[-shaped]; of beaten gold [was it] wrought and set with stones. It was shaped of metal plate painted as if with stones. Likewise from it hung what was called the thorn circlet, painted with diagonal stripes. Thus was it diagonally striped: on it were [alternating] blue and yellow [bands]. And upon his head stood his humming bird disguise. Then there was, besides, what was named anecuyotl, [his headdress] of featherwork, round, a little narrow and pointed at its base. After [237] that they placed upon the back of his head the ball of yellow parrot feathers, from which hung his child's lock of hair. And [he had] his cape of stinging nettles,[6] colored black, in five places ornamented with feathers — with eagle down. It was wrapped about him. And below, he was wrapped in his cape with severed heads and bones; and above, he was [532] wrapped, also, in his jerkin painted with the limbs and members [of men] — all painted there with severed heads, ears, hearts, entrails, livers, lungs, and prints of the hand and the foot. And [he was given] a breech clout. Only the breech clout was very finely wrought. And its design was also the limbs and [289] members [of men: it was] so woven. But his large [breech clout was] only of paper: it was of white paper,[8] one fathom wide and twenty long, with a design painted on it in blue. And as for the blood banner with the flint knife at the point: his blood banner was only of paper, painted red, as if [striped] with blood. And the flint knife at the point was likewise only of paperwork, and also similarly painted — colored as if with blood. And his shield, which he carried, was of reedwork; [it was] a shield of coarse reeds decorated in four places with feathers —

Auh in ie utlacat, njmã qujquapotonja, yoan qujchioa, ixtlã tlatlaan, yoan icoanacochxivitl in tlaçalolli: auh in jcoanacoch itech pipilcac in vitznaoaiotl, teucujtlatl xoxopiltic, tlaxoxopiltectli, yoã yiacapilol, mjtl: Teucujtlatl in tlachiuhtli, tlatzotzontli, yoan tlateantli, tlacanaoalli, tlateicujlolli: no itech pilcaia moteneoa vitznaoajutl, ixtlan tlatlaan: injc ixtlan tlatlaan, vncan icac texutli, yoan têcuxtli yoã icpac conquetza ivitzitzilnaoal: njmã contoqujlia, itoca anecuiutl, hivitl in tlachichioalli, mjmjltic, achitzin vitztic, achi tzimpitzaoac: njmã ie ic in tozpololli icuexcochtlan in contlalilia itech pilcac tziuhcuexpalli, yoã itzitzicaztilma, tlatlilpalli: macujlcan in tlapotonjlli, quauhtlachcaiotica, qujmolototica, yoan in jtilma in tlanj qujmoquentia, tzotzontecomaio, oomjcallo: auh in panj qujmolpilia, yoan ixicul: injc tlacujlolli tlaquaquallo, ca much vncã icujliuhtoc in tzontecomatl, nacaztli, iollotli, cujtlaxculli eltapachtli, tochichi, macpalli, xocpalli, yoan imaxtli: çan in maxtlatl, vellaçotlanquj: auh in jtlamachio injc no tlaquaquallo injc tlaqujttli: auh in jvei[maxtli] çan amatl ichoatl in quaoamatl, injc patlaoac cemmatl: auh injc viac cempoalli, injc tlacujlolli texoacaxilquj, auh injquezpan qujmamantjcatca iacatecpaio: in jezpan çan amatl catca, tlapalli injc tlacujlolli, injc tlaezicujlolli: iacatecpaio, çan no amatl in tlachioalli, çan no iuhquj injc tlacujlolli, tlaezicujlolli, yoan ichimal iericaotlatl in tlachioalli, otlachimalli, nauhcan tlapotonjlli, quauhtlachcaiotica, hivichachapanquj, moteneoa: Tevevelli, auh chimalpaio, çan no iuhquj in ezpanjtl injc tlacujlolli: yoan navi imjuh ic qujcentzitzquja in ichimal yoan iopochmacuex imacpilcac, coiotomjtl in tlavipantli, yoan itech pilcatica amatl tlaxoxotlalli.

6. Hernández, op. cit., pp. 390-391, translates la ortiga (Urtica sp.!); on pp. 388-390 he mentions seven kinds: four are Urtica sp.; others are Urtica dioica, var. angustifolia, Barnaphadon/segundo Kostas Chaity ("quemadura," "ortiga"); and W. urenens. H. B. K. ("ortiga de tierra caliente"). Santamaría, op. cit., I, p. 496, writes of chichicastle: "la ortiga ureruente. . . . La especie principal es la Jatropha urens L. . . . En México, planta herbácea, semiarpadora, común en las tierras cálidas y templada" (Mikania denticulata, Eupatorium denticulatum). Also, "Planta urticácea, llamada también ortiga, mal hombre, mala mujer, quemador, chichicastillo, tlachinole, en México." See also Maximino Martínez: Las plantas medicinales de México (México: Ediciones Botas, 1933), pp. 414-415 — chichicastli (Urera urenuema [Jacq.] Griseb.).

7. In the MS, a blank follows ixvi. Seler, op. cit., p. 506, has supplied -ocelo. Reference to the description of this ceremony in Book II, however, suggests that the omission is -maxtli.

8. In Victor Wolfgang Von Hagen: The Aztec and Maya Paper Makers (New York: J. J. Augustin, 1944), p. 60, amatl-amatl is given as "coarse, thickly fibered paper, more difficult to fashion than the fig tree variety"; from bell's horn acacia (Acacia cornigera). On the other hand, a note in Sahagún (Rubredo ed.), V, p. 231, reads: "la materia amatl-amatl, que es la capa de libro de algunos árboles del género ficus. Servía de papel para los pintores o los libros, y de tela para hacer los adornos, vestidos y otros objetos que el cabo de los dioses requería." with eagle down — with tufts of feathers. It was called tewewelli. And the shield banner was painted like the blood banner. And his four arrows he held together with his shield. And his left arm band was hanging from his arm; it was composed of [strips of] coyote fur, and from it hung paper cut in strips.

And when dawn broke, when it was now the feast day, early in the morning, then those who had made vows before him unwrapped him. Before him they stood in one row and offered him incense; before him they laid all manner of gifts — feast foods, rolls of amaranth seed dough. And this was when they had not yet taken him up and elevated him to Itepeyoc. And all the men, the young, seasoned warriors, were as if determined and eager to proceed with and observe the feast, and thus show, exhibit proudly, and demonstrate it to the Spaniards.

All hastened and ran, as they made their way toward the temple courtyard, in order there to dance the winding dance. And when all had assembled, then the start was made; then began the chanting and the winding dance. And those who had fasted twenty days, and[9] those who had fasted a year, stood aside facing the others. Those who hemmed in [the dancers had] their pine cudgels; whosoever tried to leave [the dance] they menaced with the pine cudgels. But one who would [leave to] urinate took off his net cape and his forked heron feather ornament. But one who did not at once obey, who would not be excluded, or who was mischievous, they soundly beat his back therefor, [or] his thighs, [or] his shoulders, and thrust him outside. They cast him out by force; they threw him on his face — he went falling on his face; he fell forth on his ear. No one in their hold took his leave.

The elder brothers of Uitzilopochtli — those who had fasted for a year — were much feared, looked upon with terror and awe, and dreaded. And those at the head, the great leaders, the participants, might leave. They did not detain them. Yet all the small boys, those with the lock of hair at the back of the head, with the back lock of hair, and those with the jar-shaped hair dress — they who had taken a captive with others' help, — the leaders, those called leaders of young men, who were unmarried, who had gone [to war] to take one or two [captives], they also held away. They said to them: "Go along there, knaves! You shall give a good example! Appear not before us!"

9. Yoan is repeated in the MS.

796 778 [283]

Auh in otlatvic in ie ilhujuh ipan, in ioatzinco ie ic quixtlapoa in jvic monetoltia, ixpan oncenpanti qujtlenamaquilia, ixpan qujmana in izqujcan ventli in tlacatlaqualli, in tzoalilacatzolli. Auh in jquac in, aocmo qujtlecavique, aocmo cacoqujxtique in itepeioc: auh in ixqujch tlacatl in telpopochtequjoaque iuhqujn nececẽquetzalo, iuhqujn in iocolipã in jlhujtlazque, in ilhujtlamatizque, injc qujntlattitizque, qujntlamaviçoltizq̃, qujntlaixtlatizque, in Españoles:

tlatotoca, netlalolo, vmpa izziova in teuitcalco, injc vmpa necocololoz. Auh in ocecenqujxoac: njmã ie ic peoalo, ie ic vmpeoa in cujco yoan necocololoz. Auh in mocenpoalçauhque, yoan yoan in mocexiuhçauhque nepan jxtinemj: in tetzaqua imoocoquauh, in aqujn qujçaznequj ic qujtlaiciecalhuja in ocoquavitl: auh in aqujn maxixaz qujtlalitiuh icuechi, yoan iaztaxel. Auh in aqujn çan njman atlatlacamati, in amo tetlaçaltoca in aquen tlatta, vel ic qujcujtlavitequj, qujmetzvitequj, cacullhujtequj, caliticpa contopeoa, conchiccanaoa, conjxiquetza, mjhixiquetztiuh, nanacazitztiuh aiac temacnaoati:

796 778 [283] [785] [282] [314] [688]

cenca ichoã tlamamauhtiaia, tlamauhtiaia, cemjmacaxoa, cemjmacaxtincatca in jachvan vitzilobuchtli in mocexiuhçauhque. Auh in tlaiacatia in vevei tachcavan, in vevei chiva tel huel qujçaia, amo qujntzacujliaia: auh in ie ixqujch telputzintli, in cuexpaltzine in cuexpaltzitzineque, yoan in tzotzocolleque, in tepallamanj, in yiaque: in moteneoa in telpuchiaque, in ce ic nemj, in ce cacitinemj, in anoço vme cacitinemj no qujntzaquaia: qujmjlhujaia, vmpa xiviã on nocne, anqujteittitia, amo techitto.

[785] [302]

[p. 52 is blank]

-51-

796 778 Twentieth Chapter. Here is told how the Spaniards[1] slew and destroyed the Mexicans who were celebrating the Feast of Uitzilopochtli in the place called the Temple Courtyard.

Injc cempoalli capitulo: vncã mjtoa in quenjn Espanoles qujnmjctique, qujmjxtlatique in Mexica, in qujlhujqujxtiliaia Vitzilobuchtli in vncã mjtoaia Teuitoalco.

726 And after this, when already the feast was taking place, all were dancing and singing, and there was song with dance. The song roared.

Auh in ie iuhquj, in ie ilhujtlamacho, in ie netotilo in ie cujco, in ie cujcoanolo: in cujcatl, iuhqujn xaxamacatimanj.

When now it was time, and the moment was opportune for the Spaniards to slay them, then they issued forth girt for battle; they came to block everywhere the ways leading out and in, [called] Quauhquiauac, Tecpantzinco, Acatl yiacapan, and Tezcacoac.[2] And when they had closed them off and also various [other] places, [the people] were contained, [so that] nowhere could they get out.

In ie inmã, in otlainmantic injc temjctizque in Españoles: njman ie ic oalqujça omoiauclichiuhque, ocontzatzaquaco, in jzqujcampa qujxoaia, calacoaia, in quauhqujiaoac tecpantzinco, acatl yiacapan, Tezcacoac. Auh in ocõtzatzacque: no izqujcã momanque, aocac vel hoalqujça.

And this having been done, they then entered the temple courtyard to slay them. They whose task it was to kill them went only afoot, each with [his] leather shield, some with their iron-studded shields, and each with iron sword. Then they surrounded those who danced whereupon they went among the drums. Then they struck the arms of the one who beat the drums; they severed both his hands, and afterwards struck his neck, [so that] his neck [and head] flew off, falling far away. Then they pierced them all with iron lances, and they struck each with the iron swords. Of some they slashed open the back, and then their entrails gushed out. Of some, they split the head; they hacked their heads to pieces; their heads were completely cut up. And of some they hit the shoulder; they split open and cut their bodies to pieces. Some they struck in the shank; some on the thigh. Of some, they struck the belly, and then their entrails streamed forth. And when one in vain would run, he would only drag his entrails like something raw, as he tried to flee. Nowhere could he go. And one who tried to go out, there they struck and pierced him.

Auh in ie iuhquj, njmã ie ic calaquj in teuitoalco in temjctizque: in intequjuh in temjctique çan tlacxipãvia imeevachimal, cequj intotopchimal, yoan intetepuzmaquauh: njman ie ic qujniaoaloa in mjtotia, njmã ie ic vi in vevetitlan, njmã qujmavitecque in tlatzotzona oalcocoton vmexti in jmacpal çatepan qujquechvitecque veca vetzito in jquech: njmã ie muchintin texixili tepuztopiltica, yoan teviviteque tepuzmaquauhtica: cequjntin qujncujtlaço. njman valmotoxaoa in incujtlaxcol, cequjntin qujnquatzatzaianque, vel qujtzeltilique in intzontecon, vel itzeltix in intzõtecõ. Auh in cequjntin qujmaculhujtecque, oalcacamatlapan, oaltzatzaian in innacaio: cequjntin qujncotzvivitecque, cequjn qujnmetzvivitecque, cequjntin qujmjtivitecque, njmã moch oalmotoxaoa in incujtlaxcul. Auh in aca oc nen motlaloa in jcujtlaxcul, ça qujvilana, iuhqujn xoxoqujova in momaqujxtiznequj, aoc campa vel huj: auh in aqujn qujçaznequj, vmpa qujoalhujtequj, qujvalxixili.

But some climbed the wall, and so succeeded in taking flight. Some entered the various tribal temples, and there escaped. And some eluded [the Auh cequjntin, tepantli qujtlecavique, tel huel momaqujxtiq: cequjntin calpulco cacalacque vmpa momaqujxtique. Auh in cequjntin intlan momaq'x-

1. In the Codex, the slide is omitted.

2. These were, respectively, the south gate of the main temple square (see map) to the Iztapalapan road; the west gate to the Tlacopán road; and, probably, the north and east gates. — Cline, Barrier antiquos.

●796 Twenty-eighth Chapter. Here is told how the the Mexicans celebrated the feast of Uei [tecu]ilhuitl when the Spaniards had left Mexico.

Injc cempoalli on chicuei capitulo: vncan mjtoa in quenjn Mexica vei ilhujtl qujchiuhq̃ in jquac oquj̃zque Españoles vncan mexico.

796 And when [the month of] Uei tecuilhuitl had 778 again arrived, once more the Mexicans celebrated the feast, here, after twenty days.[1] All the images and representations of the devils they once again adorned; each one they bedight with capes, ornamented with feathers, hung with necklaces, and fitted with turquoise mosaic masks. And they put [237 on them godly capes — the quetzal feather cape,
293] the yellow parrot feather cape, and the eagle feather cape. And this array, the necessary items, the great noblemen guarded.

Auh in oacic vei tecujlhujtl: oc ceppa, ie no ceppa ilhujqujxtique in Mexica, vncã cempoaltica. Jn ixqujch in jmjxiptlavan, in impatilloan in diablome, ie no ceppa qujncecencauhque, qujntlaquentique, qujnquequetzallotique, qujncocozcatique, qujmonaaqujque xiuhxaiacatl, yoan qujnquequentia in teuquemjtl, in quetzalquemjtl, in toxquemjtl, quauhquemjtl. Auh inin tlatqujtl in monec, qujpiaia in vevei pipiltin:

796 Then followed after it Tlaxochimaco, which they 805 also celebrated for twenty days. Then came after it Xocotl uetzi, which they also observed for twenty days. And with Ochpanjztli they spent the fourth [period of] twenty [days]. With Teotl eco they spent the fifth [period of] twenty [days]; with Tepeilhuitl, the sixth score; with Quecholli, the seventh score. At this point would have been completed a year — if nothing had happened, and if [the Spaniards] had not gone.[2] With Panquetzaliztli they spent the eighth [period of] twenty [days]; with Atemoztli, the ninth score; with Tititl, the tenth score; with Izcalli tlami, the eleventh score; and here set in the Nemontemi, [lasting] five days. Atlcaualo was twelve — or Quauitl eua; Tlacaxipeualiztli, thirteen; Toçoztontli, fourteen;[3] Uei toçoztli was seventeenth; and Tecuilhuitontli, eighteenth. With this had passed one year since [the Spaniards] died at the Tolteca canal.

njman qujoaltoqujlia in Tlasuchimaco, no cempoaltique: njmã qujvaltoqujlia in xocotl vetzi, no cempoaltique. Auh in Ochpanjztli ic nappoaltique. Teutl eco: ic macujlpoaltique. Tepeilhujtl chiquacempoaltique. Quechulli ic chicõpoaltique: vncan cexiuhtizquja y, intlacatle muchivanj, intlacamo ianj. Panquetzaliztli, chicuepoaltique. Atemuztli, chicunappoaltique. Tititl matlacpoaltique. Jzcalli tlamj, ic matlacpoalli oce: njcan in muchioa in Nemontemj, macujlilhujtl. Atl cavalo, matlacpoalli omume, anoço Quavitl eoa. Tlacaxipeoaliztli, matlacpoalli omei. Toçoztontli matlacpoalli onnavi. Vei toçoztli, ic caxtolpoalli omume. Tecujlhujtontli, ic caxtolpoalli omei: vncan cexiuhtico y, injc mjcque tulteca acaloco.

805 And when once more they came forth, when again we saw them, [this] one year was in its eleven[th] score [of days], in the month of] Izcalli. From [the direction of] Quauhtitlan they issued forth; they came to establish themselves at Tlacopan for a period of only seven days. Then they departed,

Auh in ie no ceppa qujçaco, in ie no ceppa tiqujmjttaque ce xivitl, ipã matlacpoalli oce, ipan in Jzcalli: quauhtitlan in qujçaco, ommotlalico in Tlacuban çan onchicomjlhujtico: njman iaque vmpoaltito. Auh ie no ceppa qujçaco, çan qujztiqujzque quauhtitlampa itztiaque: çan tequjtl ontemjctitiqujzque in

1. So the Aztec reads (compañeros: see Molina, op. cit., compañero, compañica). — Doubtless the twentieth day is meant, in conform with custom in observance of feast days (personal communication, Rafael García Granados).

2. See variant translation in Seler, op. cit., p. 529.

3. The fifteenth and sixteenth months are omitted in the Aztec text.

14:Bandelier E-4 (no date)1880 NU7 Aztec NU7

When fifteen years old, the youth was placed in charge of certain chiefs[19] (the "telpuchtlato" or "achcacautin") who kept them under their oversight until they married. They were educated in communities "for the service of the tribe and for warlike purposes;"[20] were allowed, even at the age of fifteen, to go to war either armed or as carriers only,[21] and had their respective "school houses" ("telpuchcalco," houses of the youth); one in each of the four quarters of Mexico which formed the basis of the tribe's military organization, as we shall hereafter see. At these houses they were gradually trained to the handling of weapons.[22]

There were no regular times set for military practice. But every twenty days, at least, there occurred a religious festival, at which the warriors appeared in full costume, and, their chiefs included, they "skirmished," showing and practicing their skill in handling arms.[23] The youth were not only invited to such occa-

[19] Idem: "A quinze ans, le père présente deux fils à deux différents maitres du temple et du collège militaire, . . . " The boy (Mexican "piltonth") then became a youth ("telpuchtli"—Alonzo de Molina. "Vocabulario en lengua Mexicana y castellana." Mexico, 1571. Parte IIa, p. 97).

[20] Bernardino de Sahagun ("Historia universal de las cosas de Nueva España," in vol. VII, of Lord Kingsborough, lib. III. Appendix, cap. IV, p. 118. "Y asi ofrecian "la criatura, á la casa de telpuchcalli; era su intencion que alli se criase con los otros "mancebos para servicio del pueblo y cosas de guerra." Also cap. V, 119). Mendieta (Lib. II, cap. XXIV, p. 124. "Los otros se criaban como en capitanias, porque en cada "barrio habia un capitan de ellos, llamado telpuchtlato, que quiere decir "guarda ó "capitan de los mancebos. . . . . Tambien tenian por si su comunidad. sus casas "y tierras, etc., etc.") Telpuchtlato signifies "Speaker to the youth" (from "Telpuchtli," youth, and "tlatoani," speaker. Molina, II, p. 141). Clavigero (Lib. VII, cap. III). Acosta (Lib. VII, cap. XXVII, p. 444. Para este efecto avia en los templos casa "particular de niños, como escuela, o pupilaje distincto del de los moços y moças del "templo"). Tezozomoc (Cap. LXXI, p. 121 and LXXVIII, p. 134). "Telpuchcalli" is derived from "telpuchtli," youth, and "calli," house. The "achcauhtli," to which we shall refer hereafter, are variously designated, even as priests (by Mendieta), as "captains of the guard" (by Torquemada), as "an officer, to whom they (the youth) were entrusted" (by Clavigero).

[21] Mendieta (Lib. II, cap. XXIV, p. 124). "Some of these youth, the strongest ones, "went to war, and the others, also, went to see how the force practiced at arms." Tezozomoc (Cap. LXXI, p. 121) "and all the youth examined, such as had not gone, went "along, carrying arms and supplies, and to become encouraged by the feats they might "witness."

[22] Mexico divided into four "calpulli" ("barrios"), each of which had its "telpuchcalli,"—"where the achcacauhtin showed and taught them the use of arms and how "to combat valorously." (Tezozomoc, cap. LXXI and LXXVIII, p. 134.)

[23] For the long list of religious festivals of the Mexicans, ordinary as well as extraordinary, we beg to refer to almost any one of the authors of the 16th, 17th, and 18th centuries, on Mexico. As to the military displays and exercises during the feast, I refer particularly to Antonio de Herrera ("Historia general de los Hechos de los Castel-"lanos en las Islas y la Tierra Firme del Mar Oceano." Edition of 1730. Decada II. lib. VII, cap. XI, p. 187). "Nobody was allowed to carry arms about the city, but only "to war, to the chase, or when on guard to the King. On days of festivities, and at

14:Bandelier E-4 (no date) 1880 NU7 Aztec NU7

796 sions, but their presence was obligatory, that they might see and 702 learn. Besides, as often as war was proclaimed, a general muster [721] and rehearsal was held at each quarter.[24] We have no detailed report of such exercises, of the evolutions, if any, carried out by the warriors, but an incident of the history of Mexico may furnish us with an approximate picture. When, in 1473, the tribe of Tlat-
702 ilulco, independent at that time from Mexico, agreed upon attacking the latter, they practised beforehand, and with as much secrecy as possible.[25] Setting up posts of hard wood, they beat against them with their swords and clubs; they sped arrows and threw darts at thick wooden planks, and lastly they went out into the lake and shot at birds flying.[26] This may be supposed an illustration of the manner in which the Mexicans practised at arms.

702 These exercises partaking, frequently at least, of a religious 726 character, they ordinarily took place at the squares surrounding 712 temples, more particularly in the great place of the chief "house of God" ("teo-calli") of Mexico.[27] Immediately preceding a foray or campaign, warriors and youth aggregated there also, not only to practice, but especially to receive their weapons out of the "other times appointed, the latter caused the young men to practice at arms, that they "might be ready for war. He even set out premiums to those who would distinguish "themselves, and not only was present, but sometimes used the bow and sword, taking "part in the exercises." Also to Torquemada (Lib. X, cap. XIV, p. 256, of 2d volume, but especially cap. XI, p. 252. "En esta fiesta hacian alardes, y escaramuças todos los "Soldados y Hombres de Guerra, donde cada qual pretendia aventajarse al atro; y se "mostraban muy valientes, y esforçados; de donde nacia señalarse muchos, y aventu-"rarse á casos muy peligrosos"), and Mendieta (Lib. II, cap. XXXI, p. 143).

[24] Tezozomoc (Cap. LXXXIV, p. 147, and cap. XC).

[25] It is well known that the Mexicans had formerly divided into two tribes: the Mexicans proper, of Tenuchtitlan (Tenuchcas), and those of Tlatilulco. The latter never denied their common descent. At the time of their conspiracy to overthrow the Tenuchca they are said to have agreed upon: "that Mexicatl-Tenuchtitlan should be ob-"literated, and Tlatilulco-Mexico should become head of the world" (Tezozomoc, cap. XLI). It is not devoid of interest to know that, as late as 1473 (the year 7 "calli"), or only 48 years previous to the Spanish conquest, the very existence of the Mexican power became seriously threatened by a small tribe, subsisting as an independent people within musket range of Mexico. This fact, and the negotiations of the Tlatilulca with the other tribes of the valley, at that period, furnish one of the best illustrations of the loose manner in which all the tribes subject to Mexico at the time of Cortés were bound to the Mexicans. After the overthrow of the Tlatilulcans by Axayacatl of Mexico, their pueblo became the fifth "quarter" (calpulli), and under Spanish rule it bore the name of "Santiago."

[26] Tezozomoc (Cap. XLI). Durán (Cap. XXXIII, pp. 259 and 260). According to the latter, they at first practised with the sling, throwing stones against a wooden image; he does not mention the use of the sword or club, only missiles. Otherwise, both authors agree perfectly.

[27] Tezozomoc (Cap. LXXXIV, p. 147). Herrera (Dec. II, lib. VII, cap. II, p. 187, of 1st volume).

15:Bandelier E-4 (no date)1880 NU7 Aztec NU7

Through the establishment of direct relations with the outside, not only the public business of the Mexicans was increased, but, for the interchange of commodities, a standing market became indispensable. The pueblo of Mexico, formerly shunned by strangers, was now visited by delegations from neighboring tribes, and especially by traders. Indian hospitality required that these visitors should be harbored as guests, and the official house of the tribe was the place where this hospitality was afforded; it being the duty of those who occupied it to lodge and feed the strangers.[51]

648 439 574 609

nte (Lib. II, cap. XV, p. 99), a statement flatly contradictory. In his previous description of the early conditions of the tribes, he represents the Mexicans as outcasts, upon which no other tribe had any claim (pp. 92 and 93). No attempt was made to conquer them, since their retreat was too impenetrable (Torquemada, Lib. II, cap. XI, p. 93. Mendieta, Lib. II, cap. XXXIV, p. 146),—therefore their intercourse with the tribes of the mainland was voluntary (Acosta, Lib. VII, cap. VII, p. 467), and necessarily took the form of alliance or league. In this case military assistance was the main point. And indeed we do find, in what we may call the "Tezcucan" chroniclers, like Ixtlilxochitl, Torquemada, Veytia, and Clavigero, the Mexicans assisting the Tecpanecas (vide "Histoire des Chichimèques," cap. XV, p. 102. Cap. XVI, p. 108. Cap. XX, pp. 131 and 132. "Monarchia Indiana," Lib. II, cap. XIX, p. 108. "Historia Antigua de Méjico," Lib. II, cap. XXVIII, pp. 236, 237, 238. Cap. XXIX, pp. 241–243. Cap. XXX, p. 250. "Storia de Messico," Lib. III, cap. VIII). Bustamante ("Tezcoco en los ultimos Tiempos," p. 2), who claims to follow Boturini, confirms. The military achievements of the Mexicans in the wars between the Tecpanecas and Tezcucans are not even claimed by these authors as a due service, but as the actions of allies or confederates of the former.

[51] Cortés ("Carta Segunda," p. 25, in Vedia I). "The manner of his service was (of Montezuma), that every day at sunrise, about 600 Lords and leading men were in his house, which either seated themselves, or some walked around in some halls and corridors therein contained, and there remained and spent their time without entering where he was. And their servants and persons accompanying them filled two or three great courts ("patios") as well as the street, which was very large. They remained there without leaving it until night. And at the time they served to eat to the said Muteczuma, they also served all these Lords as well as their attendants. The supplies or stores ("la dispensa y botilleria") were open daily to all those who wished to eat and drink." See also Sahagun (Lib. IX, cap. I, to V, concerning the receptions to traders, by the head-chiefs). Torquemada (Lib. II, cap. LIXIX, p. 231. He states that all his subjected chieftains, 3,600 in number, their attendants included, ate at "his court." Lib. XIV, cap. I, p. 534, speaking of the messengers, says that they were lodged at the "Calpixca" or house of the community. In another place he mentions that house as the "Tecpan." See note 47). Durán describes several religious solemnities, at which the chiefs of neighboring tribes assisted, which the head-chief of Mexico had to entertain (Cap. XX, pp. 175 and 176. Cap. XXIII, p. 195. The chiefs of Tezcuco, Tacuba, Chalco, Xuchimilco, etc., etc., were invited to attend, and on their coming they were quartered in the royal houses ("fuéron aposentados en las casas reales"). Idem, cap. I, III, pp. 416–421. Cap. LIV, p. 428. The delegates from Chalco, Tlaxcallan, Cholullan, etc., etc., were lodged at the Tecpan ("en su mesmo palacio real"). Cap. LVIII, p. 439). Tezozomoc (Cap. XXI, p. 33. Cap. LXI, p. 101, wherein Ahuitzotl is especially enjoined to "give to eat to his people." Cap. LXXXII, p. 144, "y los vasallos recibidos como á tales tributarios, aposentandoles, vistiendoles y dándoles lo necessario para las vueltas de sus tierras . . . . . con los viejos y viejas mucho amor, dándolos para el sustento humano: regalados los principales teniendóles en mucho, y dandóles la honra que merecen: llamarlos cada dia al palacio que comian con vos." This indicates that the hospitality was obligatory, etc.). Zurita ("Rapport, etc.," p. 65). Herrera (Dec. III, lib. IV, cap. XXII, p. 128).

[796]

16:Bandelier E-4 (no date) 1880 NU7 Aztec NU7

631 of social organization. The confederacy of tribes, as we have 648 already shown, carried no influence whatever on the organization.

no era menor señor el Caconci de Mechuacan, y otros que reconoscian al uno ni al otro." We quote this passage merely as a general illustration.

Fray Bernardino de Sahagun. Historia general de las Cosas de Nueva-España, published by Sr. C. M. de Bustamante, in 1829 (Vol. II. lib. VIII, cap. III. p. 276), "El cuarto señor de Tezcoco se llamó Netzahoalcoiotzin, y reinó setenta y un años, y en tiempo de este se comenzaron las guerras, y tuvo el señorio de Tezcoco siendo señor del de México Itzcoatzin, y estos entrambos hicieron guerra á los de Tecpaneca, de Atzcaptzalco, y á otros pueblos y provincias, y el fué fundador del señorio de Tezcoco in Acolhoacan." (Id. Vol. III. lib. XII. cap. XLI, page 59, close of chapter.)

Fray Diego Durán. Historia de las Yndias de Nueva España é Islas de Tierra Firme. Published by Sr. José Fernandez Ramirez at Mexico, in 1867, (Cap. XIV, p. 123). "El rey Itzcoatl, aunque mal dispuesto, holgó de la victoria y dió las gracias á todos los señores y principales, al qual, agravándosele la enfermedad, entendiendo de se acertarsele la muerte, mandó llamar al Señor de Tezcuco, Neçaualcoyotl, pariente cercano suyo, y aconsejóle que no tuviese guerra con los Mexicanos, sus parientes y amigos, sino que antes se hiciese con ellos y fuese en su favor siempre: y dexó ordenado que desde en adelante fuese de Tezcuco el segundo rey de la comarca y el tercero el de Tacuba, á quien llamauan el rey de Tlalúacpan. . . ." (p. 124). ". . . y solo estos tres reynos mandaron y governaron la tierra, de hoy en adelante, siendo el de México sobre todos ellos, y casi como emperador y monarca del nueuo mundo." Nearly the whole of Cap. XV is devoted to the formation of the confederacy, but cannot be inserted here. The editor, Sr. J. F. Ramirez, appears to incline to the opinion, however, that there was a confederacy on equal terms, (note 2, p. 130). The same author also
● [796] states repeatedly that the head-chiefs of Tezcuco and Tlacopan sacrificed (slaughtered) captives at the chief teo-calli of Mexico, on very solemn occasions, together with the head-chief of Mexico, thus showing equal rights. (Cap. XXIII, p. 197 and others.) But his plainest statement is found (Cap. XLIII, p. 317), and reads as follows: "Algunos han querido decir quel reyno de Tezcuco era libre de todo reconocimiento y parias al monarca, y que en nada le era sujeto, lo qual allo al contrario en esta ystoria Mexicana; porque aunque á la verdad no tributauan á Mexico mántas ni joias ni plumas ni cosas de comida, como otras provincias tributauan, hallo empero á los Mexicanos metidos en las tierras tezcucanas donde sembraban y cogian, y algunos dellos hechos terrazgueros de los señores de México; y allo que en ofréciéndose estas fiestas y solenidades, daban tributo desclanos para ella, de lo qual ninguno estaua esento ni reservado. Tambien allo que ofréciéndose dar guerra á alguna ciudad y provincia, al primero que llamauan y acudian para que apercibiese sus gentes, era al rey de Tezcuco, y como abemos, notado en esta ystoria, le hacian venir á Mexico todas las veces que se ofrecia ocasion, loqual no era poca sujecion, dado que tuviese sus préeminencias y libertades de rey y señor de aquella provincia de Aculuacan; . . . ."

Fernando de Alvarado Tezozomoc. Crónica Mexicana. (9th Vol. of Lord Kingsborough's "Antiquities of Mexico.") This author agrees so closely with Durán in most instances, that we can dispense with full quotations. See Cap. XIX and XX, on the pretended conquest of Tezcuco by the Mexicans. Tezozomoc is very positive on the question of joint sacrifice (Cap. LXIX, p. 117). A singular remark is, however, found (Cap. XCVII. p. 172). After the Huexotzincas had sent delegates to Mexico to sue for [728] peace, the Mexican council was called together: "dijo zihuacoatl resoluto: Señor, como será esto, si no lo saben vuestros consegeros de guerra los reyes de Aculhuacan-Nezahualpilli, y el de Tecpanecas Tlaltecatzin? hagase entero cabildo y acuerdo: fue acordado asi." This important incident shows that not even the Mexicans had the right to treat alone with a power hostile to the three tribes, consequently that the other two were their confederates, and not their feudal vassals. Fray Durán confirms the incident in chapter LX, p. 473, of his work, precedingly quoted.

Joseph de Acosta, Historia natural y moral de las Indias, Madrid, 1608, derives his information from the same source as the two preceding, namely: the Codex Rami

805 reference to the circle. The third character was the 212 representation of a house, which they call Ce calli [One House]. It is placed to the west with reference to the circle. The fourth character is the likeness of a rabbit, which they call Ce tochtli [One Rabbit]; it is placed to the south with reference to the circle. By means of these characters they counted fifty-two years, assigning thirteen years to each character. And they counted in this manner, One Reed, Two Flint Knife, Three House, Four Rabbit, and so on, so describing circles by means of these characters, until 805 each one attained thirteen years. These, altogether, make up four times thirteen and equal fifty-two ●796 years. The purpose or intention of this count is to renew, every fifty-two years, the covenant, contract, 372 or vow, to serve the idols. Because at the end of the fifty-two-year [cycle] they observed a very solemn x787 feast and made new fire, and extinguished all the old [fires]. And all the provinces of this New Spain took of this new fire. Then they renewed all the statues of the idols and all of their adornment, as well as the intention of serving them for the next fifty-two years. And also they had a prophecy or oracle of the devil that at [the end of] one of these periods the world would come to an end.

805 The third count which these natives used was the 212 art of divination of the fortune or luck which those born would have, whether men or women. It was x787 done in this way. They had twenty characters. The first they named Crocodile, the second Wind, the third House, the fourth Lizard, the fifth Serpent, etc., up to twenty, as is represented in the chart at the end of this Appendix.* They said that each of these characters reigned thirteen days, so that all together are two hundred and [sixty] days. Some say that these thirteen-day [periods] are weeks of the month, but this is not so. Rather they are the number of days in which the sign or character [443] reigneth. The weeks of the month are of five days, and so there are, in each month, four weeks; and the tianquiztli, or markets, are fixed according to this number of days, or used to be so fixed. So that by periods of five days they established the markets or fairs. And so they had no weeks [of seven days], but rather periods of five days. And nowadays, in many places, they set the markets and fairs according to our seven-day weeks. In this illicit soothsaying hazia la parte del septendrion en respecto del circulo. El tercero caracter era vna pintada que ellos llaman ce calli, esta puesta hazia la parte del occidente, en respecto del circulo. El quarto caracter es la semejança de vn conejo que ellos llaman ce tochtli: esta puesto hazia la parte del medio dia, en respecto del circulo: contauan por estos caracteres cincuenta y dos años, dando a cada vno de los caracteres treze años, y contauan desta manera, ce acatl, vme tecpatl, ei calli, navi tochtli, y ansi dando bueltas, por estos caracteres, hasta que en cada vno se cumpliessen treze años, los quales todos juntos, son quatro vezes treze que hazen cincuenta y dos años: el fin o intencion desta cuenta es, renouar cada cincuenta y dos años, el pacto, o concierto, o juramento de servjr a los idolos. Porque en el fin de los cincuenta y dos años, hazian vna muy solemne fiesta, y sacauan fuego nueuo, y apagauan todo lo viejo y tomauan todas las proujncias desta nueua españa fuego nueuo; entonce renouauan todas las estatuas de los idolos y todas sus alhajas, y el proposito de serujrlos otros cincuenta i dos años. Y tambien tenjan profecia o oraculo del demonjo, que en vno destos periodos se auja de acabar el mundo.

La tercera cuenta que estos naturales vsauan, era el arte para adiujnar la fortuna o uentura, que tendrian los que nacian hombres y mugeres. Era desta manera que tenjan viente caracteres: al primero llamauan cipactli, el segundo hecatl, el tercero calli, el quarto cuetzpali, el qujnto coatl. &c. hasta viente como esta pintado en la figura, que esta al fin deste apēdiz: dezian que cada vno destos caracteres, reinaua treze dias, que todos juntos son dozientos y setenta [sic] dias. Algunos dizen que estos treze dias son semanas del mes y no es ansi sino numero de dias en que reina el signo o caracter: las semanas de los meses son cinco dias y ansi ay en cada mes quatro semanas y los tianquez, o mercados por este numero de dias se señalla, [sic] o solian señallarse, que de cinco en cinco dias hechauā los mercados, o ferias, y ansi no tenjan semana, sino qujntana, y agora en muchas partes hechan los mercados y ferias por nuestra semana de siete en siete dias. En esta cuenta adiujnatoria i no licita entreponense los caracteres de la cuenta de los años; conviene a saber, aquellos quatro caracteres de que arriba se hizo mencion, que es caña,

* See Plates 102-104.

Also at the opening of this count is placed the manner of counting the years, because these two counts are linked or matched.

Here followeth the reckoning of all the time-counts which those natives had.

The longest time-count which they reckoned was up to one hundred and four years. And this count they called a century.

Half of this count, fifty-two years, they called a bundle of years. This period of years they had reckoned from times past; it is not known when it began. But they considered it well established and a matter of belief that the world would come to an end at the conclusion of one of these bundles of years. They had a prophecy or oracle that at that time the movement of the heavens would cease, and they took as a sign [of this] the movement of the Pleiades. On the night of this feast, which they called Toximmolpilia [the Binding of the Years], it so befell that the Pleiades were at the zenith at midnight, with respect to the horizon in Mexico. On this night they made new fire, and before they made it, they extinguished all the fires in all the provinces, towns, and houses in all of this New Spain. And they went in a great and solemn procession. All of the priests and servants of the temple departed from here, the Temple of Mexico, during the first quarter of the night, and went to the summit of that mountain near Itztapalapan which they call Uixachtecatl. They reached the summit at midnight, or almost, where stood a great pyramid built for that ceremony. Having reached there, they looked at the Pleiades to see if they were at the zenith, and if they were not, they waited until they were. And when they saw that now they passed the zenith, they knew that the movement of the heavens had not ceased and that the end of the world was not then, but that they would have another fifty-two years, assured that the world would not come to an end.

At this hour a great multitude of people was on the mountains surrounding this province of Mexico —Texcoco, Xochimilco, and Quauhtitlan — waiting to see the new fire, which was a signal that the world would continue. And when the priests made the fire, with great ceremony, upon the pyramid on that mountain, then it was seen from all the surrounding

Tambien en el principio desta cuenta se pone la manera de contar de los años, porque estas dos cuentas andã vinculadas o pareadas. 805

La cuenta de todos los tiempos, que tenjan estos naturales, es la que se sigue.

La mayor cuenta de tiempo, que contauan era hasta ciento y quatro años, y a esta cuenta llamauan vn siglo, a la mitad desta cuẽta, que son cincuenta y dos años llamauan vna gavilla de años, este tiempo de años, trayanla ab antiquo contados, no se sabe quando començo: pero tenjan por muy aueriguado, y como de fe, que el mũdo se auja de acabar en el fin de vna destas gabillas de años: y tenjan pronostico o oraculo, que entonce avia de cesar el moujmjento de los cielos, y tomauan por señal al moujmjento de las cabrillas: la noche desta fiesta, que ellos llamauan Toximmolpilia: de tal manera caya que las cabrillas, estauan en medio del cielo: a la media noche, en respecto deste orizonte mexicano. En esta noche sacauan fuego nueuo, y primero que los sacassen, apagauan todo el fuego, en todas las proujncias, pueblos, y casas de toda esta nueua españa: y iban con gran procession, y solemnidad. Todos los satrapas, y mjnjstros del templo: partian daquj del templo de mexico, a prima noche: y iban hasta la cumbre de aquel cerro, que esta cabe Itztapalapan: que ellos llaman Vixachtecatl, y llegauan a la cumbre a la media noche, o casi, donde estaua vn solemne cu, edificado para aquella cerimonja. Llegados alli, mjrauan a las cabrillas; si estauan en el medio, y si no estauan esperauan hasta que llegassen. Y quando vian, que ya passauan del medio, entendian que el moujmjento del cielo no cesaua, y que no era alli el fin del mundo, sino que avian de tener otros cincuenta y dos años, seguros, que no se acabaria el mundo. 805 787x 821 796 372

En esta hora estauan en los cerros circunstantes que cercan a toda esta proujncia de mexico, Texcuco, y Suchimjlco y quauhtitlan, gran cantidad de gente, esperando a ver el fuego nueuo; que era señal, que el mundo iba adelante, y como sacauan el fuego, los satrapas, con gran cerimonja, en el cu de aquel cerro: luego se parecia, en todo lo circunstante de los cerros: 796 372

796 mountains. Those who were there watching then raised a cry which rose to the heavens with joy that 372 the world was not ending and that they had another fifty-two years assured.

The last ceremony of new fire which they held was in the year 1507. They held it with full solemnity, because the Spaniards had not come to this land. In the year 1559 ended the next bundle of years, which they call Toximmolpilia. On this occasion they held no public ceremony, because the Spaniards and members of the religious Orders were now in this land. So that this year, 1576, is the fifteenth of the current bundle of years.

796 When they made the new fire and held this cere-
778 mony, they renewed their covenant with the devil to serve him, and they renovated all the statues of the devil which they had in his house, and all the ornaments for his service, and those of their houses. And they rejoiced greatly to know that now they held the world to be secure and that it would not come to an end for fifty-two years. It is clear that this device of counting years was an invention of the devil to make them renew the covenant which they made with him every fifty-two years — [the devil] terrifying them with [the threat of] the end of the world and making them think that he lengthened the time and favored them thereby, letting the world move on.

796 Besides this they held, every eight years, a fast on 785 bread and water, for eight days; and at its conclusion they celebrated a feast in which they held a solemn dance by various personages, in which they said that they revealed what would come to pass or what fortune they merited; and they called it Atamalqualiztli.

796 They observed another feast every four years, in 304 honor of the fire [god], during which they pierced the ears of all the boys and girls; and they called it
805 Pillauanaliztli. And during this feast it is likely, and there are conjectures, that they held their leapyear, reckoning six [days] of Nemontemi.

805 The remaining time-count is of the year, which they divided into eighteen months, to each of which 796 they assigned twenty days. And each of these months was dedicated to one god, or to two, and 443 during it they held their feast. Each of these months they divided into five-day periods, and held the fairs on the last day of these five in one town, and five days later in another, and another five days later in

y los que estauan alli a la mjra, leuantauan luego vn alarido que le ponjan en el cielo de alegria que el mundo no se acabaua y que tenjan otros cincuenta y dos años por ciertos.

La vltima solemnjdad, que hizieron deste fuego nueuo: fue el año de mill y qujnjentos, y siete: hizieronle, con toda solemnjdad, porque no avian venjdo los españoles, a esta tierra: el año de mjll y qujnjẽtos y cincuenta y nueue, se acabo la otra gabilla de años: que ellos llaman Toximmolpilia. En esta, no hizieron solemnjdad publica: porque ya los españoles, y religiosos estauan en esta tierra. De manera que este año de mjll y qujnjentos y setenta y seis, anda en quinze años, de la gabilla de años que corre.

Quando sacauan fuego nueuo, y hazian esta solemnjdad, renouauan el pacto que tenjan con el demonjo de servjrle: y renouauan todas las estatuas del demonjo, que en su casa tenjan, y todas las alhajas de su serujcio, y las de sus casas: y hazian grandes alegrias, por saber, que ya tenjan el mundo seguro, que no se acabaria por cincuenta y dos años. Claramente consta, que este artificio de contar, fue invencion del diablo, para hazerlos renouar el pacto que con el tenjan de cincuenta, en cincuenta y dos años: y amedrẽtandolos con la fin del mundo, y haziendolos entender, que el alargaua el tiempo y les hazian merced del passando el mundo adelãte.

Demas desta cuenta tenjan que de ocho en ocho años, hazian vn ayuno de pan y agua, por espacio de ocho dias, y hazian al cabo, vna fiesta donde hazian solemne areito de diuersos personajes; donde dezian, que descubrian ventura o que la merecian, y llamauanla Atamalcualiztli.

Otra fiesta hazian, de quatro en quatro años, a honrra del fuego, donde agujerauan las orejas a todos los njños, y njñas, y la llamauan pillauanaliztli. Y en esta fiesta es verisimjle, y ay conjecturas que haziã su bisexto, contando seis de nemontemj.

la otra cuenta del tiempo, es de vn año: el qual repartian en deziocho mèses, y a cada mes le dauan veinte dias: y cada vno destos meses, era dedicado a vno, o a dos dioses: y hazian en el sus fiestas, cada vno destos meses, le repartian de cinco in cinco dias, y hazian las ferias el vltimo dia, destós cinco, en vn pueblo: y dende a cinco dias en otro, y dende a otros cinco dias en otro. De manera que el quarto qujn-

[still] another [town]. So that the fourth period of five days was the feast of the god who was honored in the following month. The five days in addition to the three hundred and sixty of the complete year they regarded as idle and unlucky, and so did not take account of them for any purpose. But they kept track of all the days and all the months of the year, and of all the five-day periods of the year, which are four in each month.

These natives had another count which followeth neither the year-count, nor the months, nor the five-day periods, which may wrongly be called weeks. This count hath twenty characters, as is represented in the chart behind this page.[4] To each one of these characters they assigned thirteen days, during which one of these characters reigned. Thus each one reigned thirteen days, and the round which these characters with their days made, is of two hundred and sixty days. This round includeth one hundred and five days less than a year. The count was used to foretell the circumstances and events of life which those born [on given day signs] would have. It is a difficult count, full of error, and with no foundation of natural astrology. For the art of judiciary astrology, common among us, is founded upon natural astrology, which is in the signs and planets of the heavens and in their courses and aspects. But this art of soothsaying followeth, or is founded upon, some characters and numbers in which no natural foundation existeth, but [are] only an artifice made by the devil himself. Nor is it possible that any man could have made or invented this art. For it hath no foundation in any science nor in any natural order. Rather it appeareth to be a thing of fraud and deceit than rational or ingenious. I say it was fraud and deceit in order to dazzle and derange people of low capacity and little understanding. Notwithstanding, this art of soothsaying, or rather, diabolical fraud or deceit, was highly regarded; and those who knew and practised it were also greatly honored and esteemed. For they told of things to come, and were regarded as truthful by the populace, although they spoke no truth except by accident and mistake. This art followeth neither years, nor months, nor weeks, nor five-year periods nor olympiads, as some, in their dreams, have said and erroneously affirmed.

4. See Plates 105 and 106.

tanario, era la fiesta del dios que se celebraua en el mes que se seguja: los cinco dias que son mas de los trezientos y sesenta de todo el año, tenjanlos por valdios, y haziagos: y ansi no hazian cuenta dellos para ninguna cosa. Pero cuenta tenjan con todos los dias del año, y con todos los meses del año, y con todas las quintanas del año, que son quatro en cada mes.

805 796 443

Otra cuenta tenjan, entre naturales que nj sigue la cuenta del año, nj de los meses, nj de las quintanas, que impropriamente se pueden dezir semanas. Esta cuenta, tiene viente caracteres, como esta pintado en la tabla, que esta detras desta hoja: a cada vno destos caracteres, atribuyan treze dias: en las quales reinaua uno destos caracteres: de manera que cada vno reinaua treze dias, y el circulo que estos caracteres con sus dias hazian, son dozientos y sesenta dias: el qual circulo, tiene ciento y cinco dias menos, que vn año. Esta cuenta se vsaua para adiujnar las condiciones, y sucesos de la vida, que tendrian los que naciessen. Es cuenta delicada, y muy mentirosa, y sin ninguna fundamento de astrologia natural. Porque el arte de la astrologia judiciaria, que entre nosotros se vsa, tiene fundamento en la astrologia natural, que es en los signos, y planetas del cielo, y en los cursus y aspectos dellos. Pero esta arte adiujnatoria siguese o fundase en vnos caracteres, y numeros, en que ninguna fundamento natural ay, sino solamente artificio fabricado, por el mesmo diablo, nj es posible que ninguna hombre fabricasse, nj inventasse esta arte; porque no tiene fundamento, en ninguna sciencia, nj en ninguna razon natural: mas parece cosa de embuste y embaimjento, que no cosa razonal, nj artificiosa. Digo que fue embuste y embaimjento, para encandilar, y desatinar a gente de poca capazidad, y de poco entendimjento. No obstante esto, era tenjda en mucho, esta arte adiujnatoria o mas propriamente hablando embuste o embaimjento diabolico: y tambien los que la sabian, y vsauan erã muy honrados y tenjdos: porque dezian las cosas por venjr, y del vulgo eran tenjdos por verdaderos, aunque ninguna verdad dezian sino acaso, y por jerro. Esta arte, nj sigue años, nj meses, nj semanas, nj lustros, nj olimpiadas, como algunos soñando dizeron, y afirmaron falsamente.

805 212 787x

[see cat. 116, 117, 126r, 126s. - Analyst]

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

sion of the irrelevant, implicit in drawing, largely contribute. 532
In our present day, with all the superb methods of photographic recordings and reproductions, the comic strip has a vogue unparalleled in our history.[17] (See Plates 62–63.)

Aboriginal music has largely disappeared. The friars 533 534 quickly adapted the chants and dances of Europe to Indian needs and substituted Christian for Indian ritual practices, using song and dance as formulas easily understood by primitives. To judge from the instruments, Aztec music was strong in rhythm but lacking in tone. The two-tone and one-tone drums could emit sonorous rhythms, but the bone and clay flutes pipe pitifully and are not gauged to a fixed scale. The conch shell could be blown with varying notes, according to the intensity of the blast, although it was more suitable for summoning people than for making music. Whistles, rattles of clay and gourds, bells and shell tinklers enhanced the effect of carefully regulated rhythms. Notched bones, often human, were rasped with a stick and produced quite pleasant sounds. A strange type of drum, which seems to have been indigenous, had an amazing resonance attained by beating an inverted gourd floating in a large container of water.[18] (See Plates 39, bottom left; 61, middle right.)

The dance was highly important, but native steps seldom 535 persist except in the most primitive outlying districts, for [177 797] they were transformed by the friars into Christian patterns. The chroniclers describe dances of many types in which masses of people participated. It is impossible that the Aztecs, with their profound sense of design and form, should not have had elaborate rituals in which great bodies of people moved in complex patterns to complicated rhythms. Song was used to reinforce the ceremony, and the words of some

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

636 slavery. Now, after four hundred years, it seems that the present Republican government might achieve by means of their Indian education program the humane purpose formulated under the colonial system.

797 After 1520, when the Conquest was established, the Spaniards began the process of converting a matured Indian culture into a European one. The conquerors were granted lands and in return were supposed to exploit the new territory for the economic advantage of Spain. The Church had in its custody the education of the Indians and their spiritual and corporal welfare. The different monastic orders undertook the control of the Indians in specified localities. Their first steps were to eradicate the local idolatry and to learn the language and customs of their new charges, the better to accomplish conversion.[2]

The friars, especially selected for the task, showed great understanding. They immediately replaced one theological structure with another. The Indians tore down their temples to build churches and monasteries in their place. The use of statues and paintings in Catholic ritual answered so well the requirements of Aztec worship that the friars had great trouble in preventing adoration of the images themselves. (See Plate 26, middle.)

797 The studies that the friars made of the Indian customs 636 were admirable, with the Franciscans and Dominicans showing exceptional abilities.[3] The children of Indian tribal leaders were educated in schools to spread the gospel. Under this Spanish control there was no recognition of the old communal land tenure, so the Aztecs were frozen into possession of the lands that they occupied by tribal sanction. The chiefs who had held the usage of the official lands found themselves the owners of extensive estates by which their descendants could profit. The Spaniards married into chiefly families, which they believed hereditary, according to their own cultural pattern. In some cases chiefs, like those of Tlaxcala, received coats of arms and patents of nobility from the king for their service in the Spanish cause. Out of 190 coats of arms presented for services during the Conquest of Middle and South America, at least twenty were granted to Indians. In consequence there took place a modest renascence of Indian culture. Indian authors like Ixtlilxochitl and Chimalpahin set forth, in Spanish or Nahuatl, the annals of their forebears as proof of their descent from great Indian nobles and of their right to Spanish honors as well.[4] (See Plate 44.)

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

The old culture died slowly. In the Indian towns the records were kept in both Spanish and the old Aztec pictographic system to avoid dispute. Dress maintained its old form, except that the friars insisted on trousering the Indians. The rich agriculture was a great boon to the conquerors, who modified it little except for the addition of fruit trees and wheat. Household utensils, like pottery, revealed an engaging fusion of Indian and Spanish ideas, and glazing delighted the Indians, who applied the flux to purely aboriginal forms. Some enchanting little sculptures in clay reveal the old gods and goddesses masquerading as saints in a very thin disguise.

The Indians were used to building temples, and it seemed to them perfectly fitting that they should labor long hours in great numbers to rear structures honoring the new gods. The conversion was so popular that the churches were too small to hold the worshipers, and several conventual temples, like Acolman, Actopan and Tlamanalco, had chapels which

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

797 opened on a large court to accommodate converts who gath-
346 ered literally in the tens of thousands. Indian craftsmen
177 found steel tools a superb improvement on their stone hammers and chisels. After the original plateresque architecture shifted into baroque, they reveled in shaping the blocks into ornate shapes, for it was as easy as cutting cheese in comparison to the labor of their aboriginal days.[5]

636 This period of fusion lasted for almost a century. In the 175 meantime the original Conquistadors and their descendants, together with later immigrants to the new colony, had encroached more and more on the natives. The development of the mining industries absorbed thousands of Indians, lured to work for a pittance under noisome conditions which brought sickness and even death. The exercise of the encomienda, an arrangement whereby a man had the right to a native's labor in return for his care and the assurance of his religious instruction, led to abuse of the privilege, and the luckless Indians were reduced to serfdom. European diseases, like smallpox, measles and tuberculosis, wiped out great sections of the population, which had no hereditary resistance to such maladies. The Crown and the Church, through its Council of the Indies, sent questionnaires and enacted ameliorative legislation on the basis of the information received, but such laws were more honored in the breach than in the observance. Many of the whites who went to New Spain wanted to get rich and enjoy an easy old age in the homeland. Others who had settled in the country enjoyed an almost feudal existence, no part of the profits and comforts of which they wished to yield, either for the betterment of the Indians or for the enrichment of the Crown. When the British destroyed the Armada in 1588 and weakened Spanish sea power, the com-

175 787 forth, and vanished when the sun was about to rise. For four years this always was to be seen at night. And when it disappeared, it was still four years before the Spaniards came to arrive.

nauhxiuitl in mochipa mottaia ioaltica auh in jcoac polihuh oc ieh nauhxiuitl açiquijui in españoles

175 648 And it came to pass that in his time the Spaniards came to arrive—they took and vanquished [the city of] Mexico here where the Spaniards now are, as well as all about here in New Spain. [This conquest was] in 1519.

ioan ipan mochihuh injc ipan açico españoles injc caçiquac injc quijpeuhque Mexico in vncan axcan onoque Españoles ioan in nouijian in nican iancuic españa de mjll e quijujentos y deziueue.

175 731 648 The tenth ruler of Tenochtitlan.

Cuitlauac was the tenth, and he ruled eighty days after the Spaniards reached Mexico. In the time of this one, it happened that a great plague came, and that many died of it everywhere in the cities. It was said that it was the smallpox, the great raising of blisters. Never once had this been seen; never had it been suffered in Mexico. Indeed, it smote the faces of everyone, so that pits and roughnesses were formed. No longer were the dead buried; they could only cast them all into the water[5]—for in those times there was much water everywhere in Mexico. And there was a great, foul odor; the smell issued forth from the dead.

Injc matlactli tenochtitlan tlatoanj.

Cuijtlaoa, ic matlactli, tlatocat in tenochtitlan: nappoalilhuijtl oiuh açico in Españoles mexico. Iehuatl ipan muchihuh in oalla vei cocoliztli, i cenca ic mjcoac in ɪ.ouijian altepetl ipan: mjto ca vej çaoatl, vej tonomonaliztli: in aic ceppa omottac inin aic onococoloc in mexico, vel mochi tlacatl, quitlacalhui in jxuiac: injc quijquiztic, chachaquachtic muchihuh, aocmo motocaia in mjmjcque, çɪ muchi atlan quijmontlaçaia: ca in jcoac cenca ɪɪc..ijian atlan catca in mexico, ioã cenca thiaxtimomã, injc hijaxque mjmjcque.

175 648 797 The eleventh ruler of Tenochtitlan.

Quauhtemoc was the eleventh, and he ruled Tenochtitlan four years. It came to pass in his reign that these Spaniards conquered and took the city of Mexico; and all the cities which lay surrounding. When he ruled, twelve priests, sons of Saint Francis, came and proceeded to reach [here]. They came to free men from idolatry and to teach the Faith.

Injc matlactli oce, tenochtitlan tlatoanj.

Quauhtemoc, ic matlactli oce tlatocat in tenochtitlan: nauhxiuitl, ipan mochiuh: injc ichoantin españoles quijpeuhque, caçique in altepetl in mexico, ioã in nouijian ic quijxoalotoc inqnich altepetl. Icoac tlãtocati in oallaque, açico matlactin omomen teupixque in ipilhoan Sanct frãcisco, in quijtocaoaltico tlaxcotoquilistli: ioan quijtemachtique tlaneltoquilistli.

175 The twelfth ruler of Tenochtitlan.

Don Andrés Motelchiuh was twelfth, and he ruled Tenochtitlan three years in the time of[6] the Spaniards, who went forth everywhere to conquest—to Cuextlan, to Honduras. And Nuño de Guzmán took him [in conquest] to Colhuacan, where he met his death.

Injc matlactiomome, tenochtitlan tlatoanj.

Don Andres, motelchiuh ic matlactli omome tlatocat in tenochtitlan exiuitl iepan españoles nouijian iauqpiçato in cuextlan, huduras, auh in iehuatl nonuan de guzman, quijuicac in vej culhoacan vmpa mjqujto.

The thirteenth ruler of Tenochtitlan.

Don Pablo Xochiquen was thirteenth, and he ruled Tenochtitlan three years.

Injc matlactli omej, tenochtitlan tlatoanj.

Don pablo, xochiquen ic matlactli omej tlatocat in tenochtitlan: exiuitl.

5. Ça muerte atlan. The Real Academia de la Historia MS has ce for ça.
6. Injpan: pr Inqpan in Ibid.

4

175 648 Moctezuma's elder[s] delivered his message. And they offered him all [the gifts with which] they greeted him. They extended to him the gold and still other [goods].

And [the Spaniards] came straight here to Mexico. When Don Hernando Cortés came to arrive, he readied himself for war. And Moctezuma went to meet him there by the houses [of the outskirts of Mexico], there at Xolloco. He went to receive him in peace. And he offered him adoration and greeted the Captain, Don Hernando Cortés. Then he took him there to the great palace. There all the Spaniards remained.

And after some days, the Captain imprisoned Moctezuma.

And when word arrived from the coast that still more Spaniards had arrived, the Captain went to meet them; he took some Spaniards with him, and [some] natives. And he left here Don Pedro Alvarado and still other Spaniards to guard the palace.

And when came the feast day of Uitzilopochtli, Don Pedro Alvarado and the Spaniards who were with him slew many Mexicans while they were observing the feast day of Uitzilopochtli. Thus war began.

And when the Captain returned from the coast, he brought many Spaniards. Not on this account did the Mexicans defer; they spread the war considerably.

And the year 1520 was when Moctezuma died. [731] And the Spaniards arose and went to Tlaxcala. And there befell a great plague here in Mexico; there was smallpox; and very many of the natives died.

In the year 1521, the Spaniards came once more. They stayed there in Texcoco. After some time they made war, and they vanquished and fought the Mexicans.

In the year 1522, once again the Mexicans gathered themselves and came together, those who had been dispersed and broken up because of the war.

● [797] And the year 1524 was when the twelve Franciscan Fathers arrived to convert the natives of New Spain.

çuma: ioan quimacaque in jxquich in jnetlapaloaia, injn tetech açia, in teucujtlatl, ioan oc cequj.

Auh çan oallamelauh, in njcan mexico, injc açico in ichoatl, don hernando cortes, çan oalmoiauchichiuhtia, auh in motecuçuma, vmpa in quinamjquito in caltenco, in vmpa xolloco, çan quipaccanamjquito: ioan quitlatlauhti, quitlapalo in capitan don hernando cortes, njman quiujcac in vmpa vej tecpan vncan motlalique, in jxquichtin españoles.

Auh in jquexquilhuiioc, in ichoatl capitan oquilpi in motecuçuma:

auh in jcoac oaçico tlatolli, in vmpa atenco: injc oc centlamantin oaçic españoles: in ichoatl capitan oquinnamjquito, cequintin quinuicac españoles, ioan njcan tlaca: auh njcan quicauhtia in don pedro aluarado, ioan oc cequintin españoles in tecpan tlapiaia.

Auh in jquac in oquix ilhuiuh vitzilobuchtli, in ichoatl don p° aluarado, ioan in espanoles in jtlan catca, mjiequintin, quinmictique in mexica, in quilhuiquittiliaia vitzilobuchtli, ic vmpeuh in iauiotl.

Auh in jcoac in ocalmocuep, in capitan: in vmpa atenco, mjiequintin, quinoalhuicac españoles, amo ic motlacaoaltique in mexica, cenca quitototzaia in iauiotl.

Auh in jpan xiuitl 1520 icoac omic in motecuçuma, auh in ichoantin españoles, oquixque tlaxcallan iaque: auh uej cocolitzli muchiuh in njcan mexico, çaçaotioac: ioan cenca mjiequintin mjeque, in njcan tlaca.

In jpan xiuitl 1521, oc ceppa oallaque in españoles, ompa omotlalique, in tetzcuco, uecauhtica quiniauchiuhque, quimpeuhque, quimjcalque, in mexica.

In jpan xiuitl 1522, oc ceppa oalmonechicoque, oalmocentlalique in mexica: in moiauaca in xitinca in jpampa iauiutl

Auh in jpan xiuitl 1524, icoac açico in matlactin vmomen sact francisco padreme, in quinnelhuiquítique in njcan nueua españa tlaca.

1f:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

us around him, and three chieftains and two priests came at once, and they said—" Malinche, forgive us for not coming to Tlaxcala to see you and to bring food, it was not for want of good will but because Mase Escasi and Xicotenga and all Tlaxcala are our enemies, and have said many evil things of us and of the Great Montezuma our Prince, and as though what they said were not enough, they now have the boldness, under your protection, to come armed into our city, and we beg you as a favour to order them to return to their own country, or at least to stay outside in the fields and not to enter our city in such a manner." But as for us they said that we were very welcome. 648

As our Captain saw that what they said was reasonable, he at once sent Pedro de Alvarado and Cristóbal de Olid, the Quartermaster, to ask the Tlaxcalans to put up their huts and ranchos there in the fields, and not to enter the city with us, excepting those who were carrying the cannon, and our friends from Cempoala, and he told them to explain to the Tlaxcalans that the reason why he asked them to do so was that all the Caciques and priests were afraid of them, and that when we left Cholula on our way to Mexico we would send to summon them, and that they were not to be annoyed at what he was doing. When the people of Cholula knew what Cortés had done, they appeared to be much more at ease.

Then Cortés began to make a speech to them, saying that our Lord and King, whose vassals we were, had very great power and held beneath his sway many great princes and Caciques, and that he had sent us to these countries to give them warning, and command them not to worship Idols, nor sacrifice human beings, or eat their flesh, or practice sodomy or other uncleanness, and as the road to Mexico, whither we were going to speak with the Great Montezuma, passed by there, and there was no other shorter road, we had come to visit their city and to treat 648 797● [782 266] [838]

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

648 them as brothers. As other great Caciques had given their ●797 obedience to His Majesty, it would be well that they should give theirs as the others had done.

They replied that we had hardly entered into their country, yet we already ordered them to give up their Teules (for so they called their Idols), and that they could 648 not do it. As to giving their obedience to our King, they were content to do so. And thus they pledged their word, but it was not done before a notary. When this was over we at once began our march towards the City, and so great was the number of people who came out to see us that both the streets and house tops were crowded, and I do not wonder at this for they had never seen men such as we are, nor had they ever seen horses.

They lodged us in some large rooms where we were all together with our friends from Cempoala and the Tlaxcalans who carried the baggage, and they fed us on that day and the next very well and abundantly. I will stop here and go on to say what else happened.

CHAPTER LXXXIII.

How, at the orders of Montezuma, they had planned to kill us in the City of Cholula, and what happened about it.

721 AFTER the people of Cholula had received us in the festive manner already described, and most certainly with [a show of] good will, it presently appeared that Montezuma sent orders to his ambassadors, who were still in our company, to negotiate with the Cholulans that an army of 20,000 men which Montezuma had sent and equipped, should on entering the city, join with them in attacking us by night or by day, get us into a hopeless plight,[1] and bring all

[1] Acapillasen; literally, place us in chapel, i.e., the place where those condemned to death spend their last night.

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

ordered it, they gave back many persons, but they still 648 remained rich, both in gold and mantles, cotton cloth, salt and slaves. Besides this Cortés made them and the people of Cholula friends, and, from what I have since seen and ascertained, that friendship has never been broken.

Furthermore Cortés ordered all the priests and Caciques to bring back the people to the city, and to hold their markets and fairs, and not to have any fear, for no harm would be done to them. They replied that within five days the city would be fully peopled again, for at that time nearly all the inhabitants were in hiding. They said it [643] was necessary that Cortés should appoint a Cacique for them, for their ruler was one of those who had died in the Court, so he asked them to whom the office ought to go, and they said to the brother [of the late Cacique] so Cortés at once appointed him to be Governor, until he should receive other orders.

In addition to this, as soon as he saw the city was 797 reinhabited, and their markets were carried on in safety, he ordered all the priests, captains and other chieftains of that city to assemble, and explained to them very clearly all the matters concerning our holy faith, and told them that they must cease worshipping idols, and must no longer sacrifice human beings or eat their flesh, nor rob one another, nor commit the offences which they were accustomed to commit, and that they could see how their Idols had deceived them, and were evil things not speaking the truth; let them remember the lies which they told only five days ago when seven persons had been sacrificed to them and they promised to give them victory, therefore as all they tell to the priests and to them is altogether evil, he begged them to destroy the Idols and break them in pieces. That if they did not wish to do it themselves we would do it for them. He also ordered them to white-wash a temple, so that we might set up a cross there.

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

797 They immediately did what we asked them in the matter of the cross, and they said that they would remove their Idols, but although they were many times ordered to do it, they delayed. Then the Padre de la Merced said to Cortés that it was going too far, in the beginning, to take away their Idols until they should understand things better, and should see how our expedition to Mexico would turn out, and time would show us what we ought to do in the matter, that for the present the warnings we had given them were sufficient, together with the setting up of the Cross.

361 241 273 I will cease speaking of this and will tell how that city was situated on a plain, in a locality where there were many neighbouring towns, such as Tepeaca, Tlaxcala, Chalco, Tecamachalco, Huexotzingo and many others, so numerous that I will not name them, and it is a land fruitful in maize and other vegetables, and much Chili pepper, and the land is full of Magueys from which they make their wine. They make very good pottery in the 323 438 city of red and black and white clay with various designs, and with it supply Mexico and all the neighbouring provinces as, so to say, do Talavera or Placencia in Spain. 346 At that time there were many high towers in the city which were their Cues or oratories where the Idols stood, especially the Great Cue which was higher than that of Mexico, although the Mexican Cue was very lofty and magnificent. There were courts for the service of the Cues, and, as we understood, they possessed a very great Idol whose name I forget, but among themselves they held it in great reverence, and people came from all parts to sacrifice to it and to hold services like Novenas and to make offerings of property they possessed. I remember that when we entered into that city and saw such white and lofty towers, it looked like Valladolid itself.

000 I must stop talking about this City and all that hap-

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

648 reputation for valour before, (for they had heard of the wars at Potonchan and Tabasco, of Cingapacinga and Tlaxcala, and they called us Teules, which is to call us gods or evil things), from now on they took us for sorcerers, and said that no evil that was planned against us could be so hidden from us that it did not come to our knowledge, and on this account they showed us good will.

346 782 266 I think that the curious reader must be already satiated hearing this story about Cholula and I wish that I had finished writing about it, but I cannot avoid calling to mind the prisons of thick wooden beams which we found in the city, which were full of Indians and boys being fattened so that they could be sacrificed and their flesh eaten. We broke open all these prisons, and Cortés ordered all the Indian prisoners that were confined within them to return to their native countries, and with threats he ordered the Caciques and captains and priests of the city not to imprison any more Indians in that way, and not to eat human flesh. They promised not to do so, but what use were such promises? as they never kept them.

•797 Let us anticipate and say that these were the great cruelties that the Bishop of Chiapas, Fray Bartolomé de las [114] Casas, wrote about and never ceased talking about, asserting that for no reason whatever, or only for our pastime and because we wanted to, we inflicted that punishment, and he even says it so artfully in his book that he would make those believe, who neither saw it themselves, nor know about it, that these and other cruelties about which he writes were true (as he states them) while it is altogether the reverse of true.[1] It did not happen as he describes it. Let the monks of the order of Santo Domingo see what they can read in the book in which he has written it, and they will find it to be very different the one from the other. 797

[1] Blotted out in the original: "I beg your Lordship's pardon for stating it so clearly."—G. G.

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

I also wish to say that some good Franciscan monks, who were the first friars whom his Majesty sent to this New Spain after the Conquest of Mexico, as I shall relate further on, went to Cholula to inform themselves and find out how and in what way that punishment was carried out, and for what reason, and the enquiry that they made was from the same priests and elders of the city, and after fully informing themselves from these very men, they found it to be neither more nor less than what I have written down in this narrative, and not as the Bishop has related it. If perchance we had not inflicted that punishment, our lives would have been in great danger on account of the squadrons and companies of Mexican and Cholulan warriors who were there, and the barricades and breastworks, and if to our misfortune they had killed us there, this New Spain would not have been so speedily conquered, nor would another Armada have dared to have come, and if it did, it would have been under greater difficulty, for the Mexicans would have defended their ports, and they would still have continued in a state of Idolatry.

I have heard a Franciscan Friar called Fray Toribio Motolinea, who led a good life, say that it would have been better if that punishment could have been prevented, and they had not given cause for its being carried out; but, as it had been carried out, it was a good thing that all the Indians of the provinces of New Spain should see and understand that those Idols and all the rest of them were evil and lying, for it showed that all their promises turned out false, and they lost the adoration which the people had hitherto given them, and thenceforth they would not sacrifice to them, nor come on pilgrimages to them from other parts, as they used to do. From that time they did not care for it [the principal Idol] and removed it from the lofty cue where it had stood, and either hid it or broke it up, so

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

797 that it never appeared again, and they have put up another Idol in its place. Let us leave this subject and I will relate what we went on to do.

CHAPTER LXXXIV.

About certain messages and messengers that we sent to the Great Montezuma.

648 As fourteen days had already passed since we had come to Cholula we had nothing more to do there, for we saw that the city was again fully peopled, and that they held their markets, and we had established friendship between them and the people of Tlaxcala; and we had also set up a cross, and informed them about matters concerning our holy faith. But as we saw that the Great Montezuma was secretly sending spies to our camp to enquire and find out what our plans were and if we intended to go on to his city (for he came to know everything very thoroughly through the two Ambassadors who were in our company), our Captain determined to take counsel of certain captains and soldiers, whom he knew to be well disposed towards him (who besides being very valiant, were wise counsellors), because he never did anything without first asking our advice about it. It was agreed that we should send to tell the Great Montezuma, gently and amicably, that in order to carry out the purpose for which our Lord and King had sent us to these parts, (which was only to see him and tell him certain things which would be greatly to his benefit when he understood them), we had crossed many seas and distant lands, and that while we were marching towards his city, his ambassadors had guided us by way of Cholula, where they said the people were his vassals, and for the first two days after our arrival the people treated us very well, but on the next day they had

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

648 Chanpoton, and likewise last year they had brought him news of another Captain who came with four ships, and that each time he had wished to see them, and now that he had us with him he was at our service, and would give us of all that he possessed; that it must indeed be true that we were those of whom his ancestors in years long past had spoken, saying that men would come from where the sun rose to rule over these lands, and that we must be those men, as we had fought so valiantly in the affairs at Potonchan and Tabasco and against the Tlaxcalans; for they had brought him pictures of the battles true to life.

797 Cortés answered him through our interpreters who always accompanied him, especially Doña Marina, and said to him that he and all of us did not know how to repay him the great favours we received from him every day. It was true that we came from where the sun rose, and were the vassals and servants of a great Prince called the Emperor Don Carlos, who held beneath his sway many and great princes, and that the Emperor having heard of him and what a great prince he was, had sent us to these parts to see him, and to beg them to become Christians, the same as our Emperor and all of us, so that his soul and those of all his vassals might be saved. Later on he would further explain how and in what manner this should be done, and how we worship one only true God, and who He is, and many other good things which he should listen to, such as he had already told to his ambassadors Tendile, and Pitalpitoque and Quintalbor when we were on the sand dunes. When this conference was over, the Great Montezuma had already at hand some very rich golden jewels, of many patterns, which he gave to our Captain, and in the same manner to each one of our Captains he gave trifles of gold, and three loads of mantles of rich feather work, and to the soldiers also he gave to each one two loads of mantles, and he did it cheerfully and in every way he seemed to be a great Prince. When these things had been distributed, he asked Cortés if we were all brethren and vassals of our great Emperor, and Cortés replied yes, we were brothers in affection and friendship, and persons of great distinction, and servants of our great King and Prince. Further polite speeches passed between Montezuma and Cortés, and as this was the first time he had come to visit us, and so as not to be wearisome, they ceased talking. Montezuma had ordered his stewards that, according to our own use and customs in all things, we should be provided with maize and [grinding] stones, and women to make bread, and fowls and fruit, and much fodder for the horses. Then Montezuma took leave of our Captain and all of us with the greatest courtesy, and we went out with him as far as the street. Cortés ordered us not to go far from our quarters for the present, until we knew better what was expedient. I will stop here and go on to tell what happened later.

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

797 ● [252]

CHAPTER XC.

How on the following day our Captain Cortés went to see the Great Montezuma, and about a certain conversation that took place.

THE next day Cortés decided to go to Montezuma's palace, and he first sent to find out what he intended doing and to let him know that we were coming. He took with him four captains, namely Pedro de Alvarado Juan Velásquez de Leon, Diego de Ordás, and Gonzalo de Sandoval, and five of us soldiers also went with him.

When Montezuma knew of our coming he advanced to the middle of the hall to receive us, accompanied by many of his nephews, for no other chiefs were permitted to enter or hold communication with Montezuma where he then was, unless it were on important business. Cortés and he paid the greatest reverence to each other and then they took one another by the hand and Montezuma made him sit down on his couch[1] on his right hand, and he also bade all of us to be seated on seats which he ordered to be brought.

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

•797

Then Cortés began to make an explanation through our interpreters Doña Marina and Aguilar, and said that he and all of us were rested, and that in coming to see and converse with such a great Prince as he was, we had completed the journey and fulfilled the command which our great King and Prince had laid on us. But what he chiefly came to say on behalf of our Lord God had already been brought to his [Montezuma's] knowledge through his ambassadors, Tendile, Pitalpitoque and Quintalbor, at the time when he did us the favour to send the golden sun and moon to the sand dunes; for we told them then that we were Christians and worshipped one true and only God, named Jesus Christ, who suffered death and passion to save us, and we told them that a cross (when they asked us why we worshipped it) was a sign of the other Cross on which our Lord God was crucified for our salvation, and that the death and passion which He suffered was for the salvation of the whole human race, which was lost, and that this our God rose on the third day and is now in heaven, and it is He who made the heavens and the earth, the sea and the sands, and created all the things there are in the world, and He sends the rain and the dew, and nothing happens in the world without His holy will. That we believe in Him and worship Him, but that those whom they look upon as gods are not so, but are devils, which are evil things, and if their looks are bad their deeds are worse, and they could

---

Estrado.

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

see that they were evil and of little worth, for where we had set up crosses such as those his ambassadors had seen, they dared not appear before them, through fear of them, and that as time went on they would notice this. [797]

The favour he now begged of him was his attention to the words that he now wished to tell him; then he explained to him very clearly about the creation of the world, and how we are all brothers, sons of one father and one mother who were called Adam and Eve, and how such a brother as our great Emperor, grieving for the perdition of so many souls, such as those which their idols were leading to Hell, where they burn in living flames, had sent us, so that after what he [Montezuma] had now heard he would put a stop to it and they would no longer adore these Idols or sacrifice Indian men and women to them, for we were all brethren, nor should they commit sodomy or thefts. He also told them that, in course of time, our Lord and King would send some men who among us lead very holy lives, much better than we do, who will explain to them all about it, for at present we merely came to give them due warning, and so he prayed him to do what he was asked and carry it into effect.

As Montezuma appeared to wish to reply, Cortés broke off his argument, and to all of us who were with him he said: "with this we have done our duty considering it is the first attempt."

Montezuma replied—"Señor Malinche, I have understood your words and arguments very well before now, from what you said to my servants at the sand dunes, this about three Gods and the Cross, and all those things that you have preached in the towns through which you have come. We have not made any answer to it because here throughout all time we have worshipped our own gods, and thought they were good, as no doubt yours are, so do not trouble to speak to us any more about them at present. Regarding the creation of the world, we have held the same [773]

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

797 773 belief for ages past, and for this reason we take it for certain that you are those whom out ancestors predicted would come from the direction of the sunrise. As for your great King, I feel that I am indebted to him, and I will give him of what I possess, for as I have already said, two years ago I heard of the Captains who came in ships from the direction in which you came, and they said that they were the servants of this your great King, and I wish to know if you are all one and the same.

648 Cortés replied, Yes, that we were all brethren and servants of our Emperor, and that those men came to examine the way and the seas and the ports so as to know them well in order that we might follow as we had done. Montezuma was referring to the expeditions of Francisco Hernández de Córdova and of Grijalva, when we first came on voyages of discovery, and he said that ever since that time he had wished to capture some of those men who had come so as to keep them in his kingdoms and cities and to do them honour, and his gods had now fulfilled his desires, for now that we were in his home, which we might call our own, we should rejoice and take our rest for there we should be well treated. And if he had on other occasions sent to say that we should not enter his city, it was not of his free will, but because his vassals were afraid, for they said that we shot out flashes of lightning, and killed many Indians with our horses, and that we were angry Teules, and other childish stories, and now that he had seen our persons and knew we were of flesh and bone, and had sound sense, and that we were very valiant, for these reasons he held us in much higher regard than he did from their reports, and he would share his possessions with us. Then Cortés and all of us answered that we thanked him sincerely for such signal good will, and Montezuma said, laughing, for he was very merry in his princely way of speaking: "Malinche, I know very

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

out of the city, as I shall tell later on, and that of 361
Tepeaquilla,[1] and we saw the fresh water that comes from [312] Chapultepec which supplies the city, and we saw the bridges on the three causeways which were built at certain distances apart through which the water of the lake flowed in and out from one side to the other, and we beheld on [505] that great lake a great multitude of canoes, some coming with supplies of food and others returning loaded with cargoes of merchandise; and we saw that from every house of that great city and of all the other cities that were built in the water it was impossible to pass from house to house, except by drawbridges which were made of wood or in canoes; and we saw in those cities Cues and oratories like towers and fortresses and all gleaming white, and it was a wonderful thing to behold; then the houses with flat roofs, and on the causeways other small towers and oratories which were like fortresses.

After having examined and considered all that we had 361 seen we turned to look at the great market place and the 443 crowds of people that were in it, some buying and others selling, so that the murmur and hum of their voices and words that they used could be heard more than a league off. Some of the soldiers among us who had been in many parts of the world, in Constantinople, and all over Italy, and in Rome, said that so large a market place and so full of people, and so well regulated and arranged, they had never beheld before.

Let us leave this, and return to our Captain, who said to 797 Fray Bartolomé de Olmedo, who has often been mentioned by me, and who happened to be near by him: "It seems to me, Señor Padre, that it would be a good thing to throw out a feeler to Montezuma, as to whether he would allow us to build our church here"; and the Padre replied that [1] Guadalupe.

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

•797 it would be a good thing if it were successful, but it seemed to him that it was not quite a suitable time to speak about it, for Montezuma did not appear to be inclined to do such a thing.

346 778 Then our Cortés said to Montezuma through the interpreter Doña Marina: "Your Highness is indeed a very great prince and worthy of even greater things. We are rejoiced to see your cities, and as we are here in your temple, what I now beg as a favour is that you will show us your gods and Teules. Montezuma replied that he must first speak with his high priests, and when he had spoken to them he said that we might enter into a small tower and apartment, a sort of hall, where there were two altars, with very richly carved boardings on the top of the roof. On each altar were two figures, like giants with very tall bodies and very fat, and the first which stood on the [776] right hand they said was the figure of Huichilobos their god of War; it had a very broad face and monstrous and terrible eyes, and the whole of his body was covered with precious stones, and gold and pearls, and with seed pearls [381 824] stuck on with a paste that they make in this country out of a sort of root, and all the body and head was covered with it, and the body was girdled by great snakes made of gold and precious stones, and in one hand he held a bow and in the other some arrows. And another small idol that stood by him, they said was his page, and he held a short lance and a shield richly decorated with gold and stones. Huichilobos had round his neck some Indians' faces and other things like hearts of Indians, the former made of gold and the latter of silver, with many precious blue stones.

There were some braziers with incense which they call copal, and in them they were burning the hearts of the three Indians whom they had sacrificed that day, and they had made the sacrifice with smoke and copal. All the walls

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

a splendid Cue; but it is of another form from that of Mexico although the courts are the same, very large with a double wall. I may add that the Cue in the City of Texcoco was very lofty, having one hundred and seventeen steps, and the Courts were broad and fine, shaped in a different form from the others. It is a laughable matter that every province had its Idols and those of one province or city were of no use to the others, thus they had an infinite number of Idols and they made sacrifices to them all. 346

After our Captain and all of us were tired of walking about and seeing such a diversity of Idols and their sacrifices, we returned to our quarters, all the time accompanied by many Caciques and chieftains whom Montezuma sent with us. I will stop here and go on to say what more we did. ooo

---

CHAPTER XCIII.

How we made our Church and altar in our quarters and placed a Cross outside the chamber, and what else happened, and how we found the hall and treasure chamber of Montezuma's father, and how we decided to seize Montezuma.

WHEN our Captain and the Friar of the Order of Mercy saw that Montezuma was not willing that we should set up a cross on the Temple of Huichilobos nor build a church there, and because, ever since we entered this city of Mexico, when Mass was said, we had to place an altar on tables and then to dismantle it again, it was decided that we should ask Montezuma's stewards for masons so that we could make a church in our quarters. 797

The stewards said that they would tell Montezuma of our wishes, and our Captain also sent to tell him so by Doña Marina and Aguilar and his page Orteguilla, who

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

797 already understood something of the language, and Montezuma gave his permission and ordered us to be supplied with all the material we needed. In two days we had our church finished and the holy cross set up in front of our apartments, and Mass was said there every day until the wine gave out. As Cortés and some of the other Captains and the Friar had been ill during the war in Tlaxcala, they made the wine that we had for Mass go too fast, but after it was all finished we [still] went to the church daily and prayed on our knees before the altar and images, for one reason, because we were obliged to do so as Christians and it was a good habit, and for another reason, in order that Montezuma and all his Captains should observe it, and should witness our adoration and see us on our knees before the Cross, especially when we intoned the Ave Maria, so that it might incline them towards it.

652 When we were all assembled in those chambers, as it was our habit to inquire into and want to know everything, while we were looking for the best and most convenient site to place the altar, two of our soldiers, one of whom was a carpenter, named Alonzo Yañes, noticed on one of the walls marks showing that there had been a door there, and that it had been closed up and carefully plastered over and burnished. Now as there was a rumour and we had heard the story that Montezuma kept the treasure of his father Axayaca in that building, it was suspected that it might be in this chamber which had been closed up and cemented only a few days before. Yañes spoke about it to Juan Velásquez de Leon and Francisco de Lugo, who were Captains and relations of mine, and Alonzo Yañes had attached himself to their company as a servant, and those Captains told the story to Cortés, and the door was secretly opened. When it was open Cortés and some of his Captains went in first, and they saw such a time on Gonzalo Mejía and Cortés were not very good friends. I have called all this to mind although it is outside my story, so that one may see that Cortés, under colour of doing justice, so that we should fear him, was full of craftiness, and I will leave off here.

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

CHAPTER CVII.

How the Great Montezuma told Cortés that he wished to give him one of his daughters in marriage, and what Cortés answered. Nevertheless he took her and they served and honoured her as was becoming to the daughter of such a Prince.

I HAVE many times said that Cortés and all of us always endeavoured to please and serve Montezuma and to pay him court. One day Montezuma said, "Look here, Malinche, I love you so much that I want to give you one of my daughters, who is very beautiful, so that you can marry her and treat her as your legitimate wife"; Cortés doffed his cap in thanks, and said that it was a great favour that Montezuma was conferring on him, but that he was already married and had a wife, and that among us we were not permitted to have more than one wife, he would however keep her [Montezuma's daughter] in the rank to which the daughter of so great a prince was entitled, but that first of all he desired her to become a Christian, as other ladies, the daughters of Chieftains, already were; and to this Montezuma consented.

The Great Montezuma always showed his accustomed good will to us, but from one day to the other he never ceased his sacrifices at which human beings were killed, and Cortés tried to dissuade him from this but met with no success. So Cortés took counsel with his captains as to what should be done in the matter, for he did not dare to put an end to it for fear of a rising in the City and of the priests who were in charge of Huichilobos. The advice that the captains and soldiers gave about this was, that he should pretend that he wished to go and throw down the Idols from the lofty temples of Huichilobos, and that if we saw that they intended to defend them, and were going to rise in revolt, that we should then demand permission to set up an altar inside the Great Cue, and place a Crucifix there and an image of Our Lady. When this was settled Cortés went to the Palace where Montezuma was imprisoned and took seven captains and soldiers with him, and said to Montezuma: "Señor, I have often asked you not to sacrifice any more human beings to your gods who are deceiving you, and you will not cease doing it, I wish you to know that all my companions and these captains who are with me have come to beg you to give them leave to remove the gods from your temple and put our Lady Santa Maria and a Cross in their place, and, if you will not give them leave now, they will go and remove them, and I would not like them to kill any priests."

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

797

When Montezuma heard those words and saw that the Captains were rather angry, he said, "Oh! Malinche, how can you wish to destroy the city entirely! for our gods are very angry with us, and I do not know that they will stop even at your lives, what I pray you to do for the present is to be patient, and I will send to summon all the priests and I will see their reply." When Cortés heard this he made a sign that he wished to speak quite privately to Montezuma without the presence of the captains whom he had brought in his company, so he ordered them to go out and leave him alone. When they had left the hall he said to Montezuma, that in order to prevent this affair from becoming known and causing a disturbance and becoming an offence to the priests on account of their Idols being overturned, that he would arrange with these Captains to the effect that they should do nothing of the sort, provided they were given an apartment in the Great Cue where they might make an altar on which to place the Image of Our Lady and set up a Cross, and that as time went on it would be made plain how good and advantageous it was for their souls, and for giving them health and good harvests and prosperity. Then Montezuma, with sighs and a very sorrowful countenance, said that he would confer with his priests. After much discussion had taken place about it, on the [1] day of the month of [1] in the year fifteen hundred and nineteen, this was done and our altars and an image of Our Lady and a Cross were set up, apart from their curséd Idols, with great reverence and with thanks to God from all of us, and the Padre de la Merced chanted Mass, assisted by the priest Juan Díaz and many of our soldiers. Our captain ordered an old soldier to be stationed there as guardian, and begged Montezuma to order the priests not to touch the altar, but only to keep it swept and to burn incense and keep wax candles burning there by day and night, and to decorate it with branches and flowers.

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

I will leave off here and say what it led to.

CHAPTER CVIII.

How the great Montezuma told our Captain Cortés to leave Mexico with all his soldiers, for all the Caciques and priests wanted to rise and wage war on us until they killed us, for so it had been decreed and advised by their Idols, and what Cortés did about it.

THERE was never a time when we were not subject to surprises of such a kind, that had our Lord God not assisted us, they would have cost us our lives. Thus as real import and value of landed concessions, was taken advantage of to deprive them of such subsequently, either through litigation or through barter for worthless trifles.[141] Unacquainted with the new order of things suddenly forced upon them, unable therefore to profit by it for subsistence, the natives of Mexico could not help being degraded instead of elevated and bettered in condition by such a transition which displaced them, in the course of a few years, from a state of tribal and communal society into one of civilization.[142] 648 178

[1] Blank spaces in the original.

15:Bandelier E-4 (no date)1880 NU7 Aztec NU7

Consequently a state of disorganization began to prevail, which threatened to ruin the country. At the same time, however, while the Indians, forlorn in the maze of difficulties in which their conquerors themselves also floundered about, were in a perfectly helpless condition, a sudden protection and relief arose to them. On the 13th of May, 1524, "one day previous to the vigils of Pentecost," there landed at San Juan de Ulúa, a cluster of twelve Franciscan friars, sent to Mexico in response to the original call of Cortès, for the purpose of converting the Indians.[143] These monks 797

[141] Zurita (pp. 63 and 64). Mendieta (Letter, in Col. de Doc. II).

[142] The Europeans opened a wide field for activity. They were superior to the Mexican aborigines, not only in organization, but especially in mechanical arts and inventions for the purpose of subsistence. It was now required of the Indians to suddenly take hold of all these improvements, which it had taken the Europeans centuries upon centuries to secure through long experimenting,— and to become familiar with them in a short time, as well as to feel happy and contented at once under a state of society which tore asunder all those ties of kinship forming, since time immemorial, the basis of their organization. It was asking too much of them altogether, and if besides what was asked was even enforced violently,— then the degrading consequences could not be avoided. Therefore, the most ardent advocates of the Indian cause took great care to insist upon letting the natives alone in their communities; even prohibiting the access thereto to the Spanish colonists. Bartolomé de las Casas, in his joint memorial with Fray Domingo de Santa Tomás, in favor of the Indians of Peru, written about 1560 ("Col. de Doc." Bibliographical notes, p. XLII,) says: "Lo segundo, que porque los Españoles son siempre del bien de los indios contrarios, y en especial lo son y han de ser impedidores de aqueste negocio y concierto, que han de estorbar por cuantas vias pudieren que los indios no paguen à S. M. ni puedan pagar este servicio; por tanto es necesario que se prohiba que ningun comendero èntre por ninguna causa ni razon en los pueblos de los indios que tienen encomendados, ni sus mujeres, que son las mas crueles y perniciosas, ni negro, ni criado, ni otra persona suya (p. 233)." Alonzo de Zurita, in his memorial written at Mexico between 1554 and 1564 ("Col. de Doc.," II, p. XLVII), insists strongly upon keeping the Indians apart from the Whites (p. 233). In regard to the actual degradation, see Mendieta's letter, of 1 Jan'y, 1562 ("Col. de Doc.," II, p. 532). Motolinia ("Hist. de los Indios de N. España," Trat. I, cap. I).

[143] The Franciscan friars obtained their first concession from Pope Leo X, by a bull dated 25 April, 1521 (Mendieta, lib. III, cap. V, pp. 185–190). This bull was executed in favor of Fray Francisco de Quiñones (de los Angeles), and Fray Juan Clapion. But these fathers never reached Mexico. Previous to it, three Flemish missionaries, Fray Juan de Tecto, Fray Juan de Aora, and Fray Pedro of Ghent had gone to New Spain

15:Bandelier E-4 (no date)1880 NU7 Aztec NU7

797 fully realized what was asked of them, but they went still further by becoming, not only the spiritual advisers, but actually the material protectors, of the aborigines. Basing upon the authority conferred by the Pontiff at Rome, they publicly denounced, not only the individual acts of the Spaniards, but even those of the royal officers.[144] This could not fail to incite the Indians to resistance, and when the conquerors resorted to violence, not only did the oppressed find refuge and protection in the newly erected convents, but one of the most distinguished Franciscans, Fray Toribio, of Benavent (Motolinia), even notified the agents of the royal "audiencia,"—who had come to Huexotzinco to seize the fugitives and bring them to justice,—to leave the settlement forthwith, threatening, in case of non-compliance, with excommunication.[145]

The protection thus afforded would have been far more efficacious, had the good Friars understood at that time the true nature of Indian land tenure, and their usages with respect to the distribution of the soil. They might then have accompanied their violent protests with a rational remedy. Restoration of the ancient customs, limiting the Indian clusters to their territories actually tilled, without disturbing their original organization, would have been the proper way. Alongside of such communities, ample room would have remained for the settlements of whites, and the unavoidable contact between both races would have changed slowly and more permanently the condition of the natives, lifting them up gradually to the practical appreciation of ideas of civilization. But of their own accord, and without Papal sanction. But, while Fray Pedro de Gante, for instance, rendered valuable service to science through one of his letters, it is among the "twelve apostles of Mexico" that we find those who have equally combined heroism in protecting the Indians, with due regard to the conservation of their memories and historical traditions. These "twelve" were: Fray Martin de Valencia, Fray Francisco de Soto, Fray Martin de Coruña, Fr. Juan Xuarez, Fray Antonio de Ciudad Rodrigo, Fr. Toribio of Benavente, Fr. García de Cisneros, Fr. Luis de Fuensalida, Fr. Juan de Ribas, Fr. Francisco Ximenez. Fr. Andrés de Cordoba, Fray Juan de Palos (Mendieta, lib. III, cap. X. also cap. XI, etc.). We shall have further occasion to use their writings, therefore this humble tribute of gratitude to their memories.

[144] Compare the beautiful introduction to Motolinia's "Historia de los Indios de Nueva-España," by Sr. José F. Ramirez, in Sr. Icazbalceta's "Col. de Documentos" (Vol. I, Introd. p. XLVII to p. I), which quotes an act of Gonzalo de Salazar, 28 July, 1525 (contained in the first "Libro de Cabildo" of Mexico), containing a complaint, against the Franciscan friars for "meddling with matters of civil jurisdiction and government." See also the report of Herrera about the convention ("Junta") at Barcelona, in Spain in 1529 (Dec. IV, lib. VI, cap. XI, p. 118, etc).

[145] Introduction to Motolinia ("Col. de Doc.," Vol. I, p. L). Torquemada (Lib. XV, cap. XXII, pp. 56, 57-58).

15:Bandelier E-4 (no date)1880 NU7 Aztec NU7

even in their letter to the emperor, dated 1st of September, 1526,[146] 797 the "apostles of Mexico" insisted upon a thorough establishment of what Mr. Prescott so justly calls the "vicious" system of Repartimientos, representing that an immediate and thorough intermingling of both races alone could promote the interests of conversion.[147]

Still, an improvement in the system gradually took place. The 648 civil and criminal jurisdiction over the natives, which formerly had been vested in each landholder,[148] was placed in the hands of special officers of the crown. It was directed that the owner should reside on his property, that the Indians could not be separated from the soil and finally, on the 20th of November, 1542, the "new laws and ordonnances for the government of the Indies" were promulgated, which contained such restrictions upon the "Repartimientos," that their further extension and increase was rendered impossible, and the number of those existing, greatly limited. The Indians themselves were declared direct vassals to the crown of Spain.[149]

Although in many parts of Spanish America these laws were but "obeyed though not executed,"[150] they still called forth a [146] "Col. de Documentos" (Vol. II, pp. 155, 156 and 157). Joint letter of Franciscan and Dominican monks (p. 549, etc.).

[147] "Col. de Doc.," II, pp. 155–157, 549, etc.; also letter of Fray Domingo de Betanzos (pp. 190–197). Notwithstanding the agreement between Franciscan and Dominican monks on that point, Las Casas continued to protest in the most vehement manner, against the "Repartimiento." See his memorial, jointly with Fray Domingo de Santo Tomás (Col. II, pp. 231–236), and to the council of the Indies, of 1562 or 1563 (Col. II, pp. 505–508), in which he says: "Thirdly, that the encomiendas or repartimientos of Indians are iniquitous, per se wrong, therefore tyrannical, and such administration is tyrannical also. Fourth, that such as give them commit a mortal sin, like those who maintain them, and if they do not give them up, they cannot be saved."

[148] It was customary for each "encomendero" to exercise civil and criminal jurisdiction within his "Repartimiento."

[149] "Nuevas Leyes y Ordenanzas para la Gobernacion de las Indias" (Col. de Doc., II, pp. 204–227), dated Valladolid (Spain), 4 June, 1543, promulgated at Mexico, 24 March, 1544. Herrera (Dec. VII, lib. VI, cap. V, pp. 110–113). These new laws were the cause of bloody disturbances in Spanish America. Gomara (Vedia I, pp. 249 and 250).

[150] "Se obedece, pero no se cumple." There are many evidences of this saying having been put in actual practice. Joaquin Acosta ("Compendio historico del Descubrimiento y de la Colonizacion de Nueva Granada," 1848, cap. XVII, p. 316). At the arrival of the Licentiate Armendaris in Cauca, sent to enforce the new laws, Belalcazar at once had them promulgated, but took the responsibility of forthwith also suspending their execution. He wrote to the King from Cali, in 1544, in regard to his action. Acosta says: "Entonces comenzó en el nuevo mundo Español á campear la formula irrisoria de se obedece, pero no se cumple; con que se eludian las ordenes que no les convenia ejecutar á los funcionarios de aquellas apartados comarcas." Herrera (Dec. VII, lib. VII, cap. XXIII, pp. 157 and 158).

16:Bandelier E-4 (no date)1880 NU7 Aztec NU7

When the Mexicans, thus constituting a migratory cluster of 174
kins, reached the present central valley of Mexico, they found it occupied by a number of tribes of the same language as their own, though dialectically varied. The arrival of the new-comers was to those who had already settled, a matter of either war or of adoption. Adoption became very difficult, as well on account of the number of the immigrants as of the rivalry between already settled tribes. Therefore the Mexicans were tossed to and fro, until at last the straggling remnant found a shelter on some dry patches protruding from the marsh along which the other tribes had formed their settlements.

This settlement occurred about 196 years previous to the Spanish conquest, and it limits therefore the time, within which the nombres de sus Conductores." What the unfortunate Italian Cavaliere here says of the Toltecs, is applicable to all the other branches of the Nahuatl stock, and bears also on the four "Carriers of the God," under discussion.

Veytia affirms (Cap. XIII, p. 110, lib. II), that after the election of the Huitzilihuitl mentioned in my note 36, the god Huitzilopochtli "did not dare to claim the government of the people." Is this an indication to the effect that the four "priests" exercised a military command?

Referring to note 29, concerning the four names of the years and leading days in the Mexican and Central American Calendars, and their probable connection with as many very ancient kinships, I beg leave to add here some additional data in regard to the singular part played by the number four, in Central American and Mexican mythology and earliest tradition. In note 27, I have already alluded to the four original pairs, as mentioned by the "Popol-Vuh" as well as by Sahagun. Previous to the creation of the four men, the "Popol-Vuh" has the following remarkable passage: (Part III, cap. I, pp. 195-197), "In Paxti and in Cayalá, as this place is called, there came the ears of yellow and of white corn. These are the names of the barbarians (? Chicop), who went after subsistence: the fox (Yac), the wolf (Utiu) the parrot (Qel), and the raven (Hoh), four barbarians (?) who brought them the news of the ears of yellow corn and of white corn which grew in Paxil, and who showed them the road to Paxil." "There they found at last the nourishment which went into the flesh of man made, of man formed, this was his blood, it became the blood of man, this corn which went into him by the care of him who engenders and of him who gives being." This QQuiché tale of four animals or "barbarians" (the latter is an interpretation of Mr. Brasseur, since "chicop" signifies simply a beast) carrying the material out of which man was made, also finds an equivalent in Mexican traditions, as reported by Sahagun (Lib. X, cap. XXIX, § 12, p. 140), of four wise men who remained in the earthly paradise of "Tamoanchan" inventing there "judicial astrology, and the art of interpreting dreams. They composed the account of the days, of the nights, of the hours, and the differences of time, which were kept while the chiefs of the Toltecs, of the Mexicans, and of the Chichimecs ruled and governed." "Tamoanchan" as paradise, is strictly equivalent to "Paxil in Cayalá" of the QQuiché. The tradition of the four "Tutul-Xiu" among the maya of Yucatan, may also be classed among these tales. "Series of Katunes." "Epochs of Maya History." "This is the Series of Katunes in Maya." ("helo lai u Tvolan Katunili Tu Mayab") in Mr. Brasseur's ("Relation des choses du Yucatan") also in J. L. Stephens ("Travels in Yucatan," Vol. II, p. 465, appendix.) Also Durán (Cap. XXVII, pp. 222, 224).

[801 173]

[*] Tylor ("Early History of Mankind," Edition of 1878, p. 165). "Super-stitio" or "Standing Over,"—the German "Aberglaube" in the sense of "what has remained."

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

Bird," were the embodied spirits of young growth and, by 776 analogy, youth and the games. These had as male counterparts such gods as Cinteotl, "Maize God," Xochipilli,* "Flower Prince" and Macuilxochitl, "Four Flower," whose functions, identified with growth, youth and games, are almost synonymous. (See Plates 31; 56, top left; 57, bottom left.)

About the maguey plant revolved another cult embracing 776
the goddess Mayauel, who represented the plant and whose 802 four hundred sons were associated with pulque. According 273 to some accounts, the various styles of drunkenness were recorded in terms of these gods or their associated animal, the rabbit. Four hundred rabbits stood for complete drunkenness, while fifteen or twenty suggested mere conviviality. The chief of these pulque gods was called "Two Rabbit," after his day in the almanac, and another, Tepoztecatl, was the tribal god of Tepoztlan, honored by a temple placed high in the mountains of Morelos.

The gods of the earth and death were highly important, 776 since growth takes place in the earth and the dead are received there. The sun on rising seems to be born in the earth and at its setting to be hidden by it, thus passing apparently to the world of the dead. The gods and goddesses associated with the earth had significance for the solar cults as well as for growth and fertility.

Tlaltecuhtli, "Lord of the Earth," was depicted as a male monster of horrifying aspect, partaking of the attributes of a toad and an alligator. His open mouth could consume even [821] the sun, since the setting sun passed into the earth, according to Azteç astronomical ideas. The goddesses, however, seem

*Sho-chee-pe'e-ly.

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

ing was pictographic and was arriving at the stage of syllabic phonetics, which is an important part of the hieroglyphic writing of Egypt. There was no alphabet, but a picture of an animal or thing could be combined with the picture of another animal or thing to give a third meaning in terms of its sound value, much like our method of rebus writing. We could write: "I can be hospitable," in terms of the sounds given to pictures of an eye, a tin can, a bee, a horse, a hole in the ground and a table. The Aztecs wrote the name of their capital by drawing stone tena from which sprouted a nopal cactus, nochtli, or the town Pantepec, by drawing a flag, pantli, on a conventionalized hill, tepec. Color, position, puns and abbreviations all contributed to recording sounds by this means. Conventionalized signs, like footprints to show travel or movement, a shield and club for war, a bundled corpse for death, gave simple connotations of action.[19] (See Fig. 2.)

Aztec writing offered no way of making general statements or expressing abstract ideas. Yet the full accounts of historical events, set down after the Conquest in Spanish or Nahuatl, indicate that oral traditions, possibly learned as a chant or saga, supplemented these ideographic records.

Their numerical system was vigesimal. The Aztecs counted by twenties where we count by tens. They indicated quantities up to twenty by the requisite number of dots, although in the Mixteca this method was abridged by using bars to represent groups of five. The Aztecs used a flag to indicate twenty, repeating it for quantities up to four hundred, while a sign like a fir tree, meaning numerous as hairs, signified four hundred (20 × 20). The next unit, eight thousand (20 × 20 × 20), was indicated by a bag, referring to the almost innumerable contents of a sack of cacao beans. (See Fig. 2.)

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

802

FIG. 2. AZTEC NUMBERS AND METHODS OF ENUMERATION

a. one, a dot or finger b. twenty, a flag c. four hundred, a sign denoting hairs d. eight thousand, a bag e. ten masks of precious stone f. twenty bags of cochineal dye g. one hundred bags of cacao h. four hundred bales of cotton i. four hundred jars of honey of tuna j. eight thousand leaf-bundles of copal gum k. twenty baskets each containing one thousand six hundred ground cacao nibs l. four hundred and two cotton blankets of this type

A post-Conquest manuscript shows devices that may not have been of native origin but European adaptations of the Aztec system. For example, fractions are shown by blacking in segments of a quarter, a half or three quarters of a disk. Similarly fives and multiples of five are indicated by coloring the requisite spaces in the flag of the sign for twenty, and hundreds by showing the proportionate lines in the four-hundred symbol.[20]

175 Aztec histories consisted of annals of ancient times, contemporary events, year counts, accounts compiled yearly, specific records for each year, books of each day and day-by-day counts or diaries.[21] Some of the ancient and contemporary histories have been published, but none of

15:Bandelier E-4 (no date)1880 NU7 Aztec NU7

651 The second class was called "tlatoca-tlalli"—land of the speak-423 ers. Of these there was but one tract in each tribe, which was to be "four-hundred of their measures long on each side, each measure being equal to three Castilian rods."[76] The crops raised on such went exclusively to the requirements of the household at the "tecpan," comprising the head-chief and his family with the assistants.[77] The tract was worked in turn by the other members called Tecpanpouhqui, or Tecpantlaca, which signifies: people of the palace and renters of the King. Such were held to keep in repair the royal palaces, clean the gardens, and to attend to the cleanliness and to the necessities of the royal palaces. They were regarded with much respect, as people most directly connected with the houses of the King. When the Lord sallied forth, they accompanied him, and they paid no other tribute but bouquets (Hamilletes," flower-bunches) and birds of all kind, which they offered to the King. Such lands descended from father to son, but they could not sell them, nor dispose of them in any way, and if one of them died without heirs, or left the place, his house and lands remained for those of his kin ("parcialidad") to put another in his place, according to the commands of the King, or of the Lord."—Herrera (Dec. III, lib. cap. XV, p. 135).—Veytia (Lib. III, cap. VI, p. 196). "Besides these each pueblo also had other kinds of lands called tecpantlalli, or lands of the palace or rentals of the chief, because its crops also went integrally towards the constructions and repairs of the palaces of the Kings, and towards other expenses aside from the sustenance. The people who cultivated them were also plebeians, but they were set apart for it in each place, and were called tecpanpuhque or tecplantlaca, that is, people pertaining to the palaces, and they could not work any other lands." Ixtlilxochitl ("Hist. des Chichimèques cap. XXXV, p. 242. "There were others known by the name of Tecpantlali, or lands which depend from the palaces of the Lords. The Indians tilling them were called tecpanpouhque, or people connected with the palaces of the Lords"). Bustamante ("Tezcoco," etc., Parte III, cap. V, pp. 233 and 234). Clavigero (Lib. VII, cap. XIV). "The ownership of the crownlands, called Tecpantlalli, remained in the King, but certain gentlemen called Tecpanpouhque or Tecpantlaca, i.e. people of the palace, had the enjoyment thereof. These paid no tribute but flowers and certain birds which they offered to the King in token of allegiance. But they were obligated to keep the royal palace in repair, or to construct new ones if needed; to tend to the royal gardens, and to care for the vassals in their district. It was their duty to attend court, to escort the King, if he appeared in public; and thus they were highly considered. If one of them died, his son succeeded in all his duties, but he lost his rights by removing from the place, in which case the King gave him the use of another tract, or left it to the community, in whose area the land lay, to assign to him another piece."

The above quotations show conclusively that the soil of the "tecpantlalli" was held and vested in the King, and only the crops went to certain official purposes. The occupants thereof were not serfs, since it is implied that they might remove at their pleasure, but, as any other members of a calpulli, in accordance with what we shall hereafter show, they lost by removal their right of use to that particular tract. They were properly the "official artisans."

[80a] [76] Ixtlilxochitl (Hist. des Chichim," cap. XXXV, p. 242). Vedia (Lib. III, cap. VI, p. 196). "This had to be four-hundred of their measures in square ('encuadro,' each side long); each one of these being equal to three castilian rods. . . ." See "Art of War" (p. 944, note 183). "The rod" (vara) is equal to 2.78209 feet English (Guyot).

[77] From "tlatoca" speakers, or "tlatoani" speaker, and "tlalli." Simancas M. S. S. on the customs of succession ("Recueil de Pièces, etc." p. 223). Herrera (Dec. III, lib. IV, cap. XVII, p. 136). "There were other kinds of lands that were attached to the lordship (office?), which they called of the lordship, and of these the Lords could not dispo e, and rented them to whom they pleased, drawing much rent from them,

[Errata, should be "Kin". See 16; Bandelier, cat. 116, p. 663, Note 216. - Analyst]

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

CHAPTER V

THE AZTEC PERIOD

In which is recorded the history of the Tenochcas and the political background of Aztec civilization

THE CHICHIMEC PERIOD witnessed invasion of the Valley 174 of Mexico by various tribes and the gradual domination of these tribes by a culture and manner of life that seems to have emanated from Puebla and northern Oaxaca. The basic political unit consisted of a tribe resident in a town supporting itself from its own land with the supplement, if possible, of supplies derived from the tribute payments of vassals. At the head of the state was a chief of lineage who also performed ecclesiastical functions. Craftsmanship was highly skilled, and trade flourished to furnish raw materials for the artisans. This productivity, however, was directed toward religion and ritual rather than the creation of personal wealth. Religion was an elaborate polytheism based on nature worship, with some god or gods singled out for special adoration, but the working of the tonalpohualli,* or sacred almanac, brought the full force of divine powers to aid man in his life on earth. (See Plate 29.)

The history of the Tenochcas, the Mexico City Aztecs, 173 shows how a tribal body lived and acquired the position of an 805 important state. According to their own records, the Tenoch-*to-nal-po-wa'hl-li.

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

173 [805] cas started their wanderings in 1168 A.D., though this date is arbitrary and possibly represents the date of the invention of the calendar system in vogue in Central Mexico.[1] At first they lived on an island in a lake in western Mexico and crossed in boats to the shore. In a hillside cave they found an idol of Huitzilopochtli (Hummingbird Wizard), which had the useful ability to speak and give them good advice. The accounts differ, and some have the Tenochcas starting off on their travels with several other tribes from a group of caves in which they originated. The names of the tribes are seldom the same in any two annals, but they always refer to important tribal entities at the time the particular history was inscribed (Table VII). These beginnings may be considered as formalized origin myths without historical significance.[2] (See Plate 62, middle right.)

The Tenochcas carried their new god's image with them on their journey. At each stopping place they set him up to be worshiped, and in return he advised them. Their method of procedure was to stay a year or more at a given place, while pioneers searched the land for another site and planted a crop there to harvest when the whole tribe arrived. The list of stopping places is highly dubious, and the different traditions disagree. Not until the tribes reached the lakes of Mexico are the localities mentioned easily identifiable or in common accord.

175 The Tenochcas entered the lakes from the northwest, via Tula and Zumpango, so there may be a basis for believing their original home was in Michoacan.* They seem to have [648] made every effort to avoid fighting by keeping away from settled lands. At one place they split up; at another they sac-

*Mich-o-a-ca'n.

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

and had grown at the same rate as Tenochtitlan, aiding in 175 many of the campaigns. It was famous for its merchants; and its market, even after its subjugation, was the greatest in Mexico. Local jealousy, however, did not lead to war until both towns competed in building temples to Huitzilopochtli, the War God. Apparently this competition for divine favor led to war, whereas economic conflict did not. Ridiculously [578] enough the open break was induced by the insulting behavior of the Tlaltelolcan women, who flaunted their backsides at the enraged Tenochcan visitors.[8]

The religious arts reached their full development under 175 Axayacatl. In his time was made the great Calendar Stone 805 which weighs over twenty tons and is twelve feet in diameter. The block was quarried on the mainland, and the allied rulers sent help to drag this gigantic mass across the causeways. Designed to symbolize the Aztec universe, it is a masterly example of a pattern, the detail of which adds, rather than detracts from, the spaciousness of the concept.[9] (See Plate 52, top.)

In 1472, early in the reign of Axayacatl, the life of a great 175 figure in American Indian history, Nezahualcoyotl, came to an end. This Texcocan chief had begun his manhood in political exile fleeing from Tepanec vengeance, but had fought and intrigued his way back into power. He even restored the fortunes of his people who, in the previous century, had rivaled the Culhuacanos in the formative years of Aztec civilization. Nezahualcoyotl had a broad judicial sense which enabled him successfully to elaborate the administrative structure of a far-flung realm. Since the Texcocans, before the Tepanec domination in 1419–28 already had a chain of tribute-paying vassals, this resumption of control in

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

532
324
805

PLATE 52

AZTEC ART

TOP: The Calendar Stone, thirteen feet in diameter, represents the history of the world. It is arranged in concentric circles, at the center of which is the sun set within the sign Four Motion, the date of the present era. The dates of the preceding eras are given in the four arms of the Motion sign. The twenty day names encircle the central symbols, and they are enclosed by glyphs for turquoise and jade, signifying "precious" and the color of the heavens. Beyond this band radiate sun's rays and star symbols, while the outer border consists of two great fire snakes, symbolizing time. BOTTOM: The National Stone, a monolithic block in the Mexican National Museum, suggests how the Calendar Stone was probably set on a platform. Its symbolism represents the Sacred War, the eternal conflict between the contracting and opposing forces of nature.

[p. 160(D)]

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

in heroic scale. The serpent, emblem of Quetzalcoatl, symbol of time and the year, representative of mystery and power, was frequently carved. The sinuous curves ending in the savage symmetry of the head offered a challenge which the sculptors accepted with a success that evokes the mysterious horror of the Aztec universe. (See Plates 53, 56.) 532 778

The grotesque gods are abstract and horrible to our modern eye. Coatlicue,* the "Lady of the Serpent Skirt" and mother of Huitzilopochtli, was thought of as powerful and awesome, so the task of the sculptors was to transmute those qualities into stone. The great statue in Mexico, whose head is twin serpents, whose necklace human hands and hearts, whose feet and hands are viciously armed with claws and whose skirt is a mat of writhing snakes, brings into a dynamic concentrate the manifold horrors of the universe. A smaller carving, simpler and less detailed, produces this same effect, implying that the very essence of fear was honored and worshiped. An altar of red lava, dug up in the street behind the cathedral, is grimly adorned with ranked skulls, but the design is so harmonious that death becomes an abstraction, part of a distant universe of fear, and not the imminent individual disaster which besets us moderns. (See Plates 54–55.)

The Calendar Stone embodies a finite statement of the infinity of the Aztec universe. In the center is the face of the Sun God, Tonatiuh, flanked by four cartouches which singly give the dates of the four previous ages of the world and together represent the date of our present era. The twenty names of the days circle this central element, and they, in turn, are ringed with a band of glyphs denoting jade or turquoise, which give the idea of being precious and sym- 532 805

*Co-at-le'e-kway.

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

532 bolize the heavens and their color. This strip is girdled by 805 the signs for stars, through which penetrate designs emblematic of the rays of the sun. Two immense Fire Serpents, symbolic of the Year and Time, circle the exterior to meet face to face at the base. Boring back through these forms to the significance behind them, we have a grandiose conception of the majesty of the universe.[11] (See Plate 52, top.)

349 In recent years, under the Presidential Palace in Mexico
532 City, a monolith over a meter high was found, which represented a platform and a stair crowned at the top by a similar solar disk. Reliefs on the sides show Huitzilopochtli, God of War, and Tezcatlipoca, God of the Smoking Mirror, symbolizing the sacred war between night and day. Probably the Calendar Stone was set up in much the same manner, and it is tantalizing to think of the lost reliefs which explained and ornamented the great disk when it was in position.[12] (See Plate 52, bottom.)

532 The historical accounts record that the Calendar Stone
805 was made in 1479 and the great eagle vase of Tizoc during 782 his rule from 1481 to 1486. A trough, extending from the basin to the edge of the vase, has been explained as a drain for blood to run out. However, the design is not keyed to this drain, and the purpose of the basin is to burn hearts, not to receive blood. Therefore, the furrow was probably made by the Spaniards, who sought either to use the vase as a nether millstone or tried unsuccessfully to smash it as an example of idolatry.[13]

532 The dates of these two monuments indicate that this was the time when Aztec civilization burst into flower. It is a tribute to Aztec artists that, originally fettered by the more lowly tasks of handicraft, they could accept the tremendous tribe. They elaborated cult ritual and so instilled the realization of the power and proximity of the gods into the minds of the people that even their arts were dedicated chiefly to religious expression. The complicated astronomic and mathematical computations that kept the solar and religious calendars in harmony with the passage of the seasons were also the province of the priesthood. The priests arrayed the dancers, who, depicting mythological events, performed a type of mass drama. Aztec life under hierarchical direction became a pattern of rhythmic ritual, and this continued ceremony served the more firmly to establish the priests as interpreters of the divine order. One has the impression that the priests never overtly showed their temporal power. Situated as they were, with the instruments for interpreting the divine will in their own hands, they had to follow the exactions of ritual far more exigently than did the masses. Were one to choose a single word to describe Aztec government, it would be theocracy. The gods ruled; the priests interpreted and interposed, and the people obeyed, not the priests, but the rhythm of action whereby the gods lived. (See Plate 58, middle.)

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

At the core of the religion stood the calendar, which was arranged in two divisions: a ritualistic succession of days, the tonalpohualli (Table XIII–XVI), and a solar calendar (Table XVII), divided into eighteen twenty-day months and a five-day unlucky period, in which the months' names related to crops and indicated the agricultural origin of this time count. A combination of the two systems permitted the numbering of years, which were counted not on an infinite scale, as with us, but in terms of a fifty-two-year cycle.[a]

The tonalpohualli, sometimes erroneously referred to as

[text continues on p. 190. - Analyst]

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

TABLE XI

805 DAY NAMES AND NUMBERS OF THE AZTEC MONTH

1	Cipactli (Mythical Water Monster, Crocodile, Alligator)
2	Ehecatl (Wind)
3	Calli (House)	Year Name
4	Cuetzpallin (Iguana Lizard)
5	Coatl (Snake)
6	Miquiztli (Death's-Head)
7	Mazatl (Deer)
8	Tochtli (Rabbit)	Year Name
9	Atl (Water)
10	Itzcuintli (Dog)
11	Ozomatli (Howling Monkey)
12	Malinalli (Grass)
13	Acatl (Reed)	Year Name
1	Ocelotl (Ocelot)
2	Cuauhtli (Eagle)
3	Cozcaquauhtli (Vulture)
4	Ollin (Motion, Earthquake)
5	Tecpatl (Flint Knife)	Year Name
6	Quiauitl (Rain)
7	Xochitl (Flower)
8	Cipactli
9	Ehecatl
10	Calli	Year Name
11	Cuetzpallin
12	Coatl
13	Miquiztli
1	Mazatl
2	Tochtli	Year Name
	Etc., etc.

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

TABLE XII

TONALPOHUALLI: SEQUENCE OF DAY NAMES, NUMBERS, AND WEEKS 805

	I
Crocodile	[1]	8	2	9	3	10	4	11	5	12	6	13	7
												XVIII
Wind	2	9	3	10	4	11	5	12	6	13	7	[1]	8
										XV
House	3	10	4	11	5	12	6	13	7	[1]	8	2	9
								XII
Lizard	4	11	5	12	6	13	7	[1]	8	2	9	3	10
						IX
Serpent	5	12	6	13	7	[1]	8	2	9	3	10	4	11
				VI
Death's-Head	6	13	7	[1]	8	2	9	3	10	4	11	5	12
		III
Deer	7	[1]	8	2	9	3	10	4	11	5	12	6	13
													XX
Rabbit	8	2	9	3	10	4	11	5	12	6	13	7	[1]
											XVII
Water	9	3	10	4	11	5	12	6	13	7	[1]	8	2
									XIV
Dog	10	4	11	5	12	6	13	7	[1]	8	2	9	3
							XI
Monkey	11	5	12	6	13	7	[1]	8	2	9	3	10	4
					VIII
Grass	12	6	13	7	[1]	8	2	9	3	10	4	11	5
			V
Reed	13	7	[1]	8	2	9	3	10	4	11	5	12	6
	II
Ocelot	[1]	8	2	9	3	10	4	11	5	12	6	13	7
												XIX
Eagle	2	9	3	10	4	11	5	12	6	13	7	[1]	8
										XVI
Vulture	3	10	4	11	5	12	6	13	7	[1]	8	2	9
								XIII
Motion	4	11	5	12	6	13	7	[1]	8	2	9	3	10
						X
Flint Knife	5	12	6	13	7	[1]	8	2	9	3	10	4	11
				VII
Rain	6	13	7	[1]	8	2	9	3	10	4	11	5	12
		IV
Flower	7	[1]	8	2	9	3	10	4	11	5	12	6	13

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

796 tonalamatl, after the book in which it was recorded, was a 805 sacred almanac. It covered a period of 260 days, the significance of which may have been magical or possibly of an astronomical origin, as yet unexplained. It was composed of the twenty day names of the Aztec month, combined with the numbers one to thirteen (Table XI). Whenever the sequence of numbers ended, the series was repeated, and the same arrangement held true for the list of days. Thus the fourteenth day of the twenty in the list received the number one, and so on up to seven for the twentieth day. Then when the series of day names recommenced the first name was numbered eight. By this means within the 260-day period every day was distinguished by the combination of one of twenty names with one of thirteen numerals. At the close of each period another began immediately, as is shown on Table XI.

This sacred period was further divided into twenty weeks of thirteen days each (Table XII). Every week began with the number one and the day name which came up according to the rotation of the sequence. Thus within the tonalpohualli period no day in one week could be confused with that of another, since the name and associated number precluded repetition.[4]

A god or goddess presided over each of the list of twenty days (Table XIII) and over each of the twenty "weeks" (Table XIV). The gods of the weeks followed the same order as the day gods, with this exception, that the god of the eleventh day was dropped from the list, moving the remainder in order up one place each. The resultant vacancy in the twentieth week, was filled by two divinities who exercised joint control. Sometimes there was a further re-

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

796
805
[212]

FIG. 1. AZTEC DAY SIGNS FROM CODEX

Cipactli Crocodile	Ehecatl Wind	Calli House	Cuetzpallin Lizard	Coatl Snake
Miquiztli Death	Mazatl Deer	Tochtli Rabbit	Atl Water	Itzcuintli Dog
Ozomatli Monkey	Malinalli Herb	Acatl Reed	Ocelotl Jaguar	Cuauhtli Eagle
Cozcaquauhtli Vulture	Ollin Motion	Tecpatl Flint Knife	Quiauitl Rain	Xochitl Flower

finement whereby the nine gods and goddesses succeeded each other in governing the nights of the tonalpohualli, or sacred period (Table XVI). Finally thirteen of these gods influenced the thirteen stations of the Aztec day (Table XV), and nine held sway over the night hours (Table XVI). The names and characters of these divinities are set forth in the accompanying tables.

The array of gods had to be placated and honored at the 796 appropriate time by the priesthood; but the individual, before embarking on an undertaking, could find out the proper

[Text continues on p. 195.--- Analyst]

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

TABLE XIII

DAY GODS OF TONALPOHUALLI

796
805

Day	God	Name and Nature
1 Crocodile	Tonacatecuhtli	Lord of Our Subsistence, a Creator God
2 Wind	Quetzalcoatl	Feathered Serpent, Sky God, God of Learning
3 House	Tepeyollotl	Heart of Mountains, an Earth God
4 Lizard	Huehuecoyotl	Old Coyote, Mischief-Maker
5 Snake	Chalchihuitlicue	Lady of the Jeweled Robe, Water Goddess
6 Death's-Head	Tecciztecatl	He from the Sea Snail, Moon God
7 Deer	Tlaloc	He Who Makes Things Sprout, Rain God
8 Rabbit	Mayauel	She of the Maguey Plant, Pulque Goddess
9 Water	Xiuhtecuhtli	Lord of Year, Fire God
10 Dog	Mictlantecuhtli	Lord of Region of Dead, Death God
11 Monkey	Xochipilli	Flower Prince, God of Spring and Flowers
12 Grass	Patecatl	He from the Land of Medicines, God of Medicine
13 Reed	Tezcatlipoca or variant like Itzlacoliuhqui	Smoking Mirror, a Great God, cf. Gods of Weeks Carved Obsidian Knife
14 Ocelot	Tlazolteotl	Goddess of Dirt, Earth Mother
15 Eagle	Xipe	Our Lord, the Flayed One, God of Seedtime
16 Vulture	Itzpapalotl	Obsidian Butterfly, a Stellar Goddess
17 Motion	Xolotl or variant	Double, Monster God
18 Flint Knife	Tezcatlipoca or Chalchiuhtotolin	Smoking Mirror, Great God, Jeweled Bird, Week Gods
19 Rain	Chantico	In the House, Goddess of Hearth Fire
20 Flower	Xochiquetzal	Flower Feather, Goddess of Flowers

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

TABLE XIV

GODS OF TONALPOHUALLI WEEKS

796
805

Week Beginning	God	Name
1 Crocodile	Tonacatecuhtli	Lord of Our Subsistence, a Creator God
1 Ocelot	Quetzalcoatl	Feathered Serpent, a Sky God
1 Deer	Tepeyollotl	Heart of the Mountains, an Earth God
1 Flower	Huehuecoyotl	Old Coyote, Backbiter, old Otomi tribal god
1 Reed	Chalchihuitlicue	Lady of the Jeweled Robe, Water Goddess
1 Death's-Head	Tecciztecatl	He from the Sea Snail, Moon God
1 Rain	Tlaloc	He Who Makes Things Sprout, Rain God
1 Grass	Mayauel	She of the Maguey Plant, Pulque Goddess
1 Snake	Xiuhtecuhtli	Lord of the Year, Fire God
1 Flint	Mictlantecuhtli	Lord of the Region of the Dead, Death God
1 Howling Monkey	Patecatl	He from the Land of Medicines, God of Medicine
1 Lizard	Itzlacoliuhqui	The Carved Obsidian Knife, God of Cold
1 Motion	Tlazolteotl	Goddess of Dirt, Earth Goddess
1 Dog	Xipe Totec	Our Lord the Flayed One, God of Seedtime
1 House	Itzpapalotl	Obsidian Butterfly, a Stellar Goddess
1 Vulture	Xolotl	Double, Monster God
1 Water	Chalchiuhtotolin	Jeweled Fowl, variant of Tezcatlipoca
1 Wind	Chantico	In the House, Goddess of Hearth Fire
1 Eagle	Xochiquetzal	Flower Feather, Goddess of Flowers
1 Rabbit	Xiuhtecuhtli and	Lord of Year, Fire God
	Itztli	Stone Knife, God of Obsidian Knife

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

796
805

TABLE XV

GODS OF THE DAY HOURS AND THEIR ASSOCIATED BIRDS

Day Gods	Name	Associated Bird
1. Xiuhtecuhtli	Fire God	White Humming-bird
2. Tlaltecuhtli	Lord of Earth, the Earth Monster	Green Humming-bird
3. Chalchihuitlicue	Water Goddess	Falcon
4. Tonatiuh	The Sun, Sun God	Quail
5. Tlazolteotl	Earth Mother	Eagle
6. Teoyaomiqui	Warrior Death, Death God	Screech Owl
7. Xochipilli	Flower Prince, God of Flowers	Butterfly
8. Tlaloc	Rain God	Striped Eagle
9. Quetzalcoatl-Ehecatl	God of Learning	Turkey Cock
10. Tezcatlipoca	Great God	Horned Owl
11. Mictlantecuhtli	Death God	Guacamaya
12. Tlahuizcalpantecuhtli	Lord of the House of Dawn, Venus God, variant of Quetzalcoatl	Quetzal
13. Ilamatecuhtli	Old Princess, ancient Earth Goddess	Parrot

TABLE XVI

GODS OF THE NIGHT HOURS AND THEIR ATTRIBUTES IN DIVINATION

Night Gods		Significance
1. Xiuhtecuhtli	Fire God	Good
2. Itztli	God of Obsidian Knife	Bad
3. Piltzintecuhtli	Lord of Princes, Sun God	Good
4. Cinteotl	God of Corn, Corn God	Indifferent
5. Mictlantecuhtli	Death God	Bad
6. Chalchihuitlicue	Water Goddess	Indifferent
7. Tlazolteotl	Earth Mother	Bad
8. Tepeyollotl	Earth or Jaguar God	Good
9. Tlaloc	Rain God	Good

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

divinity to appease on the date of that undertaking. It is im- 796 probable that the ordinary communicant daily honored each god any more than a Catholic layman prays daily to each saint in the calendar. He did reverence in terms of his own spiritual and actual necessity.

A number of the tonalamatl have survived. These ref- 212
erence books for priestly guidance are made of paper beaten [289]
from the bark of the amate or wild-fig tree, although some post-Conquest copies were composed of European paper. An ancient book consisted of a long paper strip which was prepared and coated to take paint and subsequently folded screenwise to permit easy handling. Occasionally only one but usually the two open pages were devoted to each week. A large colored drawing depicted the divinity controlling the week, and other figures represented subsidiary gods and objects connected with their worship, such as thorns, incense burners, altars, and the like. The rest of the space was ruled off into squares, in which were painted the requisite thirteen day names and numbers, the gods and goddesses associated with each and occasionally their nahuals, the bird or animal forms which the divinities could assume. Obviously only the initiate could make use of this information, which existed in the form of pictures without an explanatory text. However, it is the great good fortune of Mexicanists that some of the friars after the Conquest annotated a few of these manuscripts according to the explanations of Indian informants.[8] (See Plate 59, top.)

The great Aztec ceremonies, however, took place in ac- 796
cordance with the solar year, composed of eighteen months 805
of twenty days and a five-day period which was considered unlucky (Table XVII). The months had names having to do

[Text continues on p. 198.--- Analyst]

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

796
805

TABLE XVII

THE SOLAR YEAR, THE EIGHTEEN MONTHS, AND CEREMONIES

Months, seasonal character, approximate Gregorian dates, presiding gods and chief ceremonies

I Atlcoualco (want of water), ceasing of rain [Feb. 12–Mar. 3]. Chalchihuitlicue and Tlalocs. Ceremonies for rain; child sacrifice; Xipe sacrifice with blunt weapons.

II Tlacaxipeualiztli (boning of men), seedtime [Mar. 4–Mar. 23]. God Xipe. Impersonation of Xipe by priests wearing skins of captives; dances by priests wearing human skins; agricultural dances.

III Tozoztontli (short fast), rain desired [Mar. 24–Apr. 12]. Coatlicue and Tlalocs. Child sacrifice to Tlalocs to bring rain; end of Xipe rites which sometimes held over a month.

IV Huei Tozoztli (long fast), worship of new corn [Apr. 13–May 2]. Centeotl and Chicomecoatl. Ceremonial bloodletting; decoration of house altars with corn plants; young girls' ceremony with blessing of seed corn.

V Toxcatl (dry or slippery), rainy season begins [May 3–May 22]. Tezcatlipoca and Huitzilopochtli; god-impersonation ceremonies for either or both great gods (p. 202); scarification of children.

VI Etzalqualiztli (bean porridge), rain desired [May 23–June 11]. Tlalocs. Ceremonial robbing; rain ceremonies; fertility rite, drowning boy and girl in canoe filled with hearts of sacrificial victims.

VII Tecuhilhuitontli (little feast of princes), rain desired [June 12–July 1]. Huixtocihuatl. Ceremony of salt-workers, who leeched product from lake; women's dance with sacrifice of priestess impersonating goddess.

VIII Hueitecuhilhuitl (great feast of rulers), adoration of ripening corn [July 2–July 21]. Xilonen. Feast for Goddess of Young Corn; eight-day feast; women wear hair loose as sympathetic magic; sacrifice of slave girl impersonating goddess; after sacrifice people can eat new corn.

IX Tlaxochimaco (birth of flowers), first flowering [July 22–Aug. 10]. Huitzilopochtli. Feasts on turkeys and corn-meal cakes in honor of the god; great dance with both sexes taking part and men even touching the women; merchants' feast, honoring their patron god Yacatecuhtli.

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

X Xocotlhuetzi (fall of the fruits), heat for ripening [Aug. 11–Aug. 30]. Xiuhtecuhtli (Huehueteotl). Furnace sacrifice (p. 202); competitive climbing of high pole by young men to win special insignia at top.

XI Ochpaniztli (month of brooms), refreshment of Earth Mother [Aug. 31–Sept. 19]. Tlazolteotl or Teteoinnan (Toçi). Sacrifice of woman impersonating Goddess of Ripe Corn; efforts to avoid sorrow by buffoonery, sympathetic magic to avoid rains at harvest; review of warriors and distribution of insignia of rank; drills and mock combats of Eagle and Ocelot Knights.

XII Teotleco (return of the gods), harvest [Sept. 20–Oct. 9]. Tezcatlipoca. Ceremonies honoring the return of the gods to the earth; Tezcatlipoca first to come; two absent, Xiuhtecuhtli, too old to travel, Yacatecuhtli, merchant wandering off beaten track; ceremonial drunkenness and furnace sacrifice.

XIII Tepeilhuitl (feast of the mountains), rain [Oct. 10–Oct. 29]. Tlalocs. Ceremonies for mountain rain gods, an aspect of Tlalocs; use of wooden snakes and figurines covered with amaranth paste; sacrifice of four women and a man with subsequent ceremonial cannibalism.

XIV Quecholli [bird, quail(?)], rain [Oct. 30–Nov. 18]. Mixcoatl. Making of weapons; general penance of four days; licensed old people abstain from liquor and husbands from their wives; ceremonial hunt with sacrifice of game and ceremonial feasting on the hill.

XV Panquetzaliztli (feast of the flags), winter solstice [Nov. 19–Dec. 8]. Huitzilopochtli. Festivals honoring War God; mock or staged combats; imprinting of hand impressions by captives.

XVI Atemoztli (fall of the waters), rain [Dec. 9–Dec. 28]. Tlalocs. Vigils and offerings to household gods; winter solstice at time of conquest; erection of poles with paper streamers coated with rubber.

XVII Tititl (severe weather), season of serenity [Dec. 29–Jan. 7]. Ilamatecuhtli. Sacrifice of woman impersonating goddess; sympathetic magic to bring rain by weeping, through children crying on first day of month and men and children beating women with straw-filled bags to make them cry.

XVIII Izcalli (resuscitation), toasting of corn supply [Jan. 18–Feb. 6]. Xiuhtecuhtli. Ceremonial hunt; killing of captives every four years; killing of birds and arrow sacrifice at Cuauhtitlan.

Nemontemi (five unlucky days) [Feb. 7–Feb. 11].

796
805

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

796 with farming, and the days of the month were distinguished 805 by numbers, in addition to their tonalpohualli name and number described above. Years were identified in terms of the two methods, since they were named for the tonalpohualli day on which the year began.*

Only four of the twenty day names could begin the year, as a simple mathematical calculation will prove. Three hundred and sixty-five (the number of days in a year) divided by twenty (the total of the day names) leaves a remainder of five. Thus of the twenty day names only four can begin the year. House, Rabbit, Reed and Flint Knife must always recur as New Year's Day, since they are the third, eighth, thirteenth and eighteenth days in the list, thus being separated from each other by five numbers. In that thirteen, the quantity of numbers available, divides into 365 with a remainder of one, the number of the day increased by one each new year. Thus the years were numerically distinguishable—1 Rabbit, 2 Reed, 3 House, 4 Flint Knife, 5 Rabbit, and so on, until the thirteen numbers and four day names began to repeat themselves, which occurred after fifty-two (13 × 4) years. This is the mathematical reason for the Aztec cycle or major time unit, and in the Valley of Mexico they did not go further and distinguish between cycles except indirectly. In consequence there is the same sort of confusion in referring to events as would result were we to designate years within the century without distinguishing the number of centuries before or after Christ. Thus the discovery of America would be recorded as 92 and the Declaration of Independence as 76, and only a detailed knowledge of history would enable us to fix the events in their proper relationship to the fifteenth and eighteenth centuries. (See Plates 62, top left; 63.)

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

The lag between the calendric and the solar year, for which 796
we compensate by adding a day every four years as the 805
twenty-ninth of February, was difficult to adjust by Aztec standards since so much of the time count hinged on the orderly mathematical sequence of days. Some authorities believe that the Aztecs let the calendar drop behind, others that compensation was made during the unlucky period of five days. A third suggestion interprets the celebration of a feast held every eight years as a sign that a dateless day was introduced, unrecognized in the tonalpohualli of the year but honored with special rites.[7] (See Plate 58, middle.)

However the matter of the leap year was settled, the close of one cycle and the beginning of a new one was celebrated with great pomp each year Two Reed chosen as the first day of each cycle for some ritualistic reason. In the Mixteca-Puebla area the tonalamatls show evidence that the priests observed the planet Venus and took note of a Venus Year of 584 days. At the end of two cycles (104 years) there was a tremendous ceremony of great ritualistic significance, for at the same time as the beginning of a Venus count, a solar count, a fifty-two-year cycle, and a tonalpohualli all coincided. That four mystical rhythms, affecting such diverse aspects of the universe and the gods that dwelt therein, could [181]
meet must have produced great satisfaction and occasioned the utmost rejoicing among people for whom pattern and form had such great significance.[8]

Although the Valley of Mexico Aztecs did not use the 796
Venus count they celebrated the cyclical change with the utmost ceremony. They thought of the change from one cycle to another as the death of one life and the beginning of a new one. The realization that nature could withhold the

And when (there was) no wind, it was calm; the water spread like a mirror, gleaming, glittering.

And when her feast was celebrated, in the month of Etzalqualiztli, the eating of boiled corn,[48] then was celebrated the feast of the rain-gods.

They placed her image upon a framework; they put a skirt upon her, and a shift; they placed jewels upon her—a plained neckpiece, from which hung a golden disc.

And they offered her offerings and the fire priests came out to receive her. They strewed aromatic herbs before her.

With the rattle board of the mist and rain gods, they spoke. The city elders, her singers, sang for her.

And then they slew her impersonator—a slave woman, bought and set forth by those who gained their livelihoods as water-carriers—those who brought in water, who fetched water in canoes; those who owned canoes; those who worked in irrigation ditches; and those who made canoes in the market-place, those who sold water for refreshment.[49]

Likewise they arrayed her, made offerings, and ornamented her. For she would go, when they slew her, to a place called Tlalocan. In the temple of the Tlaloc, they opened her breast.

Then Moctezuma paid great honors to [the goddess]. Before her image, he offered incense and slew quail.

Then they said: "The chief gaineth rain; he doth a penance for his people." And giving thanks, they thus paid honor to the waters.

[For] they remembered that because of her we [may] live. She is our sustenance. And thence come all things that are necessary.

In the same manner they paid honor to the image of man's sustenance, called Chicomecoatl; and to the image of the salt [goddess], named Uixtocioatl. Thus they remembered what they had done; thus they honored the dress.[50]

For indeed, through them the peasant earned his livelihood. Thus might he be satisfied; thus, in truth, might he live.

And thus was she decked: she was painted yellow and blue; she was painted blue about the lips and on her face.[51] She wore a green-stone necklace; she had turquoise [mosaic] ear-plugs. She had a blue paper cap with a spray of quetzal feathers. Her shift and her skirt were painted like water. She bore a shield ornamented with water lily leaf and flower. She carried the rain-cartoboard,[52] which she sounded. She wore foam sandals.

Auh yn jquac atle ehecatl, tlamattinanj, atencattitinanj, 776 petlantimanj, cuecuecoatimanj.

Auh yn jquac ilhuiqujztiloia, çan no iquac yn etzalqualiztli: yn vncan ilhujqujztililoia tlaloque, 796 colotli in qujchichiuaia yxiptla: qujcuetiaia, qujujpiltiaia, [805] qujcoucatiaia, cuecapetlatl, itech pilcatiuh cuztic teucujtlacomalli: [778] yoan qujtlamanjliaia, qujnanamiquj yn jtlenamacacauh, yiauhtli, inpan qujtepevilia, caiochicaoaz ilhujtinemj, qujcujcatia in calpoleque, ynujcacaoan.

Auh in vel ixipda, yquac mjquja: tlacotli cioatl in [567] qujcoaia, ichoan qujnextiaia, yn anamacaque: yn atl yc motlaiecultia, yn acaltica atlacuj, yn acaleque, yn apantlaca: [463] yoan acalquetzque tianquinco, in qujtechieltia atl.

No ith qujchichiuaia, no ith qujtlamamacaia, no ith qujtemacoaia: ith tlantiuja: in miquja, yoncioacan tlalocan: yn vncan intrupan, tlaloque, queltetequjo.

Jn jquac y, no oncca qujmaxitiliaia, yn motecuçoma: inpan tlenamacoia, yn jxiptla, qujtlacotonjlia, ith qujcoaia: qujtemahtlaolanj in tlacatl, qujtlamacehuja yn jmacoxol: yoan vncan mocuelitinati, ynjc qujmahujztiliaia atl:

qujlnamjquja, ca ic tlaenj, ca tonenca: yoan ic muchioa, yn iuquich tetech monequj.

No ith qujmaxitiliaia, yn jxiptla tonacaxtl, yn jnca, chicome coatl; yoã yn jxiptla iztatl, ynca Vixtocioatl: ic qujlnamjquja; yn je tlamanjxti:

ca vel yonca muchioa in macoxalli, ic vellamati, ic vel tonj. 776

Auh yujo, in muchichiuaia: motonaia, tonatica, motonujtec, motonotonujtec, mincoçalhuj, chalchihuecuaque, xiuhnacoche, tonamacale, quetzalmjjnoaia, atlacujlellviqida, atlacujlelhuinjqida, atlacujlelcuaia, atlacuçonamchiuale, atuchicoaqa, cacalaca; popolocque.

---

48. Sahagún (op. cit., Vol. I, p. 148): "este atoalli era hecho de maiz cocido, a manera de atole, y era muy amarillo." Durán (op. cit., Vol. II, p. 218): "el maiz cocido por el año llamado propiamente para a causa de reverencia que tenían al fuego (atl) le llamaban atoalli."

49. Corresponding Spanish text of the Florentine Codex reads: ". . . la fantasiaban . . . todos aquellos, que tienen sus granjerias, en el agua como los que venden agua, en las canoas; y los que venden agua, en tinajas, en la plaza. . . ."

50. Corresponding Spanish text: ". . . porque decían, que estos son dioses: mantenjidos, a la gente pagadas: pues que podemos, vivir, y mantenidos."

51. Corresponding Spanish text: ". . . la pintaban, la vestia, con color amarillo. . . ."

52. Corresponding Spanish text: "Tenía en la mano, derecha, un vaso, con una cruz: hecho a manera, de la cantimplora, en que se lleva el aguardiente, quando van sale la lluvia; y con cuyo sonido, daba voces." See p. 3, note 64. See also illustrations of Chalchihuitl yoan and Tlaquilan yoan.

De las Cerimonjas

SECOND BOOK, WHICH TREATETH OF THE FEASTS AND SACRIFICES BY WHICH THESE NATIVES HONORED THEIR GODS IN THEIR STATE OF INFIDELITY.

LIBRO SEGUNDO QUE TRATA DE LAS FIESTAS, Y SACRIFICIOS: CON QUE ESTOS NATURALES, HONRRAUAN A SUS DIOSES, EN EL TIEMPO DE SU INFIDELIDAD.

805 X 796 First Chapter, concerning the calendar and the feasts of fixed date, the first of which is the one which followeth.[2]

The first month of the year was called, among the Mexicans, Atl cacualo, and in other parts Quauitl eua. This month began upon the second day of February, when we celebrate the Purification of Our Lady. On the first day of this month, they celebrated a feast in honor—according to some—of the Tlaloc gods, whom they held to be gods of rain; [or]—according to others—of their sister, the goddess of water, Chalchiuhtli icue; [or]—according to [still] others—in honor of the great priest or god of the winds, Quetzalcoatl. And we may say that [they celebrated the feast] in honor of all of these. This month and all the rest, which are eighteen [in number], each have twenty days.

[776 184]

Capitulo primero, del canlendario, de las fiestas fixas, la primera de las quales es lo que se sigue.

El primero mes, del año se llamaua entre los mexicanos Atl cacualo: y en otras partes quauitl eua. Este mes començaua en el segundo dia del mes de Hebrero quando nosotros celebramos, la purificacion, de nuestra señora. En el primero dia deste mes: celebrauan vna fiesta a honrra (segun algunos) de los dioses tlaloques, que los tenjan por dioses de la plouja: y segun otros de su hermana, la diosa del agua, chalchiuhtli ycue: y segun otros a honrra del gran sacerdote, o dios de los vientos quetzalcoatl: y podemos dezir, que a hõrra de todos estos. Este mes, con todos los de mas, que son deziocho tienen a cada veynte dias.

Atl cacualo or Quauitl eua

X 796 In this month they slew many children; they sacrificed them in many places upon the mountain tops, tearing from them their hearts, in honor of the gods of water, so that these might give them water or rain.

[493] The children whom they slew they decked in rich finery to take them to be killed; and they carried them in litters upon their shoulders. And the litter went adorned with feathers and flowers. [The

5ª	d	KL.	Atl cacualo, o quauitl eua	d	1º
1	e		En este mes matauan muchos njños	e	2
2	f		sacrificauanlos, en muchos lugares en	f	3
3	g		las cumbres de los montes: sacandoles	g	4
4	A		los coraçones a hõrra de los dioses del	A	5
5	b		agua, para que les diesse agua o lluja.	b	6
6	c		A los njños, que matauan: com-	c	7
7	d		ponjanlos con ricos ataujos para lleuar-	d	8
8	e		los a matar, y lleuauanlos, en vnas	e	9
9	f		literas, sobre los hõbros: y las literas,	f	10

1. The first nineteen chapters, largely a digest of more expanded material in Chapters 20-30, are [illegible]; some of the translators' notes will be found in this later section. For these nineteen chapters the original has no corresponding Nahuatl text.
2. Marginal notation: Cabeza deste calendario.
3. Marginal notation: Cuenta del calendario mexicano.

3: Sahagun M-S (1529-1590) 1951 NU7 Aztec NU7

The second month they named Tlacaxipeualiztli. On the first day of this month they celebrated a feast in honor of the god called Totec—[or], as another name, called Xipe—when they slew and flayed many slaves and captives.

Chapter 2
Tlacaxipeualiztli

From the captives whom they were to slay the owners themselves tore off the hair of the crowns of their heads and kept it as a relic. This they did in the tribal temple before the fire.

When the masters of the captives took their slaves to the temple where they were to slay them, they took them by the hair. And when they took them up the steps of the pyramid, some of the captives swooned, and their masters pulled them up and dragged them by the hair to the sacrificial stone where they were to die.

Having brought them to the sacrificial stone, which was a stone of three hands in height, or a little more, and two in width,* or almost, they threw them upon it, on their backs, and five [priests] seized them—two by the legs, two by the arms, and one by the head; and then came the priest who was to kill him. And he struck him with a flint [knife], held in both hands and made in the manner of a large lance head, between the breasts. And into the gash which he made, he thrust his hand and tore from [the victim] his heart; and then he offered it to the sun and cast it into a gourd vessel.

After having torn their hearts from them and poured the blood into a gourd vessel, which the master of the slain man himself received, they started the body rolling down the pyramid steps. It came to rest upon a small square below. There some old men, whom they called Quaquacuiltic, laid hold of it and carried it to their tribal temple, where they dismembered it and divided it up in order to eat it.

*Al segundo mes, llamauan tlacaxipeoaliztli. En el primero dia deste mes: hazian vna fiesta a honrra del dios llamado Totec, y por otro nombre se llamaua xipe: donde matauan, y desollauan muchos esclauos y captiuos.

Cap. 2.
Tlacaxipeoaliztli

1	d	KL	Tlacaxipeoaliztli	d	22[1]
2	e		A los captiuos que matauan: arran-	e	23
3	f		cauãllos, los cabellos de la coronjlla, y	f	24
4	g		guardauanlos, los mjsmos amos, como	g	25
5	A		por reliquias: esto hazian en el calpul	A	26
6	b		delante del fuego.	b	27
7	c		Quando lleuauan los señores de los	c	28
8	d		captiuos a sus esclauos al templo: donde	d	1[2]
9	e		los aujan de matar, lleuauanlos por	e	2
10	f		los cabellos: y quando los subian, por	f	3
11	g		las gradas del cu, algunos de los cap-	g	4
12	A		tiuos, desmayauan, y sus dueños los	A	5
13	b		subian arrastrando por los cabellos,	b	6
14	c		hasta el taxon donde aujan de morir.	c	7
15	d		Llegandolos al taxon: que era vna	d	8
16	e		piedra de tres palmos de alto, o poco	e	9
17	f		mas, y dos de ancho o casi: echauanlos	f	10
18	g		sobre ella de espaldas: y tomauanlos	g	11
19	A		cinco, dos por las piernas, y dos por	A	12
20	b		los braços, y vno por la cabeça: y venja	b	13[3]
			luego el sacerdote, que le auja de matar, y dauale con		[413] ambas manos, con vna piedra de pedernal: hecha a manera de hierro de lançon por los pechos, y por el agujero que hazia: metia la mano, y arrancauale el coraçon, y luego le ofrecia al sol, echauale en vna xicara.
			Despues de auerles sacado el coraçon, y despues		[415]
			de auer echado la sangre en vna xicara: la qual recebia el señor del mjsmo muerto: echauan el cuerpo a rrodar por las gradas abaxo del cu, yua a parar, en vna placeta abaxo: de alli le tomauan, vnos viejos,		[767
			que llamavan quaquacujlti, y le lleuauã a su calpul:		266] donde le despedaçauan, y le repartian pa comer.

* Actually a palmo is defined as the span between thumb and end of little finger, hand outstretched. In Webster's Dictionary, the Portuguese palmo is 0.64 m.; in the Encyclopaedia Britannica (14th ed.), the Spanish palmo is 0.229 m. A handbreadth is estimated as 3-4 in.

1. Marginal notation: Cabellos como pues.
2. Marginal notation: Marcan sobre dos cuos.
3. Marginal notation: Sacaban corazonjs de cuerpo.

The third month they called Toçoztontli. On the first day of this month they observed a feast to the god named Tlaloc, who is the god of rain. On this feast they slew many children upon the mountains. They offered them as sacrifices to this god and to his companions, so that they would give them water.

Al tercero mes, llamavan toçoztontli: en el primer dia deste mes, hazian fiesta al dios llamado Tlaloc: que es dios de las pluvjas. En esta fiesta, matauã muchos njños, sobre los montes: ofrecianlos en sacrificio a este dios, y a sus compañeros, para que los diesen agua. 796x [805] 776

Chapter 3
Toçoztontli

On this feast they offered the first fruits of the flowers which had bloomed earliest that year, on the pyramid named Yopico. And before they had offered them, none dared smell a flower.

Those in charge of the flowers, who are called xochimanque, celebrated a feast to their goddess, named Coatl icue, or by another name Coatlan tonan.

Likewise in this month, those who had worn the skins of the dead [sacrificial victims] whom they had flayed the previous month, took [them] off. They went to cast them into a cave in the pyramid which they called Yopico; they went in procession to do this, and [performed] many ceremonies. They went stinking like dead dogs. And after they had left them [in the cave], they washed themselves, [performing] many ceremonies. A number of the sick made vows to attend this procession, in order to recover from their sickness, and they say that some [of them] recovered.

The masters of the [sacrificed and flayed] captives, with all those of their households, did penance for twenty days: neither did they bathe nor wash their heads until the skins of the dead captives were deposited in the cave mentioned above. They said that they did penance for their captives.

After they had ended the penance, they bathed and washed themselves, and summoned all their kin and friends, and gave them food. And they performed many ceremonies with the bones of the dead captives.

1. Marginal notation: Apollo Sobre dia sus.

Cap. 3.
Toçoztontli.

Este mes, los officiales de las flores, que se llaman xochimanque: hazian fiesta, a su diosa llamada Coatl icue, y por otro nombre coatlã tona.

Tambien en este mes: se desnudauan, los q̃ trayan vestidos, los pellejos de los muertos, q̃ aujan desollado el mes passado: yuanlos a echar en vna cueua, en el cu, que llamauan iopico: yuan a hazer esto, con procesion: y cõ muchas cerimonjas, yuan hediendo, como perros muertos: y despues que los aujan dexado: se lauauan, con muchas cerjmonjas: Algunos enfermos hazian voto, de hallarse presentes, a esta procesion, por sanar de sus enfermedades: y dizen, que algunos sanauan.

Los dueños de los catiuos, con todos los de su casa, hazian penjtencia, veynte dias: que nj se bañauan, nj se lauauan las cabeças: hasta que se ponjan los pellejos, de los captiuos muertos, en la cueua arriba dicha: dezian que hazian penjtencia, por sus captiuos. 796x 785 783

Despues que aujan acabado la penjtencia: bañauanse, y lauauanse, y combidauan a todos, sus parientes, y amigos, y dauanles comjda: y hazian muchas cerjmonjas, con los huesos, de los catiuos muertos.

2. Marginal notation: Manar apjrjmos.

The fourth month they called Uei tocoztli. On the first day of this month they celebrated a feast in honor of the god named Cintecotl, whom they regarded as god of maize. In his honor they fasted four days before the arrival of the feast.

Al quarto mes llamauan, Vey tocoztli: en el primero dia deste mes: hazia fiesta a honrra del dios llamado Cintecutl, que le tenjan por dios de los mahizes: a honrra deste, ayunauan quatro dias, ante de llegar la fiesta.

Chapter 4
Uei tocoztli

In this feast they placed reeds at the doors of the houses. They sprinkled them with the blood from their ears or from the calves of their legs. Besides these, the nobles and the rich set up in their houses some branches which they called acxoyatl. Likewise, they set up branches for their gods, and set forth flowers for [the gods] which each one had in his house.

After this, they went about the maize fields and brought stalks of the maize (which was still small)[1], and they garnished them with flowers and went to place them before their gods, in the house called calpulli; and also they set food before them.

Having done this in the various suburbs, they went to the pyramid of the goddess whom they called Chicome coatl, and there, before her, they enacted skirmishes in the manner of battles. And all the girls bore upon their backs ears of maize [grown] the year before. They went in procession, to present them to the goddess Chicome coatl, and they returned them once more to their house[s] as blessed thing[s]; and from them they took the seed to plant next year. And also they put it [away] as the heart of the grain hins, because it was blessed.

They made of dough (which they call tzoalli) the image of this goddess in the courtyard of her pyramid; and before her they offered all kinds of maize, and all kinds of beans, and all kinds of chia. For they said that she was the maker and giver of all these things which are the necessaries of life, that the people may live.

1. Marginal notation: [illegible]

Cap. 4.
Vey tocoztli

1 b KL. En esta fiesta, ponjan espadañas a las puertas de las casas ensangrentauanlas, con sangre de las orejas, o de las espinjllas: los nobles y los ricos, de mas de las espadañas, enrramauan sus casas, con vnos ramos, que llaman acxoatl. Tambien enrramauan a sus dioses, y las ponjan flores a los que cada vno tenja en su casa.

Despues desto, yuan por los mahizales, y trayan cañas de mahiz (que aun estaua pequeño) y componjanlas con flores y yuanlas a poner delante de sus dioses, a la casa que llamauan calpulli: y tambien ponjan comida delante dellos.

Despues de echo esto, en los barrios: yuan al cu, de la diosa, que llamauan chicome coatl: y alli delante della hazian escaramuças a manera de pelea: y todas las muchachas lleuauan a cuestas, maçorcas de mahiz del año passado: yuan en procesion, a presentarlas, a las diosa chicome coatl: y tornauanlas otra vez a su casa como cosa bendita, y de alli tomauan la semjlla, para sembrar el año venidero: y tambien ponjanlo por coraçon, de las tenaz, por estar bendito.

Hazian de masa (que llaman tzoalli) la ymagen desta diosa, en el patio de su cu, y delante della: ofrecian todo genero de mahiz, y todo genero de frisoles, y todo genero de chien: porque dezian, que ella era la autora, y dadora de aquellas cosas, que son mantenjmjentos, para biuir la gente.

The fifth month they called Toxcatl. On the first day of this month they celebrated a great feast in honor of the god named Titlacauan, and for another name, Texcatlipoca. This one they held to be god of the gods. In his honor, they slew, in this feast, a chosen youth who might have no blemishes upon his body, [who was] reared in all luxuries for the space of a year, [and] trained in the playing [of musical instruments], and in singing, and in speaking.

Al quinto mes llamauan Toxcatl: el primero dia deste mes: hazian gran fiesta a honrra del dios llamado Titlacaoe, y por otro nombre Texcatlipoca: a este tenjan por dios de los dioses: a su honrra matauan en esta fiesta vn mancebo escogido, q̃ ninguna tacha tuujesse en su cuerpo: criado en todos deleytes, por espacio de vn año, instruto en tañer, y en cantar, y en hablar.

796 X [805] 776 [533]

Chapter 5
Toxcatl

This feast was the most important of all the feasts. It was like Easter, and fell near Easter Sunday—a few days after. This youth, reared as hath been said, was very comely, and chosen from many. He had long hair—down to the waist.

When, on this feast, they slew the young man who had been reared for [the rôle], they at once produced another, who was to die after one year. He walked everywhere in the town finely arrayed with flowers in his hand, and with people who accompanied him. He greeted with good grace those whom he met. All knew that this one was the likeness of Texcatlipoca, and they bowed before him and worshiped him whenever they met him.

Twenty days before this feast came, they gave this young man four comely young women reared for [the part], with whom for all the twenty days, he had carnal relations. And they changed his array when they gave him these young women: [they] clipped his hair like a war captain and gave him more finery [even] braver [than what he had had].

Five days before he was to die, they celebrated feasts for him and banquets, in cool and pleasant places. Many of the leading men accompanied him. On the arrival of the day he was to die, they took him to a pyramid or sanctuary which they called

1. Marginal notation: Mides he dias ante.

Cap. 5.
Toxcatl

1 A KL. Esta fiesta, era la principal de todas
2 b los fiestas, era como pascua, y caya
3 c cerca de la pascua de resurrection
4 d pocos dias despues: este mancebo
5 e criado, como esta dicho era muy bien
6 f dispuesto, y escogido entre muchos:
7 g tenja los cabellos largos hasta la cinta.
8 A Quando en esta fiesta mataui al
9 b mãcebo que estaua criado para esto:
10 c luego sacauan otro: el qual auja de
11 d morir dẽde a vn año, andaua por todo
12 e el pueblo muy atauiado con flores en
13 f la mano, y con personas que le acõpa-
14 g fiauan saludaua a los que topaua graci-
15 A osamẽte: todos sabian que era aquel
16 b la ymagẽ de Texcatlipuca: y se pros-
17 c trauã delante del, y le adorauan donde
18 d quiera que le topauan.
19 e Viente dias antes que llegasse esta 20 f fiesta: dauã a este mancebo quatro moças, bie dispuestas y criadas para esto: con las quales todos los veinte dias tenja cõuersaciõ carnal: y mudauanle el traje, quando le dauã estas moças, cortauale los cabellos como capitã y dauãle otros atauios mas galanes.

Cinco dias antes que muriesse: hazianle fiestas y vanquetes en lugares frescos y amenos: acompañauanle muchos principales: llegado el dia donde auja de morir: lleuauanle a un cu, o oratorio que llamauã tlacuchcalco. y ante que llegasse allí en vn lugar que

A 23 b 24 c 25 d 26 e 27 f 28 g 29 A 30 b 1' c 2 d 3 e 4 f 5 g 6 A 7 b 8 c 9 d 10 e 11 f 12ª

[302] [833] [302] [346]

2. Marginal notation: Nauã, dedicãl angl Pan.

The sixth month they called Etzalqualiztli. On the first day of this month they observed a feast to the rain gods. In honor of these gods, the priests of these gods fasted before their feast came for four days, which are the four last days of the previous month.

Al sexto mes llamauan Etzalqualiztli: en el primero dia deste mes: hazian fiesta a los dioses de la pluuia: a honrra destos dioses, ayunauã los sacerdotes destos dioses: quatro dias antes de llegar a su fiesta, que son los quatro postreros dias del mes pasado.

796X
805
776
785

Chapter 6
Etzalqualiztli

In order to celebrate this feast, the priests and servants of the idols went to Citlaltepec for reeds; for they grew very large and handsome in the waters called Temilco. From there they brought them to Mexico to adorn the pyramids. On the road which they took, no one appeared; all wayfarers hid themselves, for fear of them. And if they came upon one, they took from him whatever he had, even leaving him naked. And if he resisted, they belabored him such that they left him for dead. And even if he bore tribute for Moctezuma, they took it from him. And for this they visited upon them no punishment; because, since they were servants of the idols, they had license to do these things, and others [even] worse, with no punishment. Many other ceremonies the priests of the temple performed in these four days, which are put forth at length in the account of the feast.

On the arrival of the feast of Etzalqualiztli, everyone made a kind of gruel or porridge which is called etzalli (a delicious food, which they liked well). All ate in their houses, and gave [of it] to those who came, and did a thousand follies on this day.

On this same feast, they punished terribly servants of the idols guilty of committing some fault in their service; [they mishandled] them in the water of the lagoon to such a point that they left them for dead. And thus they left them there at the edge of the water. From there their parents or relatives took them and carried them to their houses, half dead.

On this same feast they slew many captives and

Cap. 6.
Etzalqualiztli.

1 g KL. g 13
2 A Para la celebracion desta fiesta: los A 14
3 b satrapas de los ydolos y sus mjnjstros, b 15 [137]
4 c yuã por juncas a Citlaltepec: que se c 16
5 d hazẽ muy grãdes y muy hermosas en d 17
6 e vn agua que se llama temjlco, de alli e 18 [346]
7 f las trayan a Mexico: para adornar los f 19
8 g cuex, por el camjno donde venjã, nadie g 20
9 A parecia: todos los camjnãtes se ab- A 21
10 b scondian de mjedo dellos, y si con b 22
11 c alguno encõtrauã: tomauãle quito c 23 [651]
12 d traya hasta dexalle en pelo, y si se d 24
13 e defendia: maltrataulle de tal manera e 25
14 f q̃ lo dexauã por muerto: y aunque f 26 [681]
15 g lleuasse el tributo para Motecuçoma se g 27
16 A le tomauan: y por esto njnguna pena A 28
17 b las dauã: porque por ser mjnjstros de b 29
18 c los ydolos, tenjã libertad para hazer c 30
19 d estas cosas, y otras peores sin pena njn- d 31
20 e guna. Otras muchas cerimonjas hazian e 1[1]
los satrapas del templo en estos quatro dias que estan a la larga puestas en la historia desta fiesta.

Allegada la fiesta de Etzalqualiztli: todos hazã vna manera de puchas o polcadas que se llama Etzalli (comjda delicada a su gusto) todos comjan en su casa, y dauan a los que venjan, y hazian mjll locuras en este dia. [262] [786]

En esta mesma fiesta, a los mjnjstros de los ydolos que avian hecho algun defecto en el serujcio dellos: castigauanlos terribleméte en el agua de la laguna tãto que los dexauã por muertos: y assi los dexauã allí a la orilla del agua: de allí los tomauã sus padres o parientes, y los lleuauã a sus casas medio muertos. [683]

En este mjsmo mes matauã muchos cativos y otros

1. Marginal notations begin the day-sign.

The seventh month they named Tecuilhuitontli. On the first day of this month they celebrated a feast to the goddess of salt, whom they called Uixtociuatl. They said that she was elder sister of the Tlaloc gods. In honor of this goddess they slew a woman decked in the ornaments with which they represented the same goddess.

Al septimo mes llamauan Tecuilhujtontli: En el primero dia deste mes: hazian fiesta a la diosa de la sal que llamauan Vixtociotl: deziã que era hermana mayor, de los dioses tlaloques: matauan a honrra desta diosa vna muger compuesta con los ornamẽtos que pintauã a la mjsma diosa.

Chapter 7
Tecuilhuitontli

On the eve of this feast, all the old women sang and danced, as well as the young women and girls. They were held by some short cords which they carried in their hands, one [taking] one end, another the other [end]. These cords they named xochimecatl. They all wore garlands of wormwood [flowers] of this land, which are called ixtauhiatl. A number of old men led them and ordered the singing. Among them went the woman who was the likeness of this goddess and who was to die arrayed in rich ornaments.

On the night before the feast, the women, with the same one who was to die, kept vigil; and they sang and danced all night long. At break of day, all the priests arrayed themselves and performed a very solemn dance. And all who were present at the dance held in their hands those flowers which are called ompoalxochitl. Thus dancing, they took many captives to the Pyramid of Tlaloc, and, with them, the woman who was to die, who was the likeness of the goddess Uixtociuatl. There they slew first the captives and then her.

Many other ceremonies were performed during this feast; and also [there was] great drunkenness, all of which is set forth at length in the account of this feast, fol. 76.

Cap. 7
Tecujlhujtontli.

1 f XI. Tecujlhujtontli. f 2[1]
2 g La vigilia desta fiesta cantauan y g 3
3 A dançauan todas las mugeres, viejas, y A 4
4 b moças y muchachas yvan asidas de b 5
5 c vnas cuerdas cortas que lleuauan en las c 6
6 d manos, la vna por el vn cabo, y la otra d 7
7 e por el otro: a estas cuerdas llamauan e 8
8 f sochimecatl: lleuauan todas gujrnaldas f 9
9 g de axenxos desta tierra que se llama g 10
10 A ixtauhiatl: gujsualas vnos viejos, y A 11
11 b regian al canto en medio dellas yva la b 12
12 c muger que era la ymagen desta diosa, c 13
13 d y que avia de morir adereçada con d 14
14 e ricos ornamentos. e 15
15 f La noche antes de la fiesta: velauan f 16
16 g las mugeres con la mjsma que auja de g 17
17 A morir, y cantauan, y dançauan toda la A 18
18 b noche: venjda la mañana: adereça- b 19
19 c uanse todos los satrapas, y hazian vn c 20 20 d areyto muy solemne: y todos los que d 21
estauan presẽtes al areyto, tenjan en la mano aquellas flores que se llaman ompoalxochitl: assi baylando lleuauan muchos cautiuos al ça, de Tlaloc: y con ellos a la muger que auja de morir que era imagen de la diosa Vixtociotl: alli matauan primero a los captiuos, y despues a ella.

Otras muchas cerimonjas se hazian en esta fiesta, y tambien gran borracheria: todo lo qual esta a la larga puesto en la hisoria desta fiesta. fo. 76.

1. Marginal notation: Marcellus, part, aspe Bass.

X 796 The eighth month they called Uei tecuilhuitl. On the first day of this month they observed a feast to the goddess named Xilonen (goddess of the tender maize). On this feast they gave food to all the poor men and women—old men, old women, boys, girls—in honor of the goddess. They slew a woman, on the tenth day of this month, arrayed in the ornaments with which they represented the same goddess.

[805] 776 [735]

Al octauo mes llamauã Vei tecujlhujtl: En el primero diã deste mes, haziã fiesta a la diosa llamada Xilonen (diosa de los xilotes) en esta fiesta dauã de comer a todos los pobres hombres y mugeres, viejos y viejas, njños y njñas, a honrra desta diosa: matauã a vna muger a diez dias deste mes, compuesta cõ lós ornamẽtos con que pintauã a la mjsma diosa.

Chapter 8
Uei tecuilhuitl

X 796 For eight uninterrupted days before the feast, they fed men and women, young and old. Then, very 735 early in the morning they gave them to drink a kind of gruel which they call chienpinolli. Each one drank 262 as much as he wished. And at noon they placed all in order, seated in their rows, and they gave them tamales. He who gave them [out], gave each one as many as he could hold in one hand. And if one of them exceeded the bounds of custom so much as to take [tamales] twice, they mishandled him and took from him those which he had, and he went with nothing. This [feasting] the lords brought about in order to give comfort to the poor; for at this time, ordinarily, there is a want of the necessities of life.

X 796 All these eight days they danced and moved in rhythm, men and women together performing the 535 ceremonious movement, all heavily adorned with rich vestments and jewels. The women wore their [302] hair unbound; they went with hair down, dancing and singing with the men. This dance began at sundown, and they continued in it until nine o'clock. [373] They carried many lights (like great torches) of resinous wood, and there were many braziers or bonfires which burned in the same courtyard in which they danced. In this dance or solemn movement they went with hands joined [to those of other dancers], or embraced—the arm of one grasping the body of another as in an embrace, and the other likewise [holding still] another, men and women [alike].

Cap. 8.
Vei tecujlhujtl

1	e	KL	Vei tecujlhujtl	e	22[1]
2	f		Dauan de comer a hombres y mu-	f	23
3	g		geres chicos y grãdes ocho dias con-	g	24
4	A		tinos, antes de la fiesta luego muy de	A	25
5	b		mañana dauãles a beuer vna manera	b	26
6	c		de maçamorra que llamã chienpinolli:	c	27
7	d		cada vno bueja quãto queria: y al	d	28
8	e		medio dia ponjãlos todos por orden	e	29
9	f		en sus rencleras sentados, y dauanlos	f	30
10	g		tamales: el que los daua, daua a cada	g	1[2]
11	A		vno quãtos podia abarcar con vna	A	2
12	b		mano: y si alguno se desmãdaua a	b	3
13	c		tomar dos vezes maltrataua[n]le, y to-	c	4
14	d		mauanle los que tenja, y yvase sin	d	5
15	e		nada. Esto hazian los señores por con-	e	6
16	f		solar a los pobres: porque en este	f	7
17	g		tiempo ordinariamente ay falta de	g	8
18	A		mãtenjmjentos.	A	9
19	b		Todos estos ocho dias baylauan, y	b	10
20	c		dançauã: haziendo areyto hombres y	c	11[3]

mugeres todos juntos muy ataujados con ricas vestiduras y joyas: las mugeres trayan los cabellos sueltos, andauan en cabello baylando y cantando cõ los hombres començaua este areyto en ponjendose el sol, y perseuerauan en el, hasta ora de las nueue: trayã muchas lumbreras (como grãdes hachas) de tea, y aujan muchos braseros o hogueras, que ardian en el mjsmo patio dõde baylauan. En este bayle o areyto andauã trauados de las manos, o abraçados, el braço del vno asido del cuerpo como abraçado, y el otro asimjsmo del otro hombres y mugeres.

1. Marginal notation: Lunes quatro [illegible] se cuenta.
2. Marginal notation: Pij pujar or blanc.
3. Marginal notation: Jullior los dias [illegible]

X 796 The ninth month they called Tlaxochimaco. On the first day of this month they held a feast in honor of ● [805 776] the god of war, named Uitzilopochtli. In this they offered him the first flowers [grown] in that year.

Chapter 9
Tlaxochimaco

[23] On the night before this feast, all busied themselves in killing fowls and dogs, in order to eat them, 262] and in making tamales and other things concerned with food. Then, very early in the morning of this [778] feast, the priests of the idols decked Uitzilopochtli with many flowers; and after the statue of this god was adorned, they decorated the statues of the other gods with garlands and strings and wreaths of flowers. And then they decked all the other statues in the tribal temples and young men's houses. And in the houses of the majordomos and leading men and common folk, all decorated with flowers the statues which they had in their houses.

X 796 Having decorated the statues of all the gods, they then began to eat that fare which they had prepared 535 the night before; and, a little after eating, they started a kind of dance in which the noblemen, with women, together danced grasping each other's hands, and the ones embracing the others, arms thrown about each other's necks. They did not dance solemnly in the manner of a ceremonial dance, nor did they go through the movements of a ceremonial dance; but they went step by step, to the rhythm of those who [534 778] beat [the drums] and sang, all of whom were standing, a little to one side of those who danced, near a circular altar which they called momoztli.

This chanting lasted until nightfall. Not only in the pyramid courtyards but in all the houses of the leading men and the common folk they beat [the drums] and sang with a great din until night. And [273] the old men and the old women drank wine; but no young man nor young woman drank it. And if [any] of them did drink it, they punished them sorely. Many other ceremonies were performed in this, which are [described] at length. Etc.

Al nono mes llamauan Tlaxochimaco: El primero dia deste mes hazian fiesta a honrra del dios de la guerra llamado Vitzilobuchtli: offrecianle en ella las primeras flores de aquel año.

Cap. 9
Tlaxochimaco

1	d	KL	d	12
2	e	La noche antes desta fiesta ocupa-	e	13
3	f	uanse todos en matar gallinas y perros	f	14
4	g	para comer, en hazer tamales y otras	g	15
5	A	cosas concernientes a la comida: luego	A	16
6	b	de mañanica el dia desta fiesta: los	b	17
7	c	satrapas de los ydolos, componiã cõ	c	18
8	d	muchas flores a Vitzilobuchtli, y des-	d	19
9	e	pues de compuesta la estatua deste	e	20
10	f	dios: componian las estatuas de los	f	21
11	g	otros dioses con guirnaldas y sartales	g	22
12	A	y collares de flores: y luego cõponian	A	23
13	b	todas las otras estatuas de los calpules,	b	24
14	c	y telpuchcales: y en las casas de los cai-	c	25
15	d	piques y principales y maceguales,	d	26
16	e	todos componian las estatuas que ten-	e	27
17	f	jan en sus casas con flores.	f	28
18	g	Compuestas las estatuas todos los	g	29
19	A	dioses: luego començauan a comer	A	30
20	b	aquellas viandas que tenjan aparejadas	b	31

de la noche passada, y dende a vn poco despues de comer: començauan vna manera de bayle o dança: en la qual los hombres nobles con mugeres juntamente baylauan asidos de las manos y abraçados los vnos con los otros: echados los braços sobre el cuello el vno del otro: no dançauan a manera de areyte, nj hazian los meneos como en el areyte, sino yvan paso a paso: al son de los que tanjan y cantauan los quales estauan todos en pie, apartados vn poco de los que baylauan, cerca de vn altar redondo que llaman momuztli—

Duraua este cantar hasta la noche: no solo en los patios de los cues: pero en todas las casas de principales y maceguales, taffjã y cantauan con gran bozeria hasta la noche: y los viejos y viejas beujan el vctli: pero njngun mancebo nj moça lo beuja: y si alguno lo beuja castigauanlos reziamente. Otras muchas cerimonjas se hazian en esta: que esta a la larga. Etc.

The tenth month they named Xocotl uetzi. On the first day of this month, they observed a feast to the god of fire, named Xiuhtecutli or Ixcoçauhqui. On this feast they cast into the fire, alive, many slaves, bound hand and foot, and before they had quite died, they took them forth, dragging [them] out of the fire, in order to tear out their hearts before the image of this god.

Al decimo mes llamauan Xocotl vetzi: En el primero dia deste mes, haziã fiesta al dios del fuego llamado xiuhtecutli o Jzcoçauhquj: en esta fiesta echauã en el fuego viuos muchos esclauos, atados de pies y manos, y antes que acabasen de morir, los sacauã arrastrando del fuego para sacar el coraçon delante la ymagen deste dios.

Chapter 10
Xocotl uetzi

During the feast of Tlaxochimaco, they went forth into the forest [and] cut a tree of twenty-five fathoms' height and brought it, dragging it, to the courtyard of this god. There they pruned off all its branches and raised it upright, and it remained thus standing until the eve of the feast. Then they again laid it upon the earth with much caution and [using] many devices that it might not bump [the ground]. On the day before this feast, early in the morning, many carpenters came with their tools, and they trimmed it and made it very smooth. After having trimmed it and decorated it with many kinds of papers, they tied ropes and other cords to it and raised it up with much shouting and din, and they made it firm.

As soon as the beam or tree was raised and adorned with all of its finery, then those who had slaves to cast alive into the flames adorned themselves with their plumage and rich ornaments, and they stained their bodies yellow, which was the livery of fire; and, taking their captives with them, they performed a dance all that day, until nightfall.

After the captives had kept vigil all that night on the pyramid, and after having performed many ceremonies with them, they cast into their faces some powder which they call yiauhtli, that they might lose their sense of feeling and not suffer so greatly [the pains of] their death.

1. Marginal notation: despues de dios muy.
2. Marginal notation: Remedio abaxo.

Cap. 10.
Xocotl vetzi

KL

Durante la fiesta de tlaxochimaco: yuã al monte cortauan vn arbol de altura de veinte y cinco braças y trayanle arrastrando hasta el patio deste dios: allí le escamondauan todo, y le leuantauan enhiesto y estaua asi enhiesto hasta la vigilia vigilie de la fiesta entonce le tornauã a echar en tierra cõ mucho tiẽto y cõ muchos pertrechos para que no diesse golpe: la vigilia desta fiesta, bien de mañana venjan muchos carpinteros con sus herramiẽtas y mondauãle y haziaule muy liso. Despues de mondado y de auerle compuesto cõ muchas maneras de papeles: atauanle sogas y otros mecates y leuantauanle con muchas bozes y muchos estruendos y afixauanle muy bien.

Desque la viga o arbol estaua leuãtada y adornada cõ todos sus aparejos: luego los que tenjã esclauos para echar en el fuego viuos aderecauãse con sus plumajes y ataujos ricos: y tiñjanse el cuerpo de amarillo que era la librea del fuego y lleuando sus captiuos consigo: hazian areyto todo aquel dia hasta la noche.

Despues de auer velado toda aquella noche los captiuos en el cu, y despues de auer hecho muchas cerimonjas con ellos, enpoluorizauanlos las caras con vnos poluos que llamã yiauhtli: para que perdiessen el sentido, y no sintiessẽ tanto la muerte, atauanlos

2. Marginal notation: Para el remedio.

The eleventh month they named Ochpaniztli. On the first day of this month they celebrated a feast to the mother of the gods, named Teteo innan, or Toçi, which meaneth "Our Grandmother." They danced in silence for the honor of this goddess, and in great silence slew a woman dressed with the ornaments with which they represented this goddess.

Al vndecimo mes llamauan Ochpanjztli: El primero dia, deste mes, haziã fiesta a la madre de los dioses llamada Teteu inna o Toci, que qujere dezir nuestra abuela: baylauan a honrra desta diosa en silencio y mataua vna muger en gran silencio vestida con los ornamentos que pintauan a esta diosa.

796x [805 776]

Chapter 11
Ochpaniztli

Five days before this month began, all the feasts and merry making of the previous month ceased. Entering this month, they danced eight days without singing and without beating the two-toned drum. These past, there came forth the woman who was the likeness of the goddess whom they name Teteo innan, arrayed with the ornaments with which they pictured the same goddess; and a great number of women came forth with her, especially the medicine women and midwives. And they split into two bands and fought, pelting each other with balls made of tree parasites and from the leaves of the zuna cactus and with balls made from the leaves of reeds, and with flowers which they call cempoalxochitl. This merry making lasted four days.

These ceremonies and others of like kind ended, they brought it about that that woman should not know she was to die, so that she should neither weep nor be saddened; for they held that to be an omen of evil. The night when she was to die having fallen, they decked her very richly, and persuaded her that they were taking her so that some great lord might sleep with her; and they bore her in great silence to the pyramid where she was to die. Having taken her up, one [of the priests] took her upon his back, shoulder against shoulder, and swiftly they struck off her head, and then they flayed her. And a stout youth put on her skin.

This one who wore the skin of the woman whom they had slain they then bore off with great solem-

1. Marginal notation: September 1st-20th.

Cap. 11.
Ochpanjtli.

1 b KL. b 21
2 c Cinco dias antes que començasse este c 22 [534
3 d mes: cessauan todas las fiestas y regozi- d 23
4 e jos del mes pasado entrando este mes, e 24 535]
5 f baylauã ocho dias sin cantar, y sin f 25
6 g teponaztli: los quales pasados, salia la g 26
7 A muger que era ymagen de la diosa q̃ A 27
8 b llaman teteu inna, compuesta con los b 28
9 c ornamẽtos con que pintauan a la c 29 [759]
10 d mjsma diosa, y salian grã numero de d 30
11 e mugeres con ella: especialmente las e 31
12 f medicas y parteras: y partianse en dos f 1'
13 g vandos y peleauan apedreandose con g 2 [524
14 A pellas de pachtli y con hojas de tunas A 3 197]
15 b y cõ pellas hechas de hojas de espa- b 4
16 c dañas, y con flores que llamã cempoal- c 5
17 d sochitl. Este regozijo durauã quatro d 6
18 e dias. e 7
19 f Acabado estas cerimonjas y otras f 8
20 g desta calidad: procurauan que aquella g 9 [787]
muger no entendiesse que auja de morir porque no llorasse nj se entristeciesse porque lo tenjan por mal aguero: venjda la noche en que auja de morir, stajuauanla muy ricamente, y haziãla entender que la lleuauan para que dormjesse con ella algun gran señor: y lleuauanla con grã silencio al cu, donde auja de morir: subida arriba, tomauala vno a cuestas espaldas con espaldas, y de presto la cortauan la cabeça, y luego la desollauan: y con mancebo robusto vestiase el pelejo.

Este que vestia el pelejo desta que matauan: lleuauanle luego con mucha solenjdad y acõpañan-

The twelfth month they named Teul eco, which meaneth "The Arrival of the Gods." They celebrated this feast in honor of all the gods; for they said that they had gone to a number of places. They observed a great feast on the last day of this month because their gods had arrived.

Al dozeno mes llamauan Teul eco, que quiere dezir la llegada le los dioses celebrauan esta fiesta, a honrra de todos los dioses, porque dezian que aujan ydo a algunas partes, hazian gran fiesta el postrero dia deste mes, porque sus dioses aujan llegado.

796x [805] 776

Chapter 12
Teul eco

On the fifteenth day of this month the young men and boys strewed boughs on all the altars and shrines of the gods, both those which were in the houses and those which were along the roads and crossroads. And for this activity which they performed they gave them maize; [to some they] gave a large basket full of maize, and to others two or three ears.

On the eighteenth day arrived the god (who is always a young man whom they called Tlamatzincatl; that is, Titlacauan). They said that, because he was young and strong, he traveled better and arrived first. They then set forth food on his pyramid, and that night they ate and drank, and all made merry, especially the old men and the old women, who drank wine because of the arrival of the god. And they said that with this rejoicing they washed his feet for him.

On the last day of this month was the great feast; for they said that all the gods then arrived. On the eve of this day, at night, they made, on a mat, a very closely packed small cake of cornmeal, in the shape of a cheese. Upon this small cake the gods impressed the print of a foot as a sign that they had come. All night long the principal priest watched, and came and went many times to see when he would descry the print.

Seeing the mark of a footprint, the priest then cried out, saying "Our lord hath come!" Then the priests of the pyramid began to sound horns, and conch shells, and trumpets, and other instruments of those

Cap. 12
Teul eco

1 A KL Teul eco A 10
2 b A los qujnze dias deste mes: los b 11
3 c moços y muchachos, enrramauan c 12
4 d todos los altares y oratorios de los d 13
5 e dioses: assi los que estauan dentro de e 14
6 f las casas como por los camjnos y en- f 15 [465]
7 g cruzijadas, y por esta diligencia que g 16
8 A hazian dauãlos mahiz, algunos dauan A 17
9 b vn chiqujvitl lleno de mahiz, y a otros b 18
10 c dos o tres maçorcas. c 19
11 d A los deziocho dias: llegaua el dios d 20
12 e (que siempre es mançebo que le e 21 [776]
13 f llamauã tlamatzincatl: este es titla- f 22
14 g cauã) deziã que por ser mancebo y g 23
15 A rezio, camjnaua mejor, y llegaua pri- A 24 [273]
16 b mero: luego ofreciã comjda en su cu, b 25
17 c y aquella noche comjan y beujan y c 26
18 d regozijauãse todos: especialmente los d 27
19 e viejos, y viejos que beujan vino, por la e 28 20 f llegada del dios: y dezian que lo f 29[1] lauauã los pies con este regozijo.

El postrero dia deste mes era la gran fiesta: porque dizen que todos los dioses llegauan entonce: la vigilia deste dia, a la noche hazian encima de vn petate de harina de mahiz vn mõtonzillo muy tupido de la forma de vn queso: en este montonzillo imprimjan los dioses la pisada de vn pie en señal que avian llegado: toda la noche el principal satrapa velaua y yva y venja muchas vezes a mjrar quando veria la pisada. [252]

En vinjendo el satrapa la señal de la pisada luego daua bozes diziendo, llegado a nuestro señor: luego comenzauan los mjnjstros del cu, a tañer cornetas, y caracoles, y trompetas y otros instrumentos de los [534]

1. Mengüal corrobora: Sahagún usaba Michael.

which they then used.

The thirteenth month they named Tepeilhuitl. In this month they celebrated a feast in honor of the high mountains, which are in all these lands of this New Spain, where large clouds pile up. They made the images of each one of them in human form, from the dough which is called tzoalli, and they laid offerings before these images in veneration of these same mountains.

Al tercio decimo mes llamauan Tepeilhujtl: En este mes hazian fiesta a honrra de lo montes emjnẽtes, que estan por todas estas comarcas desta nueua españa: donde se armã fiublados: hazian las ymagenes en figura humana a cada vno dellos de la masa que se llama tzoal, y ofrecian delante destas ymagenes, en respecto destos mismos montes.

796 [805] [778]

Chapter 13
Tepeilhuitl

In honor of the mountains they made a number of serpents, of wood or of the roots of trees, and they fashioned them heads like [those of] serpents. They made also some lengths of wood, as thick as the wrist, and long. They called them ecatotonti. These, as well as the serpents, they overlaid with that dough which they call tzoalli. These pieces they provided a covering in the manner of mountains. Above, they placed the head, like the head of a person. Likewise they made these images in memory of those who had drowned in the water, or had died such a death that they did not burn them, but rather buried them.

After, with many ceremonies, they had placed upon their altars the aforementioned images, they also offered them tamales and other food; and also they uttered canticles of their praises, and they drank wine in their honor.

Upon arrival of the feast in honor of the mountains, they slew four women and one man. The first of these [women] they called Tepexoch. The second they called Matlalcueie. The third they named Xochtecatl. The fourth they called Mayauel. And the man they named Milnaoatl. They decked these women and the man in many papers covered with rubber. And they carried them in some litters upon the shoulders of women highly adorned, to the place where they were to slay them.

1. Mengload metaphors. Consider for this word.

Cap. 13.
Tepeilhujtl.

1	g	KL.	g	30
2	A	Hazian a honrra de los montes: vnas	A	1'	796
3	b	culebras de palo o de rayzes de arboles,	b	2
4	c	y labrauanles la cabeça como culebra:	c	3	778
5	d	haziã tãbien vnos troços de palo gru-	d	4
6	e	esos como la muñeca largos llamauan-	e	5
7	f	los Ecatotonti: assi a estos como a las	f	6
8	g	culebras los investian cõ aquella masa	g	7
9	A	que llamã tzoal: a estos troços los in-	A	8
10	b	vestian a manera de montes, arriba les	b	9
11	c	ponjan su cabeça como cabeça de per-	c	10
12	d	sona: hazian tambien estas ymagenes,	d	11
13	e	en memoria de aquellos que se aujan	e	12
14	f	ahogado en el agua o avian muerto de	f	13
15	g	tal muerte que no los quemauan, sino	g	14
16	A	que los enterrauan.	A	15
17	b	Despues que cõ muchas cerimonjas,	b	16
18	c	aujan puesto en sus altares a las yma-	c	17
19	d	genes dichas: ofrecianles tambien ta-	d	18	[273]
20	e	males y otras comjdas: y tambien los	e	19

dezian cantares de sus loores, y beujan vino por su honrra.

Llegada la fiesta a honrra de los montes, matauan quatro mugeres y vn hombre: la vna dellas llamauã tepexoch: la segũda llamauã Matlalcueie: la tercera llamauan Sochtecatl: la quarta llamauã Mayauel, y al hombre llamauã Milnaoatl: adereçauan a estas mugeres y al hombre cõ muchos papeles llenos de vlli: y lleuauanlas en vnas literas en hombros de mugeres muy atauajadas, hasta donde las aujã de matar.

796 [289] [314] [293] [493 482]

The fourteenth month they named Quecholli. They observed a feast to the god name Mixcoatl. And in this month they made arrows and darts for war. They slew many slaves in honor of this god.

Chapter 14
Quecholli

When they made the arrows, for a space of five days all took blood from the ears, and [with] the blood which they pressed out of them they anointed their own temples. They said that they did penances in order to go to hunt deer. From those who did not bleed themselves, they took their capes as punishment. No man lay with his wife on those days; neither did the old men nor the old women drink wine; because they did penance.

At the end of the four days during which they made the arrows and darts, they made a number of very small arrows, and bound them in four's with each [bundle of] four torches. And, a small bundle of the four torches and the four arrows being made, they offered them upon the graves of the dead. They placed also, along with the arrows and torches, two tamales. All this remained for a whole day upon the grave, and at night they burned it and performed many other ceremonies for the dead on this same feast.

On the tenth day of this month, all the Mexicans and Tlatelulcans went to those mountains which they call Çacatepec. And they say that this mountain is their mother. On the day that they arrived, they made huts or cabins of grass, and they lit fires, and nothing else did they do that day.

Next day, at dawn, all forthwith broke fast and set out for the country and formed a great wing, wherewith they surrounded many animals—deer, rabbit, and other animals—and little by little they kept coming together until they rounded up all of them. Then they attacked and hunted, each one what he could.

1. Marginal notation: November he dier ano.

Al quarto decimo mes llamauan Quecholli: hazian fiesta al dios llamado Miscoatl: y en este mes hazian saetas y dardos para la guerra: matauã a honrra deste dios muchos esclauos.

Cap. 14
Quecholli.

1 f KL. Quando hazian las saetas por espa-
2 g cio de cinco dias: todos se sangrauan
3 A de las orejas y la sangre que esprimjan
4 b dellas: vntauanla por sus mesmas si-
5 c enes. Dezian que hazian penjtencias
6 d para yr a caçar venados: los que no se
7 e sangrauan, tomauanles las mantas en
8 f pena: njngun hombre se echaua con
9 g su muger en estos dias, nj los viejos ni
10 A virjas beujan pulcre: porque hazian
11 b penjtencia.
12 c
13 d Acabados los quatro dias en que ha-
14 e zian las saetas y dardos: haziã vnas
15 f saetas chiquitas y atauanlas de quatro
16 g en quatro con cada quatro teas: y assi
17 A hecho vn manogico de las quatro teas,
18 b y de las quatro saetas, ofrecianlas so-
19 c bre los sepulchros de los muertos: pon-
20 d jan tambien juntamente con las saetas
y teas dos tamales: estaua todo esto vn dia entero sobre la sepultura, y a la noche lo quemauan: y hazian otras muchas cerimonjas por los defũtos en esta mesma fiesta.

A los diez dias deste mes yvan todos los Mexicanos y Tlatelulcãos a aquellos montes que llaman Çacatepec: y dizen que es su madre aquel monte, el dia que llegauan hazian zacales o cabañas de heno, y hazian fuegos y njnguna otra cosa hazian aquel dia.

Otro dia en amaneciendo luego almorçauan todos, y salian al campo y hazian vna ala grande: donde cercauan muchos anjmales, ciervos, conejos, y otros anjmales y poco a poco se yvan juntando hasta acorralarlos todos: entonce arremetian y caçauan cada a qual lo que podia.

The fifteenth month they named Panquetzaliztli. In this month they celebrated a feast to the god of war, Uitzilopochtli. Before this feast, the priests of the idols fasted for forty days and performed other severe penances, like going naked at midnight to carry branches to the mountains. Etc.

Chapter 15
Panquetzaliztli

On the second day of this month all began to perform a dance and to sing the canticles of Uitzilopochtli in the the courtyard of his pyramid. Men and women danced, all together. They began these canticles in the afternoon, and they ended at nearly ten o'clock. These dances and songs lasted twenty days.

On the ninth day of this month, they adorned, with great ceremonies, those whom they were to slay. They painted them in various colors; they decked them in many papers. Finally they performed a dance with them, in which went a woman paired with a man, singing and dancing.

On the sixteenth day of this month, the owners of the slaves began a fast; and on the nineteenth day, they began to perform a number of dances in which all, men and women, went grasping hands, and they danced winding back and forth in the courtyard of the aforementioned pyramid. A number of old men sang, and played [instruments] while the others danced.

After those who were to die had performed many ceremonies, there came down from the pyramid of Uitzilopochtli one attired in the ornaments of the god Paynal, and he slew four of those slaves in the ball court which was found in the courtyard which they called Teotlachtli. From there he departed and circled all the city, running; and in certain places he slew, in each one, a slave. And from that point [onward], two factions began a mock battle. Some died in the skirmishing.

1. Marginal numbers. Dedicatio Templi [illegible]

´Al quinzeno mes llamauan Panquetzaliztli: En este mes hazia fiesta al dios de la guerra Vitzilobuchtli: antes desta fiesta los satrapas de los ydolos ayunauan quarenta dias y hazian otras penjtencias asperas como era yr a la media noche desnudos a lleuar ramos a los montes. Etc.

796X [805 ● 776 785]

Cap. 15.
Panquetzaliztli.

1	e	KL		e	9¹
2	f		El segundo dia deste mes començauã	f	10
3	g		todos a hazer areyto, y a cantar los can-	g	11
4	A		tares de Vitzilobuchtli, en el patio de	A	12
5	b		su cu, baylauan hombres y mugeres to-	b	13
6	c		dos juntos: comẽçauan estos cantares	c	14
7	d		a la tarde, y acabauan cerca de las diez:	d	15
8	e		durauan estos bayles y cantos veinte	e	16
9	f		dias.	f	17
10	g		A los nueue dias deste mes: apare-	g	18
11	A		jauã cõ grandes cerimonjas a los que	A	19
12	b		aujan de matar pintauanlos de diuersas	b	20
13	c		colores, componjãlos con muchos pa-	c	21
14	d		peles: al fin hazian vn areyte con ellos,	d	22
15	e		en el qual yyan vna muger y vn hom-	e	23
16	f		bre pareados cantando y bayllãdo.	f	24
17	g		A los deziseys dias deste mes: co-	g	25
18	A		mençauã a ayunar los dueños de los	A	26
19	b		esclauos y a los dezinueue dias, comen-	b	27
20	c		çauan a hazer vnas danças en que yyan	c	28

796X 535 [302] 796X [535]

todos asidos de las manos hombres y mugeres, y dançauan culebreãdo en el patio del dicho cu, cantauã y tañjan vnos viejos entre tanto que los otros dancauan.

Despues de auer hecho muchas cerimonjas los que auian de morir decendian del cu de Vitzilobuchtli, vno vestido con los ornamẽtos del dios Paynal, y mataua quatro de aquellos esclauos en el juego de pelota que estaua en el patio que llamauã teudlachtli: de alli yva y cercaua toda la ciudad corriendo, y en ciertas partes mataua en cada vno vn esclauo: y de alli començauan a escaramuçar dos partialidades, murian algunos en la escaramuça.

[346] [726]

The sixteenth month they named Atemoztli. In this month they celebrated a feast to the rain gods, because for the most part in this month it began to thunder and to threaten rain; and the priests of the Tlalocs began to do penances and to offer sacrifices, so that the rains would come.

Al mes decimo sesto llamauan Atemuztli: En este mes hazian fiesta a los Dioses de la pluuja: porque por la mayor parte en este mes, començaua a tronar y hazer demuestras de agua: y los satrapas de los Tlaloques començauan a hazer penjtencias y sacrificios porque venjesse el agua.

796[K]
[805
776]

Chapter 16
Atemoztli

When it began to thunder, the priests of the Tlalocs, with great industriousness, offered copal and other fragrances to their gods and to all the statues of these. They said that then they came to give rain. And the common folk made vows to fashion the images of the mountains, which are called tepictli, because they are dedicated [to] those gods of the rain. And on the sixteenth day of this month, all the common folk prepared offerings to offer before Tlaloc. And [during] these four days they performed penances, and the men abstained from women, and the women from men.

Having come to [the time of] the feast, which they celebrated on the last day of this month, they cut lengths of paper, and they bound them to a number of poles, from bottom to top. And they set them up in the courtyards of their houses and made the images of the mountains of tzoalli. They fashioned for them their teeth of squash seeds, and their eyes of some beans which are named aiecotli. And then they offered them their offerings of food, and they worshipped them.

After having kept a vigil for them, and beaten drums and sung for them, they opened their breasts with a tzotzopaztli, which is an instrument with which the women weave, almost like a machete; and they took out their hearts and struck off their heads. And later they divided up all the body among themselves and ate it; and the ornaments with which

Cap. 16.
Atemuztli.

1	d	KL	d	29[1]
2	e	Quando començaua a tronar los	e	30
3	f	satrapas de los Tlaloques con gran	f	1[2]
4	g	diligencia offrecian copal y otros per-	g	2
5	A	fumes a sus dioses, y a todas las estatuas	A	3
6	b	dellos: dezian que entonce venjan para	b	4
7	c	dar agua: y los populares hazian votos	c	5
8	d	de hazer las ymagines de los montes	d	6
9	e	que se llaman Tepictli: porq̃ son dedi-	e	7
10	f	cadas aquellos dioses del agua. Y a los	f	8
11	g	dezieis dias deste mes, todos los popu-	g	9
12	A	lares aparejauan offrendas para offre-	A	10
13	b	cer a Tlaloc: y estos quatro dias hazian	b	11
14	c	penjtẽcia, y abstenjanse los hombres	c	12
15	d	de las mugeres, y las mugeres de los	d	13
16	e	hombres.	e	14
17	f	Llegados a la fiesta que la celebrauan	f	15
18	g	el vltimo dia deste mes: cortauan tiras	g	16
19	A	de papel, y stauanlas a vnos barales	A	17
20	b	desde abaxo hasta arriba: y hincauan-	b	18[3]

[834]
[778]
[289]

los en los patios de sus casas y hazian las ymagines de los montes de tzoal: hazianles los diẽtes de pepitas de calabaça, y los ojos de vnos frisoles que se llaman aiecotli: y luego los ofrecian sus offrendas de comida y los adorauan.

[324]

Despues de auerlos velado y tañido y cãtado: abrianlos por los pechos, con vn tzotzopaztli: que es instrumento con que texen las mugeres, casi a manera de machete: y sacauanles el coraçon, y cortauãles las cabeças: y despues repartian todo el cuerpo entre si,

[413
286]

1. Marginal notation: Sarauiej cuatro.
2. Marginal notation: Siguiente Jueues Marte 9.

2. Marginal notation: Deuendar de dier xxij.

The seventeenth month they called Tititl. In this month they celebrated a feast to a goddess whom they named Ilamatecutli, and by another name, Tonan, and by [still] another name, Cencamisuh. In honor of this goddess they slew a woman, and as soon as they had torn out her heart they struck off her head and performed a dance with it. He who went before carried the head by the hair, in his right hand, making [with it] the gestures of the dance.

Al mes decimo septimo llamauan Tititl. En este mes haziã fiesta a vna diosa que llamauã Jlamatecutli, y por otro nombre Tona, y por otro nombre concamjauh, a honrra desta diosa: matauan vna muger, y desque le aviã sacado el coraçon cortauanle la cabeça y hazian areyto con ella, el que yva adelante lleuaua la cabeça por los cabellos en la mano derecha, haziendo sus ademanes de bayle.

796X [805] 776 [535]

Chapter 17
Tititl

This woman whom they slew in this feast they arrayed in the adornments of that goddess whose likeness [she was], called Ilamatecutli, and by another name, Tonan, which meaneth "Our Mother." This woman, thus bedight with the adornments [which are] set forth in the description, danced alone. A number of old men made music for her; and, dancing, she sighed and wept, mindful that soon she was to die. After midday, the priests arrayed themselves in the ornaments of all the gods, and went before her, and took her up to the pyramid where she was to die. Having stretched her out upon the sacrificial stone, they tore out her heart, and they struck off her head. Then one of those who went adorned as a god took [it], and, [with him] foremost, carrying it by the hair, they performed a dance with it. He who bore it in his right hand guided [them], and he made the dance gestures with it.

On the same day that the servants of the idols slew this woman, they performed certain mock-battles, and made merry, running—some behind the others—up and down the pyramid, enacting certain ceremonies.

On the next day, all the common folk made a number of sacks, like pockets, with some cords attached, as much as a fathom long. They filled these

1. Mexicanized [illegible]

Cap. 17.
Tititl.

1 c KL
2 d A esta muger que matauan en esta
3 e fiesta: componjanla con los ataujos de
4 f aquella diosa cuya ymagen tenja que
5 g se llama Jlamatecutli y por otro nom-
6 A bre Tona quiere dezir nuestra madre
7 b esta muger ansi compuesta con los 8 c ataujos estan puestos en la historia,
9 d baylaua sola: hazianla el son vnos vie-
10 e jos, y baylando suspiraua y llorauа,
11 f acordandose que luego auia de morir:
12 g pasando el medio dia, componjanse los 13 A satrapas con los ornamentos de todos
14 b los dioses, y yvan delante della, y su-
15 c bianla al cu, donde auia de morir:
16 d echada sobre el tazon de piedra, sa-
17 e cauanla el coraçon, y cortauanla la ca-
18 f beça, tomaua luego vno de aquellos
19 g que yva adornado como dios, y delan-20 A tero de todos y lleuandola por los ca-bellos: hazian areyto cõ ella guisaua el que la lleuaua en la mano derecha y hazia sus ademanes de bayle con ella.

c 19 d 20 e 21 f 22 g 23 A 24 b 25 c 26 d 27 e 28 f 29 g 30 A 31 b 1[1] c 2 d 3 e 4 f 5[2] g 6 A 7

796X 535

El mesmo dia que matauã esta muger los minjstros de los ydolos, haziã ciertas escaramuças y regozijos: corriendo vnos tras otros el cu, arriba y el cu abaxo haziendo ciertas cerimonjas.

796X

El dia siguiente todos los populares hazian vnas talegas como bolsas, con vnos cordeles atadas tan largos como vn braço: hinchian aquellas talegas de

796X 565 524 [415]

2. Mexicanized [illegible]

The eighteenth month they named Izcalli. In this month they celebrated a feast to the god of fire, whom they called Xiuhtecutli, or Ixcoçauhqui. They made an image in his honor, with great artifice, which appeared to throw off flames of its own accord. And every four years, in this same feast, they slew slaves and captives in honor of this god. And they pierced the ears of all the children who had been born in those years, and they gave them godfathers and godmothers.

Al mes decimo octauo llamauan Izcalli: en este mes hazian fiesta al dios del fuego que llamauan Xiuhtecutli, o Ixcoçauhquj: hazian vna ymagen a su hõrra de grã artificio que parecia que echaua llamas de fuego de si: y de quatro en quatro años en esta mesma fiesta esclauos y captiuos matauan a honrra deste dios: y agujerauan las orejas a todos los njños que aujan nacido en aquellos años y dauanlos padrinos, y madrinas.

796 [805 778] 776 [852 304 608]

Chapter 18
Izcalli

On the tenth day of this month they made a new fire at midnight, before the image of Xiuhtecutli, [which was] very curiously adorned. And, the fire having been lit, then, in the morning, the young men and boys came, and they brought various animals which they had hunted in the ten preceding days—some water [animals] and some land [animals]. And they offered them to the old men who were charged with safeguarding this god. And these cast into the fire all of those animals, so that they would cook. And they gave each one of these young men and boys a tamal made with amaranth, which they called vauhquiltamalli, which everyone in the city offered upon that day. All ate of these in honor of the feast day. They ate them very hot, and they drank and made merry.

On this feast, in ordinary years, they slew no one. But in the bissextile year, which was every four years, they slew, during this feast, captives and slaves and the impersonator of Xiuhtecutli, decorated in the manner which hath been told above, with many precious and curious adornments; they performed many great ceremonies upon the death of these [victims]—many more than on the other feasts already described. This is set forth at length in the account of this feast.

After they had slain these slaves and captives and the impersonator of Ixcoçauhqui, who is the god of fire, all the leading men and lords, the illustrious, and

Cap. 18.
Izcalli

1 b KL. 2 c A los diez dias deste mes: sacauã 3 d fuego nueuo a la media noche delante 4 e la ymagẽ de Xiuhtecutli muy curiosa- 5 f mente ataujada: y encendidos fuegos, 6 g luego en amaneciendo venjan los man- 7 A cebos y muchachos, y trayã diuersos 8 b anjmales que aujan caçado en los diez 9 c dias pasados vnos de agua, y otros de 10 d tierra: y offrecianlos a los viejos que 11 e tenjan cargo de guardar a este dios: y 12 f ellos echauã en el fuego a todos aque- 13 g llos anjmales para que se asassen: y 14 A dauan a cada vno destos moços y mu- 15 b chachos vn tamal hecho de bledos que 16 c ellos llamauã Vauhquiltamalli: los 17 d quales todo el pueblo ofrecia aquel dia, 18 e y todos comjan dellos por honrra de 19 f la fiesta, comjanlos muy calientes y 20 g beujan y regozijauanse.

b 8 c 9 d 10 e 11 f 12 g 13 A 14 b 15 c 16 d 17 e 18 f 19 [262] g 20 A 21 b 22 c 23 d 24 e 25 f 26 g 27

En esta fiesta los años comunes no matauã a nadie: pero el año del bisexto que era de quatro en quatro años: matauan en esta fiesta captiuos y esclauos, y la ymagen de Xiuhtecutli, compuesta de la manera que arriba se dixo cõ muchos y preciosos y curiosos ataujos: hazian grandes y muchas cerimonjas en la muerte destos, muchas mas que en las otras fiestas ya dichas. Esto esta puesto a la larga en la historia desta fiesta.

Despues que aujan muerto a estos esclauos y captiuos, y a la ymagen de Jxcoçauhquj que es el dios del fuego: estauan aparejados y adereçados muy rica- [535]

The five remaining days of the year, which are the four last of January and the first of February, they named Nemontemi, which meaneth barren days. And they regarded them as unlucky and of evil fortune. There is conjecture that when they pierced the boys' and girls' ears, which was every four years, they set aside six days of Nemontemi, and it is the same as the bissextile which we observe every four years.

A los cinco dias restantes del año que son los quatro vltimos de Enero y el primero de hebrero llamauan Nemontemi, que quijere dezir dias valdios: y tenjanlos por aziagos y de mala fortuna: ay conjectura que quando agujerauan las orejas a los njños y njñas que era de quatro en quatro años, echauan seys dias de Nenontemj y es lo mjsmo del bisexto que nosotros hazemos de quatro en quatro años.

796x 777 [805] [304]

Chapter 19

These five days they held as of evil fortune and unlucky. They said that those who were born in them had evil outcomes in all their affairs, and were poor and wretched. They named them Nemo. If they were men, they named them Nemoquich; if it was a woman, they named her Nenciuatl. They dared do nothing in these days, because they were unlucky. Especially did they abstain from quarreling, because they said that those who quarreled in these days always remained with that custom. They held as a bad omen stumbling in these days.

These aforementioned feasts were fixed, and were always observed within the month, or a day or two ahead. Other feasts they had [which were] movable, which were celebrated during the course of the twenty signs, which made a round in two hundred and sixty days. And hence these movable feasts, in a year, fell one in one month, and another in another, and always varied.

Capi. 19.

1 A Estos cinco dias tenjan por malafor- A 28
2 b tunados y aziagos: dezian que los que b 29
3 c en ellos nacian tenjan malos successos c 30
4 d en todas sus cosas, y eran pobres y mj- d 31
seros llamauanlos Nemo, si eran hombres llamauanlos Nenoqujch, y si era muger llamauala Nencioatl, no osauan hazer nada en estos dias por ser malafortunados: especialmente se abstenjan de reñjr: porque dezian que los que reñjan en estos dias se quedauã siempre con aquella costumbre tenjan por mal aguero tropeçar en estos dias.

Estas fiestas dichas eran fixas que siempre se haziã dentro del mes o vn dia o dos adelante: Otras fiestas tenjan moujbles que se hazian por el curso de los veinte signos: los quales hazian vn circulo en dozientos y sesenta dias: y por tanto estas fiestas moujbles vn año cayan en vn mes y otro en otro y siempre variauan.

[551] [578] [787]

Of the Movable Feasts

The first movable feast was celebrated in honor of the sun, in the sign which is named ce ocelotl, in the fourth house, which is named naui ollin. On this feast they offered, to the image of the sun, quail, and they offered incense. And at noon they slew captives before it in honor of the sun. On this same day, all drew blood from their ears—children and those who were grown—in honor of the sun, and they offered it that blood.

De las fiestas moujbles.

La primera fiesta moujble se celebraua a honrra del sol en el signo que se llama ce ocelutl, en la quarta casa que se llama naolin: en esta fiesta ofrecian a la ymagen del sol codornjzes y incensauan: y en el medio matauã capituos delante della a honrra del sol. En este mesmo dia se sangrauan todos de las orejas chicos y grãdes a hõrra del sol y le ofrecian aquella sangre.

796x [776] [785]

The Second Movable Feast

In this same sign, in the seventh house, all the painters and the seamstresses celebrated a feast. They

La segunda fiesta moujble.

En este mjsmo signo en la septima casa haziã fiesta todos los pintores, y las labrãderas ayunauã quarẽta

785 796x 463

X 796 Twentieth Chapter, which telleth of the feast and blood sacrifices which they made on the first day [805] [and] month, which was named, and which they called, Atl caualo or Quauitl eua.[1]

Quauitl eua: This day came, and when it was this [month], a feast was then celebrated for the Tlaloca.

[202] Everywhere on mountain tops, blood sacrifices[2] were made and sacrificial banners were hung. Blood sacrifices were made at Tepetzinco, or there in the very gulf of the lake at a place called Pantitlan.

[789] At this place they left consecrated papers[3] and set up long poles called cuenmantli, by means of which would come to pass greenness, sprouting, and growth.

[777 827] And there they took children, known as "human banners"[4]—those who had two cowlicks of hair and whose day signs were favorable. They were sought everywhere, and bought. It was said: "These are precious blood-offerings. [The rain gods] receive them with rejoicing; they wish for them; they are thus satisfied and given contentment." With them, the rains were sought; rain was asked.

And everywhere, in the houses, in each home, in each of the quarters where the young warriors were trained, and in each tribal temple, everywhere they [202 314 289] erected the slender green poles; on them, they placed white paper flags dotted with large and small drops of liquid rubber.[5]

Jnic 20. capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa yn ilhuitl, yoan in nextlaoaliztli: in quichioaia, yn ipan vel ic cemilhuitl metztli; in qujtocaiotiaia, in qujtoaia atl caoalo anoço quauitl eua.

Quauitl eua, ynin ilhuitl quiçaia: auh yn iquac y, vncan ilhujqujxtililoia in tlaloque:

nextlaoaloia, in noujan tepeticpac, yoã neteteuhtiloia, onnextlaoaloia, in tepetzinco, anoço vmpa in vel aytic, ytocaiocan pantitla:

vmpa concaoaia in teteujtl, yoan vmpa conquetzaia quauitl, moteneoa cuenmantli, viujtlatztic, çan itech ieetiuh yn icelica, yn itzmolinca, yzcallo.

Yoan vmpa qujmoncaoaia pipiltzitzintj, in moteneoaia tlacateteuhti: ichoãtin in vntecuezcomeque, in qualli intonal: noujan temoloia, patiiotiloia: mitoaia, ca ichoantin vellaçonextlaoalti, vel qujnpaccacelia qujnnequj, ic vellamati, ic vellamachtilo, ynjc in ca qujiauhtlatlanjoa, quiiauhtlatlano.

Auh yn novian calpan, in techachan: yoan in tetelpuchcalco, in cacalpulco, noujian qujquetzaia, matlaquauhpitzaoac, tzonioquauitl, itech qujtlatlaliaia amateteujtl, vltica tlaulchipinilli, tlavlchachapatztli.

1. Sahagún, in the corresponding Spanish text, observes that Quauitleua is the term used by the Mexicans. Cf. Manuel Orozco y Berra: Historia antigua y de la conquista de México (México: Tipografía de Gonzalo A. Esteva, 1880), Vol. II, p. 36: "Xilomanaliztli,—Atlacahualco,—Cuahitlehua,—Cihuailhuitl. Xilomanaliztli, ofrenda de maíz ó flores: nombre usado por los de Tlaxcalla. Cuahitlehua, quemazon de los debiles: nombre perteneciente á lugares fuera de México. Atlacahualco ó Atlacualco, nombre admitido por los mexicanos: orgen el P. Leon, detencion de las aguas, y es la conmemoracion de todas que mas nos sirviere. Cihuailhuitl, fiesta de la muger. El simbolo religioso es la imágen de Tlaloc y su debal reverenciando, con el agua entre las raices." Cf. also Francisco J. Clavijero: Historia antigua de México (México: Editorial Porrúa, S. A., 1945), Vol. II, pp. 401-2: ". . . el primer mes, cuyo nombre Atlacahualco o Atlacualco, significa la cerrazón del agua, pues en el mes de marzo eran las lluvias del invierno en las partes septentrionales, en donde tuvo origen el calendario mexicano o tolteca. La llamaban tambien Quauhtlehua, lo que significa la regocijada de los debiles, que se verifica en este tiempo en las partes frias. Las tlaxcaltecas llamaban a este mes Xilomanaliztli, esto es, oblacion de las mazorcas de maiz, porque en él ofrecian a sus dioses las del año corrido, para ayudar la siembra que por este tiempo comenzaban a hacer en los lugares altos."

Angel María Garibay K. in "Relación breve de las fiestas de los dioses, Fray Bernardino de Sahagún" (Tlalocan, Vol. II), p. 291, translates cuahuel ehua as palo se alza. Eduard Seler, in Einige Kapitel aus dem Geschichtswerk des Fray Bernardino de Sahagun aus dem Aztekischen uebersetzen uebersetzt (Cornelius Seler-Sachs, Walter Lehmann, Walter Krickeberg, eds.; Stuttgart: Stecker und Schroeder, 1927), Vol. I, p. 55, translates the name as ein Baume erhebet sich (machen sich auf dem Weg).

2. Neezlaualoa. Seler rather consistently renders forms of this word in terms of payment of a debt rather than of a sacrifice. Cf. ixtlaua in Alonso de Molina: Vocabulario de la lengua mexicana (Jesús Piedrasanta, ed.; Leipzig: B. G. Teubner, 1880), and in Rémi Siméon: Dictionnaire de la langue nahuatl ou mexicaine (Paris: Imprimerie Nationale, 1885). In Collected Works (Cambridge, Mass.: Carnegie Institution of Washington, 1939), Vol. II, Pt. 4 p. 13, Seler says: "The child sacrifices to the rain god were called neezlaualli 'the debt paid.'"

3. Garibay (op. cit., p. 292) translates cuenmantli as cruz engrudas.

4. In loc. cit., Garibay renders tlacateteuhtli as cruz humanas and makes it clear (Nahuatl manuscript No. 4) that the term refers to the children who died. Seler (Einige Kapitel, p. 55) refers to them as Menschen-Opferträger (Opferpapiere in Menschengestalt). They may usually have been paper streamers surmounted by a representation of a human head, and have symbolized the children who died. Ixtlaua (Seler: op. cit., p. 66) from the Biblioteca del Palacio MS.

5. See Note 3. Sahagún, in the corresponding Spanish text, refers to "unos papeles, llenos de gotas de cili a los quales papeles llamaban amatetelli." Tlaulchachapatzli: cf. chachapaua, in Molina (op. cit.).

They said unto him:

"Go, my friend! Though thou art a brave man, a warrior, how may we care about thee? Wherever our foes come rising against us, may we die as brave men!"

And these were the words which they said unto him; and much else besides.

And thereafter, when they had cast him out, he slowly crept away, going backwards and on all fours, lamenting as he went. Thus he went off, nevermore to sing and dance with the others.

And the matrons cast out the woman. Nevermore would she take up the song and dance with the others. Nevermore would she clasp hands with the others [in dance]. Thus they dismissed her; the leaders of the maidens cast her out forever.

And the woman who had sinned evermore went alone. Never might she hope once again to sing and to dance with the others.

And the one whom they had punished because of the woman, then married her, and quieted the affair with her.

And before the real feast came which they called Uei tecuilhuitl, on the tenth day, when the woman [who was the likeness of] Xilonen died, her face was painted in two colors. Thus she was stained yellow about her lips, and her forehead chili-red. From her paper cap, which had four corners, hung quetzal feathers in the form of maize tassels; and [she wore] a wide neck band. Her neck piece consisted of many strings of turquoise. She wore a golden disc, as breast ornament. Her shirt and skirt had the water lily [flower and leaf design]. She wore princely sandals, carmine-colored sandals. Her shield and her rattle stick were chili-red. In the four directions she entered, or went down into, the sand.[7]

For this reason was it said, "She goeth into the sand": in this way she foretold her death—that on the morrow she would die.

She began the feast day when she entered Tetamaçolco. The second place where we went to arrive, we reached [to accomplish the ceremony], and it was a place named Necoquinecan. The third place in which she entered [the sand] was Atenchicalcan, and for this reason was it called Atenchicalcan—that here gushed forth the water, and also here faded away the

qujlhuja,

Xiiauh nocne aço toqujchtli, aço titiiacauh, quen timiztocujtlauja: çaçocan techquetzaqujuh in toiaouh, maça toqujch miqujcli:

796x 684 836

yoan in tlatolli qujlhujaia, vel oc mjec.

Auh yno ica oalmaiauhque, ça iaiatiuh, chichicoeoatiuh, ça zonauhtiuh, tltentiuh, ic centlatlalcauja, aoqujc teoan cujcoanoz.

Auh in cioatl çan qujtoroca, in cioatetiachcauh: aoqujc no teoi cujcoianoz, aoqujc no tenaoaz, ic qujcennaoatia, qujcenmacaoa, yn ichpuchtlaiacanquj.

Auh in cioatl yn otlatlaco, iccenmaian tlatlalcauja, aoq'c ceppa motemachiz, yn oc ceppa teoan cujcoanoz.

Auh in iehoatl yn otlatzacujltiloc, yn ipampa cioatl, njman ic qujmocioaoatia, qujiauceujlia.

Auh yn aiamo aci in iquac ie uel ilhujtl, yn moteneoa vei tecujlhujtl, yn iquac tlamatlacti, iquac miquja, in xilonen cioatl, michchictlapan, ynic michiuh yn itẽco cortic, auh yn ixquac chichiltic: yiamacal nauhcampa nacace, quetzalmjiaoaio, cozcapetlatl: yn icoaquj chalchiujtl miecpantli, teucujtlacomalli yn ipan mantiuh, yiaxochiavipil yoan yaxochiacue yhiztcac, ynochpalcac: yn ichimal yoã yn ichicaoaz chichiltic, nauhcampa yn aquja anoço xalaquja:

796x [302] 301

[292 293]

ynic mjtoa xalaquj, ic qujmachiltia yn jmjquiz, in miquiz muztla:

796x

in cemilhujtl conpeoaltia yn aquj, tetamaçolco, ynic vecan vncan in tacitiacacan, tacito: yoan itocaiocan necoqujnecan: ynjc eacan vncan yn aquja, yn atenchicalcan, ynic moteneoa atenchicalcan, ca vncan, oalcholoaia yn atl, yoan no vncan oalpopolinjaia yn

796x 805

7. Entering the sand was evidently a ceremony literally enacted, and logical in view of the attributes of the deities whose festivities were honored by it. The explanation in both Sahagún's Spanish text and the Aztec columns is not explicit. The four places in which Xilonen entered the sand may be identified in modern Mexico City and are associated with water and sand. Aqueo is probably an amalgamation of aquja.—Angel María Garibay, personal communication.

1796 wind. And the fourth place which she entered was over there at Xolloco. [And] there she stopped.

1805 [For] these were a part of, and carried together, the four year-bearers—Reed, Flint, House, and Rabbit. Thus do the year-bearers go describing circles, whirling around [as a measure of time].

1796 When, at early dawn, Xilonen was to die, all during the night songs were sung after the manner of the women. Vigil was kept. Everyone passed the night watching; they slept not; the women remained [533] sleepless. They sang the songs [of Xilonen].

And when day broke, then began the dancing. Verily, everyone—the leaders of the youths, the lead- [552] ing warriors, and the valiant warriors bore maize stalks. These were named "bird banners."

1796 Likewise the women danced—those who were with Xilonen. They were pasted with red feathers. 585 And their faces were painted with yellow ochre. Also 793 they colored their faces in two colors: about their lips they were yellow with ochre, and their fore- [302] heads were stained with the red of anatta seeds.[8] [They bore] their wreaths of flowers upon their [301] heads, and the leaders had garlands of the yellow flowers of the Caryophyllus mexicanus [about their necks].[9]

These women were known as priestesses. They mingled not with the men, but remained at one side. They were describing circles, and enclosing Xilonen. They sang for her after the manner of women. These women were called "the hanging gourd."

And the warriors danced before [Xilonen], following a serpentine course.

1796 And for this reason were [the women] known as "the hanging gourd": the two-toned wooden drum, 793 which they beat as they went, had tied to it a gourd, [534] which was under the drum, which looked as if it were hanging beneath. They who struck the two-toned drum went carrying a little drum under their arms, which they beat, as they went, with rubber-tipped drum sticks.[10]

[534] And the priests, [who] attended them, went blowing horns: they blew shell trumpets as they went. And they went strewing, scattering, and casting incense as they went to meet Xilonen.

And the fire priest, who was to slay [Xilonen] as ecatl: ynic namhcan aquja, vmpa xolloco, vmpa ontzonquiçaia, çá qujtocticiaia, çan qujujcaltiaia, yn nauhtetl xiuhtonalli: yn acatl, in tecpatl, in calli, in tochtli, ynic tlaiacoalotiuh, ynic mòmalacachotiuh, in xiuhtonalli.

In ie iuh ioatzinco miquix in Xilonen: cecioal in cioapan cujcoia, toçoonia, muchi tlacatl iztoçooaia, amo cochia, mocochiçoloaia in cioa, quenaia quevilaia yn icujc.

Auh yn ie otlatujc, njman ic peoa in netotilo, vel izqujch tlacatl in tiachcaoan, in telpopuchti, yn iiaque, yoan in tequjoaque, incicintopil: ynjn motocaiotia totopanjtl.

No mjtotia in cioa, yn itechpouja in xilonen, mopopotonjaia tlapaliujtica: yoan motzaoaia tecoçauhtica: no ic qujcotona, yn inxaiac, yn jntenco, tecoçauhtica: auh yn imixquac tlapalachiotica, ymjicpactochiuh, inxonochicozquj cempoalxuchitl yiacatiuh.

Yn ichoā yn, cioa, moteneoa cinatlamacazque, amo qujmonneloaa yn oqujchti, çan nonqua mantiuj, cololujtiuj, qujtepeujtiuj in Xilonen: qujcioapicujcatitiuj: in ichoantin y, cioa moteneoa tecomapilooa.

Auh in tiachcaoan ixpan mjtotitiuj, mococolotiuj:

auh ynic moteneoa tecomapilooa, ca in teponaztli in qujujtectiuj, itech çaliuhtiuh in atecomatl, yhicampa itepotzco ietiuh in teponaztli, iubqujn pilcatiuh ic neci: in teponaçoa çan qujciacaujtiuh in teponaztontli in qujujtectiuh olmatica.

Auh in tlamacazque, tenanamjquj tlapitztiuj, tecizitli in qujpitztiuj: yoan yn iauhtextli in qujpipixotiuj, qujcecenmatiuj, qujtetepeuhtiuj, conjxnamjctiuj in Xilonen.

Auh in tlenamacac, in tiamjctix, vel mocencaoa,

8. Bixa orellana L., the annatto shrub (Clark, op. cit., Vol. I, p. 6). Cf. also Seler, op. cit., p. 151.

9. "Estas flores que se llaman compassuchitl, son semejantes y de buen olor" (Bustamante ed., Vol. III, p. 273). Tagetes, in Seler, loc. cit. See also p. 89, n. 15.

10. Clark (op. cit., Vol. I, p. 95, n. 2), writing of the tlamacazque ecicinimo (chanting priests), says: "The player is called the tamacazque, and the drum, teponaztli, blade from the hollowed-out trunk of the Lonaxerus ciculatus Bonth. this drum has two notes; the rubber-headed drum-sticks are of ulder." Cf. also Sahagún's description of the tongue on the harmon (corresponding Spanish text).

Twenty-eighth Chapter, which telleth of the feast and the offerings which they made upon the feast days of the ninth month, which was named Tlaxochimaco.

The ninth month: it was known as "The Flowers Are Offered,"[1] and [like the others, it] also [consisted of] twenty days.

Two days [before the feast], when flowers were sought, all scattered over the mountains, that every flower might be found—various flowers, mountain flowers: species of dahlia, of origanum, a mountain variety of tagetes; the nextamalxochitl; another origanum species, a variety of tigridia, of plumeria; sweet-smelling mountain clover; quauhelaxochitl, [which is a sweet-smelling flower in the form of an ear of maize]; a species of magnolia, another of tagetes, one of excobedia; one of nymphaea, as well as a red variety; and the white water lily.[2]

And when [these] were gathered, when they had come to the flowers and arrived [where they were], at dawn they then were strung together; everyone strung them. And when the flowers had been threaded, then [these] were twisted and wound [in garlands]—long [ones], very long, and thick—very thick.

And when they had been arranged, then carefully were they set down; they were handled with esteem, and cared for with reverence.

And when this was done, all the peasants came in a body to make tapalcates for themselves. At sundown they plucked turkeys and dogs, and also at sundown they singed them. Those were singed which would be needed on the morrow.

All were occupied. All remained sleepless, wakeful. In festive mood, all were diligent and busy thus making preparations.

And when morning broke, the temple guardians then ministered unto Uitzilopochtli; they adorned him with garlands of flowers; they placed flowers upon his head. And before him they spread, strewed,

Jnic cẽpoalli on chicuei capitulo, itechpa tlatoa in ilhuiti, yoan in tlamanalizti: in quichiouia in ipan ic cemilhujtl, ic chicunauhtetl metztli, in moteneoaia Tlaxuchimaco. 796^x

Inic chicunauhtetl ilhujtl: moteneoa tlaxuchimaco, no cempoalilhujtl: [805]

viptlatica in xuchitemoloa, necemmanalo in tepepan in tlatemolo in izquich xuchitl, in nepapan xuchitl, in tepepan xuchitl, yn acocoxuchitl, vitzitzillacuxuchitl, tepecempoalxuchitl, nextamalxuchitl, tlacoxuchitl, ocelxuchitl, cacalosuchitl, ocuxuchitl, anoço xocuxuchitl, quavelosuchitl, iolloxuchitl, tlalcacalosuchitl, cempoalxuchitl, acaxuchitl, atlacueçona, tlapalatlacueçona, atzatzamolxuchitl. 796^x 137

Auh yn omonechico yn ocaxitico xuchitl, yn oaxiococo, yn otlatujc, ẽjmã ic moçoço, tlaçolo, tlaçoo: auh yn omoçoçoc, xuchitl, mec momamalina, mjlacatzoa, vel viujac viujtlatztic, totomaoac, vel tomactic. 796^x

Auh yn otlacencaoaloc, mec tlamatzin motlatlaliã, vel momalhuja, momauizpia:

auh yn iquac muchiouia yn, yn izquich maceoalli, cenuetzi in motamalhuja, itutlacpa in qujujujtla tototi, yoã in chichime, no teutlacpa in qujnchichinoc, techichinolo, in monequizque ioatzico: [231 252] neixpeloio, acuchiztli nechicaltilo, necuchiçololo, yllhujnemoa, iuhqujn tlatlaciuj, netetequipachoio, injc tlacencaoalo.

Auh yn otlatujc in ichoantin teupixque, njman ic ic qujtlamamaca in Vitzilopuchtli, qujxuchicuzcatia, conicpauxhitia: yoan ixpan qujtetequjlia, qujxtecpanjlia, qujujujpana, qujtetecpiloa, in izquich 796^x 778

1. Cf. Gomez y Reyes (op. cit., Vol. II, p. 38): "Micailhuitontli, Tlaxuchimaco. El primero era nombre usado por los de Tlaxcalla. . . . El segundo, Ueytecuilhuitl, pudiera que Torquemada interpreta, cuando esta dedica y consagrada las flores: mismas Veynte dias, entera de flores. En la fiesta principal del mes, consagrada á Huitzilopochtli, la empieza de lirio y las demas dicen estan adornadas profusamente con flores. . . ." Chavero (op. cit., pp. 162-3) further writes: ". . . adornaban de flores y ponian los ídolos, así adornaban a los que se veneraban en los templos, eran semejantes a los que vemos por derecho en sus casas; que por esto dicen el mes el nombre de Tlaxuchimaco."

2. See Robredo ed., Vol. III, pp. 273-4; Cf. also Bernardino Sahagún, op. cit., passim, and Seler, Besondere Kapitel, p. 154 (where a few German equivalents are given). Some are described also in Nicolás Antonio Rodríguez Ramón Mediterraneo Novae Hispaniae Thesaurus (Rome: Vitale Mascardi, 1651).

until the ruy dawn, when dawn would break and the morning would redden—when the swallow would sing.

And when dawn broke, thereupon all bestirred themselves, and ate and drank. Thereupon the old men of the tribal temple and the singers sat in the courtyard to sing for them. And they walked carrying the small children upon their backs. And [a child who was] a little larger his uncle and aunt came grasping by the hand. There they made him dance; they went through dance movements. And when the sun hung low, after noon, then all gathered at the Tezcacoac. Here the dance and song proceeded—the songs, in all, spreading a sound as of the crashing of waves.

And then began the giving of wine. Everyone carried his wine, and brought it there. Among themselves, all took it and offered it, in earthen jars—all continually giving [it to others], giving and taking in return. Here they gave the wine to all the small children—those who were grown and those yet lying in the cradle, moistening food [in the wine] for them. Verily, everyone already mature was drunk; in truth, all showed that they had drunk wine.

None showed sore [of the wine] as it foamed; none [thought it] precious as it gleamed. It fell to the ground; the wine ran like water.[3]

And they carried their drinking vessels, called xicalhuecomatl, [which had] three legs and, on four sides, had handles.

With ruddy faces, crying out, short of breath, with glazed eyes, all mingled with one another; there were disputes; all circled and milled about. Becoming more intense, all crowded and pressed together, elbowing each other. All took one another by the hands; they were bemused. Embracing one another firmly, [they] all entered their homes.

Then one said: "The wine feast hath verily been observed; for the children have drunk wine."

And then ended and concluded Izcalli. Then came to reign the Nemontemi—five days which had no day-names, which were no longer counted, which were not reckoned in the [day] count. Greatly were they feared and held in awe.

For they were ill-omened and of no use. Nothing was done [during these days]. They were ill-fated, of ill-fortune. For in them was no reward or merit—quenman tlatviz, in quenman tlatlavilotlecoaz, in quenmã tlatoz cujcujzcatl.

796[1]
852

Auh in otlatvic, njmã ie ic tlatlacivi, tlatlaqualo, astlica: njmã ie ic motlalia in veveiquc calpoleqoc, cujcanjme, in jmalco in qujncujcatiaia, vncã qujnmamatinemj in pipiltotonti: auh in ie achi qualton imatitech cantinemj in jtla, yoan iavi, vncan qujzotia, tlaiipuhtinemj: auh in ie achi tlaca in vmmopilo tonatiuh, vncan oalcenqujnoa in tezcacoac: vncã mocenmana in netotilizti, in cujqujztli, cepã caontimomana, zazamacatimanj in cujcatl:

[535]
[533]

Auh vncã pesa in nemaco, in temaco vctli, muchi tlacatl yioc vmpa qujzqui, vmpa qujvica, tetlan tlaano, apiloltica, vncan netech nemaco nepanotl nemamaco, necuecuepililo, necuecuepcaiotililo, vncan qujntlaoltia in jzqujchtin pipiltotonti in ie achi qualtoca, yoan in oc coçolco onoque, çan qujntlapaloltiaia, vel muchi tlacatl ivinti in ie veveitlaca, vel neixmanalo in tlaoano:

273
796[1]
852 amo nemauhtilo, iuhqujn tlapopeçoca, amo tlaçotli iuhqujn tlapcpetlaca, tlalpã aci, iuhqujn atl nemja vctli, yoan intlacoencaz qujzqujz, iuoca tzicujltecomatl: ci icxi, nauhcampa nacaz, iuhqujn tlaichichiliui, iuhqujn tlaçomoca, iuhqujn tlacica, iuhqujn tlaixnetzivi, tlaixnelivi, neixnanamjco, tlaixnalacachivi, tlaixmoiaoa, iuhqujn nezomocolo, nepopotonolo nepanqueçalo, netotoponolo nematitech nezauo, nezauala, necezenquetzalo, nezezemacho, nepoochazaolotiuh in cacalaoa techachan:

[415]

ie mjtoa ca nel illujo in vctli, ca pillaoano.

Auh injc ontzonqujça, injc ontlamj Izcalli: njmã calmotlalia, calmotoma in Nemontemj: macujlilujzl in zoctic iuoca tonalli, in zocmo vmpovi, in zocmo vmpouhqui cenca iimacuuia, cenca mauhcatimia:

777
796[1]
805

ichica ca çan nõquipaqui, vncã nemonquijtilo, ale vmpujzua, nemonzala, nemonmacalo: ichica ca ale vncan ca illujli, nahuatlli, can vncan iximiui, nemo-

3. Cf. Anderson and Dibble, op. cit., p. 30.

only misery, poverty, vanity, misfortune, and a life of woe.'

And if one were born at that time he was looked upon with fear; he was shunned. And if he were a man, they named him Nemon, Nentlacatl, Nenquizqui. Nowhere was he counted; he was not a man. And if it were a woman, [they named her] Nencioatl.

And when [these days came], nothing was done; the palaces and courts were empty; no suits were judged. All stayed at home. None swept with brooms; they only fanned [the dust] with a fan, or a turkey quill, or with the wing of a bird; or they beat and cleaned with a cloak.

And no one might then quarrel; [for] this was strongly forbidden to people; it was severely forbidden to them. They were charged that none might wrangle. Neither might one sleep during the day. [If so,] it was said: "[So] shalt thou always."

Nor should anyone fall, or trip, or stumble. All walked softly. And to one who stumbled, they said: "Thou hast the Nemontemi; so shalt thou be. Be thou careful."

And whosoever then took sick and was ill, [of him] everyone said: "He hath sickened. Never more will he rise; no more may he have hope. That he will recover there is no hope." No longer had they hope for him.

And if one yet escaped [death], neither would any pay heed to him nor speak to him. It was said: "For it is only that he by whose grace we live hath acted and determined of his own will."

None, therefore, were comforted nor moved. His kin forgot him and laid him on the ground. No more might he be able to leave, to some degree get up [again], and take nourishment. For the setting in of the Nemontemi was terrifying.

For he had no day sign; he had no name; wherefore no one might, in truth, practice medicine and heal one, nor read the meaning of the days. For verily the days were not numbered; they had no count in all these four days.

linjlizzli, nenquizcaiotl, nenquiçalizzli, ilonoçatinemjlizzli.

Auh in aquin vncan tlacatia, cenca tlamauhcaitililoia, tlatêmachililoia: auh intla oquichtli quinocaiotiaia Nemõ, nentlacatl, nenquizqui, acan ompouhqui acã, ompovi nenequich. Auh intla cioatl: Nencioatl.

Auh in iquac y, atle aioaia, çan cactimâca in tecpan intecoali, amo tecutlaroloia, çan calooouia; aiac tlachpanaia, ochpaoaztica: çan tlaiecapeviloia, ecaceoaztica, anoço totolmamaztica, totolaavitztica, anoço tlavivitequiça, tlapopovaia tilmatica:

yoan aiac vel vncan maoaia, cenca tetlacaoaltiloia, cica tetlaquauhnaoatiloia, tetepitznaoatiloia, tetocoltiloia injc aiac maoaz: ano ac cemjlhujocchia: vncan teilhujloia. Centicuja:

ano ac vel motlavitequja, moricujnjaia, motepotlamjaia; nemaita, nenemoaia: auh in aquin motepotlamjaia: quilhujaia. Otimonemovi, ocenticoçic, ma ximjmati.

Auh in aquin ipan y, cocolizzli quicuja mococoaia: muchi tlacatl quitoaia, Cococolizcuj, aocmo quiçaz, aocmo motemachiz, in aço patiz, aocmo teumeciolloti, aocmo itech ca netemachilli:

auh intla aca oc maquiça, aoc ac itlamatian aoc ac itlatoaian: mjtoa. Ca ça oicnotlama, in jpalnemoanj, ça oquimonomavili, oquimoioculili:

aocmo iuh catca teiollo, ca oica netlapaloloc, neellaquacaloc, oquizcauhque injouiolque, ca oiquitecaque: aocmo iuhcan quizcoaiã inon oquêteltzin, meoatiquetz, inon oihiio quicuic, ca temauhti in ipan opeuh ilhujtl Nemôtecmj:

ca atle itonal, ca atle itoca: ipampa aiac vel vncã ticitoca, tepatia, tetlapovia: ca nel amo vmpouhqui, atle ipocallo in jaquilhujtl navilhujtl.

4. The Tovar Calendar (Kubler and Gibson, op. cit., p. 30) adds that people did not gather in the temple, and that the priests performed no sacrifices nor other ceremony [illegible].

793 them. None should fail. And here, over them presided [the one named] Patecatl, who was made, as it were, their leader.

793 [805] 273 Then they arranged the rabbit [wine] jars. These they filled with [ceremonial] five[-fold] wine, which they also called sacred wine. Then he brought forth the sucking-tubes, made of reeds, and laid them with the sacred wine—two hundred and three of them, but only one was bored through.

And when they had set them out, thereupon all danced and went in procession; the Centzontotochtin danced.

Thereupon they went up to the sacred wine. There was much jostling about until one should see the [sucking tube which was] bored through. And when he who saw it then took up the bored [tube], then they made room for him.

Only he alone drank the sacred wine. And when he had drunk the sacred wine, thereupon all dispersed.

vncan tepan icaca im patecatl, iuhquin tachcauh muchivaz, njman ie quisquetza in tochtecomatl vncã conteca in macujlvctli in qujlvjaia teuvctli, njman ie qujvalquistia in pizztli acatl vncan cõmanaia in teuvctli ipan, çan matlacpoalli vmei, auh çan ce in coionquj, auh in ocõma, njman ie ic netotilo, tlaiavalolo, mjtoia in centzontotochtin, njman ie ic vi in jvicpa teuvctli, cenca moquequeça in ac ichoatl qujttaz coionquj, auh in aquin oquittac, in oquicujc coionquj, njman ic quitlalcavia, çe icel qujticac in teuvctli: auh in onteutlacoanoc, njman ic viujloua.

Epcoaquacuiltzin.

793 [805] The Epcoaquacuiltzin—behold what were his duties: when feasts should be celebrated, perchance when a new fifty-two-year cycle should start—verily, all feasts—all of them he announced; or when fire was laid. In truth, all that should be done, all things this man thus commanded and furthered.

Epcoaquacujltzin.

In epcoaquacujltzin, itca yn jtequjuh catca: Yn iquac ilhujtl quiçaia, yn aço xiuhtzitzqujlo: in ie muchi ilhujtl, muchi ipã tlatoaia, injc tletemaloa in ie muchi muchivaz muchi ichoatl ic tlanavatiaia, ipan tlatoaia.

The Keeper of the Gods of Moloneo.

The Keeper of the Gods of Moloneo also had this as his duty: In his charge were the paper, the incense, the [liquid] rubber, the black stain, and all which this one needed when [sacrificial victims] were to die. And he had in his charge the black stain with which was painted [the impersonator of the god] Chiconauecatl, and the incense ladle, the quail, and the black plumes with which [he who was arrayed in the likeness of] Chiconauecatl was feathered.

Moloncoxeuhoa.

In moloncoxeuhoa, çan no ichatl itequjuh catca, ipan tlatoaia, in amatl in copalli, in vlli, in tilli, in isqujch itech monequja in ichoatl in iquac miquja, auh in tilli ic moçaia, in chicunavecatl yoan ipan tlatoaia in tlemaitl, in çolin yoan in ihujtl tiltic ic mopotonjaia in chicunavecatl.

The [Priest of] Cintevtl.

The duties of the [Priest of] Cintevtl were that all things which were required be thus commanded, so that the paper, the incense, the [liquid] rubber, Cintevtzin.

In itequjuh catca cintevtzin çan isqujch in ipan tlatoaia, ic tlanavatiaia, injc monechicoaia in amatl in copalli, in vlli in jiauhtli in jtech monequja xile-

9: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

The Seventh Chapter telleth of the year counter and the year sign.

One Rabbit

It is said [that this was] the year sign and year counter of the south. For thirteen years it carried, set on its path, took with it, and bore the burden [of the year]. Always, during each [of the thirteen] years, it was the first, the one which led, began, made the start, and introduced as many year signs as there were: Reed, Flint, and House. Of the one [known as] Reed, it was said [that it was] as it were the sign of the east; that is, the year sign of the sun. For from there issued the light which shone forth.

And the third year sign, the one [known as] Flint, was called the sign of the north. For [the north] was said to be toward the land of the dead. Thus have the old people spoken: it is said that when one died, to that place set out, went straigheway, and proceeded the dead. Therefore, when someone died—when [the sextons] adorned him, when they wrapped him in his mantle and bound him [in wrappings]—they made him look toward and seated him looking to that place.

And the fourth year sign, the fourth in order, [was] the one known as House—the sign of the west. For this reason they named it Ciuatlzmpa: it is said that there dwelt but women; none of us men were there.

These four year signs, year count[ers], as many times as they came to appear, [so many times] they came to be the beginning year signs.

When all the thirteen-year [periods]—all four of them—had concluded, ended, and finished, thus proceeding around, to give and leave their works from year to year, this [last] one came to, stopped at, jogged, knocked against, and ended at Thirteen House, the sign of the west. That is, now it approached [the end of its] thirteen years of labor.

And then One Rabbit came to settle itself as the sign of the south. When this occurred and it established itself and began its work, thus to bear a year

Inic chicome capitulo, itechpa tlatoa: in xiuhtlapoalli, in xiuhtonalli.

Ce tochtli.

motenoua: uiztlampa xiuhtonalli, xiuhtlapoalli: 805 matlacxiuitl omei tlauica, tlaotlanocia, tlatqui, tlamama. In muchipa cocexiuhtica, vel tlaiacuria, tlaiacana, quipeoaltia, ipeuhca muchioa, quitzintia in 823 iquiteri xiuhtonalli in acatl, in tecpatl, in calli. In ichoatl acatl, mitoa: tlapcopa tonalli, iuhquinma, q. n. tlauilcopa xiuhtonalli: ipãpa ca umpa oalneci in tlauilli, in tlanestia.

Auh inic ei xiuhtonalli, ichoatl in tecpatl: motenoua mictlampa tonalli, ipampa in mitoa mictlampa: [775] iuh quitoaia in veuetque, quilmach in icoac micoa: vmpa itztiui, vmpa tlamclaoa, vmpa tlatoteca in mimicque. Iehica, in icoac aquin miquia, in oconchichiuhque, in oconquiquimiloque, in oconiilpique: [764] vmpa quitlachialtiaia, vmpa quitztiltitimotlaliaia.

Auh inic nani, tlanauhcaiotia, xiuhtonalli: ichoatl in calli motenoua, cioatlampa tonalli. Ipãpan iuh quitoaia, cioatlampa: quilmach, çan muchi cioa umpa onoque, aocaque tequichtin.

Inin nauhteme xiuhtonaltin, xiuhtlapoaltin: iquiteme ceceppa moquetztini, tonalpeuhcaiome mu- 805 chiuhtiuj.

Inic muchi matlatlacxiuitl omei, quitlamja, conaxitia, quitzonquistia nauhaciotin: inic tlaiacalotiui, quimomacatiui, quimocauilitiui, iuquiuh, cecexiuhtica: ichoatl iech omei, iech ômocaoa, iech ontupi, iech ontlatetzoua, ontlatzonquistia in matlactlomei calli, cioatlampa tonalli. q. n. ic ocuiti in matlacxiuitl omei iequiuh.

Auh nimon ic oalmoquetza in ce tochtli: uiz- 805 tlampa tonalli. In icoac, y, moquetza, in quipeoaltia iequiuh, inic ce xiuitl tlauica, tlaotlanocia: cenca 731

S: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Astec NU7

805
731

and set it upon its way, all were much frightened and there was apprehension; all were filled with dread because in this [year] occurred the famine called Necetochuiliztli. All were exceedingly terrified and in awe when [the year] One Rabbit came—when they reached and came to it; though not [when it was] Two or Three [Rabbit]. Etc.

nemauhtiloia, tlaẽmachoia, netẽmachoa: ipampa, in ipan muchioaia maianaliztli, moteneoa necetochuiliztli. Çaniio uellamauhtiaia, uel imacazoia: in icoac on omoquetz ce tochtli, in onoitech axioac, onoitech onpachiooac: amono ie in ome, anoço ey. etc.

S: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

The Eighth Chapter telleth how they held in dread hunger and famine when One Rabbit ruled the year count, and what they first did when the year count of One Rabbit had not yet begun.

And [even] when [the year] One Rabbit had not yet set in, first provision was made; our food was hidden away, stored, saved up, and placed in bins. Nothing was thrown away; all then was saved—wild seeds not commonly eaten; musty maize; corn silk; corn tassels; pulp scraped from maguey tappings, tuna cactus flowers; cooked maguey leaves; heated maguey sap.

Everything was taken into account: [with] amaranth, even the weeds[12] were threshed; [as for] the beans, likewise were stored and put away unripened ones and the dried, withered ends of the green beans. and when they had used all, they satisfied and quickened themselves [with] bird seed, bitter amaranth or bright red amaranth, and pacarolli maize.[13]

This was the time when they bought people;[14] they purchased men for themselves. The merchants were those who had plenty, who prospered; the greedy, the well-fed man, the covetous, the niggardly, the miser, who controlled wealth and family, guardians, the mean, the stingy, the selfish. In the homes of [such men] they crowded, going into bondage, entering house after house—the orphan, the poor, the indigent, the needy, the pauper, the beggar, who were starved and famished; who just as they went to sleep, just so awoke; who found nothing and got nowhere; who in no place found their rest, relief or remedy. At this time one sold oneself. One ate oneself; one swallowed oneself. Or else one sold and delivered into bondage his beloved son, his dear child.

Inic chicuey capitulo, itechpa tlatoa: inic quimacacia apiztli, in maianaliztli, in icoac tlauicaia, in xiuhtlapoalli in ce tochtli: yoan in tlein achtopa quichioaia, in aiamo vmpeoa xiuhtlapoalli, ce tochtli.

Auh in icoac, aiamo moquetza ce tochtli: achtopa nenemachtiloia, netlatlatililo, netetzontilo, netacatilo, mocuezcomatema in tonacaiotl: aoc tle motlaça, muchicoac netlatililo in polocatl, in popoiotl, in xilotzõtli, in miiaoatl, in metzolli, in nochxochitl, in mescalli, in necutlatotonilli.

Auh inic muchi temachiloia, in oauhtli çan yoã mosconoa in ipolocaio: in etl çan yoan motlatiaia, mocalaquiaia in iaxaoacaio, yoan in jexococoloio in opatzaoac. Auh icoac, muchi tlaiecoa, tlaacotlaça tlaihiiocuitia in petzicatl, in chichic oauhtli, anoço teuoauhtli, iacacolli:

ic icoac tecoa, motlacacouia, in vnca quicoani, in mocuiltonoa, in motlacamati, in tlãtlameti, tlaixtotiani, atle quiscaoa, tlaistamachiuhqui, tlaçaloani, tlapachoani, tlamalhuiani, teuie, tzotzoca, motzol: ichan maaquia, mihitoa, mocacalaquia in icnotlacatl, in motolinja, in quiciaui, in quihiiouia: in aoneostinemi, in aonmacitinemi, in apizmicoqui, in teuciuhque: in iuhqui cochi, in iuhqui meoa, in aualnecini, in aoccan vitz, in aoccan quitta ihiiocuiia, iceuhca, ipatica: ie vncan in monamaca, in moqua, in motolua: anoço quinamaca, quimonamaquilia in ipiltzin, in iconetzin:

805
262
805
567
565
735

12. In cuauhli que yol in ipolocaio: cf. Bernardino de Sahagún: Historia general de las cosas de Nueva España (México: Editorial Pedro Robredo, 1938), II, p. 300: "huauhtli quimaqui, ce in cuauhli de los cuahuac ala llampiar, que todos son huauhtlaxiac." Jens, op. cit., p. 69. has "Ichtac cuan yaqui cuali de Huauhtli cuac."

13. Some of these terms are identified in Anderson and Dibble, op. cit., p. 63. Pacarolli is described in Bernardino de Sahagún: Histoire générale des choses de la Nouvelle-Espagne (D. Jourdanet and Rémi Simeon, eds.; Paris: G. Masson, Éditeur, 1880), p. 118, n. 2, as "espèce de maïs." See also the Robredo edition, Vol. I, p. 139.

14. The translation of this passage differs in some details from that of Jens (op. cit., pp. 68-71), q. v.

(Tlaiecoa) appears in the Real Palacio MS as quiquecoa. The term could be translated, "those who are people." Cf. ie mosqua (see my comment), toward the end of the paragraph.

805
567

[For] they had incurred sins. They had taken unto themselves, and placed themselves in, great wrong, through which they went always being slaves, until at last they were to die.

And even if he died, once again some one of his kin stood surety for him. Or else his beloved son offered himself and finished for him. None were neglected. Their kin and their lineage went on continuing and extending [the obligation]; they went on paying the debt and concerning themselves [with it]. Always they fulfilled the pledge, continued taking the place of others, served for one another; they all entered the households of their lords.

If sons or grandsons were born to him, at once [their elders] assigned them their great faults. When they matured, when they gained prudence, when they looked about, already servitude would be upon them. Already they wielded the hoe, they used the tump line; already they were [as] someone else's dogs, someone else's turkeys. For in truth [slavery] had come upon them; they had come against that which they could not leave—of which they could not be rid. For their fathers, their grandfathers, their mothers, and their grandmothers had proceeded to merit for them, to acknowledge for them, to bequeath them, to load and place upon them, [their transgressions]. For difficult was that which they had left and bequeathed them in time of famine—those who hungered and starved, who no longer were proud, who no longer persevered, who indeed were sick; who had eaten themselves, had sold themselves.

[This was] because they had prepared nothing for themselves, had shown no forethought for themselves; had paid no heed, had lived in negligence, and were disposed to evil before the year sign One Rabbit had begun—[when] it had not yet set in.

Thus was it said, that their fathers and grandfathers had succumbed to One Rabbit; hence they took on great sins.

When [the year] One Rabbit had fulfilled its task, when the year had been completed, then it delivered its charge to the sign of the east: Two Reed was the one which [then] set in.

motlatlaculnamictia, ueuetlatlaculli quimotitia, quimotlalilia: inic muchipa centlacotli ietiuh, in iquich cauitl miquiz.

Auh in manel onmic, oc ceppa ipan oalmoquetza, aca ioaniolqui, anoço ipiltzin ōmisquetza, ipan tlaiecoa: aiac miscaoa, ma antiui, motilinitiui, cemololiuhtiui, mocemichictiui in incalloc, in incuitlaxcolloc: muchipa impan tlaiecoa, impan oonotiui, mocepanpaleuia, cencalaqui in ichan intecuiio:

intla tlacatizque ipilhoan, in imiuioan, çan niman ie quincauilitiui in inueuetlacol: in oalmoscalizque, in oalistlamatizque, in oallachiazque, ie intech ca in intlacoio, ie uicti, ie mecapalti, ie teitzcuinhoan, ie tetotolhoan: ca nel oimpan ia, oquimonamictique, in auel tecauh, in auel poliui: ca intahoā, inculhoan, innanhoā, incihoā in quinmaceuitiui, quincuititiui, quincauilitiui, quinmamaltiti quintlalilitiui: ca ouicā in concauhque, in quimoncauilique, inic maianalco, in teuciuiian, im apizmiquia, aoc imatlamatia, aoc ontlaiecoa, uel icocoiaia: in moquaque, in monamacaque.

Ipampa, in atle cōmochioaltique, in atle ic onmotlamachique, in aquen ommomatque, in çan onmotlacomatque, onmauilmatque: in icoac aiamo peoa, aiamo moquetza xiuhtonalli ce tochtli.

Ic mitoa, ca mocetochuique in intahoan in inculhoan: inic quicuique veuetlatlacolli.

In icoac, ie otequit ce tochtli, in otlatzonquiti ce xiuitl: niman ic ie itech concaoa, in tlapcopa tonalli: ichoatl oalmoquetza in vme acatl.

Ninth Chapter, in which is described what was called "The Binding of Our Years," or "When the Years are Bound," [which occurred] when one by one the four year signs had each reigned thirteen years and when fifty-two years had passed; and what then was done.

When [came] the time of the binding of our years, always they gradually neared and approached [the year] Two Reed. This is to say: they then reached and ended [a period of] fifty-two years. For at that time [these years] were piled up, added one to another, and brought together; wherefore the thirteen-year [cycles] had four times made a circle,[18] as hath been made known. Hence was it said that then were tied and bound our years, and that once again the years were newly laid hold of. When it was evident that the years lay ready to burst into life, everyone took hold of them, so that once more would start forth—once again—another [period of] fifty-two years. Then [the two cycles] might proceed to reach one hundred and four years. It was called "One Old Age" when twice they had made the round, when twice the times of binding the years had come together.

Behold what was done when the years were bound—when was reached the time when they were to draw the new fire, when now its count was accomplished. First they put out fires everywhere in the country round. And the statues, hewn in either wood or stone, kept in each man's home and regarded as gods, were all cast into the water. Also [were] these [cast away]—the pestles and the [three] hearth stones [upon which the cooking pots rested]; and everywhere there was much sweeping—there was sweeping very clean. Rubbish was thrown out; none lay in any of the houses.

And when they drew the new fire, they drew it there at Uixachtlan, at midnight, when the night divided in half. They drew it upon the breast of a captive, and it was a well-born one on whose breast [the priest] bored the fire drill. And when a little Inic chicuexui capítulo, vncan mitoa: in mitoa, toximmoipili, anoço inic molpilia xiuitl: yn icoac matlatlacpa omeexpa otlauicac, yn inauhtexixti cecentetl xippoalli: inic onaci vmpoalxiuitl ipan matlacxiuitl omume, yoan in tlein icoac muchioaya.

Ie vncan, ie ipan in tuxiuhmolpilia: muchipa ie quimattiuh, quitztiuh in vme acatl. q. n. Ca vncan aci, uncan tlami ompoalxiuitl ōmatlactli, yoā onxiuitl. Ca vncan mocentlalia, monepanoa, monamiqui: inic otlaiaoalo nauhcampa matlacxiuitl omecy, in iuh omoteneuh: ic mitoa, vncan molpia, molpilia in toxiuh, oc ceppa iancuican vncan xiuhtzitzquilo: inic monexcaiotiaia, in xiuitl icoatoc, muchi tlacatl cōquitzquiaia, inic oc ceppa ie ōpeoa, oc no izqui xiuitl 52 años, inic acitiuh macuilpoalxiuitl ipan nauhxiuitl: mitoa cen uetetilistli, in oppa tlaiaoaloa, in oppa monamiqui imolpilican xiuitl. 805

Izcatqui in muchioaia, icoac molpilia xiuitl: in icoac oxxioac, in vncā uetzia tlequauitl, in ie itlapoalpan: achto vel nouiian cēcuia in tletl in cematonaoac, yoan in isquich picloia techachā, in netautiloia tequacuilti, in aço quauitl, anoço tetl tlaxintli, muchi atlan onmotepeoaia: No ichoatl in texolotl, in tenamastli, yoan nouiian tlātlachpanoia, tlatetzcalolo, tlanaoac tlauico, aoctle uetztoia in techachan. 805 372

Auh in vetzia tlequauitl, vmpa in vixachtlan: icoalnepantla in vetzia, vel icoac in xeliui icoalli: malli in ielpan vetzia, ichoatl in tlaçopilli ielpan in quimamalia tlequauitl. Auh in icoac quēcelizin ouetz, in omopiez: niman ic iciuhca, quehetectioetzi in malli, con- 805 372 782

18. See Plate 38.

S: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

805
372
782

[fire] fell, when it took flame, then speedily [the priest] slashed open the breast of the captive, seized his heart, and quickly cast it there into the fire. Thus he revived and fed the fire. And the body of [the captive] all came to an end in the flames. And those who drew fire were exclusively the priests, the fire priests, the devout. Of the fire priest of Copulco, who was experienced, it was his office to draw, to drill, the new fire.

anjlia in iiollo, tleco contlaztiuetzi: inic quicualtia, quitlamaca tletl. Auh in inacaio, çan muchi tleco tlami. Auh in tlequauhtlaçaia, çan ichoß in tlamacazque, in tlenamacaque, in tlamaceuhque: copolco tlenamacac, in vel imatia, in iiequiuh catca, in quitlaçaia, in quimamalia tlequauitl.

5: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

The Calendar Wheel

● 805

This table placed above [opposite] is the year count, and it is a most ancient thing. They say that its inventor was Quetzalcoatl. It proceedeth in this way: they begin with the east, which is where the reeds are (or, according to others, with the south, where the rabbit is) and say One Reed. And thence they go to the north, where the flint is, and they say Two Flint Knife. Then they go to the west, where the house is, and there they say Three House. And then they go to the north, which is where the rabbit is, and they say Four Rabbit. And then they turn to the east, and say Five Reed. And thus they go, making four revolutions, until they reach thirteen, so that they end where they began. And then they return to one, saying One Flint Knife. And in this way, making revolutions, they assign thirteen years to each of the characters, or to each of the four quarters of the world. And then fifty-two years are completed, which is a bundle of years, when the Jubilee is celebrated and new fire is made in the manner set forth above [Chapters 9-12]. Then they again count as at the beginning. It should be noted that they disagree a great deal, in various places, as to the beginning of the year. In some parts, they told me that it began at some date in January; in others, that [it was] at the beginning of February; in others, that [it was] some time in March. In Tlatilulco I gathered together many old men, the most able ones whom I could secure, and, along with the most able of the college students, this matter was discussed for many days. And they all concluded that the year began on the second day of February.

Esta table, arriba puesta: es la cuenta de los años, y es cosa antiquissima. Dizen, que el inuentor della, fue Quetzalcoatl: procede desta manera: que comiençan del Oriente, que es donde está las cañas: y segun otros, del medio dia, donde esta el conejo, y dizen ce acatl: y de alli van al Norte, donde esta el pedernal, y dizen vme tecpatl: luego van al occidente, donde esta la Casa, y alli dizen iey calli: y luego van al abrego, que es donde esta el conejo, y dizen naui tochtli: y luego tornan al oriente, y dizen macuilli acatl. Y ansi van dando quatro bueltas, hasta que llegan a treze, que se acaban a donde començo: y luego bueluen a vno, diziendo ce tecpatl. I desta manera, dando bueltas: dan treze años, a cada vno de los caracteres, o a cada vna, de las quatro partes, del mundo. I entôce, se cumplen. 52. años, que es vna gauilla de años: donde se celebra, el Iubileo, y se saca lumbre nueua, en la forma arriba puesta: luego bueluen a contar como de principio. Es de notar, que discrepan mucho, en diuersos lugares del principio del año: en vnas partes me dixeron, que començaua a tantos de Enero: en otras, que a primero de hebrero: en otras, que a tantos de Março: En el tlatilulco, junte muchos viejos: los mas diestros, que yo pude auer, y juntamente, con los mas habiles de los colegiales, se alterco esta materia por muchos dias: y todos ellos concluyeron, que començaba el año, segûdo dia de Hebrero.

[p. 38 (F)]

S: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

libro 7° de la astrologia 805

—After Paso y Troncoso

38. The calendar wheel

The reader might assume four spirals instead of the concentric lines shown. Beginning at the center with One Rabbit, proceed to Two Reed, Three Flint Knife, Four House, Five Rabbit, etc., and end at the outside circumference with Thirteen Rabbit. Begin again at the center with One Reed and proceed as before to the outside circumference at Thirteen Reed; and so on until the fourth spiral, which begins with One House, ends with Thirteen House, thus completing the fifty-two-year series.

[p. 38(G)]

S: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

805
821
532

—After Paso y Troncoso

22. Natural Phenomena and year signs, from Primeros Memoriales, cap. 2

13. Wind
14. Lightning bolt
15. Rain
16. Rainbow
17. Frost
18. Cloud
19. Snow
20. Hail

Year signs, beginning at top
One Rabbit
Two Reed
Three Flint Knife
Four House

[p. 38(I)]

726 slept at this time. Here was the place to which [the Mexicans] went in order to return, when the Spaniards showed their heels to and turned their backs upon them.

766 727 Upon this, then were identified the chieftains who had died, who had been speared. There they burned all of them. And their charred [remains] they gathered up; they collected the bones of each of them. They heaped them all up and then buried them: they buried them in the earth.

Auh in ie iuhquj: njmã ie ic teiiximacho in tiacaoan in omjcoque, in onixilioaque, vncan qujntlatique in jzqujchtin: auh in intecullo qujpepena, in jmomjo qujnenechicoaia, cololoaia, çatepã contocaia, contlaltocaia.

●805 And these are all the days since the Spaniards came to and entered Mexico, on One Wind of the day count and One Reed of the year count, on the eve of the tenth day of Quecholli. And when they had tarried one day, Two House, at that very time it was the tenth day of Quecholli. And when they came to the end of Quecholli, when it was the actual feast day, thereupon after it followed Panquetzaliztli, with twenty days.[4] Then after it came Tititl, also with twenty days. Then followed after it Izcalli tlamj,[5] also with twenty days. Then, at that time, set in the five days known as Nemontemi. And when the five days came to an end, then began Atl caualo, or Quauitl eua, in which the year returned[6] —in which began the new year—also of twenty [days]. Then came after it Tlacaxipeualiztli, also of twenty [days]. Then followed after it Toçoztontli, also of twenty [days]. Then proceeded after it Uei toçoztli, also of twenty [days]. Then came after it Toxcatl, also of twenty days. This was when the chieftains perished; when they were cut to pieces, when the Mexicans were put to death. Then followed after it Etzalqualiztli, also of twenty days. Then came after it Tecuilhuitontli. This was when [the foe] set forth; upon an opportune day, the Spaniards set out, to disappear by night without the knowledge of [the Mexicans]; without its being their will, they set forth by night. And when the count of all the days is added, they are two hundred and thirty-five. And they had been our friends for one hundred and ninety-five days. And they were our foes for forty days.

Auh in ie iuhquj: njmã ie ic teiiximacho in tiacaoan in omjcoque, in onixilioaque, vncan qujntlatique in jzqujchtin: auh in intecullo qujpepena, in jmomjo qujnenechicoaia, cololoaia, çatepã contocaia, contlaltocaia.

Auh in izqujlhujtico in Mexico inic calaqujco in Españoles: ipã ce hecatl in cemjlhujtlapoalli: auh in xiuhtonalli ce acatl, oc muztla tlamatlactiz Quecholli: auh in cemjlhujtique vme calli: vel iquac in tlamatlacti quecholli: auh in oacic, tlamj quecholli in vel ilhujtl: njman ie ic qujoaltoqujlia in Panquetzaliztli, cempoalilhujtl: njmã qujvaltoqujlia Tititl no cempoalilhujtl: njman qujvaltoqujlia Izcalli tlamj, no cempoalilhujtl: njmã iquac valmotlalia macujlilhujtl moteneoa Nemontemj: auh in ontzonquja macujlilhujtl: njmã ic vmpeoa in Atl cavalo, anoço quavitl eua, vncã xiuhqujtzqujlo, vncan peoa in iancujc xivitl, no cempoalli: njmã qujoaltoqujlia tlacaxipeoaliztli no cempoalli: njman qujvaltoqujlia Toçoztontli, no cempoalli: njman qujvaltoqujlia vei toçoztli, no cempoalli: njman qujvaltoqujlia Toxcatl no cempoalilhujtl: ie vncan izpoliuhque Tiacaoan in xaxamacaque, in mexica in mjcoac: njmã qujvaltoqujlia Etzalqualiztli, no cempoalilhujtl: njman qujvaltoqujlia Tecujlhujtontli, ie vncan in qujzque, vel ipan in ilhujtl in qujzque in Españoles, in moioalpoloque, amo tenemachpan, amo iuh catca teiollo inic qujzque ioaltica. Auh injc mocempoa in jzqujlhujtique matlacpoalli oçe, oncaxtolli: auh in tocnjoan catca chicunapoalilhujtl on caxtolli. Auh in toiaovan catca vmpoalilhujtl:

006 And when the Spaniards had thus gone, it was therefore thought that in truth they had departed forever, that indeed once and for all they had left—

Auh in oiuh iaque in Españoles: iuh nemachoc in ca oiccra iaque, in ca iccra oiaque, aocmo cepa valmocuepanaque, aocmo cppa injloch qujchinan-

4. The Aztec year ships Annemoli.

5. Cf. Anderson and Dibble, op. cit., II—The Ceremonies, p. 154.

6. Cf. Anderson and Dibble, op. cit., VII—The Sun, Moon, and Stars, and the Binding of the Years, p. 25; Sahagún, Bulmarda ed., II, p. 200.

796 Twenty-eighth Chapter. Here is told how the the Mexicans celebrated the feast of Uei [tecu]ilhuitl when the Spaniards had left Mexico.

Injc ompoalli on chiuuei capítulo: vncan mjtoa in quenja Mexica vei ilhujtl quijchiuhq̃ in jquac oquijxque Españoles vncan mexico.

796 And when [the month of] Uei tecuilhuitl had 778 again arrived, once more the Mexicans celebrated the feast, here, after twenty days.[1] All the images and representations of the devils they once again adorned; each one they bedight with capes, ornamented with feathers, hung with necklaces, and fitted with turquoise mosaic masks. And they put [237 on them godly capes — the quetzal feather cape,
293] the yellow parrot feather cape, and the eagle feather cape. And this array, the necessary items, the great noblemen guarded.

Auh in oncic vei tecujlhujtl: oc ceppa, ic no ceppa ilhujquixtique in Mexica, vncã cempoaltica. Jn izquich in jmjxiptlavan, in impatilloan in diablome, ic no ceppa quijnococencauhque, quijntlaquentique, quijnquecquetzalloticque, quijncococatique, quijmonaxquique xiuhxaiacatl, yoan quijnquequentia in teuquemjtl, in quetzalquemjtl, in tozquemjtl, quauhquemjtl. Auh inin tlatquitl in monec, quijpaia in vevei pipiltin:

796 Then followed after it Tlaxochimaco, which they
● 805 also celebrated for twenty days. Then came after it Xocotl uetzi, which they also observed for twenty days. And with Ochpaniztli they spent the fourth [period of] twenty [days]. With Teotl eco they spent the fifth [period of] twenty [days]; with Tepeilhuitl, the sixth score; with Quecholli, the seventh score. At this point would have been completed a year — if nothing had happened, and if [the Spaniards] had not gone.[2] With Panquetzaliztli they spent the eighth [period of] twenty [days]; with Atemoztli, the ninth score; with Tititl, the tenth score; with Izcalli tlami, the eleventh score; and here set in the Nemontemi, [lasting] five days. Atlcaualo was twelve — or Quauitl eua; Tlacaxipeualiztli, thirteen; Toçoztontli, fourteen;[3] Uei toçoztli was seventeenth; and Tecuilhuitontli, eighteenth. With this had passed one year since [the Spaniards] died at the Tolteca canal.

njman quijaltoquijlia in Tlauchimaco, no cempoaltique: njmã quijvaltoquijlia in xocotl vetzi, no cempoaltique. Auh in Ochpanjztli ic nappoaltique. Teutl eco: ic macujlpoaltique. Tepeilhujtl chiquacempoaltique. Quechulli ic chicõpoaltique: vncan cexiuhtizquja y, intlacatle muchivanj, intlacamo ianj. Panquetzaliztli, chicuepoaltique. Atemuztli, chicunappoaltique. Tititl matlacpoaltique. Jacalli tlamj, ic matlacpoalli oce: njcan in muchioa in Nemontemj, macujlilhujtl. Atl cavalo, matlacpoalli omume, anoço Quauitl eua. Tlacaxipeualiztli, matlacpoalli omei. Toçoztontli matlacpoalli onnavi. Vei toçoztli, ic caxtolpoalli omume. Tecujlhujtontli, ic caxtolpoalli omei: vncan cexiuhtico y, injc mjcque tulteca acaloca.

805 And when once more they came forth, when again we saw them, [this] one year was in its eleven[th] score [of days], in the month of] Izcalli. From [the direction of] Quauhtitlan they issued forth; they came to establish themselves at Tlacopan for a period of only seven days. Then they departed,

Auh in ic no ceppa quijçaco, in ic no ceppa tiquijmjttaque ce xiuitl, ipã matlacpoalli oce, ipan in Jacalli: quauhtitlan in quijçaco, onmotlalico in Tlacubaa çan onchicuajlhujco: njman inque vaqualcim. Auh ic no ceppa quijçaco, çan quijtiquijquique quauhtitlanqo izcuique: çan tequjl onmoçtlaquique in

1. By the Aztec reckoning (compatible, see Müller, op. cit., [illegible]). — Doubtless the twentieth day is meant, to conform with custom in observance of feast days (general communication, Rafael Girard [illegible]).

2. See various translations in Seler, op. cit., p. 320.

3. The fifteenth and sixteenth months are reversed in the Aztec text.

●805 and were gone for forty days. But once more they came forth, to make only a quick foray; from Quauhtitlan they came. Their only object was to set out to slay [those of] Tlalistacapan and Itzcalla; people of Tlatilulco died there.[4] About four hundred perished.

And when they reached a determination, when a decision was reached about us, it was also [still] forty days to Teoxcatl, exactly two years since the chieftains had died in the temple courtyard, in the [month of] Teoxcatl.[5] tlalistacapan yiztacalla: tlatilulco in mjcque, achi vel centzontli in mjc.

Auh in teoxtlatlahuj, in ie topan nenonotzaloc, no vmpoalica ipan teoxcatl: ie vel ic oxivitl in tlacoan mjcque in teuivalco, in Teoxatica./.

4. This passage is paralleled in Anales de Tlatelolco, pp. 44-45, [illegible]: "Después partió [Cuauh] para otra vez a Cihuatlan. De ahí a Tlacopan y se volvió a meter en el palacio. . . . Pulque 7 Mas cuatro veintenas desaparecieron allí, en Tlacopan. Y nuevamente marcharon de, a quienes siguieron. De allí volvieron y se establecieron en Teoxacalco. Trescientos 80 (días) siguió otra vez y se fue a Huitzilopo y a Quauhtitlan. De allí pasó a Tlalistlacan. Allí pereció gente Tlatelolco. De allí partió por segunda vez y vencido sobre Tlalistlacapan. Allí pereció gente Tlatelolco."

5. Cf. ibid., p. 45, [illegible]-311.

8: Barlow E-4 (no date)1949 NU7 Aztec NU7

panec, a good part of the Yope remained independent of the Mexicans until the arrival of the Spaniards and gave the Spaniards themselves much trouble.

These Tlapanec and/or Yope seem to be linked with distant groups to the south and north. The nearest kin of the Tlapanec language is that found in Nicaragua,[a] but certain customs of the Yope are identical with those of the Apache.[b]

The recent discovery by Ortega of several codices from the Tlapanec zone provides us with a potential source of information on this formerly almost unknown region.[c] Though the codices are still unexploited, they have already shown that the Tlapanec used a pre-Mexican[d] calendar system. There is less novelty in the observation that the god Xipe Totec came to the highland via the Yope. His temple, which stood where the western towers of the Cathedral of Mexico now stand, was called Yopico.

Provincial borders in 1519.—To the northwest of Tlapan lay the province of Tialcoçauhtitlan, to the north that of Quiauhteopan, and to the northeast Yoaltepec—the borderlands of the Mixteca. Tlapan Province extended down to the Pacific Coast to the fortress of Tototepec (not to be confused with the Mixtec kingdom of Tototepec in adjacent Oaxaca). On both sides of this bastion war was continually being waged. The greater portion of the Yope roamed unconquered in Yopitzinco to the west; and to the east was a doubtful region of independent Mixtec peoples, with the other Tototepec of Oaxaca looming as a background power.

TRIBUTE

Tribute of the whole province.—Ortega's startling discovery of the balance of the "Codex Humboldt I"[e] and its identification by Toscano

[a] On the Tlapanec language, see Radin, "The Tlapanec Language of Guerrero," International Journal of American Linguistics (1933), 8: 45–72, and Schulze Jena, Indiana III (1938).

[b] The only Yope ethnography surviving is in a document published by Federico Gómez de Orozco ("Costumbres, fiestas, enterramientos y diversas formas de proceder de los Indios de Nueva España," Tlalocan [1945], 2: 60–61).

[c] See Toscano, "Los codices tlapanecas de Azoyú," Cuadernos Americanos, T. 10, N° 4 (1943), pp. 127–136.

[d] That is, with the signs immediately anterior to the familiar Calli-Tochtli series as year-bearers.

[e] Published by Seler, Bulletin 28, Bureau of American Ethnology.

8: Barlow E-4 (no date)1949 NU7 Aztec NU7

NATURE OF THE PROVINCE

197 Inhabitants and languages.—The province of Coayxtlahuacan was Mixtec in speech, except for Cuicatec (extending eastward from Cuicatlan), Chinantec (north and east of Atlatlaucca), and, curiously enough, Chocho-Popoloca in the very heart of the province (Tamaçulapan to Coayxtlahuacan).

101 In Coayxtlahuacan Province centered the rich and complicated
175 Mixtec culture, concerning which some detailed information has been preserved for us in such codices as the Nuttall and the Vindobonensis. Most extensive data on the pre-Hispanic history and ethnography of this region can be recovered from these manuscripts when they are fully studied. Many of the towns of this province were originally important city-states, with their own dynastic histories.

171 Among the notable cultural differences separating the peoples of 805 this province from the Náhua, are such variant calendar systems as the Mixtec, studied by Jiménez Moreno, and the Cuicatec, in the still inadequately investigated "Codex Fernández Leal."

635 Provincial borders in 1519.—At the height of the Empire of Mocte-131 zuma, Coayxtlahuacan had certain half-intimidated (though not actually subjected) zones to the north, the sprawling Empire province with its Oaxaca garrison to the east, the still resisting Mixtec city-states to the south, and Tlaxiaco and other Mixtec towns, recently overrun, to the west.

TRIBUTE

651 Tribute of the whole province.—The province of Coayxtlahuacan was exploited for the following items:

CLOTHING

[291] 400 bundles of quilted mantles, richly decorated 400 bundles of mantles, striped red and white
400 bundles of black-and-white mantles
400 bundles of loincloths
[714] 400 bundles of women's blouses and skirts
2 warriors' costumes together with shields*

 Códice de Yanhuitlán.

 Such as Puctla, Zacatepec, and others the relaciones of which appear in RMEH, T. 2, Appendix.

16:Bandelier E-4 (no date) 1880 NU7 Aztec NU7
Maya NU4

A
M
173

The first settlement of Chiapas is ascribed, in the tale of Votan, to seven families.[28] But there is still another and more remarkable tradition connected with it. Like the Aborigines of Mexico of Nahuatl stock, the Tarasca of Michhuacan, the Maya of Yucatan, and the QQuiché, Cakchiquel and Zutuhil of Guatemala, the Aborigines of Chiapas had a month composed of twenty days, bearing each a particular name. It is positively asserted by very old authority, that these twenty days were named after as many chiefs of an equal number of lineages or kins, the latter being the earliest settlers of the country. Furthermore, among these twenty names, four are everywhere prominently distinguished.

A
M
805

men." The last words "xere cahib ri qui chuch oh Quiché vinak," are literally: "though four these (which, who) certainly (surely) mother us (we) QQuiché men." The note by the celebrated Abbé (p. 207, note 3), in which he states that "mother" is often applied to chief, finds a parallel in many passages of Tezozomoc when the tribe is also addressed as father and mother. Also Durán (Cap. XV, p. 127).

The creation of these four men and four women immediately precedes, in the Popol-Vuh, the tale of the first sacrifice and the distribution of the idols, and is distinctly stated as having occurred during the time of obscurity, the morning star being their only guide and most brilliant luminary ("Popol-Vuh," pp. 209, 211, and 213). Now an analogous tale is told by Sahagun (Lib. VII, cap. II, p. 248, etc.), about the first appearance of both sun and moon. The Gods disputed about the place where the two celestial bodies would rise, and four of them, together with four women, looked to the east for their coming. The QQuiché tradition (p. 207), places the coming of these first people also in the East. It appears to be, therefore, a tradition originally common to the "Nahuatl" and to the "QQuiché," and its bearing upon the question at issue becomes still more prominent.

[28] The two leading sources on Chiapas namely: Nuñez de la Vega ("Constitution diocesana del Estado de Chiapas, Roma, 1702), and Fray Antonio de Remesal ("Historia de la Provincia de Chyapa y Guatemala de la Orden de Santo Domingo," 1619), not being at my command now,—I can but refer the student to them, and to the following works besides: Lorenzo Boturini Benaducci ("Idea de una Nueva Historia General de la America Septentrional," Madrid, 1776, § XVI, p. 115, copying Nuñez de la Vega, 31, § XXX), Mariano Veytia y Echeverria ("Historia antigua de México," 1836, by Ortega, Vol. I, cap. II, p. 15). Clavigero (Lib. II. cap. XII, pp. 164 and 165). Paul Felix Cabrera ("Teatro critico Americano," german translation by Lieut. General J. H. von Minutoli, incorporated in the latter's book. "Beschreibung einer alten Stadt, die in Guatimala (Neuspanien) unfern Palenque entdeckt worden ist," p. 30. etc., after Vega also). Brasseur de Bourbourg ("Popol-Vuh" Introduction. pp. LXXIII, LXXXVII, CXII, etc). Alex. von Humboldt ("Vues des Cordillères et monuments des peuples indigènes de l'Amérique," 1861. Vol. I, pp. 262 and 263; II, pp. 256 and 257). Bancroft, H. H., (Vol. III, cap, X, pp. 450 and 454; and especially Vol. V, cap. III, from p. 150 on). As usual, very full and valuable, although he does not mention any source older than Nuñez de la Vega. Finally, A. Bastian ("Die Culturlaender des alten Amerika," 1878, Vol. II, pp. 360 and 362). The latter says that Votan found Chiapas already peopled. This is not confirmed by what I know of Vega and of the other (later) authority Don Ramon Ordoñez y Aguiar ("Historia de la Creacion del Cielo y de la Tierra" MSS. at the "Museo Nacional" of Mexico). Votan was "sent to divide and distribute the land" Cabrera says ("Beschreibung, etc.," "Teatro," p. 33), basing upon verbal communications of Ordonnez y Aguiar: "He (Votan) assures, that he brought seven families to this continent, of Valum Votan, and assigned land to them."

16:Bandelier E-4 (no date)1880 NU7 Aztec NU7
Maya NU4

M
805

They not only indicate the first day of each "week" of five days, but they also designate the years of the calendar. It is well-known that the largest authentically established cycle of Central American and Mexican natives consisted of 52 years, that is of a thirteen-fold recurrence of the same series of four, named alike, respectively as one of the four initial days of the weekly indictions. This peculiarity, coupled with the positive description furnished in the "Popol-Vuh" of the segmentation of four original kins into a number of smaller ones, and with the fact that nearly every aboriginal settlement, at the present time, divides into four principal groups of inhabitants, becomes suggestive of the inference, not only that the consanguine group was the original type of social organization at the remotest period, but that the ethnography of Mexico and Central America may even be derived from a segmentation of primitive kins, and reassociation of these fragments into tribes, under the influence of time and mutation of residence, dialectical variation aiding.[29]

[29] Without quoting superfluously to prove well-known facts—household words so to say, in Mexican and Central-American archæology—we will place side by side the names of the days of the Mexican, Nicaraguan, Yucatecan, QQuiché, Chiapanecan, and Tarascan month.

A
M 805

NAHUATL.			MAYA.		TZENDAL.
Mexican.	Niquiran.	Tarascan.	Maya.	QQuiché.	Chiapas and Socomusco.
Cipactli,	Cipat,	Inbeari,	Ymix,	Imox,	Imox,
Ehecatl,	Ecat or Hecat,	Inthaati,	Yx,	Ig,	Igh,
Calli,	Cali.	Inbani,	Akbal,	Akbal,	Volan,
Cuetzpalin,	Quespal,	Inxichari,	Kan,	Qat,	Chanan,
Cobuatl,	Coat,	Inchini,	Chicchan,	Can,	Abah,
Miquiztli,	Miesiste,	Iarini,	Quimij,	Camey,	Tox,
Mazatl,	Macet,	Inpari,	Manik,	Quich,	Moxic,
Tochtli,	Toste,	Inchon,	Lamat,	Ganel,	Lambat,
Atl,	At,	Inthabini,	Muluc,	Toh,	Molo,
Itzcuintli,	Tequindi,	Intzini,	Oc,	Tzy,	Elab,
Ozomatli,	Ocomate,	Intzonitabi,	Chuen,	Batz,	Batz,
Malinalli,	Malinal,	Intzimbi,	Eb,	Ci,	Evob,
Acatl,	Acate,	Inthikati,	Been,	Ah,	Been,
Ocelotl,	Ocelot,	Inixotzini,	Gix,	Itz,	Hix,
Quauhtli,	Oate,	Inichini,	Men,	Tziquin,	Tzibin,
Cozcaquauhtli,	Coscagoate,	Iniabi,	Quib,	Ahmak,	Chabin,
Ollin,	Olin,	Intzeiri,	Caban,	Noh,	Chic,
Tecpatl,	Tapecat,	Inodon,	Edznab,	Tibax,	Chinax,
Quiahuitl,	Quiahit,	Inimbi,	Cauac,	Caok,	Cabogh,
Xochitl.	Sochit.	Inetzuni.	Ajau.	Huzahpu.	Aghual.

The four leaders (as I may be permitted to call them), are respectively: In Mexico, Tochtli, Acatl, Tecpatl, Calli. In Michhuacan, Inchon, Inthabini, Inodon, Inbani. In Chiapas, Volan, Lambat, Been, Chinax. In Guatemala, Akbal, Ganel, Ah, Tibax. Finally in Yucatan, Kan, Muluc, Gix, Cauac.

I have not the means of discussing the Tarascan calendar of Michhuacan; it is suf-

16:Bandelier E-4 (no date) 1880 NU7 Aztec NU7
Maya NU4

A 621
197
173
A
M
805

It is not surprising therefore if, of the earliest traces which are met with concerning such Aborigines as spoke the "good sound" Scient for my purpose to establish its identity, in system, with the others. The Nicaraguan days are corruptions of the Mexican names, the "Niquiran" being a "Nahuatl" dialect.

Taking now the four remaining groups, we place opposite to each word its translation or interpretation so far as I can trace it, which is of course not always possible.

Mexican.	QQuiché.	Maya.	Chiapanecs.
Cipactli, Marine monster.	Imox. Swordfish.	Ymix. Dragon.	Imox.
Ehecatl, Wind.	Iz. Breath.	Yk, Breath or wind.	Ich.
Calli, House.	Akbal, chaos (?).	Akbal. (See below).	Voton.
Cuetzpalin. Lizard.	Cat, Lizard.	Kan. Snake.	Chanan. Snake.
Cohuatl. Snake.	Can. Snake.	Chechan.	Abah, Stone (?).
Miquiztli. Skull.	Camey. Death.	Quimij, Death.	Tox.
Mazatl, Deer.	Quich. Deer.	Manik, (See below).	Moxic.
Tochtli, Rabbit.	Ganel, Rabbit.	Lamat.	Lambat.
Atl, Water.	Toh, Shower.	Mulue.	Molo.
Itzcuintli, Dog.	Tzy. Dog.	Oc.	Elab.
Ozomatli, Monkey.	Batz. Monkey.	Chuen. (See below).	Batz. Monkey (?).
Malinalli. Knot or twist	Ci, Broom.	Eb, Staircase.	Eoob.
Acatl, Cane.	Ah, Cane.	Been.	Been.
Ocelotl, Wild cat or tiger.	Itz, Wizard.	Giz, Wizard.	Hix.
Quauhtli. Eagle.	Tziquin. Bird.	Men. Builder (?).	Tzibin.
Cozcaquauhtli, Vulture.	Ahmak, Owl.	Quib, Gum or wax.	Chabin.
Ollin, Motion.	Noh, Temperature.	Caban.	Chic.
Tecpatl, flint.	Tihax, Obsidian.	Edznab.	Chinax.
Quiahuitl. Rain.	Caok, Rain.	Cauac.	Cahogh.
Xochitl, flower.	Hunahpu, Shooter out of a tube.	Ajau, Chief.	Aghual.

For the interpretation, as above attempted, I have consulted the following very limited number of authors:—Brasseur de Bourbourg ("Relation des choses de Yucatan, etc." "Popol-Vuh," "Grammaire Quiché," "Ruines de Palenqué.") H. H. Bancroft, (Vol. II and III). Orozco y Berra, ("Geografia de las Lenguas.") and other sources. Mr. Bancroft translates the QQuiché "akbal" by chaos. I would suggest "household," basing upon the following note of Mr. Brasseur: ("Chronologia antigua de Yucatan, etc.," por Don Juan Pio Perez in "Choses de Yucatan," p. 375). "Akbal, mot vieilli qu' on retrouve dans la langue Quiché avec le sens de marmite, vase, peut être le même que le mot con ou comitl des Mexicains." Sr. Perez says about the word: "desconocido: tambien se halla entre los dias chiapanecas, escrito Aghual," (p. 374). In this the learned Yucatan is mistaken, for Aghual corresponds to the Maya and QQuiché "Ajau" or "Ahau." Now the pot or rather kettle, was distinctly connected with the housewife, and the word "Akbal" being, as the Abbé tells us, out of use, the suggestion that it may have been used to indicate something like the Mexican "Calli"—house,—is at least permitted.

I have deliberately translated "Kan" by snake, instead of by "cord of hennequen" as Pio-Perez has it (p. 372). Compare note 1 by the Abbé.

Manik is interpreted by Pio-Perez as follows: "es perdida su verdadera acepcion; pero si se divide la expresion man-ik viento que pasa, quizá se entenderia lo que fué." If this is accepted, then the signification might be: "fleetness," "swiftness," or "rapidity,"—some of the attributes of the deer, which is the corresponding sign in both the Mexican and QQuiché.

Chuen, for the reasons indicated by Brasseur (note 3, p. 372 of "Chronologia, etc.,") should be "monkey," as well as in the three other idioms.

In regard to "Gix" Sr. Orozco y Berra (Part II, V, p. 103), copies the three interpretations of Don Pio-Perez, one of which amounts to "the act of plundering or rob-

16:Bandelier E-4 (no date)1880 NU7 Aztec NU7
Maya NU4

A 621
197
173
A
M 805 or "Nahuatl" language in Mexico, we gather the information that they started off in bands constituting "lineages" or kins. This bing a tree." Might there be any vague connection between this and the Mexican "Ocelotl" or beast of prey?

The word "Cauac" is mentioned as "desconocido" or disused. Still the analogy in sound with the QQuiché "Caok" rain, is striking, as well as with the Tzendal "Cahogh" and finally also with the Mexican "Quiahuitl."

In regard to the calendar of Chiapas, I regret to say that the material at my command is by far too limited to venture much of an interpretation. Not one of the few Tzendal vocabularies or Grammars yet existing is within my reach. Still I must note here: "Chan" in Tzendal signifies Snake, therefore my translation of "Chanan." Brasseur de Bourbourg ("Recherches sur les Ruines de Palenqué," Cap. II, p. 22, notes 4 and 5).

"Abah" probably Stone ("Palenqué," p. 65, note 5).

"Batz" as monkey, is identified with the three other signs of the same day by Brasseur ("Popol-Vuh," Introd. p. CXXXV, note 5, Part II, cap. I, p. 69, note 4).

A
M 805
171

Furthermore, the signs Imox, Igh, Hix, and Cahogh are, in sound at least, analogous, if not identical, with the corresponding signs of the QQuiché and Maya calendars, and the signs Lambat, Molo, Been, and Aghual, are nearly alike to those of the same days of the Maya alone, whereas, Tzibin reminds of the Tziquin in QQuiché.

Taking now the Mexican calendar as a basis, we cannot fail to notice:

(1). That fifteen of its signs are identical with those of the QQuiché.

(2). Three are absolutely identical with signs of the Maya, and five more are presumably identical also.

(3). Two are identical with signs of the Tzendal, and two more presumably so.

Therefore our assumption appears justified, that:—

(1). The Mexican and QQuiché names of the days have a common origin.

(2). That the same is likely in regard to the Maya, since the Maya and QQuiché are regarded as belonging, linguistically, to the same stock.

(3). That a presumption in favor of a similar relation towards the Tzendal of Chiapas may be admitted since, besides the four signs recognized as common to both calendars, there are at least eight more which, in sound, are identical with others of the Maya and QQuiché.

I feel authorized, consequently, to conclude:—

(1). That the names of the days given by the four linguistical clusters above stated, were probably, originally identical.

(2). That these names, therefore, had a common origin.

This origin is stated as follows:—

A
M
[172]

Mendieta (Lib. IV, cap. XLI, p. 487), "and these Indians affirmed, that in ancient times there came to this land twenty men, and the chief of them was called Cacalcan, ... This writes the bishop of Chiapas. . . ." This bishop of Chiapas was Fray Bartolomé de Las Casas, who, in the MSS., "Historia apologética de Indias" (Vol. III, cap. 124), appears to be more detailed. I quote Las Casas from Brasseur and from H. H. Bancroft, (Vol. 3, p. 465), where he says (Cap. 123),—the MS. itself not being accessible to me. Now it is commonly admitted, and this admission (whether correct or not) is so general, that no quotations are needed in evidence, that Cacalcan or Cocolcan is identical with the Mexican Quetzalcohuatl. To Quetzalcohuatl, however, is attributed the formation of the Mexican Calendar. (Torquemada, Lib. VI, cap. XXIV, p. 38. Mendieta, Lib. II, cap. XIV, pp. 97, 98.)

In regard to the origin of the Tzendal Calendar, the tradition is very clear. Bulurind ("Idea, etc.," § XVI, pp. 113 to 121). Quoting Nuñez de la Vega (34, § XXVIII of the "Constitucion Diocesana") "y prosigue el Prelado diciendo, que al que llamaban Cuchhaotor (que es el Demonio, segun los Indios dicen, con firme publicidad) le tienen pintado en Sillo, y con hartas en la cabeza como de carnero, quando dicho Cualahdator se ha de corregir en Tmoc, ó Mox, y no está puesto en el Kalendario por Demonio,

16:Bandelier E-4 (no date) 1880 NU7 Aztec NU7
Maya NU4

A 197 173 621

was the case with the so-called "Toltecs,"[30] and with all their successors, such as the "Tezcucans," "Tecpanecans," and others, including the ancient Mexicans.[31]

A M 845 171

sino por cabeza de los veinte Señores, Symbolos de los días de el Año, y assi viene á ser el primer Symbolo de años." (See also Idem, pp. 118, 119, quoting Nuñez de la Vega, 23, 24, and 25), "concuerda el Systema de los Kalendarios de Chiappa, y Soconusco con el Tulióco, ... pues en lugar de los quatro Caractéres Tècpatl, Calli, Tóchtli, Acatl, se sirven los de Chiappa de quatro Figuras de Señores, Votan, Lambat, Been, y Chinax, etc., etc."

Clavigero (Lib. II, cap. XII, p. 164). "The Chiapanecs, if we can place any reliance upon their traditions, were the first settlers of the New World. They claim that Votan, the grandson of the venerable old man who built the great ark in order to save himself and his family during the deluge, and who was one of those who erected the high building that reached into the clouds, set out by special command of God, to people the country." Adopted and quoted also by Señor Don Francisco Pimentel, ("Cuadro Descriptivo y Comparativo de las Lenguas Indígenas de México," 1865, Vol. II, p. 223.) Clavigero (Lib. VI, cap. XXIX, p. 412, Vol. I) "The Chiapanecs . . . . . instead of the figures and names of the rabbit, cane, flint, and house, used the names Votan, Lambat, Been, and Chinax, and instead of the Mexican names of the days, they adopted those of twenty celebrated men of their ancestry, among which the four names above mentioned took the same place as among the Mexicans the Rabbit and the others." Compare also, in the appendix to the same volume, p. 483, the "Letter of the Abbé Don Lorenzo Hervas," Cesena, 31 July, 1788. Clavigero (Vol. II, "Dissertations, etc.," Cap. II, p. 281). After recalling the tradition of Votan, quoting from Nuñez de la Vega, he adds in note b, "Votan is the name of the leader of the 20 celebrated men, after which the 20 days of the month of the Chiapanecs are named."

These statements, which rest upon the writings of Nuñez de la Vega and of Ordonnez y Aguiar, are adopted, among later writers, by:—

Brasseur de Bourbourg ("Popol-Vuh," Introduction, § V, p. LXXII. "Chronologie," in "Relation des choses du Yucatan," p. 374, note 4).

The identity of the twenty days of the Chiapanecan months with the names of twenty leaders of as many kins, is very likely, therefore; and since we have found the close resemblance of the Chiapanecan Calendar with that of the Yucatecan Maya, it is not unreasonable to suggest: that the names of the Maya days originally denoted the same twenty kins also. If such is the case (as the tale of Cuculcan and of his nineteen followers also seems to indicate), then the twenty signs of the QQuiché have a similar origin and finally, the actual identity of the QQuiché Calendar with the Mexican or Nahuatl proper leads to the inference that the twenty names of days of the Tzendal, Maya, and Nahuatl groups of sedentary Indians in Mexico and Central America, indicate a common origin of these three clusters, from twenty kins or clans, or gentes, at a remote period.

Within these twenty kins there appear four more prominent than the other. This again may indicate a still older derivation from four, out of which the remaining sixteen sprung through segmentation. How such segmentation may occur is plainly stated in the "Popol-Vuh," and has been fully referred to by me in "Tenure of Lands" (p. 391, 392, note 7), to which, in addition to the Indian authority, and to Mr. Morgan's "Ancient Society" (Part II, Chapter IV), I beg leave to direct the "curious reader." In regard to the actually prevailing division of Indian settlements into four quarters, it is asserted by Brasseur de Bourbourg ("Popol-Vuh," Introduction, p. 117), "Enfin, presque toutes les villes ou tribus sont partagées en quatre clans ou quartiers, dont les chefs forment le grand conseil."

I give the above as mere suggestions, begging for their acceptance in a kindly way, since they are not intended to be thrust upon the reader as "results." But I cannot resist the temptation to submit some remarks here, on other peculiarities exhibited

16:Bandelier E-4 (no date)1880 NU7 Aztec NU7
Maya NU4

A 618
173

About the middle of the thirteenth century the Mexicans while on a migration towards more southern regions, made

A
M 805
171

by the so-called calendars just named, which peculiarities may throw some light on the questions raised, as to whether they originally denoted kins or not.

With a single exception (Cipactli), the Mexican and allied calendars contained the name of not one object, or phenomenon, which might not be met with somewhere over the wide area which the three linguistical stocks occupied at the time of the Conquest. Still, as Sr. Orozco y Berra strikingly proves ("Géografía de las Lenguas," Parte IIa, Cap. V, p. 107), the Mexican month contains the names of animals unknown to the ultimate home of the tribe as well as to more northern regions. Thus the monkey ("Onomatli") is not found on the high central tableland. In regard to the sign Cipactli, I shall elsewhere refer to this sign, which may perhaps denote a "cuttle-fish" of monstrous dimensions.

Supposing now (since we have no proof yet to the contrary), that this "marine monster" was also an inhabitant of tropical seas, it must strike us that the twenty signs for the days of the aboriginal calendars under consideration

(1). Represent types and phenomena which are met with, not exclusively, but still all, within the area of Mexico and Central America.

(2). That some of the animal types are limited to tropical and low regions only.

(3). That none of the animals belong exclusively to the temperate zone of North America.

Consequently, that these signs are of a meridional origin, and even, taking into account that the monkey is not found in the valley of Mexico, that they originated to the south of it. Still, the four "Leaders," as I have called them (the first signs of each "week" of five days), namely: Rabbit, cane, flint, and house,—might as well have been selected at the north.

It is a fact abundantly proven, that the kins or gentes composing the tribes of North America are named after a principle identical with that found in the naming of the days among the aborigines of more southerly latitudes, namely: after objects and natural phenomena. Mr. Morgan has given the names of the gentes of at least thirty tribes, consisting in all of two hundred and ninety-six gentes. Of these two hundred and ninety-six names, ninety-eight are signs of the Mexican days, repeatedly found in the different tribes. These signs are as follows:—

Itzcuintli, Dog, mostly found, however, as wolf	22 times.
Quauhtli, Eagle	12 "
Coxcoquauhtli, Hawk (although it is the "ringed vulture")	8 "
Mazatl, Deer, Elk, Caribou, Antelope	20 "
Cohuatl, Snake	9 "
Atl, Water (also as "Ice," "Sea," etc.)	4 "
Miquiztli, Skull (as "Head")	1 time.
Ollin (as "many seasons" and "Sun")	2 times.
Calli, House (as "high village" and "lodge")	3 "
Tecpatl, Flint (as "knife")	2 "
Ocelotl, Tiger (also as "panther" and "wild cat")	5 "
Ehecatl, Wind	1 time.
Acatl, Cane (also as "Indian corn")	3 times.
Tochtli, Rabbit (also as "hare")	3 "
Cuetzpalin, Lizard ("frog")	1 time.
Xochitl, Flower (as "Tobacco")	1 "
Quiahuitl, Rain	1 "

I beg to observe, that if I have added "Cencaquauhtli" to this list, supposing it to be the equivalent of "Hawk," this is a mere suggestion, and not an affirmation on my part.

Thus sixteen, if not seventeen, of the twenty signs of days of the Mexican month, are found in North America as "totems" probably of aboriginal clans or kins.

It is further interesting to note, that of the nine clans composing the Moqui tribes of Arizona, the names of seven correspond to signs of Mexican days, ("Ancient Society," Part II, p. 179). What little is known of the Laguna Indians foreshadows a similar result (p. 186), thus permitting the query, whether the pueblo Indians of the

16:Bandelier E-4 (no date) 1880 NU7 Aztec NU7
Maya NU4

A 173 618 their first appearance in the northern sections of the former republic of Mexico, as a cluster of seven kins, united by the bond of common language and worship.[20] The names of these seven kins are distinctly stated and it is not devoid of interest to notice that some of these names were perpetuated as late as 1690 among the numerous "Indian wards" of the present City of Mexico.[22] We may as well add here, that these

A M central west might not perhaps show a closer connection yet between the very ancient Mexican kins as denoted by their days, and the gentes composing their own tribes.

● [805 171] After these speculations, which I submit for what they may be worth, and with the distinct reserve that I do not attach any value to them save as hints and queries for further investigation, I beg leave to state, that in my fourth paper "On the Creed and Belief of the Ancient Mexicans," I intend to discuss all these points with more thoroughness, and, I hope, with the aid of more suitable material than that now at my command.

A [197 173 621] [20] Ixtlilxochitl ("Relaciones Históricas" "Segunda Relacion," Kingsborough, Vol. IX, p. 323) "y casi el ultimo de estos años se juntaron dos cabezas principales y los otros cinco inferiores á tratar si se quedarian en esta tierra ó si pasarian mas adelante." Also "Noticias de los Pobladores y Naciones de esta Parte de América llamada Nueva-España" ("Tercera Relacion de los Tultecas," Kingsborough, IX, p. 333), "Estos siete caudillos . . . . . con todas sus gentes vinieron descubriendo y poblando por todas las partes que llegaban." ("Histoire des Chichimèques," Cap. I, p. 13), "Ils avaient sept chefs, et choisissaient alternativement un d'entr'eux pour les gouverner." In addition to authorities quoted on the Toltecs in "Tenure of Lands" (p. 288, note 7, to p. 342). I refer to Veteancurt ("Teatro Mexicano," Vol I, Part II, Trat. I. Cap. IV, p. 234). Granados y Galvez (in Tarde, p. 31).

[21] "Tardes Americanas" (p. 31), "bien es que los mapas de estos no nos pintan tierras, sino familias: y como estos vagaearon sin fixeza alguna por tan varios rumbos. . . . . ." It is superfluous to quote authorities in full, I but refer to "Histoire des Chichimèques" (Cap. V, pp. 26, 29; X, p. 70). Sahagun (Lib. X, cap. XXIX). The whole chapter is very important. Durán (Cap. II, pp. 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, III; pp. 19, 20, 21, and plates I, to Trat. I°, also pl. I, to Trat. II°). Acosta (Lib. VII, cap. II, p. 454, and cap. III entire). Mendieta (Lib. II, cap. XXXIV, p. 147). Torquemada (Lib. I, cap. XXIII, p. 51; cap. XXVI, p. 54; Lib. II, cap. I, p. 78, etc.). García ("Origen, etc.," Lib. III, cap. I, p. 81; Lib. V, cap. III, p. 321). Herrera (Dec. III, Lib. II. cap. X, pp. 50, 60): Veytia (Lib. II, cap. VI, p. 39 of 2d Vol.). Veteancurt (Vol. I, "Teatro," Parte II, Trat. I, cap. IX, pp. 254, 255). Clavigero (Lib. II, cap. IV, pp. 146, 147), and others.

[22] The number seven (7) is almost generally accepted. Compare "Tenure of Lands" (p. 300, and note 21). Besides the authors there mentioned as accepting seven kins, I refer to Dr. Ad. Bastian ("Die Culturländer des Alten Amerika," Vol. II, p. 400, note 2). Cabrera (in Mendoll's Palenqué, p. 77. Rather confused).

[23] I have gathered these names out of the following sources: Durán (Cap. III, pp. 20, 21), Tezozomoc (Cap. I, p. 6, Kingsborough, Vol. IX), Veytia (Lib. II, cap. XII, p. 91 of 2d Vol.). They are stated as follows:—

By Durán.	By Tezozomoc.	By Veytia.
Yopica.	Yapica.	Yopica.
Tlacochcalca.	Tlacochcalca.	Tlacochcalca.
Vitzangoa.	Huitzahuac.	Huitzahuac.
Cuatecpan.	Cihuatecpanoca.	Cihuatecpanoca.
Chalmeca.	Chalmeca.	Chalmeca.
Tlacatecpanoca.	Tlacatecpanoca.	Tlacatecpanoca.
Tzquiteca.	Tzquiteca.	Itzcuintecatl.

16:Bandelier E-4 (no date)1880 NU7 Aztec NU7

The place where this council assembled, was necessarily the official house of the tribe or "tecpan,"[183] and there they met at stated intervals, possibly twice every Mexican month of twenty days.[182] Such meetings were fully attended, and they could be called, besides, at any time.[184] There is evidence that, during Bustamante ("Tezcoco," p. 187): "Habia tambien abogados y procuradores; á los primeros llamaban Tepantlátoani (el que habla por otro)."

[183] Molina (II, p. 92): "casa ò palacio real, ó de algun señor de salua." But of special importance is the following definition (I, p. 91): "Palacio real" — "tecpan, tlatocan, totocuacan." This shows that the tecpan was really the place where the council met." Sahagun (Lib. VIII. cap. XIV, pp. 302 and 303. Cap. XXV, p. 314). Mendieta (Lib. II, cap. XXVIII, p. 124). Ixtlilxochitl ("Histoire des Chichimèques," Cap. XXXVI, pp. 247-252). Pagès (III. cap. VII, p. 199). Torquemada ("Monarquia," Lib. XIV, cap. VI, p. 344), identifying "la Corte" with the "lugar de Juzgado, ó Audiencia." Further quotations are useless.

[184] This fact is implied by Ixtlilxochitl ("Hist. des Chichimèques," cap. XXXVIII, pp. 267, 268 and 269), when he affirms that, in notifying a hostile tribe of the intention to make war upon it, the notification was repeated thrice, at intervals of twenty days. Pagès ("Historia antigua de México," Lib. III, cap. VII. p. 209), says that every twelve days "cada doce dias," the courts met to report to the "emperor." This is rather strange since (Id., p. 203, etc.), he says that these courts sat daily in what he calls the "palace." Torquemada (Lib. XI, cap. XXVI, p. 253): "De diez à diez Dias, y á mas tardar, de doce à doce, hacia junta el Rei de todos los jueces, asi de las Audiencias del Reino, como de los de sus Consejos." In this case he speaks of Tezcuco. Mendieta (Lib. II, cap. XXVIII, p. 125): "Y asi, á lo mas largo, los pleitos árduos, se concluian á la consulta de los ochenta dias, que llamaban nappoalltetolli, demas que cada diez ó doce dias el señor con todos los jueces tenian acuerdo sobre los casos árduos y de mas calidad." Burtin ("Rapport, etc.," p. 101): "Tous les douze jours il y avait une assemblée générale des juges présidié par le prince. On y jugeait les affaires difficiles, celles de crimes qualifiés, et l'on examinait minutieusement tous les détails." Clavigero (Lib. VII, cap. XVI, p. 488), is very positive: "Each Mexican month, or within twenty days, a meeting of all the judges was held in presence of the King, to decide upon all cases not yet disposed of." He evidently bases the statement upon Gomara ("Conquista," etc., Vadia I. p. 441). "Consultan con los señores cada mes una vez todos los negocios," according to Sr. Orozco y Berra ("Ojeada sobre Cronologia Mexicana," Introduction to the "Crónica Mexicana," published under the supervision of Señor José M. Vigil, pp. 174 and 178). Gomara rests principally upon an unpublished series of documents, entitled "Libro de Oro," now in possession of my friend, Sr. Izcabalceta, which collection was formed by the Franciscans under the auspices of the unjustly abused Fray Juan de Zumárraga, between 1531 and 1547. The statement of Clavigero is, therefore, not to be rejected. The "Codice Ramírez" (p. 65) says: "los quales daban noticia al Rey cada cierto tiempo de todo lo que en su Reyno passaba y se habia hecho." It is, therefore, to say the least, likely, that the full council met once a month, but, as we have stated in order to be just towards all, it is equally possible that it may have met twice. The reference to "Judges" needs no explanation. It is self-evident that for judiciary matters, alone, such meetings of executive officers were superfluous. Matters of government came up also,—and this is decisive of the kind of officers that were members of the tribal council, since they alone could fill such positions. These meetings were, therefore, full meetings of the council, and nothing else.

[185] This is abundantly proven by what has at last been recognized by Sr. Orozco y Berra as well as by my friend, Sr. Chavero ("Ojeada," etc.) as specifically Mexican sources of aboriginal history. See for inst.: "Codice Ramírez" (pp. 55, 56, 66, 67, 68). "Fragmento No. 1" (pp. 124, 127, 128, etc.). "Fragmento No. 2" (pp. 137, 147, etc.).

De la Arte Adivinatoría

FOURTH BOOK, WHICH TELLETH OF THE BOOK OF DAYS WHICH THE MEXICANS HANDED DOWN. THIS WAS IN ORDER THAT THE READERS OF THE DAY SIGNS[1] MIGHT STUDY THE GOOD AND EVIL DAYS. IN IT WERE SET FORTH THE DAY SIGNS HERE RECOUNTED, AND HOW THOSE WOULD FARE WHO WERE BORN ON THEM. AND THIS BOOK OF DAYS IS MORE CORRECTLY CALLED SORCERY, FOR IT BELONGED TO THE SORCERERS.

INIC NAVI AMUXTLI: YTECHPA TLATOA, IN TONALAMATL, IN QUJTITLANJA MEXICA: IEHOATL INIC QUJTTAIA TONALPOUHQUE, IN QUALLI CEMJLHUJTL, IOAN AMO QUALLI: YN JPAN MONEZCAIOTITIUH TONALLI, IN NICAN MOTENEOA: AUH IN QUENAMJQUE IEZQUE IN JPAN TLACATIA. AUH IN, Y, TONALAMATL OC CENCA IE MELAOAC, IC MOTOCAIOTIZ, NAOALLOTL, CA NAOALTI INTECH POVIA.

X 787 First Chapter, which telleth of the first sign, which was named One Crocodile, and of the good fortune which they merited who were born then — men or women. These same destroyed and ruined it because of their negligence.[2]

Inic ce capítulo, ítechpa tlatoa, inic cenetl machiotl: in jnoca ce cipactli, ioan in qualli tonalli in qujmácoaia, in vncan tlacatia, in toquichti, in cioa: çan ichoacotin quipolouia, quimoctacalhujuia, yn jpampa in jatlatzivilin.

● 805 Here beginneth the count of each day. Just as each week was reckoned, so each of the thirteen-day periods went taking its place until one year had passed. Once more at its start began the count of each day.

Nican peua in cecemjlhujtlapoalli in iuhquj cecentetl semana ic moponia, matlatlaqujlhujtl omecy motlalitiuh, inic otlatocatiuh ce xivitl: Oc ceppa iniuhtlan oalpeoa in cecemjlhujtl tlapoalli.

The first day count was named One Crocodile.[3] It was the very beginning and precise starting point of all the day counts, whereby began, continued, and came to an end the year [of 260 days].[4]

Achto tonalpoalli yeuca ce cipactli: vel ipeuhca, vel itzin in cemjlhujtlapoalli, ynic vnpeuhtiuh, ôtlatocatiuh: ioan inic ontlantiuh ce xivitl.

---

1. Cf. Bernardino de Sahagún: Historia general de las cosas de Nueva España (Angel María Garibay K., ed.; México: Editorial Porrúa, S. A., 1956; hereafter referred to as Garibay ed.), Vol. IV, p. 259 (Tonalamatl-qui); also Horacio Carochi: Arte de la lengua mexicana (México: Imprenta del Museo Nacional, 1892), pp. 425 ff., where in conjugation of the verb pan, the preferred meaning is "to read." Alonso de Molina: Vocabulario de la lengua mexicana (Julio Platzmann, ed.; Leipzig: B. G. Teubner, 1880), and Rémi Simeon: Diccionario de la lengua nahuatl o mexicana (Paris: Imprimerie Nationale, 1897), give the meanings "to read," "to relate," etc., besides "to count." See also Miguel León Portilla: La filosofía nahuatl estudiada en sus fuentes (México: Instituto Indigenista Interamericano, 1956), p. 395; on pp. 204 ff. there is a discussion of the number and naming of day signs.

2. In Bernardino de Sahagún: Historia de las cosas de Nueva España (Francisco del Paso y Troncoso, ed.; Madrid: Hauser y Menet, 1905), Vol. VII (hereafter referred to as Real Palacio MS), pp. 280 ff., the text has been divided into the chapters which appear in the Florentine Codex, and each one gives a descriptive heading, in Spanish and in Sahagún's handwriting. The Aztec heading appears to be a rendition in Nahuatl of Sahagún's Spanish. It will be noted that some of the chapter divisions to be found below appear to be arbitrary.

3. In the "Primera Adivinanza" of the Real Palacio MS (Vol. VI of the Paso y Troncoso ed.), pp. 73-75, 107, Sahagún begins the day count with One Dog (ce mazatl).

4. Xivitl. Though the term means a year of 365 days, a 260-day conventional year is meant.

805 It because as the leader of this group of thirteen days which belonged with it: Two [Wind],[5] Three House, Four Lizard, Five Serpent, Six Death, Seven Deer, Eight Rabbit, Nine Water, Ten Dog, Eleven Monkey, Twelve Grass, and Thirteen Reed.

187 These various days, as it was said, all were good. He who was then born a nobleman, it was stated, would be a lord, a ruler; he would prosper; he would be rich and wealthy. And if a commoner were then born, he would be a brave warrior—a valiant chief, esteemed, honored, and great. He would always eat. And if a woman were then born, she would also prosper and be rich. She would have drink and food available. She would have food for others to eat; she would invite others to feast. She would be respectful. She would be visited by others; she would await them with drink and food, with which to revive and refresh the spirits and bodies of those who lived in misery on earth, who, as they slept so they awoke—the destitute old men and women, and orphans; the forsaken; and all would be realized and come to pass that was undertaken; nothing would fail; of her fatigue and effort, nothing would be in vain. Successful would be her dealings around the market place, in the place of business; it was as if it would sprinkle, shower, and rain her waves upon her.

And furthermore they said that even though favorable was the day sign on which he had been born, if he did not strictly perform his penances, if he took not good thought, if he did not accept the reprimands and punishment meted out to him, the punishment with which he was punished and the correction with which he was corrected, the exhortations of the old men and the old women; if he became bad and perverse and followed not the way of righteousness, succeeded in nothing, and entirely by his own acts brought himself to ruin, despised himself, brought harm to himself, failed, lost through his own neglect, gave up, and endangered that which might be his good fortune,—his reward, and his lot: then he tarnished, polluted, and ruined with debauchery his birthright. Thus he found and merited affliction. As was the sleep, so was the awakening.[6] Nowhere was he content, nowhere

Injn matlactetl vmei in tonalli, in iuhquj itlavilanoan muchioa, yn itech povi: ichoatl in vme acatl, ey calli, navi cuetzpali, macujlli coatl, chiquacen mjqujztli, chicome maçatl, chicuei tochtli, chicunavi atl, matlactli itzcujntli, matlactli oce oçomatli, matlactli vmome malinalli, matlactli omej acatl.

In jaqujztel in tonalli: iuh mjtoaia, muchi qualli: in aquja ipan tlacatia pilli; mjtoaia tecutix, tlatocatix, motlacamatix, mocujltonoz, motlamachtix: Auh intla macoualli ipan tlacatia, oqujchtix, tiacauhtix, mavizzix, panvetzix, motleiotix, onca qujquanj iez: auh intla çioatl ipan tlacati, no motlacamatix, mocujltonoz, oniez in qujz, in qujquaz, tetlaqualtix, tecoanotzaz, tetlacamatix, ipan calaoaz, qujtechielitiz in atl, in tlaqualli: ypal ihiiocujoaz, ypal ceviz in jiollo, in jnacaio, in tlaihiiovitinemj tlalticpac, in iuhquj cochi, in iuhquj meoa, in jcnoveve, yn jcnoilama, in jcnopiltziotli, in tlacnocaoalli: yoan muchi neltiz, muchi onieoatiz, in tlein masilia, atle nenqujçaz, in jçiaviz, yn jtlapaliviz, atle nenvetziz, vel motitianqujz in tianquiznaoac, in nentlamachoian: iuhqujn pipixaviz, ipan tepeviz, ipan tzetzeliviz in jtiamjc.

Auh no yoã quitoaia: ma nel ivi in qualli itonal ipan otlacat, intlacamo vellamacoa, intlacamo vel monotza, intlacamo qujcuj, intlacamo iuch qujpachoa, in atl cecec, in tzitzicaztli, yn inonotzaloca, in izcaliloca, in venetlatolli, yn jlamatlatolli, in çan tlaueliloti, tlavelilocati, in çan ñic vtli qujtoca, atle onquiça, çan ynevian mopopoloa, motelchioa, mjxpopoiomjctia, mjiecoa, conmjxcaoaltia coamocavilia, qujmjtlacalhuja, yn jmãcoal ieuquja, yn itonal, yn jnemac, qujteuhiotia, qujtlaçollotia, qujtlaçolmjctia yn itlacatiliz: ic cococ, teupouhquj qujmottitia, qujmomaçevia, in iuhquj cochcaiotl, iuhquj neuhcaiotl, acan avia, acan vellamati, ompa onquiça in qujtzaqua tlalticpac netolinjlizztli: ca nel omonevizavi, yn jpampa yn jtlauelilocaio, inj atle ipan tlamaliz, yn iaquentlattaliz, yn jtlaauilmachiliz, aiac oconcaujli, ca iccoian ynevian oqujmochichivili in tonevizzli, in chichinaqujztli, ic telchioalo, aoc tle ipan itto, aoc ac

5. Ome ozcatl has been corrected to read ome ozcatl in the Real Palacio MS. p. 280.

6. In tlahqui cochcaiotl, tlahqui neuhcaiotl. Cornelio, op. cit., pp. 471, 456, favors the meaning of a general contentment (cocochca: cocohcayotl, cocohcayotl), though his examples do not parallel the phrasing here found. Possibly the rendering should be: "As for contentment, nowhere was he content."

X 787 her spinning bowl, her sweeper, and her broom. Thus they showed that the girl was one who went 844 nowhere; only the house was her abode. Hence, near the grinding stone, at the edge of the hearth, they buried her umbilical cord.

in ſcampa ianj cioamintli, çan calli ichan: ic çan metlatitlan, tecujlnacaxco contocaia yn jtic.

X 787 And this count of days—so was it claimed—791 was an invention of the two called and named Oxomoco and Cipactonal, who gave it to the people.
●805 Oxomoco they painted as a woman, and Cipactonal [as] a man. They who were readers of day signs embellished their book of days with their representations, which they placed in the middle when they painted them. For it was so said that there they became lords of all the day count.

Auh inin tonalpoalli, iuh mjtoaia: ichoan intlanextil, ichoan qujtemacaqui, in vmentin tenecuale, intoca Oxomoco, ioan cipactonal: in Oxomoco cioatl inic qujcujlouia: auh in Cipactonal oquichtli: in tonalpouhque catca yn jntonalamauh qujiollotiaia, yn jmjxiptla ynepantla qujntlaliaia, injc qujcujcujloaia: ca iuh mjtoaia: vncan tlatoque muchiua yn jpan ſaquich tonalpoalli.

[p. 4]

Second Chapter, which telleth of the second [day] sign, which was named One Ocelot, and which was not a good day sign for those who were born on it—men and women—to obtain reward; but, nevertheless, he who showed prudence might well be saved through forethought; and of those born on [this day sign] almost all became slaves.

Injc vme capitulo: itechpa tlatoa, injc vntetl machivtl, in jtoca ce ocelutl: ioan in amo qualli tonalli, in qujmomáceviaia in aqujque ipan tlacatia, in toqujchti, in cioa: auh tel in jca innezcaliliz, in vel nenotzalizpiatia: auh in aqujque in jpan tlacatia, y, achi muchintin tlatlaoni muchioaia. 787x

The second day sign which set in was named One Ocelot. When it set in, it was said to be an evil day sign, one of fierce beasts.

It bore with it and presided over all its series[1] of thirteen, which belonged to it: Two Eagle, Three Vulture, Four Motion, Five Flint Knife, Six Rain, Seven Flower, Eight Crocodile, Nine Wind, Ten House, Eleven Lizard, Twelve Serpent, and Thirteen Death.

And those who were then born, whether nobleman or commoner, so it was said, would die in war, be taken away, abandoned, imprisoned, seized. And all bad was his lot; misery befell him. He only wallowed in evil and he was covered with filth. Nowhere had he good repute. He committed adultery, was an adulterer, adulterous, one who seized other skirts and blouses, one who remained on female navels.

And even though one such became a valiant chieftain, brave, a taker of captives, indeed he sold and yielded himself to slavery; he became someone's digging stick and tump line; he yielded to the digging stick and tump line. So it was said: "Thus was his day sign; thus was his life. On such a day was he born; thus was his birthright."

But [if] he emerged great, some brave chieftain, he was not sold [but] lived on earth in tranquillity: one who was not lazy; diligent and careful, vigilant, a receiver of [ritual] benefits, a doer of penances, one who fasted and bled himself; who swept, shook out clothing, gathered up rubbish, laid fires, and at night held vigil, rose in vigor, and was circumspect; who qojcenvica, qujcentlaça, yn itlavilan matlactli vmei, in jtech povi, ichoantin, y, vme quauhtli, ei concaquauhtli, navi olin, macujlli tecpatl, chiquaçen qujavitl, chicome xochitl, chicuey cipactli, chicunavi hecatl, matlactli calli, matlactli oce, cuetzpali, matlactli vmome coatl, matlactli vmei mjquijztli:

Injc ome moquetza tonalli: ytoca ce oçelutl. In jquac in moquetza, mjtoaia ãpo qualli tonalli, tequantonalli, 787x 805

auh in aqujque ipan tlacatia, y, in aço pilli, anoço macoualli: auh mjtoa iaomjquja, vicoia, caoaloia, calaqujloia, axioaia, ioan muchi amo qualli in jmlcoual, in jcnopil muchioaia, çan teuhtli, tlaçolli, ic mjlacatzoinemj, teuhtli tlaçolli cokolotinemj: acan tlacatolo, tetlaxima, tepan iauh, tetlan aaquj, cucid, vipilli tepan cana, icoaxic ietinemj. 787x

Auh intlanel aca tlacauh, oquichtli, tlamanj muchioaia, vel monamacaia, motlacocaoaia, tevic, temecapal muchioaia, victli, mecapalli qujmomitiaia, iuh mjtoaia: ca iuhquj iaoual, iuhquj iol, iuhquj ipan tlacat, iuhquj itlacatiliz:

auh çi vei qujçaia in aca tlacauh, amo monamacaia, in jvian oalnemja tlatiçpac: ichaol in amo tlatziuhquj, in jeel, in tlamocujtlavianj, in cochiçanj, in tlacetianj, in tlamaceoanj, in moçaoanj, in mjqonj, in tlachpananj, in tlamettelonj, in tlacujcujnj, in tletlalianj, in ioalli qujztoc, in popoxiuhtzoa, in mocujtivetti, in amo motetoca, in amo motiocaoa, in

1. The linguistic concepts illustrated in this sentence by the use of pol-vmoa and Mouhtlac presents a semantic problem difficult to put into English. Therefore in this Book we generally translate vmoa as "bear with it," and Mouhtlac, or tlauhtlac, as "he series," or companions, or group.

Third Chapter, which telleth of the third sign, named One Deer; and the good fortune which those then born — men or women — merited. And if it were not realized, these lost it through laziness.

Injc ei capitulo, itechpa tlatoa: injc eteçi machiotl, in jtoca oc maçatl: yoan in qualli tonalli, in qujmomacevizia yn ipan tlacatia, in toqujchti, in cioa: auh intlacamo inpan neltiaia, çan iehoantin in tlatzvilizticca quipolonia. 787X

In third place set in a day sign, the one [named] One Deer, and it also bore with it thirteen [days]. These are Two Rabbit, and Three Water, Four Dog, Five Monkey, Six Grass, Seven Reed, Eight Ocelot, Nine Eagle, Ten Vulture, Eleven Motion, Twelve Flint Knife, and Thirteen Rain.

Many of these day signs, it was said, were good and of a propitious time. Nevertheless, some mixed and mingled with them, so that they corrupted, as will be told. Here are told their qualities as they went in order.

Injc expa moquetza tonalli: ieheatl in oc maçatl, no matlactlomej quivica, ieheatl in vme tochtli, ey atl, navi itzcuintli, macuijlli ocomatli, chiquacen malinalli, chicome acatl, chicuei ocelotl, chicunavi quauhtli, matlactli coecaquauhtli, matlactli oce olin, matlactlomome tecpatl, matlactlomei quiavitl. 787X 805

In jaquijtetl in tonalli, mjtoaia: qualli, ieccan: auh tel cequj itla actiuh, itzalan actiuh, injc itlacauhtiuh, in iuh motenecoaz: vncan mjtoa innenexcauijtoca, injc tecpantivi: 787X

He who was then born a nobleman, who was of noble lineage,[1] became a ruler and gained fame. Because of him there was drink and food; he rewarded others and bestowed upon and laid before them capes, breech cloths, head bands, lip pendants, and ear plugs.

in aquin ipan tlacati pilli, in tetzon, in teixti, in tetzicuenhca, in tetzicuecaçlo, in tetlapanca, in tetechpa quiz, iol, in teujcttzo, in teaoaio, in tetentzoe, in teixquamol, in tecaço, in tetlapallo, tlatocaiotia, oalmoteniotiaia, ipal actioaia, ipallaqualoia, tetlauhtiaia, qujtemecaia, tetech qujtlalilaia in tilmatli, in maxtlatl, in tlalpilonj, in teçacatl, in necochtli:

And if it were only a commoner who was then born, the same likewise befell him. He attained his ends; he succeeded. He lived. He became a brave warrior, a valiant chieftain. He surpassed others; he left them overcome. He did not wish to lose stature. Nowhere did he hang on at the end. Nowhere was he inferior, the younger brother, the child, the blighted one. Proceeding everywhere mature, [like] something well-developed; going first and foremost, at the head, he brought his life to successful fruition. Nowhere did he deal in shameful things; he was ashamed of nothing and ashamed of no one. Nothing deterred him; he did not live in humiliation; nowhere did he turn tail in battle. In nothing did they consider him a woman.

auh intla çan macoualli ipan tlacatia, no iuhquj ypan machioaia, oallacaopilhoaia, oalquiçaia, oalnemjx, oqujchtia, tiacauhtia, techcaoaia, teihicaoaia: amo mopatzaoallanj, ican tlatzimpiloa, ican tetzacuja, ican teiccauhti, xocoioti, amo patzaczioti, noviian mochamauhtiuh, tlachamauhtiuh, tachcauh icatiuh, tlaiacatitiuh, panj icatiuh, coaquixtilitiuh yn jecmjlix, ican pinaviztlamati, atle qujmamati, aiac qujmamati, atle quixicololtia, amo papinoenj, ican tzinquixcatlaiecoa, atle quicioatlamachia.

1. Andrés de Olmos, in Grammaire de la langue nahuatl ou mexicaine (Paris: Imprimerie Nationale, 1875), p. 212, groups most of these terms as synonymous with "Parlamos de alguno que sabe de sus renos"; Sahagún, in "Manuscrito con vocablos," Academia de la Historia MS (Vol. VI of the Pano y Tremamo ed.), cap iv, pp. 286, 288, defines the terms figuratively as personas que tienen sucesores. Simeon, op. cit., as well as Sahagún, loc. cit., gives literal meanings of most of them. See also Sahagún, Florentine Codex, Book VI, cap. xiii, fol. 28b.

X 787 Seventh Chapter, which telleth of the fourth sign, named One Flower. And the man born upon it, they said, and it was averred, would be happy, quiet ~~this~~, and much given to song and joy: a jester, an entertainer. And it was said that the women were great embroiders. It was said that this sign was indifferent; that is to say, a little bad and a little good.

X 787 One Flower and all of its various companions set in, so forming [a set of] thirteen days. Two Crocodile followed it, and Three Reed,[1] Four House, Five Lizard, Six Serpent, Seven Death, Eight Deer, Nine Rabbit, Ten Water, Eleven Dog, Twelve Monkey, and Thirteen Grass.

● 805

X 787 These various ones, it was said, were evil; but also it was said that they were somewhat good.

In this manner was considered the one then born, nobleman or only commoner. He would become a singer, a bearer of joy, a teller of tales, an artisan. And he found and merited his consolation, his riches. He lived content and happy when he was devoted to his day sign; that is, when he reflected and did his penance well.

And [as for] him who was not devoted to it, who disregarded it, who only disdained his day sign, then, so was it said, when one such was a singer, or some artisan or skilled craftsman, if there was food on hand and wealth was there, he became presumptuous, superior, ungrateful, proud, haughty, disrespectful, filled with pride. So he acted superior in mind and heart, in his songs, and in his wisdom, as a poet, a designer, a composer, a master of song.

And if somewhere there were an invitation to a feast and to song, to discussion and the forgiveness of differences, he disregarded and ignored the sweetness of the protector of all,[2] the flowers, tobacco, sustenance, and the water of life. He would not go, he would not

Inic chicome capítulo, itechpa tlatoa: injc nauhtetl machiotl, yn jtoca ce xochitl: auh in toqujchti ipan tlacatia, qujtouia: qujlmach papaquinj iez, vel moccaliaxj: ioan vel qujmocujtlavia in cujcatl, ioan in paquijxtli, ioan cicamanaltinj, cicamanale: auh quj in cioa, vevey tlamachiuhque: qujlmach çan tlanepantla ca injn machiotl, qujtouznequj achi tetolinj, ioan achi qualli.

Moquetza ce xochitl, ioan yn jaquiztl ytlavilanoan: injc matlactetl omei tonalli muchiuhtica in yehoatl contoqujlia vme cipactli, yoan ey acatl, navi calli, macujlli cuetzpali, chiquacen coatl, chicome mjquixtli, chicuei maçatl, chicunavi tochtli, matlactli atl, matlactli oce ytzcuintli, matlactlomome ocomatli, matlactlomey malinalli:

in jaquiztl in, mjtouia amo qualli: auh yoan mjtouia, achi qualli.

Injc motta in aquin ipan tlacatia pilli, in anoço çan maceoalli cujcanj, papaquinj, tlatlaquetzanj, totoltecatl muchioaia: auh qujttaia, qujmaceouia in jneiollalilia, in jnetlamachtil, pactinenca, vellamatia: in jquac ipan mjmatia ytonal, qujtouanequj: in jquac vel monotzaia, in vel omtlamaceua.

Auh in aquin amo ipan mjmatia, in atle ipan qujttaia: çan qujtlavelia yn jtonal: ca iuh mjtoa: in jquac aquin cujcanj, anoço aca toltecatl, tlachichiuhquj: intla ie vnca qujquanj, ye vnca ynecuiltonol: auh ie conpopoa, ijxco, ijcpac, ie qujmana, contepopoaltia, yz ic moquetza, in ic moquixtia, ic teijxco, teicpac nemj, ic atlamatinemj, ic cuecuenoti, injx, injiollo, in jcujcanjo, in inemach, injc tlatlatianj, injc tlaiolltujanj, injc cujcapiquinj, inic cujcatoltecatl:

auh intla cana coanotzalo, cuicatlalhujlo, tlacaquitilo, molcaoaltilo, aocmo vmpa conjtta, aoc tle ipan quitta, in javiaca, in jnopelica in tloque, in nauaque, in xochitl in jetl, in atl, in tlaqualli: auh in xenilma-

1. The Real Palacio MS gives the correct day, ocatl.

2. Tezcatlipoca. Cf. Florentine Codex, Book VI, fol. 28b (ueopeuhqui, ueuipan).

K 787 Eighth Chapter, which telleth of the fifth sign, named One Reed. And it was not a good day, [nor] those with it. It was said that those born then, if they were born in the ninth house, named Nine Crocodile—they said and it was averred that one would be a slanderer and bearer of false witness. And it was thought that this sign was the day of Quetzalcoatl. Therefore the lords and noblemen then paid their devotions and made offerings.

Injc chicuaj capitulo: itechpa tlatoa, injc macujltetl machiotl, in jtoca ce acatl: auh amo qualli tonalli in jtech ca, qujlmach in aquijque vncan tlacatia, intla vncan tlacatia, injc chicunauhtetl calli, in jtoca chicunavi cipactli: qujtoaia qujlmach cenca techicoitoanj, ioan tetexpanvianj: auh qujlmach injn machiotl, iehoatl itonal in quetzalcoatl: ipampa in tlatoque, in pipilti, vncan mixtlaoaia ioan tlamanaia.

K 787 The day sign One Reed set in. With it were reckoned the evil days, those of an unfavorable time.
● 805 Following it came Two Ocelot, and Three Eagle, Four Vulture, Five Motion, and Six Flint Knife. These various days were said to be evil, of an unfavorable time.

Moquetza ce acatl tonalli, ic mocempoa in amo qualli, in amo ieccan izquijlhujtl, qujtoqujlitica yn jpan vme ocelutl, ioan ei quauhtli, navi cuecaquauhtli, macujlli olin, chiquacen tecpatl: in jzqujtetl in tonalli mjtoaia amo qualli, amo ieccan,

K 787 It was held that One Reed was the day sign, the time, of Quetzalcoatl. For Quetzalcoatl represented the wind, and was therefore thought a god. And when the day One Reed set in, the lords and noblemen paid him great honors. They made offerings at the priests' house in the [barrio] known as Mexico.[1] For there was kept the image of Quetzalcoatl. Before him they arranged and spread offerings. Everything they then prepared for him. They placed on him his various array and paper vestments. And before him they laid out flowers, tobacco, [vessels] full of incense, and drink and food. So they said that then they dedicated and assigned the day sign to Quetzalcoatl.

K 787 776 778 782

qujlmach itonal catca itonalpan in quetzalcoatl. Iehica in quetzalcoatl, i ehecatl ipan mjxeoaia, injc teveoenia: auh in jquac in moquetzaia ce acatl tonalli, cenca tlamavizztiliaia in tlatoque, in pipilti, tlamanaia in calmecac, yn jtocaiocan mexico, ca vncan pialoia in jxiptla Quetzalcoatl, ixpan qujtlatequjliaia, qujtlamâmacaia much iquac qujcencaviliaia, itech qujtlaliliaia, in jzqujtlamantli inechichioal, yn iamatlatquj, ioan ixpan qujtequjliaia suchitl, yetl, qujcopaltemjliaia atl, tlaqualli, qujmanjlia, iuh qujtoaia vncan qujtonaltia, qujtonalquechia in Quetzalcoatl.

K 787 And so they said it was an unfortunate time. He who was then born, whether nobleman or commoner, was of scant merit or deserts. Just as worthless as the wind was his life. It was swept away by the wind. As nothing were his lineage and origin. For in the time of Quetzalcoatl the wind [god] had he been born; for such was his nature. The same befell her if it was a woman.

Auh injc mjtoa: amo ieccan, in aquin ipan tlacatia pilli, anoço macceualli, atle cenca imâceoal, ilhujl catca, çan iuhquin ehecatl ipã povia inemiliz, ẽcatocoia, atle itlaanca, inelhoaio mochioaia: ipampa in jtonalpan quetzalcoatl, ẽcatl otlacat, ca njman iuhcan oquia, no iuhquj ipan muchioaia, intla çioatl,

1. The calmecac, house of priestly learning, is defined as "Lugar de linaje de la casa" y convento de soltéros" by Arturo Monzón in El calpulli en la organización social de los tenochcas (México: Instituto de Historia, 1949), p. 77. There were six, in the soltéros calpulli, probably pertaining to clans (as the term is used by Monzón): Yopico, Huitznáhuac, Tlacochcalco, Tlillancalco, Tecpancalco, and Mexico (pp. 47-52).

And one then born they hence regarded as fortunate and said that he would be rich. Our lord would reward him; through his grace he would buy slaves and ceremonially bathe them for sacrifice. Or many times he would have others sing and dance. And[7] when they gave him a name, they arranged it for Four Reed. Then they gave food to the young boys and had them perform the naming ceremony.[8] This was because that time was the time of the election rites, of the election of the rulers of the cities.

And also it was said that on One Dog the owners and breeders of dogs rubbed ochre on all the dogs' heads.[6]

And [the day signs] which followed it were Two Monkey, and Three Grass, Four Reed, Five Ocelot, Six Eagle, Seven Vulture, Eight Motion, Nine Flint Knife,[7] Ten Rain, Eleven Flower, Twelve Crocodile, Thirteen Wind. These were all the group of day signs.

All were as in their account, as mentioned. Each day went related as to the manner of gifts of those then born. This is already explained; in many places hath it been made quite apparent. And when [these had] ended, thereupon set in — suh in aquja ipan tlacatia, injc qujtonalittaia, qujtouia: mocujltonoz, ipal iez, qujtlamaujçalhujz in tosecujo; aço tecoaz, tealtiz, aço quexquipa cujcujcaz tẽçotix: uh inic qujtocamacaia, qujn no ipan qujmattiuja in naoacatl, iquac qujtlatlaqualiaia, qujxicvenquaqualiaia in pipiltotonti: ipampa in vncan motlatocapaca, in netlatocapacaian tlatoque, altepette.

No ioan mjtoa: in jpan in ce itzcujntli, in jxqujchtin chichime, qujnquatlaviaia in itzcujneque, in jtzcujnnemjtoque.

Auh in qujtoqujlia vme oçomatli, ioan ey malinalli, navi acatl, macujlli oçelotl, chiquacen quauhtli, chicome coxcaquauhtli, chicuei olin, chicunauj tecpac, matlactli qujaujtl, matlactlooc xuchitl, matlactlomome cipactli, matlactli vmei hecatl, in jxqujtetl in cencalpã tonalli, ça ie much iuhquj in jtoloca omoteneuh, injc cecemjlhujpã tlapoaltitiuh, in quenamj innenemac ipan tlacati, ie omomelauh mjieccan vel omonenextì: suh in jquac onquja in njman ic oalmoquetza.

---

4. Ehr: and is immortal.

5. See Chapter 9, n. 1.

6. Corresponding Spanish text: "Tambien tenjan una ceremonia: que en este signo, los que criauan los perrillos, que llaman dueño, los almagraban los cabezas."

7. Tezcatl: mirror is meant.

574 357 Poised and prepared were the tobacco servers, who provided tobacco; the flower servers, who provided flowers; the servers, those who changed the servings; the bearers. Then there was the chocolate drink maker, who prepared chocolate; who made it foam and froth; and the server of chocolate. Then there were the attendants, those who greeted the guests.

574 But among those who were only commoners, among the poor folk, among the workers of the fields and the water folk, it is already told, only miserably, in poverty and want, were receptions and invitations made. Not as much was offered one as was required and customary; as was possible or of one's capability. Many things were omitted or spoiled. Thus [the feast] was a failure and fruitless when someone received or realized nothing more. Perhaps only old, withered flowers could he find or come by; perhaps only leftover, bitter sauces, and stale tamales and tortillas were offered them.

And if one had been sitting to no purpose and in vain, [he was] only forgotten there for a long time, after a considerable time. And when he grew tired of waiting, he only continued vexing himself, anxious to go, no longer able to endure it, continuing to stir, unable to sit anywhere. His seat was benumbed, stiffened, tired of sitting. So he leaped up, sprang to his feet, and ran off discontented; because perhaps whatever was served had come to an end; the banqueting had increased and grown in numbers, and became crowded. And he simply entered various houses and visited different places, begging and asking alms at each one, etc.

X 787 ● 805 In this place is only mentioned Two Vulture, which followed and came in second place after One Eagle. All these, the companion day signs in the series, have been chronicled and mentioned here. Of this, Two Vulture, there is no more need to relate anything, just to please; to invent, arrange, and contemplate some brief words. For already hath been mentioned the manner of the separate accounts of all day signs in the second [position]. For indeed all are similar as they proceed and go together there. Similar are their accounts as they advance in order, as all the days accompany one another.

805 So here we have only added and mentioned as a group the different day signs, which went in their courses as a series, as each day went traveling, following along, and changing: Three Motion, Four Flint ic vncan ic ic hicac yn tepiomacac in teyiui, in tezuchimacac, in tezuchiui, tetlamacac, tetlamapiztili, tlanapaloque, nimã ic ichoui yn achitlaqui, ãquemaque, tlamijoqui, tlamimimj, yoan in tezuuac, nimã ieccan in tochiuque, in tetlilque.

auh in çan macoualpã, in çan jcnotlacapã, millacapã, ailacapan, ic omjio çan cocoxtli, icuaitica, icnotlacaiotica, in tetlacamacho, in tecuauetzalo, amo cenca omomoion yn juh monequj, in ic ivi, in ic vel ivi, in ic teueli, mjec tlamantli mjecaua, ytlacavi, ic tlatlacavi, tlitlatlacavi, yn aca aoc tle ipan aci, aoc tle ipan mopoua, aço ça zuchiçalli, tlacavilli yn ipanti, in quipantilia, yn ipã mopoa, yoan aço ça mollecaualli, molchichictli, tamalçolli, tlaxcalçolli, yn nemaquilio, auh intla ça oc nẽ tlalilo, tempanoctlalilo, vecauhtica, ieouica, çan vncã yiacoalo: auh yn ẽnopetlac, ça motecuetica, yiollo cholotica, injc iuz, aocmo ontlaicoa mocaqtinemj, achcan vel motlalia, itzintepiztquãquauhtli, quãquauhtitica, tzintepiztquãquauhtitica, ic cholotoua, moquetzteua, motlauellaloa, ypampa aço otlatlacan, acaçoc tlẽ temacoxi, omiquiz, omacat, omoquoquex in tlaomomotzalli, yoan in çan cacalacqui, tetlatlapalo, motlatlaiovi, motlatlaiotinj. etc.

Nican ça omotecneua in vme concaquauhtli, in contoquilia, in comonciaotia oc quauhtli, yn juquijch in, ic omotlatlatollotl nican omotecneuh, ynic concalpan tlavica tonalli, yn ichoui y, 2. cuacquauhtli, aocmo monequj yn itla ic motlatollotiz, in ça omoqualitzac, ommoveliztac, ommopipiqui, ommoxcellaliz, itlatlatolotozti, ca ic omotecneuh in quemanj intlãtlatollo inquijch ome tonalli, ca çan ic zmuch iuhqui, çan much vmpa itztivi, çan much vmpa tlavica, çan ic otlatl yn imiuiuca; yn juh temquativi, ynic tlavica cocemilhujtl, ypampa in çã njcã, tiquimomopichoa, tiquimomecneua yn inquincac in tonalti, in njcã concalpan tlatlatocti, ynic cocemilhujtl motecuiui, motequilitivi, mopatlacvi, in ichoui Ey olin, 4. mquatl, 5. quj-

Knife, Five Rain, Six Flower, Seven Crocodile, Eight Wind, Nine House, Ten Lizard, Eleven Serpent, Twelve Death, and Thirteen Deer.* When the day sign ended, then—iuvitl, 6. ouchitl, 7. cipactli, 8. hecatl, 9. calli, 10. cuetzpalli, 11. coatl, 12. miquiztli, 13. mazatl. 11. 12. 13. yn ōtlan yn tonalli, ojma. 805

6. The figures "11. 12. 13." are part of an [illegible] 1-13 series in Aztec.

[p. 126 is blank]

x 787
● 805

1	8	2	9	3	10	4	11	5	12	6	13	7
2	9	3	10	4	11	5	12	6	13	7	1	8
3	10	4	11	5	12	6	13	7	1	8	2	9
4	11	5	12	6	13	7	1	8	2	9	3	10
5	12	6	13	7	1	8	2	9	3	10	4	11
6	13	7	1	8	2	9	3	10	4	11	5	12
7	1	8	2	9	3	10	4	11	5	12	6	13
8	2	9	3	10	4	11	5	12	6	13	7	1
9	3	10	4	11	5	12	6	13	7	1	8	2
10	4	11	5	12	6	13	7	1	8	2	9	3
11	5	12	6	13	7	1	8	2	9	3	10	4
12	6	13	7	1	8	2	9	3	10	4	11	5
13	7	1	8	2	9	3	10	4	11	5	12	6
1	8	2	9	3	10	4	11	5	12	6	13	7
2	9	3	10	4	11	5	12	6	13	7	1	8
3	10	4	11	5	12	6	13	7	1	8	2	9
4	11	5	12	6	13	7	1	8	2	9	3	10
5	12	6	13	7	1	8	2	9	3	10	4	11
6	13	7	1	8	2	9	3	10	4	11	5	12
7	1	8	2	9	3	10	4	11	5	12	6	13

— After Paso y Troncoso

102. Place chart for reckoning the day signs count (Appendix).

[p. 126 8]

17: Sahagun M-5 (1529-1590) 1957 NU7 Aztec NU7

X787
.805

—After Paso y Troncoso

[illegible]. First half of second chart for reckoning the day sign count (Appendix).

[p. 126 r]

x 787
●805

— After Paso y Troncoso

194. Second half of second sheet for reckoning the day sign count (Appendix).

[p. 126 s]

APPENDIX OF THE FOURTH BOOK, IN THE SPANISH VERNACULAR, WHICH IS JUSTIFICATION IN DEFENSE OF THE TRUTH CONTAINED HEREIN.

805 Because some have been deceived, and the delusion even today endureth, concerning certain [systems of] counting which these natives used in days of old, I consider it helpful to place here an explanation of three kinds of counting [systems] which they used and in some places still use.

The first count is the division of the year into its months. The fact is that they divided the year into eighteen parts, and to each part they gave twenty days. These may be called months. Thus their year had eighteen months, which comprised three hundred and sixty days. The five left over to make a full year are not counted: rather, they called them idle [177] and unlucky days, because to no god were they dedicated. The purpose for which they established this division was that they dedicated each month or [period of] twenty days to a god, and during each they held celebrations and made sacrifices; except that in two of the months they celebrated the feasts of four gods, [in each] assigning ten days to one and another ten to the other. And so, although there were eighteen months, the feasts celebrated in them were twenty. This count is called a calendar in which all the days of the year are dedicated to the gods except the five which, as is told, they considered idle and of evil fortune. This count, which is the calendar these natives had had from time immemorial, has nothing to do with the other two counts which will now be described.

805 212 The second count which these natives used is called the year-count, because [by it] they counted a certain number of years in the following way. They had four characters placed in four positions with respect to a circle. One of these characters they called Ce acatl, meaning One Reed. This character was represented as a green reed, and, with reference to the circle, was to the east. The second character they called Ce tecpatl, meaning One Flint Knife. [It was] made in the manner of a lance head, half of it blood-stained. This was placed to the north with

APENDIZ DEL QUARTO LIBRO EN ROMĀCE Y ES VNA APPOLOGIA EN DEFENSION DA LA VERDAD QUE EN EL SE CONTIENE.

Porque algunos se an engañado, y aun todavia dura el engaño, cerca de ciertas cuentas, que estos naturales vsauan antiguamente: tengo por cosa provechosa poner aquj, la declaracion de tres maneras de cuentas, que vsauan, y avn en algunas partes las vsan.

Es la primera cuenta, la division del año por sus meses. Es el caso que ellos repartian el año, en deziocho partes, y a cada parte, le dauan veinte dias; estos se pueden llamar meses: de manera, que su año tenja deziocho meses: los quales contienen trezientos y setenta [sic] dias, y los cinco que sobran, para ser año cumplido, no entran en cuenta, sino llamauanlos dias baldios, y aziagos, porque a njngun dios eran dedicados. El fin a que enderecauan [sic] esta diujsion es, que cada mes o cada veinte dias, los dedicauan a un dios, y en ellos le hazian fiestas, y sacrificios, excepto que en dos meses hazian fiesta a quatro dioses, dedicando diez dias a al vno, y otros diez al otro. Y assi con ser los meses deziocho, las fiestas que celebrauan en ellos eran veinte. Esta cuenta, se llama calendario, donde todos los dias del año, se dedican a los dioses, excepto los cinco que como esta dicho los tenjan baldios y aziagos. Esta cuenta, que es el calendario que estos naturales tenjan de tiempo sin memoria, no tiene que hazer, con las otras dos cuentas, que luego se dirā.

La segunda cuenta que estos naturales vsauan, se llama cuenta de los años, porque contauan cierto numero de años, por la forma que se sigue: tenjan quatro caracteres, puestos en quatro partes en respecto de vn circulo redondo. A al vno destos caracteres llamauā, Ce acatl, que quiere dezir, vna caña: este caracter, era como vna caña verde pintada, y en respecto del circulo, estaua hazia al oriente. Al segundo caracter, llamauan ce tecpatl, que quiere dezir vn pedernal: hecho a manera de hierro de lança tiñido la mjtad del con sangre: este estaua puesto 805 212 reference to the circle. The third character was the representation of a house, which they call Ce calli [One House]. It is placed to the west with reference to the circle. The fourth character is the likeness of a rabbit, which they call Ce tochtli [One Rabbit]; it is placed to the south with reference to the circle. By means of these characters they counted fifty-two years, assigning thirteen years to each character. And they counted in this manner, One Reed, Two Flint Knife, Three House, Four Rabbit, and so on, so describing circles by means of these characters, until each one attained thirteen years. These, altogether, 805 make up four times thirteen and equal fifty-two 796 years. The purpose or intention of this count is to renew, every fifty-two years, the covenant, contract, 372 or vow, to serve the idols. Because at the end of the fifty-two-year [cycle] they observed a very solemn x787 feast and made new fire, and extinguished all the old [fires]. And all the provinces of this New Spain took of this new fire. Then they renewed all the statues of the idols and all of their adornment, as well as the intention of serving them for the next fifty-two years. And also they had a prophecy or oracle of the devil that at [the end of] one of these periods the world would come to an end.

805 The third count which these natives used was the 212 art of divination of the fortune or luck which those born would have, whether men or women. It was x787 done in this way. They had twenty characters. The first they named Crocodile, the second Wind, the third House, the fourth Lizard, the fifth Serpent, etc., up to twenty, as is represented in the chart at the end of this Appendix.* They said that each of these characters reigned thirteen days, so that all together are two hundred and [sixty] days. Some say that those thirteen-day [periods] are weeks of the month, but this is not so. Rather they are the number of days in which the sign or character [443] reigneth. The weeks of the month are of five days, and so these are, in each month, four weeks; and the tianquistli, or markets, are fixed according to this number of days, or used to be so fixed. So that by periods of five days they established the markets or fairs. And so they had no weeks [of seven days], but rather periods of five days. And nowadays, in many places, they set the markets and fairs according to our seven-day weeks. In this illicit soothsaying hazia la parte del septentrion en respecto del circulo. El tercero caracter era vna pintada que ellos llamaban ce calli, esta puesta hazia la parte del occidente, en respecto del circulo. El quarto caracter es la semejança de vn conejo que ellos llamaban ce tochtli: esta puesto hazia la parte del medio dia, en respecto del circulo: contauan por estos caracteres cincuenta y dos años, dando a cada vno de los caracteres treze años, y contauan desta manera, ce acatl, vme tecpatl, ei calli, navi tochtli, y assi dando buelta, por estos caracteres, hasta que en cada vno se cumpliessen treze años, los quales todos juntos, son quatro vezes treze que hazen cincuenta y dos años: el fin o intencion desta cuenta es, renouar cada cincuenta y dos años, el pacto, o concierto, o juramento de servir a los idolos. Porque en el fin de los cincuenta y dos años, hazian vna muy solemne fiesta, y sacauan fuego nuevo, y apagauan todo lo viejo y tomauan todas las prouincias desta nueua españa fuego nuevo; entonce renouauan todas las estatuas de los idolos y todas sus alhajas, y el proposito de servirlos otros cincuenta i dos años. Y tambien tenjan profecia o oraculo del demonjo, que en vno destos periodos se aija de acabar el mundo.

La tercera cuenta que estos naturales vsauan, era el arte para adiuinar la fortuna o ventura, que tendrian los que nacian hombres y mugeres. Era desta manera que tenjan vinte caracteres: al primero llamauan cipactli, el segundo hecatl, el tercero calli, el quarto cuetzpali, el quinto coatl. &c. hasta vinte como esta pintado en la figura, que esta al fin deste apêdix: decian que cada vno destos caracteres, reinaua ,treze dias, que todos juntos son dozientos y sesenta [sic] dias. Algunos dicen que estos treze dias son semanas del mes y no es assi sino numero de dias en que reina el signo o caracter: las semanas de los meses son cinco dias y assi ay en cada mes quatro semanas y los tianquez, o mercados por este numero de dias se señalla, [sic] o solian señallarse, que de cinco en cinco dias hechauã los mercados, o ferias, y assi no tenjan semana, sino quinzena, y agora en muchas partes hechan los mercados y ferias por nuestra semana de siete en siete dias. En esta cuenta adiuinatoria i no licita entrepusieron los canagueros de la cuenta de los años; conviene a saber, aquellos quatro caracteres de que arriba se hizo memoria, que es cada, count are interspersed the characters of the year-count; that is, those four characters mentioned above, which are Reed, Flint Knife, House, and Rabbit, by which they counted the hebdomad of their years, which is fifty-two.

* See Plates 102-104.

This very pernicious count, superstitious, and full of idolatry, as it is to be seen in this Fourth Book, some praise highly, saying that it was very ingenious and contained no blemish. This they said because they did not understand for what purpose this count, which is very evil and idolatrous, was established. Little did they appreciate the multitude of superstitions, feasts, and idolatrous sacrifices involved in it. And they called this count the calendar of the Indians, not understanding that this count doth not extend through all of the year; because it hath only two hundred and sixty days in its round, and then cometh back to its beginning. And so it cannot be and never was a calendar; for the calendar, as hath been said, is represented in the opening of the Second Book, and containeth all the days of the year, and [all] the feasts of the year. And this they who say that this soothsaying art is a calendar, do not know. And surely it was great carelessness and culpable ignorance to praise by word of mouth and in writing something so evil and full of idolatry.

The zeal for truth and for the Catholic Faith compels me to place here the very words of a treatise which a member of one of the religious Orders wrote in praise of this art of soothsaying, declaring that it is a calendar; so that wherever one may see it, he may know that it is something very pernicious to our holy Catholic Faith; and it may be destroyed and burned.

The following is the introduction of the above-mentioned treatise.

Introduction and explanation, newly made, of the calendar of the Indians of Anahuac, that is, of New Spain.

By means of the wheels reproduced above, the Indians count their days, weeks, months, years, olympiads, five-year periods, indictions, and hebdomads, starting their year, like ours, with the beginning of January. In [their system] are found the means of reckoning time which all nations have had. And as is seen, the Indians who established and knew it well certainly showed themselves to be natural philosophers. They were at fault only as to the leap year.

pedernal, casa, conejo, por donde contauan la hebdomada de sus años, que son cincuenta y dos.

805 ● 212 787

Esta cuenta muy perjudicial, y muy supersticiosa, y muy llena de idolatria, como parece en este libro quarto, algunos la alaban mucho: diziendo, que era muy ingeniosa y que ninguna macula tenia, esto dizerõ por no entender a que fin se endereza, esta cuenta el qual es muy malo ydolatrico de poco entendieron la muchedumbre de supersticiones y fiestas y sacrificios idolatricos, que en ella se contienen, y llamaron a esta cuenta, el calendario de los indios: no entendiendo que esta cuenta no alcança a todo el año, porque no tiene mas doscientos y sesenta dias de circulo, y luego torna a su principio, y assi no poede ser calendario y nj nunca lo fue, porque el calendario, como esta dicho, y esta pintado, en el principio del segundo libro, contiene todos los dias del año, y las fiestas del año: y esto ignoraron los que dizen que esta arte adiujnatoria es calendario: y cierto fue grande inadvertencia, y culpable ignorancia loar por palabra, y por escrito vna cosa tan mala y tan llena de idolatria.

805 787

El zelo de la verdad, y de la fe catholica, me compele a poner aquj, las mismas palabras de vn tratado, que vn religioso escriujo en loor desta arte adiujnatoria; diziendo que es calendario, para que dondequjera que alguno le viere, sepa que es cosa muy perjudicial, a nuestra sancta fe catholica, y sea destruydo, y quemado.

805 114

Siguese la introducion del tractado sobredicho.

Introducion, i declaracion nuevamente hecha, que es el calendario de los indios de Anahuac, esto es de la nueva españa.

Por las ruedas aquj sumpuestas, cuentan los indios sus dias, semanas, meses, años, olimpiadas lustros indiciones, y hebdomadas: començando su año, con el nuestro desde el principio de henero: en la qual se hallan las maneras de contar los tiempos que tuujeron todas las naciones, y segun parece los indios que la compusieron, y sabian bien, ciertamente se mostraron philosophos naturales, solamente faltaron en el bizesto: pero tambien paso el gran philosopho

805
114

But this was the case also as to the great philosopher Aristotle and his teacher Plato, and many other wise men who did not attain [knowledge of] it. And it should be known that in this calendar there is nothing idolatrous; and this is praiseworthy for many reasons, but to mention one will be enough. And it is that in this land it was not very many years ago that idolatry began. And this calendar is exceedingly ancient, and if the names of the days, weeks, and years, and their representations, are of animals and beasts, and other creatures, it is nothing to wonder at; for if we look at ours, they also are of planets and of gods which the pagans had. Even if many rites, falsehoods, and ancient sacrifices are written of here [in connection with] a thing so good, of such excellence and truth as these natives possessed, there is no reason to condemn it. For we know that all good and truth, no matter who expresseth it, is of the Holy Ghost.

Refutation of the above[2]

As to what he first saith, that by means of this count the Indians reckoned [their] weeks, months, and years: this is most false. For this count containeth only two hundred and sixty days, and lacketh one hundred and five days to be the count of an entire year. Neither did they reckon their months by this count, because their months are eighteen in a year, and each one hath twenty days, which maketh three hundred and sixty days. This count doth not reach that number. Neither, do they reckon their weeks by this count; for what they say, that they had thirteen days in a week, is false, because thus there would be a week of thirteen days and another week [which] would go into the next month with three days,[3] and so no month would have two entire weeks. But more important, their weeks were of five days, which were better called five-day periods than weeks, and there are in each month four of these five-day periods.

What he saith of olympiads, five-year periods, indictions, and the like, is false and pure invention.

What he saith, that the year started in January, like ours, is most incorrect; for what they call a year by this count is of only two hundred and sixty days, Aristoteles, y su maestro platon, y otros muchos sabios que no lo alcançaron. Y es de saber, que en este calendario, no ay cosa de idolatria: y esto se puede de alabar, por muchas razones, pero bastara decir vna: y es que en esta tierra no ha muy muchos años, que començaron las idolatrias: y este calendario es antiquissimo y si los nombres de los dias, semanas, y años, y sus figuras, son de animales, y de bestias, y de otras criaturas; no se deuen marauillar, pues si mirarmos los nuestros: tambien son de planetas, y de dioses que los gentiles tuuieron: y pues que aqui se escriuen muchos ritos, ficciones, y antiguos sacrificios, vna cosa tan buena, y de tanto primor, y verdadera que estos naturales tuuieron: no es razon de reprobarla: pues sabemos que todo bien y verdad, quienquiera que la diga, es del espiritu santo.

Confutacion de lo arriba dicho.

En lo primero que dize, que por esta cuenta[1] los indios contauan sus [sic] semanas, meses, y años, es falsissimo: porque esta cuenta no contiene mas doscientos y sesenta dias, y faltale ciento y cinco dias, para ser cuenta de vn año entiero; nj tampoco contauan sus meses por esta cuenta, porque sus meses son dezioche en vn año, y cada vno tiene veinte dias que son trezientos y sesenta dias; al qual numero, no llega esta cuenta; nj tampoco contauan, por esta cuenta sus semanas, porque aquello que dizen, que tenjan treze dias por semana es falso, porque desta manera seria vna semana de treze dias, y otra semana entrellia con tres dias en el mes siguiente, y assi cada mes no tendria dos semanas enteras: mayormente, que sus semanas eran de cinco dias las quales mejor se llamaran quintanas, que no semanas, y ay en cada mes quatro destas quintanas.

Lo que dize de Olimpiadas, y bestros, y indictiones o la mesma razon es falso, y mera ficcion.

Lo que dize, que el año, començaua [sic] en Enero, como el nuestro, es falsissimo: porque lo que llamauan vn año por esta cuenta no son mas doscientos y sesenta

1. On the equivalency between Sahagún and Mendieta regarding the nature of the calendar, see L. Nicolau d'Olwer: Fray Toribio de Benavente (Motolinía): Relaciones de la Nueva España (México: Ediciones de la Universidad Nacional Autónoma, 1956), pp. LV-LVI.

2. Sahagún (Dibble ed.), IV, Ap. §; See commentary: Barrientos, op. cit., Vol. I, p. 613, defense controller, as used in Cuba, by saying "Olmos . . . de cualquier monumento del día cubo."

and of necessity it would have to end one hundred and five days before our year. And so it could not start with our year, except with some, and very rarely.

As to what he saith, that the Indians [who] devised this count showed themselves to be natural philosophers: this is most false. For they do not carry out this count according to any natural order; for it was an invention of the devil and an act of sorcerying.

As to what he saith, that they lacked the leap year, it is wrong; because in the count which may be called a true calendar they count three hundred and sixty-five days, and once every four years they counted three hundred and sixty-six days with a feast which for this reason they observed every four years.

As to what he saith, that in this calendar there is no idolatry, it is a very great lie. For it is no calendar but a sorcerying device in which are contained a great deal of idolatry, many superstitions, and many invocations to the demons, tacitly and openly, as is shown in all of this preceding Fourth Book. So that the treatise abovementioned, which that member of a religious Order wrote, containeth no truth but rather very pernicious error and falsehood.

The treatise by that member of a religious Order proceedeth.

The Indians who well understood the secrets of these wheels and calendar showed and explained them to but few, because through their knowledge they gained their livelihood and were held in esteem and considered wise and intelligent. Nevertheless, almost all adult Indians knew and were informed about the year, as to both the number and house in which they were. But of the names of the days and weeks, and many other secrets and counts which they possessed, only these masters who worked with them attained knowledge.

Now, in order to understand the count which these natives had, in order to know how they kept a time-count by means of the wheels and figures have recorded, rules are given. These are written below.

Refutation of the above.

It is already said that the calendar is different from this count and hath nothing in common with it. The calendar doeth with the months of the whole year, the days of the whole year, the weeks of the dias, y de necesidad se avia de acabar ciento y cinco dias, antes de nuestro año: y assi no podia començar con el nuestro año, si no algunas y muy raro:

en lo que dize que los indios se compusiero desta cuenta, se mostraron philosophos naturales, es falsissimo: porque esta cuenta, no la llevan por ninguna orden natural: porque fue invencion del demonio, y arte de adivinacion, en lo que dize que faltaron en el bisesto es falso, porque en la cuenta que se llama, calendario verdadero, cuentan trezientos y sesenta y cinco dias, y cada quatro años, contavan trezientos, y sesenta y seis dias en fiesta, que para esto haxian de quatro en quatro años.

En lo que dize que en este calendario no ay cosa de idolatria, es falsissima mãtira: porque no es calendario, sino arte adivinatoria, donde se contienen, muchas cosas de idolatria, y muchas supersticiones, y muchas invocaciones de los demonios, tacita, y expressamente, como parece en todo este quarto libro precedente: de manera que ninguna verdad contiene aquel tratado arriba puesto: que aquel religioso escrivio, mas antes cõtiene falsedad y mentira muy perniciosa.

Siguese adelante en el tratado de aquel religioso.

Los indios, que bien entendian los secretos destas ruedas, y calendario, no los enseñavan, ni descubrian, sino a muy pocos, porque por ello ganavan de comer, y eran estimados, y tenidos por hombres sabios, y entendidos, empero sabian casi todos los indios adultos y tenjan noticia del año, assi del numero como de la casa en que andavan: mas de los nombres de los dias, y semanas, y otros muchos secretos, y cuentas que tenjan: solos aquellos maestros compotistas, lo alcançavan de saber.

Agora para entender la cuenta, que estos naturales tenjan, y para saber, como contavan los tiempos: por las ruedas, y figuras aqui escritas: se ponen reglas, que son las infra escritas.

Confutacion de lo arriba dicho.

Ya esta dicho, que el calendario es distincto desta cuenta, y no tiene nada que ver con ella. Y el calendario trata de los meses de todo el año, y de los dias de todo el año, y de las semanas de todo el año, y de las whole year, and the fixed feasts of the whole year. All the priests and servants of the idols knew it, as well as many of the populace, because it is a simple matter which toucheth all. But the count of the soothsaying art, which he wrongly calleth a calendar, is a particular kind of count, because its purpose was established to foretell circumstances and events to befall those born under each sign or character. This count only the soothsayers and those who had the skill to learn it, knew; because it containeth many difficulties and obscurities. Those who knew this count they called tonalpouhque; they esteemed and honored them greatly. They considered them to be prophets and knowers of future things. Hence they depended upon them for many things, as in days of old the sons of Israel depended upon the prophets.

805 114

805 114

This [author] saith that the months are twenty in a year. This is not true, for there are only eighteen. Likewise he saith that the weeks are of thirteen days, and this is not true, for they are of only five days, so that there are four weeks or rather five-day periods in a month. The thirteen days which he wrongly calleth a week are only the number of days in which each of the twenty characters in this soothsaying art reigned, as is made clear in the preceding Fourth Book, which dealeth with this soothsaying art.

The chart and [explanation of] the manner of counting used by the soothsayers for this art, now follow.

To the reader.

805 This chart before the friendly reader is the count of the characters or signs with which we have dealt in this Fourth Book. It proceedeth in this order. First are placed twenty characters, and by them their names; and after them are placed the days over which they reign, in numerical notation; and it beginneth one, two, three, etc. The character by or facing the number one reigneth over those thirteen days [beginning with it], and the counting is started from above to below. Reaching thirteen, one then returneth to the number one, and the character before which that number one standeth, reigneth during the thirteen following days. And so with all the remaining numbers and characters. So each one of the characters cometh to reign for thirteen days, and the number of all of these days is two hundred and sixty. From there it returneth again to the beginning.

3. See Plate 142.

142

h [See p. 126a, cat. 116. — Analyst]

fiestas fixas de todo el año: sabianle todos los sacrapas, y todos los mijojeros de los idolos, y mucha de la otra gente popular, porque es cosa facil, y toca a todos. Empero la cuenta de la arte adiujnatoria, a la qual falsamente llama calendario, es cuenta por si, porque su fin, se enderesa a adiujnar las condiciones, y sucesos de los que nacen en cada signo, o caracter; esta cuenta sabianla solamẽte los adiujnos, y los que tenian abilidad, para deprenderla porque contiene muchas dificultades, y obscuridades: y a estos que sabiã esta cuenta, llamauanlos Tonalpouhque y tenjanlos en mucho y honrauanlos mucho: tenjanlos como prophetas, y sabidores de las cosas futuras, y assi acudian a ellos, en muchas cosas, como antiguamente los hijos de Israel, acudian a los prophetas, dize este; que los meses, son viente en vn año, y no es verdad, porque no son mas de deziocho: dize assimjsmo que las semanas, son de treze dias, y no es verdad: porque no son mas de a cinco dias, y assi son quatro semanas o por mejor dezir quijntanas en vn mes: los treze dias, a que falsamente llama semana, no son, sino el numero de dias, que reynaua cada vno de los veinte caracteres, desta arte adiujnatoria, como esta claro, en el quarto libro precedente, que tracta desta arte adiujnatoria.

Siguese la tabla y manera de contar que tenjan los adiujnos en esta arte.

Al lector.

Esta tabla, que esta frontera Amigo lector, es la cuenta de los caracteres, o signos de que en este quarto libro auemos tractado, la qual procede por esta orden, que primeramente se ponen viente caracteres, y junto a ellos sus nombres, y despues dellos se ponen los dias, en que reinan por cifras del alguarismo: y comjença, vno, dos, tres, &c. El caracter donde esta jucto el vno o frontero del, es el que reina aquellos treze dias, y comjençase a contar desde arriba hazia abaxo: y llegando a treze luego buelue a vno, y el caracter en frente de quien esta aquel vno, es el que reina los treze dias que se siguen: y assi de todos los demas numeros y caracteres. De manera, que cada vn caracter viene a reinar treze dias, y el numero de todos estos dias son dozientos y sesenta, y de alli buelue otra vez al principio.

Also at the opening of this count is placed the manner of counting the years, because these two counts are linked or matched.

How followeth the reckoning of all the time-counts which these natives had.

The longest time-count which they reckoned was up to one hundred and four years. And this count they called a century.

Half of this count, fifty-two years, they called a bundle of years. This period of years they had reckoned from times past; it is not known when it began. But they considered it well established and a matter of belief that the world would come to an end at the conclusion of one of these bundles of years. They had a prophecy or oracle that at that time the movement of the heavens would cease, and they took as a sign [of this] the movement of the Pleiades. On the night of this feast, which they called Toxiuuholpilia [the Binding of the Years], it so befell that the Pleiades were at the zenith at midnight, with respect to the heavens in Mexico. On this night they made new fire, and before they made it, they extinguished all the fires in all the provinces, towns, and houses in all of this New Spain. And they went in a great and solemn procession. All of the priests and servants of the temple departed from here, the Temple of Mexico, during the first quarter of the night, and went to the summit of that mountain near Itzapalapan which they call Uixachtecatl. They reached the summit at midnight, or almost, where stood a great pyramid built for that ceremony. Having reached there, they looked at the Pleiades to see if they were at the zenith, and if they were not, they waited until they were. And when they saw that now they passed the zenith, they knew that the movement of the heavens had not ceased and that the end of the world was not then, but that they would have another fifty-two years, assured that the world would not come to an end.

At this hour a great multitude of people was on the mountains surrounding this province of Mexico — Texcoco, Xochimilco, and Quauhtitlan — waiting to see the new fire, which was a signal that the world would continue. And when the priests made the fire, with great ceremony, upon the pyramid on that mountain, then it was seen from all the surrounding

También en el principio desta cuenta se pone la manera de contar de los años, porque estas dos cuentas andi vinculadas o pareadas. 805

La cuenta de todos los tiempos, que tenjan estos naturales, en la que se sigue.

La mayor cuenta de tiempo, que contauan era hasta ciento y quatro años, y a esta cuenta llamauan vn siglo, a la mitad desta cuenta, que son cincuenta y dos años llamauan vna gavilla de años, este tiempo de años, trayanla ab antiquo contados, no se sabe quando començo: pero tenjan por muy sacrigiado, y como de fe, que el mundo se auja de acabar en el fin de vna destas gabillas de años: y tenjan prenostico o oraculo, que entonce avia de cesar el mouimjento de los cielos, y tomauan por señal al mouimjento de las cabrillas: la noche desta fiesta, que ellos llamauan Toxiuuholpilia: de tal manera caya que las cabrillas, estauan en medio del cielo: a la media noche, en respecto deste orizonte mexicano. En esta noche sacauan fuego nuevo, y primero que los sacasen, apagauan todo el fuego, en todas las prouincias, pueblos, y casas de toda esta nueva españa: y iban con gran procession, y solemnidad. Todos los sacrapas, y mjnjstros del templo: partian daquj del templo de mexico, a prima noche: y iban hasta la cumbre de aquel cerro, que esta cabe Itzapalapan: que ellos llamauan Vixachtecatl, y llegauan a la cumbre a la media noche, o casi, donde estaua vn solemne cu, edificado para aquella ceremonja. Llegados alli, mjrauan a las cabrillas; si estauan en el medio, y si no estauan esperauan hasta que llegasen. Y quando vian, que ya passauan del medio, entendian que el mouimjento del cielo no cessaua, y que no era alli el fin del mundo, sino que avian de tener otros cincuenta y dos años, seguros, que no se acabaria el mundo. 805 787x 821 796 372

En esta hora estauan en los cerros circunstantes que cercan a toda esta prouincia de mexico, Texcuco, y Suchimjlco y quauhtitlan, gran cantidad de gente, esperando a ver el fuego nuevo; que era señal, que el mundo iba adelante, y como sacauan el fuego, los sacrapas, con gran ceremonja, en el cu de aquel cerro: luego se parecia, en todo lo circunstante de los cerros: 796 372

796 mountains. Those who were there watching then raised a cry which rose to the heavens with joy that 372 the world was not ending and that they had another fifty-two years assured.

The last ceremony of new fire which they held was in the year 1507. They held it with full solemnity, because the Spaniards had not come to this land. In the year 1559 ended the next bundle of years, which they call Toximmolpilia. On this occasion they held no public ceremony, because the Spaniards and members of the religious Orders were now in this land. So that this year, 1576, is the fifteenth of the current bundle of years.

796 When they made the new fire and held this cere-
778 mony, they renewed their covenant with the devil to serve him, and they renovated all the statues of the devil which they had in his house, and all the ornaments for his service, and those of their houses. And they rejoiced greatly to know that now they held the world to be secure and that it would not come to an end for fifty-two years. It is clear that this device of counting years was an invention of the devil to make them renew the covenant which they made with him every fifty-two years—[the devil] terrifying them with [the threat of] the end of the world and making them think that he lengthened the time and favored them thereby, letting the world move on.

796 Besides this they held, every eight years, a fast on 785 bread and water, for eight days; and at its conclusion they celebrated a feast in which they held a solemn dance by various personages, in which they said that they revealed what would come to pass or what fortune they merited; and they called it Atamalqualiztli.

796 They observed another feast every four years, in 304 honor of the fire [god], during which they pierced the ears of all the boys and girls; and they called it
● 805 Pillauanaliztli. And during this feast it is likely, and there are conjectures, that they held their leapyear, reckoning six [days] of Nemontemi.

805 The remaining time-count is of the year, which 796 they divided into eighteen months, to each of which they assigned twenty days. And each of these 443 months was dedicated to one god, or to two, and during it they held their feast. Each of these months they divided into five-day periods, and held the fairs on the last day of these five in one town, and five days later in another, and another five days later in y los que estauan alli a la tuya, leuantauan luego vn alarido que le ponjan en el cielo de alegria que el mundo no se acabaua y que tenjan otros cincuenta y dos años por ciertos.

La vltima solemnjdad, que hizieron deste fuego nueuo: fue el año de mill y quinjentos, y siete: hizieronle, con toda solemnjdad, porque no avian venjdo los españoles, a esta tierra: el año de mill y quinjentos y cincuenta y nueue, se acabo la otra gabilla de años: que ellos llaman Toximmolpilia. En esta, no hizieron solemnjdad publica: porque ya los españoles, y religiosos estauan en esta tierra. De manera que este año de mill y quinjentos y setenta y seis, anda en quinze años, de la gabilla de años que corre.

Quando seauan fuego nueuo, y hazian esta solemnjdad, renouauan el pacto que tenjan con el demonjo de servjrle: y renouauan todas las estatuas del demonjo, que en su casa tenjan, y todas las alhajas de su serujcio, y las de sus casas: y hazian grandes alegrias, por saber, que ya tenjan el mundo seguro, que no se acabaria por cincuenta y dos años. Claramente consta, que este artificio de contar, fue invencion del diablo, para hazerlos renouar el pacto que con el tenjan de cincuenta, en cincuenta y dos años: y amedrêtandolos con la fin del mundo, y haziendolos entender, que el alargaua el tiempo y les hazian merced del passando el mundo adelãte.

Demas desta cuenta tenjan que de ocho en ocho años, hazian vn ayuno de pan y agua, por espacio de ocho dias, y hazian al cabo, vna fiesta donde hazian solemne areito de diuersos personajes; donde dezian, que descubrian ventura o que la merecian, y llamauanla Atamalcualiztli.

Otra fiesta hazian, de quatro en quatro años, a honrra del fuego, donde agujeraban las orejas a todos los njños, y njñas, y la llamauan pillauanaliztli. Y en esta fiesta es verisimjle, y ay conjecturas que hazia su biesexto, contando seis de nemontemj.

La otra cuenta del tiempo, es de vn año: el qual repartian en dezioche meses, y a cada mes le daban veinte dias: y cada vno destos meses, era dedicado a vno, o a dos dioses: y hazian en el sus fiestas, cada vno destos meses, le repartian de cinco in cinco dias, y hazian las ferias el vltimo dia, destos cinco, en vn pueblo: y desde a cinco dias en otro, y desde a otros cinco dias en otro. De manera que el quarto quin-

[still] another [town]: So that the fourth period of five days was the feast of the god who was honored in the following month. The five days in addition to the three hundred and sixty of the complete year they regarded as idle and unlucky, and so did not take account of them for any purpose. But they kept track of all the days and all the months of the year, and of all the five-day periods of the year, which are four in each month.

These natives had another count which followeth neither the year-count, nor the months, nor the five-day periods, which may wrongly be called weeks. This count hath twenty characters, as is represented in the chart behind this page.[4] To each one of these characters they assigned thirteen days, during which one of these characters reigned. Thus each one reigned thirteen days, and the round which these characters with their days made, is of two hundred and sixty days. This round includeth one hundred and five days less than a year. The count was used to foretell the circumstances and events of life which those born [on given day signs] would have. It is a difficult count, full of errors, and with no foundation of natural astrology. For the art of judiciary astrology, common among us, is founded upon natural astrology, which is in the signs and planets of the heavens and in their courses and aspects. But this art of soothsaying followeth, or is founded upon, some characters and numbers in which no natural foundation existeth, but [are] only an artifice made by the devil himself. Nor is it possible that any man could have made or invented this art. For it hath no foundation in any science nor in any natural order. Rather it appeareth to be a thing of fraud and deceit than rational or ingenious. I say it was fraud and deceit in order to dazzle and derange people of low capacity and little understanding. Notwithstanding, this art of soothsaying, or rather, diabolical fraud or deceit, was highly regarded; and those who knew and practised it were also greatly honored and esteemed. For they told of things to come, and were regarded as truthful by the populace, although they spoke no truth except by accident and mistake. This art followeth neither years, nor months, nor weeks, nor five-year periods nor olympiads, as some, in their dreams, have said and erroneously affirmed.

4. See Plates 100 and 101.

tanario, era la fiesta del dios que se celebraua en el mes que se seguia: los cinco dias que son mas de los trezientos y sesenta de todo el año, tenjanlos por valdios, y hazinagos: y ansi no hazian cuenta dellos para njnguna cosa. Pero cuenta tenjan con todos los dias del año, y con todos los meses del año, y con todas las quintanas del año, que son quatro en cada mes.

805
796
443

Otra cuenta tenjan, entre naturales que nj sigue la cuenta del año, nj de los meses, nj de las quintanas, que impropriamente se pueden dezir semanas. Esta cuenta, tiene viente caracteres, como esta pintado en la tabla, que esta detras desta hoja: a cada vno destos caracteres, atribuyan treze dias: en las quales reinaua uno destos caracteres: de manera que cada vno reinaua treze dias, y el circulo que estos caracteres con sus dias hazian, son dozientos y sesenta dias: el qual circulo, tiene ciento y cinco dias menos, que vn año. Esta cuenta se vsaua para adiujnar las condiciones, y sucesos de la vida, que tendrian los que naciessen. Es cuenta delicada, y muy mentirosa, y sin njngun fundamento de astrologia natural. Porque el arte de la astrologia judiciaria, que entre nosotros se vsa, tiene fundamento en la astrologia natural, que es en los signos, y planetas del cielo, y en los cursos y aspectos dellos. Pero esta arte adiujnatoria siguese o fundase en vnos caracteres, y numeros, en que njngun fundamento natural ay, sino solamente artificio fabricado, por el mesmo diablo, nj es posible que njngun hombre fabricasse, nj inventasse esta arte; porque no tiene fundamento, en njnguna sciencia, nj en njnguna razon natural: mas parece cosa de embuste y embaimjento, que no cosa razonal, nj artificiosa. Digo que fue embuste y embaimjento, para encandilar, y desatinar a gente de poca capazidad, y de poco entendimjento. No obstante esto, era tenjda en mucho, esta arte adiujnatoria o mas propriamente hablando embuste o embaimjento diabolico: y tambien los que la sabian, y vsauan erã muy honrados y tenjdos: porque dezian las cosas por venjr, y del vulgo eran tenjdos por verdaderos, aunque njnguna verdad dezian sino acaso, y por yerro. Esta arte, nj sigue años, nj meses, nj semanas, nj lustros, nj olimpiadas, como algunos soñando dizeron, y afirmaron falsamente.

805
212
787x

[See cat. 116, 117, 126r, 126s. - Analyst]

805
X787

Because the foregoing chart of the soothsaying art is difficult to understand and to reckon by, I have provided the following chart, because it is clearer and the count is easier and in conformity with the way they counted. And let no one think than this chart is a calendar; because, as is said, it is only a soothsaying device. The calendar of these natives is found at the beginning of the Second Book, and it is very easily understood because of the letters of the alphabet which it hath. On one side are counted their months, which are of twenty days each. And on the other side are counted our months, which are of thirty days, one more or less. And since this count is so given, it is easy to know, of their feasts, in which of our months they fell, and on which day of each month. The other count, which is of the years, is placed in the Seventh Book of this history. There it may be seen, if it please Our Lord that it be published.

Porque la tabla precedente del arte adiuinatoria esta difficultuosa de entender, y de contar: puse esta tabla que se sigue, porque esta muy mas clara y la cuenta muy mas facil, y conforme a como ellos contauan. Y no piense nadie, que esta tabla es Kalendario porque como dicho es, no es sino arte adiuinatoria. El Kalendario destos naturales se pone en el principio del segundo libro esta muy claro de entender, porque las letras del a. b. c. que tiene: de vna parte, se cuenèan los meses suyos, que son de veynte en veynte dias. Y de la otra parte, se cuentan los nuestros meses: que son de a treynta dias, vno mas o menos. Y por estar esta cuenta desta manera, facil cosa es saber sus fiestas, en que mès de los nuestros cayan: y a quantos dias de cada mes. La otra cuenta que es de los años, se pone en el septimo libro desta historia: alli se podra ver, si plugujere a nuestro señor, que salga a luz.

1 [See cat. 116, pp. 126u, 126v. - Annlyst]

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

After, as I have said, they had set off to inspect the mines, let me go back to say how the great Montezuma gave our Captain a hennequen cloth, on which were painted and marked very true to nature, all the rivers and bays on the Northern coast from Panuco to Tabasco, that is for a matter of one hundred and forty leagues, and the river of Coatzacoalcos was marked on it. As we already knew all the harbours and bays marked on the cloth which Montezuma gave to Cortés, from the time we came on the voyage of discovery with Grijalva, except the river of Coatzacoalcos, which they said was very strong and deep, Cortés determined to send and see what it was like, and to take soundings of the harbour and the entrance. One of our captains named Diego de Ordás, a very prudent and valiant man, who has often been mentioned by me, said to our Captain that he would like to go and see that river, and what sort of country there was there, and what the people were like, and asked for Indian Chieftains to go with him, and Cortés had refused, because he was a man of good counsel and he wished to keep him in his company. However, so as not to displease him, he [now] granted him leave to go. Montezuma told Ordás that his authority did not extend over Coatzacoalcos, that the people there were very bold, and that he should take care what he was about, and if anything happened to him, they must not blame him [Montezuma] for it; that before arriving at that province he would come on the garrison of warriors he kept on the border, and that if he [Ordás] had need of them he might take them with him, and he [Montezuma] paid him many compliments besides. Cortés and Diego de Ordás gave him their thanks, and Ordás set out with two soldiers and some chieftains whom Montezuma sent with him.

This is where the historian Francisco Lopez Gomara says that Juan Velásquez with one hundred soldiers went to form a settlement at Coatzacoalcos, and that Pedro de

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

772 ritual, since the intensely fertile Vera Cruz coast plain is the 776 actual source of the seasonal rains caused by the condensa-
823 tion of warm air when the Gulf of Mexico is exposed to the chill winds of the Central Plateau. The south was considered evil, possibly because of the arid zones south of Morelos and Puebla, but had as presiding deities gods associated with spring and flowers, Xipe (the Flayed One) and Macuilxochitl* (Five Flower). The west, however, had a favorable significance, being the home of the planet Venus, the evening star, which was associated and even identified with Quetzalcoatl (Feathered Serpent), the God of Knowledge. The north was a place gloomy and awful, presided over by Mictlantecuhtli† (Lord of the Dead), who, in one of those contradictions so frequent in Mexican theology, was sometimes connected with the south as well.[4] (See end papers.)

772 The vertical world was divided into heavens and hells
776 which had no moral significance, being merely overworlds
775 and underworlds. The number of heavens varied up to thirteen and represented the dwelling places of the gods, according to their rank in the hierarchy, the original creator living in the topmost heaven, and so on down the scale. One of these heavens belonged to Tlaloc, who received those who died by drowning, lightning or other causes connected with water. One school of thought divided the heavens into east
[821] and west, according to the passage of the sun. The east was the home of warriors, whose death in battle or sacrifice nourished the sun, and the west the home of women who died in childbirth, thus sacrificing themselves in the bearing of potential warriors.[5] (See Plate 57, bottom right.)

775 The rest of the dead passed to Mictlan, the underworld.

*Ma-kweel-sho'-chitl. †Meek-tla'n-tay-coot-li.

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

Bird," were the embodied spirits of young growth and, by 776 analogy, youth and the games. These had as male counterparts such gods as Cinteotl, "Maize God," Xochipilli,* "Flower Prince" and Macuilxochitl, "Four Flower," whose functions, identified with growth, youth and games, are almost synonymous. (See Plates 31; 56, top left; 57, bottom left.)

About the maguey plant revolved another cult embracing 776
the goddess Mayauel, who represented the plant and whose 802
four hundred sons were associated with pulque. According 273 to some accounts, the various styles of drunkenness were recorded in terms of these gods or their associated animal, the rabbit. Four hundred rabbits stood for complete drunkenness, while fifteen or twenty suggested mere conviviality. The chief of these pulque gods was called "Two Rabbit," after his day in the almanac, and another, Tepoztecatl, was the tribal god of Tepoztlan, honored by a temple placed high in the mountains of Morelos.

The gods of the earth and death were highly important, 776 since growth takes place in the earth and the dead are received there. The sun on rising seems to be born in the earth and at its setting to be hidden by it, thus passing apparently to the world of the dead. The gods and goddesses associated with the earth had significance for the solar cults as well as for growth and fertility.

Tlaltecuhtli, "Lord of the Earth," was depicted as a male monster of horrifying aspect, partaking of the attributes of a toad and an alligator. His open mouth could consume even [821] the sun, since the setting sun passed into the earth, according to Aztec astronomical ideas. The goddesses, however, seem

*Sho-chee-pe'e-ly.

S: Sahagún M-S (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Astec NU7

De la astrologia

SEVENTH BOOK, WHICH TELLETH OF THE SUN, AND THE MOON, AND THE STARS;[1] AND OF [THE CEREMONY] OF THE BINDING OF THE YEARS.

JNIC CHICOME AMOSTLI, ITECHPA TLATOA IN TONATIUH: YOAN IN METZTLI, YOAN IN ÇIÇITLALTI, YOAN IN TOXIMOLPIA.

796
821

First Chapter, which telleth of the sun.

The sun: the soaring eagle,[2] the turquoise prince, the god.

He shone, cast forth light, sent forth rays [of light] from himself. Hot, he burned men—he burned them exceedingly, and made them sweat. He turned men's skins brown, darkening them, blackening them, blistering them.

Every two hundred and sixty days, when his feast day came, then his festival was honored and celebrated. They observed it on his day sign, called Naui olin. And before his feast day had come, first, for four days, all fasted. And when it was already his feast day, when first he came forth, when he emerged and appeared, incense was offered and burned; blood [from the ears] was offered. This was done four times during the day—when it was dawn; and at noon; and past midday, when already [the sun] hung [low]; and when he entered [his house]—when he set; when he ended [his course].

And early in the morning it was said: "Now he will work; now the sun will labor. How will the day end?" And when night fell, it was said: "He hath worked; the sun hath laboured." When he issued forth [at dawn], sometimes he was blood-colored, bright red, ruby-red. And sometimes he was quite pale, white-faced, pallid, because of the clouds—a mist, a Iuic ce capitulo, itechpa tlatoa: in tonatiuh.

Tonatiuh, quauhtlenanitl, xippilli, teutl.

Tona, tlanestia, motonameiotia: totonqui, tetlati, tetlatlati, teitoni: teistlileuh, teistlilo, teiscapotzo, teistlecaleuh.

Matlacpoaltica, ipan epoalli, in ilhuiuhquiçsia: in ilhuichiuililoia, ilhuiquistililoia: ipã quimattiuia, in itonal itoca naolin. Auh in aiamo quiça ilhuiuh: achtopa, nauilhuitl, neçaoaloia. Auh in icoac ic ipan ilhuiuh, in icoac iancuiçin, oalquiza, oalmomana, oalpetzini/ tlenamacoia, tlatoronilo, neçoa. In hin, muchiosia nappa, cemilhuitl: icoac in iostzinco, iol nepãtla tonatiuh, ioan icoac in ic onmotzcaloa, in ic onmopilloa; iol icoac in oncalaqui, in onaqui, in onmotzinecoa.

Auh in iostzinco, mitoaia: ca ic tequitia, ic tlacotia in tonatiuh; quen vetziz in cemilhuitl. Auh in oicoac, mitoaia: otequit, otlacotic in tonatiuh: inic oalmemana, in quenman uel eztic, chichiltic, tlapaltic. Auh in quenman, çan iztalectic çan camaztac, çan cocostiuh: ipampa in mistli, in mixtaiuitl, anoço mispanitl, mistecuicuilli, in iuco moteca.

1. The reader is referred to the Memoriales and Codices, in the Appendix to this book, when from Francisco Paso y Troncoso, ed.: Historia general de las cosas de Nueva España por Fray Bernardino de Sahagún: edición parcial en facsimile de los códices mexicanos en lengua mexicana (Madrid: Hauser y Menet, 1905).

2. (quauhtlenanitl: eagle with the fiery arrows, according to Rémi Simeon: Dictionnaire de la langue nahuatl ou mexicaine (Paris: Imprimerie Nationale, 1885).

796
821

heavy pall, or clouds of many colors—which were spread before his face.

Eclipse of the Sun

782
821

When this came to pass, he turned red; he became restless and troubled. He faltered and became very yellow. Then there were a tumult and disorder. All were disquieted, unnerved, frightened. There was weeping. The common folk raised a cry, lifting their voices, making a great din, calling out, shrieking. There was shouting everywhere. People of light complexion[1] were slain [as sacrifices]; captives were killed. All offered their blood; they drew straws through the lobes of their ears, which had been pierced. And in all the temples there was the singing of fitting chants; there was an up[illegible] there were war cries. It was thus said: "If the [illegible]se of the sun is complete, it will be dark forever! The demons of darkness will come down; they will eat men!"

[785]

Tonatiuh quale.

In icoac muchiua, y, chichilultimomana: ac tlaca manj, ac tlaca ca, ca mocuecueptimanj: oica tlacoçouia: niman ic tlatzomonj, tlacatl comonj: neacomanalo, necomonjlo, ximauhtilo, nechoquililo, tlachoquiztlecu in macoualti: netenujteco, netempapaujlo, tlacaoaca, tlacaoetzalo, tzatzica: cioualli moteca, Tlacaztalmicoa, malmicoa, neçoa tlacoquilitilo: nenacazteco: auh in tetepan, xauchcuico, tlachalantoc, tlacaoácatoc: ic mitoxia, intla tlamiz, in quale tonatiuh: centlaiocoa: oaltemouque, in tzitzitzimi, tequaquimi.

1. Tlacoquilitilo: cf. [illegible], the corresponding passage in the Florentine [illegible] (Appendix to this volume), where the phrase is rendered "[illegible] Blanca y cara blanca."

5 Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

Second Chapter, which telleth of the moon.

The moon (Tecuciztecatl).

When he[4] newly appeared, he was like a small bow, like a bent, straw lip ornament—a small one. He did not yet shine. Very slowly, he went growing larger, becoming round and disc-shaped. In fifteen days he was completely rounded and filled out, as he became entire and mature. And when he waxed full and round, then he appeared, then he arose there at the place where the sun appeared. When it was already dark, [he was] like a very large, earthen skillet—very round, circular. [He was] as if red, a bright, deep red.

And after this, when he had already followed his course a little, when he had risen high, he became white. It was said: "Already he shineth; already the moon is brilliant; already he giveth forth moonbeams." He was then seen to be pale, very white. Then appeared [what was] like a little rabbit stretched across his face. If there were no clouds, if it were not overcast and covered by clouds, like [the sun] he shone, and it was like daytime. It was said: "[It is] almost [like] day; everywhere it is bright. Light is spread everywhere."

And when he had completely reached and attained his brilliance, for as many days as he had thus waxed and been round, little by little he again grew small; he became smaller. Again he became as when he had newly appeared. Gradually he waned and proceeded to vanish. It was said: "Already the moon is dying; now he slumbereth soundly—he falleth into a deep sleep. It is already toward morning, star down, when he sleeth." And when he had completely disappeared, it was said: "The moon hath died."

Inic vme capítulo, itechpa tlatoa: in metztli.

Metztli: tecuciztecatl.

In icoac iancuican, oalmomana cõtoqtli: iuhquin teçacanecuilli, teçacanecuiltonelli, niamo tlanextia: çan iuiian, uetztiuhi, malacachiuhtiuhi, teuilacachiuhtiuhi. Cantoltica, in vel malacachiui: teuilacachiui, in vel maci, in chicaoa. Auh in icoac, vel oiaoaliuh, omalacachiuh, inic uel neci: inic oalmomana, in ompa iquiçaian tonatiuh: in jcoac ie tlapoiaoa, iuhquin comalli, veipol: vel teuilacachtic, malacachtic: iuhquin tlapalli, chichiltic, chichilpatic.

Auh quinjcoac, in ie achi quioaltoca, in ie, oalacoquiza, iztaia: mitoa ie tlachia, ie tlanextia, in metztli, ie metztona: iztalectic, vel iztac, inic motta: inic neci, iuhquin tochtõ, iaco vepztoc: intlacamo tle mistli, intlacamo missoa, mistemi: iuhquin tona, ic tlaneci, mitoa ieh on cemilhuitl, uel tlanaltona: tlanaltonatimani.

Auh in jcoac, oielacic, oielmacic, itlanexilia: in iaquilhuitl, ic veiia, malacachiui: çan iuh nenti, oc ceppa tepitonaui, tepitonauhtiuhi, oc ceppa iuhqui nuchioa, inic iancuican oalmomana: çan iuiian polini, poliuhtiuhi: mitoa ie onmiqui, in metztli: ie uei in quicochi: ie uc in ic cochi, ie tlathuitiuhi, ie tlathuinaoac, in oalquiza. Auh in iquac uel ompoliuh, mitoa: omomic in metztli.

REHEARSE THE FABLE in which it is told how a little rabbit lay across the face of the moon. Of this, it is told that [the gods] were only at play with [the HICAYNOE, TEUCTLAPOLLO, inic mitoa: iuhquin nuchtoa, iaco uetztoc metztli. Jn hin quilmach çã ic ica onoeanilticloc: ic conjuiuiteoque: ic conjetlatlacaoque,

4. In the Spanish version, the moon (luna) is feminine. Since both the sun (Nanahuatzin) and moon (Tecuciztecatl) are male in the fable of the rabbit and the moon, we have made both of these consistently masculine.

8216
539
-3-

539 Then it became the office of Ecatl to slay the gods. But they say thus: that Xolotl wished not to die. He said to the gods: "Let me not die, O gods." Wherefore he wept much; his eyes and his eyelids swelled.

And when he who dealt death was to overtake him, he fled from his presence; he ran; he quickly entered a field of green maize, and took the form of, and quickly turned into, two young maize stalks [growing] from a single root, which the workers in the field have named xolotl. But there, in the field of green maize, he was seen. Then once again he fled from him; once more he quickly entered a maguey field. There also he quickly changed himself into a maguey plant [consisting of] two [parts] called mexolotl. Once more he was seen, and once more he quickly entered into the water and went to take the shape of [an amphibious animal called] axolotl. There they could go to seize him, that they might slay him.

[136]

And they say that though all the gods died, even then the sun god could not move and follow his path. Thus it became the charge of Ecatl, the wind, who arose and exerted himself fiercely and violently as he blew. At once he could move him, who thereupon went on his way. And when he had already followed his course, only the moon remained there. At the time when the sun came to enter the place where he set, then once more the moon moved. So, there, they passed each other and went each one his own way. Thus the sun cometh forth once, and spendeth the whole day [in his work]; and the moon undertaketh the night's task; he worketh all night; he doth his labor at night.

From this it appeareth, it is said, that the moon, Tecuciztecatl, would have been the sun if he had been first to cast himself into the fire; because he had presented himself first and all [his offerings] had been costly in the penances.

Here endeth this legend and fable, which was told in times past, and was in the keeping of the old people.

Nimã ic ieh iequiuh ximochiuh, in hecatl, ic quimjctia in teteu: auh in iuh conitoa, in xolotl, amo momiquitlania: quimilhui in teteu. Macamo nimiqui teteuie. Ic cẽca chocaia, vel ipopoçaoac, iquatelpopoçaoac.

Auh in ie itech onaci miquiztli, çan teipãpa eoac, cholo, toctitlan calactiuetz: ipan onmixueh, ic mocueptiuetz, in toctli ome manj, maxaltic: in quitocaiotia millaca, xolotl. Auh vncan itoc in toctitlan: ie no ceppa teipampa eoac, ie no cuele metitlan calactiuetz: no ic ximocueptiuetz in metl, ome manj, in itoca mexolotl. Ie no ceppa itoc, ie no cuele atlan calactiuetz, axolotl mocuepato: ie vel vmpa canato, inic conmictique.

Auh quiton, in manel muchintin teteu omicque, ça nel amo ic olin, amo vel ic otlatocac in teutl tonatiuh: ic iequiuh ommuchiuh in hecatl, moquetz in ehecatl, cenca molhui, totocac, in ehecac: quin iehoatl vel colinj, nimah ic ic otlatoca. Auh in icoac, ie otlatoca, çan vmpa ommoçauh in metztli: quinicoac in ocalaquito icalaquian tonatiuh, ie no cuele ic oalcoac in metztli: ic vncan mopetilique, motlallotique. Inic ceppa oalquiça tlacemilhuitiltia in tonatiuh: auh in metztli ioealhequitl quitlaça cõtoal quitlaça, ioealtequiti.

Ic vncã hin neci, mitoa: ca ichoatl tonatiuh iexquia in metztli tecuiztecatl, intla ic achto onuetzinj tleco: ipampa ca ichoatl achto miquetz, inic muchi tlaçotli ipan tlamacoth.

Nican tlami, in hin nenonotzalli, çaçanilli: in ie oncath ic tlatlanonotzaia, vmotque, in impiel caica.

Eclipse of the Moon.

821 843 When the moon eclipsed, his face grew dark and sooty; blackness and darkness spread. When this came to pass, women with child feared evil; they thought it portentous; they were terrified [lest], perchance, their [unborn] children might be changed

Metztli quale,

In icoac, quale metztli: itilloac, ioeuichoac, cuichoaximomana, tlaiocuicuiomana. In icoac, y, muchioa: uel mamimatia in octzin, tlacuiomatia, momaxitiaia: ma nelli momimichcuepti, ma quiquimichtimocuepti, in itepilhoan.

S: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

into mice; each of their children might turn into a mouse.

And because they feared evil, in order to protect themselves, in order that this might not befall [them], they placed obsidian in their mouths or in their bosoms, because with this their children would not be born with mouth eaten away—lipless; or they would not be born with noses eaten away or broken off; or with twisted mouths or lips; or cross-eyed, squint-eyed, or with shrunken eyes; nor would they be born monstrous or imperfect.

This moon those of Xaltocan worshipped as a god, and they laid offerings before him and paid him honor.

821
843

Auh inic quintemmatia: inic mopatiaia, inic amo iuhqui impá nochioua: itzli incamac, anoço iuxilli quitlaliaia: ipápa inic amo tencoaiuizque, tencoaiz-que impilhoua: anoço iacacoatiuque, iacacotoniuque, anoço tempatziuiaque, tennecuiliuiaque, iapatziuiaque, iaiecuiliuiaque, iocacaliuiaque: in anoço atlacamele tlacatiz, in amo tlacamelaoac.

821
751
843

Inin metztli, iehoan quimotrutiaia in xaltocameca: quitlamaniliaia, quimauiztiliaia.

782

[p. 10 is blank]

S: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

821
782

Third Chapter, which telleth of the stars.

The Fire Drill[7]

When [these] appeared and set forth, incense was offered and burned. Thus was it said when Yoaltecutli [and] Yacauitztli had come forth: "What will the night bring? How will the day break?"

And these were offered incense. Three times was it done: when night fell—well into the night; and when it was time to sleep—the time when the flutes were blown.[8] When this [took place], this was the time for offering their blood and offering maguey spines stained with blood. The third time incense was offered was when it dawned, when the morning broke, when the earth was visible—when morning was near.

And hence was it said that they resembled the fire drill: because when fire was drawn with a drill, and the drill bored, thus fell, ignited, and flared the fire.

821
782
785

And also for this reason all burned [spots on] their wrists; for this reason were we men burned on the wrists, to show awe of him. He was feared and dreaded. It was said and considered of any whose wrists were not burned that on his wrists fire would be drilled in the land of the dead, when he died. Therefore we men—every one—were burned on the wrists. On both sides of each wrist they arranged in order, in rows, the wrist burns. Thus they represented the fire drill. In the same manner as [the stars] were arranged in order and in line, so also they placed in order, in rows, their burns on their wrists.

[The Morning Star or Great Star]

821

Of the morning star, the great star, it was said that when first it emerged and came forth, four times it vanished and disappeared quickly. And afterwards it burst forth completely, took its place in full light,

Inic ey capitulo, intechpa tlatoa: in cicitlaltin.

Mamalhoaztli.

In icoac oalneci, oalmotema: tlenamacoia, tlatotoniloia: ic mitoaia, ooalquex in iooaltecutli, in iacauiztli: quen uetziz in iooalli, quen tlathuiz.

Auh in hin tlenamacoia, espa in [illegible]chioaia: icoac in tlapoiaoa, tlaquauh tlapoiaoa, yoan netetequizpan, tlatlapitzalizpa. Icoac, y, neçoaia, neuitzmanaloia: ic espa tlenamacoia, icoac in tlauizcaleoa, tlauizcalli moquetza: in tlatlalchipaoa, in ie tlathuinaoac.

Auh inic mitoa, mamalhoaztli, itech moneneuilia in tlequauitl: ichica, in icoac tlequauhtlaxo, ca momamali in tlequauitl: inic uetzi, inic zoçla, inic mopitza tletl.

No yoan, inic nematlatiloia: inic momatlatiaia toquichtin, ichoatl quimacacia, mjmacacia imacazoia, mjtoaia: quilniach in aquin amo nematlatile, imac tlequauhtlaxoz in mjctlan, in icoac omjc. Ichoa in toquichtin, muchi tlácatl momatlatiaia, nenecoc inmac quiuiujpanaia, quitetecpanaia in innematlatil: ic quitlaichecalhuiaia in mamalhoaztli: in iuh viçantoc, tecpantoc, no iuh quiuiujpanaia, quitetecpanaia in immac innematlatil.

Citlalpol, vei citlalin mitoa: in icoac iancuican oalcholoa, oalquiça, nappan polizi, popoliuhtiuetzi: auh çatepã uel cueponj, cuepontimotlalia, cuepontica, tlanesotica: iuhquin mezzioua ic tlanestia.

7. The names of various constellations and stars may or may not correspond to the names by which they are now known. In the Spanish text and in the Mexicanized case endings, however, Sahagún sometimes uses them with the terminology current in his times. See also Plates 1-7, 21.

8. Tlachpalihpan: cf. Arthur J. O. Anderson and Charles E. Dibble: Florentine Codex, Book 8, The Conquest (Santa Fe: School of American Research, Monograph No. 14, Part III, and University of Utah, 1951), p. 192; also Sandoz, op. cit.; Cuelloy, op. cit., p. 232. The ceremony called for use of flutes or trumpets, according to Sandoz; of horns, according to Cuelloy. Sources vary as to the exact time when these were blown.

S: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

821 became brilliant, and shone white. Like the moon's rays, so did it shine.

And when it newly emerged, much fear came over them; all were frightened. Everywhere the outlets and openings[a] [of houses] were closed up. It was said that perchance [the light] might bring a cause of sickness, something evil, when it came to emerge. But sometimes it was regarded as benevolent.

821 782 And also [captives] were slain when it emerged, [that] it might be nourished. They sprinkled blood toward it. With the blood of captives they spattered toward it, flipping the middle finger from the thumb; they cast [the blood] as an offering; they raised it in dedication.

Auh in iconc, iancoican oalcholoa: cêca mazatli motecaia, nemauhcilloia: nesuian motzatzacuaia in tlocalli, in pochquiiacoc: mitoaia, açô cocolinço, itla aqualli quinquimitz, in oquiçaco: auh in quemman quicualittaia.

Auh no micoaia, in iconc oalcholoa, iccalitloia, quitlacoaliaia: iancaçotica in mamalti, contlatzitzicoaliliaia, contlatlatlaxiliaia, cocholiaualiaia.

[i.e. The morning star or great star —A.]

a. The corresponding Spanish text translates these as doors and windows. Cf. Anderson and Dibble, op. cit., III, p. 28, n. 2a.

Fourth Chapter, which telleth of the stars.

Inic nauí Capítulo, itechpa tlatoa: in cicitlaltin.

The Comet

It was said [to be] an omen for the ruler. Because of it a ruler was to perish; perchance some person of noble lineage would die. And likewise they said that somewhere he might be imprisoned, or war would begin. Or else there would be famine. The common folk said: "Perhaps this is our hunger; perchance famine," they said.

Citlalin popoca.

Mitoa: tlatocatetzauitl, ic tlatocamicoaz, aço ica uey tlaçopilli ie mjquiz: yoan no quitoaia, aço cana ie oalmotzacoaz, aço ie olinjz teuatl tlachinolli: yoan anoço ie maianaloz. Quitoaia in macceoalti: aço tapiz hi, aço apizzli quitoa.

821 ●
787

The Shooting Star

It was said that the passing of a shooting star rose and fell neither without purpose nor in vain. It brought a worm to something. And of [the animal] wounded by a shooting star, they said: "It hath been wounded by a shooting star; it hath received a worm." [Such] was not to be eaten. It was looked at with fear, abhorred, and shunned. It turned one's stomach.

Citlalin tlamina.

Mitoa: amo nenquiça, amo nẽuetzi, in itlamjnalia: tlaocuilloaia. Auh in tlamintli, mitoa: citlalmjnqui, ocuillo, aocmo qualo, mauhcaitto, tlaelitto, hihielo, tetlaieltia.

821
825
262

And by night all were well protected. All covered themselves; they clothed themselves, wrapped themselves in mantles, and bound on their garments, for fear of the shooting star.

Auh in iocaltica vel nemalhuilo, neololoto, netlapacholo, nequentilo, netlalpililo: imacaxo in itlaminalia citlalin.

821.

The S-Shaped Stars

[These] were apart; they appeared by themselves, shining and shimmering. And for this reason were they called S-shaped stars—that they were similar to and very much like a [kind of maize] tortilla which was made, or an amaranth seed tortilla. [These] were, at both ends, twisted and rounded over. They were eaten on the day Xochitl, everywhere, in each house. In all places, in men's dwellings everywhere, they were made.

Citlalnecuilli.

Çan iioca onoc, iioca nentoc, tlanestitoc, cuecuepocatoc: Auh inic mitoa, citlalnecuilli: ca quinenuilia, vel no inhqui centlamantli tlachichioalli tlascalli, anoço tzoualli: nenecoc, cecentlapal quacoltic, quateuilacachtic: suchilhuid ipan in quaqualoia, nouian cecencalpan: quitzacutimanca, in nouiian techachan nechiuililoia.

821
262

The Scorpion Stars

In the same manner, [these] resembled and appeared in the aspect of the venomous scorpion, with upcurved tail. Arched and upcurled is its tail; wherefore [these] are called the Scorpion Stars.

Citlalcolotl.

Çan no inhqui: quinenuilia, quinamiqui, in itlachieliz tequani colotl: cuitlapilococoltic, mamalacachtic, teteuilacachtic in jcuitlapil: ipampa inic mitoa citlalcolotl.

821

821
823
502

The Wind

That which was known as [the wind] was addressed as Quetzalcoatl. From four directions it came, from four directions it traveled. The first place whence it came was the place from which the sun arose, which they named Tlalocan. This wind which came from there they gave the name of the Tlaloc wind. Little did it frighten men; lightly did it blow. With it, one could go in a canoe; with it one could land; with it one could cross the water.

[775]

The second place whence it came [the north] was called Mictlampa; and this was named the wind from the land of the dead. This was much feared, and caused much terror. Violently did it blow, when it set in, and the canoes could not contend with it. They could not travel forward. They could not venture forth; they could not pass across; they could not get under way in the water. Rather, all the boatmen came out and left [their craft] because of fear—those who gained their livelihoods on the water, the fishermen who used nets, or who speared [the fish]. When they saw that it was Mictlampa ehecatl which arose, then they feared evil and were troubled. They hurried, hastened, and greatly quickened their pace, plying the pole—plying it rapidly. They strained their arms, that they might come out and beach [the canoe] on the shore, on the edge of the water, near the water line. And so they said: "Often it drowneth men and sinketh canoes."

The third place whence it came [the west] was known as Cuatlampa; it was named Cuatecayotl and Cuatlampa ehecatl. Also it was called One Wind, or Maçaua; for it came from Maçauacan. And this one did not blow fiercely. Nevertheless, it was very cold. Men suffered much from [its] cold; they became livid and stiff from cold. It made them shiver; it was deadly. It made men tremble, shake, and quake; it exhausted them; it gave them stomach pains, or pains in the lungs, or the head. And yet, with it they could go ashore from the water. It did not frighten men nor terrify them.

And the fourth place whence came the wind [the south] was there from Uitztlampa. It was named Uitztlampa ehecatl. And this one was much feared and held in dread. All feared harm. It made men speechless with terror; it made them silent with fear. Because it blew swiftly, it frightened them greatly. They said: "When it arieth, it uprooteth and breaketh trees: and it teareth walls to pieces—old walls

Ehecatl

Motenecaia: ic quinotzaia quetzalcoatl. Nauhcampa oallauh, nauhcampa oalicttiuh. Inic ceccan oallauh: vmpa in iquiçaiampa tonatiuh, quitoaia tlalocã: inin ehecatl, vmpa oallauh, quitocaiotiaia, tlalocaiotl: amo cẽca temauhti, amo cenca totoca, uel ipan acaltica viloa, vel ipan quixoa, in atlan: vel ipã panoa.

Inic occã oallauh, motenecoa mictlampa: auh inin motocaiotia mictlampa ehecatl. In hin uel imacaxo, uellamauhtia: cenca totoca, in icoac moquetza, amo vel quinamiqui in acalli: amo vellauilteco, amo uel tlastlapalolo, avel istlapal viloa, auel tlanecuilolo in atlan: çan mauhcaquixoa, mauhcaquiça in tlapanauique, in atlãca, in tlãtlamãque, in tlamjnque. In oquittaque, ca mictlampa ehecatl in omoquetz: ic cenca motenmati, motequipachoa, uel motequimati, ompilcatoque, ompipilcatoque, in tlaneloa, in tequitlaneloa: vel momaquauhtilia, inic uel onquiça, onmacana atenco, atexipalco, achichiiacpa: iuh quixoa, ca miccpa, teatlanmictia, quipolactia in acalli.

Inic ecan oallauh: motenecoa cioatlãpa, motocaiotia, cioatecaiotl, cioatlampa ehecatl: no quitocaiotia ce ehecatl, anoço maçaoa ipampa vmpan oalicttiuh maçaoacan. Auh in hin, amo no cenca totoca: icoc cenca itztic, uel tececmjti, tepinecoalti, tepinuch, tetetziliuiti, tetezilquisti, tetzitzilquiti, tcuiuiõquilti, tecuecuechquiti, tecuecuechmiquiti: tezillanquauhtili, teiomotlanquauhtili, tetzontecoecuh. Auh uel, uel ipan quixoa in atlan, amo temauhti, amo temauiacuiti.

Auh inic nauhcampa, oallauh ehecatl, vmpa uitztlampa: motocaiotia uitztlampa ehecatl. Auh inin, cenca vel imacaxo, mimacaci: netenmacho, aoc tenaostilti, aoc tetlauhti: ipãpa cenca totoca, cenca tlamauhtia. Quixoa, in icoac moquetza: vel qioitzinoa, quipeztequi in quauitl: yoan quizitinja in tepanõlli, in tepançolli, in xacalli: quecatoctia in tlatzacuilli, in chimancalli. Auh in vei atl vel colinja, quiçoponaçoa, and straw huts. The wind carrieth off fences and enclosures. And it stirreth up the sea; it maketh them froth and foam. It forneth waves; there is a great din as of waves breaking. There is a great crickling noise." And it tossed and cast canoes into the air. Just so, indeed, did the north wind sink them.

quipoçonaltia, cacuccuciotia: iuhquin tetecuicatimani, cocomocatimani: auh in scalli caacomaiaui, caacotlaço: vel no iuhqui, quinamiqui in mictlampa checatl. 821 823 502

Lightning: the Lightning Flash

They addressed it as, and named it, many things—the mist which went winding [like a serpent], the thunderbolt, the reed staff. When lighting flashed and lit up repeatedly, we were blinded, we lost our sight, our vision was darkened. It startled us; we were terrified. It was unbearable to look at; it was dazzling. Everywhere it flashed repeatedly—again and again—like the light of the dawn breaking over and over. Thus did it come; it came twisting and winding.

Tlapetlanjlloti, tlapetlanjlizti: much ic quinozaia, quitocaiotiaia, aiauhcocolli, tlapetlanjlquauitl, ozto-pilcoauitl. In icoac tlapetlani, tlãtlapetlani: tiposaoa, tiimimiqui, titiamauhtia, titocuitiuetzi: aiauamiquilizti, aiauamiquizti, nouiian tlatlaoztimoqueza: iuhquin tlauizcalli moquequetza: inic oallauh oalcocoliubtiuh, cueculiubtiuitz. 821

[p. 16 is blank]

5: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

Fifth Chapter, which telleth of the clouds.

Ic macuilli capitulo, itechpa tlatoa: in mixtli.

The Lord of Tlaloccan

821 776

He was considered a god. To him were attributed rain and water. Thus they said he made that which we ate and drank—food, drink, our sustenance, our nourishment, our daily bread, our maintenance. All that which grew in the summer he made—sprouts, fresh green sprouts, trees, amaranth, chía, squash, beans; the maguey, the tuna cactus; and still others, not edible—flowers, grasses.

[137]

821 793 785

And when his feast was observed, first there was fasting for four days. The priests fasted in honor of Tlaloc in what was called the priests' house, where they had matured and grown.

When the fourth day had passed, when the fasting had ended, when the feast had been completed, [the evildoers] were plunged and submerged repeatedly in the lake. Not soft, not gentle was the punishment. They were plunged and immersed repeatedly in the water. They ill-used only those of their own kind. They dragged [the victim] back and forth through the mud. They plunged him under the water and dragged him; they went pulling him along by the hair; they kicked him. [As] he swam under the water, churning, beating, and swirling it up as he went, he escaped the hands of the priests.

When a fault had been committed in the priests' house, or some error had been done—even though someone had only stumbled, or tripped over something, at once, for this, they laid hold of him. Because of it they shut him in as their captive, no more taking their eyes from him, that they might plunge him in the water.

And to excess did they set upon him. Greatly did they afflict and torment him. He lay half dead, breathing his last, gasping, in his last agonies; at death's door [was he] whom they finally cast on the shore. No one could plead his cause. From thence [the victims'] fathers and mothers took them. And if anyone felt apprehension or foreboding for his son, in order that [the priests] should not plunge him into the

Tlalocã tecutli,

Teutl ipan machoia, itech tlamiloia, in quiauitl, in atl: iuh quitoaia, ie quichioa in ticoua, in tiqui, in qualoni, in joani, in tonenca, in tosoka, in tocochca, in tonenhca, in tocemilhuitiaia, in tonacaiotl: in ie iequich xopaniotl, in itzmolintoc, in celiztoc, in quauitl, in ossuhtli, in chian, in aiotetl, in etl, in metl, in nopalli: yoan in oc cequi, in amo qualoni, in xuchitl, in xiuitl.

Auh in icoac ilhuiquistililoia: achtopa nauilhuitl moçaoaia, motlalocaçaoaia in tlamacazque: in motenoa calmecac mooapaoa, mozcaltia.

In icoac oacic nauilhuitl, in ie neoalco, in ie ilhuitl muchioa: matlampapachoaia, mopopolactiaia in uei apan: amo iuiian, amo motlamachuja, in atlan onmotzotzopontitlaça, onmotzotzopontimaiaui: çan monetechuja, vncan çoquititlan quinemjtia, quipopolactia, quiuiuilana: icpac cantinemi, quititlicça, atlã tlatzotzopotztinemj, aicozotztinemi, tlamomolotztinemi: inmac mouiuitlatinemi, in tlamacazque, in otlatlaco, in calmecac itlã oncholo: intlanel çan aca ômótepotlami, itlã oconicxizopeuh, oc uel ic conaciqueque, ie ic inmal ça quipipia, aocmo conjacaoa, inic catlampapachoaque.

Auh amo çan quenjn quipoloa: uel quicocoltia, quellelaxitia, ça quen quimattoc, ça mopopoçauhtoc, ça içomocatoc, ça micqui in quicalmaiaui atenco: aiac uel ipan tlatoa, vncan quimonana in intahoan, in innahoan. Auh in aquin quitlamauhcaitilia, in quitlaõmachilia ipiltzin, inic amo catlampapachoaque: conquistiaia itlatzia quinnacaia in tlamacazque, aço tonãn, aço tlaqualli: ic quicaoaia.

821
793
785
[535]

water, in order that they should let him go, he offered the priests something of value—either a turkey or food. In return for it they let [his son] be.

And when this came to pass, everywhere, in the houses of all, in each house, etz·lli[9] was eaten. Each one made etzalli for himself; and there was a dance in which etzalli was begged. With green maize stalks they danced. Those who danced the etzalli dance entered house after house, each one begging and asking. [The householders] offered them all this same etzalli, [placing it] in the small jars, the etzalli jars, which they bore in their hands.

These [gods] were called Tlalocs. To them were attributed clouds, rain, hail, snow, mist, sheet lightning, thunder, and lightning bolts which struck men.

The Rainbow

821

As if arched—bent and rounded—it thus appeared. Varicolored, many-hued was its appearance. The single colors which showed in it [were] green, dark green, blue green, and black; and yellow and orange or tawny; then vermillion and ruby red; and [various shades of] blue, and dark green.[10]

And they said that when it appeared it revealed, made evident to men, and denoted—whereby it was known, realized, and seen—that it would not rain; would not rain hard—would not pour. But it would break up the clouds. It would dissipate, impede, and quiet the rain—the downpour which wet, soaked, and drenched one. If clouds piled up, if heavy clouds blackened [the sky] so that everywhere it was dark, it only dissipated [them]. Although it rained, no longer was the rain heavy; no longer did it increase. It only sprinkled; it drizzled; a few drops fell; a haze, a fog, a thin mist drifted and fell. Or at most it sprinkled; the sprinkling and the spray continued.

And they said—it was averred—[that] if it appeared over maguey plants, because of it the green [leaves] yellowed, turned, dried, reddened, and withered. And also they said [that] when it appeared many times, thereby it was evident [that] the rains were to end forthwith. They said: "Soon the masters of the rain will go; already the Tlalocs are about to leave."

Auh in icoac, y, in nouiian techachan, in cecencalpan etzalqualoia: ceceiaca metzalhuiaia, yoan etzalmaceoaloia: cintopiltica mitotia, tepan cacalaqui, motlatlaeuia, motlatlaitlanja, in etzalmaceuhque: çan muche in etzalli quinmaca, inxozochuicol, imeetzalcon intlan caana.

In ichoantin, y, moteneoa tlaloque: intech tlamiloia in mistli, in quiauitl, in teciuitl, in cêpaiauitl, in aiauitl, in tlapetlaniliztli, in tlatlatziniliztli, in teuitequiliztli.

Aiauhcoçamalotl.

Iubquin uitoliuhqui: tlauitoltic, coltic, inic oalmoquetza, tlatlatlapalpoalli, motlatlapalpouh in itlachieliz. In centlamantli tlapalli, itech neci: xozoctic, quiltic, quilpaltic, iiapaltic, quilpalli, iiapalli: yoan coztic, xopaltic, xochipalli: niman ie chichiltic, tlapaltic: yoã tlaztaleoaltic, tlaztaleoalli: yoan texôtic, texôdli, matlaltic, matlalli.

Auh quitoa, in icoac oalmoquetza: quinestia, quiteittitia, quinezcaiotia, ic macho, ic machizti, ic itto: in azno quiauiz, amo tlaelquiauiz, amo tilaoaz: çan quimomoiaoaz in mistli, quipopoloa, quelleltia, quiiacatzacuilia in quiiauitl, in tlaelquiiauitl: in tepaltili, in techacoani, in teçoquitili. Intla cenca omotlatlali mistli, in ouel cuicuicheoac, in onouiian tlatlaiooac: çan quipopopoloa. Intlanel quiaui, aocmo cenca tilaoa, aocmo molhuia: ça aoachquiani, aoachtli in onueuetzi, in onchichipini: aoachpitzactli, aoachpicilli, aoachpiciltoton, in ontzitzicuini in onueuetzi: anoçe çan aoachtilaoa, aoachtilaoatimani, aoachtzetzeliuhtimani.

Auh quitoa, quilmach intla metl, ipan moquetza: ic macueçaliciui, macoçauia, maoaqui, machichilini, matlatlauja, macuetlauja. No yoan quitoa, in icoac miecpa oalmoquetza: ic neci, çan cuel quiçaz, in quiiauitl: quitoaia, çan cuel iazque in aoaque, ie quiçazque in tlaloque.

9. Etzalli: cf. Anderson and Dibble, op. cit., p. 79.

10. Sahagún (Memorial con ensalmo) has green for xoxoctic, quilte, quilpaltic, iiapaltic, quilpalli, and iiapalli. Alonso de Molina, in his Vocabulario de la lengua mexicana (Julio Platzmann, ed.; Leipzig: B. G. Teubner, 1880), gives blue-green for quilpaltic and brown or black for iiapaltic. The second occurrence of this latter word of quilpalli is omitted in this translation; Molina translates xochipaltic as ruddy or rose-colored. In Memorial con ensalmo, Sahagún writes both chichiltic and iiapaltic as red. For tlaztaleoaltic, Molina has red or rose-colored. For matlaltic and matlalli, the Memorial has blue.

Sahagún M-S (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

Sixth Chapter. Here are mentioned the snow, the clouds, and the hail.

Ic chiouacen capitulo, vncan mitoa: in cẽpaisuitl, yoan mistli, yoan in teciuitl.

[Frost]

The frost [god] was called Itztlacoliuhqui. Once yearly the cold came. During the feast of Ochpaniztli the cold began. And for one hundred and twenty days—one hundred and twenty suns—this persisted and there was cold. And it ended and disappeared [during the feast] called Tititi.

When [the month] came to an end, it was said: "For the frost hath departed. Now there will be sowing—it will be the time of sowing. Already land will be planted, so that [seeds] will be placed in the soil. Already it is warm, mild, calm. Already the season is good, the time is propitious; the hour is at hand; the time is ripe; the moment hath come." [For] already they hastened and were diligent. Already there was unrest; all men would be agitated and solicitous; they would be preoccupied. No longer would there be rest. Already the days would fly;[11] already there would be the setting forth for the working of the fields, the fresh working of the soil, the reworking of the fields; already the fields would be reworked. Now there would be planting of beans; beans would be placed. Now amaranth seed would be cast broadside; amaranth would be placed. Now chia seed would be cast; chili plants set out and transplanted. Already off-shoots would be pruned and separated, and all would bear fruit.

Cetl, mitoa: itztlacoliuhqui, cexiuhtica in oallatiuh, in ceuetzi: ipan ochpaniztli, in peoa ceuetzi. Auh chicoacempoalilhuitl, chicuacẽpoaltonal: in mani, in ceuetzi. Auh ipan quiça, ipan poliui, in itoca tititl: 821 776 icoac tlami, mitoa ca oquiz in cetl, ie tocoz, ie toquizpan, ie tlatlalaquiloz, ic tlallan ontlatlaliloz: ie tlatotonja, ie tlacacaoaca, ie tlaiamanja: ie qualcan, ie uncan, ie inman, ie tlainman, otlainmantic: ie tlaciui, otlaciuh, ie ncamaloz, ie neacomanaloz, ie nemociuiloz, ie tlamociuiz, aoc onnetlaliloz: ie tlacaitl eoaz, ie motocaz in tlaelimictli, in tlapopoxolli, in çacamolli, ie çacamoloz, je etlaxoz, ie etlaçaloz: ie ouhpixoloz, ie ouhquetzaloz, ie chiempixoloz, ie chiltecoz, ie chilaquiloz: ie onpipilcotoz, ie onnemaiaohoaz, ie netlacatiloz.

Snow

It was only the servant and companion which followed, accompanied, and spread the frost over the earth. It was considered to be like the rain. And it was said that when there was snow, [crops] would be harvested; the crops would be good. It foretold, and was an omen of, [good] crops.

Cepaisuitl.

Çan iuical, çan itlauical, quitoquilia, quitocatiuh, yoã onotiuh in cetl: iuhquin quiauitl ipan poui. Auh mitoa, in icoac cepaiaui: piscoz, tlamochioaz: quinestia, inezca in piaquiztli. 821

11. Here we follow Leonhard Schultze Jena: Wahrsagerei, Himmelskörper und Kalender der alten Azteken, aus dem aztekischen Urtext Bernardino de Sahagún's übersetzt und erläutert (Stuttgart: W. Kohlhammer Verlag, 1956), pp. 53, 268-269. An alternative, however, might be "turn out forth, or raise" (tlamoil, ons).

Our condition of explicitness and commodiousness is preciseness.

5: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

821
[176]

Clouds

When [clouds] billowed and formed thunderheads, and settled and hung about the mountain tops, it was said: "The Tlalocs are already coming. Now it will rain. Now the masters of the rain will sprinkle water."

Hail

It was formed and took shape when very white clouds settled on mountain tops. It was said: "Now it will hail; now our food will be hailed out."

And thus did hail fall, making a din as of rattling, beating one about the head, pelting one [as if] with stones. Thus, truly, died and were despoiled our crops. For some distance, it flattened on the ground and spread birds over the surface of the water. At that time the water dwellers went gathering for themselves; they brought in their catch.

821
189

And that it might not hail, that they might not be hailed upon, and the young maize plants might not be damaged by hail, then the [sorcerers who] cast away hail and rain drove and headed it off. They removed it from the waters [of the lake]; they showed it the way and took it [hence]. Or else they cast it forth into the deserted places, the uncultivated lands where there were no crops, no one lived, and nothing existed; poverty-ridden lands—barren lands where nothing grew, nothing issued: the land was void. It was only an abandoned place; the [very] stones were dry.

Mistli.

In iconc tepeticpac moloni, momoloca, motlatlalia, mopiloa: mitoaia, ca ie uitze in tlaloque, ie quiauiz, ie pixauizque in aoaque.

Teciuitl

Ic muchioa, ic neci: in iconc tepeticpac motlatlalia mistli, cēca iztac: mitoa, ca ie teciuiz, ie teciuiloz in tonacaiotl.

Auh inic uetzi teciuitl, iuhquin tlacacalaca, tequacacalanja, temomotla: vel ic miqui, ic ispoliui, ic tonacamiqui, cematl quimana, atlisco quinmana in totome. Auh vel oncan mopisquia, quin mopisquia, tonacatlama, in atlaca.

Auh inic amo teciuiz, inic amo teciuiloz, inic amo tecinmiquiz toctli: niman quitopeoa, quipeuia, in teciuhtlazque, in quiiauhtlazque atlanpa quisquanja, quitlachieltia, quiuica: anoço vmpa quitlaça in çacatla, çacaistl-oacan, in atle imuchioaian, atle iionoia, atle onoc, atle iieoaia, atle eoatoc, atle iquiçaiā, atle quiztoc, atle onuetztoc: çan iuhcatla, tetl oaoacca.

5: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

THE SEVENTH BOOK TREATETH OF THE SUN, MOON, AND STARS, AND OF THE YEAR OF JUBILEE

EL 7.° LIBRO TRATA DEL SOL Y DE LUNA Y ESTRELLAS Y DEL AÑO DEL JUBILEO.[19]

First Chapter, of the sun.

821 The sun hath the quality of shining and of lighting and of casting rays from himself. He is hot and he scareth; he maketh one sweat, and turneth a man's body and face dark brown or tawny.

El sol tiene propriedad de resplandecer y de alumbrar y de echar rayos de si. Es caliente y tuesta, haze sudar pa hosco o loro el cuerpo y la cara de la persona.

821 785 782 They celebrated a feast to the sun once each year in the sign named Four Olin. And before the feast they fasted four days as the vigil of the feast. And in this feast of the sun, four times they offered incense and blood from the ears—once at sunrise, another time at midday, at the vesper hour, and when [the sun had] set.

Hazian fiesta al sol vna vez cada año en el signo que se llama 4. olin. Y antes de la fiesta ayunavan quatro dias como vigilia de la fiesta. Y en esta fiesta del sol ofrecian encienso y sãgre de las orejas quatro vezes: vna en saliendo el sol, otra al medio dia, y a la hora de visperas y qñ se ponia.

Ytzcaliui. t. itzcaliuhtica in noyollo: My heart is calmed, or resteth, in love. Pret., oitzcaliuh. oitzcaliuhticatca.

33. ytzcaliui. t. itzcaliuhtica yn noyollo. refriarse o declino mi coraçon en el amor. ꝑt.° oitzcaliuh. oitzcaliuhticatca.

Vel cen tecomatl in atl ocontzineuh: A whole gourd[ful of water] was overturned while being drunk.

34. Vel cen tecomatl ỹ atl ocontzineuh. trastornose vna xicara ẽtera beuiẽdola.

19. Sahagún (Paso y Troncoso ed.), Vol. VI, pp. 177-215.

5: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

821 And when he came forth in the morning, they said: "Now the sun starteth his work. How will it be? What will come to pass on this day?"

And at sunset they said: "The sun hath ended his work, or task." Sometimes when the sun riseth, he seemeth blood-colored; and at times whitish; and sometimes he riseth sickly-hued because of the mist or the clouds which cover him.

When the sun is eclipsed, he turneth red; it seemeth that the sun becometh disquieted, or troubled; or he moveth to and fro, or he stirreth. And he turneth very yellow.

821 When the people see this, they then raise a tumult.
785 And a great fear taketh them, and then the women
782 weep aloud. And the men cry out, [at the same time] striking their mouths with [the palms of] their hands. And everywhere great shouts and cries and howls were raised. And then they hunted out men of fair hair and white faces; and they sacrificed them to the sun. And also they sacrificed captives, and they anointed themselves with the blood of their [own] ears. And, besides, they bored [the lobes of]

Y quando a la mañana salia dezian ya comiença el sol su obra que sera, que acontecera ẽ este dia.

Y a la puesta del sol, dezian acabo su obra, o su tarea el sol. A las vezes qñ sale el sol pareçe de color de sangre: y a las vezes parece blanquezino: y a las vezes sale de color enfermizo por razon de las nieblas o de las nubes que se le afponẽ.

Quando se eclipsa el sol parase colorado parece que se desasosiega o se turba el sol, o se remeçe, o rebuelue y amarillecese mucho.

Quando esto vẽe la gente luego se alborota.
Y tomales gran temor, y luego las mugeres lloran a vozes. Y los hombres dan grita hiriendo las bocas con la mano. Y en todas ptes se dauã grandes bozes y gritos, y alaridos. Y luego buscavan los hombres de cabellos blancos y caras blãcas: y los sacrificauan al sol. Y tambien sacrificauan captiuos y se vntauã con la sangre de las oreias: y tambien aguieraua las oreias con puntas de maguei y passuan mimbres o cosa semeiante por los aguieros q̃ las puntas avian

5: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

821
785
782

their ears with maguey spines and passed flexible twigs or the like through the holes which the spines had made. And then, in all the temples, they sang and sounded [musical instruments], making a great din. And they said: "If the sun becometh completely eclipsed, nevermore will he give light; eternal darkness will fall, and the demons will come down. They will come to eat us!"

hecho. Y luego por todos los templos cantauan y tañian haziendo gran ruido. Y dezian si del todo se acaba de eclipsar el sol nunca mas alumbrara ponerse han perpetuas tinieblas y descenderan los demonios vendran nos a comer.

Second Chapter.

821

When the moon newly appeareth, he seemeth like a thin, little curve of wire. He doth not yet shine. By little and little he goeth growing. On the fifteenth day he is full. And when now he is full, he cometh forth in the east at sunset. He seemeth like a great millstone—very round and very red. And as he goeth rising, he becometh white or shining. [There is what] looketh like a rabbit in the middle of him. And if there are no clouds he shineth almost like the

Capitulo Segũdo

Quando la luna nuevamẽte nace, parece como vn arquito de alambre delgado aun no resplandece: poco a poco va creciendo. A los quinze dias es llena. Y qũ ya es llena sale por el oriente a la puesta del sol: parece como vna rueda de molino grande muy redonda y muy colorada. Y qũ va subiendo se para blanca o resplandeziente: parece como vn conejo en medio della. Y si no ay nubes resplandece casi como el sol, casi como de dia. Y d'spues de llena cũpli-

5: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

821
532

—After Paso y Troncoso

1. Sun
2. Moon
3. The rabbit in the moon
4. Eclipse of the moon
5. Comet
6. Comet's tail
7. Stars
8. The Winds
9-10. Lightning
11. Clouds
12. Rainbow

[p. 38 (D)]

5: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

●821
532
372
796
782

—After Paso y Troncoso

13. Ice, snow, and hail
14. Storing food against famine
15. Delivering children into bondage
16. Boring new fire on the breast of a sacrificial victim
17. New fire in the temples
18. New fire taken to homes
19. Breaking and throwing away household goods at the end of the fifty-two-year cycle

[p. 38 (E)]

5: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

821
532

—After Paso y Troncoso

21. Sun, moon, and stars, and other natural phenomena, from Primeros Memoriales, Cap. 2

1. Sun
2. Moon
3. Eclipse of sun
4. Eclipse of moon
5. Fire drill
6. Fire drill
7. Venus
8-9. Comet
10. Comet's tail
11. S-shaped stars
12. Scorpion

[p. 38 (H)]

805 821
532

—After Paso y Troncoso

22. Natural Phenomena and year signs, from Primeros Memoriales, cap. 2

13. Wind
14. Lightning bolt
15. Rain
16. Rainbow
17. Frost
18. Cloud
19. Snow
20. Hail

Year signs, beginning at top
One Rabbit
Two Reed
Three Flint Knife
Four House

[p. 38(I)]

S: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

821

sun; [it is] almost as daytime. And after he hath become completely full, by little and little he goeth waning until he becometh as he was when he began. They then say: "Now the moon dieth; now he deepeth." This is when he riseth with the dawn at the time of the conjunction. They say: "Now the moon is dead."

damente poco a poco se va menguando hasta que se va a hazer como quando començo: dizen entonces ya se muere la luna, ya se duerme Esto es quando sale ya con el alua al tpo de la coniuncion: dizen ya es muerta la luna.

539 After the sun had set, the moon began to move. Thus the one got away from the other. And thus they come forth at different times. The sun endureth one day, and the moon worketh at night (or illuminateth at night). From this cometh what is said: that Tecuciztecatl would have been the sun if he had cast himself first into the fire, because he was named first, and offered precious things in his penance.

Despues que el sol se puso començo la luna a andar: desta manera se desuiaron el vno del otro: y ansi salen ẽ diuersos tiempos. El sol dura vn dia y la luna trabaia en la noche o alumbra en la noche. De aqui parece lo que se dize q̃ el tecuciztecatl avia de ser sol si p'mero se ouiera echado en el fuego porque el p'mero fue nõbrado y ofrecio cosas preciosas en su pñia.

Eclipse of the Moon.

● 821 When the moon is eclipsed, he becometh almost dark; he becometh blackened; he turneth a dark brown. Then the earth darkeneth. When this cometh to pass, women with child feared miscarriage. A great dread seized them that that which they had in their bodies would become mice. And as a remedy for this they took a piece of obsidian in the mouth or they placed it in the girdle over the belly and [did so] in order that the children [whom they carried] in the womb would not be born lipless or noseless or wry-mouthed, or cross-eyed, or that [one] might not be born monstrous.

[843 751]

Quando la luna se eclipsa parase casi oscura, ennegrecese, parase bosca: luego se escurese la tierra. Quando esto aconteçe las preñadas temian de abortar, tomauales gran temor que lo q̃ tenian en el cuerpo se a de boluer raton. Y para remedio desto tomavan vn pedaço de ytztli ẽ la boca o ponianle en la çintura sobre el vientre y para que los ninos que en el vientre no saliesen sin beços o sin narizes, o boquituertos, o bizgos: o porq̃ no naciese monstro.

The people of Xaltocan held the moon as a god and made him special offerings and sacrifices.

Los de xaltoca tenian por dios a la luna y le hazia particulares ofrendas y sacrificios.

5: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

Third Chapter, of the Stars Called Castor and Pollux.

821
782
1

These people paid particular reverence and [made] special sacrifices to Castor and Pollux, in the sky, which move near the Pleiades, which are in the sign of Taurus. They made these sacrifices and ceremonies when [the stars] newly appeared to the east after sunset. After having offered incense, they said: "Now [hath] Yoaltecutli come forth, and Yacauiztli. What will come to pass this night? Or what end will the night have—fortunate or adverse?" Three times they offered incense (and [this] must be because they are three stars), the first time at the first quarter of the night, another time at ten, and the third [time] when it beginneth to be morning.—They name these stars mamalhuaztli, and by that same name they call the sticks with which they drill a fire; because it seemeth to them that they somewhat resemble [the stars] and that from them there came to them this manner of producing fire. From this it was customary that the

821
372

Hazia esta gente particular reuerencia y particulares sacrificios a los mastelexos del cielo q̃ andã cerca de las cabrillas que es en el signo del toro. hazian estos sacrificios y cerimonias qñ nueuamente parecia por el oriente despues de la puesta del sol. Despues de auer ofrecidole encienso, dezian ya salido youaltecutli y yacauiztli, que acontecera esta noche o que fin abra la noche prospero o aduerso. Tres vezes ofrecian encienso y deue ser porque ellas son tres estrellas. la vna vez a p'ma noche. la otra vez a hora de las dez. la 3.ª quando comiença amanecer.—llaman a estas estrellas mamalhuaztli y por este mismo nõbre llaman a los palos con q̃ sacan lumbre porq̃ les parece q̃ tienen alguna semeiança cõ ellas y que de alli les vino esta manera de sacar fuego. De aqui tomaron por costumbre de hazer vnas quemaduras en la moñeca los varones a honrra de aq̃llas estrellas. Dezian que el q̃ no fuese señalado de aquellas que-

5: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec.NU7

821
372
[775]

men make certain burns on the wrist in honor of those stars. They said of him who was not marked by those burns that, when he died, there in hell they would produce fire on his wrist, drilling it as those do who here drill fire with the stick.

maduras quando se muriese q̃ alla en el infierno avian de sacar el fuego de su moñeca barrenãdola como qñ aca sacã el fuego del palo.

821
787

The star Venus these people named Citlalpol or Uey citlalin, and they said that when it riseth in the east it maketh four assaults. The [first] three times it shineth little and hideth again; and at the fourth it cometh forth with all its brightness and followeth its course. And they say of its light that it is like that of the moon. On its first assault they held it an omen of evil, saying that it brought sickness with it. And therefore they shut the doors and windows so that its light might not come in. And sometimes they took it as a good omen. And at the beginning of the time that it started to appear to the east, they slew captive men in reverence to it, and offered it their blood, spattering it toward [the star] with their fingers.

A la estrella de venus la llamaua esta gente citlalpul, vey citlalli y dezian que quando sale por el oriente haze quatro aremetidas, y a las tres luze poco y bueluese a asconder: y a la quarta sale con toda su claridad y procede por su curso. y dizen de su luz que parece a la de la luna. En primera arremetida teniaula de mal aguero diziendo que traya enfermedad consigo, y por esto cerrauan las puertas y ventanas porq̃ no entrase su luz. Y a las vezes la tomavan por buen aguero. Y al p'ncipio de tp̃o que començaua a aparecer por el oriente matauan hõbres captiuos por su reuerencia, y ofrecianle la sangre salpicando hazia ella con los dedos.

S: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Astec NU7

Fourth Chapter.

821 [787]

The comet these people called citlalin popoca, which meaneth smoking star. They held it as a prognostication of the death of some prince or a king, or of war, or of hunger. The common folk said: "This is our hunger."

Llamaua esta gente a la cometa. citlalin popoca que q. d. estrella que humea: tenianla por prenostico de la muerte de algun principe o rey, o de guerra, o de hambre. La gente vulgar dezia, esta es nra hambre.

The flam...g [tail] of the comet these people called citlalin tlamina, which meaneth, the star casteth a dart. And they said that that dart always fell upon something living—a hare, or a rabbit, or some other animal; and wherewever it would go, a worm was then formed. Wherefore that animal was not to be

A la inflamacion de la cometa, llamaua esta gente citlalin tlamina que q. d. la estrella tira saeta y dezian que siempre q̃ aquella saeta. caya sobre algũa cosa biua liebre o conejo o otro animal, y donde yria luego se criaua vn gusano. Por lo qual aquel animal no era de comer. Por esta causa procuraua esta gente de eaten. For this reason these people took pains to cover themselves at night, so that the tail of the comet might not fall upon them.

●821

shrigurse de noche porque la inflamacion de la cometa no cayese sobrellos.

The stars which are in the Little Bear these people call Citlalxonecuilli. They represent them in the shape of an s, backwards, [of] seven stars. They say they are by themselves, apart from the others, and that they are brilliant. They call them Citlalxonecuilli because they resemble a certain kind of bread which they make like an s, which they call xonecuilli, which bread was eaten in all the houses each year on the day named Xochilhuitl.

[262]

A las estrellas que estan en la boca de la bozina llama este gente citlalxonecuilli. pintanlas a manera de ese xhuelta siete estrellas, dizen q̃ estan por a aptadas de las otras y que son resplandecientes. llamanles citlalxonecuilli porq̃ tienẽ semejãça con cierta manera de pan que hazen a manera de ese al qual llaman xonecuilli, el qual pan se coõia en todas las casas vn dia el año q̃ se llama xuchilhuitl.

Those stars which, in some places, are called the Great Bear these people called the Scorpion, because they make the outline of a scorpion[28] or alacrán.

Aquellas estrellas q̃ en algunas ptes se llama el carro. esta gente las llama esculpiõ porque tienen figura de esculpion o alacran.

28. Scorpion. In the original, the l may have been changed to s.

5: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

821
[176]

These people attributed the wind to a god whom they named Quetzalcoatl, something like god of the wind. The wind bloweth from the four quarters of the world by command of this god, according to what they said. The first quarter it cometh from is from the east, where they say is the terrestrial paradise which they call Tlalocan. This wind they called Tlalocayotl. It is not a furious gale; when it bloweth, it doth not hinder the canoes from moving on the water. The second wind bloweth from the north, where they say hell is; and hence they name it Mictlampa ehecatl, which meaneth the infernal wind. In hin vel ymacazo, etc.: this wind is violent, and therefore they fear it greatly. When it bloweth, canoes cannot go on the water. And all which are on the water come out with all the speed they can [manner] because of fear when it bloweth; for often they are endangered by it. The third wind bloweth from the west, where they said was the abode of the Amazons. They called it Cizuhlampa ehecatl or Cizuhcayotl, which is to say wind which bloweth from where the women abide. This wind is not savage, but it is cold. It maketh one tremble with cold. With this wind, navigation is good. The fourth wind bloweth from the south, and they name it Uitz-

Esta gente atribuia el viento a vn dios q̃ llamauan quetzalcoatl bien así como dios de los vientos. Soplaua el viento de quatro ptes del mundo por mandamiento deste dios segun ellos dezian. De la vna pte viene de hazia el oriente, donde ellos dizen estar el payso terrenal al qual llaman tlalocan. A este viento la llamauan tlalocayotl: no es viento furioso, quando el sopla no impide las canoas andar por el agua. El segundo viento sopla de hazia el norte donde ellos dizen estar el infierno y así le llaman mictlampa ehecatl que q. d. el viento infernal. Yn hin vel ymacazo etc. este viento es furioso y por eso le temen mucho quando el sopla no pueden andar las canoas por el agua. Y todos los que andan por el agua se salen por temor q̃ el sopla con toda priesa que puedẽ porque muchas vezes peligran con el. El tercero viento sopla de hazia el occidente donde ellos dezian que era la abitacion de las amaçonas llamauanle cizuhlampa ehecatl o cizuhcayotl que q. d. viento que sopla de donde abitan las mugeres. este viento no es furioso: pero es frio, hazе templar de frio con este viento bien se navegan El quarto viento sopla de hazia el medio dia y llamauale vizitlãpa ehecatl q. d. viento q̃ sopla de aquella pte donde fueron los dioses que llaman vizitzuava: este viento en estas ptes es furioso, tlampa chocul, which moveth wind blowing from that quarter where went the gods whom they call the Uoiznauia. This wind, in these parts, is violent, dangerous for boating. Such is its fury sometimes that it uprooteth trees and overturneth walls, and raiseth great waves in the water. Canoes which it moveth in the water it casteth to the bottom or raiseth high. It is savage like the arctic or north [wind].

5: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

821

peligroso pa nauegar, tanta es su furia a algũas veces que arancan los arboles y trastornan las paredes, y leuanta grandes olas en el agua las canoas que topa en el agua echalas a fundo o las leuanta en alto, esta furioso como el cierço o norte.

5: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Astec NU7

821
[776]

Variously they named the sheet lightning or thunder bolts. They attributed them to the Tlalocs or tlamacazque. They said that these made the thunderbolts and sheet lightning and peals of thunder, and [that] they smote with them whomsoever they would.

Por diversos nombres nonbran al relampago o rayo atribuyile a los tlaloques o tlamacazes. Dezian que ellos hazian los rayos y relampagos y truenos y ellos herian con ellos a quien querian.

821
793
[776]

Fifth Chapter

Clouds and rain these natives attributed to a god whom they called Tlalocan tecutli, who had many other [gods] under his command, who were named Tlalocs and tlamacazque. These [people] thought that they created all things needed for the body, such as maize and beans, etc.; and that they sent the rains so that all things growing in the earth would

Las nubes y las plouias atribuianlas estos naturales a vn dios que llamauan tlaloca tecutli, el qual tenia muchos otros debaxo de su dominio a los quales llamauan tlaloque y tlamacazque. Estos pensauan que criauan todas las cosas necessarias pa el cuerpo como mayz y frisoles etc. Y que ellos embiauan las plouias para que nasciesen todas las cosas que se crian burst forth. And when they observed the feast of this god and his subjects, before the celebration, those whom they called tlamacazque (who lived in the temple house named calmecac) fasted four days. And, the fast concluded, if there were a malefactor among them, in honor of those gods they mishandled him in the lake, dragging and kicking him through the mire and through the water.

5: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

821
793

en la tierra. Y quando hazian fiesta a este dios y a sus subiectos antes de la fiesta ayunauã quatro dias aquellos que llamauan tlamacazque los quale: morauan en la casa del templo llamada calmecac. Y acabãdo el ayuno si algun malhechor entre ellos avia por honrra de aquellos dioses le maltrataua en la laguna arrestrandole y acozcandole por el cieno y por el agua.

5: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

821
793

And if he tried to rise, by force they again pushed him under the water, until they almost drowned him. They who, in the house called calmecac, committed some fault—like breaking some vessel, or some such thing—these they seized and kept under guard in order to punish them on that day. And sometimes the parents of him who was thus detained gave chickens or capes or other things to the priests so that they would let [him] go and not drown [him]. To those whom they thus illtreated, neither their parents nor their kin dared show favor nor speak for them, if previously they had not freed them while they were imprisoned; and so badly did they treat [the victims] that they even left them almost for dead cast on the brink of the water. Then their parents took them up and carried them to their houses. In this feast of these gods, all the common folk ate maize boiled like rice. And the priests went dancing and singing through the streets. In one hand they carried a stalk of green maize, and in the other a pot with a handle. In this way they went asking that [the householders] give them boiled maize. And all the common folk cast that boiled maize into the pots which they carried.

y si se queria leuantar tornauãle por fuerça, a meter debaxo del agua hasta que casi le ahogauã. Los que en la casa llamada calmecac hazian algun defecto como es quebrar alguna banija o cosa semejante los prendian y tenian guardados para castigallos aquel dia. Y algunas vezes los padres del que asi estaua preso daban galinas, o mantas o otras cosas a los tlamacaces porque lo soltasen y no le ahogasen. A los que maltrataua desta manera ni sus padres ni sus parientes osauan favorecellos ni hablar por ellos si antes no los avian librado estando presos y tanto los maltrataua hasta que los dexaua casi por muertos arrojados a la orilla del agua. Entonces los tomauan sus padres y los lleuauan a sus casas. En esta fiesta destos dioses todos los macehuales comian mayz cozido hecho como arroz. Y los tlamacaces andauan bayllando y cantando por las calles en vna mano trayan vña caña de mayz verde y en otra vna olla con asa por este modo andaua demandando que les diesen mayz cozido y todos los macehuales les echauan en las ollas que trayan de aquel mayz cozido.

5: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

821
776

They said that these gods made the clouds, the rains, and hail, snow, peals of thunder, sheet lightning, and thunderbolts.

Estos dioses dezian que hazian las nubes y las lluuias, y el granizo, y la nieue, y los truenos y los relampagos y los rayos.

821

The rainbow is something like an arch of hewn stone. It showeth divers colors. When it appeareth, it is a sign of clear weather.

El arco del cielo es a manera de arco de canteria tiene aparencia de diuersos colores. quando aparece es señal de serenidad.

[i.e. Tlaloccan tecutli & Tlalocs & tlamacazque -A]

821 And when the rainbow fixeth itself over a maguey, they said it would cause [the plant] to dry or wither. And they also said that when the rainbow appeareth often, it is a sign that the season of rain is about to cease.

y quando de arco del cielo se pone sobre algun maguey dezian que le haria secar o marchitar. Y tanbiẽ dezian que quando espesas vezes aparece el arco del cielo, es señal que ya quieren cesar las aguas.

*787 was chaste and conscientious; who was audacious, who saved all, who sought his sustenance; who planned, sought, and watched for that which might alleviate, for that which he might lay hand on in the near future, and for what he might offer his children; for what might be obtained, and what he could quickly seize if sickness and misfortune came.

Thus, everywhere he watched for, considered, and sought whatsoever he might use as merchandise, whatsoever his manner of wares might be; whatsoever he might live by, by which he might increase and augment his goods and his gains.

And this one emerged, and rose to honor, if he deliberated well, and was attentive, not resentful of criticism, nor lazy. The counsel with which he was counseled and the rearing with which he was reared took effect; he seized and held fast to it. And if he was made fun of, he took no revenge; he made no reprisals. He returned nothing in kind.

[684 565] And if a woman were then born, it likewise befell her as hath been said and told above. If a noblewoman was an adulteress, her head was crushed between two stones so that she died. And only in misery and affliction was she given to dwell. She encountered misery and want. Nowhere on earth was her face radiant; nowhere on earth was she [of any account]; nowhere was she regarded; nowhere did she hold a husband. Thus was it stated: "Just so is her nature; so is her life; so her birthright; and so her day sign. Thus, on such [a day], was she bathed; at such a time was she born. Monstrous was her day sign; a wild beast was she; hers was the day of the wild beast, etc."

782 And they venerated Four Movement as a day sign. Thus did they say, that it was the day sign of the ● 821 sun. Moctezuma paid great honor to it. When it was this day, when Four Movement set in, they slew quail and offered incense before the image of the sun; they placed on it what was known as the spreading red arara feather device. And at noon captives died and were slain [as sacrifices].

*787 And for him who was then born, no [true sign] appeared. In two ways might it fall. They said that if it were a man, he might either take captives or die in war. As they said, "With this the sun is nourished." Hence everyone did penances when it was this sign. At this time all came together from all parts; none remained or did otherwise. Verily, everyone — men, women, children — cut their ears and vmpilcamc, in jxqujch caana, in qujtemoa in jcochca, yn jneuhca, in qujlnamjqui, in conjttilia, in contlachielia, tle itech vmpatiz, tle itech ontlaanaz in macujl, in matlac, tlẽ qujmonmacaz in jpilhoan, çan onmaçoaz, tlẽ concujtivetziz in ocalla cocolizttli icnoiotl:

ic noviiampa mjztia tlanemjlia, qujtemoa, in tlein qujmoonanauhtiz, in catleoatl inanauh vmmuchioaz, in tlein vel ic onnemjz, ic onmacoquetzaz, ic ontlapiujaz itlatquj icnopillouh.

Ioan ichoatl qujçaia, panvetzia, in vel monotza, in tlacacoquj, in amo qujquammati, qujtemati in onotzaloca, izcaliloca, içan itech qujpachoa, içan qujmacuj, qujmapiquj: auh intla ica necacaiaoalo, amo qujtecnepiliaia, amo qujcuepcaiotia, atle ic qujlochtia.

Auh intla çioatl ipan otlacat: no iuhquj ipan muchioaia, in tlacpac omjto, omoteneuh: intla cioapilli tetlãximaia, quatepipitzinjloia injc mjquja: auh çan icnoiotica, cococaiotica, in monenemjtiaia, icnoiotl, netolinjlizttli qujtztinemj, ãcan ixtona in tlalticpac, ãcan tlalticpac ca, ãcan motztica, ãcan vel oqujchpia: ic mjtoaia, ca njman iuh qujz, iuhquj iioliliz, iuhquj itlacatiliz, iuhquj itonal, iuhquj ipan malti, iuhcan tlacat, ãtlacacemelle in jtonal, ca tequanj, tequantonale. Etc.

Auh in naolin qujtonaltiaia: iuh qujtoaia, itonal in tonatiuh, cenca qujmavizziliaia in Motecuçuma: yn jquac, y, moquetzaia naolin, tlacotonaia, tlenamacaia, yn ixpan ixiptla tonatiuh, qujtlaliaia itoca cueçaltonameiotl: auh in nepantla tonatiuh, mjquja, mjctiloia, in mamalti:

auh in aquin ipan tlacatia, atle vel inezca, vme vitz qujtoa. Yntla oqujchtli aço tlamaz, anoço iaomjquiz: in iuh qujtoaia, ca ica moztaltia in tonatiuh, ic muchi tlacatl tlamaceoaia. yn jquac, y in vncã, y, cenvetzi, ipanoca, aiac mocaoa, aiac ixcavi, vel mochi tlacatl in oqujchtli, in çioatl, im piltzintli, monacatequia, mjçoia, mjtoaia: ic izcaltilo in tonatiuh.

Also at the opening of this count is placed the manner of counting the years, because these two counts are linked or matched.

Here followeth the reckoning of all the time-counts which these natives had.

The longest time-count which they reckoned was up to one hundred and four years. And this count they called a century.

Half of this count, fifty-two years, they called a bundle of years. This period of years they had reckoned from times past; it is not known when it began. But they considered it well established and a matter of belief that the world would come to an end at the conclusion of one of these bundles of years. They had a prophecy or oracle that at that time the movement of the heavens would cease, and they took as a sign [of this] the movement of the Pleiades. On the night of this feast, which they called Toximmolpilia [the Binding of the Years], it so befell that the Pleiades were at the zenith at midnight, with respect to the horizon in Mexico. On this night they made new fire, and before they made it, they extinguished all the fires in all the provinces, towns, and houses in all of this New Spain. And they went in a great and solemn procession. All of the priests and servants of the temple departed from here, the Temple of Mexico, during the first quarter of the night, and went to the summit of that mountain near Itztapalapan which they call Uitzachtecatl. They reached the summit at midnight, or almost, where stood a great pyramid built for that ceremony. Having reached there, they looked at the Pleiades to see if they were at the zenith, and if they were not, they waited until they were. And when they saw that now they passed the zenith, they knew that the movement of the heavens had not ceased and that the end of the world was not then, but that they would have another fifty-two years, assured that the world would not come to an end.

At this hour a great multitude of people was on the mountains surrounding this province of Mexico — Texcoco, Xochimilco, and Quauhtitlan — waiting to see the new fire, which was a signal that the world would continue. And when the priests made the fire, with great ceremony, upon the pyramid on that mountain, then it was seen from all the surrounding

Tambien en el principio desta cuenta se pone la manera de contar de los años, porque estas dos cuentas andã vinculadas o pareadas. 805

La cuenta de todos los tiempos, que tenjan estos naturales, es la que se sigue.

La mayor cuenta de tiempo, que contauan era hasta ciento y quatro años, y a esta cuenta llamauan vn siglo, a la mitad desta cuẽta, que son cincuenta y dos años llamauan vna gavilla de años, este tiempo de años, trayanla ab antiquo contados, no se sabe quando começo: pero tenjan por muy aueriguado, y como de fe, que el mũdo se auja de acabar en el fin de vna destas gabillas de años: y tenjan prenostico o oraculo, que entonce avia de cesar el moujmjento de los cielos, y tomauan por señal al moujmjento de las cabrillas: la noche desta fiesta, que ellos llamauan Toximmolpilia: de tal manera caya que las cabrillas, estauan en medio del cielo: a la media noche, en respecto deste orizonte mexicano. En esta noche sacauan fuego nueuo, y primero que los sacassen, apagauan todo el fuego, en todas las proujncias, pueblos, y casas de toda esta nueua españa: y iban con gran procesion, y solemnidad. Todos los satrapas, y mjnjstros del templo: partian daquj del templo de mexico, a prima noche: y iban hasta la cumbre de aquel cerro, que esta cabe Itztapalapan: que ellos llaman Vitzachtecatl, y llegauan a la cumbre a la media noche, o casi, donde estaua vn solemne cu, edificado para aquella cerimonja. Llegados alli, mjrauan a las cabrillas; si estauan en el medio, y si no estauan esperauan hasta que llegassen. Y quando vian, que ya passauan del medio, entendian que el moujmjento del cielo no cessaua, y que no era alli el fin del mundo, sino que avian de tener otros cincuenta y dos años, seguros, que no se acabaria el mundo. 805 787x 821● 796 372

En esta hora estauan en los cerros circunstantes que cercan a toda esta proujncia de mexico, Texcoco, y Suchimjlco y quauhtitlan, gran cantidad de gente, esperando a ver el fuego nueuo; que era señal, que el mundo iba adelante, y como sacauan el fuego, los satrapas, con gran cerimonja, en el cu de aquel cerro: luego se parecia, en todo lo circunstante de los cerros: 796 372 were to be burned, because of it the child's face would be pock-marked.[16] And if maize cobs were to burn there, first she passed and carried them before the child's face,[17] so that such would not befall him — so that his face would not be pock-marked.

vncan tlatlaz in olotl: achtopa ijxco conquijquixtilia, ijxco convivica in piltontli: injc amo iuh ipan muchioaz, injc amo ichichitinjz. 846 753

Nineteenth Chapter, which telleth of the woman with child.

Injc caxtolli onnavi capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa: yn cioatl otztli. 843

The woman with child might not look at one whom they had hanged, because, it was said, when she gave birth, the child would come forth with a cord of flesh wrapped about his neck. Wherefore in times past they frightened pregnant women from doing so.

In cioatl otztli, amo vel quittaz in aquin ie quipiloa: yehica, quilmach in jquac mixiviz, nacatica oalquechmecaiotiaz in piltontli. Ipampa yn, ic quimjmacaxiltiaia in ie vecauh in ootzti.

Likewise, when a woman was with child during an eclipse of the sun or moon, she might might not look at it. It was said that if she saw it, her child would be harelipped. But in order to forestall this, the woman with child placed an obsidian knife in her bosom; it was said that thereby her child would not be harelipped.

No yoan yn jquac otztli cioatl, in jquac qualo tonatiuh, anoço metztli: amo vel quittaia, quilmach intla quittaz: tenquatic iez in jconeuh. Auh injc quipalevizia otztli: ytztli ixillan contecaia, quil ic amo tenquaiviz in piltontli. [821]

Neither might she chew asphalt,[18] it was stated, lest the child be harmed in suckling[19] when he was born. And she could not walk about at night; it was felt that her child would be one who cried much. Likewise men might not walk about by night; perhaps they would come upon a ghost; perhaps the child would suffer a sickness of the heart. And so that this would not happen, the woman with child placed a pebble, or ashes from the hearth, or wormwood,[20] in her bosom. And the men [carried] a pebble, or tobacco [on the chest]; for it was said that also, at that time, [the child] might acquire what they called a swelling.[21]

Amono vel quiquaquaz in chapuputli, quil ic amo motentzoponjz in piltontli: in jquac otlacat. Yoan amo vel iooal nenemiz, quil cenca chocanj iez in jconeuh: no iuhquj in toquichtin: amono vel iooal nenemjz, anoçe itla quimonamjctiz, aço mjmjqujz. Auh injc amo iuh ipan muchioaz otztli: xaltetl, anoço tleconextli ixillan quitema, anoço iztauhiatl. Auh in toquichtin xaltetl, anoço picietl: ichica quil no vncan quicuj, in quitoa: aiomama. 843 753

16. Corresponding Spanish text: "le caye del ahito, que mejo matáuan: esta pensaye o hoyam."

17. Ibid.: "tomaualo primero en la cara del ejito, llamandolas por enoiuas: ala tazar en la cara."

18. Chapuputli: "aspaio de ajolos; landa de Indias. . . . Los indios le usaban antiguamente como mastiquatorio" (chapuputz — Santamaría, op. cit., Vol. I, p. 468). The corresponding Spanish text has "aspal hetoa, que llamal tzicili." On the relationship between tzicili and chapujutli, see Sahagún (Garibay ed.), X, 24, 18 and 27; and also Vol. IV, pp. 333, 366, for definitions.

19. Corresponding Spanish text: "tomauaia aquello, que llamaua contrapoyaia, que mauaua dello, los criauaua rezaia matiliar: y emauaua de que quando nacua la criaua, el su cuerpo de pronto le saz la tez, de la boca, lastimaua en el paladar: y luego quedaua mazual." Cf. also Sahagún (Garibay ed.), Vol. IV, p. 344; and Bernardino de Sahagún: Historia general de las cosas de Nueva España (Carlos María Bustamante, ed.; México: Alejandro Valdés, 1829), Vol. II: "tomauaquaia (hoy tecomatl) o ma cualquiera en la respiracion, que mauaua de ello los criauaua rezaia matiliar."

20. Iztauhiatl: "vna yerua de olmos" (corresponding Spanish text): ensifuar (drawinia mexicana WZM.) — "los hojas despiden fuerza olor aromatico y sirven sabor amargo. Usan como antihelmintico pulverizado" (Santamaría, op. cit., Vol. I, p. 424).

21. Cf. Sahagún (Garibay ed.), Vol. IV, p. 324.

843 752 And when the swelling appeared, upon his back was as it were a small, blue bump. Or [he might catch] inflammation of the groin.[22] And when the inflammation of the groin appeared, the child cried every night; and on the groin and armpits were formed small, round or long [welts of] flesh. And in order to cure it, they cut them off and removed the little [welts] of flesh.

Auh injc neci aiomama, ycujtlapan ca, iuhqujn posatontli, iuhqujn texotic: anoçe cuezpalicivizti. Injc neci cuezpalicivi piltontli: cecioual in choca, yoan yquetilco, yciacac motlathalia nacatotonti, olotsonti, melactotonti. Auh injc pati: quijnmotla, quijquijxtia in nacatotonti.

843 821 And as for the pregnant woman: before her child had been formed as a being, they restrained [any of] them, when the moon arose, from looking up at it. They said to them: "Do not look at the moon! Your children will suffer sickness of the heart, or else will be hardlipped!"

Ioan in oetli: in jquac aiamo vel tlacatl motlalia in jconcuh, quijntlacaoaltiaia, in jquac oalmomana metztli: injc amo conacopaittazque, quijmjlhujaia: macamo xoconjttacan in metztli, mjmjquijx, anoçe tenquaiviz in amoconcuh.

825 777 441 Twentieth Chapter, which telleth of the monkey's hand.

Injc cempoalli espinalo, ytechpa tlatoa: in oçomatli ymacpal.

The merchants sought and cherished greatly a monkey's hand when they trafficked and sold goods anywhere. There they spread it out. It was said that thereby goods quickly were disposed of and soon all which they sold was bought. It was stated: "That which bringeth this about is the monkey's hand" — so foolish were they.

In oçomatli imacpal: in puchteca cenca qujtemoaia, qujmopialtiaia: in jquac in campa tiamjquja, in tlanamacaia: vncan qujtecaia, qujlmach ic iciuhca aquj, iciuhca muchi coalo in tlein qujnamaca: qujl ichoatl iuh qujchioa in oçomatli yma: ynjc motlapololtia.

777 264 824 Also of the sellers of mantles — when nowhere was disposed of that which they sold, when no one bought either mantles, or shifts or skirts — it was said: "They make them eat chilis that the goods may be disposed of." And thus did they do it. When they returned to their homes, they said: "Our goods are nowhere disposed of. Give them chilis to eat." Then in their midst they placed perhaps two or three chilis. It was averred that thereby the goods were disposed of. When they so did this, they said that they had made [their mantles] eat chilis.

No ichoantin in tilmanamacaque: in jquac acan aquj in qujnamaca, in aiac qujcoa: in aço tilmatli, in anoço cueitl, anoço vipilli, qujlmach: qujchilquaqualtia, injc aquj. Auh injc qujchioaia: in jquac oalvia inchan, qujtoaia: acan oac in totiamjc: ma xoconchilquaqualtican: njman ic ijtic contema, aço vme, anoço Ey in chilli: qujlmach ic aquja, injc iuh qujchioaia in, ic qujtoa: qujchilquaqualtia.

777 525 Twenty-first Chapter, which telleth of the pestle and the griddle.

Injc cempoalli oce espinalo, itechpa tlatoa in texolotl, yoan comalli.

When one who played patolli[23] placed his pestle, and his griddle, and his grinding stone upside down in his home, and hung his pestle somewhere in a corner, it was said that thereby the householder would not lose, but only win.

In jquac aqujn petoaia, in jchan, in jtexolouh, ioan in jcomal, ioan in jmetl: ixtlapach qujmanaia: auh in texolotl cana xomolco qujpiloaia; qujlmach: ic amo qujtlanizque in chane, çan ic tlathanjz.

22. Corresponding Spanish text: "una enfermedad, que llaman cuezpalicivizti, o con labonillos en los ingles." Note also Codex Rios (El manuscrito mexicano Vaticano 3738 llamado El Codice Rios [Rome: Sodalicium Danti, 1900], p. 54).

23. The corresponding Spanish text refers to patole, which is an error.

825 And when it appeared that indeed all the chicks
235 fell upon their backs so that they died,[27] upon this they said: "They died of filth; perchance someone came to go in among them; or looked upon them; or indeed it was the householder who slew them by filth." Because of this, they believed, indeed all the turkeys had fallen upon their backs so that they died.

Auh injc neci çan muchintin aaquetztiuj injc mjquj totolpipil, ic qujtoa: ca tlaçolmjquj: aço aca inpan ocalaqujco, anoço oquimjttac, anoço aca vel chane in oquintlaçolmjcti: ic qujmatia, in çan muchin aaquetztivi totolme, injc mjquj.

825 It was said that also the same befell those who 235 were married. If perchance somewhere one's spouse,
837 whether woman or man, fell into adultery, they then believed that those which had fallen upon their backs or stumbled over, indeed accused him.

Qujl no iuh inpan muchioa in namjqueque: in aço cana qujtlaxima inamjc, in aço cioatl, anoço toqujchtin: injc qujmati, çan qujpiqui in aaquetztivetzi, anoce cana motlavitequj.

286 Twenty-fifth Chapter, which telleth of her who wove with yarn.

Injc cempoalli ommacujlli capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa: in icpatl qujqujti.

When [a woman] wove with yarn perhaps a mantle, or a shift, or a skirt, which came out awry, unevenly disposed, with crooked edges, they said and it was thought that the weaver of the mantle or shift was not generous. Just like a crooked seam, perverse [would she be]; not generous.[28]

In jcpatl, in aço tilmatli, anoço vipilli, anoço cueitl: in jquac qujqujti in chicopatilivi, in chicoviaqujztiuh, in tennecujliuhtiuh, qujtoaia: qujlmach amo tlacaiöllo yn tilmaoa, yn vipilli: çan cueciuhquj, çan tlatlaveliloc: amo tlacaiollo.

821 Twenty-sixth Chapter, which telleth of hail.

Injc cempoalli on chiquacen capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa in tecivitl.

When it rained, and much hail fell, one who there [had] his maize, chili, bean, or chia field scattered ashes from the hearth out of the entrance into the courtyard. It was said that thus his maize field would not be hailed out; it was thought that thus the hail would disappear.

In jquac qujavi, in cenca tecivi: in aqujn vnca imjl, anoço ychilcuen, anoço yiecuen, ychian: tleconextli qujiaoac qujoaltepeoa, itvalco: qujlmach yc amo tecivilozz in jmjl, qujl ic poliui in tecivitl.

754 Twenty-seventh Chapter, which telleth of sorcerers.

Injc cempoalli on chicome capitulo, yntechpa tlatoa in tlatlavipuchti.

776
781 At night walked demons — perchance wizards and sorcerers — where they harmed one in one's home. When the householders saw them, when perhaps some [demon] so [would] harm them, they then placed an obsidian knife in water, behind the door, or in the courtyard. They laid it down at night. They said and it was believed that there the demons and sorcerers would look at their reflections when they would harm one, or there would be death, or sickness would come upon the people.

In iocaltica nemj tlatlacateculo: aço nanacalti, tlavipuchtin in canjn ontepoloa in techan: in oqujmjttaque in aço itla ic qujnpoloa in chaneque: njman atlan conteca ytztli puertatitlan, anoço itoalco qujmana in iocaltica, qujtoaia: qujlmach vncan onmotencavia in tlatlacateculo, yn tlavipuchtin in tepoloa: aço mjcoaz, anoce cocoliztli tepan muchioaz.

27. Corresponding Spanish text: "los pollos se cayan muertos, las potas arriba: y esto, llamaan diçolmjqui."

28. Corresponding Spanish text: "se parecia, en que la tela, se paraua biorrumada." Carrasco, in Sandoval, op. cit., is to make a false seam.

16:Bandelier E-4 (no date)1880 NU7 Aztec NU7

appoint his subalterns in the field, and as executor of justice he 618 had the same privilege while at the pueblo. The "teachcauhtin," therefore selected his own assistants and runners. Accompanied by them and carrying his staff of office, whose tuft of white [293] feathers intimated that his coming might threaten death,[164] the "elder brother" circulated through his calpulli, preserving order and quietness in every public place thereof. If he found or heard of any one committing a nuisance or crime, he could seize him forthwith and have him carried to the official house, there to be disposed of as the custom and law of the kin required. But it is doubtful whether, except in extraordinary instances, he was authorized to do justice himself without the council's knowledge and consent.[165]

Ere we pass over now from the functions of the kin to those of the ancient Mexican tribe, we must however dwell at some length on a peculiar institution, yet shared by the Mexicans in common with Indian tribes in general. We refer to the rank and dignity of CHIEF among them. Chieftaincy and office are far from being equivalent. The former is a purely personal, non-hereditary distinction, bestowed in reward of merit only, whereas the latter is a part of the governmental machinery.[166] Hence it follows that a chief might fill an office or not, and still remain a chief, whereas personnes notables qui portaient le titre de achcacauhtin qui est un nom de charge, comme l'est aujourd'hui celui d'alguazile." Sahagun (Lib. VIII, cap. XVII, p. 305) calls the Achcacauhtli "(ó verdugos) que tenian cargo de matar á los que condenaba el señor." Torquemada (Lib. XI, cap. XXVI, p. 355), "llamabanse Achcauhtli, que quiere decir maiores." There is hardly any doubt as to their functions.

[164] White was the color of death. (Bleaching skulls and bones!) This is amply proven by their mode of declaring, or rather announcing, war. The custom of carrying [292] "staffs of office" is well established.

[165] Torquemada (Lib. XI. cap. XXVI, p. 355). Clavigero (Lib. VII, cap. XVI. p. 482) calls those "who arrested" delinquents "topilli." But this word means simply "rod, or baton of justice, staff, etc." (Molina, II, p. 150), and not office. There is no evidence that these officers might kill, without previous decision of the council, except perhaps in the great market place. Cortés ("Carta Segunda," Vedia I, p. 33): "Hay en la dicha plaza otras personas que andan continuo entre la gente mirando lo que se vende y las medidas con que miden lo que venden, y se ha visto quebrar alguna que estaba falsa." Oviedo (Lib. XXXIII, cap. X, p. 301) copies Cortés, adding, however, "é quiebran lo que está falso, é penan al que usaba dello." Bernal Diaz de Castillo (Cap. XCII, p. 89) simply remarks: "y otros como alguaziles ejecutores que miraban las mercaderias," (Vedia, Vol. II). I hardly need any reference in regard to the manner of acting and mode of appearance of the "elder brothers." Their functions of "police" are repeatedly described in the older sources.

[166] L. H. Morgan ("Ancient Society," p. 71): "Nearly all the American Indian tribes had two grades of chiefs, who may be distinguished as sachems and common chiefs. Of these two primary grades all other grades were varieties. . . . The office of sachem was hereditary in the gens, in the sense that it was filled as often as a vacancy occurred; while the office of chief was non-hereditary, because it was bestowed in reward of per-

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

as the presiding god, who, at the end, transformed himself 773 into the sun, while jaguars ate up the men and giants who 776 then populated the earth. Quetzalcoatl was the divine ruler of the second era, Four Wind, at the expiration of which hurricanes destroyed the world and men were turned into monkeys. The Rain God, Tlaloc, gave the world light in the third epoch, Four Rain, brought to a close by a fiery rain. Chalchihuitlicue,* "Our Lady of the Turquoise Skirt," was a Water Goddess who presided appropriately over the fourth Sun, Four Water, wherein a flood came, transforming men into fish. Our present age, Four Earthquake, is under the control of the Sun God, Tonatiuh, and it will be, destroyed, in time, by earthquakes.[2] (See Plate 52.)

While the versions vary from place to place, we seem to 773 have a recapitulation of the great disasters from flood, volcanic eruption, hurricanes and earthquakes that beset the communities of ancient Mexico. Also there is a reflection of the order in which the gods attained prominence in the local worship. In the history of the Mexican tribes there are references to struggles within single towns between the devotees of two cults, as to which would have the mastery.[3]

The universe itself was conceived in a religious rather than 772 a geographic sense and was divided horizontally and verti- 776 cally into areas of religious significance. The horizontal uni- 823 verse, possibly the older concept, recognized five directions, the four cardinal points and the center. The Fire God, old and fundamental in Mexican religion, controlled the central zone. The east was assigned to the Rain God, Tlaloc, and the Cloud God, Mixcoatl (Cloud Snake), and was a region of abundance. In this idea geography was combined with

*Chal-chee-we'et-le-kway.

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

772 ritual, since the intensely fertile Vera Cruz coast plain is the 776 actual source of the seasonal rains caused by the condensa-
823 tion of warm air when the Gulf of Mexico is exposed to the chill winds of the Central Plateau. The south was considered evil, possibly because of the arid zones south of Morelos and Puebla, but had as presiding deities gods associated with spring and flowers, Xipe (the Flayed One) and Macuilxochitl* (Five Flower). The west, however, had a favorable significance, being the home of the planet Venus, the evening star, which was associated and even identified with Quetzalcoatl (Feathered Serpent), the God of Knowledge. The north was a place gloomy and awful, presided over by Mictlantecuhtli† (Lord of the Dead), who, in one of those contradictions so frequent in Mexican theology, was sometimes connected with the south as well.[4] (See end papers.)

772 The vertical world was divided into heavens and hells
776 which had no moral significance, being merely overworlds
775 and underworlds. The number of heavens varied up to thirteen and represented the dwelling places of the gods, according to their rank in the hierarchy, the original creator living in the topmost heaven, and so on down the scale. One of these heavens belonged to Tlaloc, who received those who died by drowning, lightning or other causes connected with water. One school of thought divided the heavens into east
[821] and west, according to the passage of the sun. The east was the home of warriors, whose death in battle or sacrifice nourished the sun, and the west the home of women who died in childbirth, thus sacrificing themselves in the bearing of potential warriors.[5] (See Plate 57, bottom right.)

775 The rest of the dead passed to Mictlan, the underworld.

*Ma-kweel-sho'-chitl. †Meek-tla'n-tay-coot-li.

All went to be bathed. They went sounding trumpets; they went blowing shell trumpets; they beat copper discs[10] with pine [hammers].

And all the priests carried on their backs their tobacco bags,[11] and their strings of magney fiber about the neck, from which went hanging the little bags, which were filled with dyed, powdered tobacco. And the fire priest went ahead of them, taking his incense burner and his magney thorn. And, with it, he carried his incense bag.

And leading them went a man, an old priest. He went bearing on his shoulders the mist rattle board, called also the sorcerers' staff, which was thick, broad, very wide, and long—very long. And it rattled; he went along rattling it.

No one else remained at the priests' dwelling; the house was all empty, deserted, tenantless.

And only four stayed there—singers, who sat singing, beating the drum, rattling the turtle shell rattle and the gourd rattle, and blowing the shell trumpet. They sat plying the shell trumpet.

And when they had reached the water's edge, the priests' bathing place, where, at the cardinal points, were the mist houses, thereafter all threw themselves down and seated themselves, trembling, shivering, quaking with cold, their teeth chattering.

Hereupon spoke the old man called the old precious stone priest; he said:

"[Behold] the place where the serpents are wrathful, where the water-gnats buzz, the place where the ducks alight, where the white reeds rustle."

When he had thus spoken, thereupon all plunged into the water; they churned it up—beating the water with their hands and with their feet, crying out. Speaking hoarsely, they mimicked all the birds.

Some spoke like ducks, babbling; some mimicked wading birds, speaking like them; some imitated water ravens, talking like them; some talked like [large] herons, some like kingfishers, some like cranes.[12]

Where they bathed, there in their midst were

Vilca, onnevtemalo, tlapitzalotiuh, qujpitztiuj, in tecciztli, cobconiloc chililitli.

Auh in muchintin tlamacazque, qujmamama yn imiyiequach, ynmecacozquj, inmemecacozquj, itech pipilcatiuh yn imiiequach, ontetentiuh yiaqualli: yoan qujniacantiuh in tlenamacac, ytlemauh ietiuh, yoan yuitz ietiuh: yoan itlan cana icopalxiqujpil.

Auh ce tlacatl quacujlli teiacantiuh, qujquechpanotiuh, aiochicaoztli, no itoca naoalquaujtl, petlaoac, patlactic, patlacpol: yoan viiac, vitlatztic, yoan cacalaca, qujcacalatztiuh aocac ce onmocaoi calmecac, cemjchictiuh, cactimoquetza, cactiuetzi in calmecac.

Auh çan naujntin in vmpa onmocaoa cujcanjme, cujcatoque, teponaçotoque, aiochiuhtoque, aiacachotoque; qujpitztoque in qujqujztli, qujqujçotoque.

Auh yn oacito atenco, yn jnnealtiaia tlamacazque: nauhcampa in manca yn aiauhcalli, njman ie ic neteteco, netlalilo, tlatzitzilca, tlaviujioca, tlacuecuechca, netlantzitzilitzalo:

in ie iuhquj njman ic tlatoa, in vetze itoca chalchiuhquaqujlli: qujtoa.

Coatl yçomocaiii, amoiotl ycaoacaian, atapalcatl ynechiccanaoan, aztapilcuecuetlacaian:

yn oconjto y, njman ie ic onnetepeoalon atla, tlachachaquatztinemj, yn atlan, tlamaujtectinemj, tlacxiujtectinemj, atlacxiuitectinemj, tzatzitinemj, ycaocatinemj, qujntlaichecalhuja yn izqujchtin totome:

cequj canauhtlatoa, tlacacauja, ceq'ntin qujntlaichecalhuja, in pihpitzti, pipitztlatoa: cequjntin qujntlaichecalhuja, yn acacalome, acacalotlatoa: cequjntin aztatlatoa, cequjntin azoquentlatoa, cequjn tocujlcoiotlatoa:

yn vncan mahiaia yn, tlanepantla manca in cuen-

10. CHÍHIH: cf. Gabriel Saldívar: Historia de la música en México (Mexico: Editorial "Cultura," 1934), p. 21; ecbconiloc: cocoxilo (wood)(?).

11. "Todos llevaban a cuestas, unos talegillos atados con unos cordelejos de ixtli, con unos bordes al cabo: y de otros colgaban, unos tiras de papel pintadas, cosidas con los mismos talegos, que llevaban pendientes: y en aquellos talegos llevaban unos manojos de hierba, hechos a la manera de colorado de tintores, que ellos llevaban pendientes, que eso adornaban con tinta, y con polvos de una yerba que ellos llamaban yiiac, que es como hebrillas de cuchillo" (contemporaling Spanish text).

Clark (op. cit., Vol. I, p. 57n.) writes: "Aoiotl: aoiotl cane, yiiac tobacco. The Mexicans had three kinds in use: the yiiac or Nicotiana cunicinum Schl.; the quauhyiiac: quauhtli tree-tobacco, yiiac tobacco, or Nicotiana rustica L.; and piciietl: picietl aoiotl, yiiac tobacco, or Nicotiana tabacum L., tobacco either in snuff or chewed in pellets called yaqualli: yiiac tobacco, quauhtli wood, or smoked in cigars or pipes: pacatl smoke, yiiac tobacco. When smoked, tobacco was mixed with xochiocuauhtl, ocoxochitl herbs, and chewed." Cf. also ibid., Vol. II, p. 156.

12. These birds are described in Lib. XI, cap. ii, § 3 of Sahagún. Cf. Rubiodo ed., Vol. III, pp. 168-81. Sobre dichos pájaros respectively as (probably) green-winged teal; Ibis; Ardeidae egret or heron: kingfisher (aztapaxo or aztapaxoatl); and sandhill crane (Hodge Kapitel, p. 118, notes 2-7).

3: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1951 NU7 Aztec NU7

Thirty-fifth Chapter, which telleth of the feasts and the ceremonies which they observed in the days of the sixteenth month, which was called Atemoztli.

The sixteenth feast was called "The Falling of the Water."[1]

As for naming it "The Falling of the Water," it was when for the first time threatened, rumbled, and thundered the rains. All the common folk said, "Water cometh down"; or, "The Tlaloca descend."

And when this happened, the fire priest at the Temple of Tlaloc went [about his tasks] very soberly, devoutly, in faith and hope that in its time the rain would threaten.

And when the rain threatened, then he forthwith arose and took up his incense ladle, the stem of which was long and rounded, and it rattled. The incense ladle ended [in the form of] a serpent. And the head of the serpent also rattled; it also [was] hollow.

Then he speedily fanned the coals into a flame. Then he swiftly filled it with incense, doing only this. Then he offered incense, raising the ladle as an offering to the four directions, rattling [the ladle] greatly, to and fro. Then he went to all the courtyards of the temples, offering and burning incense everywhere. Thus he besought and called upon the Tlaloca. Thus he prayed for rain.

And a number of the common folk made vows that they would make figures of the mountain [gods].[2] And five days [before the feast], they arranged and bought paper, and liquid rubber, and obsidian knives, and they bought magney fiber.

They paid great honors [to the mountain gods], and did penances that they might make the figures and cover them [with paper]. No soap was used in bathing; only their necks did they wash.[3] Neither might [a man] lie with a woman, nor a woman with a man.

And until dawn of the day of the feast, when the twenty days of Atemoztli were completed, all the

Inic cempoalli on caxtolli capitulo: itechpa tlatoa in jlhujtl, yoan in tlamaviztililiztli, in qujchioaia in jpan ic cemjlhujtl ic caxtolhetl occe metztli in motenecoa Atemoztli. 796[x]

Injc caxtolhetl, occe ilhujtl ichoatl in motenecoa Atemoztli:

injc motenecoa Atemoztli, ca iquac iancujcan calanj, oncalaca, titicujca in qujavitl: qujtoaia in jxqujch maceoalli, atemo, anoço temo in tlaloque.

Auh in jquac y, in tlalocan tlenamacac, cenca tlaocuxtica, tlateumattica, muchixcaca, motemachitica: in quenmã calanjx qujavitl:

auh in ocalan qujavitl, njmã ic moquetztiquj̃ça, qujcujtivetzi in jtlema, vel hujtlatztic, çan pittaton in jquauhio, cacalaca in tlemaitl, coatl ipan qujça: auh in jtzontecon coatl no cacalaca, no iollo: [445]

njmã qujxopilotivetzi in tlexochtli, in tletl njman contentivetzi in jiauhtli, ça mjxcavia: mec tlenamaca, nauhcampa in conjaoa, cenca cacalaca, ixaonca, ichaiaca: mec iauh novian nemj, novian qujça in teujtoalco, novian tlenamaca, novian tlatotonja, ic tlatemachia, ic qujnotza in tlaloque, ic qujauhtlatlanj. [823]

Auh in cequjntin maceoalti, monetoltiaia injc tepiqujxque: auh macujltica in amatemaia, in amacoaia, yoan olli, yoa itztli, yoan ichtli in qujcoaia: [314 269]

cenca qujmaviztiliaia, yoan qujneçaviliaia injc tepiqujxque, yoã tequentinxque: amo mamoviaia injc maltiaia, çan moquechaltiaia, amono cioacochia: auh in cioatl amono oqujchcochia. [515] [834]

Auh in ic iuh oallatvi ilhujtl, in jquac tlacempoalti Atemoztli, iuh ciaal in nemoa, vel neixpololo, in

1. "Rajada de el Agua," according to Tezozomoc (op. cit., p. 299), "porque este hizo mucho llover, y vocar algunos dias." Gorlitz, (op. cit., p. 313) has the same.

Concerning the term Atemoztli, Tower refers to frequent, extraordinary deluges in the region, attributed to Tlaloc.—Kubler and Gibson, op. cit., p. 32.

2. The Pedrido MS (Gorlitz, loc. cit.) places this in the lower of the rich: "in mocuilhuanni in tlaxcalan mamaquixtiqui"—"en toda cosa de las cosas se hacian las dioses cerros (Tempiales)."

3. Cf. corresponding Spanish text.

821
823
502

The Wind

That which was known as [the wind] was addressed as Quetzalcoatl. From four directions it came, from four directions it traveled. The first place whence it came was the place from which the sun arose, which they named Tlalocan. This wind which came from there they gave the name of the Tlaloc wind. Little did it frighten men; lightly did it blow. With it, one could go in a canoe; with it one could land; with it one could cross the water.

[775]

The second place whence it came [the north] was called Mictlampa; and this was named the wind from the land of the dead. This was much feared, and caused much terror. Violently did it blow, when it set in, and the canoes could not contend with it. They could not travel forward. They could not venture forth; they could not pass across; they could not get under way in the water. Rather, all the boatmen came out and left [their craft] because of fear—those who gained their livelihoods on the water, the fishermen who used nets, or who speared [the fish]. When they saw that it was Mictlampa ehecatl which arose, then they feared evil and were troubled. They hurried, hastened, and greatly quickened their pace, plying the pole—plying it rapidly. They strained their arms, that they might come out and beach [the canoe] on the shore, on the edge of the water, near the water line. And so they said: "Often it drowneth men and sinketh canoes."

The third place whence it came [the west] was known as Cuatlampa; it was named Cuatecayotl and Cuatlampa ehecatl. Also it was called One Wind, or Maçaua; for it came from Maçauacan. And this one did not blow fiercely. Nevertheless, it was very cold. Men suffered much from [its] cold; they became livid and stiff from cold. It made them shiver; it was deadly. It made men tremble, shake, and quake; it exhausted them; it gave them stomach pains, or pains in the lungs, or the head. And yet, with it they could go ashore from the water. It did not frighten men nor terrify them.

And the fourth place whence came the wind [the south] was there from Uitztlampa. It was named Uitztlampa ehecatl. And this one was much feared and held in dread. All feared harm. It made men speechless with terror; it made them silent with fear. Because it blew swiftly, it frightened them greatly. They said: "When it ariseth, it uprooteth and breaketh trees: and it teareth walls to pieces—old walls

Ehecatl

Motenenaia: ic quinotzaia quetzalcoatl. Nauhcampa oallauh, nauhcampa oalitztiuh. Inic ceccan oallauh: vmpa in iqniçaiampa tonatiuh, quitoaia tlalocã: inin ehecatl, vmpa oallauh, quitocaiotiaia, tlalocaiotl: amo cẽca temauhti, amo cenca totoca, uel ipan acaltica viloa, vel ipan quixoa, in atlan: vel ipã panoa.

Inic occã oallauh, motenecoa mictlampa: auh inin motocaiotia mictlampa ehecatl. In hin uel imacaxo, uellamauhtia: cenca totoca, in icoac moquetza, amo vel quinamiqui in acalli: amo vellauilteco, amo uel tlautlapalolo, avel istlapal viloa, auel tlanecuilolo in atlan: çan mauhcaquixoa, mauhcaquiça in tlapanauique, in atlãca, in tlãtlamãque, in tlamjoque. In oquittaque, ca mictlampa ehecatl in omoquetz: ic cenca motenmati, motequipachoa, uel motequimati, ompilcatoque, ompipilcatoque, in tlanelloa, in tequitlanelloa: vel momaquauhtilia, inic uel onquiça, onmacana atenco, atexipalco, achichiiacpa: iuh quitoa, ca miccpa, teatlanmictia, quipolactia in acalli.

Inic ecan oallauh: motenecoa cioatlãpa, motocaiotia, cioatecaiotl, cioatlampa ehecatl: no quitocaiotia ce ehecatl, anoço maçaoa ipampa vmpan oalitztiuh maçaoacan. Auh in hin, amo no cenca totoca: iece cenca itztic, uel tococnjti, tepineualti, tepinauh, tetetziliuiti, tetetzilquisti, tetzitzilquiti, teuiuiioquilti, tecuecuechquiti, tecuecuechniquiti: tezillanquauhtili, teiomotlanquauhtili, tetzonteconeuh. Auh tel, uel ipan quixoa in atlan, amo temauhti, amo temauiauiti.

Auh inic nauhcampa, oallauh ehecatl, vmpa uitztlampa: motocaiotia uitztlampa ehecatl. Auh inin, cenca vel imacaxo, mimacaci: netemmacho, aoc tenaostili, aoc tetlatolti: ipãpa cenca totoca, cenca tlamauhtia. Quixoa, in icoac moquetza: vel quitzjncoa, quipoztequi in qnauid: yoan quiximinja in tepantli, in tepançolli, in xacalli: quecatoctia in tlatzacuilli, in chimancalli. Auh in vei atl vel cuiioja, quitepenaçoa, and straw huts. The wind carrieth off fences and enclosures. And it stirreth up the seas; it maketh them froth and foam. It formeth waves; there is a great din as of waves breaking. There is a great crackling noise." And it tossed and cast canoes into the air. Just so, indeed, did the north wind sink them.

-14-

S: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

Lightning; the Lightning Flash

They addressed it as, and named it, many things—the mist which went winding [like a serpent], the thunderbolt, the reed staff. When lighting flashed and lit up repeatedly, we were blinded, we lost our sight, our vision was darkened. It startled us; we were terrified. It was unbearable to look at; it was dazzling. Everywhere it flashed repeatedly—again and again—like the light of the dawn breaking over and over. Thus did it come; it came twisting and winding.

quipoçonaltia, cacuecuenistia: iuhquin tetecuicatimani, cocomocatimani: auh in acalli caaconaiani, caacotlaço: vel no iuhqui, quinamiqui in mictlampa chocatl. 821 823 502

Tlapetlanjlloti, tlapetlanjliztli: much ic quinotzaia, quitocaiotiaia, aiauhcocolli, tlapetlanjlquauitl, ortopilcoauitl. In icoac tlapetlani, tlãtlapetlani: tispouaoa, tismimiqui, titismauhtia, tirocuitiuetzi: aiuamiquiliztli, aiuamiquiztli, nouiian tlatlanezttimoquetza: iuhquin tlauizcalli ñoquequetza: inic oallauh oalcocoliuhtiuh, cuecueliuhtiuitz. 821

[p. 16 is blank]

Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

The Seventh Chapter telleth of the year counter and the year sign.

One Rabbit

It is said [that this was] the year sign and year counter of the south. For thirteen years it carried, set on its path, took with it, and bore the burden [of the year]. Always, during each [of the thirteen] years, it was the first, the one which led, began, made the start, and introduced as many year signs as there were: Reed, Flint, and House. Of the one [known as] Reed, it was said [that it was] as it were the sign of the east; that is, the year sign of the sun. For from there issued the light which shone forth.

And the third year sign, the one [known as] Flint, was called the sign of the north. For [the north] was said to be toward the land of the dead. Thus have the old people spoken: it is said that when one died, to that place set out, went straightway, and proceeded the dead. Therefore, when someone died—when [the women] adorned him, when they wrapped him in his mantle and bound him [in wrappings]—they made him look toward and seated him looking to that place.

And the fourth year sign, the fourth in order, [was] the one known as House—the sign of the west. For this reason they named it Cioatlampa: it is said that there dwelt but women; none of us men were there.

These four year signs, year count[ers], as many times as they came to appear, [so many times] they came to be the beginning year signs.

When all the thirteen-year [periods]—all four of them—had concluded, ended, and finished, thus proceeding around, to give and leave their works from year to year, this [last] one came to, stopped at, stopped, knocked against, and ended at Thirteen House, the sign of the west. That is, now it approached [the end of its] thirteen years of labor.

And then One Rabbit came to settle itself as the sign of the south. When this occurred and it established itself and began its work, thus to bear a year

Inic chicome capitulo, itochpa tlatoa: in xiuhtlapoalli, in xiuhtonalli.

Ce tochtli.

motenoa: uiztlampa xiuhtonalli, xiuhtlapoalli: matlacxiuitl omei tlauica, tlaotlatoctia, tlatqui, tlamama. In muchipa cecexiuhtica, vel tlaiacatia, tlaiacana, quipeoaltia, ipeuhca muchioa, quitzintia in iaquitetl xiuhtonalli in acatl, in tecpatl, in calli. In ichoatl acatl, mitoa: tlapcopa tonalli, iuhquinma, q. n. tlauilcopa xiuhtonalli: ipāpa ca umpa oalneci in tlauilli, in tlanextia. 805 823

Auh inic ei xiuhtonalli, ichoatl in tecpatl: motenoa mictlampa tonalli, ipampa in mjtoa mictlampa: iuh quitoaia in veuetque, quilmach in icoac micoa: vmpa itztiui, vmpa tlamelaoa, vmpa tlatotoca in mimicque. Ichica, in icoac aquin miquia, in oconchichiuhque, in oconquiquimiloque, in oconiilpique: vmpa quitlachialtiaia, vmpa quitzritzitimotlaiaia. [775] [764]

Auh inic nauj, tlanuhcaiotia, xiuhtonalli: ichoatl in calli motenoa, cioatlampa ꝑonalli. Ipāpan iuh quitoaia, cioatlampa: quilmach, çan muchi cioa umpa onoque, ocaque toquichtin.

Inin nauhtecme xiuhtonaltin, xiuhtlapoaltin: iquitemo cocoppa moquetztiui, tonalpeuhcaiome muchiuhtiuj. 805

Inic muchi mitlatlacxiuitl omeci, quitlanja, conaitia, quitzonquistia nauhcistin: inic tlaiocaxiui, quinomacxiui, quinocuilitini, intequiuh, cecexiuhtica: ichoatl iech omeci, iech ilnocaoa, iech oncxapi, iech ontlatocaoa, ontlatzonquistia in matlactlomei calli, cioatlampa tonalli. q. n. ic ocxiti in matlacxiuitl omei itequiuh.

Auh nimaa ic oalmoquetza in ce tochtli: uiztlampa tonalli. In icoac, y, moquetza, in quipeoaltia itequiuh, inic ce xiuitl tlauicac, tlaotlatoctia: omea 805 731

10:Deevey N-4 (no date)1957 NU7 Aztec NU7

the salt is commonly extracted from soil of several types rather from the water itself. This practice would be expected to arise in a country of inland salines, not along the seacoast. Moreover, fractional evaporation is used to give different products, according to Apenes, the last of the liquors being the source of saltpeter. We cannot yet be sure that the whole complex is pre-Cortesian, but it suggests a knowledge of limnologic and soil chemistry among the Aztecs that was at least as great as their ceramic and metallurgic skill would imply.[4] The point is not only of considerable importance, but is capable of verification by chemical archaeology; that no attempt to do so has been made so far is another indication that the scientific knowledge of non-Western peoples exceeds in some respects that of the historians and ethnographers who study them. 127 317

Salt is one of the seldom-considered essentials of human welfare. Mendizábal makes the provocative point that if the Aztecs had been more generous with their salt, the Tlaxcalans (who had no salines in their domain) might not have been so ready to ally themselves with Cortés, and the course of history might have been rather different.

HYDROGRAPHY. The demonstration that the Aztecs had detailed knowledge of all aspects of their lakes that might be used for human sustenance is not itself a proof that they had a developed limnologic science. Far more primitive people have known and done as much, and none of the practices mentioned, with the possible exception of fractional evaporation of salt water, are beyond the capabilities of the Banyoro, for example, who live on Lake Albert in Africa (Worthington and Worthington, 1933). The urbanization of Tenochtitlán, however, brought problems in its train that simpler societies could hardly have faced. Lake villages are known all over the world, but lake cities are much less usual. In meeting these problems the Aztecs and their 823

[4] A piece of chemical knowledge that has been entirely overlooked is the manufacture of some salt from urine. Bernal Diaz del Castillo (1910 edition, p. 72) mentions the sale of "many canoes full of human excrement, and these were kept in the creeks near the market, and this they use for making salt or tanning skins, for without it they say that they cannot be well prepared". The reference to tanning of skins shows clearly that the excrement was urine and not feces, for the tanning properties of uric acid are still taken advantage of in modern Mexico; moreover, Bernal Diaz goes on to describe the collection of feces and their use as fertilizer. What "salt" other than uric acid or sodium chloride could have been extracted from urine is problematical; nitrates would have been the most valuable, and they could conceivably have been separated from the chlorides by fractional evaporation, as in the case of salt water. In the history of western chemistry the most important salt found in urine was microcosmic salt, $NH_4\ NaHPO_4 \cdot 2H_2O$, which served Brand as the source of phosphorus. 127 385 281

10:Deevey N-4 (no date)1957 NU7 Aztec NU7

823 neighbors demonstrated practical control over the lacustrine as well as other components of their environment.

127 133 At the time of the Conquest, according to extensive researches summarized by Orozco y Berra (1864), Maudslay (1908, 1910, in the 2nd and 3rd volumes of the Hakluyt Society edition of Bernal Diaz del Castillo), and especially by Schilling (1939) and Linné (1948), the Valley lakes were more or less one continuous sheet of water. Schilling's series of sketch maps is reproduced in Figure 1. Cortés, in his second [312] letter to Charles V (MacNutt edition, 1908, vol. 1), speaks of two lakes, because Lake Texcoco, the lowest-lying and most saline body of water, was separated from the freshwater portions by a great dike, the albarradón of Nezahualcóyotl. The Valley lakes of course were without outlet to the sea, and the drainage operations that began in the late 16th century and were made effective only in 1900 were devoted to the northward diversion of Lake Zumpango, regarded as the source of the most dangerous floods, to the Río Tula. The 16th-century historians believed that Texcoco had a subterranean outlet to the sea by way of a spring in the valley of Tula. Pomar (García Icazbalceta's edition, 1891, p. 58) claimed to have seen it, while Sahagún (Robredo edition, vol. 3, [782] p. 298) described the "whirlpool" in the center of the lake as the scene where small boys were sacrificed every year. It is reasonable to suppose that the legend of the outlet was believed by the acculturated Indians, but it does not follow that the educated Aztecs believed it.

127 133 312 The "Lake of Mexico" of the historical sources is usually the freshwater part that surrounded the Aztec capital, Tenochtitlán. This part is now dry, as is the southernmost lake of Chalco. Dikes that served as causeways connected Tenochtitlán with the mainland, but the most important dike from the hydrographic standpoint was that of Nezahualcóyotl, which lay to the east of the city. According to tradition, the dike was built by the king of Texcoco in 1446, during the reign of Montezuma I. It was 16 km long, and required the labor of 20,000 men. The reason given for its construction was to protect the Aztec capital from floods, though it is not clear why a Texcocan king should have contributed so generously to his rival's advantage. Of the advan- [241] tage, however, there can be no doubt. All of the southern valley floor, from Chalco to Tenochtitlán, was doubtless covered with chinampas, 127 the artificial islands that have been called "floating gardens" since the 133 days of the imaginative 18th century historian Clavijero. Floods along 731 the course of this drainage would on the whole have been beneficial, though inconvenient; the real danger threatened from the Texcoco side, whence salt water, driven by freshets or seiches,[2] might disastrously drown the chinampas. Freshets, that brought large river fish through

[2] [i.e., an oscillation of the surface of a lake lasting from a few minutes to several hours, thought to be due to inequalities of atmospheric pressure. — Analyst]

10:Deevey N-4 (no date)1957 NU7 Aztec NU7

103 212 chilacaxtli = Azolla sp.", and Tequixquiac (3G), "saltpeter water", all contain the idea of a lake as well as the sound for water, and all are shown in section. The ideology behind the glyphs was undoubtedly formed before the Aztecs entered the Valley of Mexico, during their wanderings through semi-arid country where streams are of vital importance and lakes are small and astatic. Moreover, the glyph for flowing water is a horizontal waterfall, and is the widespread and ancient Mesoamerican columnar stream, (Rands, 1955), rotated 90 degrees. It is probably no accident that streams are shown as something to be crossed, while lakes are thought of as bodies of water with definite boundaries and containing useful objects.

The remaining glyphs of Figure 4 require little comment. Tamazolan (3I), "toad", is perfectly clear, and Sahagún gives this as the meaning, but Clark interprets it as "frog". Iztatlán (3J), "near the salt", is a salt-pan, with tlantli, teeth, showing the place-name ending, while Iztacalco (3K), "salt house", is literally that: an earthen pila serving as a filtration apparatus in which the clear salt water is collected before being placed in the evaporation basin shown at the top. Ayotlán (3L), "turtle", is obviously a freshwater species, probably Kinosternon hirtipes, though Clark's interpretation ("a captured turtle on its back") shows confusion with the marine Chelone, whose name was chimalmichin ("shield fish"). Tollán (3M), "cattails", has been discussed in the previous section.

127 ●823 If the Aztecs commonly thought of lakes edge-on, so to speak, they were perfectly capable of showing them in plan. For cartographic purposes it would be essential to show a bird's-eye view, and there are many indications that Aztec cartography was well developed (Linné, 1948). No certain examples have survived, unless we except the famous "maguey plan" (Toussaint et al., 1938) that shows part of the [289] city of Tenochtitlán. This map is not on maguey paper, as Maudslay (1910) and many others have believed, but on native paper made of Ficus bark (Lenz, 1948), and unpublished work by D. Robertson suggests that it is in fact a pre-Conquest document on which later elements, such as churches, have been superimposed. Whether pre-Conquest or not, it shows the lake of Mexico only by implication, as empty space off the edge of the city. The Codex Xólotl, an early but not pre-Conquest Texcocan pictographic manuscript, clearly shows the Valley lakes with a string of mountains overlooking them, but not in a way suggesting that a map was intended. The nearest equivalent to an Aztec map of a lake is probably the "Aztlán" picture in the Codex Boturini, reproduced in Figure 4. In fact, since the two earliest European maps of the lake of Mexico (in the 1524 Nuremberg edition of Cortés' Letters and in the 1556 Ramusio edition of the "Anonymous Conqueror") are obviously imaginary, it may be said that the Boturini picture is possibly the oldest surviving map of a New World lake, and it is ironic that we cannot say what lake it represents. 127 823

10:Deevey N-4 (no date)1957 NU7 Aztec NU7

About this famous picture all that can be said with confidence is that it shows a lake with an island. The island is universally identified as Aztlán, the legendary home of the Aztecs, yet the glyph at the top 127 212 823

Fig. 4. Origin of the Aztecs, from the Tira de la peregrinación Méxica (Codex Boturini). The town, here labelled Aacatl, but identified by authorities as Aztlán, is situated on an island in a lake, presumably in western Mexico.

designates it as Aacatl (atl, water + acatl, reed). Aacatl turns up on a later page as a personal name, and it may indeed be the name of the male figure at the right of the island, for he is otherwise nameless, though his female companion is named Matlalin, from matlatl, a fish-net. It would be idle sport to list all the places that Aztlán is supposed to have been; Orozco y Berra (1880, p. 66–68) considered it to be the island of Mexcalli in Lake Chapala, while Seler (n.d.) rejected all the legendary wanderings of the Aztecs in western Mexico and brought Aztlán, full circle, back to the Valley of Mexico itself. Escalona (1943) argues with some plausibility for the lake of Metztitlán, in Hidalgo, while Rendón (1948), with even greater plausibility, prefers the lake at the headwaters of the Río Lerma, just west of the Valley. The truth is that the Aztlán part of the Aztecs' history appears full-blown in the circle of Jesuit histories stemming from the Dominican Durán, while 127

Twelfth Chapter, which telleth of earthquakes.

When the earth quivered, a delusion of the natives was to be seen. When the earth quaked, then they quickly took their children by the neck and lifted them,[12] so that they might soon grow big — so that they might mature quickly. It was said that if they did not take them by the neck and lift them quickly, they would with difficulty wax larger. And they said that the earthquake would bear [the child] away if they did not grasp him by the neck and lift him. And they sprinkled water upon their faces.

And their houses, their square wooden beams, their food storage bins, their cooking pots, and indeed all their goods, everything, they sprinkled with water. And if they forgot something, they wrangled over it; it was said that the earthquake would take it away. And everyone raised a din and cried out while striking the hand to the lips in order to make known [the earthquake] to those who knew not of it.[13]

Injc matlactli vmome capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa yn tlallolinjliztli. 823 856

In jquac tlallolinj, centlamantli neci innetlapololtiliz in njcan tlaca: in jquac tlallolinj, njman iciuhca quinquechaana in jnpilhoan, injc yciuhca quaquauhtiezque, injc yciuhca manazque: qujlmach intlacamo quinquechaanazque iciuhca, ayaxcan quauhtiazque: yoan quitoaia, quivica in tlallolinjliztli, intlacamo quiquechaanazque, yoan quimjxalpichiaia.

Auh yn jncal, in jntlaquetzal, in jncuezcon, in jnxuc, in ye ixquich intlatquj, muchi catzelhuja: auh intla ytla oquijcauhque, yc maoaia: qujlmach quivica in tlallolinjliztli: yoan ixquich tlacatl ycaoacaia, motenvitequja: yc quinmachiltiaya, in amo quimati. 823

Thirteenth Chapter, which telleth of the [three] hearth stones.

Concerning the [three] hearth stones there was also a delusion of the natives. When they saw someone kicking[14] the hearth stones, they restrained him from doing so. They said to him: "Do not kick the hearth stones. It will deaden thy feet when, perchance, thou goest to war." They said to him that now he would not be able to walk or run in time of battle. His feet would be numbed; quickly he would fall into the hands of their foes. Hence the natives restrained their youths, that this might not befall them.

Injc matlactli vmey capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa in tenamaztli. 354

In jtechpa in tenamaztli: no vncatca innetlapololtiliz, in njcan tlaca: in jquac in aca quitta, in quitlicçatica in tenamaztli: yc quitlacaoaltiaia, quilhujaia: macamo xictiliçatia in tenamaztli mitzicximjmjctiz in jquac intla tiaz iave, quilhuja: aiocmo vel nenemjz, aiocmo vel motlaloz in iaupan: ça ycximjmjquiz, yciuhca ynmac vetziz in jniaovan: ynjc quintlacaoaltiaia in jntelpuchoan, in njcan tlaca, injc amo yuh inpan muchioaz.

Fourteenth Chapter, which telleth of the tortilla doubled over on the griddle.

When a woman made tortillas, if her tortilla doubled over, there was also a delusion of theirs. She said: "Someone who now cometh hath kicked

Injc matlactli onnavi capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa in comalco mocuelpachoa tlaxcalli. 252

In jquac tlaxcaloa in cioa, intla ocuelpachiuh itlaxcal: no vncatca innetlapololtiliz, quitoa: aquin ie vitz oquitoaltilicçac: auh in anoce yoquichvi, in ca-

12. Quipaxoloanac: literally, they took them by the neck. The corresponding Spanish text reads: "tomaban a sus niños sus madres las mamas, por cabo las sienes, y los levantaban en alto."

13. Ibid.: "para que cobrar esforçadamente, que sentiesse la tierra."

14. Quitilicçatica: literally, were kicking it (cf. tilicça, Molina, op. cit.); corresponding Spanish text: "los que pasaban al fin entre los trabajos, que eran tres piedras."

The third month they called Toçoztontli. On the first day of this month they observed a feast to the god named Tlaloc, who is the god of rain. On this feast they slew many children upon the mountains. They offered them as sacrifices to this god and to his companions, so that they would give them water.

Al tercero mes, llamavan toçoztontli: en el primer dia deste mes, hazian fiesta al dios llamado Tlaloc: que es dios de las pluujas. En esta fiesta, matauã muchos njños, sobre los montes: ofrecianlos en sacrificio a este dios, y a sus compañeros, para que los diessen agua. 796^x [805 776]

Chapter 3
Toçoztontli

On this feast they offered the first fruits of the flowers which had bloomed earliest that year, on the pyramid named Yopico. And before they had offered them, none dared smell a flower.

Those in charge of the flowers, who are called xochimanque, celebrated a feast to their goddess, named Coatl icue, or by another name Coatlan tonan.

Likewise in this month, those who had worn the skins of the dead [sacrificial victims] whom they had flayed the previous month, took [them] off. They went to cast them into a cave in the pyramid which they called Yopico; they went in procession to do this, and [performed] many ceremonies. They went stinking like dead dogs. And after they had left them [in the cave], they washed themselves, [performing] many ceremonies. A number of the sick made vows to attend this procession, in order to recover from their sickness, and they say that some [of them] recovered.

The masters of the [sacrificed and flayed] captives, with all those of their households, did penance for twenty days: neither did they bathe nor wash their heads until the skins of the dead captives were deposited in the cave mentioned above. They said that they did penance for their captives.

After they had ended the penance, they bathed and washed themselves, and summoned all their kin and friends, and gave them food. And they performed many ceremonies with the bones of the dead captives.

Cap. 3.
Toçoztontli.

1	c	KL	Toçoztontli.	c	14
2	d	En esta fiesta: ofrecian las prjmicias		d	15
3	e	de las flores, que aquel año primero		e	16
4	f	nacian en el cu, llamado iopico: y		f	17
5	g	antes que las ofreciessen, nadie osaua		g	18
6	A	oler flor.		A	19
7	b	Los officiales de las flores, que se		b	20
8	c	llaman sochimanque: hazian fiesta, a		c	21
9	d	su diosa llamada Coatl ycue, y por otro		d	22
10	e	nombre coatlã tona.		e	23
11	f	Tambien en este mes: se desnu-		f	24
12	g	dauan, los q̃ trayan vestidos, los		g	25
13	A	pellejos de los muertos, q̃ aujan des-		A	26
14	b	ollado el mes pasado: yuanlos a echar		b	27
15	c	en vna cueua, en el cu, que llamauan		c	28
16	d	iopico: yuan a hazer esto, con pro-		d	29
17	e	cesion: y cõ muchas cerimonjas, yuan		e	30
18	f	hediendo, como perros muertos: y		f	31
19	g	despues que los aujan dexado: se		g	1[1]
20	A	lauauan, con muchas cerjmonjas:		A	2[2]

[824 346]

Algunos emfermos hazian voto, de hallarse presentes, a esta procesion, por sanar de sus emfermedades: y dizen, que algunos sanauan.

Los dueños de los catiuos, con todos los de su casa, hazian penjtencia, veynte dias: que nj se bañauan, nj se lauauan las cabeças: hasta que se ponjan los pellejos, de los captiuos muertos, en la cueua arriba dicha: dezian que hazian penjtencia, por sus captiuos. 796^x 785 783

Despues que aujan acabado la penjtencia: bañauanse, y lauauanse, y combidauan a todos, sus parientes, y amigos, y dauanles comjda: y hazian muchas cerjmonjas, con los huesos, de los catiuos muertos. [755]

1. Marginal variation: Apellic haber dier ann.

2. Marginal variation: Marier epipiamer.

The sixteenth month they named Atemoztli. In this month they celebrated a feast to the rain gods, because for the most part in this month it began to thunder and to threaten rain; and the priests of the Tlalocs began to do penances and to offer sacrifices, so that the rains would come.

Al mes decimo sesto llamauan Atemuztli: En este mes hazian fiesta a los Dioses de la pluuja: porque por la mayor parte en este mes, començaua a tronar y hazer demuestras de agua: y los satrapas de los Tlaloques començauan a hazer penjtencias y sacrificios porque venjesse el agua.

796x [805 776]

Chapter 16
Atemoztli

When it began to thunder, the priests of the Tlalocs, with great industriousness, offered copal and other fragrances to their gods and to all the statues of these. They said that then they came to give rain. And the common folk made vows to fashion the images of the mountains, which are called tepictli, because they are dedicated [to] those gods of the rain. And on the sixteenth day of this month, all the common folk prepared offerings to offer before Tlaloc. And [during] these four days they performed penances, and the men abstained from women, and the women from men.

Having come to [the time of] the feast, which they celebrated on the last day of this month, they cut lengths of paper, and they bound them to a number of poles, from bottom to top. And they set them up in the courtyards of their houses and made the images of the mountains of tzoalli. They fashioned for them their teeth of squash seeds, and their eyes of some beans which are named aiecotli. And then they offered them their offerings of food, and they worshipped them.

After having kept a vigil for them, and beaten drums and sung for them, they opened their breasts with a tzotzopaztli, which is an instrument with which the women weave, almost like a machete; and they took out their hearts and struck off their heads. And later they divided up all the body among themselves and ate it; and the ornaments with which

Cap. 16.
Atemuztli.

1 d KL
2 e Quando començaua a tronar: los
3 f satrapas de los Tlaloques con gran
4 g diligencia offrecian copal y otros per-
5 A fumes a sus dioses, y a todas las estatuas
6 b dellos: dezian que entonce venjan para
7 c dar agua: y los populares hazian votos
8 d de hazer las ymagines de los montes
9 e que se llaman Tepictli: porq̃ son dedi-
10 f cadas aquellos dioses del agua. Y a los 11 g dezíseis dias deste mes, todos los popu-
12 A lares aparejauan offrendas para offre-
13 b cer a Tlaloc: y estos quatro dias hazian
14 c penjtẽcia, y abstenjanse los hombres 15 d de las mugeres, y las mugeres de los 16 e hombres.
17 f Llegados a la fiesta que la celebrauan
18 g el vltimo dia deste mes: cortauan tiras
19 A de papel, y stauanlas a vnos barales 20 b desde abazo hasta arriba: y hincauan-
d 29[1]
e 30
f 1[2]
g 2
A 3
b 4
c 5
d 6
e 7
f 8
g 9
A 10
b 11
c 12
d 13
e 14
f 15
g 16
A 17
b 18[2]

[314] [834] [778] [289] [824]

los en los patios de sus casas y hazian las ymagines de los montes de tzoal: hazianles los diẽtes de pepitas de calabaça, y los ojos de vnos frisoles que se llaman aiecotli: y luego los ofrecian sus offrendas de comjda y los adorauan.

Despues de auerlos velado y tañido y cãtado: abrianlos por los pechos, con vn tzotzopaztli: que es instrumento con que texen las mugeres, casi a manera de machete: y sacauanles el coraçon, y cortauãles las cabeças: y despues repartian todo el cuerpo entre si,

[413 286]

1. Marginal notation: Superstitiones mortis.
2. Marginal notation: Dispensatio facta Maio V.

2. Marginal notation: Decendor ho diez anoj.

And they took [the children] to many [different] places.

[First was] Quauhtepec.[6] And the one who died here bore the same name—Quauhtepetl. His paper vestments were brown.[7]

The second place where one died was the top of Mount Yoaltecatl.[8] The human banner [the child to be sacrificed] had the same name—Yoaltecatl. His paper vestment was black striped with red.

The third place was Tepetzinco,[9] where died a girl called Quetzalxoch, a name which they took from Tepetzintli, [also] named Quetzalxoch. Her array was blue.

The fourth place was Poyauhtlan,[10] just at the foot and in front of Mount Tepetzinco. The name of him who died was Poyauhtecatl. Thus he went adorned: he was bedight in rubber, stripes of liquid rubber.

The fifth place, there in the midst of the lake, was a place named Pantitlan. He who died there had the name Epcoatl. The vestments in which he went, having put them on, were set with mussel shells.

The sixth place to which they carried [a victim] was the top of [the hill of] Cocotl,[11] and also he went bearing the name Cocotl. His array was varicolored—part red, part brown.

The seventh place was on the summit of Yiauhqueme, and also the human banner bore the name Yiauhqueme. The clothing which he bore was completely brown.

These were the places where [the children] died, as blood-offerings, as human banners.

And all went with head-bands[12] with sprays and sprigs of quetzal feathers; they had green stone necklaces, and they went provided with green stone bracelets; they provided them with bracelets of green stone. Their faces were painted with liquid rubber, and spotted with a paste of amaranth seeds. And their liquid rubber sandals: they had sandals of liquid rubber. All went in glorious array; they were adorned and ornamented; all had valuable things on them. They gave them paper wings;[13] wings of paper they had. They were carried in litters covered with quetzal

Auh mjeccan in qujmoncaoaia, quauhtepec: auh yn vmpa onmiquja, çan ie no ie ytoca etiujia, in quauhtepetl: yn jamatlatquj, yiapaltic.

Jnic vecã miquja, icpac in tepetl ioaltecatl: çan ie no itoca ietiuh, intlacateteujtl, ioaltecatl: yn jamatlatquj, tiltic, chichiltic ic ostoanquj.

Jnjc excan, tepetzinco: yn vmpa onmjquja cioatl, itoca quetzalxoch, ytech canaia, in tepetzintli, qujtocaiotiaia quetzalxoch, yn itlatquj catca texotic.

Jnic nauhcan, poiauhtlã, çan itzintla, çan ixpan in tepetl, tepetzinco: itoca ietiujia in miquja poiauhtecatl, ynic muchichiuhtiuja, vlpiiaoac, tlaulujtectli.

Jnic macujlcan, vmpa in atl itic itocaiocan pantitlan, in vmpa, onmjquja, itoca ictiuh, epcoatl: yn itlatquj, in caqujtiuja, epnepanjuhquj.

Jnic chiquaceccan: vmpa quiujcaia cocotl icpac, no itoca ietiuja cocotl: yn inechichioal catca, chictlapanquj, cectlapal chichiltic, cectlapal yiappalli.

Jnic chicoccan, icpac yn jiauhqueme: çan no itoca ietiuh, yiauhqueme, in tlacateteujtl: yn jtlatquj ietiuh, tlacemaqujlli, yn jiappalli.

Jzqujcan yn, in miquja nextlaoalti, tlacateteuhti:

auh muchinti, ynmaxtlatzon ietiuh, quetzalxixilquj, quetzalmjiaoaio: in chalchiuhcozquj ietiuh, yoan momacuextitiuj, qujmomacuextitiuj chalchiujtl: tlaixolujlti, qujmixolhujaia, mjxmichioaujque, yoan ymolcac, ymolcac ietiuh, muchintin maujaçotiuj, tlacencaoalti, tlachichioalti, muchi tlaçotlanquj, yn jntech ietiuh, tlaçotlantiuj, qujmamatlapaltia, amatl,

[796 X 778 289 292]

[314]

[825]

[796 X 292 301 237 314 624]

[289]

[493 237]

6. Map of the Valley of Mexico in Colonial times bears most of the places and features mentioned by Sahagún, but the frequent repetition of place-names is at times confusing. Of Quauhtepec, Sahagún's Spanish text says: "es una sierra cenicienta que esta cerca del Tlaxcalaxa."

7. Yiapaltic. Sahagún (Spanish text) has encarnado (deep red, flesh colored); later he has leonado (lion colored, tawny) for yiapalli. For yapaltic, Siméon (op. cit., p. 56) has grisâtre; Molina (op. cit.), cosa teñida de negro; Simeon (op. cit.), brown or black.

8. The Spanish text explains: "es una sierra cenicienta que esta cabo guadalupe."

9. Lat. ed.: "es aquel monteculo, que esta detras dentro laguna, frontero del Guadalupe."

10. Lat. ed.: "es un monte, que esta en la terrajuela de Guadalupe, y alli cabo tepeyacac."

11. Lat. ed.: "es un monte que esta cabo chalco arriba."

12. Seler (op. cit., p. 57) reads yamatlatzon, which he translates as Stirnbinde.

13. Sahagún (loc. cit.) says: "pusiqueles unos alas de papel como angeles."

feathers; and in these [the children] were kept.

Twenty-second Chapter, in which are described the celebration and blood sacrifices which they made in the second month, known as and called Tlacaxipeualiztli.[1]

And this was when the rattle boards were sown[2] there at the Temple of Yopitli. And they, the old men belonging to the Temple of Yopitli,[3] sat singing and rattling their rattle boards until the day was done. Thus they came to spend the day, to celebrate the feast all day, coming to pass the day. Thus the whole day passed.

And [because] flowers were offered, [the feast] was called "The Offering of Flowers"; for all the various flowers which had newly blossomed were first [fruits]. It was the first flowers to appear which were thus given as offerings. None might breathe the scent without first providing an offering. They made or laid offerings of whatever little flowers they saw, which spread out bursting, popping, rustling into bloom—the flowers of spring. Small, little, tiny ones; little stone [flowers], however few, small, and tiny; little wooden ones, they carved and bound together.

And in order to gather the flowers, they all went together to the fields, since some who worked in the fields came there to sell them.

And when this was done, they ate tamales made of wild amaranth seed.[4]

Especially the Costeca, they who belonged to the district of Coatlan, esteemed [these tamales]. They offered them to their god[dess], called Coatl icue or Coatlan tonan.

[For] they placed trust in her; she was their confidante; they depended upon her; she was their support. To her they lifted their voices.

And also at that time were hidden away the human skins[5]—placed aside, abandoned. There at the Temple of Yopitli they were all buried.

Jnjc cempoali onume capitulo, vncã moteneoa yn ilhuitl, yoan in nextlaoaliztli in quichioaia in ipan ic vme metztli: in mitoaia, in moteneoaia, Tlacaxipeoaliztli. 796[X]

Auh in iquac y, aiacachpixolo vmpa iopico: auh ça ichoanti, in calpulueuetque, vmpa pouhque iopico. cujcatoque, aiacachotoque, yc ouetzi cemilhuitl, in tlacemilhuitiltitoque, ic tlalhujqujxtitoque, ic tlalhujnextitoque, tlalhuiçultitoque, ihujçulotoque, ic ueuetzi cemilhujtl: [534]

yoã xochimanalo ynic mjtoa xochimanalo, ca in ixqujch nepapan xochitl, in iancujcan cueponj, yiacatiuitz: yn iiacac vitz xochitl ic tlamanalo, aiac achto qujnecuj, intlacamo achto ic tlamanaz, qujuenchioaz, qujuẽmanaz, in çaço tlein xochitotõti qujttaia, cuecuepontoc, cuecuepocatoc, tlatlatzcatoc, in tonalxuchitl, hacquj, aqujtoton, hacqujpipil, hacqujtetoton, çan quecizquj, çan quezqujtoton, çan quecizquipipil, çan quezqujquauhtoton qujcujcujtlalpia, qujilpia. 796[X] 824 [784] [532]

Auh ynjc xuchitetemoaia, qujcenpanocujtivj in milli, tel cequj qujoalnamacaia, in millaca: 796[X] [432]

auh yn iquac y, qujquaia tzatzapaltamalli: [262]

oc cenca ichoanti qujmauiztiliaia in coateca, in coatlan calpulli itech pouja: qujtlamanjlia yn inteouh, itoca cõatl ycue, coatlan tona:

yn jtech tlaquauhtlamati, yn jnnetemachil, yn jtech moquauhiotia, yn inquauhio, yn jtech motzatzilia.

Auh çan no iquac coatlatilo, onmotlatia, onmocacoa, yn jmeoaio tlaca, vmpa iopico onaactiuj:

1. The corresponding Spanish text specifies: "... que hacian en el postrero dia del segundo mes, que se decia tlacaxipeualiztli." In Chapter 1, this month is correctly named Tlacaxipeualiztli.
2. Iuan sembraron espadarte.—"Y se dice 'se sembraron espadas'." (Garibay: "Relación breve," p. 294). Seler (op. cit., p. 77) has, for espadarte, "finder sind das Schwertkraut und der Rohrkolben."
3. "Los sacerdotes de aquel templo," according to Sahagún's Spanish text.
4. Cf. Sahagún: Histoire des choses de la Nouvelle-Espagne, p. 92, n. 3: tamapalamalli—"Pain-fait pour tamapalmalli, de tamapali, épine au hoche piquante, et tamalli, sorte de pain."
5. Ilamatlatilo: Seler (op. cit., p. 78) uses the same expression; Garibay (op. cit., p. 295) has, for yoan mimoyo hematlatilo, "y se llamaba, 'se quedaron las pieles'"; the corresponding Spanish of Sahagún reads: "tamaliaban sus algunos amos."

Twenty-third Chapter, which telleth of the feast and of the honors which they performed on the feast day in the fourth month, which was known as Uei toçoztli.[1]

This [feast of] Uei toçoztli was thus carried out: to begin with, for four days there was fasting in the houses. [There] the young men set up the cattails,[2] covered and sprinkled with blood, everywhere [in the houses].

They arranged them all in the houses, and offered, erected, and set up, the cattails before their gods; they cut, severed, and reaped [the grass] near the [white] ends. These [ends] they anointed with blood.

And anyone [who was a] young man drew blood, quite of his own will, from his leg or from his ears.

And where there were riches, where there was prosperity—in the houses of the lords, the leaders, the chiefs, the merchants, [the youths] laid out [a bed of] fir branches[3] for the cattails, and balls of grass whose outer edges were woven into a fringe.

In the middle of these they placed maguey[4] thorns; these they set on them, also anointed and sprinkled with blood, at eventide, when a little sun [still shone], when the sun had not yet entered his house. Then they made their offerings.

And at night, the women made [a gruel of ground maize called] atolli—either a thick, white atolli[4] or an atolli made of a dough of maize softened with lime, or a fruit atolli.[5] This atolli was known as aquetzalli.

Then they swept their tribal temple. And when they had swept, then they poured the atolli into the atolli vessels.

It spread out shining; it spilled over, sending off heat; its vapor diffused. And when it had cooled,

Jnic cẽpoualli onei capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa in ilhujtl: yoan in tlamauiztililiztli, in qujchioaia, yn jpan ic cemilhujtl, yc nauj metztli: in mitoaia vey toçoztli. 796

Inin vey toçoztli, ynic mochioaia, oc achtopa naujlhujtl neçaoalo, in techachan: qujquequetza telpopochti tolpactli, tlachezujlli, heezço, tlaezçotilli noujã: 824 qujcentzacutimanca, in techacha, ymixpan qujmamanaia , qujquequetzaia, qujtitiquetzaia, yn jnteuoan in tolpactli, qujtzinichpeloa qujtacaloa, qujtzinixcoloa, vncan conalaoa in eztli.

Auh in eztli, çan teiollotlama, yn aqujn telpuchtli, itech qujqujxtiaia, ytlanitzco, anoço ynacaztitech. 796 785

Auh in necujltonoloia, in netlacamachoia: yn aço tetecuti, teiacanque, achcacauhti, puchteca, yn inchachan cacxoistema, in tolpatlactli, çacatapaiolli, tlatenvimololli, tlatenxinepanolli: [56 35? 824]

tlanepantla qujtlalia: vitztli, itech qujmamana no tlaezujlli, tlaezçotilli teutlacpa, oc achitoa tonatiuh, iquac yn aiamo vncalaquj tonatiuh, in qujmamanaia.

Auh in ioaltica, yn oqujchiuhque cioa atolli: aço quauhnexatolli, anoço nextamalatolli, anoço xocoatolli: injn atolli moteneoa, aquetzalli: 796 [262]

njman ie ic tlatlachpana yn jncalpulco. Auh yn otlachpanque njmã ie ic qujteteca in atolli, izqujatecomac, vel pepeiontimanj, pepetlantimanj, totontlapetztic, hypotoc quiztimanj: auh yn occuh, yn oitztix, yn

1. Great Vigil (Gran Velada), according to Gerbay (op. cit., p. 256). Durán (op. cit., Vol. II, p. 276) refers to Uey tepeilli as gran parranda, and to Tepeilhuitl as "parranderilla . . . pequeña comida pasada con algunos amigos de una parte á otra."

2. Sahagún describes them as espadañas. Cf. Historia general de las cosas de Nueva España (Mexico: Pedro Robredo, 1938), Vol. III, p. 272. Seler, in Collected Works, Vol. II, Pt. 4, p. 76, has Bumchpole (Typha sp.), and in Einige Kapitel, p. 83, n. 1, offers Rohrkolben or Kolbenrohr as alternatives.

3. Pin—ábies religiosa (H. B. K.) Schlecht & Cham, in Clark's Mendoza Codex (James Cooper Clark, ed. and tr.; London: Waterlow and Sons, 1938), Vol. II, p. 72; pino, in Seler, Collected Works, Vol. II, Pt. 4, p. 83, citing Molina (abeto, árbol de que se coge el sebo de abeto) and Hernández (Madrid, 1790, I, 24)—"árbol así llamado de ocotum, ahiotl quemado que embarra, así compuesto." He equates ocotum with cypressus, as does Gerbay (Libro del mitoteo, p. 212). Sahagún used the term based ahuacatl, Seler says, and adds that ocotum was a name given to a variety of green huacalote. It is pictured in No. 275 of Pom y Tezozomoc's edition of the Historia de las cosas de Nueva España, Vol. VII (Lib. XI). [824]

3a. Agave americana or century plant. The Mexican name maguey is used in this translation.

4. Sahagún, in op. cit., Vol. II, p. 266: "pasahuancalli, que es harina con harina hecha y muy blanca, hecho con tequisquitl." In Einige Kapitel, p. 84, Seler speaks of the gruels of maize were "mit Pottasche gekochten."

5. A sour gruel, in Seler, loc. cit. Sorolla (op. cit.) states that an odd fruit, such as tamarin, was used.

X 796 702 us men, they were vain, they were only weak words. For in truth thus the women could torment [young men] into war; thus they moved and provoked them; thus the women prodded them into battle.

For we men said:

"Bloody, painful are the words of the women; bloody, heart-rending are the words of the women. Let us be on our way; let us offer ourselves as warriors. Friends, perchance we may attain reward."

X 796 [346] And when [the young girls] went carrying upon their backs the maize god[desses], as they took them to Chicome coatl's temple, [the ears of maize] were made hearts. They became the granary's heart; in the maize-bin they laid them.

And when seed was sown, when it was the time for planting, this they sowed, [which] they had made into seed. They made seed maize of it.

And they made and instituted this feast for Chicome coatl.

[532] They formed her image like a woman. They said: "Yea, verily, this one is our sustenance"; that is to say, she is truly our flesh, our livelihood; through her we live and are strong. If she [were] not, we should die of hunger.

For he who eateth no tortillas, he then fainteth; he falleth down; he droppeth quickly; there is a twittering as of birds in his ears: darkness descendeth upon him.

X 796 ● 824 243 And it is said, it is this Chicome coatl who maketh all our food—white maize; yellow maize; green maize shoots;[12] black maize;[13] black and brown mixed, and variously hued;[14] large and wide; round and ball-like; slender maize; thin, long maize; speckled red and white maize,[15] which hath blood-red lines and is [as if] painted with blood, then, the coarse, brown maize,[16] which is as if tawny in appearance; popcorn;[17] the after-fruit;[18] double ears; rough ears; and maturing green maize;

toqujchti, ca çanenpanca, ca ça in toneuhcatlatol: ca uel ic qujmontzintopeuaia in cioa iaoc, ic teioltoneoa, ic tioleoa, ic teioflo tzicujnia in cioa, in iaoc.

Ca qujttoa, in toqujchti eço tecoco, yn jntlatol cioa, eço teittic acic in cioatlatolli, ca otiiaque, ça otiqujtoque, yn ahtinemizque: aço itla tomaceoal tocnjuhtze.

Auh in qujmamatiuj in cicinteteuh, yn oqujtquja iteupan chicome coatl, tlaiollotl muchioa: incuezcomaiollo muchioa, cuezcomac contema.

Auh yn iquac totoco, in ie toquizpã, ichoatl qujtocaia qujxinachioaia, qujxinachioa.

Auh injn qujlhujtlaltia, qujlhujchiujlia in chicome coatl:

iuhqujn cioatl qujtlaliaia ixiptla. Qujtoaia, ca uel ichoatl in tonacaiutl: iuhq'nma qujtoznequi, ca nel tonacaio, tonenca, ic tiioltinemj, tooapaoaca: intlacamo ichoatl, ca tapizmiquizque.

Ca yn aqujn, atle qujqua tlaxcalli, ca njman çotlaoa, vetzi, meciuhtiuetzi, ynacaz, yicaoaca, tlaioalli ipã momana:

yoan mjtoa, ca in ichoatl chicome coatl, ca qujchioa yn izquich tonacaiutl:

in iztac tlaolli, in coztic tlaolli, in xiuhtoctli, yiaujtl, yiauhnenel, iauhcacalquj, tlaolpatlachtli, in totoiontic, in tlaolpicilli, tlaolpitzaoac: in xochicintli, ynjn iuhqujn ezoaoanquj, ezcujcujltic:

njman iee in quappachcintli: iuhqujn quappachtli, itlachieliz, momochicintli, in molqujtl, cinmaitl, cintzatzapalli: yoan in xilotl, in cacamatl, in elotl:

---

12. A gloss in the Aztec text of Lib. XI, cap. xii, of the Florentine Codex defines xinhuetli as "Pan de maya verdes, pequeños y redondos."

13. "Espigas de maya negro" (loc. cit.). Molina (op. cit.) says "maya morena o negra."

14. Sahagun (loc. cit.) defines xinhuacalqui as "Espigas de maya por diversos colores."

15. No gloss appears in loc. cit. The Nahuatl text reads: "xochicintli izteiz cintli tlapalonamaqui, tlapalonejujtic tzoncujujtic, tzoncujujtiaqui, tzoncujujtic, momoyauhtic, momoyauhtic, momoyauhtic, momoyauhtic, momoyauhtic, momalpichtic, momalpichtic."

16. Loc. cit. has "Espigas de maya leonado." In the Robredo edition, Vol. III, p. 102, there is reference to "cierto maiz de color que parece anchas y aplanadas, y leonadas, que en la lengua de llamaba tzatzapalli xochicintli, quappachcintli." A gloss in the Florentine Codex (loc. cit.) says, however, that tzatzapalli are "Espigas de maya que nacen de dos en dos." In Simeon (op. cit.) quappachtli is green or tawny or violet. Molina (op. cit.) has "color leonado, o medio morado." For quappachcintli, Simeon has "maiz gruesa es brown, que servesi à guisar los guaformenos provenant de la lisazion de es (Sah.)."

17. Durán (op. cit., Vol. II, p. 90) defines momochtli as "maiz tostado y reventado," and on fo. 37*v* of the Florentine Codex, Lib. II, Sahagun writes that it is "maiz tostado . . . que cada grano es como una flor blanquísima."

18. Redrojo de maizaro (Molina, op. cit.).

the small ears of maize beside the main ear;[18] the ripened green maize.[19]

Then the beans—white beans, yellow beans, red beans, quail-colored beans;[21] black beans; flesh-colored beans;[22] fat, red beans; wild beans;[23] amaranth; the variety of amaranth call cocotl;[24] fine, red amaranth seed:[25] [common] red amaranth;[26] black amaranth; bright red or chili-red amaranth;[27] fish-amaranth [michinantli or chicalotl];[28] brilliant black amaranth seed;[29] the bird-seed called petzicatl;[30] also chía—white chía, black chía, and wrinkled chía.

All these things, thus mentioned, all these they offered to [the goddess]. When her feast day was celebrated, they formed her image, and laid all before her; the old men of the tribal temple sang for her; they beheaded quail for her.

And her adornment [was thus]: she was anointed all in red—completely red on her arms, her legs, her face. All her paper crown was covered completely with red ochre; her embroidered shirt also was red; her skirt was the color of ripe fruit. She had a chief's shield, painted with designs and embellished in red. She carried in either hand her double ear of maize.

Thus ended the festival of Uei toçoztli, and thus ended and passed the vigil songs. And then the winding dance, the dance with song, began. This ended at the time of [the feast of] Toxcatl.

njman ichoatl in etl, yn iztac etl, ecoztli, echichilli, çoletl, tliletl, aquijletl, aiecotli, quavecoc, oauhtli, cocotl, tlapalhoauhtli, xochioauhtli, tliloauhtli, teuoauhtli, anoço chichiloauhtli, mjchioauhtli, chicalotl, ꝫtzcaoauhtli, petzicatl:

no yoan in chien, iztac chien, tliltic chien, chiantzotzol.

Jn ixquich y, iuh qujtoa, ca moch ichoatl, qujtemaca: in iquac ilhujuh, qujtlacatilia, muchi ixpan qujmanaia, qujcujcatia in veuetque, calpuleque: qujtlacotonjlia.

Auh yn jnechichioal motlaoçaia, muchi tlauhio, centlauhio, yn jmac, yn icxic, yn jxco: muchi tlacemaquilli, tlaujtl yn jamacal yn ivipil tlamachio, no tlauhio, yn icue cacamoliuhquj, tlatolchimali cujlolli, tlauhpoiaoac, ycinma nenecoccampa qujtqujtica.

ic ontlamj, in vey toçoztli: yoan ic vntlamj ic qujça, in toçozcujcatl. Auh iquac vmpeoa in necocololo, cujcoanolo: vmpa vntlami, yn ipan toxcatl.

796X
824
243
796X
241
826

796X

796X
532

796X

---

19. Gloss in the Florentine Codex (loc. cit.): "Mazorquillos de maiz que son hijos de las mazorcas." Simeon (op. cit.) has "petit épi de maïs qui pousse à côté de l'épi principal."

20. Orozco y Berra, op. cit., Vol. I, p. 314, lists as follows: "[Maíz] De maíz hasta que está un poco crecido, es tlaxilli . . . Xilotl, jilote, la mazorca de maíz tierna y por sazonar. Elotl, elote, la mazorca tierna cuando está en los granos sazonados. . . . Centli, centli, el maíz seco en mazorca: ya desgranado tlaolli, tlaxcalli, tlaxilli. . . . Olotl, olote, el carozón de la mazorca. Elotlitzuli, elotzuzuchili—los hijos que la rodean."

21. In loc. cit., Sahagún has "Frisoles pintados de color de codornices." See also Bobadilla ed. of the Historia, Vol. III, p. 343.

22. Gloss in Florentine Codex, loc. cit.: "Frisoles de color encarnado."

23. Cf. Bobadilla ed. of the Historia, Vol. III, p. 232: "Hay una raíz que se llama cimatl; la hierba de esta raíz llámase quauxoxo: y semilla cimatl. Esta hierba hace unas hebras que son como frijoles grandes, y son frijoles silvestres."

24. "Varias hierbas que son como ortigas o cardos de España"—ibidem, Florentine Codex, loc. cit.

25. "Una manera de maíz colorado fino" (loc. cit.) Clavigero (op.cit., Vol. I, p. 61) has Purslane (xuchili) Portulaca oleracea L. Var.

26. "Una manera de maíz colorado" (Florentine Codex, loc. cit.).

27. Same as note 25—"Una manera de hierba muy colorada y muy buena" (loc. cit.).

28. "Hierba o semilla delas aves buenas de pecar"; same as chicalotl—Michinantli: iuan iuan chicalotl (loc. cit.).

29. "Una hierba muy semilla es muy negra" (loc. cit.).

30. "Una yerba muy semilla quieren los gallinas [sic]" (loc. cit.) opochtli, here at the Temple of Uitznauac, in the tribal district. They placed it on the serpent bench.

This serpent bench was hewn of wood, to represent serpents; four sides carried the tails; four sides carried their heads.

They covered [Uitzilopochtli's] mesquite wood framework with fish amaranth dough; for his figure was always hewn of mesquite wood, which they covered.

Then they placed upon him his raiment; they put on him his sleeveless jacket, on which human bones were painted.

And over it they laid a mantle, his cape of magney fiber, like a network cape.

And they fitted on his paper crown, adorned with feathers, called anecuiotl. On his feather headdress stood a flint knife, also made of feathers, half of it being blood-colored.

Then they arrayed him in a godly, costly cape, made, embellished, and designed all in precious colored feathers, with the red eye border, all thus edged with [the feathers of] the red spoonbill. And in the center lay a great golden disc.

And his bones were made of fish amaranth dough, shaped like cylinders. They called them teomimilli. They piled them before [Uitzilopochtli's figure], until they were hip high.

And the cape which covered them, and spread before them, was designed with skulls, with the palms of hands, with hip bones, ribs, legs, the lower arm bones, and with the outlines of feet. Thus was it painted.

And this cape was named tlaquaquallo.

And yet one more thing they caused to be spread before him: they cast down what was named the sacred roll. In this form it was named his breech clout.

And this was a paper, white paper and not yellow paper,[19] a finger thick, a fathom wide, and twenty fathoms long.

With ceremonial arrows, arrows hardened in fire, they supported it; they were made only that they might carry [the paper]; that his breech clout might be carried.

In three places were they plumed, with white turkey feathers: first on the point, second on the shaft, and third on the end.

motlacatlalia, in Vitzilopochtli: vncan m vitznaoac, teucalco, ycalpulco: coatlapechco contlalia: 796x ynjn coatlapechtli, quaujtl in tlaxixintli, iuhquin cocoa, naujntin in motzinnamjctoque: nauhcampa caca yn jntzontecon: 778 [352 532] mjchioauhtzoalli, ynjc qujpepechoaia, yn jmizqujo, ca mizqujquaujtl, in tlaxintli, yn ixiptla muchipa catca, yn oqujpepechoque: [624] njman ie ic qujmamaca yn jtlatq': conaquja yn jxicol, tlacoaquallo, ynic tlacujlolli:

yoan panj cononoloa, panj conquentia, ytzitzicaztilma: iuhquin cuechintli: [292]

yoan conaquja yamacal, yujtica tlachioalli, motocaiotia anecuiotl: hivitzoncal, icpac icac tecpatl, çan no hiujtl ic tlachioalli eztlapanquj: [293 237]

njman conquetia teuquemjtl tlaçotlanquj: muchi tlaçoiujtl ynic tlachiuhtli, ynic tlaiecchioalli, ynjc tlacujlolli, ynic tlatenchilnaoaiotilli, yn jten, çan moch tlauhquechol: auh yn jnepantla manj, cuztic teucujtlacomalli. [237]

Auh yn jomjio muchioaia, mjchioauhtzoalli, mjmiltic, motocaiotiaia teumjmjlli: qujtetema ixpan veca acitoc, injc vecapan cenquappantli.

Auh yn tilmatli ic tlapachiuhtoc, yn jixco çouhtoca, tlacujlolli, tzontecomatl, macpalli, quezizepolli, omjcicujlli, tlanitztli, matzotzopaztli, xocpalli, ynic tlacujlolli catca. [532]

Auh ynjn tilmatli, motocaiotiaia tlacoaqualo:

yoan oc no centlamantli, ixpan contequjlia, ipan conteca in teumjmjlli itoca, iuh mjtoa ymaxtli:

Auh ynjn amatl catca quaoamatl, amo texamatl: ynic tilaoac cenmapilli: auh ynjc patlaoac cenmatl: auh ynjc vijac cempoalmatl: [289 292] teumjtl, tlatzontectli, tlaochtli ynjc qujnapaloa: çan ic muchioaia injc qujnapaloxque, ynjc monapaloa ymaxtli: [411]

excan in tlapotonjlli catca, iztac totoliujtica, injc cecnj, vel yiacac, ynjc vecan ytlaxichchocan, ynjc excan, vncan yn jmamaçocan: [411 237]

19. Cf. V. W. Von Hagen: The Aztec and Maya Paper Makers (New York: J. J. Augustin, 1944), pp. 69, 72 esp. In the Rabinalo edition of Sahagún, Vol. V, p. 231, a note by Seler defines quauhamatl as "la materia manufacturada por la capa de liber de algunos árboles de grueso tronco. Sirvió de papel para los pintores o los libros, y de tela para hacer las cabezas, vestidos y otros objetos que el culto de los dioses requería."

X796 he offered incense; he went forth to stand outside the entrance; he went forth to stand in the courtyard.

The fire priest[7] raised it to the four directions. And having done so, he cast the coals in the brazier; he then went in, and placed himself by the fire.

[262] Then in his turn he laid down four balls of dough made of maize, placing them very cautiously, very heedfully, very warily. If one [of the balls] rolled, then they seized him; he was apprehended. The priests said unto him:

"We priests have detained thee, for thou hast rolled [it]."

And the fire priest then entered [the temple]. Thereupon he sat down, and undid and removed [his adornment]. Then all the priests arranged themselves in front, and one by one, in turn, they placed on the ground the balls of dough.

[824 262] And some laid down four large, red and white tomatoes, or four small tomato buds;[8] and some spread out four green peppers.

They were watched well; all looked very closely, all observed carefully, lest mayhap one might roll one [of them]—lest perchance one might move or displace it or disturb it with his hand or displace it with his hand. And if anyone knocked [one of them], they laid hands upon him, they discovered him, they made him known, they marked him.

And if they noted on one [even] a little dirt, or a cobweb, or a small piece of cotton on either his head or his cape, then they seized him and marked him. Perchance one stumbled, slipped, or fell down. All [such malefactors] were seized.

Four days this was done, and four nights, that all acted with prudence.

And after that the old priests[9] took away [the offerings]. They took for themselves what they wished [of the offerings], and ate them. Four days they took for themselves those things which had been laid as offerings.

[262]

And when it was not yet midnight, then shell trumpets were blown. And when they were blown, then all unclothed themselves and cut magney spines and pierced their ears with thorns. Thereupon were the spines stained with blood, and all [the priests] were smeared with blood. And they all arose.

[785]

in itlema: njman ie ic tlenamaca, qujiaoac oalmoquetza, itualco oalmoquetza:

nauhcampa in conjaoa yn tlenamacac: auh in ie iuhquj, contema tlequazco tlexochtli, mec calaquj, conmotlalia tlecujlixquac:

vncan contema nauhtetl ynepapatlaia, ventelolotli, cencan tlamatzin, cencan juja, cencan matca in contlalia: intla centetl oqujmjmjlo, ic caci, yc axioa, conjlhuja in tlamacazque.

Otimjxtacique tlamacazque, ca otitlamjmjlo.

Auh in tlenamacac, mec calaquj: njman ic motlatlalia, moxixitinja, moueueloa; njman ic onmoiacatia yn ixqujchtin tlamacazque, ceceiaca cõtlalitimanj yn jnnepapatlaia, in ventelolotli.

Auh in cequjnti xitomatl, anoço izoatomatl in concaoaia nauhtetl: auh in cequjntin chilchotl in contemaia, nauj:

cenca vellachielo, vel neixpetzolo, vel neixpepetzalo, yn açaca tlamjmjloz, yn açaca tlaoliniz, yn açaca tlamapetoniz, yn açaca tlamazopeoaz. Auh intla aca otlamjmjlo, caci, conjximati, conmachiotia:

yoan intla aca ytech qujtzazque, tlaçoltontli, anoço tocatzaoalli, anoço ichcatontli: aço icpac, anoço itilmatitech, ic caci, conmachiotia: anoçe motepotlamja, moticujnja, anoço motlaujtequj, muchi ic neaxioa:

naujlhujtl ynjn muchioaia, yoã nauhioal, in nematcanemoaia.

Auh in ie iuhquj, njman ic quiquanja in quaquacujlti: qujmocujlia intech monequj, qujqua: naujlhujtl in qujmocujliaia, in motlaueuenjaia:

auh yn aiamo onaci ioalnepantla, mec tlapitzalo: auh yn ontlapitzaloc, njman ic nepepetlaoalo, yoan neuitzteco, yoan nenacazteco: njman ie ic mezuja in vitztli, yoan neçua: auh in ie iuhquj mec nequetzalo.

[793]

7. Sahagún (Robredo ed., Vol. I, p. 299) distinguishes three grades of priests—"tlamacazque (que) es como sacerdote; . . . tlamacazque, que es como diácono; . . . tlenamacac, que es como acólito. De estos nombraban los mayores clérigos por manos pontifices. . . ."
8. Izoatl: leaf (Molina, op. cit.), or species of tomato (Simeon, op. cit.).
9. In the corresponding Spanish text, Sahagún describes "unos viejos, que llamaban quaquacujilti: los quales trayan los unos tabiques de mayz, manyplebados sobre sus hombros de la cabeça, que traxo los sabedhor largos, al modo de los clerigos."

[796] must cape[16] or the dew cape, adorned with [crossed] [793] parrot feathers. Then he carried upon his back his round, pleated paper flower,[17] and from the nape of [292] his neck hung a semicircular pleated paper flower.[18]

tzitzintlhio: njman conmomamaltia, in tlaquechpaniotl, yoan conmatiuh y cuexcochtlan amacuexpalli:

And his forehead was painted blue, and, besides, [302] he placed iron pyrites upon it; he sprinkled iron pyrites.[19]

yoan mizquatezoujaia, oc cepa ipan conapetzujaia, conapetzotiaia:

And in his hand he took his paper incense bag, with shells attached, covered with sea shells, also [824] known as a sea shell incense bag. It was filled with sweet-smelling herbs, with ground-up yauhtli.[20] yoan itlan cantiuh yiatzitli cuechcho, tlacuechiotilli, no iuh mjtoa cuechiatzitli, vncan tentiuh yiauhtli, yiauhtlatezitli:

And an old priest[21] bore upon his shoulders the mist rattle board.

yoan ce quacujlli conquechpanoa, aiauhchicaoaztli:

And a number of priests carried in their arms rubber [molded] like men adorned as gods, called rubber [314] gods.

auh in cequjntin tlamacazque, qujnanapaloa vlli, iuhqujn tlaca ic tlachichioalti, motocaiotia vlteteu:

Some bore in their arms [pieces of] incense, quite round and conical [in shape], on the points of which [235] were quetzal feathers, called the quetzal feather maize tassel.

cequjntin qujnanapaloa copalli, çan mjmjlmjltic quaquauitztic, icpac ▼ icatiuh quetzalli, ytoca quetzalmjiaoaiotl.

And when this was done, the flutes were played; thereupon all set forth on their way and then departed [from the temple].[22]

Auh in ie iuhquj ỹ otlapitzaloc, njman ie ic onneotemalo, mec viloa.

And as many as had been detained [for misdemeanors], those who had been taken, these they arranged in order, they held by the napes of their necks as they were spread out, or grasped with their hands, or seized by the hair; some they held by the ends of their breech clouts, which they held in their hands.

Auh in q̃xqujchtin, yn oaxioaque, oqujntetecpanque, qujntzitzitzqujtimanj, incuexcochteuh qujmaanjlitimanj, qujnquaquatemotzoltzitzqujtimanj, cequjntin in mazztlaujcoltitech qujmaantimanj.

And for the novice priests who had been seized, they made reed rests as for earthen jars, upon which they went placed. They bore [the novice priests] upon their shoulders.

Auh in tlamazztoton, yn oaxioaque, toliaoalli qujnchichiujliaia, vncan iehetiuj, qujnquechpanotiuj:

And those yet a little older they went leading by the hand.

auh in ie achi qualtoton, in matitech qujmaantiuj.

And when they had set forth, then they began jostling [the captives] and pushing them; they mis-

Auh yn iquac ie oneoa, njman iquac qujnpeoaltia in qujncujcujtiuetzi, qujnmictia qujnmamaiauj, in-

---

16. "Vna manta delgada temporanea, que se llama aiauhquexqui" (loc. cit.). Elsewhere he mentions "manta delgada que llaman ayaui" (Rebolledo ed., Vol. IV, p. 66).

17. "Vna flor de papel grande redonda, redondo a manera de rodela" (corresponding Spanish text). Later, in the same chapter, he describes the shapeshipped as "ornamento, que lle sobre el pescuezo."

18. "El cabadrillo, vna flores de papel, nombrado frenzidas, que colocaua a ambas partes de la cabeça a manera de orejas de papel, como medias alcandoras," and, later in the same chapter, "era ornamento, que se ponjan ceo el cabadrillo, como una flor hecha de papel" (loc. cit.).

19. "Mexican warriors (ayauhcaxtec) coloured the whole of their bodies black except the face, as may be seen from the drawings, but they also painted the face with a few black stripes on which they sprinkled iron pyrites (apetlatl)" (Clark, op. cit., Vol. I, p. 93n.).

20. "Hay otro que se llama yauhtli. Es muy verde, sirve muchas cosas y crecen todas juntas hacia arriba; (y) siempre huele; se tendido mediciual para los que tienen calentura, molido y bebido con el cacao; bueno de tomar, y despues molido y mezclado con el cacao. Aprovecha también para los que siempre sangre; y para los que tienen calentura" (Sahagún, Rebolledo ed., Vol. III, p. 278).

21. Probably the ciuapilot of quauquauitztic is meant by quacujlli. Sahagún, however, defines quacujlli as the priest charged with the raising of young girls dedicated to love in the temple. Cf. op. cit., Vol. I, p. 253.

22. Following your order, the Real Palacio MS contains a few lines which are missing from the Florentine Codex: auh ciuapiltin yeztiuh yiaoc cuequalli, auxol, no tlachichinolli yeztl pepper y yeztiuh oaxac, auxol yiaoc pilotzinli, yeztl tlacatilli auxolqui, quinquatzotiri, ceuaca quimmaitlitiri,—and in the midst of them went what is called a cual cast, made of reeds, with two feathers [upright] upon it. Paper went hanging from it, spreading out from it, painted lengthwise with stripes. They went carrying it with much reverence.

war, or that many women would die in child-bed, when from their wombs [children] would come.

And in this wise did they proceed in the mock-fight: First began [the party of the woman who was the likeness of] Tetzo innan to pursue the others. With her were the great medicine [women]. The [first] one [was named] Aua; the second, Tlauitecqui; the third Xoquauhtli. These three were her old women.

In this manner they pursued and pelted the others. Thus they proceeded hurling at them matted tree parasites[2] gathered into balls, and reeds pressed into balls, and cactus leaves, and Tagetes flowers. And all carried tobacco gourds girt to their waists. Once again they fell upon [the others], pelting them as they went. [And] not for long, but for only a few times, were they pursued.

And thereupon they took [her in the likeness of] Toci[3] where she was guarded. For four days they proceeded with their skirmishing.

And when the four days of skirmishing had ended, then, upon the morrow, she tramped over her market place toward sundown. As she came forth, the medicine [women] encircled her. When she was surrounded, then [the priests of] Chicome coatl[4] came out to receive [her who impersonated Toci]. And when they had come forth to receive her, they made a great circle [about her]. And when she was surrounded, then she came into the midst of them. Then she scattered, there, cornmeal. Thereby she tramped over her market place[5] for the last time, as if taking leave of the market place.

And when she had tramped over it, then they took her where she was guarded, at her temple. Much did the medicine [women] console her.

They said unto her: "My dear daughter, now at last the lord Moctezuma will sleep with thee. Be thou happy."

They told her not that she was to die. For verily she was to die unaware. Then they adorned and completely arrayed her.

And when it was midnight, then they led her forth [to the temple]. Then none spoke, none talked, none coughed; [it was] as if the earth lay dead, late at night. And everyone gathered round in the darkness.

And when they came to the place where she was quja, in quauhtli ocelutl: anoço mjequjntin mocioaquetzaque in cioa in jmiti ic iazque. 796 X

Auh ivi in, in muchioaia injc çonecalia: achto peoa in tetzo innan in tetoca, itlan mantivi in vevei titici. Ichoatl in Aua: Injc vme Tlavitecquj. Injc ei xoquauhtli. In ichoantin im eixtin y, ilamaioua: [759]

injc quintoca, quintepachotivi: injc quintepachoa, papachtli ica, tlaolollalilli, tlaoolollalili, yoan toltapaiolli, yoan nupalli, yoã cempoalxuchitl: yoã muchintin imjietecõ ic mocujcujtlalpia: enocuele quintepatztia, quintepachotivi: amo vecaoa çan quezquipa, in ommototoca. [824]

Auh in ie iuhquj, njmã ic qujvica in toci, in vmpa pielo: inin navilhujtl in qujchioaia in mjicali:

auh in otzonqujz in çonecali, navilhujtl: njmã imuztlaioc in qujoalicça itianquiz, ie teutlac: injc oalqujça cololhujtivitze in titici: auh in ie iativitz, njmã ic qujoalnamjquj in chichicomecoa: auh in oqujoalnamjcque njmã ic oallaiaoaloa: auh in ontlaiaoalo, vncã vmmoquetza, in tlanepantla: njmã vncã contetepeoa, tlaoltextli: njmã ic conjcça in jtianquiz, ça iiopa, ça ie cõnaoatia in tianquiztli.

Auh in oconjçcato, njman ic qujvica, in vmpa piclo, in jteupan, cenca qujiollalia in titici:

qujlhuja. Nochputzin, ca iequene axcã motetzinco aciz in tlatoanj Motecuçoma, ma ximopapactzino:

amo qujmachitiaia in jmjquiz, çan iuhquj in ichtaca mjquja: mec qujchichioa, qujcencaoa.

Auh in jquac ie onaci iocalnepantla njmã ic qujvica, çan njmã siac naoati, siac tlatoa, ancac tlatlaci, ça iuhquin tlalli mjctoc: auh ixquich tlacatl, cenquiçaia in iocalica.

Auh in oconaxitique vncã mjquja: njmã ic qujoal-

2. Spanish bromb; Tillandsia usneoides L. (Cook, op. cit., Vol. II, p. 366).
3. Toci: identified with Tetzo innan and with Tlaçolteotl. Cf. Bancroft, Collected Works, Vol. I, p. 14; Vol. II, Pt. 4, p. 65.
4. Cf. corresponding Spanish text.
5. "A este patio llamaban centzonjuntos del tianquez porque nunca cesa mas de bailar a el" (corresponding Spanish text).

X 796 Thirty-first Chapter, which telleth of the feasts and the ceremonies which were performed on the feast of the twelfth month, which was named Teotl eco.

Inic cempoalli on matlactli oce capítulo: itechpa tlatoa in ilhujtl, yoan in nextlaoaliztli; in muchiouia, in jpã vel ic cemjlhujtl, injc matlactetl om ume metztli: in motocaiotiaia, Teutl eco.

The twelfth feast was the one named "The God Arriveth."[1]

Injc matlactetl om ume ilhujtl: ichoatl in motocaiotia, Tetl eco:

[824] When there were still five days before the end of the month, then began the strewing of fir branches.[2] The branches were of three stalks, which they bound together. Only the young men laid them down, on [346] every small pyramid, in the temples of the Ciuateteo,[3] and in all the dwellings where were kept images of the devils.

in ie iuh tlamacujlti, njmã vncan vmpeoa in acxoiatemalo: in acxoiatl, ichoatl in acatl, ẽci in qujlpiaia; çan ichoantin in telpopochtin qujtemaia, novian in momoxco, in ciouatecalco, yoan in novian techachan, in vncan pipielo in jmjxipdaoan diablome:

And when they scattered branches in every home, they offered [the idols] a small basket of dried grains of maize; or else of maize, four dried ears; [or], in some places, three. If [the householder] were very [252] poor, he offered two dried ears of maize.[4] This was named the tongs [for maize grains];[5] for the youths ate the maize toasted in the embers. And none who had not the right [to do so] might eat the maize thus toasted; only those who were diligent, discreet, careful; the alert, who trusted not [too much] their [own] diligence.

auh in techachã novian onacxoiatemaia, qujnoalmaca, aço cen chiqujuhtzintli in tlaolli, anoço cintli, naolotl: in cana ieolotl: in cenca motolinja, omolotl in cintli qujoaltemaca: moteneoa, cacalotl ca qujmocalhujaia in telpopochti: auh aiac çan nẽ mocalhujaia, can ichoantin injmel, in tlaccelianj, in tlamocujtlavianj, in cochicanj, in amo tlatlacanequjnj in jmel.

And on the third day of the spreading out of [176] branches, then there arrived Telpochtli; and his name was Tlamatzincatl.[6] He came first; this one arrived ahead. For this reason he came here first: he was still a youth, still strong, fleet, nimble.

Auh in ie ic ieilhujtl acxoiatemalo: iquac heco in telpochtli, itoca Tlamatzincatl, oaliacattivia, ichoatl achto heco: ipampa in oaliacattivia, ca oc telpochtli, oc chicaoac, tlaçanj, cotze:

X 796 Wherefore he arrived first; and they laid out offerings for him. They offered him fish amaranth seed, 252 ground and made into a ball of dough.

ipampa in achto oalaci, yoan qujtlamanjliaia: in qujmanjliaia, mjchiouhtli, in tlapololli:

First, they roasted [the maize], and broke the grains upon an earthen plate, and then ground it upon a stone. And when they had ground it, then they moistened it with water. Some they moistened with honey. They fashioned mayhap five, mayhap four balls [of this paste], and filled a wooden vessel achtopa qujcequj, qujxomotza comalco, çatepan qujteci: auh in oqujtezque, çatepã qujpoloaia, atica: cequj necutica, in qujpoloaia: aço macujltetl, aço

1. Teteo hevo—Los dioses llegan, in Garibay, op. cit., p. 307. Clavigero, op. cit., p. 145, refers to tendrse en la fiesta de la venida de los dioses. The spelling "Tetl eco" is in the Florentine Codex.

2. See note 3, p. 59. In Cap. xxxiv (Pinquentaliztli), Sahagún explains that "por causa llenaban estas verdes y espinosas de magueys," and, in Cap. xxv (Tlaxipehualiztli), "donde no había estas verdes y espinosas de maguey."

3. Sahagún (Bulnes ed., Vol. I, p. 114) explains that "Tenían establecidos oratorios a honra de estos dioses en todos los barrios donde había dos calles; los cruzaban llamaban ciuatecalli, o por otro nombre ciuaxtecpanco; en estos oratorios tenían los simulacros de estos dioses. . . ." Clavigero, (loc. cit.) says: "enramaban los templos y las encrucijadas de las calles." Cf. also Anderson and Dibble, op. cit., p. 6.

4. Olotl is more properly corn cob. See Sahagún, op. cit., Vol. II, p. 32; however, he usually renders it maize ear.

5. "Cuerda, o tenazuela . . . para asar granos de maíz tostado en el rescoldo" (Molina, op. cit.). Sahagún has the term apizoaldo.

6. These names are synonyms for Tezcatlipoca.

K 796 at the ends, with cord, held together with cords so that as one struck, they made a crackling noise. Verily, they belabored and hurt one another.

[824] And if [the young warriors] caught a priest, if one was taken, they rubbed him with [powdered] magney leaves; sorely he burned and itched; [it was] as if his flesh crepe. And if one of the young warriors was caught, the priests bled his ears with a [magney] thorn, and his arms, his breast, and his thighs, [so that] he cried out loud.

[352] And if [the priests] chased the young warriors there into the royal palace, they looted it, taking all the [reed] mats, the cord mats, the seats with backs, the couches, the backless seats. And if they found horizontal, two-toned drums, or ground drums, they removed them, taking all [with them].

And if [the young warriors] took after the priests, entering the priests' dwelling, they also robbed them, removing from them mats, shell trumpets, and seats.

And they dispersed from thence, and all stopped toward evening when a little sun still shone.

And the fourth day [of Atemoztli] was named "Ashes Are Scattered." The old people said: "For the bathed ones, who died," it was said, "yet walk [upon the earth] for four days. Not yet do they depart to the land of the dead. And when ashes are scattered, then they go down into the land of the dead."

[515 348] And then were burned the paper vestments in which they had died, which had been laid in reed baskets. And then all washed their heads with soap; all bathed. Then all departed hence, thus dispersing each [to his own house].

Here ended the feast of Panquetzaliztli, after it had already taken the four days from [the month of] Atemoztli.

piaia, qujcacattilpiaia, qujtetevilpiaia, qujmecatetecujaiaia, qujmecatitlan tlaliaia ynic moujujtequj: iuhqujn tlatlatzcatimanj, vel mococoltia, vel mococoaia.

Auh intla oce cacique tlamacazquj, iintla oce axioac, qujmealtia, cenca cuecuetzoca, quequezquja: yuhqujn iolmiquj ynaçaio. Auh intla ce axioa, telpuchtli, in tlamacazque qujçoçoia vitztica yn jnacazco, yn jacolpan, yn ielpan, yn jmetzpan, vel qujtzatzatia.

Auh in telpupuchti, intla qujntocaticalaquizque, in vmpa tecpan, tlanamoia, muchi qujnamoia in petlatl in petlamecatl, in tepotzoicpalli, in netlaxonj, in tzinicpalli: auh intla qujpãtilia teponaztli, in veuetl mpchi qujqujxtia, muchi qujcuj.

Auh intla qujntocaticalaqujzque tlamacazque in calmecac, no qujntlanamoielia, qujntlaçaçaqujlia, muchi qujnqujxtilia, in petl:tl, in tecciztli, in jcpalli: auh çan vncã xixitinj, necacac:'o, oc achi tonatiuh ie teutlac.

Auh injc navilhujtl moteneoa, nexpizolo: qujtoaia in vevetque. Ca in tlaaltilti in omjcque: qujl oc nemj navilhujtl, aiamo vi in mjctlan: auh in jquac nexpizolo, qujnjquac temo in mjctlan; yoã iquac motlatia, mopetlacaltema, in jmamatlatquj in jpã omjcque, yoan iqnac neamovilo, neaaltilo, mec viviloa, ic cecẽmanoa.

Nicã tzõqujça in jlhujtl Panquetzaliztli, ie cuel ic naujlhujtl cõcujlia in Atemuztli.

X 796 night was spent and used in cutting lengths of paper, that they might complete and finish the spotted paper banners. And when they were finished and completed, they were joined to poles; [the papers] reached from the bottoms to the tops of the poles. They set them up in the middle of each courtyard. There they remained for the entire feast day.

amaxodlalo: in tlamj, in iecavi tetevitl. auh in otlan, in oiecauh, matlaquauhtitech movivipana, tlaltitech peuhticac, onaciticac in jtzonco; itoalnepantla in qujquequetza, vel oncã cemjlhujtia:

X 796 And the producers of figures of the mountain [gods] beforehand feasted the priests, so that these 778 would make for them the paper adornment of the small mountain gods. And only there in the priests' dwelling did they array them.

auh in tepicque achtopa qujnmolcaoaltiaia in tlamacazque, injc qujnchivi'ztque imamatlatquj, tepictotõ: auh çan vmpa in calmecac in qujchichioaia.

And when all [the adornment] had been finished, they then took them to the homes of those who had vowed to make the figures; and their instru-[534] ments, [which] went forth [with them, were] their two-toned wooden drums, and their gourd rattles, and their turtle shell drums. And they adorned the figures of the mountains, offered them food, and dressed them in capes.

Auh in omuchi iecauh, mec qujtqujxte in inchã tepiqujnj, yoan intlatquj oalietiuh in inteponaz, yoã imaiacach yoan in jmaiouh, mec qujnchichioa in tepicme qujntlamamaca, qujntlaquẽtia:

And one who produced the figures [made] perhaps five, another [made] perchance ten, another perhaps fifteen. And the [figures] which they adorned were all [made] purely of a dough of amaranth seed.

auh in aca qujpiquja, aço m cujltetl, in aca aço matlactetl, in aca aço caxtoltetl: auh in qujchichioaia çan muche in tzoalli.

And they fashioned them as figures of these mountains—Popocatepetl,[4] Iztac tepetl or Iztac ciuatl, Tlaloc, Yoaltecatl, Quauhtepetl, Cocotl, Yiauhqueme, Tepetzintli, Tepepolli, [and] Uixachtecatl; and also [mountains of the god of] fire, Chicome coatl, Chalchiuhtli icue, and Ecatl.[5]

Auh in qujnpiquja ichoantin in tetepe: in popocãtepetl, in jztactepetl, anoço iztac cioatl, in tlãloc, in iooaltecatl, in quauhtepetl, in cocotl, yiauhqueme, in tepetzintli, in tepẹpolli, in vixachtecatl, no ie in tletl, in chicome coatl, chalchiuhtli icue, ecatl.

And when they had completely adorned them, then they set food before them—each one separately. And their tamales were exceedingly small, exceed-[415] ingly tiny, very long and very thin. And they heaped them in small wooden vessels and sauce bowls; and their small earthen vessels contained a very small [quantity of] chocolate.

Auh in oqujncencauhque, mec qujntlamaca, cecenj mjxcavia: auh in intamal cenca çan tepitoton, cenca çã achitoton, papatlachtotonti papatlachpipil: qũãũhcaxtotonco in qujntetemjlia, yoã inmolcaxtoton, yoan inçoqujtecõtoton, çan no tepitoton cẽcã achi in onaquj cacaoatl:

And four times that night they made offerings of food. And before them lay two green jars; wine was [415 [in them]. And the green jars were made of these 273 green gourds.[6] They split them, and took out their 824 seeds; they removed the seeds, And they took out the pith, which was like a cord. Here they placed the gourd wine.[6] Thus all night they sang for [the auh nappa in qujntlamaca ceioal, yoan imjxpan manj vntetl chalchiuhtecomatl vctli oncaca: auh in chalchiuhtecomatl muchioa, ichoatl in tzilacaiotli, xoxoctic, qujxtlapanaia, qujoalqujxtilia in jaiovachio, qujoalaiooachqujxtia: yoan qujoalqujxtilia in jcujtlaxcol, in juhquj mecãtl, vncan conteca in aiocti,

4. These are located in the chapter on Ad omnia. See p. 43. Tepemindi and Tepepolli probably are the Tepemizoo and Tepepulco named in that chapter.
5. Cacuchica floribus Boucbf (Seler: op. cit., p. 221).
6. Cf. Seler (loc. cit.)—Kakaiomatic (aiocti). Aiocti, however, is defined (Rimi Simeon op. cit.) as a mixture of honey and water.

x796 when he had been living in the likeness of another, [548] had walked with head high, had lived as a captive, had been drunk, and had gone in high esteem.

oaqueztinēca otlamattinenca, omjvintitinēca omovelitztinenca.

And for this reason was [the month] named "Izcalli hath ended": all the small children, all of them they took up and lifted by the neck. For it was said, [827] they [thus] grasped them that they might grow; thus they would speedily grow tall; they would wax great and strong.

Auh injc mjtoa Jzcalli, tlami yn ixquichtin pipiltotonti, muchintin quinquechaana, quinacopilos: ic mjtoa quimizcalloana, quimizcalaana, ynic iciuhca quaquauhtiztique, manazque, mocapeoazque:

And they divided the heart of the magueyplants;
● [828] they broke, peeled, and opened it. And they cleaned the cactus and pruned its branches, because thus it would quickly be given new life and growth.

yoā in metl quijolloxeloa, quijolletzaiana, quijollotlapana, quijollotoma: auh yn nopalli quijlaiectilia, quimatepeoa, ipampa ynic iciuhca manaz, mocaltiz, mocapaoaz.

x796 And at this [feast of] Izcalli, there also came to 852 pass, every four years, the bringing out of the children and the drinking of wine by the children. And then the chiefs danced a lordly dance, along with their courtiers. And they put on their wigs of hair;
[301] in truth they were head pieces made of long hair and covered with green stone. [The hair] fell, verily, to the chiefs' waists.

Auh yn ipan y, Izcalli, no vncan muchioaia, ynic nauhxiuhtica nepilquixtiloia, pillaoanoia: yoan vncan motecujtotiaia in tlatoque, yoan yn inpillooan: yoan contlaliaia yntzonpilinal, centlamantli, tzoncalli catca, viiac in tzontli ic tlachioalli, quichachalchiuhiotiaia, vel incujtlacaxiuhiā vetzia in tlatoque.

And for this reason one said that the children were brought forth: the fathers and mothers of all the small children first sought out those who would bring them to the priests' dwelling, a place named Tezcacoac—a woman and a man whom they invited.
[608] It was said that they were to be uncles and aunts [of the children]; they became uncles and aunts [for them].

Auh ynic mjtoa nepilquixtilo, yn jxquichtin pipiltzeonti, yn jntaboan, yn jnnahoan, achtopa quintemoliaia, in quinvicasque calmecac, itocaiocan tezcacoac ce cioatl, ce oquichtli in quinotzaia, mjtoa: quintlatia quimaviña, tetlati, teaviti:

And not their kin did they take; they secured only their friends, whom they chose and to whom they [431] gave gifts. They laid out capes and breech clouts for us men. Likewise, for a woman they laid out her skirt and shirt.

auh amo ineanioque in quimanaia, çan incoapan intlaanaia, in tlapepenaia, quintlauhtiaia: tilmatli, maxtlatl, contlaliliaia in toquichtin: no ivi in cioatl, icue, ivipil contlalilia

At midnight they took [the children] to the priests' [304] dwelling. There they pierced and drilled their ears. [And the children] cried out [as] the pointed bone pierced their ears. They drew through a thread of unspun cotton, and bound it to them, as the little ones cried out and squirmed, and shed tears. And [302 237] they passed upon their heads yellow macaw feathers and soft down.

ioaloepantla in quinvicaia calmecac, vmpa quinnacazxapotla, quinnacazcoionja pipitzcatiuh in omjtl injc quicoionja innacaz, potonquj icpatl in vmpa conequjxtia, vncā quimonjlpilia iuhquin tlatzatzitlteoa, tlatzatzatzi, tlachoquiztleoa in pipiltzitzinti, yoan tocivitica tlachcaiotica quinpotonjaia in jmjcpac:

And the women who became aunts were pasted [608 302] with red feathers, but only upon the legs and arms, and they covered themselves with their paper flowers, which were called their noble flowers.

auh in teaviti cioa, çanjo imjcxic, yoā inmac in mopotonjaia tlapalivitica, yoan imamauchiuh cotecativia: mjtoa, intecuzochiuh.

When they had pierced [the children's] ears, then they took them to their houses. Here they sat attending them; they sat in vigil, awake, [thus] remaining

In jquac oquimōnacazxapotlaque, njmā ic quinoalhujujca in inchachan, vncan quichieltitoque intoçotoque, teçotoque tlatlavilitoque, quichiztoque in place. And the gods once more spoke, and said: "How may we live? The sun does not move himself! Are we to live among the peasants? Let us all die and make him revive through our death!" And then the Wind took charge of killing all the gods, and he slew them. And it is told that one, named Xolotl, refused to die, and said to the gods: "O gods, let me not die." And he wept exceedingly, so that his eyes swelled with weeping. And when the slayer came to him, he hid in the maize fields, and he changed and turned [8214] himself into the foot of a maize plant which has two stalks, and the field workers call it xolotl. And he was seen and found among the feet of the maize stalks. Again he took flight and hid among the maguey plants, and changed himself into a maguey plant which has two bodies, which is called mexolotl. Once more he was seen, and he took flight and placed himself in the water and made himself into a fish which is called axolotl. From there they took him and slew him. And they say that although the gods were slain, not on that account did the sun move. And then the Wind began to blow and raise a strong gale. He made him move, so that he might go on his way. And after the sun began to travel, the moon was quiet in the place where he was.

539

Como podemos biuir no se menea el sol, emos d' biuir entre los villanos? muramos todos y hagamosle q̃ resucite por n̄ra muerte. Y luego ayre se encargo de matar a todos los dioses, y matolos. Y dizese que vno llamado Xolotl rehusava la muerte, y dizo a los dioses. O dioses no muera yo y llorava gran manera de manera que se le hincharon los ojos de llorar. Y quando llego a el el q̃ mataua hecho a huyr, escondiose entre los mayzales, y boluiose y con[ver]tiose en pie de mayz q̃ tiene dos cañas y los labradores le llaman xolotl. Y fue visto y hallado entre los pies del mayz, otra vez hecho a huyr y se escondio entre los magueys y convertiose en maguey que tiene dos cuerpos, q̃ se llama mexolotl: otra vez fue visto y hecho a huyr y metiose en el agua y hizose pez q̃ se llama axolotl de alla le tomaron y le mataron. Y dizen que aunque fueron muertos los dioses no por esso se mouio el sol y luego el viento començo a soplar o ventear rezianmente: el le hizo mouerse pa que anduuiese su camino. Y despues q̃ el sol començo a caminar, la lũa se estuuo queda en el lugar donde estaua.

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

that it contained, and at the good order and control that was maintained, for we had never seen such a thing before. The chieftains who accompanied us acted as guides. Each kind of merchandise was kept by itself and had its fixed place marked out. Let us begin with the dealers in gold, silver, and precious stones, feathers, mantles, and embroidered goods. Then there were other wares consisting of Indian slaves both men and women; and I say that they bring as many of them to that great market for sale as the Portuguese bring negroes from Guinea; and they brought them along tied to long poles, with collars round their necks so that they could not escape, and others they left free. Next there were other traders who sold great pieces of cloth and cotton, and articles of twisted thread, and there were cacahuateros who sold cacao. In this way one could see every sort of merchandise that is to be found in the whole of New Spain, placed in arrangement in the same manner as they do in my own country, which is Medina del Campo, where they hold the fairs, where each line of booths has its particular kind of merchandise, and so it is in this great market. There were those who sold cloths of henequen and ropes and the cotaras[1] with which they are shod, which are made from the same plant, and sweet cooked roots, and other tubers which they get from this plant, all were kept in one part of the market in the place assigned to them. In another part there were skins of tigers and lions, of otters and jackals, deer and other animals and badgers and mountain cats, some tanned and others untanned, and other classes of merchandise.

Let us go on and speak of those who sold beans and sage and other vegetables and herbs in another part, and to those who sold fowls, cocks with wattles, rabbits, hares,

[1] Sandals.

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

797 it would be a good thing if it were successful, but it seemed to him that it was not quite a suitable time to speak about it, for Montezuma did not appear to be inclined to do such a thing.

346 778 Then our Cortés said to Montezuma through the interpreter Doña Marina: "Your Highness is indeed a very great prince and worthy of even greater things. We are rejoiced to see your cities, and as we are here in your temple, what I now beg as a favour is that you will show us your gods and Teules. Montezuma replied that he must first speak with his high priests, and when he had spoken to them he said that we might enter into a small tower and apartment, a sort of hall, where there were two altars, with very richly carved boardings on the top of the roof. On each altar were two figures, like giants with very tall bodies and very fat, and the first which stood on the [776] right hand they said was the figure of Huichilobos their god of War; it had a very broad face and monstrous and terrible eyes, and the whole of his body was covered with precious stones, and gold and pearls, and with seed pearls [381 824] stuck on with a paste that they make in this country out of a sort of root, and all the body and head was covered with it, and the body was girdled by great snakes made of gold and precious stones, and in one hand he held a bow and in the other some arrows. And another small idol that stood by him, they said was his page, and he held a short lance and a shield richly decorated with gold and stones. Huichilobos had round his neck some Indians' faces and other things like hearts of Indians, the former made of gold and the latter of silver, with many precious blue stones.

There were some braziers with incense which they call copal, and in them they were burning the hearts of the three Indians whom they had sacrificed that day, and they had made the sacrifice with smoke and copal. All the walls

Twelfth Chapter, which telleth of still other houses. Some were only indifferent and some were in no way good.

The time of the day sign Four Wind was said to be good and bad. For then were slain those called doers of evil, the adulterers. They placed their heads in a noose and choked, strangled, or hanged them, or struck them on the back of the head, or crushed their skulls under a rock. Only at night were they killed; when it dawned, and they were already bloated, they cast them each into the water. Likewise then died some of the captives. Through them, so it was said, Moctezuma received new life (as hath been told) on [the day sign] One Rain, when [the Goddesses] descended. And this was also the time that the [aforementioned] demons and sorcerers destroyed people. And since there was fear on this day sign, Four Wind, everywhere they put cardoon[1] into the smoke openings [of the houses]. They stuffed and crammed it in. Thereby, so it was said, they frightened them away.

But the merchants,[2] those known as distinguished traders[3] and vanguard merchants,[4] who were rich, greatly esteemed and honored this [day sign]. For then they laid out in the sun[5] all the precious things which they had hidden away—the green stone, the objects made of [ordinary] green stone and resplendent green stone; the round ones, round like

Injc matlactlomome capitulo: itechpa tlatoa, in oc cequj calli, cequj çan tlanepantla ca, cequj vel njman amo qualli. 787X

In jpan nauhecatl tonalli, mjtoa qualli, ioan amo qualli, ca vncan mjctiloia, quinquechmecanjaia, quinquechtzonviaia, quinmecanjaia, quinpiloa, quincuexcochvivitequj, quinquatepipitzinja, in moteneoa tlaçolctiuhque, in tetlaxinque, çan iooan in mjctiloia, in oallatvi ie tlacujtlapoçaoa, atlan qujmonmamaiavi. No ioan cequjn vncan mjquja in mamalti, iuh mjtoa: ca iehoan inca mozcaltiaia in Motecuçoma (in iuh omoteneuh) ipan ce qujauitl in vncan temoa: auh ie no vncan tepopoloaia, in omoteneuhque tlatlacateculo, in nanaoalti, auh injc imacaxoia, in ipan in tonalli nauecatl in tlecalco noujian caaqujaia, in tlacateculomocovitztli, qujpopotzaqujaia, qujcacacatztzaia: iuh mjtoa ca ic qujnpeviaia. 681 684 727 761 789 824

Auh in iehoantin pochteca, in moteneoa: acxoteca, in oztomeca, in motlacamati, ie qujveimatia, qujmavizztiliaia, ca vncan qujtotonjaia, in ixquich tlaçotli qujtlatiaia, in chalchiuhtl, in chalchiuhtli, in quetzalchalchiuhtli, in ololiuhquj, in tumatic, in acatic, in ic ixquich cozcatl, in coxcapetlatl, in patlaoac, in pitzaoac, xiujtl: auh in jxquich nepapan ivitl, in quetzalli 441 527 556

1. Xocoxochitl. — Francisco J. Santamarina: Diccionario general de americanismos (Méjico: Editorial Pedro Robredo, 1942), Vol. II, p. 1[illegible]: Jocoxoc — Bromelia pinguin L. "En México, nombre vulgar de una planta de las regiones tropicales, que crece como un matorral de ahora y cerca hojas verdosas o las de la piña. . . . propiedad antiescorbútica."

2. Translatable also as "men of Pochtlan," a barrio of Tenochtitlan occupied by merchants, whose gods were Tlipan, Macuilxochitl, Xilonen, Tlaloc, Xiuhtecuhtli, Cuauhtlehuanitl, Chicomecoatl, Xochiquetzal, Tlazoteotl (Arturo Monzón, op. cit., p. 58). See also Alfonso Caso: Instituciones indígenas precortesianas (Méjico: Instituto Nacional Indigenista, 1954), pp. 23-24, for a résumé of the social and economic importance of the pochteca.

3. Acxotecatl or pochtecatlhiohuc, "mayor o principal entre los mercaderes . . . tenía como si dijéramos que es gobernador de los mercaderes, y entre los mercaderes . . . es antiguo al que es mayor principal, gobernador, o señor, o que es cual padre y madre de todos los mercaderes" (Sahagún, Quiñones ed., X, 16, 5).

Jens, op. cit., p. 240 (citing Seler, Ges. Ak., II, 68): "eher ehrbarmachender Vollzugsmann in der rituellen der Inca von Mexiko gelegenen Landschaft Chalco." Acxotlan was a merchant's barrio in Tenochtitlan; gods were Nine Eheca, Chicomecoatl, Xoxoucatl, Cuchiteed, Yacapitzinca, Nacxitl, Chalmecatecuhtli (Monzón, loc. cit.).

4. Cf. Anderson and Dibble, op. cit., Book I, "The Gods," p. 13 and n. 5. Jens, op. cit., p. 326, citing Seler, Ges. Ak., II, 1070: "Mann der dem Ort Oztomec . . . . der auf Wanderschaft gelernte Kleie und Marktfeller zuerst als der auf seiner Reise gelernte Gesetzgeberin, auch Kaufmann i. A."

5. Ibid., p. 145.

762 foods came forth from the palace; and from the houses in the commoners' localities they [also] emerged and came forth.

But only for a little while it was, remained, and rested there. Then the old men of the temple district [of Uitzilopochtli] removed, continued to take and transport, divided, and distributed, what pertained to them. They removed it to a number of places. They consumed all. No one remained alone. Everyone came to it: the devout of the place, those who had fasted for a year; those who had danced and fasted for Uitzilopochtli.

[824] And Moctezuma then offered all manner of precious flowers [before the image] — varied flowers which were sweet-smelling and fragrant: magnolia,[4] maize flowers,[5] cacao flowers,[6] popcorn flowers,[7] and garlands of maize ears,[8] which grew everywhere; basket flowers,[9] raven flowers;[10] yellow and blue tobacco flowers;[11] milky corn silk flowers;[12] and all manner of precious flowers, prepared,—well-formed, well-arranged, made as shields of flowers, circular, radiating, and spreading; and the pleasant-smelling ones. It seemed as if the fragrance, the perfume, spread and blanketed his temple.

And so they burned [tubes of] tobacco — only in bundles. First they bound them about the middle. As they burned them, they filled [the area] before [the image].[13] It was as if the smoke arose, spread a cloud, extended, came to settle, and lay billowing.

782 Likewise it was said at the time of the day sign 274 One Flint Knife, that the wine-makers showed special concern. At that time they cut and bored tlatocan oalquiçaia: ioan in çan calla, mocoalpõ oalcoaia, oalquiçaia:

auh çan achiton ca, in vncan vmanj, vncan onoc, vncan onmoteca: niman ic quijquanja çan ic concujtimanj, ic conjquanjtimanj, intech povi in calpulvetetque, quimonxelhuja, quimonmamaca, quecinquecan quimjcuanjlia, vntetlamj, aiac ixcauj, mochi tlacatl itech aci, in vncan tlamaceuhque, in moexiuhçauhque, in jtech mjtotinemj, in quimeçaujlia Vitzilopuchtli:

auh in Motecuçoma in jxquich tlaçonochitl, in nepapan xochitl, in velic, in aviiac vncan quimana in iolloxochitl, in elxuchitl, in cacaoxuchitl, in izquixochitl, ioan cacaoacincozcatl, in inquijcan icac, oacalxochitl, in cacaloxochitl, in coztic iicxochitl, auh in xoxouhquj iicxochitl, in xiloxochitl, ioan in ic izquich nepapan tlaçonochitl, in tlamantli, in vellalilli, in tlatecujcujlolli, in mjmati, in chimalxochitl, in ololiuhquj, in momoiaoa, in xexelivi: auh in çaçan tlatlanecutli, iuhquin tlaujiaxtoc, tlauceelixtoc, tlaujiaxtimanj, tlauceelixtimanj, in jtexpan:

auh injc quitlatiaia iietl, çan ce oommecatl çan iuh cujtlalpitiuh in quitlatiaia, contecatuj ixpan, iuhquin puchtecoatoc, aiavitl mantoc, aiavitl quiztoc, iuhquin mõemomolocatoc.

No ioan mjtoa in jpan in tonalli ce tecpatl, oncca vncan tlatemachiaia in tlachicque, vncan quitlapanaia in inmeuh, ic quitemachiaia injc oncca meiac,

---

4. Iolloxochitl (Talauma mexicana D. C. Don) — Mexican magnolia, a flower reserved solely for the nobility. — Emily Walcott Emmart: The Badianus Manuscript (Codex Barberini, Latin, 241), Vatican Library. An Aztec Herbal of 1552 (Baltimore: The Johns Hopkins Press, 1940), p. 316.

5. Elxuchitl: probably Compositae (?) (Emmart, op. cit., p. 275). In Francisco Hernández, Historia de las plantas de Nueva España (México: Imprenta Universitaria, 1942), Vol. III, p. 841, it is classed with yoxochitl. Santamaría, op. cit., Vol. I, p. 288, identifies it as Magnolia fuscata Dun.; also called yolloxochitl.

6. Cacaoacochitl: Theobroma angustifolium D. C. (a cacao plant). — Emmart, op. cit., p. 311. Hernández, op. cit., Vol. III, p. 921, calls it Quararibea funebris (Llave) Standl. See also Santamaría, op. cit., Vol. I, p. 278.

7. Izquixochitl: Bourreria huanita (La Llave & Lex.) Hemsl. (Emmart, op. cit., p. 277).

8. Cf. Santamaría, op. cit., Vol. I, p. 245.

9. Uazxochitl: Xanthosoma sp. (Emmart, op. cit., p. 234); Hydrolandrum officinalis, Hemsl., "Una planta exótica, de las acuáticas, cultivada en [México]" (Santamaría, op. cit., Vol. II, p. 162).

10. Cuauhxochitl: Plumeria rubra L., attributed of important personages, according to Sahagún (Emmart, op. cit., p. 302). Hernández, op. cit., Vol. III, p. 866, says Plumeria acutifolia Poir, "flor de cuervo."

11. Yecxochitl: flor de tabaco (no botanical name given); "El Yecxochitl, que algunos llaman chocoxchitl o cua flor de ciervo, y otros cuauhquipinchitl o yoxochitl amarillo" (Hernández, op. cit., Vol. III, pp. 841, 842).

12. Xilonxochitl: Bombax ellipticum H. B. K., according to Hernández, op. cit., Vol. II, p. 453, and Paul C. Standley, "Trees and Shrubs of Mexico," Contributions from the United States National Herbarium (Washington: Government Printing Office, 1923), pp. 793-794; Calliandra anomala (Kunth) McBride, according to Emmart, op. cit., p. 301.

13. Real Palacio MS: cuauhtlamati.

BEHOLD THE APPENDIX OF THE FIFTH BOOK. HERE ARE TOLD THE DIFFERENT THINGS WHICH GOD'S CREATURES, THE IDOLATERS, WRONGLY BELIEVED.

IZCATQUJ YANCA INJC MACUJLLI AMUXTLI: VNCAN MJTOA, YN JZQUJTLAMATLI ITECHPA CHICOTLAMATIA IN JTLACHIVALOAN DIOS, IN TLATEOTOCANJME.

First Chapter, which telleth of the white amaryllis.[1]

This kind of flower was thus called — white amaryllis (omixochitl). And also a kind of sickness — decaying of the genitals — was also called omixochitl, because indeed in some such manner as [the flower], so was [the member] scarified. And so did the ancients invent, and so deceive themselves. It was said of him upon whom this sickness, which they called omixochitl, settled, that it began thus: perhaps one had urinated or stepped upon it; or one had smelled it many times. It was as if it had thereby bewitched him. In such manner did they deceive themselves.

Injc ce capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa in omixuchitl.

Injn centlamantli xuchitl: iuh motocayotia in omixuchitl. Auh no centlamantli cocoliztli, tlapalanaltilizti: no motocayotia omixuchitl: ichica ca çan vel iee injc ca, injc tzitziquiltic: auh injc compjquj, in juh moztlacaviaia vevetque: qujlmach in aquin ytech motlalia, injn cocoliztli, in motocayotia omixuchitl: ic peoa, in aço ypan omaxix, anoço oipan moquetz: in anoço mjiecpa oquinecu, iuhquj injc quixoxa, in juh moztlacavia.

Second Chapter, which telleth of the poinsettia.[2]

This kind of flower [was] fragrant. And yet another kind of sickness of the genitals was called cuetlaxxuchitl (poinsettia). And this sickness was especially the lot of women — particularly their sickness; not of men. And of this ill it was said that thus did it begin — so were the ancients deceived: they had perchance stepped over it, or smelled it, or else sat upon it. Therefore it then cast a spell upon her; thus it befell her. And hence mothers restrained and scolded their daughters; they said to them: "Do not smell it; do not jump over this flower; [the sickness] will be settled upon you."

Injc vme capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa in cuetlaxxuchitl.

Injn centlamantli xuchitl, ineconj. Auh oc no centlamantli tlapalanaltiliztli, no motocayotia cuetlaxxuchitl: auh ynjn cocoliztli, oc cenca inpan muchioa in cioa, oc cenca incocoliz: amo no yehoan in toquichtin. Auh injn cocoliztli: qujlmach ic peoa, in iuh moztlacavia vevetque: in aço oquicuencolhuj, in anoço oquinecu, in anoce oipan motlali: ipampa in juhquj ic quixoxa, ic itech motlalia. Auh ipãpa in tenanoan quintlacavaltiaia, quimausya in jmjchpuchoan, quimjlhujaya: macamo xiquinecujcan, ma ypan ancholoti injn xuchitl, amotech momanaz.

824
753

1. Omixochitl, according to Santamaría, op. cit., Vol. II, p. 354, is the same as omixpaxtlar (Polyanthes tuberosa L., P. mexicana Zucc., P. gracilis Link), a fragrant flower appearing in July and August, used as a febrifuge. Sahagún (Garibay ed.), Vol. IV, p. 347: Polianthes tuberosa, P. mexicana. Rémy, op. cit., Vol. II, Pt. 2-4, p. 89: "bone flower" — "a white flowering Amaryllidaceae or Iridaceae."

2. Cuetlaxxuchitl. Francisco Hernández: Historia de las plantas de Nueva España (México: Imprenta Universitaria, 1946), Vol. III, p. 958: Euphorbia (poinsettia) pulcherrima Willd. Paul C. Standley: "Trees and Shrubs of Mexico," Contributions from the United States Herbarium, Vol. 23 (Washington: Government Printing Office, 1923), Part 3, p. 688: cuicle-cuchil, used in a decoction for nursing women to increase lactation. Sahagún (Garibay ed.), Vol. IV, p. 351: Euphorbia pulcherrima.

824 531

Third Chapter, which telleth of flowers artificially arranged.[3]

Flowers arranged with artifice: there were many kinds thus named, flowers artificially arranged — flower shields; flowers for clipped heads, or for shorn ones, or drums; or spreading [flowers]. As to these flowers the ancients were also deluded. They said: "It is not our right to smell in the midst — the center — of them; he alone, he who pervadeth all, Titlacauan, may smell that place. Our right is only to smell them there at the edges."

Injc ey capítulo, itechpa tlatoa, in suchitl yn ye tlatlalilli.

Suchitl ic tlatlalilli: ca mjiec tlamantli injc motocaiotia in suchitl tlatlalilli, chimalsuchitl, quateçonsuchitl, quachic, vevetl, moisauac: In jtechpa yn suchitl, no motlapololtiaya in vevetque, quitoaia: ca amo tonemac in tlanepantla, in jnepantla tiquijnecujzque ca çan icelteiin vel vncan motlanecujltia in tloque naoaque, in titlacaoan: çanijo tonemac, in vncan titlanecujzque in jtenco.

824

Fourth Chapter, which telleth of dried grains of maize.

As to dried grains of maize, in many ways were the women none the less deluded. First, when they cooked it or set it in ashes — behold their folly: when they would place it in the olla with ashes, first of all they breathed upon it. It was held that in this way it would not take fright; thus it would not fear the heat. It was said that thus they mitigated the heat.

[352]

Second, they deceived themselves in this way: if they saw or came upon dried grains of maize lying scattered on the ground, then they quickly gathered them up. They said: "Our sustenance suffereth: it lieth weeping. If we should not gather it up, it would accuse us before our lord. It would say: 'O our lord, this vassal picked me not up when I lay scattered upon the ground. Punish him!' Or perhaps we should starve."

Injc navi capítulo, itechpa tlatoa in tlaulli.

In jtechpa in tlaulli: mjiec tlamantli oc noma, ic motlapololtia in cioa. Injc centlamantli: in jquac quijcuxitia, in anoço quijnexquetza: izcatquj in jnnetlapololtiliz, in jquac ic contemazque in nexcomjc: oc achtopa conahaiovia, quijlmach ic amo momauhtiz, ic amo motonalmauhtiz: quijlmach ic contonallalilia.

Injc vntlamantli, injc mizttlacavia: intla oquijtaque, in anoço oypan quijçato tlaulli chachaiuatoc tlalpan: njman conpepentiuetzi, quijtoa: motolinja in tonacaiutl, mochochoquijlitoc: ca intlacamo tiopepenazque, ca techteixpanujz in jxpantzinco totecujo: ca quijmolhujliz. Totecujoe, injn macoxolli: ca amo nechpepen, in jquac tlalpan njcenmantoca: ipa xicmotlatzacujltili: auh anoce timaianazque.

856

Fifth Chapter, which telleth of stepping over one.

As to stepping over one, the natives also [were] deluded. When some child lay stretched out across one's path, if someone stepped over him, then they chid him who passed over him, saying to him: "Why dost thou step over him?"

It was said that thereby the child would grow no more; he would be only small. And in order to cure him, so that [this] might not befall the child, once again he stepped back over him.[4] Thus was it remedied.

Injc macujlli capítulo, itechpa tlatoa in tecuencholhujlistli.

In jtechpa tecuencholhujlistli: no centlamantli innetlapololtiliz in njcan tlaca: in jquac tla aca melavatoc piltontli, necujliuhtoc: intla aca ocontecuencholhuj, njman caoa in aquijn otecuencholhuj, quijlhuja. Tle ipampa in ticcuencholhuja:

quijlmach ic ayocmo manaz in piltontli, ça izquijchton ica: auh injc compatiaia, injc amo ipan muchioaz piltontli, oc ceppa quijoalpancholhuja: ic vmpatia.

3. Suchitl ye ye tlatlalilli. Corresponding Spanish text: "las flores, que se compusieron de muchas flores."

4. Quijoalpancholhuia. Corresponding Spanish text: "otra vez volvió a pasar sobre el, por la parte contraria."

843 And when the swelling appeared, upon his back 752 was as it were a small, blue bump. Or [he might catch] inflammation of the groin.[22] And when the inflammation of the groin appeared, the child cried every night; and on the groin and armpits were formed small, round or long [welts of] flesh. And in order to cure it, they cut them off and removed the little [welts] of flesh.

Auh injc neci xiomama, ynijtlapan co, iuhquja pozotonti, iuhquja tezotic: anoço cuetzpalicivitztli.
Injc neci cuetzpalicivi piltontli: cezticoal in choca, yoan yquezilco, yciacac motlatlalia nacazotonti, ololtotonti, melacazotonti. Auh injc pati: quijxmotla, quijquijxtia in nacazotonti.

843 And as for the pregnant woman: before her child 821 had been formed as a being, they restrained [any of] them, when the moon arose, from looking up at it.
They said to them: "Do not look at the moon! Your children will suffer sickness of the heart, or else will be hacklipped!"

Ioan in ozztli: in jquac aimo vel tlacatl motla'ta in jconcuh, quintlacaoaltizia, in jquac calmoma in metztli: injc amo conacopeixtzeque, quimjlhujia:
macamo xocontitacan in metztli, mimjqqja, anoço tenquiviz in amocoxcuh.

825 Twentieth Chapter, which telleth of the monkey's
777 hand.

Injc cempoalli capitulo, ynchpa tlatoa: in oçomatli ymacpal.

The merchants sought and cherished greatly a 441 monkey's hand when they trafficked and sold goods anywhere. There they spread it out. It was said that thereby goods quickly were disposed of and soon all which they sold was bought. It was stated: "That which bringeth this about is the monkey's hand" — so foolish were they.

In oçomatli imacpal: in puchteca ezmea quijxmoaia, quimopialtiaia: in jquac in campa tiamjquja, in tlanamacaia: vncan quijtecaia, quijlmach ic icuhca aquj, icuhca muchi coalo in tlein quijnamaca: quijl ichoatl iuh quichioa in oçomatli yma: ynjc mochapolohtia.

777 Also of the sellers of mantles — when nowhere 264 was disposed of that which they sold, when no one ●824 bought either mantles, or shifts or skirts — it was said: "They make them eat chilis that the goods may be disposed of." And thus did they do it. When they returned to their homes, they said: "Our goods are nowhere disposed of. Give them chilis to eat."
Then in their midst they placed perhaps two or three chilis. It was averred that thereby the goods were disposed of. When they so did this, they said that they had made [their mantles] eat chilis.

No ichoantin in tilmamacaque: in jquac acan aquj in quinamaca, in aiac quicua: in aço tilmatli, in anoço cueitl, anoço vipilli, quijlmach: quichilquaqualtia, injc aquj. Auh injc quichioaia: in jquac calvia inchan, quitoaia: acan onc in totianijc: ma xocochilquaqualtican: niman ic ijtic centzma, aço vme, anoço Ey in chilli: quijlmach ic aquja, injc iuh quichioaia in, ic quijtoa: quichilquaqualtia.

777 Twenty-first Chapter, which telleth of the pestle 525 and the griddle.

Injc cempoalli oce capitulo, inchpa tlatoa in tezoloti, yoan comalli.

When one who played patolli[23] placed his pestle, and his griddle, and his grinding stone upside down in his home, and hung his pestle somewhere in a corner, it was said that thereby the householder would not lose, but only win.

In jquac aquijn patoaia, in jchan, in jtezoloah, ioan in jcomal, ioan in jmetl: intlapach quijnamia: auh in tezoloti cana xonoalco quijpilouia: quijlmach: ic amo quijtlanizque in chane, çan ic tlatlanjz.

22. Corresponding Spanish text: "otra enfermedad, que llaman encanpalicivitzli, a otra lobadillos en las ingles." Wimmer-Alva Codex Blue (El manuscrito mexicano Matritense 378 llamado El Codice Blue [Boston: Bibliotheca Danica, 1900], p. 34).

23. The corresponding Spanish text refers to patolli, which is an game.

776 463 464 which they journeyed. Wherever they slept, there they set them up; before them they did penances, they drew [their] blood, they offered incense that they might be favored by their god, Yiacatecutli—thus they begged and implored his favor.[94]

All manner of places they came to and entered. And hence they were named "the merchants who lead." They took their name from their god, Yiacatecutli.

These vanguard merchants[95] went into the coast-lands,[96] looking well for whatever goods there might be; they stretched over the southern coast-lands, they circled around the coast-lands.

They traveled exhausted by the heat and the winds; weakened, tired in the heat, they walked in great affliction. Their foreheads burned; they shaded the sun's heat with their hands [as] they plodded [under] its rays.

They betook themselves into the deserts; they climbed up and down canyons and mountains—all places. On elbow, on knee, they thus sped, they thus took much time.

[439] Greatly were they wearied, much did they suffer, that they might find precious green stones, emeralds,[97] turquoises,[98] amber, gold; [and] feathers of all manner of birds—the [long tail feathers of the] quetzal[99] and its black and green head and breast feathers;[100] the red spoonbill;[101] the blue cotinga;[102] the parrot; the trupial;[103] the eagle; and the skins of fierce animals, of ocelots.

[825]

motlatocaia, incãpa cuchiuque, vncan qujtilquetza, inpan tlamacoua, mjçe, qujçoçãtzmjlia, ynjc qujtlauhtia yn jnteuh yiacatecutli, ynjc qujtlanjlia, ynjc qujmatatzaqujlia, ynicnelilia:

noujan actitinemj, calactinemj. Auh ic motomoua, puchtoca yiaqui: itech canqua, yn itoca intenh, yiacatecutli:

Ontomeca, anaouc calaquijnj, vel qujtomotinemj, in tlein qujmonanauhtiuque, anaouel qujzaqualotinemj, anaouel qujlacatzotinemj, tonalcüauhtinemj, hecaciuhtinemj, mocianhpouhtinemj, mociauhpouhtinj, elciciuhtinj, mociauhquetztinj, ynellelactinh, ynjnqua tlatlatiuh, intonal qujmatzujtinj, intoualomjuh ietiuh:

itzlaoal qujnamjctinemj, atlauhtli, tepetl, qujtemouja, qujtlecauja, inquijchca ana: inmelicpã, intetepon ic tlatlacça, ic moquequetza:

vel qujcüavj vel qujhüeuja, ynic qujtemoa in chalchiujtl, in quetzalitzli, in teuxiujtl, yn apoçonalli, in teucujclatl: in nepapan ihujtl, in quetzalli, in tzinjtzcan, in tlauhquechol, xiuhtotol, in tzetli, çaqua: quauhcli, in tequanemtl, yn ocelopetlatl.

---

que se vea entre negros frujanos, mestizos sin donde ninguno: que es quasi jaunes, de los que se venen en España." Clark, in Codex Mendoza (James Cooper Clark, ed. and tr.; London: Waterlow and Sons, 1938), Vol II, p. 106, gives bamboo (Bambusa spp.).

94. Torquemada (op. cit., 37-8) says they gathered the stones all together, gave with a ribbon, worshipping the stones as well as the god.

95. Traveling merchants who went into the tierra caliente (ynjtonoua anauac calaquinj) (Seler: op. cit., p. 91). In Gesammelte Abhandlungen, Vol. II, p. 1104, Seler states: "Yacatecutli (der 'Herr der Nase') oder Iyacatecutli ('der Herr der Wegzugmenschen') war der Gott der Karawanenführer der tiefsten anauac calaquinj die reisenden Kaufleute, die die grossen Handelsexpeditionen nach der Tierra Caliente leiteten und ausführten."

Sahagún (op. cit., Vol. III, p. 164) refers to the town of Ozomba in Anáhuac as one of the towns famous for the Xiuhtotoal.

The ozlomeca in ibid., Vol. II, p. 338, in the Nonalcatzinca, appears to refer to a grade or class of merchants inferior in rank to the Pochteca [103] ciaqua.

96. Anáhuac, in addition to designating the valley of Mexico, especially around the lake, refers also to the area in Southern Mexico, especially tropical, which borders the sea coast. In the Spanish version of this chapter, Sahagún defines the area as "todas las poblaciones, que estan cabeza de la mar." In Book III, Chap. XII, Sahagún states "Pedrosos hasta Anáhuac, que dista más de cien leguas" (from Tula). Also, "Entrados en la provincia de Anáhuac, se indica, cómo aquellos que iban de parte del señor de México con quien estaban aliados y confederados . . . iban todos juntos hasta el pueblo de Tuxtepec. En este pueblo se dividían, unos iban a Anáhuac Ayotlan; otros iban a Anáhuac Xicalanco."—Historia general, Vol. II, p. 334.

Seler defines Anáhuac Ayotlan as the Pacific coastal lands and Anáhuac Xicalanco as the area of Tabasco.—Op. cit., Vol. II, p. 456.

97. "Las esmeraldas que se llaman quetzalitzli, las hay en esta tierra muy buenas; son preciosas, de mucho valor, llámanse así porque Quetzalli quiere decir plumas muy verdes, y tzitzli piedra de ensayo, la cual es muy pulida y sin manchas ningunas, y estas dos cosas tiene la buena esmeralda que es muy verde, no tiene manchas, y muy pulida y transparente es resplandeciente." (Sahagún, op. cit., Vol. III, p. 279.)

98. "Turquesas, quieren decir turquesas de las dificiles . . . . es turquesa fina, y sin ninguna mácula y muy tersida."—Loc. cit.

99. "Las plumas que crían en la cola se llaman quetzalli (y) son muy verdes y resplandecientes, son anchas, cuando vuelan hujen de espaldas, deslizándose cuando las tiende al aire (y) resplandecen muy hermosamente."—Ibid., p. 143.

100. "El tecuani que tiene en la cabeza esta ave (quetzaltotoal) es muy hermosa y resplandeciente, llámase a estas plumas tzinitzcan; tiene esta ave el cuello y el pecho colorado y resplandeciente; es precioso esto plumas y llámanle tzinitzcan."—Loc. cit.

There also is a bird by this name: "Hay una ave en esta tierra que se llama tzinitzcan . . . las plumas preciosas que tiene crecidas en el pecho y en las cabezas y debajo de las alas son la cabeza primera y la cabeza verdes resplandecientes."—Loc. cit.

101. Tlauhquechol or tzoquechol (quexan and quechol) or precioso quechol. It is an aquatic bird. "Tiene el pecho, y la barriga, y la cola y las alas de color encarnado muy fino."—Loc. cit.

Seler gives name as Platalea Ajaja L. (op. cit., Vol. II, p. 493). Clark, op. cit., Vol. I, p. 37n., gives Platalea Ajaja rosea L. (roseate spoonbill).

102. Sahagún defines xiuhtotoal as a bird the size of a jay bird (graja) (op. cit., Vol. III, p. 164). Seler identifies it as Cotinga ginetta S. Cornelius (ibid., p. 494). Clark (loc. cit.) gives Cotinga amabilis Gould.

103. See Sahagún, op. cit., Vol. III, p. 164: "Cuando vuela y extiende la cola entonces se parecen las plumas amarillas (y) revuelven el color amarillo con las negras, y así parecen como llamas de fuego y como oro, crianza en Anáhuac."

X796 [535] the emperor himself were decked and arrayed very richly in costly adornments, and they began a dance of great solemnity and gravity which they called netecujtotilizzli, which meaneth "Dance of the Lords." This was performed only every four years, during this feast. On this same day, very early in the morning, before dawn, they began to pierce the ears of the boys and girls, and they applied to their heads a wig of parrot feathers, pasted on with ocotzotl, which is pine resin. Etc.

[304 291 825 314]

mente con ricos adereços todos los principales y señores y personas yllustres, y el mesmo Emperador: y començauan vn areyto de gran solemnjdad y grauedad: al qual llamauan Netecujtotilizzli, quiere dezir: areyto de los señores: Este solamente se hazia de quatro en quatro años en esta fiesta. Este mesmo dia muy de mañana ante que amaneciesse començauã a agujerar las orejas a los njños y njñas: y echauãlos vn casquete en la cabeça de pluma de papagayos, pegado con ocutzotl que es resina de pino. Etc.

And they took [the children] to many [different] places.

[First was] Quauhtepec.[6] And the one who died here bore the same name—Quauhtepetl. His paper vestments were brown.[7]

The second place where one died was the top of Mount Yoaltecatl.[8] The human banner [the child to be sacrificed] had the same name—Yoaltecatl. His paper vestment was black striped with red.

The third place was Tepetzinco,[9] where died a girl called Quetzalxoch, a name which they took from Tepetzintli, [also] named Quetzalxoch. Her array was blue.

The fourth place was Poyauhtlan,[10] just at the foot and in front of Mount Tepetzinco. The name of him who died was Poyauhtecatl. Thus he went adorned: he was bedight in rubber, stripes of liquid rubber.

The fifth place, there in the midst of the lake, was a place named Pantitlan. He who died there had the name Epcoatl. The vestments in which he went, having put them on, were set with mussel shells.

The sixth place to which they carried [a victim] was the top of [the hill of] Cocotl,[11] and also he went bearing the name Cocotl. His array was varicolored —part red, part brown.

The seventh place was on the summit of Yiauhqueme, and also the human banner bore the name Yiauhqueme. The clothing which he bore was completely brown.

These were the places where [the children] died, as blood-offerings, as human banners.

And all went with head-bands[12] with sprays and sprigs of quetzal feathers; they had green stone necklaces, and they went provided with green stone bracelets; they provided them with bracelets of green stone. Their faces were painted with liquid rubber, and spotted with a paste of amaranth seeds. And their liquid rubber sandals: they had sandals of liquid rubber. All went in glorious array; they were adorned and ornamented; all had valuable things on them. They gave them paper wings;[13] wings of paper they had. They were carried in litters covered with quetzal feathers; and in these [the children][14] were kept.

Auh mjeccan in qujmoncaoaia, quauhtepec: auh yn vmpa onmiquja, çan ie no ie ytoca etiujia, in quauhtepetl: yn jamatlatquj, yiapaltic.

Jnic vecã miquja, icpac in tepetl ioaltecatl: çan ie no itoca ietiuh, intlacateteujtl, ioaltecatl: yn jamatlatquj, tiltic, chichiltic ic caoanquj.

Jnic excan, tepetzinco: yn vmpa onmjquja cioatl, itoca quetzalxoch, ytech canaia, in tepetzintli, qujtocaiotiaia quetzalxoch, yn itlatquj çatca texotic.

Jnic nauhcan, poiauhtlã, çan itzintla, çan ixpan in tepetl, tepetzinco: itoca ietiujia in miquja poiauhtecatl, ynic muchichiuhtiuja, vlpiiaoac, tlaulujtectli.

Jnic macujlcan, vmpa in atl itic itocaiocan pantitlan, in vmpa, onmjquja, itoca ietiuh, epcoatl: yn itlatquj, in caqujtiuja, epnepanjubquj.

Jnic chiquaceccan: vmpa quiujcaia cocotl icpac, no itoca ietiuja cocotl: yn inechichioal catca, chictlapanquj, cectlapal chichiltic, cectlapal yiappalli.

Jnic chicoccan, icpac yn jiauhqueme: çan no itoca ietiuh, yiauhqueme, in tlacateteujtl: yn jtlatquj ietiuh, tlacemaqujlli, yn jiappalli.

Jzqujcan yn, in miqujia nextlaoalti, tlacateteuhti:

auh muchinti, ynmaxtlatzon ietiuh, quetzalxixilquj, quetzalmjiaouio: in chalchiuhconquj ietiuh, yoan momacuextitiuj, qujmomacuextitiuj chalchiujtl: tlaxolujlti, qujmixolhujaia, mjxmichioaujque, yoan ymolcac, ymolcac ietiuh, muchintin mauizçotiuj, tlacencaoalti, tlachichioalti, muchi tlaçotlanquj, yn jntech ietiuh, tlaçetlantiuj, qujmamatlapaltia, amatl,

[6] Maps of the Valley of Mexico in Colonial times locate most of the places and features mentioned by Sahagún, but the frequent repetition of place names is at times confusing. Of Quauhtepec, Sahagún's Spanish text says: "es este sierro conjunto que esta sobre del Tlaxpanco."

[7] Tlapaltic, Sahagún (Spanish text) has amarillo (deep red, flesh colored); later he has leonado (lion colored, tawny) for yiapalli. For papaltic, Seler (op. cit., p. 56) has grisáceo; Molina (op. cit.), color ceniciento de negro; Simeon (op. cit.), brown or black.

[8] The Spanish text explains: "es este sierro conjunto que esta sobre grandolejo."

[9] Loc. cit.: "es aquel monteçillo, que esta derrire dicho lugarito, frente del chalchico."

[10] Loc. cit.: "es un monte, que esta en los arenjuez de Ixtacalco, y alli esta sepultado."

[11] Loc. cit.: "es un monte que esta sobre chalco arriba."

[12] Seler (op. cit., p. 57) reads yamatlatzon, which he translates as ihre eigentümliche Feiner.

[13] Sahagún (loc. cit.) says "pusiaban unos alas de papel como angeles."

[14] [illegible]

All went to be bathed. They went sounding trumpets; they went blowing shell trumpets; they beat clipper discs[10] with pine [hammers].

And all the priests carried on their backs their tobacco bags,[11] and their strings of magney fiber about the neck, from which went hanging the little bags, which were filled with dyed, powdered tobacco. And the fire priest went ahead of them, taking his incense burner and his magney thorn. And, with it, he carried his incense bag.

And leading them went a man, an old priest. He went bearing on his shoulders the mist rattle board, called also the sorcerers' staff, which was thick, broad, very wide, and long—very long. And it rattled; he went along rattling it.

No one else remained at the priests' dwelling; the house was all empty, deserted, tenantless.

And only four stayed there—singers, who sat singing, beating the drum, rattling the turtle shell rattle and the gourd rattle, and blowing the shell trumpet. They sat plying the shell trumpet.

And when they had reached the water's edge, the priests' bathing place, where, at the cardinal points, were the mist houses, thereafter all threw themselves down and seated themselves, trembling, shivering, quaking with cold, their teeth chattering.

Hereupon spoke the old man called the old precious stone priest; he said:

"[Behold] the place where the serpents are wrathful, where the water-gnats buzz, the place where the ducks alight, where the white reeds rustle."

When he had thus spoken, thereupon all plunged into the water; they churned it up—beating the water with their hands and with their feet, crying out. Speaking hoarsely, they mimicked all the birds.

Some spoke like ducks, babbling; some mimicked wading birds, speaking like them; some imitated water ravens, talking like them; some talked like [large] herons, some like kingfishers, some like cranes.[12]

Where they bathed, there in their midst were

Vilos, onnevtemalo, tlapizalotiuh, quijpizttiuj, in tecciztli, cohcouiloc chililiti. [776 X 534]

Auh in muchintin tlamacazque, qujmamama yn imiyiequach, ynmecacozquj, inmemecacozquj, itech pipilcatiuh yn imiiequach, ontetentiuh yiaqualli: yoan qujniacantiuh in tlenamacac, ytlemauh ietiuh, yoan yuitz ietiuh: yoan itlan cana icopalxiquijpil. [276]

Auh ce tlacatl quacujlli teiacantiuh, quijquechpanotiuh, aiochicaoazzli, no itoca naoalquauijtl, patlaoac, patlactic, patlacpol: yoan viiac, vitlazztic, yoan cacalaca, qujcacalatzziuh [789] aocac ce onmocaoã calmecac, cemjchictiuh, cactimoquetza, cactiuetzi in calmecac.

Auh çan naujntin in vmpa onmocaoa cujcanjme, cujcatoque, teponaçotoque, aiochiuhtoque, aiacachotoque; quijpizztoque in quijqujztli, quijqujçotoque. [534]

Auh yn oncito atenco, yn jnnealtiaia tlamacazque: nauhcampa in manca yn aiauhcalli, njman ie ic neteteco, netlalilo, tlaztiztilca, tlaviujioca, tlacnecuechca, netlantzitzilitzalo: [823] in ie iuhquj njman ic tlatoa, in vene itoca chalchiuhquaquijlli: qujtoa. [793]

Coatl ycomocaiã, amoiotl ycaoacaian, atapalcatl ynechiccanaoan, aztapilcuecuetlacaian:

yn oconjto y, njman ie ic onnetepenalon atla, tlachachaquatztinemj, yn atlan, tlamaujtectinemj, tlacxiujtectinemj, atlacxiuiztectinemj, tzatzitinemj, ycaocatinemj, qujntlaichecalhuja yn inqujchtin totome: [798]

cequj cannuhtlatoa, tlacacozuja, ceq'ntin qujntlaichecalhuja, in pihpitzti, pipiztlatoa: cequjntin qujntlaichecalhuja, yn acacalome, acacalotlatoa: cequjntin aztatlatoa, cequjntin xuoquentlatoa, cequjn tecujlotiotlatoa: [825] yn vncan mahtizia yn, tlaccpantla manca in cuec-

10. CARRÁ: cf. Gabriel Saldívar: Historia de la música en México (México: Editorial "Cultura," 1934), p. 21: sonajas; sonajas (sand)(?).

11. "Todos llevaban a cuestas, como adoquiera andan con sus cordelejos de ixtli, con sus bolsas al cuello; y de cada cordejuelo, como cinta de papel pintada, estaba con las diversas tinturas, que llamaban piquetzalli; y en aquellas tinturas llevaban sus cuentas de hueso, hechas a la manera de cuentas de rosario, que eran floreadas pequeñas, que son diferentemente con tinta, y con polvos de una yerba que eran floreada yiel, que se usaba hablar de cuentas" (corresponding Spanish text).

Clark (op. cit., Vol. I, p. 57n.) writes: "Amapal: small cane, pipe tobacco. The Mexicans had three kinds in use: the yiel or Nicotiana rustica; Bdd.; the quauhyiel; quauhtlo tocoxuitl, yiel tobacco, or Nicotiana rustica L.; and piciietl; piciitic xuitl, yiel tobacco, or Nicotiana tabacum L., which either as snuff or chewed in pellets called popoxalli; yiel tobacco, quauhyiel, yiel, or smoked in cigars or pipes; pocatl xuitl, yiel tobacco. When smoked, tobacco was mixed with xochicuauhtl, aromatic herbs, and charcoal." Cf. also ibid., Vol. II, p. 136.

12. These birds are described in Lib. XI, cap. 6, § 3 of Sahagún. Cf. Bolaños ed., Vol. III, pp. 169-91. Sahagún defines them respectively as (probably) green-winged teal; blue; American egret or heron; kingfisher (amquam or amquamatl); and sandhill crane (Mexico Explorer, p. 118, cuts 3-7). [136]

5: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Astec NU7

Fourth Chapter, which telleth of the stars.

Inic nauí Capítulo, itechpa tlatoa: in cicitlaltin.

The Comet

It was said [to be] an omen for the ruler. Because of it a ruler was to perish; perchance some person of noble lineage would die. And likewise they said that somewhere he might be imprisoned, or war would begin. Or else there would be famine. The common folk said: "Perhaps this is our hunger; perchance famine," they said.

Citlalin popoca.

Mitoa: tlatocatetzauitl, ic tlatocamicoaz, aço aca uey tlaçopilli ie mjquiz: yoan no quitoaia, aço cana ie oalmotzacoaz, aço ie olinjz teuatl tlachinolli: yoan anoço ie maianaloz. Quitoaia in maceoalti: aço tapiz hi, aço apiztli quitoa. 821 787

The Shooting Star

It was said that the passing of a shooting star rose and fell neither without purpose nor in vain. It brought a worm to something. And of [the animal] wounded by a shooting star, they said: "It hath been wounded by a shooting star; it hath received a worm." [Such] was not to be eaten. It was looked at with fear, abhorred, and shunned. It turned one's stomach.

Citlalin tlamina.

Mitoa: amo nenquiça, amo nĕuetzi, in itlamjnaliz: tlaocuilloia. Auh in tlamintli, mitoa: citlalmjnqui, ocuillo, aocmo qualo, mauhcaitto, tlaelitto, hihielo, tetlaieltia. 821 825 262

And by night all were well protected. All covered themselves; they clothed themselves, wrapped themselves in mantles, and bound on their garments, for fear of the shooting star.

Auh in iocaltica vel nemalhuilo, neololoto, netlapacholo, nequentilo, netlalpililo: imacazo in itlaminaliz citlalin. 821

The S-Shaped Stars

[These] were apart; they appeared by themselves, shining and shimmering. And for this reason were they called S-shaped stars—that they were similar to and very much like a [kind of maize] tortilla which was made, or an amaranth seed tortilla. [These] were, at both ends, twisted and rounded over. They were eaten on the day Xochitl, everywhere, in each house. In all places, in men's dwellings everywhere, they were made.

Citlalnenecuilli.

Çan iioca eoac, iioca neztoc, tlanestitoc, cuecuepocatoc: Auh inic mitoa, citlalnenecuilli: ca quinenecuilia, vel no iuhqui centlamantli tlachichioalli tlacalli, anoço tzocalli: nenecoc, cecentlapal quacoltic, quatcuilacachtic: nuchilhuitl ipan in quaqualoia, nouiian cecencalpan: quitzacutimanca, in nouiian techachan nechtililoia. 821 262

The Scorpion Stars

In the same manner, [these] resembled and appeared in the aspect of the venomous scorpion, with upcurved tail. Arched and upcurled is its tail; wherefore [these] are called the Scorpion Stars.

Citlalcolotl.

Çan no iuhqui: quinenecuilia, quinamiqui, in itlachicliz tequani colotl: cuitlapilcocoltic, mamalacachtic, tetecuilacachtic in jcuitlapil: ipampa inic mitoa citlalcolotl. 821

10:Deevey N-4 (no date)1957 NU7 Aztec NU7

127 Bernardino de Sahagún (1499–1590), who came to Mexico in 1529. It is unfortunate that there is still no complete edition of this work in a European language. The Spanish version, written by the author toward the end of his life, was not published until the early 19th century, and is in part a condensation of the Nahuatl work written about 1547. This is particularly true of Book Eleven, which contains most of the natural history, and has therefore attracted less attention from scholars than the books dealing with ceremonies and the calendar. The edition by Anderson and Dibble (1950–54), which gives Nahuatl and English in parallel columns, has not yet reached Book Eleven, so we must rely on the 1938 Robredo edition of the Spanish text, while the illustrations
127 are to be found in the Madrid edition of 1905–07. Sahagún's vertebrate
136 zoology has recently received careful treatment at the hands of Martin del Campo (1938, 1940, 1941). Some of the flavor of his ornithology can be given by "listening to the mockingbird" (actually the curved-bill thrasher, Toxostoma curvirostre) when he sings in Nahuatl:

"There is a bird in this country called cuitlacochtótotl or cuitlacochin; it has longish and slender feet, and a thin and sharp beak, somewhat [825] curved; it is of a muddy color, tending toward purplish; it sings very well; it is so called by reason of its song, which says cuitlacoch, cuitlacoch, taratitarat, tatatati, etc." (Robredo edition, vol. 3, p. 189).

127 Sahagún's botany will not be discussed here, since it appears not to bear significantly on limnology. It is treated from the medical point of view by Alcocer (1938) in an appendix to the Robredo edition. Aztec medical botany, however, is much more thoroughly covered in Emmart's magnificent edition (1940) of the de la Cruz-Badianus herbal of 1552, and in a memoir by Paso y Troncoso (1886), while Sahagún's general botany is competently treated by Rivera (1941).

A general impression of Sahagún's work is that it is the achievement of a man who knew no natural history when he came from Spain, but whose consuming passion for all things Mexican drove him to learn and record all he could from native informants. If so, we are entitled to read between the lines an enormous amount of information that was not recorded. It is of course no new discovery that "primitive" people are very skilful naturalists. Raymond Paynter informs me that more kinds of Yucatecan birds are named in modern Maya than in Latin, and ethnographers have repeatedly found natives to be better naturalists than themselves. This does not diminish the fact that the lacustrine flora and fauna were exceedingly well known to the Aztecs of the Valley of Mexico, many of whom spent most of their lives in canoes and depended on limnologic knowledge for their livelihood. And, though the available sources emphasize the economic basis of this knowledge, so that "comenlos"—"they eat them"—is a monotonous refrain in 776 Tezcatlipoca; he only went withdrawing rule and power from others.

X 787

X 787 And of him who was born on the day sign One Death it was said that he would prosper and be rich, whether a nobleman or only a poor vassal. Many were his gifts. Honor came his way and rested on him when he performed well his penances and humbled himself. But if he did not do well the penances, purely by his own act he forsook and harmed his day sign.

Auh in aqujn ipã tlacatia itonal ce mjqujztli: mjtoaia mocujltonoz, motlamachtiz, intla pilli, anoço çan maceoaltzintli, muchi inemactia, itech açia, itech pachivia, in maviçotl: iquac in tlauellamaceoa, mocnomati: auh intlacamo uellamaceoa, ca çan yneujian conmocaujlia, qujmjtlacalhuja yn jtonal.

X 787 If, at this time, someone were born, then they bathed him and gave him a name. Small children
553 performed the naming ceremony.[1] If a boy had been born, they therefore called forth [as his name] Mi-
851 quiz, or Yaotl, Cenyaotl, Necoc yaotl, Chicoyaotl, or Yaomauitl. So they placed on him a name of Tezcatlipoca. Of this one it was said: "None may wish him harm: none may wish him to die." If anyone should wish or desire his death, he would simply sicken and suddenly die.

yn jquac, y, tla aca otlacat, njman caltiaia, qujtocamaca, qujxicvenquaqualia in pipiltotonti, intla oqujchtli otlacat, ic qujnotza mjqujz, anoço iaotl, ceniaotl, necoc iaotl, chicoiaotl, iaomavitl, ic qujtocamamaia in Tezcatlipuca: injn mjtoaia, aiac vel qujcocoliz, aiac vel qujmjquitlanjz, intla aca qujmjqujtlanj, qujmjqujztemachti çan iẽ in moçocolia onmjctiuetzi.

567 At this time it was the day sign of the slaves, the wretched slaves, whose dwelling places were by the hones for sharpening and the grinding stones. None of the slave-owners could scold them, or abuse them with vile words, or call angrily or indignantly to them when they learned that the morrow would be the day sign of Tezcatlipoca. They then, first, took from them, struck off, and removed from them the wooden collars, the curved ones in which they were held and with which they went about restrained lest they flee. Then they soaped them and bathed them, and made much of and flattered them. They showed them great esteem, because, so they thought, they were his likenesses and representatives:[2] his beloved ●[825] sons. It was said that they were like the blue cotingas, the trupials, the precious birds of Tezcatlipoca. And those who owned slaves warned and on threat of death* ordered their children, youths, and growing sons, commanding them sternly and rigorously, not to chide, deal vainly with, nor strike the slaves.

Auh in jquac in catca ipan tonalli: in tlatlacoti, in tlatlacotzitzinti, in teatexatitlan, temetlatitlan innemjan: aiac vel qujmaoaia, aiac vel qujntenquanviaia, qujntlauelnotzaia, qujnqualancanotzaia, in tlacaoaque, in oqujmatque, ca muztla itonalpan iez in Tezcatlipuca: njman achto qujntomaia, qujtequjlia, qujntlaxilia in quauhcozcatl, in coliuhquj, injc pieloia, inic ilpitinenca, injc amo cholozque: njman ic qujmamoviaia, qujmaltiaia, cenca qujntlaçotlaia, qujnxoxocoiomatia, vel qujnmavizmatia, ipampa iuh qujmatia, ca ixiptlaoa, ipatilloua, ytlaçopilhoan, mjtoa iuhqujn iquecholhoan, içaquantotoua, itlaçototoan in Tezcatlipuca: auh in tlacaoaque, vel qujnnemachtiaia, qujnmjqujznaoatiaia, qujntlaquauhnaoatiaia, qujntepitznaoatiaiaia, in impilhoan, in jntlazcaltilhoan, yn intlaoapaoalhoan: injc amo qujmaozque qujncuecuenochichioazque, anoço qujnvitequjzque in tlacaoã:

1. Of this ceremony, the Spanish text reads: "combidauan a los nijños, y les dauan de comer: para q̃ empiezen el nombre, del que auia nacido: y le diesẽ nombre a hoze, por los calles." Eduard Seler, in Einige Kapitel aus dem Geschichtswerk des Fray Bernardino de Sahagun (Stuttgart: Strecker und Schröder, 1927), p. 315, translates an explanatory passage from the Academia de la Historia MS: niman ye ic quimoxtauia in cuecuechpiltotonti in iquac onallaquac niman ye ic quimomaca in iuiztero onalaoaz[a] in ilcin yeuan auh quinilhuia in ajo yuan amoço nitzitl auh niman ye ic tzontzitzi quikoua zuaihuia tzcuiaoz zizicuecuequaqua i yuan yquac quicaqtzitzilia in iuqu inic ocochi daual ic quimotzac — dzen rufi ye dic Knabes. Nachdem sie gekommen sind, gibt er ihnen die Nabelschnur-Opferpfahl und fragt (die Angekommenen), wie er heisst, und er nennt ihnen (die Namen) Yaotl oder Uitzitl (Krieger oder Kolibri). Und darnach fangen sie an zu schreien und sprechen: "Kommt her, Freunde, das Nabelschnurpfahl Yaotl ausen." Dann nachdem sie seinen Namen (der Kinder), mit dem alle er nannten rufen.

2. See Florentine Codex, Book VI, fol. 203v.

3. (Inyenpiteuanaiaiaia: the term so appears in the Nahuatl column.

34

1 [i.e., One Death.—Analyst]

X 787 Twenty-first Chapter, which telleth of the tenth 776 sign, called One Flint Knife. And it was said that it was of good fortune, and claimed that those then born were brave and became seasoned warriors. And it was said that the women then born were forceful; they were able in all things and made their goods very well. And it was said to be the day sign of Uitzilopochtli, to whom it was dedicated. His domain was war. It was said also to be the day sign of Camaxtli. And when this sign began, they observed the feast [of Uitzilopochtli]. And it was said that all the day signs were good—[all] thirteen.

Injc cempoualli eos capitulo: itechpa tlatoa, injc matlactetl machiotl, in jtoca ce tecpatl: ioan quijl qualli in jtonallo, auh quijl in aquijque vncan tlacatia chicaoaque catca, ioan tequjoacatia: auh quijl in cioa vncan tlacatia oqujchiolloque catca, muchi in veli catca, cenca uel qujoeztiaia in jatlatquj: auh quijl itonal catca in Vitzilopuchtli, in jtech pouhquj catca, in jtequjuh catca iiauiotl, quijl no itonal in Camaxtle: auh in jquac vmpeoaia injn machiotl, quijlhujquijztiliaia, auh quijl muchi qualli catca in jtequjlhujtl, matlaqujlhujtl vmei.

776 One Flint Knife set in. On this One Flint Knife,
782 when it tarried for a day, they then made offerings to Uitzilopochtli, whose day sign it was, and to Camaxtli, god of the Uexotzinca.

Moquetza ce tecpatl: inin ce tecpatl, in jquac tlacemilhujtitiaia, vncan quijtonaltiaia, ytonalpan catca in Vitzilopuchtli, ioan in camaxtle, vexotzinca intouh,

776 Thus it is said they made offerings and paid great 782 honor [to Uitzilopochtli] there at his temple, in his tribal district, at the place whose name was Tlacatecco. There was his image guarded, and all his 776 array. They had it all spread out before him and laid in the sun; they offered incense and presented him[1] what were called the quetzal feather cape, the blue cotinga feather cape, the red spoonbill feather cape, the yellow parrot feather cape, and the hum-
● [825] ming bird feather cape.[2] But only after them came lost the no longer very precious feathers, like the white heron feather cape or the reed thrush feather cape.[3] Severally they laid all of them down, offered them separately, arranged them in rows, placed them in order, etc.

injc mjtoa: quijtonaltiaia, cenca quimaviztiliaia, in vncan iezpan icalpulco in jtocaiocan catca tlacatecco, vncan pickoia in jxiptla in jxqujch itlatquj, much ixpan quijtequjlitaia, quijtotonjaia, quijtenamaqujlitaia quijtlacotonjitaia, in motencoa quetzalquemjtl, xiuhtotoquemjtl, tlauhquecholquemjtl, tonquemjtl, vitzitzilquemjtl, auh ça quijtoqujlia, quijtzacuja, in aocmo cenca tlaçiviztl, in iuhquj aztaquemjtl, tzanaquemjtl: muchi nononqua quijtecaia, quijtlatlamantilia, quijtzecuentilia, quijvivipana. Er.

And all these precious capes, when they spread them out, remained there a day. By doing this, it 782 was said, they sunned them for Uitzilopochtli. And there offerings were made; there they laid out all the gifts, called fast foods. And all the good, prepared auh much ie in tlaçotilmatli ipan quijtecaia, vncan cemjlhujtia: iehoatl injc mjtoa quijtlacotonjlia in Vitzilopuchtli, ioan vncan tlamanakoia, vncan quijtecaia in jxqujch ventli, in motencoa tlacatlaqualli: ioan in jxqujch iectli, in tlachichiualli tlaqualli, in

1. [illegible] literally could mean "they beheaded quail for him."

2. Corresponding Spanish text: "[illegible] quetzalquemitl, que quiere decir: capa de quetzales verdes, y resplandecientes; otra de flamencos colorados, que quiere decir: capa de plumas rosadas, y resplandecientes; otra de flamencos amarillos, que quiere decir: capa de plumas amarillas, y resplandecientes; otra de flamencos colorados, que quiere decir: capa hecha de plumas resplandecientes de colorados."

3. Cf. Seler, op. cit., p. 233. In ibid., p. 160, n. 2, it is indicated.

787X
825
484

Second Chapter, in which is related the evil omen which they regarded in two ways: so it was when they heard that the white hooded hawk[1] cried out; and what the merchants did when somewhere on the road such befell them; perhaps it cried out at them.

Ic ome capitulo, vncan mjtoa: in tetzaujtl catca, in çan necoc tlachiaia: in juhquj catca, in jquac quj-caquja, in tzatzia oactli: ioan in tlein qujchioaia, puchteca in jquac cana iuhquj vtlica, in jnpan mu-chioaia in anoço inpan tzatzia.

Likewise they considered it an omen of evil when the white hooded hawk screeched at someone. As they said, it spoke in two [ways], sometimes good and sometimes bad.

No ioan, qujtetzammatia: in jq̃c aca ipan vevetzca, oactli: in juh conjtoa, vme vitz qujtoa: in quenman qualli, quenman amo qualli.

When it displayed good, then they heard its words which it said as it screamed: "A good time! A good time!" When this was the case, none were frightened; the travelers were in no way terrified by it. Rather, they rejoiced. It was as if their hearts were gladdened, because perhaps they would come upon something pleasing; perchance in something they would be favored; they would attain something beneficial.

In jq̃c qualli qujnextia, ic qujcaquj in jtlatol injc vevetzca qujtoa: ieccan, ieccan, in jquac, yn, amo netemmacho: atle ic momaubtia, in nenenque: çan ie papaquj: iuhqujn acovetzi in iniollo: ipampa, aço itla qualtzin, in jpan ie oniazque: aço itla ipan mo-povatiuj: itla qualli, qujcnopilujzque.

But when they heard that it laughed too long, in a high pitch, — as if its bosom and side were in pain; or as if it screamed swollen with joy, [then], as if they were sick and frozen, none spoke aloud. They went with heads hanging, with necks loose. No longer [was there] control. Because of this they felt that perhaps something woeful would now betide them; they would come upon something perilous. Either some one of them would die; or sickness would come or somewhere they would be ambushed. This befell them when, perhaps, [they were] somewhere among the mountains, in a gorge, in the midst of the desert,[2] in the middle of the woods, in a thicket, within and among the trees. And if it were merchants, vanguard merchants, wayfarers, whom it befell that at them the white hooded hawk laughed, they said that perhaps now they should come upon something, or their goods would be carried away by the water, or some evil men, thieves

Auh in ie oqujcacque, in juhquj ommjmjctoc, ic vetzca, tlatlapitzaoa: in juhquj, ixillan, ijomotlan, onquaquauhti: in juhquj, mocacanaoa, paquj, ve-vetzca: iuhqujn ontlanavi, iuhqujn ocevetzi, aocac naoati: ça tlaoliuj, ça tlaquechpeliuj, aiocmo tenaoa-tili: ic qujmatia, aço itla ovi, inpan ie ommuchioaz: itla ouj, ie commonamjctizque: anoço ome aca ie mjquja: aço ie vitz cocolistli, anoço cana inpan, ie oalmotzaquaz. In jnpan mochioa, yn, aço cana tepe-tzalan, atlauhitic, ixtlaoztl itic, quauhnepantla, quauhioacatla, quauhitic, quaujtl itic: auh intla puchteca, oztomeca, nenemjnj: iuhquj inpan omo-chiuh, in jnpan ovevetzcac oactli: qujtoaia. Aço, ie itla, commonamjctizque: aço ie ontlaaftctizque: anoço ie acame, tlaveliloque, inmac ie ommaqujzque, ichtecque, tetlaçnjcujlique, tetlatlaçaltique, tetlana-moelique, inmac ie ontlatlaçazque, qujntlacujcujliz-que, qujntlacencujliztque, qujntlatlaçaltizque, qujn-tlanamoelizque: anoço cana ome, ie onquauhemoe-

1. Cf. Edward Seler: Collected Works (J. Eric S. Thompson and Francis G. Richardson, eds.; Cambridge: Carnegie Institution of Washington, 1939), Vol. IV, p. 48; he comments that the bird was thought an evil omen to traveling merchants.

2. Probably idiomatic. More literally, ome ohtli quipiac could be rendered "in two ways opens what it said."

3. Quauhnepantla. Alonso de Molina, in Vocabulario de la lengua mexicana (Julio Platzmann, ed.; Leipzig: B. G. Teubner, 1880), translates the term as either woods or desert.

X 787 who had escaped from their hands, who pilfered, plundered, and robbed, would now wrest goods
●825 from their hands, and plunder, strip, sack, and rob them. Or somewhere, some of them might now 484 faint and collapse, to be cast aside. Or they would be eaten by wild animals — the fare of brutes; they would become the game of wild beasts. Or somewhere they would be encircled by, and encounter, war.

tzinque, ie onvetzinque, ie onmomaisujzque: noce, ie ontequancoalonque, tequiltlaqualtin, tequanjme intlaqualhoan, ie ommuchioanque: anoçe, cana inpan ie oalmotzaquaz iaoiotl: ie conmonamjctiinque.

X 787 When this was so, he who was leader, who went commissioned leader, who proceeded as principal 484 there along the road, then began to encourage them. He greeted his younger brethren with tears, his charges who were being taught. Along the way he instructed them and said to them:

In jquac yn, in aqujn tachcauh, in tachcauhchiuhtiuh, in tachcauh icatiuh vtlipan, vncan peoa, in qujmelaquaoa, in qujochoqujztlapaloa, iteiccaoan, itlahoapavalvan: in vtli ipan qujmixtlamachtia, qujmjlvia.

"Be of good cheer, O my sons, O my younger brothers. Of what profit is it that we are afflicted? Let no one be sad or heavy of heart. In truth for this we came: we came to die; so went our hearts heavy and foreboding. Thus we went from and left our homes and the houses of others:[4] our aunts, our uncles, our nephews, our elder sisters. For this reason they shed tears for us; they poured out upon us their weeping, their sorrow, that perhaps here, somewhere, on the desert, on the plains, in the gorge, in the forest, in various places will lie scattered our bones and our hair; in many places our blood, our redness, will spread, poured out and slippery. For in truth this hath been our reward. Let no one feel womanish in heart. Yield completely to death; pray to our lord. Let none think of or brood over [our condition]; for only later shall we know of whatsoever things[5] we may strike against. Then, in the end, we may weep for ourselves.

Ximellaquauacan, nopilhoane, noteiccaoane, quennel titotolinja: macaiac tlaocuja, nentlamati in jiollo, ca nel ic tioallaque, in timjqujco: ca iuh oalietia, iuh qujoalmattia in toiollo: injc ticoalalcaujque, tiquallalotique in tonca, in teca: in tauj, in totla, in tomach, in touehtiuh: ca ie injc techchoqujli, injc topan qujpizo, in ichoqujz, in jtlaocul: aço cana njcan, ixtlahoatl, atlauhtli itic, quavitl itic, cecemmanoz in tomjo: in tetzon, nonoqujuhtoz, aalacatoz in tezço, in totlapallo: ca nel otomacoaltic, ma caiac qujciotlamachti in ijollo: xicmotlaquammacacan in mjqujztli, xicmotlatlauhtilican in totecujo: ma caiac tle itic qujnemjti, qujlnamjquj: ma ça qujn jc ticmatizque, in çaço tle itech titotzotzonativi: vncan ic cemmaian, tontochochoqujlizque:

""For truly, this is how we come giving honor[6] and luster to our lords, the merchants who lead, raising them to glory and lifting high their heads. Ere now they have gone knowing and marveling at such things. We are not then the first to discover and behold what will befall us. Strengthen your hearts, O my sons!"

ca nel iehoatl injc tiquinteiotico, tiqujmjtauhcaiotico, tiqujntonaleoaco, tiqujntzontzoonacocujco intotechiuhcaoan, in puchteca, in jiaque: ca ieppa iuh quimattivi, iuh qujmauiçotiuj, camo qujn tehoan iancujcan ie tuconnextizque, ie toconjttazque, in tlein topan muchioaz: ximellaquaoacan, nopilhoane.

X 787 And if somewhere night fell, they gathered, 484 joined, crowded, and assembled themselves some-782 where at the foot of a tree or the opening of a gorge,

Auh intla cana oimpan ioac, cana quaujtl izintlan, anoço atlauhcamac, ommololoa, ommoccmololoa, ommotepeuhtitlalia, monechicoa, qujcujtlalpia, quj-

4. Probably nenoz and neoz are to read tenoz and teoz. In Bernardino de Sahagún, "Memoriales en 3 columnas," Historia de las cosas de Nueva España (Francisco del Paso y Troncoso, ed.; Madrid: Hauser y Menet, 1905), Vol. VII, p. 390, the phrase is ya tuoz, ya nooz. The corresponding Spanish text reads: "quando perdieron de nosotros amos."

5. "Memoriales en 3 columnas," p. 391, ellos de poco dia, nuevo acontecimiento, de poco dia.

6. In loc. cit., it is significación.

X1787
0125

Fourth Chapter, in which is told the omen taken as a portent when the horned owl[1] hooted.

Likewise all took it as an omen and an augury, and it was considered a portent, when the horned owl hooted, when perchance on someone's roof terrace or on his roof top, or up in his tree, it was hooting when they heard it, and it was saying, "Tecolo-o-o! Tecolo-o-o!"[2] In this wise it sounded when it hooted.

They said that when it was heard, it signified death or sickness; it was an omen of death. He who heard it would perhaps die, or beg, or be slothful; he would die in bondage or in war; or one of his sons would die; or his slave would flee. Perhaps now his house would be destroyed, his land would shrink; water would continually appear; weeds would cover at the gateway or the courtyard; the walls would lie crumbled, in ruins—lie devastated. There all would answer the calls of nature—would urinate and defecate—and rubbish would be cast. Salts would lie evaporated; the earth would lie smoldering.

Then it would be said, so that all might marvel: "Once, in this place, here, was the house of one who came commanding reverence. Here came a householder enjoying fame;[3] there was always honor, and [the house] was swept clean. At least the rubbish was cast aside somewhere. And none might urinate on his walls, [or] he would chide him.

"But now in his very place only the walls remain standing."[4]

Ic nauj capítulo, vncan mjtoa: in tetzaujtl injc motettzaujaia, in jquac tecolutl chocaia.

No yoan netettzaujloia, tlatettzaujaia, tetzammachoia, in tecolutl choca: in jquac tla aca ythpantenco, anoço ixacaticpac, iquauhticpac chocatica: in qujcaquj qujtoica: Tecolo, o, o, tecolo o o, yvin in caqujxti, in choca.

Qujtoa in jquac in cacoia, qujnextia mjqujztli: cocolíztli, mjqujztetzaujtl: in aquja oqujcac aço ie mjqujz: aço tlaciujti, aço tlatlatziujti tlalmjqujz, anoço iaomjqujz, anoce aca ce ipiltzin ie mjquiz, anoço itlacauh ie cholez, aço ie tlalpoliujz in ychan, tlalli cansoaz, atl nenecis, acaestimanjz in qujncetl, in jthoalli, tepantli xiximiztoz, tlauiujtoaz, tlauetsloetoz, vncan nezixaloz, nezixaloz, nemanaujloz, tlaçollaztz, tequjxq'tl comoztz, tlalli ipotocatoz:

iquac itoloz injc tlamaujçoloz: ie iuhcan ocatca in, ichan in vncan ontlamatmuahtico: in vncan omatetiotico chane: zauchipa ottlamavizmamanca, otlatetzaliuhtimanca: ma ezl cana ce tlaçolli ovetztoca: auh in jcalitch aiac vel omazixaia, tzaualo:

auh yn azcan ie ça iuhcan, ça tepantli iouatoc.

---

1. Tecolotl. According to Siler, op. cit., Vol. I, Pt. 3, p. 14, it is a horned owl or eagle owl. In Vol. IV, p. 48, he refers to it as a large owl "associated with darkness, night, and disastrous influences at night." Francisco F. Santamaría, in Diccionario general de americanismos (México: Editorial Pedro Robredo, 1942), Vol. III, p. 147, identifies it with the barbuano (see, however, Chapter 5, n. 1, infra).

2. Garibay, op. cit., p. 209, n. 6, referring to the reproduction, "Cuando el tecolotl canta, el indio muere," translates "Tecolo-o-o!" as "Perjudica a alguno." He identifies the bird as Bubo virginianus L. (Indio de Jardín).

3. Corresponding Spanish text: "En este lugar había una persona de mucha estima, y reverencia, y honrabilidad."

4. In ibid., this is rendered: "En este mismo, el que aquí está mismo, del barrio. Luego cuando el que [illegible] estaba aquí mismo, para que le dirasen, lo que sucede de fuera."

[p. 162 is blank]

X787
©825

Fifth Chapter, in which is told what was the omen of the screech owl.[1]

Likewise all held and regarded the screech owl[2] as an omen, when it screeched from the front of someone's roof terrace, and went screaming.

They said: so, therefore, they thought that now someone would die; now some of the householders would die; now some would sicken. And if now twice or thrice it passed screeching, in the very same place, the front of the roof terrace or upon the house, so much were they frightened and filled with dread, that verily they believed that because of this, [misfortune] would not miss its mark — that in truth it would come to pass as the screech owl screeched at them.

Likewise, if someone were already sick when it let out a scream at him, they said that now he would not issue forth; now we would take our leave of him.[3]

For they said this: it was thought that this screech owl was the messenger, the envoy, of Mictlan tecutli and of Mictecacioatl. It knew the land of the dead. Hence [the gods of the underworld] named it "seasoned warrior"; because it was the one who called and summoned people for Mictlan tecutli and Mictecacioatl.

And when they heard it screech and rasp its claws,[4] then the men chid it and said to it: "Go quietly, O knave, thou with the big eyes sunk deep! Thou hast lain with thy mother!" And the women said to it, and thus chid it: "Vanish quietly, O sodomite! Hast thou perchance made a hole in the hair, with which I may drink [in the land of the dead]?[5] For not until then shall I go!"

When thus they had chidden it, it was thought that thus all were made secure. Thus they hindered, reversed, and headed off its warning, so that what he screeched at them would not befall them.

Ic macujlli capítulo, vncan mjtoa: in tetzaujtl catca, in jtechpa chiquatli.

No yuan netetzaujlloia, tetzaujttoia, in chiquatli: anoço chichtli yn jquac aca, itlapanjzquaç tzatzi: tzatzitiquijça, in quijtoa: cuel, ic qujnelttocaia, ca ie aca mjquijz: ic ceme mjquijzque in chaneque: ie ceme cocolizcujzque. Auh intla ie oppa, ie expa tzatzitiquijça: in çan ie vncan, in tlapanjzquac, anoço in calipan, ic cenca momaubtia, motemmati: vel ic qujnelttocaia, ca amo çan tlaneoa: ca vel neltiz, injc inpan otzatzic chiquatli.

No ioan, intla ie aca mococoa, in jpan tzatzitiquijça, quijtoaia ca aiocmo quijçaz: ca ticcaoazque.

Ipampa iuh quijtoaia, quijlmach, in itheoatl chiquatli: intitlan, intlaioal, in mjctlan tecutli: yoan mjctecacioatl: omonat in mjctlan, ic qujtocaiotiaia, iaotequjoa: ipampa ca intecancauh, intenotzcauh, in mjctlan tecutli: ioan mjctecacioatl.

Auh in jquac, qujcaquja tzatzi: ioan in mozticacalatza njman conaoa, conjluja in toqujch: ma xitlamattiuh nocne, tixtecocoiocpul: monan ticieco. Auh in cihoa conjluja, injc caoa: ma xitlamatpolotiuh, cujlonpul: cuix oticcrosonj in tzontli ic natlitiaz: ca iamo cuel in njiaz.

Injc iuh conaoa in, quijlmach iuhquijn ic onepatilo, ic quelelttia, ic quijlochtia, ic quijacatzacuilia, in itenotzalia: injc amo inpan neltiz, ic qujntzatzilia.

---

1. Seler, op. cit., Vol. IV, p. 52, says that the chiquatli is a smaller owl, the screech owl. Santamaría, op. cit., Vol. I, p. 494, says of chiamate that it is "ave de mal agüero de un ave de la clase de las lechuzas, llamada también lechuza tecuan y chiamatl (Ipuetyon centzontlatoa huyquan Hidgar.)."

2. Chiquatli and chichtli are interchangeable terms. See corresponding Spanish text and Molina, op. cit.

3. Corresponding Spanish text: "luego le presentaban la cuenta."

4. Ibid.: "arañaba con las uñas."

5. Ibid.: "no que tengo de hacer ello en el infierno."

[p. 164 is blank]

X787
425

Sixth Chapter, in which is told what the omen was, so that they took it as a portent, when someone saw a weasel which crossed in front of him.

Likewise all regarded the weasel[1] as an omen when it entered someone's house or else he came upon it on the road and it crossed over in front of him and appeared before him.

They said that now perhaps he would meet an affliction; perchance something would spring upon him. He would not arrive where he planned to go. Perhaps he would fall into the hands of some men who would slay him; or now words would be raised against him. Maybe now someone would make a declaration about him, adding lies and inventing things about him.[2]

And when it was seen, all shuddered with fright, were terror-struck, stunned; their flesh crept.[3] — We became numbed and quivered; our hair stood on end. It brought one woe and affliction.

And thus, in this manner, was it marked: with a large, varicolored, yellowish belly. And when it spoke, it squeaked, as if one whistled through one's fingers. "Tocuilesa," "Tocuilechua."[4] And also "seasoned warrior" did they name it.

Ic chiquacen capitulo, vncan mjtos: in tetzaujtl catca, injc motetzaujaia: in jquac aca qujttaia, coçamatl in teixpan tlaujltequja.

No ioan netetzaujloia in coçamatl, anoço coçtli: in jquac aca ichan calaquja: anoço vtlica, cana qujnamjquj: qujiacaujltequj, ixpan tlaxtlapaka:

qujtoaia, aço ie itla conmonamjctiz tetolinj: aço ie itla ipan cocholoa, amo vel iaz in campa iaznequj: aço acame inmac vetzitiuh, qujmjctizque: anoço ie tlatolli, itech oncoa: aço ie aca, tlatolli conocaltiz: contlatollaqujliz, contlatolchichiujliz.

Auh in jquac itto, netlacmauhtilo: necujtiuecho, cecepoca, cnecuecioca, in tenacaio, ticecepoca, ticuecuecioca, tiquacecepoca, titocujtivetzi: tetequjpachoa, teiollitlacoa.

Auh in jubqui, ic muchichiuh: yxtecujcujlpul cottic: auh injc tlatoa pipitzca, iuhqujn mapipitzoa: tocujlcoa tocujlechoa: no iacatequjoa qujocaiotiaia.

1. Coyametl and coyotli are [illegible] terms; see Molina, op. cit., coyotli.
2. Corresponding Spanish text: "Se mejor de hacerse algún acontecimiento."
3. Ibid.: "se les espantaron los cabellos, algunos se pusieron pertusos, o pasmados."
4. Jens, op. cit., p. 383, suggests that these terms may be the title of a ruler of the dead, like the rank and priestly terms mentioned. See, however, Andrés de Olmos: Commentaire de la langue nahuatl (Paris: Imprimerie Nationale, 1875), p. 232.

[p. 166 is blank]

A787 ●825 Seventh Chapter, in which is told the omen so taken as a portent concerning the rabbit when they saw that now it entered one's house.

Likewise all regarded as an omen the rabbit when it entered someone's house. The field workers, the people of the maize fields, said that now his house would be laid waste. Or else now someone would flee [from it]: he would follow the trail of the rabbit, or of the deer. Now he would be a rabbit or a deer; he would turn into a rabbit or a deer.[1]

Thus was marked the rabbit—with very long ears,[2] a blunt, very blunt snout, a white breast, and very much shortened tail.

Ic chiecome capítulo, vncan mjtoa: in tetzaujtl injc motetzauja, in jtechpa tochin: in jquac qujttaia in je vncalaquj ichan.

No ioan, netetzaujloia in tochin: in jquac aca ichan calaquja, qujtoa in mjllaca, in mjlpan tlaca: ie tlalpoliujz in jchan. Anoço ie aca cholox, ie contocaz in tochtli, in maçatl ivuj: ie tochtiz, ie maçatiz, ie motochtiliz, ie momaçatiliz.

Injc muchichiuh tochin, nacazpapatlactic, tentipontic, tenteteponti, elistac: ioan çan cujtlapilitepontic.

1. Cf. Molina, op. cit. (rochelle): "[illegible]"
2. If from [illegible], to longhorn; an alternative is papatlaca, to quince.

[p. 168 is blank]

787
825

Eighth Chapter, in which is told the omen which all took as a portent when they saw the chafer.[1]

Likewise all regarded as an omen the chafer, [which was] like a bright, brilliant red spider.

When it entered someone's house, and he saw it, or he intercepted it on the road, they said: "Now cometh sickness"; or, "Now we will meet some [evil]." Perhaps now someone would chide him — something would shame him.

And when it was seen in one's house, he who saw it forthwith seized it. He traced lines on the ground in the four directions: he made marks on the ground which he caused to take the form of a cross. And in the middle, at its center, he placed [the chafer] and there spat upon it.[2]

Thereupon he exhorted it; he said to it: "Wherefore didst thou come? Let me see, [that] I may hasten to marvel at it!"[3] Then he placed himself facing and looked toward the direction in which it would proceed.

If now it went northward, thus he who looked knew that soon he was to die. But if it did not go toward there, thereby he knew that perchance it meant something [else] perhaps of no great consequence.[4]

He who was shown the omen said: "Let it do [what it will]; let the little insect be aspersed! Shall we none the less be involved with it? Shall we none the less go with it? Later let us know what it meaneth."[5] Then he seized it and left it at a crossroads.

And some only threaded it on a hair and hung it up. If at dawn they saw that it no longer was there,

Ic chicuei capitulo, vncan mjtoa; in tetzaujtl, injc motetzaujsia: in jquac qujttaia pinaujztli.

No ioan, netetzaujloia in pinaujztli: iuhqujn tocatl tlatlauhqui, tlatlactic.

In jquac aca, ichan calaquj, in qujtta: anoço vilica qujiacanamjquj, qujtoa ic vitz cocolizztli, anoço ic itla conmonamjctiz: aço ie aca conaoaz, itla ic conpinauhtiz:

auh in jquac, tla oittoc techan: in aquja oqujttac: njman ic conana, nauhcampa qujtlallacujlhvia, qujtlahzochilia: iuhqujn cruz qujquechilia: auh nepantla yiolloco conthalia, vncan onchicha:

njman ie ic qujtlaxoltia, qujluja. Tlen jc otivalla, tla njqujtta, tlacuele nocommauijço: njman ic qujztimotlalia, qujztica in campa ie itztiaz.

Intla ie vmpa itztiuh, mjctlampa: ic qujmati ca ie mjquiz, in oquimoztiti: auh intlacamo vmpa itztiuh, ic quimati, aço çan itla in quitouznequj, acaçomo cenca veiztica:

quitouia in motetzauj, tla quijoculi, tla motelchioa, in ioioltzon: cuja çan ie toconmattiezque? cuja çan ie ipan toiezque? ma ça quin jc ticmatiuque in tlein, quitouznequj. Niman ic conana: homazac concaoa.

Auh in aca çan contzoouja, aco compilova: intla otlathvic socac quitta: ic cenca vel quitetzammati.

1. Sahagún, op. cit., Vol. V, p. 4, calls it a kind of chafer which the Mexicans considered an evil omen (shiny Beetle); he compares it with the tarantula. Molina, op. cit., defines it as "cierto escarabajo de color por aparato." Gardner, op. cit., p. 110, n. 18, defines it as Cotinis mutabilis, Strategus julianus, or the like.

2. Corresponding Spanish text: "Tomaban dos cañas en cruz en el medio, y ponianlo en medio dellas y escupianlo."

3. Ibid.: "A que se metiste, quiero ver a que se comiste."

4. Ibid.: "Alguna cosa informacion de poca importancia."

5. Ibid.: "Pues como dando quisiere, no se me de nada de ti, o de andar pensando por ventura en lo que quisiere decir, ello se parecerá mas de manifiesto, en mas cierto de ti."

they were then filled with much dread. But if it drowned and it hung at this very same place, they were consoled thereby. Little did they think of it; as nothing did they esteem it. And when they placed it in the midst of spirits or wine, they said it was made drunk by it. And also it was stated that sometimes it spoke in two [ways]: it also boded good. Perhaps something fortunate would be one's reward.

Auh intla çan ipã otlatvic, in çan ie vncan pilcac, ic mocollalia: amo cenca qujcsimati, atle ipan conjtta. Auh injc contlalia tlanepantla, chichitl, anoço vxtli: mjtoa ic contlacaatia: ioan no mjtoa, in quenman ome vitz qujtoa: no qualli qujnextia, aço itla qualli temacehoal muchioa

Ninth Chapter, in which is related the omen which they regarded as a portent when an animal of strong stench, called a skunk,[1] now entered one's house or else sprayed and loosed an odor.

Likewise all regarded as an omen the skunk when it entered someone's home or there bore its young.

They said: "Now the householder will die"; because, so they said, its abode, its dwelling place, was by no means among houses, in one's home. Maize fields, meadows, maguey and cactus fields [were] its dwelling places and abodes.

Also, they supposed that it was the likeness of the demon Tezcatlipoca. And when it loosed an odor, when it loosed a foul odor at one, they said: "Tezcatlipoca breaketh wind."

And if someone tried to capture or chase it, thus it mocked and gibed him: it raised and lifted high its tail, and then, if it drew quite near one, it forthwith loosed its stench at him. Like one sprinkling, its spray appeared and was seen; like a rainbow it arose. And it penetrated one; its evil stench entered into one. With difficulty did it abandon him. So one's cape dropped—was cast aside, thrown away. [Its stench] was spread all over the area; it extended all over the region. It reached everywhere, and spread on people. So did its stink-sicken one and molest one's nose.

And they said that when it arrived, when it was smelled, one should not spit. It was believed that if one spat, his hair would whiten; it would flare brightly. Hence they severely warned the children not to spit. When its stench was smelled, they only covered their mouths.

Ic chicuaauj capitulo, vncan mjtoa: in tetzaujtl in qujmotetzaujaia, in jquac centetl iolquj, in cenca hijac, in jtoca Epatl: in jquac ic oncalaquj ichan, auh anoço in jquac moxixa: mjexi. 787K 825

No ioan in epatl, netetzaujloia: in jquac aca ichan calaquj, anoço vncan mopilhoatia:

qujtoa, ic mjqujz in chane: ipampa iuh qujtovaia, ca amo inentla, amo inemja in calla, in techan: ca mjlpan, çacatla, memetla, nonopalla, in jnemjia, in jpujçaia.

No ipan qujmatia, ca ixiptla in tlacatecuhtl, tezcatlipuca: auh in jquac mjexi, in teixi, qujtoaia: omjex in tezcatlipuca. [176]

Auh intla aca canaznequj, in ace qujtoca: çan ic qujqueloa, ic ica mocaiaoa: cenca qujquetzaz, tacoquetza in jcujtlapil: auh qujnjquac, intla ic uel itech onaci: njman ic qujualiexi, iuhqujn aca tlaalpichia, vel neci, vel itto, in jiel: iuhqujn aiauhcoçamalotl, ic moquetza: auh vel temaoa, tetechaquj in ijel, aiaxcan tecaoa: ic vetzi, ic tlaxo, ic tlaçalo in tetilma: vel centlalli momana, centlalli manj: nouijan aci, tepan motoca, injc yiac, injc tetlaelti: teiacaxolocho.

Auh qujtoa, in jquac in eco, mjnecuj, auel onchichá: qujlmach intla aca onchichaz, quaztaliujz, comonjz: ic cenca qujntlacaoaltia, in tepilhoã: injc amo onchichazque: in jquac ineco yel: çan onmotempachoa. [827]

1. Sahagun, op. cit., Vol. IV, p. 28.

[p. 172 is blank]

X 787
825

Tenth Chapter, in which is related the omen, by which a portent was drawn, of ants or frogs, and mice.

Likewise all regarded as an omen ants, whether red or black. When they lived and formed an ant hill in someone's house, they indicated persecution. They said, when they were seen, "Perhaps one of our enemies is come to visit something upon us."[1] So was said and made known that that which the enemy buried became these ants. When the ones which had been buried remained, they always were attributed to the enemy, who would have one dead,[2] who wished one to perish — who hoped one would die; those of great lust; inhuman; demons, the so-called destroyers of men. These buried and placed the ants.

When they swarmed in someone's house, thus they boded and required[3] his death. He who was envious, hoped, wished, and desired that one might die, that one might perish. So he caused anger; he tormented, troubled, affronted, and afflicted;[4] and he rendered no aid.

In the same manner all such [men] bore and determined an ominous death. The enemy perchance placed house frogs[5] somewhere in an opening of the wall or in the roof of the house. When they spoke, they croaked, and continued croaking.

So also the ominous mice, perhaps [as reported in] tales,[6] all these, the inhuman people, the enemies, placed and buried. When they spoke, so were they heard; so did they sound. Much and everywhere did they squeak; they squeaked continuously.

Ic matlactli capítulo, vncan mjtoa: in tetzaujtl injc motetzaujaia, in jotechpa ancame, anoço cuecueia: ioan in qujquimjchtin.

No ioan, netetzaujloia in ancame, in tlatlauhque, anoço tiltique: in jquac aca, ichan molonj, mopotza: qujoextiaia in tecocolilíztli: qujtoaia in jquac oittoque, aço aca totecocolicauh itla otechtoquíjlico: inh mjtoa, inh nemacho in tlein qujtetoquíjlia, tecocolianj: ichoan in mocuepa ancame, iquac in ic vecaoa, tlein oquítocaque: muchi ichoan intech tlamj in tecocolianj, in temjquítlanjnj, in temjquítzemachique, in temjquítzemachianj, in tevejecoanj, in atlaca in tlatlacatecuio: in moteneoa, tepokoanj ichoã qujntoca, qujntlalia in ancame.

In jquac aca ichan molonj, ic qujtetzauja, ic qujtlanja in jmjquíz: in aquín tlacocoa, connectia, connequíjlia, connequíjtia: in macuele mjquj, in macuel ompopoliuj: injc tlaqualanja, injc tlaiolquíztia, injc tlaamana, injc tciollo ixco icac, injc tlatequíjpachoa, injc ittloc monequj.

Ça ic no iuhquj, muchiuhquj: qujcenujca, qujcemjtoa in mjquítzetzaujtl. In ichoatl calcujatl, aço cana tepancamac: calquac in qujntlalia tezcolianj: cotaloa, cotalotica injc tlatoa.

No iuhquj in tetzauhquímjchin, anoço tetlaquechililli. Pl' chilili: muchi ichoan qujntlaliaia, qujtetoquíjlia, in atlaca, in tecocolianj: injc caco, injc mocaquj: vel pipítzca, pipípítzca, pipítzcaticate, injc tlatoa.

---

1. Corresponding Spanish text: "mejor de nuestros parientes ha de aquella cosa de pues de algun enfermo, o inhibiam."
2. Muchi ichoan: "Mismoichoa en 3 ochomeni" needs equalizer.
3. Jerez, op. cit., p. 23, translates this passage thus: "Ciertamente este dia Chalcoatlaxoan alzaron (sus sin Sitch Wiqi) surjiejan, en cielo cuando sin, dia Jerez, sich mitder mordet. Wenn man dies, sie dementsprechen jene die surjiejo haben, surjiiert, es bezeichnen sich diesen (der mitder [illegible]) sich die Chalcoatlaxoan für immer die Trauben."
4. "Mismoichoa en 3 ochomeni," p. 397, has qualcuna for qujtlanja.
5. Tzahquimichin, PP chiliki; probably an accidentally inserted grammatical note.
6. The corresponding Spanish text adds at the end of the chapter: "Es todos estos agueros, pues a remedios a los agueros, que los dudaban, y dicen temprillo estaba allos."

[p.174 is blank]

X 787 776 So he fled from its presence; back of him it went rattling at him as it pursued him. And if he stood, if he stopped in alarm, it also sat, and remained rattling. And if he gathered courage to seize it quickly, it only mocked him for doing so. Far did it rise when it jumped; he could not catch it. Hence, in the same manner, he let it alone in his fear; from its presence he fled, exerting all force in order to run terrified to his home.

Auh intla moquetza, motilquetza, no motlalia chachalcatinemj: auh intla omoiollochichili, injc qujcujtiuetziz çan jc qujquelos, ueca ieoa in choloa, amo uel cana: çan no iuh conmauhcacaoa: ixpampa ieoa: ixquich qujtoctia, injc momauhcatlaloa ichan.

X 787 775 Just so the dead also appeared to people. They were in [funeral] wrappings, with head wrappings, and were groaning. If, somewhere, one appeared before one, it moaned at him. Only the valiant could venture toward it in order to seize it and cling to it. But then it only made sport of them: perhaps a clump of grass or a hard clod remained in their hands. [776] Thus they quickly transformed themselves. So it was said that all this was only a disguise of Tezcatlipoca by which he mocked men. Etc.

Çan ie no iuhquj in mjcquj, no moteititiaia: yilpitica, quaquailpitica, quiqujnacatica: in cana moteititiaia; tequjqujnatza: çan ichoan in jollochicavaque, vel iujc motlapaloa in qujcujtiuetzi: itech mopiloa. Auh injc çan inca mocacaioa, aço tlachcujtl, anoço tlaquavac tetl in jmmac mocauhtiquiça: injc mocueptiuetzi: iuh mjtua, ca çan muchi ich, inaoal in tezcatlipuca injc teca mocacaioaia etc.

The omen of the linnet.[4]

X 787 ●825 The linnet is a bird like a woodpecker,[5] and far into the forest is its home. And when it cried out at someone, it was taken as an omen.[6] They said: "It is not a good time that we have come; for something will spring out on us."

Tetzaujtl itechpa chiqujmoli.

In chiqujmoli, ca centetl totoil, iuhqujn quauhchochopitli: auh veca quauhtla in ichan. Auh in iujc tepan tzatzia, netetzaujloia: qujtovaia, ca amo qualcan, in otioallaque: ca itla ipan ticholoaque.

The omen of the coyote.

[776] They said it was Tezcatlipoca. Often he disguised himself as a coyote; and this coyote often intercepted men on the road. And when he did this, then was heard: "This is by no means a good time for him who goeth; perhaps thieves or robbers are somewhere on the road, or something harmful will spring out at them."

Tetzaujtl itechpa in coiotl.

Qujtoaia, ca in tezcatlipuca: mjiecpa qujmonanaltiaia in Coiotl: auh injn coiotl, mjiecpa tziaiacatzacujlia in vtlica. Auh in jquac iuh qujchioa y, njman ic mocaquj, ca amo qualcan in vtloa: aço ichtecque, anoço tetlatlaçaltique, cana vtlica cate: anoço itla ipan cholokoatiuh, in tecoco.

Here end the omens which the natives of New Spain took as portents.

Nican tzonquiça in tetzauitl, yn quiztzommatia, ojcan nacaz españa tlaca.

---

4. Molina, op. cit.: chiquelite pasaro; Santamaría, op. cit., Vol. I, p. 514 (chiquimoli): jilguerillo—especie de jilguero. Sahagún (Giuntini ed.), Vol. IV, p. 334: "Este pasaro, comunmente parlero. . . . Deprehensus indicio buitell."

5. Quauhchochopitli: Martín Antonio Bandini, in Rerum Mediarum Novae Hispaniae Thesaurus ex Plantarum Animalium Mineralium Mexicanorum Historia ex Francisci Hernandez (Romae: Vitale Mascardi, 1651), p. 33, appendix, book Chap. XCIV, "De Quauhchochopitli, seu Avicula lignis consumens," said writes: "Avicula est, Mexicanus Caterviatim furens, & magnitudine, plumis nigris, aut pullis, linea alba, transversim discriminatur dividentur; ventre, pectoreque, nonnij coloris. Singas plumas ventre, quarum ex quibus pedibus. Avis in frigidis, & arboribus vastis nonnunquam pedibus ensistit."

6. Corresponding Spanish text: "Ser buena del pico (maggio): quando le oyan hacer en los montados."

843 752 And when the swelling appeared, upon his back was as it were a small, blue bump. Or [he might catch] inflammation of the groin.[22] And when the inflammation of the groin appeared, the child cried every night; and on the groin and armpits were formed small, round or long [welts of] flesh. And in order to cure it, they cut them off and removed the little [welts] of flesh.

Auh injc neci aiomama, yeujtlapan ca, iuhquja pomoxoti, iuhquja texotic: anoço cuexpalicivatli. Injc neci cuexpalicivi pilxotli: cuxicoal in choca, yoan yquxilca, yciacac motlethalia nacazotoxti, olotzotzoti, melacazotoxti. Auh injc pati: quijamotla, quijquijxtia in nacazotzoti.

843 821 And as for the pregnant woman: before her child had been formed as a being, they restrained [any of] them, when the moon arose, from looking up at it. They said to them: "Do not look at the moon! Your children will suffer sickness of the heart, or else will be hunchbacked!"

Ioan in ocelli: in jquac siamo vel tlacatl motlalia in jcocoxh, quijtlacaoaltizia, in jquac oalmomana metztli: injc amo conacopeittaque, quijnjlhujxia: macamo xocuijttacan in metztli, mjmjxquja, anoço tenquaiviz in amocoxoxh.

825 777 441 Twentieth Chapter, which telleth of the monkey's hand.

Injc cempoalli capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa: in oçomatli ymacpal.

The merchants sought and cherished greatly a monkey's hand when they trafficked and sold goods anywhere. There they spread it out. It was said that thereby goods quickly were disposed of and soon all which they sold was bought. It was stated: "That which bringeth this about is the monkey's hand" — so foolish were they.

In oçomatli imacpal: in puchuca ceaca qujtemoaia, quimopialtiaia: in jquac in campa tiamjquja, in tlanamacaia: vncan quijtecaia, quijlmach ic iciuhca aquj, iciuhca muchi coalo in tlein quijnamaca: quijl ichoxtl iuh quichioa in oçomatli yma: ynjc mochapololtia.

777 264 824 Also of the sellers of mantles — when nowhere was disposed of that which they sold, when no one bought either mantles, or shifts or skirts — it was said: "They make them eat chilis that the goods may be disposed of." And thus did they do it. When they returned to their homes, they said: "Our goods are nowhere disposed of. Give them chilis to eat." Then in their midst they placed perhaps two or three chilis. It was averred that thereby the goods were disposed of. When they so did this, they said that they had made [their mantles] eat chilis.

No ichoantin in tilmanamacaque: in jquac acan aquj in quinamaca, in aiac quicoa: in aço tilmatli, in anoço cocitl, anoço vipilli, quijlmach: quichilquaqualtia, injc aquj. Auh injc quichioaia: in jquac oalvia inchan, quitoaia: acan oac in totiamjc: ma xocochilquaqualtican: njman ic ijtic contema, aço vme, anoço Ey in chilli: quijlmach ic aquja, injc iuh quichioaia in, ic quitoa: quichilquaqualtia.

777 525 Twenty-first Chapter, which telleth of the pestle and the griddle.

Injc cempoalli oce capitulo, itechpa tlatoa in tezoloti, yoan comalli.

When one who played patolli[23] placed his pestle, and his griddle, and his grinding stone upside down in his home, and hung his pestle somewhere in a corner, it was said that thereby the householder would not lose, but only win.

In jquac aquin patoaia, in jchan, in jtezoloxh, ioan in jcomal, ioan in jmetl: ixtlapach quimanaia: auh in tezoloti cana xomolco quipiloaia; quijlmach: ic amo quijtlaniaque in chane, çan ic tlathanjz.

22. Corresponding Spanish text: "una enfermedad, que llaman cuexpalicivatli, a cual inhabilita en las ingles." Wimmer, Cantar Mex (El manuscrito mexicano Nahuatl 1529 Anno 2 Codice Mex [Thesis: Bibliotheca Danica, 1988], p. 54).

23. The corresponding Spanish text relates to patolli, which is an error.

And [concerning] this pestle: when they caught, trapped mice,[24] they cast the pestle out the doorway. It was thought that if it were in the house, they could not be caught; it was said that it would warn them.[25]

Yoan in ichoatl tezolotl: in jquac qujmaci, in quinmôvia qujqujmjchtin: in tezolotl qujiacac qujoallaça, qujlmach: intla çan cali iez: amo vel macisque in qujqujmjchti, qujlmach çan qujmonjoatica. 825 412

Twenty-second Chapter, which telleth of mice.

Injc ompoalli onome capitulo, intechpa tlatoa in qujqujmjchti. 825 837

They said, in times past, that it was thought that mice knew well him who had a paramour, whether a young man or a woman. In order for it to be evident, the mouse made a hole in a large basket, or gnawed the edges of gourd dishes or bowls. Likewise, if men, or a woman, were married, he made holes in their mats, or the men's mantles. In the same way, he gnawed through a woman's shift or skirt. And everywhere the mouse made holes. It was said that thereby he made known that one's spouse had committed adultery.

Qujtoxia in ie vecauh, qujlmach in qujqujmjchti vel qujmati, in aquin momeneocatia: in aço telpuchtli, anoço cioatl. Injc neci in qujmjchin qujcoionja in chiqujvitl, anoço tecomatl, anoço xicalli qujtenquaquaia. No iuhque intla namjque toqujchtin, anoço cioatl: yn jnpetl, anoço yn jtilma toqujchtin qujcoionjaia: çã no iuhqujn cioatl, yn jcue, anoço yn jvipil qujcoionja: yoan noujan tlacocoionja in qujmjchin, qujl ic qujnezcaioxia: ca oqujtlaxin yn jnamjc.

Twenty-third Chapter, which telleth of turkey hens.

Injc ompoalli omey capitulo, intechpa tlatoa in totolme. 825 235

Turkey hens: when they were brooding, one who wore sandals might not go in among them. Especially when the chicks were about to break [the shells], it was said that [the hens] sat paralyzed. [The chicks] could not break [the shells, and] some would die. But some, when they hatched, it was thought, would only be paralyzed, those which were there in the shells. And it was said that in order that this might not happen, they placed old sandals among them when [the hens] brooded.

In totolme: in jquac tlapachoa, amo vel inpan calaquj in mocactia: oc cenca yquac in ie tlapanjzque totolti, qujlmach ic mocotoztlalia: amo vel tlapanjzque, cequjntin ic mjquj: auh in cequjntin yn jquac tlacati qujl çan cocotozpipil, in vncan cate in cacalloc. Auh qujl injc amo iuh muchiouzque yn, cacçolli intlan qujtema in tlapachoa.

Twenty-fourth Chapter, which telleth of turkey chicks.[26]

Injc ompoalli onnavi capitulo, intechpa tlatoa yn totolconentoton. 825 235 837

And when turkey chicks hatched, one might not enter among them who had a paramour, whether woman or man, or those who were married. When perchance the spouse [of one of them] had committed adultery, if he were to go in among [the chicks], they said: "He killeth them through filth."

Auh in jquac otlacatque in totolconentoton: avel inpan calaquj in momecatianj, in aço cioatl, in anoço toqujchtin, in anoço namjqueque: in jquac in aço oqujtlaxin inamjc, intla inpan ocalac, qujtoa: qujntlaçolmjctia.

24. Ibid.: "quando [illegible] [illegible] en casa."

25. Ibid.: "no entrar [illegible] [illegible], porque el ratoncito, [illegible] [illegible] que no [illegible]."

26. Turkeyhens, and turkeychicks.

825 235 And when it appeared that indeed all the chicks fell upon their backs so that they died,[27] upon this they said: "They died of filth; perchance someone came to go in among them; or looked upon them; or indeed it was the householder who slew them by filth." Because of this, they believed, indeed all the turkeys had fallen upon their backs so that they died.

Auh injc neci çan muchintin aaquetztiuj injc mjquj totolpipil, ic qujtoa: ca tlaçolmjquj: aço aca inpan ocalaqujco, anoço oqujmjttac, anoço aca vel chane in oqujntlaçolmjcti: ic qujmatia, in çan muchin aaquetztivi totolme, injc mjquj.

825 236 837 It was said that also the same befell those who were married. If perchance somewhere one's spouse, whether woman or man, fell into adultery, they then believed that those which had fallen upon their backs or stumbled over, indeed accused him.

Qujl no iuh inpan muchioa in namjqueque: in aço cana qujtlaxima inamjc, in aço cioatl, anoço toqujchtin: injc qujmati, çan qujpiqui in aaquetztivetzi, anoce cana motlaviteqiuj.

286 Twenty-fifth Chapter, which telleth of her who wove with yarn.

When [a woman] wove with yarn perhaps a mantle, or a shift, or a skirt, which came out awry, unevenly disposed, with crooked edges, they said and it was thought that the weaver of the mantle or shift was not generous. Just like a crooked seam, perverse [would she be]; not generous.[28]

Injc cempoalli onmacujlli capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa: in icpatl qujqujti.

In jcpatl, in aço tilmatli, anoço vipilli, anoço cueitl: in jquac qujqujti in chicopatilivi, in chicoviaqujxtiuh, in tennecujliuhtiuh, qujtoaia: qujlmach amo tlacaiollo yn tilmaoa, yn vipilli: çan cueciuhquj, çan tlatlaveliloc: amo tlacaiollo.

821 Twenty-sixth Chapter, which telleth of hail.

When it rained, and much hail fell, one who there [had] his maize, chili, bean, or chía field scattered ashes from the hearth out of the entrance into the courtyard. It was said that thus his maize field would not be hailed out; it was thought that thus the hail would disappear.

Injc cempoalli on chiquaoen capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa in tecivitl.

In jquac qujavi, in cenca tecivi: in aquin vnca imjl, anoço ychilcuen, anoço yiecuen, ychian: tleconextli qujiaoac qujoaltepeoa, itvalco: qujlmach yc amo tecivilozz in jmjl, qujl ic poliui in tecivitl.

754 776 781 Twenty-seventh Chapter, which telleth of sorcerers.

At night walked demons — perchance wizards and sorcerers — where they harmed one in one's house. When the householders saw them, when perhaps some [demon] so [would] harm them, they then placed an obsidian knife in water, behind the door, or in the courtyard. They laid it down at night. They said and it was believed that there the demons and sorcerers would look at their reflections when they would harm one, or there would be death, or sickness would come upon the people.

Injc cempoalli on chicome capitulo, yntechpa tlatoa in tlatlavipuchti.

In iocaltica nemj tlatlacateculo: aço nanacalti, tlavipuchtin in canjn ontepoloa in techan: in oqujmjttaque in aço itla ic qujnpoloa in chanequc: njman atlan contecа yztli puertatitlan, anoço itoalco qujmana in iocaltica, qujtoaia: qujlmach vncan onmotencavia in tlatlacateculo, yn tlavipuchtin in tepoloa: aço mjcoaz, anoce cocolitzli tepan muchioaz.

27. Corresponding Spanish text: "los pollos se cayan muertos, los pusos arriba: y esto, llamaan despulmjqui."

28. Corresponding Spanish text: "no parecia, en que la sola, o parecia biscornada." Caso, op. cit., is to make a false seam.

754
776
789

At once they fled; nevermore would they come to harm one when they had seen the obsidian knife resting in the water.

Ic njman cholоa, aiocmo ceppa tepolotivi: in jquac oquittaque itztli, atlan onoc.

Twenty-eighth Chapter, which telleth of the gnawed leavings of a mouse.

828

Injc cempoalli on chicuei capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa in qujmjchin ytentlacaoal.

Whatsoever a mouse had gnawed none might eat. It was said that he who ate what a mouse had left would be falsely accused. For it was said that the mouse came to steal it; he came to eat it in stealth. Wherefore no one might eat gnawed leavings of a mouse. Likewise it was said of it that he who ate the gnawed leavings of a mouse would be accused falsely of some sort of story or of that which might be missing.[29]

In qujmjchin in çaço tlein qujqua: aiac vel qujqualiaia, qujlmach in aqujn qujqualia yn q'caoa qujmjchin, itech tlatlamjz, ca mjtoa: oqujchtequjco in qujmjchin, oqujchtacaqua. Ipampa y, in aiac vel qujqualiaia in itentlacaoal qujmjchin. No yuh ipan mjtoz: in aqujn qujqua itentlacaoal qujmjchin, itech tlatlamjz, in çaço tlein tlatolli, anoço in tlein poliviz.

Twenty-ninth Chapter, which telleth of nails.

826
776

Injc cempoalli on chicunavi capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa in jztitl.

It was said that, when nails were pared, they cast them into the water. It was thought that this was because the water dog[30] would make good [nails] grow out — not broken; they would be sound. For when it drew someone into the water, [the water-dog] tore away his nails and eyes.

Qujlmach in tozti, in jquac motetequja, atlan contepeoaia, qujlmach ipampa: in iehoatl avitzotl, qualli qujxoaltiz: amo papatzaoaz, qualli yez. Ipampa: in jquac aqujn qujlaqujaia, qujqujxtiliaia in jzti, ioan ixtelolo.

Thirtieth Chapter, which telleth of sneezing.

827

Injc cempoalli ommatlactli capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa in acucholiztli.

When someone sneezed, they said, in times past: "Someone speaketh of me; someone saith well of me." Or they said: "Someone speaketh ill of me." Or they said: "Some people discuss me." It was thought that they made it evident, and knew, when they sneezed, that someone far away mentioned them.

In jquac aca acuchoa, qujtoaia in ie vecauh: aqujn nechitoa, aqujn nechteneoa: anoce qujtoaia: aqujn nêchicoitoa, anoçe qujtoa: aqujque in noca mononotza. Qujl iehoatl qujnezçaiotiaia, iehoatl ic qujmatia: in jquac acuchoa, in aca canapa veca qujnteneoa.

Thirty-first Chapter, which telleth of small children.

853

Injc cempoalli ommatlactli oce capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa in pipiltotonti.

When small children still lay in the cradle and something was eaten or drunk,[31] first they placed it upon [their] foreheads.[32] It was said that in this way [the child] would not hiccough or be afflicted by what he ate or drank.

In iehoantin in pipiltotonti: in jquac yn oc coçolco onoque: in jquac tlaqualo, anoço itla mjz, achto ijxquac contlaliaia, qujlmach ic amo tzitzicunoz, amo motolinjz in tlein moqua, anoço mj.

29. Corresponding Spanish text: "de harto, o de adulterio, o de otra cosa."

30. Axolotl: Seler, in Collected Works, Vol. IV, 2. 21, refers to it as a spectral water animal or sprite "which drew men down into the water and ate off the nails and hair of intoxicated men" (citing Sahagún, XI, cap. 4, § 2, and V, App., cap. 29). Santamarina, op. cit., Vol. I, p. 66 (ahuizotl), calls it merely a perro del agua (Lerma fellow).

31. Corresponding Spanish text: "quando comejan, o beujan en presencia de algun niño."

32. Ibid.: "se le hace."

754
776
789

At once they fled; nevermore would they come to harm one when they had seen the obsidian knife resting in the water.

Ic njman choloa, aiocmo ceppa tepolotivi: in jquac oquittaque itztli, atlan onoc.

Twenty-eighth Chapter, which telleth of the gnawed leavings of a mouse.

825

Injc cempoalli on chicuei capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa in qujmjchin ytentlacaoal.

Whatsoever a mouse had gnawed none might eat. It was said that he who ate what a mouse had left would be falsely accused. For it was said that the mouse came to steal it; he came to eat it in stealth. Wherefore no one might eat gnawed leavings of a mouse. Likewise it was said of it that he who ate the gnawed leavings of a mouse would be accused falsely of some sort of story or of that which might be missing.[29]

In qujmjchin in çaço tlein qujqua: aiac vel qujqualiaia, qujlmach in aqujn qujqualia yn q'caoa qujmjchin, itech tlatlamjx, ca mjtoa: oqujchtequjco in qujmjchin, oqujchtacaqua. Ipampa y, in aiac vel qujqualiaia in itentlacaoal qujmjchin. No yuh ipan mjtux: in aqujn qujqua itentlacaoal qujmjchin, itech tlatlamjx, in çaço tlein tlatolli, anoço in tlein poliviz.

Twenty-ninth Chapter, which telleth of nails.

826 ●
776

Injc cempoalli on chicunavi capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa in jztitl.

It was said that, when nails were pared, they cast them into the water. It was thought that this was because the water dog[30] would make good [nails] grow out — not broken; they would be sound. For when it drew someone into the water, [the water-dog] tore away his nails and eyes.

Qujlmach in tozzi, in jquac motetequja, atlan contepeoaia, qujlmach ipampa: in ichoatl avitzotl, qualli qujxoaltiz: amo papatzaoaz, qualli yez. Ipampa: in jquac aqujn qujlaqujaia, qujqujxtiliaia in jzti, ioan ixtelolo.

Thirtieth Chapter, which telleth of sneezing.

827

Injc cempoalli ommatlactli capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa in acucholiztli.

When someone sneezed, they said, in times past: "Someone speaketh of me; someone saith well of me." Or they said: "Someone speaketh ill of me." Or they said: "Some people discuss me." It was thought that they made it evident, and knew, when they sneezed, that someone far away mentioned them.

In jquac aca acuchoa, qujtoaia in ie vecauh: aqujn nechitoa, aqujn nechteneoa: anoce qujtoaia: aqujn nêchicnitoa, anoçe qujtoa: aqujque in noca mononotza. Qujl ichoatl qujnezcaioniaia, ichoatl ic qujmatia: in jquac acuchoa, in aca canapa veca qujnteneoa.

Thirty-first Chapter, which telleth of small children.

853

Injc cempoalli ommatlactli oce capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa in pipiltotonti.

When small children still lay in the cradle and something was eaten or drunk,[31] first they placed it upon [their] foreheads.[32] It was said that in this way [the child] would not hiccough or be afflicted by what he ate or drank.

In ichoantin in pipiltotonti: in jquac yn oc coçolco onoque: in jquac tlaqualo, anoço itla mjx, achto ijxquac contlaliaia, qujlmach ic amo tzitzicunoz, amo motolinjx in tlein moqua, anoço mj.

29. Corresponding Spanish text: "de harto, o de sababoria, o de otra cosa."

30. Ambiguous: Seler, in Collected Works, Vol. IV, 2. 21, refers to it as a spectral water animal or spirit "which drew men down into the water and ate off the nails and hair of immersed men" (citing Sahagún, XI, cap. 4, § 2, and V, App., cap. 29). Santamarina, op. cit., Vol. I, p. 66 (abadonos), calls it monstruo o perro del agua (Lastra Sellma).

31. Corresponding Spanish text: "quando comejan, o bevejan un pravendo de algun agua."

32. Ibid.: "en la frente."

X 796 Twentieth Chapter, which telleth of the feast and blood sacrifices which they made on the first day [805] [and] month, which was named, and which they called, Atl caualo or Quauitl eua.[1]

Quauitl eua: This day came, and when it was this [month], a feast was then celebrated for the Tlaloca.

[202] Everywhere on mountain tops, blood sacrifices[2] were made and sacrificial banners were hung. Blood sacrifices were made at Tepetzinco, or there in the very gulf of the lake at a place called Pantitlan.

[799] At this place they left consecrated papers[3] and set up long poles called cuenmantli, by means of which would come to pass greenness, sprouting, and growth.

[777 927] And there they took children, known as "human banners"[4]—those who had two cowlicks of hair and whose day signs were favorable. They were sought everywhere, and bought. It was said: "These are precious blood-offerings. [The rain gods] receive them with rejoicing; they wish for them; they are thus satisfied and given contentment." With them, the rains were sought; rain was asked.

And everywhere, in the houses, in each home, in each of the quarters where the young warriors were trained, and in each tribal temple, everywhere they [202 314 299] erected the slender green poles; on them, they placed white paper flags dotted with large and small drops of liquid rubber.[5]

Juic 20. capítulo, ytechpa tlatoa yn ilhuitl, yoan in nextlaoalizzli: in quichioaia, yn ipan vel ic cemilhuitl metztli; in qujtocaiotiaia, in qujtoaia atl cacalo anoço quauitl eoa.

Quauitl eoa, ynin ilhuitl quiçaia: auh yn iquac y, vncan ilhujquixtililoia in tlaloque:

nextlaoaloia, in noujan tepeticpac, yoã neteteuhtiloia, onnextlaoaloia, in tepetzinco, anoço vmpa in vel aytic, ytocaiocan pantitla:

vmpa concaoaia in teteujtl, yoan vmpa conquetzaia quauitl, moteneoa cuenmantli, viujtlatztic, çan itech ieetiuh yn icelica, yn itzmolinca, yzcallo.

Yoan vmpa qujmoncaoaia pipiltzitzinti, in moteneoaia tlacateteuhti: ichoãtin in vntecuezcomeque, in qualli intonal: noujan temoloia, patiiotiloia: mitoaia, ca ichoantin vellaçonextlaoalti, vel qujnpaccacelia qujnnequj, ic vellamati, ic vellamachtilo, ynjc in ca qujiauhtlatlanjoa, quiiauhtlatlano.

Auh yn novian calpan, in techachan: yoan in tetelpuchcalco, in cacalpulco, noujian qujquetzaia, matlaquauhpitzaoac, tzonioquauitl, itech qujtlatlaliaia amateteujtl, vltica tlaulchipinilli, tlavlchachapatztli.

---

1. Sahagún, in the corresponding Spanish text, observes that Quauitlehua is the term used by the Mexicans. Cf. Manuel Orozco y Berra: Historia antigua y de la conquista de México (México: Tipografía de Gonzalo A. Esteva, 1880), Vol. II, p. 36: "Xilomanaliztli.—Adacahualco,—Cuahuitlehua.—Cihuatlhuatl. Xilomanaliztli, aparado de cabal á plomo; nombre usado por los de Tlaxcalla. Cuahuitlehua, quemazon de los árboles: nombre peculiarmente á lugares fuera de México. Atlacahualco ó Atlacahualco, nombre admitido por los mexicanos; agua al P. Leon, detencion de las aguas, y es la conmemoracion de todas que más nos satisface. Cihuatlhuatl, fiesta de la mujer. El símbolo religioso es la imágen de Tlaloc y su árbol reverdecendo, con el agua entre las raices." Cf. also Francisco J. Clavijero: Historia antigua de México (México: Editorial Porrúa, S. A., 1945), Vol. II, pp. 401-2: ". . . el primero mes, cuyo nombre Acahualco o Atlacahualco, significa la cesación del agua, pues en el mes de marzo cesan las lluvias del invierno en las países septentrionales, en donde tuvo origen el calendario mexicano o nahuatl. Lo llamaban tambien Quauhacahualco, lo que significa la cegueraña de los árboles, que se verifica en este tiempo en los países frios. Las sacerdotisas llamaban a este mes Xilomanaliztli, esto es, cabeza de las matronas de maiz, porque en él ofrecian a sus dioses las del año corrido, para ayudar la siembra que por este tiempo comenzaban a hacer en los lugares altos."

Angel María Garibay K. in "Relación breve de las fiestas de los dioses, Fray Bernardino de Sahagún" (Tlalocan, Vol. II), p. 291, translates cualmoi ehua in palo ei alto: Eduard Seler, in Einige Kapitel aus dem Geschichtswerk des Fray Bernardino de Sahagun aus dem Aztekischen übersetzt und übersetzt (Gesammelte Seler-Werke, Walter Lehmann, Walter Krickeberg, eds.; Stuttgart: Strecker und Schroeder, 1927), Vol. I, p. 55, translates the same as die Bäume erhoben sich (machten sich auf dem Weg).

2. Nextlaoalloa. Seler rather consistently renders forms of this word in terms of payment of a debt rather than of a sacrifice. Cf. intlaoa in Alonso de Molina: Vocabulario de la lengua mexicana (Julio Platzmann, ed.; Leipzig: B. G. Teubner, 1880), and in Rémi Siméon: Dictionnaire de la langue nahuatl ou mexicaine (Paris: Imprimerie Nationale, 1885). In Collected Works (Cambridge, Mass.: Carnegie Institution of Washington, 1939), Vol. II, Pt. 4, p. 13, Seler says: "The child sacrifices to the rain god were called nextlaoalli 'the debt paid.'"

3. Garibay (op. cit., p. 292) translates amatl as tiras sagradas.

4. In loc. cit., Garibay renders tlacateteuhtli as tiras humanas and makes it clear (Nahuatl answer No. 4) that the term refers to the children who died. Seler (Einige Kapitel, p. 55) refers to them as Menschen-Opferwaisen (Opferpapiere in Menschengestalt). They may actually have been paper amulets represented by a representation of a human head, and have symbolized the children who died. See illustration (Seler: op. cit., p. 60) from the Bibliotheca del Palacio MS.

5. See Note 1. Sahagún, in the corresponding Spanish text, refers to "unos papeles, llenos de gotas de olli a los quales papeles llamamos amatemitl." Tlaulchachapatztli, cf. ulachapani, in Molina (op. cit.).

X 796 in his discourse, that he might talk graciously, converse well, and greet people agreeably on the road, if he met anyone.

For he was much honored when he appeared as the impersonator; because he was the likeness of Titlacauan; he was acknowledged as our lord, treated like a lord; one begged favors, with sighs; before him the common people bowed in reverence and kissed the earth.

[827] And if they noted that his body became even a little fat, they made him drink brine, so that he became thin; the salt water thinned him, so that he became lean; he became hard; his flesh became firm.

And for one year he [thus] lived; at [the feast of] Toxcatl, he appeared [before the people]. And when the man died who had been impersonator for one year, he who had led the way, he who had cast [the spear] for one year, who had given commands for one year, forthwith was one chosen to be set in his place, from all whom the temple guardians had saved and cared for at the time that [the captives] appeared [before them].

Thereupon he began his office; he went about playing his flute. By day and by night he followed whatever way he wished.

[302 567] His eight young men went following him. Four [of them] had fasted for a year; their hair was shorn like [the hair of] slaves, cut and clipped, not smooth like a gourd, nor cut [too] short, not [made like] growing whiskers on the head.

And four warriors, who instructed youths in the art of war, [were] similarly shorn. Their hairdress lay upright on their foreheads.

Then Moctezuma adorned [the impersonator] well and arrayed him in varied garb; he provided him [his appropriate indumentary]. He ornamented him, he adorned him in great pomp with all costly articles, which he caused to be placed upon him; for verily he took him to be his beloved god. His face was anointed with black; it was said: "He fasteth [302] with blackened face." A thick layer of black was smeared on his cheeks. White feathers were placed upon his head—the soft down of eagles. They placed it on his hair, which fell to his loins.

[301] And when he was attired, he went about with sweet-smelling flowers[7] upon his head. a crown of flowers. And these same were hung over both shoul-ynic vel mjmatiz, ica itlatol, vellatoz, vel tenotza, vel tetlapaloz in vtlica, intla aca qujnamiquiz:

ipampa ca cenca mauiztililoia yn iquac oixnez, in ie teixiptla: ynic ixiptlati Titlacaoan, ca totecujo ipan machoia, netecuiotilo, tlatlauhtilo, yca tlcicioua, ixpan nepechteco, ixpan ontlalqua in macoaltzintli.

Auh intla ie qujtta, in ie achi tomaoa ynacaio, iztaiotl qujltequjtiaia, ic qujquaoatzaia, quiztaioquaoatza, ynic pipinja, tepitzauj, tlalichauj yn jnacaio.

Auh cexiujtl in nemja ipan toxcatl, yn ixnecia: auh iquac miquj ce tlacatl yn oteixiptlatic ce xiujtl, in ce xiujtl, ooallaotlatocti, in ce xiujtl oqujtlaz, in ce xiujtl ooallaujcac: ça çan ic mopatlatiuja yn ixquetzaloia, yn ixujchtin quinpiaia, in qujnnemjtiaia cacalpisque, yn iquac oixnez:

njman ic compeoaltia, yn itequjuh, in tlapitztinemj: cemilhujtl, yoan cenioual: çan connequja in campa ieh vtli qujtocaz:

qujtocatinemj yn iachoan chicueintin: navin mocexiuhçauhque, moquatexoloxima, moquateçonoa, motlatetecilhuja, amo maiochiquj, amo maioichiquj, amo moquacoconaloa, amo moquatetzicoa

Auh no naujntin, teachcaoan, tetiachcaoan, çan ie yujn moxima yn iuhca innexin, motlaeoatimanjlia, yn jmjxquac.

Jquac vel qujcencaoa, qujcecencaoa in Motecuçuma, qujtlamamaca, qujchichioa, qujieecquetza: muchi tlaçotlanquj, yn jtech qujtlalilia: ipampa canel ic ytlaçoteouh ipan qujmati, moçaoa, ic mjtoa motlilçaoa, mixtlilpopotztinenca, moquapotonjaia, quauhtlachcaiotica: çan q'ujaqujliaia yn itzon, ycujtlacaxiuhian vetzia.

Auh yn omocencauh ixujxochitl in icpac contecatinemj, icpac xochiuh: yoan çan ie no ieh in necoc-

7. Brownrie Anonin Hernández, according to Seler (Einige Kapitel, p. 97, n. 1, and Collected Works, Vol. II, Pt. 4, p. 68). In the former he quotes from Hernández that the flower resembled popped corn.

And for drinking wine [they used] very small drinking vessels. And all gave wine to drink to the small children.

Hence was named [the occasion] "The children all drink wine."

And at sundown this all ceased and all went to their homes. And when they had departed to their homes, once again there was dancing in their courtyards. And the kin [of those who celebrated] drank wine—the revered old men and old women.

Here ended Izcalli.

And for this reason was [the feast] named Izcalli (The Growing): at this time they lifted by the neck all the small children. It was said that thus they grasped them for growth; they grasped them for growth that they might quickly mature.

Enough. Here ended and concluded Izcalli.

Auh injc quja injc tlaoanaia, in tlaoancaxitl, çan tepiton, çã tetepiton: auh muchintin qujntlaoantiaia in pipiltotonti: 796 273 [415] ie injc moteneoa, pillaoano.

Auh ie teutlac in necacaoaloia, viviloa in techachan: auh in onviviloac techachan, ie no cppa mjtotia in jmjtoalco, muchintin tlatlaoana in tehoaniolque, in veventzitzin, in jlamatzitzin.

Oncan tlamj in Jzcalli.

Auh injc moteneoa Jzcalli: vncã qujnquechanaia in jxqujchtin pipiltotonti: qujlmach, ic qujmizcaloana: qujmjzcalana, injc iciuhca quauhtiazque. 796 [827]

Ie ixqujch njcan tzonquiça, njcan tlamj in jlhujtl Jzcalli.

x 796 [548] when he had been living in the likeness of another, had walked with head high, had lived as a captive, had been drunk, and had gone in high esteem.

oaquetztinĕca otlamattinenca, omjvintitinĕca omovelitztinenca.

And for this reason was [the month] named "Izcalli hath ended": all the small children, all of them they took up and lifted by the neck. For it was said, [827] they [thus] grasped them that they might grow; thus they would speedily grow tall; they would wax great and strong.

Auh injc mjtoa Jzcalli, tlami yn ixquichtin pipiltotonti, muchintin qujnquechaana, qujmacopiloa: ic mjtoa qujmizcalloana, qujmizcalaana, ynic iĉiuhca quaquauhtiezque, manazque, mocapaozque:

And they divided the heart of the maguey plants; [824] they broke, peeled, and opened it. And they cleaned the cactus and pruned its branches, because thus it would quickly be given new life and growth.

yoã in metl qujiolloxeloa, qujiollotzaiana, qujiollotlapana, qujiollotoma: auh yn nopalli qujtlaiectilia, qujmatepeoa, ipampa ynic iciuhca manaz, moscaltiz, mocapaozz.

x 796 852 And at this [feast of] Izcalli, there also came to pass, every four years, the bringing out of the children and the drinking of wine by the children. And then the chiefs danced a lordly dance, along with their courtiers. And they put on their wigs of hair; in truth they were head pieces made of long hair and [301] covered with green stone. [The hair] fell, verily, to the chiefs' waists.

Auh yn ipan y, Izcalli, no vncan muchioaia, ynic nauhxiuhtica nepilquixtiloia, pillaoanoia: yoan vncan motecujtotiaia in tlatoque, yoan yn inpillooan: yoan contlaliaia yntzonpilinal, centlamantli, tzoncalli catca, viiac in tzontli ic tlachioalli, qujchachalchiuhiotiaia, vel incujtlacaxiuhiã vetzia in tlatoque.

And for this reason one said that the children were brought forth: the fathers and mothers of all the small children first sought out those who would bring them to the priests' dwelling, a place named Tezcacoac—a woman and a man whom they invited. [608] It was said that they were to be uncles and aunts [of the children]; they became uncles and aunts [for them].

Auh ynic mjtoa nepilquixtilo, yn jxquichtin pipiltotonti, yn jntahoan, yn jnnahoan, achtopa qujntemoliaia, in qujnvicazque calmecac, itocaiocan tezcacoac ce cioatl, ce oquichtli in qujnotzaia, mjtoa: qujntlatia qujmavitia, tetlati, teaviti:

And not their kin did they take; they secured only their friends, whom they chose and to whom they [431] gave gifts. They laid out capes and breech clouts for us men. Likewise, for a woman they laid out her skirt and shirt.

auh amo inoaniolque in qujmanaia, çan incoapan intlaanaia, in tlapẽpenaia, qujntlauhtiaia: tilmatli, maxtlatl, contlaliliaia in toquichtin: no ivi in cioatl, icue, ivipil contlalilia

At midnight they took [the children] to the priests' [304] dwelling. There they pierced and drilled their ears. [And the children] cried out [as] the pointed bone pierced their ears. They drew through a thread of unspun cotton, and bound it to them, as the little ones cried out and squirmed, and shed tears. And [302 237] they pasted upon their heads yellow macaw feathers and soft down.

ioalnepantla in qujnvicaia calmecac, vmpa qujnnacazxapotla, qujnnacazcoionja pipitzcatiuh in omjtl injc qujcoionja innacaz, potonquj icpatl in vmpa conquixtia, vncã qujmonjlpilia iuhqujn tlatzatzizteoa, tlatzatzatzi, tlachoquiztleoa in pipiltzizintl, yoan tocivitica tlachcaiotica qujnpotonjaia in jmjcpac:

And the women who became aunts were pasted [608 302] with red feathers, but only upon the legs and arms, and they covered themselves with their paper flowers, which were called their noble flowers.

auh in teaviti cioa, çanjo imjcxic, yoã inmac in mopotonjaia tlapalivitica, yoan imamazxochiuh contecativia: mjtoa, intecuxochiuh.

When they had pierced [the children's] ears, then they took them to their homes. Here they sat attending them; they sat in vigil, awake, [thus] remaining

In jquac oquijmõnacazxapotlaque, ojmã ic qujnoalhujujca in inchachan, vncan qujchieltitoque ixtoçotoque, toçotoque tlatlatviltitoque, qujchixtoque in and men danced [together, as] during the feast of Tlaloc.

mjtotiaia in cihoa novian yoan oquichtin iquac inilhuiuh tlaloc.

78X
782
[533]

The Moistening of Chalk.

Thus was done the moistening of chalk: when they quickly snatched the chalk, then he who moistened the chalk ran. Thus he appeared running fast, and a number followed him. They went stoning him, and any who did not hasten fell quickly under the stones.

Tiçapaloliztli.

Jnjc muchivaia tiçapaloliztli: in iquac concuitiquiça in tiçatl njman ic motlaloa in tiçapaloa injc necia in cenca tlacça yoan cequjntin qujtocaia, qujtepochotivia auh in aquja amo tlacçaia iciuhca tetica vetzia.

The Lifting [of Children], that They Might Grow.

Thus was done the lifting of children that they might grow: Also upon a certain day they lifted up all the small children [by the head] that they might grow. Along the roads and on all the ground lay the nopal [cacti], or maguey plants; thus, it was said, these thus would swiftly grow.

Teiscalanaliztli.

Jnjc muchivaia teiscalaanaliztli no ipan in tlein tonalli muchintin in pipiltotonti qujmizcalaanaia vtlica yoã in izqujch tlalticpac onoc in nopalli, anoço metl, ic mjtoaia iniac hiciuhca moscaltiz. [827]

Ninth Chapter, in which is related the omen which they regarded as a portent when an animal of strong stench, called a skunk,[1] now entered one's home or else sprayed and loosed an odor,

Likewise all regarded as an omen the skunk when it entered someone's home or there bore its young.

They said: "Now the householder will die"; because, so they said, its abode, its dwelling place, was by no means among houses, in one's home. Maize fields, meadows, magucy and cactus fields [were] its dwelling places and abodes.

Also, they supposed that it was the likeness of the demon Tezcatlipoca. And when it loosed an odor, when it loosed a foul odor at one, they said: "Tezcatlipoca breaketh wind."

And if someone tried to capture or chase it, thus it mocked and gibed him: it raised and lifted high its tail, and then, if it drew quite near one, it forthwith loosed its stench at him. Like one sprinkling, its spray appeared and was seen; like a rainbow it arose. And it penetrated one; its evil stench entered into one. With difficulty did it shandofi him. So one's cape dropped—was cast aside, thrown away. [Its stench] was spread all over the area; it extended all over the region. It reached everywhere, and spread on people. So did its stink-sicken one and molest one's nose.

And they said that when it arrived, when it was smelled, one should not spit. It was believed that if one spat, his hair would whiten; it would flare brightly. Hence they severely warned the children not to spit. When its stench was smelled, they only covered their mouths.

Ic chiuauauj capitulo, vncan mjtoa: in tetzaujd in qujmoetzzujaia, in jquac centetl iolquj, in cenca hijac, in jnca Epatl: in jquac ic oncalaquj ichan, auh anoço in jquac mouixa: mjexi. 787K 825

No ioan in epatl, netetzzaujloia: in jquac aca ichan calaquj, anoço vncan mopilhoatia:

qujtoa, ic mjquix in chane: ipampa inh qujtovaia, ca amo incntla, amo inemja in calla, in techan: ca mjlpan, çacatla, memetla, nonopalla, in jnemjia, in jquiçaia.

No ipan qujmatia, ca ixiptla in tlacatecuhtl, tezcatlipuca: auh in jquac mjexi, in teiexi, qujtoaia: omjex in tezcatlipoca. [176]

Auh intla aca canaznequj, in ace qujtoca: çan ic qujquelua, ic ica mocaiaoa: cenca qujquetza, cacoquetza in jcujtlapil: auh qujnjquac, intla ic uel itech onaci: njman ic qujualiexi, iuhqujn aca thaalpichia, vel neci, vel itto, in jiel: iuhqujn aiauhcoçamalotl, ic moquetza: auh vel temaoa, tetechaquj in ijel, aiazcan tecaoa: ic vetzi, ic tlazo, ic tlaçalo in tetilma: vel centlalli momana, centlalli manj: nouijan aci, tepan motecca, injc yiac, injc tetlachti: teiaçazzolocho.

Auh qujtoà, in jquac in eco, mjnecuj, auel onchicha: qujlmach intla aca onchichaz, quazzalujs, comonjz: ic cenca qujntlacaoaltia, in tepilhoß: injc amo onchichazque: in jquac inoco yel: çan onnotempechoa. [827]

1. Sahag., op. cit., Vol. IV, p. 20.

[p. 172 is blank]

754
776
789

At once they fled; nevermore would they come to harm one when they had seen the obsidian knife resting in the water.

Ic njman cholos, aiocmo ezppa tepoloçivi: in jquac oquittaque itztli, atlan onoc.

Twenty-eighth Chapter, which telleth of the gnawed leavings of a mouse.

Inic ompoualli on chicuei capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa in qujmjchin ytentlacaoal. 825

Whatsoever a mouse had gnawed none might eat. It was said that he who ate what a mouse had left would be falsely accused. For it was said that the mouse came to steal it; he came to eat it in stealth. Wherefore no one might eat gnawed leavings of a mouse. Likewise it was said of it that he who ate the gnawed leavings of a mouse would be accused falsely of some sort of story or of that which might be missing.[20]

In qujmjchin in çaço tlein qujqua: aiac vel qujqualaia, qujlmach in aqujn qujqualia yn q'caoa qujmjchin, itech tlatlamjz, ca mjtoa: oquichtequjco in qujmjchin, oquichtacaqua. Ipampa y, in aiac vel qujqualaia in itentlacaoal qujmjchin. No yuh ipan mjtoa: in aqujn qujqua itentlacaoal qujmjchin, itech tlatlamjz, in çaço tlein tlatolli, anoço in tlein poliviz.

Twenty-ninth Chapter, which telleth of nails.

Inic ompoualli on chicunavi capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa in jztirl. 826 776

It was said that, when nails were pared, they cast them into the water. It was thought that this was because the water dog[21] would make good [nails] grow out — not broken; they would be sound. For when it drew someone into the water, [the water-dog] tore away his nails and eyes.

Quilmach in tozti, in jquac motetequja, atlan contepeoaia, qujlmach ipampa: in ichoatl avitzotl, qualli qujzoaltiz: amo papatzaoaz, qualli yez. Ipampa: in jquac aqujn qujlaqujaia, qujqujztiliaia in jztzi, ioan iztelolo.

Thirtieth Chapter, which telleth of meaning.

Inic ompoualli ommátlactli capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa in acuchoiztli. 827

When someone sneezed, they said, in times past: "Someone speaketh of me; someone saith well of me." Or they said: "Someone speaketh ill of me." Or they said: "Some people discuss me." It was thought that they made it evident, and knew, when they sneezed, that someone far away mentioned them.

In jquac aca acuchoa, qujtoaia in ie vecauh: aqujn nechitoa, aqujn nechtenecoa: anoce qujtoaia: aqujn nechicoitoa, anoçe qujtoa: aqujque in noca mononcoa. Qujl ichoatl qujnezcaioiziaia, ichoatl ic qujmatia: in jquac acuchoa, in aca canapa veca qujnteneoa.

Thirty-first Chapter, which telleth of small children.

Inic ompoualli ommatlactli on capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa in pipiltzonti. 853

When small children still lay in the cradle and something was eaten or drunk,[22] first they placed it upon [their] foreheads.[23] It was said that in this way [the child] would not hiccough or be afflicted by what he ate or drank.

In ichoantin in pipiltzonti: in jquac yn oc coçolco onoque: in jquac tlaquaia, anoço itla mjx, achto ijxquac contlaliaia, qujlmach ic amo tzitzicunoz, amo motolinjx in tlein moqua, anoço mj.

20. Corresponding Spanish text: "de lavar, o de cabellarse, o de otra cosa."

21. Aztlacuetl: Seler, in Collected Works, Vol. IV, I. 21, refers to it as a mythical water animal or species "which drive men down into the water and tear off the nails and hair of intoxicated men" (citing Sahagún, XI, cap. 4, § 2, and V, App., cap. 29). Immediately, op. cit., Vol. I, p. 66 (Aztlacuetl), calls it merely a power del agua (Letra Inicial).

22. Corresponding Spanish text: "quando comejan, o beuian en presencia de algun niño."

23. Ibid.: "en la frente."

x 796 space], once more they circled back and returned [535] [whence they had started].

And when it all ceased, already it was late at night, [512] today [that would be] at about the ninth hour.

And when all had stopped, when the ground drum [534] was undone, then all dispersed, all went, all betook themselves to their homes. The great noblemen, [373] when it was done, were accompanied by torches; they went lighted by torches, carried for them, to their homes.

And the women who had danced then were assembled, after there had been the song and dance, and they led them off. Even so was done with the leaders of the youths. They gathered [the women] together, grouped them, rounded them up, placed them together, assembled them, hunted them out,—lest they might go off somewhere, lest someone might accompany them, lest some debauched youth might go with [one of them].

[565] None the less, the noblemen addressed the matrons, that they might go and release some [of the women] or go and leave [one]. Not of their free will did [the women] go elsewhere; it was done on persuasion.

And when they released them, [the girls] were [431] given presents. Gifts were given, and food was given. And likewise, favors were offered the leaders of the women, the matrons. They kept for themselves and carried that which they saved to their homes.

x 796 And the young warriors, the young warriors who 836 had distinguished themselves, who were worthy of 684 honors, made their plea for the women only in secret, not before others; perchance in his home [such an one] awaited her, perchance elsewhere he called her. Just so, they ate privily.

[548] And the woman came forth only at night and spent only the night [with him]; she departed when it was well into the night.

And if one was noted living in concubinage, thus he aroused anger; thus he gave offense. For this all assembled and held council there in the sing-house.

Here, before everyone, they punished him. Because of [his crime] they cut off his warrior's hair dress; they took from him all his belongings—his [831] adornment, his lip plug. Thereafter, they beat him sorely with a pine stick, verily causing him to swoon; they singed his head with fire; smoke rose, and blisters formed on his body.

And when they had indeed caused him to swoon, then they cast him forth.

vmpa tlantoc, oc cepa momalacachoa, in cujtlauic, oalmocuepa.

Auh in necaoalo, ic tlaquauhioca, ic netetequizpan: yn iuh mixtlauilia xucan aço ic chicunauj ora.

Auh in ic izquich, yn onecacaoaloc, yn ompet vetetl, mec cecenmanoa, viujloa, yn izquichtin viuj yn inchachan: in veuei pipilti, onca caoalo, tlavilpan, tlaujlilotiuj, qujntlatlaujlitiuj yn inchan.

Auh yn cioa yn oemacaque, ninan mocentlalia, in ic oncujcoianoloc, in qujiacana, yn iuhq' yn tiachcanan muchioa, qujnnechicoa, qujntecpichoa, qujmololoa, qujncenqujxtia, qujcentecpichoa, vel qujmixpepena, yn ma aca canapa ia, yn ma aca motecujcalti, in ma aca telpuchtlauelilo: qujujca:

tel in pipilti, qujmonilhujaia in cioa tlaiacanque, ynic cequjntin qujncaoetiuj, tecaoatiuj: amo çan mococoiaia yn canapa via, tetencopa muchioaia.

Auh yn ontecaoaia, vmpa motlauhtiaia, vmpa tlauhtiloia, yoã vmpa tlamacoia: auh no tlatlauhtiloia, in cioatechcaoan, in cioatetiacanque, motlacauja, motlatlacauja, quiquj yn inchachan innetlacaujl.

Auh in teachcaoan, inteachcauh, tlaiacatia, in mauiztililonj, çan ichtaca in qujnnaoatia cioa, amo teixpan, aço ichan in qujchietiuh, anoço canapa in qujnaoatia: çan iuhquj, yn ichtacaquaia.

Auh in cioatl, çan oalioualquiça, çan moiocalpoloa, oc ueca ioan in quiça:

auh intla aca itoc, in momecatitinemj, ic tlaqualanjaia, ic tlaiolitlacoaia, ica necentlalilo, yca nenonotzalo, in vncan cujcacali:

vncan teixpan qujtlatzacujltia, ic qujtzotzocoltequj, muchi qujcujlia in izquich ytlatquj, yn inechichioal, yn iempilol: çatepan qujujujtequj, ocoquauhtica, vel qujhiiocaoaltia, qujquatlechichinoa, tlõtlecaloa, haaquaqualaca, yn inacaio.

Auh yn oeclqujhijocaoaltique, yca oalmaiauj:

3: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1951 NU7 Aztec NU7

X 796 Sixth [Twenty-fourth] Chapter, which relateth the feast and blood sacrifices made during all the days[1] in the fifth month, which was called Tozcatl.[2]

In [the month of] Tozcatl, the great feast of Tezcatlipoca was [held]. At that time he was formed and set up. Wherefore died his impersonator, who for one year had lived [as Tezcatlipoca].

And at that time once more was offered [to the people] his [new] impersonator, who would again live for one year.

X 796 727 For many impersonators [thus] lived, whom guardians[3] kept and maintained. Perchance there were ten. These were select captives, chosen when captives were taken. Then was one chosen if he was good to look upon and fair of body. Then such were taken, and the guardians cared for them. But one whom they destined to be a slave, the captor slew.

X 796 727 ● 832 For he who was chosen was of fair countenance, of good understanding and quick, of clean body—slender like a reed; long and thin like a stout cane; well-built; not of overfed body, not corpulent, and neither very small nor exceedingly tall.

X 796 832 For anyone who was formed [thus] defective, who was too tall, to him the women said: "Tall one; head-nodder; handful of stars!" He who was chosen impersonator was without defects.

[He was] like something smoothed, like a tomato, or like a pebble, as if hewn of wood. [He did] not [have] curly hair, [but] straight, long hair; [he had] no scabs, pustules, or boils on the forehead, nor skin growths on the forehead, nor [was he] large-headed, nor with the back of the head prominent; nor of a head shaped like a carrying-net, nor with the sutures of the crown yet soft; not broad-headed, nor with a square head; not bald, nor with Jnic chiquacen capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa, yn ilhujtl, yuã in nextlaoalli, in muchioxia, yn ipan ic cemjlhujtl ic macujlli metztli, in mitoxia, Tozcatl.

In ipan in tozcatl, vel yuciilhujuh catca in tezcatlipoca: vncan tlacatia, vncan moquetzaia: ipampa ca vncan miquja, yn jxiptla in cexiuhtica onen.

Yoan iquac njman noce vncan mixquetzaia yxiptla, yn oc no cexiuhtica nemix:

ca miequjntin in nemja, teixiptlaoan in quinpia, in qujnnemjtiaia cacalpixque: aço quẽ matlactli in nemj: y ichoantin y, ca mamalti tlaqujxtilti qujxtiloia, yn iquac oalxitiloia mamalti, vncan pepenaloia, intla aca ce oqualitoc, in qualli ynacaio: njman onano, qujmonpialtiaia in calpixque: auh iece ipan qujoalixquetzaia tlacotli, ichoatl qujmictia in tlamanj:

ca ichoatl ic pepenalo, in qualli itlachieliz, in mjmatqui, in mjmatinj, in chipaoac ynacaio, cujllotic, acatic, piazztic, iuhqujn otlatl, ipanoca temjmjltic, amo tlacaçolnacaio, amo tomaoac, amo no tetepiton amo no cenca quauhtic:

ca yiaioca muchioa, yn aquin cenca quauhtic, qujlhuja in cioa: quauhtitin, quauhchachalan, citlalmaololo: yn aquin pepenaloia, in teixiptla, atle yiaioca:

iuhqujn tlachictli, iuhqujn tomatl, iuhqujn telolotli, iuhqujn, quauitl tlaxixintli, amo quacocototztic, quacolochtic, vel tzõmelaoac, tzompiaztic, amo ixquachachaquachtic, amo ixquatotomonquj, amo ixquaxitontic, amo ixquaxiqujpiltic, amo quametlapiltic, amo cuexcochujztic, amo quachitatic, amo quapatztic, amo quapatlachtic, amo quaoacaltic, amo quaxoxomalacquj, amo ixquamamalacachtic, amo ixquatolpopoçactic, amo ixquatolmemetlapiltic, amo

1. Cuauhtlaxtli is usually translated as "one day" or "all day." Gorliney ("Relación breve," p. 291) renders it "the first day." Simeon (op. cit.), in an extended discussion, admits a meaning of "the first day," or "all the days"; this latter appears to fit the events related in Chapter 24.

2. Of this month, Orozco y Berra (op. cit., Vol. II, p. 37) writes: "Tozcatl, Tepemacholoaztli. De todas las interpretaciones dadas á la palabra Tozcatl, la más generosa á nuestro entender, es la dada por Gamez, tomada del P. Arcaya: 'una saga grueso tornido de cordeles de nudo tomado.'"

Chavero (op. cit., Vol. III, p. 462) explains that "La figura del mes quinto es la de una estatua humana con una cadena debajo, para representar capellitas cursos de nudo tomado que se ponían al cuello, y con las cuales adornaban también al ídolo de Tezcatlipoca, por lo que el mes tomó el nombre Tozcatl"; and (p. 152) "unas cuentecitas tejidas de negro y cuentitas del traje del ídolo, la bajaban en unas cadenitas adornadas al pie de la escalera. Los cuentecitas y ciegrones del templo rodeaban las cuentas de una cuerda grueso compuesto de mezcla de nudo tomado y ponían al ídolo una cuerda al cuello y una guirnalda en la cabeza. A esta cuerda por ser de grueso cuerpo y dándole de la seguridad que pretendían evitar con sus plegarias, llamaron tozcatl, el cual nombre se dió por esta ceremonia al mes quinto de que hablamos."

Gorliney (op. cit., p. 290) also suggests as a translation for the name "una dryssma, que denotaba"—"nuestro cuerpo."

3. Sahagún (Bulwinkle edition, Vol. II, p. 315) refers to "los mayordomos de los presoneros, que llamaban calpixques de los presoneros"; and (Vol. III, p. 122) adds: "Eran ellos habidos robados y rescatados o sus ídolos; había principales, personas eminentes, como son los que llamaban calpixques, que regían a los demás."

a bulbous forehead; not of swollen eyelids, nor enlarged ones; not with swollen cheeks; not of disfigured eyes or cheeks, nor with swollen face; not with cleft chin; not with a gross face, nor a downcast one; not flat-nosed nor with wide nostrils, nor with an arched, Roman nose nor a bulbous nose, nor bent nor twisted nor crooked—but his nose should be well-placed, straight; not thick-lipped nor gross- nor big-lipped, nor with bowl-like ones, nor enlarged; neither one who stammered, nor [one who talked] as if his tongue were pierced for a ring; nor one with welts on his tongue; nor one who spoke a barbarous language, or spoke thickly, or lisped, or was dumb; nor buck-toothed, nor large-toothed or fang-toothed, nor of yellowed teeth, nor darkened, nor decayed—but his teeth were like seashells, well arrayed in order; his teeth were not shaped like bowls. Neither had he scarred eyes, nor poor vision,[4] nor squinting eyes, nor scarified; not blinded, nor of small, seedlike eyes, nor angry-eyed, nor sunken, nor hollow, nor cuplike, nor stupid-looking, nor gouged, pierced, or wounded; nor had he a scarred neck, [like one which hath been] choked, nor one with lacerations, nor with double chin, nor with pocks on the neck. Not with protruding or long ears, nor with torpid neck, nor hunch-backed,[5] nor stiff-necked, nor with neck elongated, much elongated, nor twisted, nor kinked; neither with unduly long hands, nor lacking one hand, nor wanting both hands, nor fat-fingered; not emaciated, nor fat, nor big-bellied, nor of prominent, hatchet-shaped navel, nor of wrinkled stomach, nor shrunken stomach; not cringing; not of hatchet-shaped buttocks; nor of flabby buttocks or thighs.

He who was thus, without flaw, who had no [bodily] defects, who had no blemishes, no moles, who had no lacerations or wrinkles on his body, they then looked well that he be taught to blow the flute; that he might pipe and play his flute well; and that with it he hold his flowers and his smoking tube and blow and suck upon it, and smell [the flowers].

Thus he went bearing [his flute], his flowers, and his smoking tube[6] together as he walked through the streets.

And while yet he lived and was cared for in the house of the guardian, before he appeared [before the people], care was taken that he might be prudent campoponaxtic, amo irujujlaxtic, amo canujujlaxtic, amo ixpopotxtic, amo no camachaloacaltic, amo ixmetlapiltic, amo ixpechtic, amo iacapatztic, amo iacacocoiactic, amo iacaxaxacaltic, amo iacacaxtic, amo iacachittoltic, amo iacaujttoltic, amo iacanecujltic, çan vel icac yn ijac, iacapiaxtic, amo tenxipaltotomaoac, amo texipaltotomac, texipaltotomactic, amo iacachittoltic, amo iacaujttoltic, amo iacanecujltic, çan vel icac yn ijac, iacapiaxtic, amo tenxipalcaiultic, amo popoloc, amo tentzitzipi, amo tentzitzipitlatoa, amo tenmjmjcquj, amo tlanpantic, amo tlancujcujtztic, amo coatlane, amo tlancocoztic, amo tlanxoisuhquj, amo tlanpalanquj: iuhqujn teccizitli itlan, vel onoc vipantoc, amo tlancaxtic, amo no iztitiquijltic, amo ixnacatic, amo ixujtzaltic, amo itztzitziquijltic, amo ixpopoiontic, amo ixpipiltic, ixpipicilltic, ixcocoçaltic, amo ixcocomoltic, amo ixatlacomoltic, amo ixcacaxtic, amo ixtotolontic, amo ixtotomatic, amo itztzatzapitztic, amo itztzatzamoltic, amo ixtacaltic, amo quechtitiquijltic, quechmotzoltic, quetztzitziquijltic, quechnacatic quechxixiquijpiltic, amo no nacazpatlactic, amo no nacazvilaxtic, amo quechtiltic, amo quechtepotzotic, amo quechacquj, amo quechujiac, amo quechujtlatztic, amo quechnecujltic, amo quechnenetic: amo mavujtlatztic, amo matzicoltic, amo macuecuetzin, amo mapaltotomactic, amo itiujlaxtic, amo cujtlatoltic, amo cujtlapetztic, amo xicquixquj, amo xictopoltic, amo xiccucio, amo ittitzotzoltic, amo cujtlapechtic, amo tzintopoltic, amo tzincuecuexactic, tzintamalcuecuexac. 796[A] 832

Jn aqujn iuhquj y, atle itlacauhca, atle yisioca, atle ytlaciuhca, atle ytlaciuizçe, atle ytech ca etzotzocatl, xitomaciuiztli: njmã cenca necujtlaujlo, inic vel momachtix, yn tlapitzaz: ynic vel quijpitzaz, yujlacapitz: yoan inic vel muchi ipan quijxitzquiz, yzochiuh, yoan yicuh, ipan tlapitztiaz, tlachichintiaz, tlanecutiaz: 796[X] [533 276] iuhqujn centlalli mantiuh yn jzochiuh, yn jyicuh, yn iquac vtli qujtocaia.

Auh in çan oc nemj, in çan oc ospacalo, yn ichan calpixquj, yn aiemo izneci, cenca vel necujtlaujloia,

4. See Sahagún (op. cit.); a number of possible variants are suggested.
5. Hunchbacks is represented in pictorial writings as a humpback. Cf. also Molina (op. cit.), Spanish-Nahuatl section, corcobado.
6. "Gafas o cañuto de gabanarse, cuidad" (ibid.); "cañuto de humo" in Sahagún's corresponding Spanish text.

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

dishes and food which Montezuma gave them they ate 643 standing up with much reverence and without looking at 264 his face. He was served on Cholula earthenware either [415] red or black. While he was at his meal the men of his guard who were in the rooms near to that of Montezuma, never dreamed of making any noise or speaking aloud. They brought him fruit of all the different kinds that the land produced, but he ate very little of it. From [415 time to time they brought him, in cup-shaped vessels 832] of pure gold, a certain drink made from cacao which 272]
they said he took when he was going to visit his wives, and at the time he took no heed of it, but what I did see was that they brought over fifty great jugs of good cacao frothed up, and he drank of that, and the women served this drink to him with great reverence.

Sometimes at meal-times there were present some very [522 ugly humpbacks, very small of stature and their bodies 732] almost broken in half, who are their jesters, and other Indians, who must have been buffoons, who told him witty sayings, and others who sang and danced, for Montezuma was fond of pleasure and song, and to these he ordered to be given what was left of the food and the jugs of cacao. Then the same four women removed the table cloths, and with much ceremony they brought water for his hands. And Montezuma talked with those four old chieftains about things that interested him, and they took leave of him with the great reverence in which they held him, and he remained to repose.

As soon as the Great Montezuma had dined, all the men 643 of the Guard had their meal and as many more of the other house servants, and it seems to me that they brought out over a thousand dishes of the food of which I have spoken, and then over two thousand jugs of cacao all frothed up, as they make it in Mexico, and a limitless quantity of fruit, so that with his women and female

The fifth month they called Toxcatl. On the first day of this month they celebrated a great feast in honor of the god named Titlacauan, and for another name, Tezcatlipoca. This one they held to be god of the gods. In his honor, they slew, in this feast, a chosen youth who might have no blemishes upon his body, [who was] reared in all luxuries for the space of a year, [and] trained in the playing [of musical instruments], and in singing, and in speaking.

Al quinto mes llamauan Toxcatl: el primero dia deste mes: hazian gran fiesta a honrra del dios llamado Titlacaõe, y por otro nombre Tezcatlibuca: a este tenjan por dios de los dioses: a su honrra matauan en esta fiesta vn mancebo escogido, q̃ ninguna tacha tuujesse en su cuerpo: criado en todos deleytes, por espacio de vn año, instruto en tañer, y en cantar, y en hablar. 796 [305 776] [533]

Chapter 5
Toxcatl

This feast was the most important of all the feasts. It was like Easter, and fell near Easter Sunday—a few days after. This youth, reared as hath been said, was very comely, and chosen from many. He had long hair—down to the waist.

When, on this feast, they slew the young man who had been reared for [the rôle], they at once produced another, who was to die after one year. He walked everywhere in the town finely arrayed with flowers in his hand, and with people who accompanied him. He greeted with good grace those whom he met. All knew that this one was the likeness of Tezcatlipoca, and they bowed before him and worshiped him whenever they met him.

Twenty days before this feast came, they gave this young man four comely young women reared for [the part], with whom for all the twenty days, he had carnal relations. And they changed his array when they gave him these young women: [they] clipped his hair like a war captain and gave him more finery [even] braver [than what he had had].

Five days before he was to die, they celebrated feasts for him and banquets, in cool and pleasant places. Many of the leading men accompanied him. On the arrival of the day he was to die, they took him to a pyramid or sanctuary which they called

1. Marginal notation: Mother for that word.

Cap. 5.
Toxcatl

1	A	KL.	A	23
2	b	Esta fiesta, era la principal de todas	b	24
3	c	las fiestas, era como pascua, y caya	c	25
4	d	cerca de la pascua de resurrection	d	26
5	e	pocos dias despues: este mancebo	e	27
6	f	criado, como esta dicho era muy bien	f	28
7	g	dispuesto, y escogido entre muchos:	g	29
8	A	tenja los cabellos largos hasta la cinta.	A	30
9	b	Quando en esta fiesta matauã al	b	1[1]
10	c	mãcebo que estaua criado para esto:	c	2
11	d	luego sacauan otro: el qual auja de	d	3
12	e	morir dẽde a vn año, andaua por todo	e	4
13	f	el pueblo muy atauiado con flores en	f	5
14	g	la mano, y con personas que le acõpa-	g	6
15	A	ñauan saludaua a los que topaua graci-	A	7
16	b	osamẽte: todos sabian que era aquel	b	8
17	c	la ymagẽ de Tezcatlipuca: y se pros-	c	9
18	d	trauã delante del, y le adorauan donde	d	10
19	e	qujera que le topauan.	e	11
20	f	Viente dias antes que llegasse esta	f	12[2] fiesta: dauã a este mancebo quatro moças, biẽ dispuestas y criadas para esto: con las quales todos los veinte dias tenja cõuersaciõ carnal: y mudauanle el traje, quando le dauã estas moças, cortauale los cabellos como capitã y dauãle otros atauios mas
		galanes.

Cinco dias antes que muriesse: hazianle fiestas y vanquetes en lugares frescos y amenos: acompañauanle muchos principales: llegado el dia donde auja de morir: llenauanle a un co, o oratorio que llamauã tlacuchcalco. y ante que llegasse alli en vn lugar que

2. Marginal notation: Novel, de hilo? cape Pan.

796 [305 776] [533] [302] [833] [302] [346]

ders, as far down as his armpits. This was called "the flowery garment."

And from both ears hung curved, gold, shell pendants.[8] And they fitted [his ears] with ear plugs made of a mosaic of turquoise. And [he wore] a shell necklace. Moreover, his breast ornament was of white sea shells.

And then his lip plug was a slender snail shell lip plug. And hanging from his shoulders was what was like a cord bug called icpatoxin.[9]

Then they placed golden bracelets on both upper arms, and on both wrists they put carved bracelets with precious stones, covering almost all the forearm. And he put on his net cape like a fish-net of wide mesh with a fringe of brown cotton thread.[10] And his costly breech clout reached to the calves of his legs.

And then they placed his bells on both legs, all golden bells, called oioalli. These, as he ran, went jingling and ringing. Thus they resounded. And he had princely sandals with ocelot skin ears. Thus was arrayed he who died after one year.

When [the feast] of Toxcatl was drawing near, when it was approaching him, when it was coming to him, first they married him to [four] women whom they sought out [for him]. He was married in [the month of] Uey tocoztli.

And he left off, scattered in various places, and abandoned the ornaments he had had, in which he had walked about fasting, painted black. His hair was shorn; he was given a tuft of hair tied upon his forehead, like that of a war captain. Thus they bound [his hair], knotting it [with brown cotton thread] called tochiacatl; and they tied to his long hair[11] his forked heron feather ornament with single quetzal feathers attached.

Only twenty days he lived, lying with and married to the women. Four women he lived with, who also were cared for, for one year, in the guardian's house.

The first one was named Xochiquetzal; the second, Xilonen; the third, Atlatonan; the fourth, Uixtociouatl.

And still on the eve of [the feast of] Toxcatl, still five days from it, on the fifth day [before it], when campa ic mapanaia, yciiacaepa quiqquixtiaia: in motenecoa tuchincapitli.

Auh yn jnacazzitech nenecoc pipilcatiujia teucujtlaepcololli: yoan conaqujaia icoiolnacoch, teuxiujtl in tlachioalli, tlaxiuhçalolli: yoan chipolcuzcatl, yn jcuzquj, oc cepa yielpancuzquj iztac cilin.

Auh njman ie yteçacauh, iteçacapiaz tecciztli: auh ycujtlapan pilcatiuh itoca Jcpatoxi, iuhqujn icpaxiquipilli:

njman ie nenecoc teucujtlamatemecatl contlatlalitiuh in jacolpã, yoan in nenecoc imaquechtlan, xinmaquiztli in contetecatiuh, achi vel quitlatlamja yn jmatzotzopaz: auh çan ycuechin in quiquentiuh, iuhqujn xoujlmatlatl ic cocoiaoc, tochiacatl ynic tentlaiaoalo: yoan ytlaçomaxtli quimetztopeoa:

auh njman ie ycoiol nenecoc, icxic in contlalitiuh, muchi teucujtlatl in coiolli, mjtoa oioali: ichoatl inic xaxamacatiuh, ynic tzitzilicatiuh, ynic caquizti: yoan itzcac ocelunacace: yujn in muchichioaia, in ichoatl miquja ce xiujtl:

yn iquac ie oalacitiuh toxcatl, in ie itech ompachiuhtiuh, yn ie itech onacitiuh, achtopa tlapaliuhcatia, cihoatl quitaia, mocioaoatiaia ipan vey toçoztli.

Auh quitepeoaia, quitlatlaliaia, quicaoa, yn jnechichioal ocatca, yn ipan omotilçauhtinenca, moxima, mixquatzontia, iuhqujnma iautequjoa, ontlalpia, ontlacuja: ynic ontlalpia, itoca tochiacatl, xittomonjlpitica: yoan yaxtaxel, quetzalmjiaoaio, itzotzocol itech quilpia:

çan cempoalilhuitl in oncioacuchtinemi, yn oncioaoatinemj: nauintin in cioa q'nujcatinenca, no ceziuhtica in pialoia calpixcan:

y ce itoca xochiquetzal, ynic vme xilone, ynic ey Atlatona, ynic nauj, vixtociouatl.

Auh in ie itentla Toxcatl, oc macujltica, tlama-

796x
301
[306]
[292]
796x
[584
595]
[302
701]
[283
301]
[833]
[551]

8. "Unos cercillos de oro" (Sahagún: loc. cit.).
9. "Llamase o los capulillos, son ornamentos como hechos, de un palmo en quadro de largo blanco, con sus hechos y floraduras" (loc. cit.).
10. Cf. Sahagún (Bustamante edition), Vol. II, p. 310.
11. Cf. ibid., Vol. I, p. 143. The corresponding Spanish text, however, reads: "con una pluma corvina, semejante aquella manera de los capitanes, dos hechos con sus banderas, hechos de plumas, y una, y verdemental, muy corvisima, que otra flaminguas corvandil." Clark (op. cit., Vol. I, p. 88) describes "The first head of ornaments [which] has a design called, by Sahagún, quetzalmiquilli, because of the resemblance between its ornamental or red rabbit's fur, the general of which[sic] embraced in a square of dark red, has squares of white feathers. The design is also of red ornamental." From this, it would appear that ornamental is a red string, and ornamental a red thing of rabbit hide.

1:Vaillant A-8 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

585 at last a feast, liberally lubricated with pulque, took place.
[834] The bride and the groom, after this merciless treatment, retired for four days of penance and fasting, and not until that period elapsed did they consummate their marriage.

595 As is often the case in a warrior nation which suffers from 586 reduced man power, polygamy was prevalent. Yet the first wife took precedence over the others, and her children alone had the right to inherit. Concubines were permitted and there was, likewise, prostitution. Desertion was frowned upon, but a court would grant a decree of divorce under certain conditions. A man could obtain the right to cast out his wife if she were sterile, were subject to prolonged ill temper or neglected the household duty. The wife could be freed from a husband who failed to support her or educate the children or who ill-treated her in the physical sense, for the [587] Aztecs had not invented mental cruelty. A divorced woman could remarry as she chose, but a widow had to marry a brother of her deceased husband or one of his clansmen.[3]

562 Women had definite rights, but they were inferior to those of men. They could hold property, enter into contracts and go to courts to obtain justice. In matters of sexual morality
[834] girls had to be chaste and wives faithful to their husbands. A
[837] man transgressed the rules of propriety only when his illicit relations involved a married woman. Otherwise his wife could not formally demand his fidelity. While the legal position of women was relatively low, judged by modern standards in the United States, personal influence was great, and there were several instances where a woman acted as regent when her son was too young to assume the office of chief. In mat-
[648] ters of tribal alliance we have seen how the marriage of a chief's daughter or sister to another ruler cemented an alliance.

776

fire-serpent earplugs; he carried a cape of yellow paper. Likewise he had rattles and sea-shells. His shield had pieces of turquoise and mirror-stone. He carried the staff with the device for seeing.

Fourteenth Chapter, which telleth of the god named Five Flower (Macuilxochitl) and Flower Prince (Xochipilli).

Jnic matlactli vnnavi capitulo: inchpa tlamo in teutl, yn ioca: macuilxochitl, yoan xochipilli.

Equally were they worshipped as gods of the palace folk.

When people fasted, if one of us men lay with a woman, or a woman with a man, it was said: "They brought to naught their fasting through sin."

Thereupon [the god] gave them, as merited punishment, hemorrhoids, venereal sickness, boils, and piles.[72]

Therefore they would make vows to him, in order to quiet, remove, or abate the sickness.

And when his feast, which was called the Feast of the Flowers, was celebrated, first all fasted four days. Some fasted thus: they ate no chili, [and ate only] after midday, only once [a day]. Some went at midnight, and drank a gruel called "painted atoli," on which small flowers floated. [This was] "the fast of the flowers."

All who ate good things ate them only at midday. And some ate only one thing—tortillas of corn not softened by lime,[73] without chili; [this] also [they did] at midday.

On the fifth day, which was when the feast was celebrated, a man became the likeness [of the god], arrayed in [his] clothing, in which he danced; they beat the drum and sang for him.

And at midday, quail were sacrificed. All drew blood, passing straws through the tongue; and they laid as offerings in his temple, five tamales which they had made for him. These were called [bread for] fasting, [and were] very large. On them stood the flowery arrow.

Some thus offered their offering upon wooden plates, and followed it with five more small tamales with a sauce, and others [offered] two cakes made of a dough of amaranth seed and maize—one black, one red,—[instead of offerings of] rubber laid in wooden bowls.

And some [brought] toasted corn, or toasted corn mixed in honey; or S-shaped corn-cakes which were like notched staves or lightning-bolts; [or] butterfly-tortillas, tortillas of ground corn which had not been softened in lime; cakes made of a dough of amaranth seed and maize, and shaped like chinkis, arrows, swords, and dolls.

And here, to Mexico, from everywhere, were brought captives, called "tribute-captives," [from] all warlike [places]

Çan nemeuhque, ynic netetilloia tecpantzinca istruh:
yn iquac neçaujtililoia, intla aca tequjchti ipan cinacochiz, amoçe cinatl, ipan oquichechiz: mjtoaia, quintlaçulmjctia yn jneçaualiz, ic quitemacaia, tetech qujtlaliaia, qujteilhujhtiaia, qujtemaeualtiaia, in xochicuiztli, yn memeualistli, tlapalanaltiliztli, quexilinilistli, yuicpa netoloa, nenetolitiloia, ynic qujcenix, ynic quiquanix ynic quicamoaz, cuculistli.
Auh yn iquac ilhujquiztililoia, ipan xochilhujtl: achtopa navilhujtl nexochiçaualo: in cequjntin ic moçaoaia, chilcaoaia, quinnepantla tonatiuh, in tlaquaia, centlaquaia, ioalnepantla quimattiuh, tlacujlolatulli in qujia, xochicentli yn ipan ca, momochiçaoa:
muchi quiqua in velic, çan no nepantla tonatiuh quimattiuh. Auh yn aca çan quiçcaviaia, in iotlaxcalli quiquaia, atle chilli: no nepantla tonatiuh quimattiuh:
yc tlamacujlti yn jlhujquiztililoia, iquac ce tlacatl quimixipolatiaia, conmoquiaia yn jtlatqui, ipan mjtoiaia, quitlamotzonjliaia, quicujcatiaia:
yoan in ie nepantla tonatiuh, tlacotzualoia, neçoaia, tlacoquiztiloia: yoã tlamanjliloia yn jxcupan, macujlxel in quichinjliaia, tamalli: mjtoaia tlacatlaqualli, cenca vevey ipan ycatiuh xuchmjl:
yn aca quauhcaxitl ynic conmanjliaia, yoan centoquiliaia oc no macuilxel tamalepitzoca, mollocuja: yoan vntzel tzoalli yiel peujia, no cecnj quauhcaxtica, mantivia, centzel tlilticc, centzel tlatlauhqui.
Auh yn aca iuquitl, amoçe necuzquitl, amoçe xonecuilli, papalotlaxcalli, iotlaxcalli, tzocallaxcalli, tzoalchimalli, tzoalmjtl, tzoalmaquauitl, tzocalmaxtl:
yoan nenjtlan calcaualoia, in mamalti ajcan mexica, momoxoa malinquijna, yn jnquich mchinaloxoc, yn

776
776
688
753
[785
834]
776
796
[264]
[785]
776
[715]
262
796
776
796
727

cuu quauxcalchiqui—two arrow shafts or wooden dolls, projecting forward above the frontal band on the side of the temples and exhibiting the cuu xuel ("I xuel") or the cuauhchiqui (fire-drill) (see illus.). Sahagún: The Treatment of the Aztec Collection, p. 73. Thevenyssen, in the Aztec text, should probably be tlacochiqui.

72. Corresponding Spanish text reads: "heridas, con enfermedades, de las partes secretas, . . . almorranas, gabarabombas del miembro secreto, dolores, tocondiles, etc."

73. In corresponding Spanish text "pasar sabroso."

well-matured, the gray-headed, the white haired; and the old women.

Of these it was the exclusive privilege that they should drink wine.

And when they had drunk their fill, thereupon all went to their houses, dispersed and scattered.

Some went off weeping; some danced the warriors' dance; they danced the ceremonial dance; some walked weak-kneed; some went shouting.

And first the wine-makers were entertained; they rested from their office.

It was explained that for four days they should fast and abstain during their work, lest [the wine] sour.

They should look to their strict abstinence; no man might lie with a woman, nor a woman with a man.

[And] none might taste the wine, nor the syrup [from which it was made], while it was being prepared.

One might not even dip one's finger into it; one paid it reverence and treated it delicately, until the wine was tapped.[120]

And of him who secretly tasted it, who in secret drank some, even tasting only a little, it was said that his mouth would become twisted, it would stretch to one side;[121] to one side his mouth would shift; it would be drawn over.

And if one were lame in one hand, or if his arm or leg quivered, or a hand or foot became minshapen, or the foot shook, or his eyes trembled, or his lips quivered, or if one were possessed by a devil, it was said that the green mountain gods had been angered by him.

And when the day broke, thereupon took place the dispersal of the remains. At the distribution, only the relatives, the people of the household—his family, they of the same parentage, of the same womb, those of the same clan [took part].

They called it the distribution of the leftovers; then all the food and drink were consumed, used up—all finished.

And they left nothing of what still remained of the drugs in the vessel, of the wine, of watered wine,[122] of fruit wine,[123] of white wine, of sleep-producing wine.

And he who had the images made, if he had the gout, as was said above, he was thus cured. And he who was to have drowned but did not die, when he caused the images to be made thus paid his debt and thus fulfilled his vow.

And all their adornment—their paper garlands were over one shoulder [as a sign of death or of one to be slain before the gods], their staves of round thick reeds, and their flame-sticks,[124] their chaul-bundles; and the turquoise cups and their little mean bowls with calhujque, in ic quaitzaque, in ic tzoniztaque, yeuan ilamatlaca yn jlamatque: 273 782 ixhuan vel iuemac cuica, in vctli in quiaque. 755

Auh in oalaiviztic, ninan ic ic viujlos, cocomonia, ziziztinjoa:

yn aca mochaqujlitiuh, yn aca moqujchiotiuh, mjtotitiuh, momamatiuh: yn aca tetzatzilitiuh.

Auh in vctlali, achto molcaoaltilois: çan no ommca yn iaqujuh, yn jchiujl:

tlacaqujtilois, xavilhujtl maçoaia, qujnçaqujliaia yn iaqujuh, ynic amo zocoiaz:

vel mopiaia, vel motlacaoaltiaia, amo cioacochia, amo oqujchocchia, intla cioatl: [834] çan ninan aiac vel ontlapalouia yn vctli, yeuan in aocutli, ynic machiouia:

aiac iuemal iuapil, conaqujaia, vel ymacaxoa, vel mallhujlaia, yn iaqujchica, moiacaxapotlaz yn vctli.

Auh yn aquja, ichtaca tlapaloaia, yn tlachtaca yia iuemal çan tepiton ocompolo: iuh mjtouia tonnecujlivia tepantiliviia, avic momamana avic xaqujvi yn ite: 753 yeuan in aca matmicolinjia, yma qujcuecuetza, icxi quicuecuetza, macopichauj, icxicopichauj, icxicuecuechca, yhiztoouca, tuapapatlaca, tuaviviioca, iuch qujnoua: mjtoa, oqujtlaveliqua in xonuhqua tepicma.

Auh yn otlathuje, ninan ie ic apoualo: yn apoua çan ixhoua, yn iouinolque, in vel icalloc, in centlaca, cemoua, in vel icujtlaxcolloc, yn vel inecaioc: 782 592 755 motonoua apoualo, iquac ompolinja tlatlauj, in quauquijch mocuoaia, in ocl, in tlaqualli:

yeuan in oc quauquijch omocauh xaioconnjc in vctli, in aiocutli, in tlachicalvctli, in iztac vctli, in cuchvctli. [273]

Auh yn tepiquajnj, in tepicquj: intla coacivi, yn juh omjnotlacpac, ic pactic: yeuan yn aquja atlan miquinquja ynjc amo mjc: ixhoatl, ynjc tepiquj, ynjc mostlaoa, ynjc qujnehtilia yaoacol. 755 782

Auh yn jaquijch, yn jauachichiual, yn jutlaquen, yn jmomamaquen, yn jmomapil, yn jutlapetlanjlquauh, yn jmoinohoacol:

yeuan yn jachalchiuhcuiaol, yeuan yn jutlaquaia molcaxomomal, 120. Cf. Seler, op. cit., p. 19, citing marginal glos in MS Biblioteca del Palacio. Cf. also explanation in Sahagún, op. cit., Vol. I, p. 38.

121. Probably inappropriate in context. It does appear in MS Biblioteca del Palacio (Cf. Seler, loc. cit.)
122. Possibly mead.
123. See Molina (Pocholoiatl).
124. Alonso Tezozomoc, Historia de Mexicano (H. Tezozomoc-Crespo, ed.; Paris: P. Jaussen, 1853), Vol. I, p. 300, describes this as a light flammiferous stick: ". . . un ale de qu'il en avoit des flammes et des étincelles." Seler (op. cit., p. 30) calls it a lightning stick (Blitzstab).—

The fourteenth month they named Quecholli. They observed a feast to the god name Mixcoatl. And in this month they made arrows and darts for war. They slew many slaves in honor of this god.

Chapter 14
Quecholli

When they made the arrows, for a space of five days all took blood from the ears, and [with] the blood which they pressed out of them they anointed their own temples. They said that they did penances in order to go to hunt deer. From those who did not bleed themselves, they took their capes as punishment. No man lay with his wife on those days; neither did the old men nor the old women drink wine; because they did penance.

At the end of the four days during which they made the arrows and darts, they made a number of very small arrows, and bound them in four's with each [bundle of] four torches. And, a small bundle of the four torches and the four arrows being made, they offered them upon the graves of the dead. They placed also, along with the arrows and torches, two tamales. All this remained for a whole day upon the grave, and at night they burned it and performed many other ceremonies for the dead on this same feast.

On the tenth day of this month, all the Mexicans and Tlatelulcans went to those mountains which they call Çacatepec. And they say that this mountain is their mother. On the day that they arrived, they made huts or cabins of grass, and they lit fires, and nothing else did they do that day.

Next day, at dawn, all forthwith broke fast and set out for the country and formed a great wing, wherewith they surrounded many animals—deer, rabbit, and other animals—and little by little they kept coming together until they rounded up all of them. Then they attacked and hunted, each one what he could.

Al quarto decimo mes llamauan Quecholli: hazian fiesta al dios llamado Miscoatl: y en este mes hazian saetas y dardos para la guerra: matauã a honrra deste dios muchos esclauos. 411 796x [805 776]

Cap. 14
Quecholli.

1 f KL. Quando hazian las saetas por espa- f 20 796x
2 g cio de cinco dias: todos se sangrauan g 21
3 A de las orejas y la sangre que esprimjan A 22 [785]
4 b dellas: vntauanla por sus mesmas si- b 23
5 c enes. Dezian que hazian penjtencias c 24
6 d para yr a caçar venados: los que no se d 25
7 e sangrauan, tomauanles las mantas en e 26
8 f pena: njngun hombre se echaua con f 27 [834 273]
9 g su muger en estos dias, nj los viejos ni g 28
10 A viejas beujan pulcre: porque hazian A 29
11 b penjtencia. b 30
12 c c 31
13 d Acabados los quatro dias en que ha- d 1' 765
14 e zian las saetas y dardos: haziã vnas e 2
15 f saetas chiqujtas y atauanlas de quatro f 3 796x
16 g en quatro con cada quatro teas: y assi g 4
17 A hecho vn manogico de las quatro teas, A 5
18 b y de las quatro saetas, ofrecianlas so- b 6
19 c bre los sepulchros de los muertos: pon- c 7 20 d jan tambien juntamente con las saetas d 8
y teas dos tamales: estaua todo esto vn dia entero sobre la sepultura, y a la noche lo quemauan: y hazian otras muchas cerimonjas por los defũtos en esta mesma fiesta.

A los diez dias deste mes yvan todos los Mexicanos y Tlatelulcanos a aquellos montes que llaman Çacatepec: y dizen que es su madre aquel monte, el dia que llegauan hazian xacales o cabañas de heno, y hazian fuegos y njnguna otra cosa hazian aquel dia. 796x [778 342]

Otro dia en amaneciendo luego almorçauan todos, y salian al campo y hazian vna ala grande: donde cercauan muchos anjmales, ciervos, conejos, y otros anjmales y poco a poco se yvan juntando hasta acorralarlos todos: entonces arremetian y caçauan cada a qual lo que podia. 796x 224

1. Marginal numbers: Mexicanos for days.

The sixteenth month they named Atemoztli. In this month they celebrated a feast to the rain gods, because for the most part in this month it began to thunder and to threaten rain; and the priests of the Tlaloes began to do penances and to offer sacrifices, so that the rains would come.

Al mes decimo sesto llamauan Atemuztli: En este mes hazian fiesta a los Dioses de la pluuja: porque por la mayor parte en este mes, començaua a tronar y hazer demuestras de agua: y los satrapas de los Tlaloques començauan a hazer penjtencias y sacrificios porque venjesse el agua. 796[x] [805 776]

Chapter 16
Atemoztli

When it began to thunder, the priests of the Tlaloes, with great industriousness, offered copal and other fragrances to their gods and to all the statues of these. They said that then they came to give rain. And the common folk made vows to fashion the images of the mountains, which are called tepictli, because they are dedicated [to] those gods of the rain. And on the sixteenth day of this month, all the common folk prepared offerings to offer before Tlaloc. And [during] these four days they performed penances, and the men abstained from women, and the women from men.

Having come to [the time of] the feast, which they celebrated on the last day of this month, they cut lengths of paper, and they bound them to a number of poles, from bottom to top. And they set them up in the courtyards of their houses and made the images of the mountains of tzoalli. They fashioned for them their teeth of squash seeds, and their eyes of some beans which are named aiecotli. And then they offered them their offerings of food, and they worshipped them.

After having kept a vigil for them, and beaten drums and sung for them, they opened their breasts with a tzotzopaztli, which is an instrument with which the women weave, almost like a machete; and they took out their hearts and struck off their heads. And later they divided up all the body among themselves and ate it; and the ornaments with which

Cap. 16.
Atemuztli.

1 d KL. d 29[1]
2 e Quando començaua a tronar: los e 30 [314]
3 f satrapas de los Tlaloques con gran f 1[2]
4 g diligencia offrecian copal y otros per- g 2
5 A fumes a sus dioses, y a todas las estatuas A 3
6 b dellos: dezian que entonce venjan para b 4
7 c dar agua: y los populares hazian votos c 5
8 d de hazer las ymagines de los montes d 6
9 e que se llaman Tepictli: porq̃ son dedi- e 7
10 f cadas aquellos dioses del agua. Y a los f 8
11 g dezisseis dias deste mes, todos los popu- g 9 [834]
12 A lares aparejauan offrendas para offre- A 10
13 b cer a Tlaloc: y estos quatro dias hazian b 11
14 c penjtẽcia, y abstenjanse los hombres c 12
15 d de las mugeres, y las mugeres de los d 13
16 e hombres. e 14
17 f Llegados a la fiesta que la celebrauan f 15 [778]
18 g el vltimo dia deste mes: cortauan tiras g 16 [289]
19 A de papel, y stauanlas a vnos barales A 17
20 b desde abaxo hasta arriba: y hincauan- b 18[3]
los en los patios de sus casas y hazian las ymagines de los montes de tzoal: hazianles los diẽtes de pepitas de calabaça, y los ojos de vnos frisoles que se llaman aiecotli: y luego los ofrecian sus offrendas de comjda y los adorauan. [324]

Despues de auerlos velado y tañido y cãtado: abrianlos por los pechos, con vn tzotzopaztli: que es instrumento con que texen las mugeres, casi a manera de machete: y sacauanles el coraçon, y cortauãles las cabeças: y despues repartian todo el cuerpo entre si, [413 286]

1. Marginal notation: [illegible]
2. Marginal notation: [illegible] folio 9v.
3. Marginal notation: Diez[illegible] de dias [illegible].

a band] from ear to ear, which was called "black sweat," and they also applied pyrites [to it]. And some extended a black [stripe], called "a plaster of rubber," to their faces, and also it was sprinkled with pyrites.

And thus was their hair shorn: All were shorn like young warriors; together, all were shorn alike in the manner of young warriors. And those who had their temples closely cropped, were well shaven down, well scraped clean with a sharp piece of turtle shell. And they applied yellow ochre to their [remaining] hair; they colored it the color of maize flowers.

And thereupon, when they danced, they carried before them torches, pine fire brands, which flamed with much crackling and hissing. And as they carried them, the leaders of the youths [went] squatting because of the burden, as if running with thighs bent. And the resin, as it were, fell in large drops, and the live coals scattered and fell one by one. And the [charred] pine wood fell bit by bit to the ground.

And along the sides the lighting was only from fire ladles held in the hand. They who gave light were youths who had fasted twenty days. They were spread out in a circle, ranged on the sides. On one side were those of Tenochtitlan, and on the other side were those of Tlatilulco.

And they did not dance; they did only one thing —they only provided light. And they were on guard and kept close watch on people; their office was to be attentive that none might dishonor a woman; that none might look upon a woman, lest one might jest [with a woman].

If anyone was seen even only intending it, or trying it, maybe later—next day or two days hence—they punished him. They beat him with flaming pine boughs.[6] Verily, they left him for dead.

And when all were dancing, sometimes Moctezuma emerged and came forth to dance, and sometimes he came not forth. Only if he wished he did so.

And that they might go in line when they danced, they held one another by the hand or about the waist.

And some they grasped by the hand; all grasped hands. And thus they kept on with their feet, that they might take the dance steps all together with their feet. And they whirled about repeatedly; and they passed by the braziers, proceeding among [them]. They went back and forth among the rows of braziers. When they had reached the end [of the no ca petzujaia, auh in cequjntin imixtlan caana tlilli: itoca aujtolli no ca petzuja. 796x 302

Auh ynic moximaia, muchintin motiachcauhximaia, cenuetzia in motiachcauhximaia: yoan yn incanaoacan qujconaloaia, vel qujcoconaloaia, vel caiochiquja: yoã qujtecoçãnujaia, qujtomjiolhujaia. [714]

Auh in ie iuhquj yn iquac ie mjtotia, tlepilli, ocopilli, qujniacana tlatlatiuh, cuecuetlacatiuh, cocomocatiuh: auh in qujnapalos telpuchtequjoaque cenca eticiuj, iuhqujn tzitzintlacça: auh yn ocotzotl, iuhqujn chachapaca, yoan in tlexochtli tetepeuhtiuh, cecenmantiuh: yoan in ocotl calichachaiaca. [373] [516]

Auh in tlatenco, çan matlematica in tlaujlo: iehoantin in tlaviaia telpopuchti, in mocempoalçauhque, tlaiaoalotimãca, ixtlapantimanj: cectlapal manj in tenochca, no cectlapal manj, in tlatilulca. [785]

Auh amo mjtotia, çan qujxcaujaia, çan ixqujch tetlaujliaia: yoan tlapicia, vel teixpicia, vel ymix intequjuh catca, ynic aiac ytla vncan qujmotequjtiz, ynic aiac vncan teixtlaxiliz, yn açaca vncan vetzcatiuh: [834]

intla aca oittoc, çan oc conjxxotia, coniximati, açoquja jmoztlaioc, anoço qujn iviptlaioc, in qujtlatzacuiltia, qujujujtequj ocoquauhtica, tlàtlatlatiuh, ca micquj in qujçaoa. [684]

Auh yn iquac netotilo, in Motecuçoma, in quenmanjan, oalqujçaia, oalmjtotiaia: auh in quenmanjan amo oalqujçaia, çan yiollo tlamatia: 796x 535 auh ynic tezpantiuj, in mitotia, monaoa, mocujtlanaua.

Auh in cequjntin, inmatitech maana, nematitech neaano: auh ynic qujiauhtiuj, yn imicxi, ynic tlayiaoa, çan cenizuh yn imicxi: yoan ontzitzinqujça, itlan qujqujztiuj in tlaujltetl, itzalan quiquiztiuj, itic cacalactiuj, yn ixqujpantli tlaujltetl: yn oocito yn

6. See Plate 28.

who did not draw his blood, they stripped him, nevermore restoring his cape to him. The overseers took it from him for good.

And when the arrows were being formed, no [man] lay with a woman. And the old men drank no wine; they became not drunk; they abstained and left the wine alone.

And when arrows were made, they brought out their measure; all were made of equal length. And the arrow-points were of equal length. None were larger than others; nothing was joined to them.

Thereupon, [when] the reed [shafts] were cut, they went to put them into the hands of those who fitted and put on the arrow-points. Securely they tied the [ends of] the reeds, binding them well with maguey fibres, so that the arrow shafts would not split back. They set [the points] in glue,[2] so that they were held fast, so that they were well embedded.

And when they had [thus] prepared them, then they applied pine pitch to the heads and the ends. This was done quite quickly.

And when they were finished, thereupon they were bound together; they tied them in [bundles of] twenty. And when they were assembled, then everyone was arranged in rows, all ordered in line, in procession, to leave [the bundles] there at the foot of [the Temple of] Uitzilopochtli. There they heaped [the bundles] together. And when they had come to make [this] offering, then all departed [to their homes].

And the fourth day was called "Arrows are made for the homes." All men made arrows in their homes. Thus all passed the time; thus all tried [their skill] and practised, having set up, at a distance, [the leaf of a] maguey plant, which they shot with arrows. Hence were apparent those who were good marksmen, the able bowmen, those who could well wield the bow.

And upon the fifth day, one was concerned only with the dead. For them they made small arrows, each one measuring a hand's length, and put upon them only a little resin. And their points were only sticks. They bound four arrows and four pine torches with loose cotton thread, and laid them where the dead lay buried. And they placed [there] two sweet tamales. There [they remained] all day. And at sundown thereupon burned them for [the dead] in the same place. There they set them on fire.

in amo mjço quijpepetlaoaia, aocmo qujmaca in jtilma, iccen qujtquijlia in tepãmanj. 796x

Auh in jquac tlacatia mjtl, aiac cioacochia: auh in vevetque, amo quja in vetli, amo tlaoanaia, motlacaoaltiaia, qujmocaoaltiaia in vetli. [785] 688 [334] 273

Auh in muchioaia mjtl, oalqujça itamachiuhca, çan muchixqujch, in muchioaia: auh in tlaxichtli, çã mũchixqujch, atle chicoviac, atle tlapatiliaia:

njmã ie ic tlateco in acatl, innũc qujoallaztivi, in tlatlaxichaquja in qujtlaxichaquja, vel qujchtecuja in acatl, vel ichtica qujtetecuja, injc amo cujtlazzaianjx in tlaxichtli: tzacupã in cõquetza, injc vel tilinjx, injc vel tzitzicaz. 796x 411 [283] [381]

Auh in ocõcencauhque: njmã ie ic cocotzovia, in jquac, yoan itzintlan, çan iciuhcã muchioa. [314]

Auh in oiecauh, njmã ie ic tlacujtlalpilo, cecempoalli in mocujtlalpia: auh in otlacenqujx, njmã ie ic onnetecpanalo, onnevipanolo, oncempantioa in mocaoaz in vmpa icxitlan Vitzilobuchtli, vncan concentecpichoa: auh in õmomamanato, njmã ic viviloa.

Auh injc navilhujtl, mjtoaia, calpãnemjtilo, ixqujch tlacatl momjtiaia intechachan, çan iuhquj injc neaviltilo, tel ic neiciecoloia, ic nemamachtiloia: ce veca qujoalquetzaia metl, qujmjmjna, vncan neci in aqujque vel qujmaizvi, in vel momaizmati, in vellamjna. 796x 526

Auh injc macujlilhujtl, ça mjacaviaia in mjmjcque, qujnchichiviliaia, mjtotonti, çepemjxtitl, no achitoton ic conococotzovia: auh in jtlaxichio, çan tlacotl: navi mjtl, no navi ocotl, concujtlalpia ica potonquj, impã contetema, in vncan toctinque, mjmjque: yoan onterl tzapelic tamalli, contetema, vncan cemjlhujcia: auh in ic oncalaq:j conatiuh, njman ie ic qujetlatlaulia, in çan ie no vncan: vncan contlecavia: 796x 765

2. Cf. Sahagún (Bulmarda ed.), Vol. III, pp. 241, 246.

X 796 would carry the banners, and the women who would wash their faces. [The dance] ceased when conch shells were blown [at midnight].

X 796 536 And hence was it named the serpent dance: they took one another's hands, while ranged in a line; with their hands they grasped circlets of grass, or reeds, or cord made into jar rests. The victims went trotting among [the others]; there was much running; they leapt, hurrying as if in haste, as if breathless. There was circling about, with no song, without singing.

And the old men of the tribal temple beat drums for them; and only they sang. Some looked on, marveling at [the dance]. And much was their fasting admired and respected. All abstained, even more so [834] the owners of the victims. No [man] might lie with a woman, nor a woman with a man.

And when they had danced the serpent dance, then they dispersed.

X 796 And when it dawned, on the twentieth day, when [it was] verily the feast day, thereupon the bathed slaves went to [their owners'] houses, taking their [386] leave. They carried with them black stain, [or] perchance blue mineral earth, or red ochre. And as

[533] leave was thus taken in [the owners'] houses, they went singing, as if their voices would crack, as if they were hoarse. When they reached the houses of those who had bathed [them], then they dipped [386] their hands into the blue stain, or the black stain, or the red ochre. Thereupon they laid their hands upon the posts and upon the door lintels, wherever they came out of the homes of those who had ceremonially bathed [them].

And when they had proceeded to the several places where their relatives were, then they again went to [their owners'] homes; these in vain offered them food. Some yet would eat; and some could not now eat.

And when this was done, gifts awaited them, spread out. Cloaks were ready [for them], breech clouts, shifts, skirts. And when the gifts were laid out, thereupon the victims took their banners upon their backs, arraying themselves of their own free will. And the women likewise, in the same way, put upon their backs their baskets with all their womanly adornment. Thereupon they arose to carry in their arms the gifts made them; before the door, in the street, they arranged themselves in procession. And the bathed ones thereupon entered the interior of the que, yoan in teixamjque cioa: in mocnoa iquac in tlatlapitzalo.

Auh injc motemeoa connecujlolo, maana, motetepana: injc maana iaoalli, aço toli, anoço mecatl in qujiaoallalia: in tlaaltilti intlan nactivi, cenca motlatlalos, chichitonj, vivicinj, iuhqujn tlaixtotochca, iuhqujn tlacica: moiaiaoalos, amo cujca, amo ma cujca.

Auh in calpulveveique, qujotlatzotzenjlia: auh çanjoque in cujca: cequjntin tlatlatra, tlatlamaviçoa: auh cenca tlamavizztililosa, cenca qujmavizztiliaia in neçaoalistli: vel ixqujch tlacatl, mocnitzqujaia: oc cenca iehoantin, in tealtique: aiac cioacochia, auh in cioa, ano ac oqujchcochia.

Auh in onnecocololoc, njmã ie ic tlazitinj.

Auh in otlatvic, in vncan tlacempoalti, in ie vel iquac ilhujtl: njman ie ic vi in tlaaltilti, mocacalnaoatizque: qujnpatilia tlilli, açi tezotli, anoço tlavitl: auh in jquac ie vi mocacalnaoatizque, cujcativi, iuhqujn no in tozqujtzatzaianj, omach içaoacaque: in onacique inchan tealtique, njmã conaquja in imma tezoitlan, anoço tlilitlan, anoço tlauhtitlan: njman ie ic commamaña tlaquetzaltitech, yoã tlaizquatl itech, izquicã quiça in inchachan tealtique.

Auh in jnquican onquizque, in inoaniolcaoacan: njmã ie ic no ceppa vi in inchachã, in nen qujotlamaca; in cequjntin oc ontlaqua; auh in cequjntin aocmo tlaqua.

Auh in jquac in, ie ic onoc in tetlauhtilli, ic qujchixtoc in tilmatli, in maxtlad, in vipilli, in cueitl: auh in onotetecac, tetlauhtilli; njmã ie ic mochichioa in tlaaltilti commomamaltia in impã, çan monomavia in muchichioa: auh in cioa çan no innoma in cõmomamaltia, intana, in jnquich inciotlatqui: njmã ie ic moquetza in tlanapalos, in qujnpalos tetlauhtilli, qujiaoac, vtlica oalmotecpana: auh in tlaaltilti, njman ie ic calaquj in cioapan, qujoalioalos in tlecujlli: mec oalquiça, mec ommoiacatia

Thirty-fifth Chapter, which telleth of the feasts and the ceremonies which they observed in the days of the sixteenth month, which was called Atemoztli.

The sixteenth feast was called "The Falling of the Water."[1]

As for naming it "The Falling of the Water," it was when for the first time threatened, rumbled, and thundered the rains. All the common folk said, "Water cometh down"; or, "The Tlaloca descend."

And when this happened, the fire priest at the Temple of Tlaloc went [about his tasks] very soberly, devoutly, in faith and hope that in its time the rain would threaten.

And when the rain threatened, then he forthwith arose and took up his incense ladle, the stem of which was long and rounded, and it rattled. The incense ladle ended [in the form of] a serpent. And the head of the serpent also rattled; it also [was] hollow.

Then he speedily fanned the coals into a flame. Then he swiftly filled it with incense, doing only this. Then he offered incense, raising the ladle as an offering to the four directions, rattling [the ladle] greatly, to and fro. Then he went to all the courtyards of the temples, offering and burning incense everywhere. Thus he besought and called upon the Tlaloca. Thus he prayed for rain.

And a number of the common folk made vows that they would make figures of the mountain [gods].[2] And five days [before the feast], they arranged and bought paper, and liquid rubber, and obsidian knives, and they bought maguey fiber.

They paid great honors [to the mountain gods], and did penances that they might make the figures and cover them [with paper]. No soap was used in bathing; only their necks did they wash.[3] Neither might [a man] lie with a woman, nor a woman with a man.

And until dawn of the day of the feast, when the twenty days of Atemoztli were completed, all the

Inic cempoalli on cuatolli capitulo: itechpa tlatoa in jlhujtl, yoan in tlamavizztililizzli, in qujchioaia in jpan ic cemjlhujtl ic cuatolteti occe metztli in motenena Atemuztli. 796X

Injc cuatolteti, oce ilhujtl ichoatl in motenena Atemuztli:

injc motenena Atemuztli, ca iquac iancujcan oalanj, ooalaca, titicujca in qujavitl: qujtoaia in jaqujch macoualli, atemo, anoço temo in tlaloque.

Auh in jquac y, in tlalocan tlenamacac, cenca tlacuztica, tlateumattica, machizcaca, motemachitica: in quemmã oalanjx qujavitl:

auh in ooalan qujavitl, njmã ic moquetztiquiça, qujcujtivetzi in jtlema, vel huijtlatztic, çan pitzaton in jquauhio, cacalaca in tlemaitl, coatl ipan quiça: auh in jxaoteoon coatl no cacalaca, no iollo: [445]

njmã quixopilotivetzi in tlexochtli, in tletl njman contentivetzi in jiauhtli, ça mjxcavia: mec tlenamaca, nauhcampa in conjaoa, cenca cacalaca, ixaoaca, ichaiaca: mec iauh novian nemj, novian quiça in teujtoaloo, novian tlenamaca, novian tlatotonja, ic tlatemachia, ic qujnotza in tlaloque, ic qujauhtlatlanj. [823]

Auh in cequjntin macoualti, monetoltiaia injc tepiquiçque: auh macujltica in amatemaia, in amacoaia, yoan olli, yoa iztli, yoan ichtli in qujcoaia: [314 269]

cenca qujmavizztiliaia, yoan qujneçaviliaia injc tepiquiçque, yoã tequentiaque: amo mamoviaia injc malitiaia, çan moquechaltiaia, amono cioacochia: auh in cioatl amono equjchocchia. [515 834]

Auh in ic iuh oallacvi ilhujtl, in jquac tlacempoaltiti Atemuztli, iuh cuiaul in nemoa, vel neixpeloloa, in

1. "Dejada de el agua," according to Tezozomoc (op. cit., p. 299), "porque este mes nada llueve, y vienen algunas aguas." Gualipa, (op. cit., p. 319) has the same.
Concerning the term Atemoztli, Thomas refers to frequent, extraordinary deluges in the region, attributed to Tlaloc.—Kupfer and Gibson, op. cit., p. 32.
2. The Pedrido MS (Kupfer, loc. cit.) places this in the lunaria of the cielo: "Se consultaban la Adivinos astrologos"—"se cada uno de los cinco se hacian los dioses cerros (Tlamacazque)."
3. Cf. corresponding Spanish text.

the feast was to be celebrated. And only when the feast day came was there fasting.

And thus was the fasting: [thus] did they abstain from food: some ate at midday, [fasting] until past midnight; and some, when they ate at midnight, thereupon went past midday [fasting]. Thus they proceeded mortifying themselves.

And they fasted for the space of five nights—not by day but by night. And every time night fell, then they went within [the calpulli]. And when day broke, they went forth and performed their tasks.

Daily they thus did, until they had spent five days. And not then did they lie with women.

çan ilhujtl: auh çan ypan in jlhujtl quiçaz moçaoaia:

auh injc mocaoaia, tlaqualizcaoaia: cequintin tlaquaia nepantla tonatiuh, izquichica onaci iocalnepantla: auh in cequintin yquac tlaquaia in iocalnepantla, no yquac onaci in nepantla tonatiuh: çan iuh mopatlaciuh.

Auh in moçaoaia macujliooal, amo cenjlhujtl, çan iocan: auh in jquac ie iona, njman calaquj: auh in ozlathujc, vàlquiçaia, tlatequipanoaia:

mumuztlae iuh quichioaia, injc onaci macujlilhujtl: yoan ayocmo cioacochia.

[796] space], once more they circled back and returned [whence they had started].

[535] And when it all ceased, already it was late at night, already time for all to sleep, as when one nodderth;

[512] today [that would be] at about the ninth hour.

[531] And when all had stopped, when the ground drum was undone, then all dispersed, all went, all betook themselves to their homes. The great noblemen, [373] when it was done, were accompanied by torches; they went lighted by torches, carried for them, to their homes.

And the women who had danced then were assembled, after there had been the song and dance, and they led them off. Even so was done with the leaders of the youths. They gathered [the women] together, grouped them, rounded them up, placed them together, assembled them, hunted them out,—lest they might go off somewhere, lest someone might accompany them, lest some debauched youth might go with [one of them].

[565] None the less, the noblemen addressed the matrons, that they might go and release some [of the women] or go and leave [one]. Not of their free will did [the women] go elsewhere; it was done on persuasion.

[431] And when they released them, [the girls] were given presents. Gifts were given, and food was given. And likewise, favors were offered the leaders of the women, the matrons. They kept for themselves and carried that which they saved to their homes.

[796] And the young warriors, the young warriors who [836] had distinguished themselves, who were worthy of [684] honors, made their plea for the women only in secret, not before others; perchance in his home [such an one] awaited her, perchance elsewhere he called her. Just so, they are privily.

[548] And the woman came forth only at night and spent only the night [with him]; she departed when it was well into the night.

And if one was noted living in concubinage, thus he aroused anger; thus he gave offense. For this all assembled and held council there in the song-house.

Here, before everyone, they punished him. Because of [his crime] they cut off his warrior's hair dress; they took from him all his belongings—his [831] adornment, his lip plug. Thereafter, they beat him sorely with a pine stick, verily causing him to swoon; they singed his head with fire; smoke rose, and blisters formed on his body.

And when they had indeed caused him to swoon, then they cast him forth.

vmpa tlamac, oc ocpa momalacachoa, in cujtlauje, calmocuepa.

Auh in necacaloa, ie tlaquauhioua, ie netetequipan: yn iuh mixtlaxilia axcan aço ie chicuauj ora.

Auh in ie ixquich, yn onecacaoloc, yn ompet vetetl, mec cecenmanoa, viujlioa, yn izquichtin viuj yn inchachan: in vecci pipilti, onca cacalo, tlavilpan, tlaujlikotiuj, qujetlatlaujlitiuj yn inchan.

Auh yn cioa yn otenacaque, njman mocentlalia, in ie oncujcoianoloc, in qujiacana, yn iuhq' yn tiachcaoan muchioa, qujnnechicoa, qujntecpichoa, qujnololoa, qujncenquijxtia, qujcentecpichoa, vel qujnixpepena, yn ma aca canapa ia, yn ma aca moteujcalti, in ma aca telpuchtlauelilloc qujujca:

tel in pipilti, qujmonilhujaia in cioa tlaiacanque, ynic cequjntin qujncaoatiuj, tecaoatiuj: amo çan moiocoiaia yn canapa via, tetencopa muchioaia.

Auh yn ontecaoaia, vmpa motlauhtiaia, vmpa tlauhtiloa, yoã vmpa tlamacoia: auh no tlatlauhtiloia, in cioatiachcaoan, in cioatiacanque, motlacauja, motlatlacauja, quitquj yn inchachan innetlacaujl.

Auh in teachcaoan, inteachcauh, tlaiacatia, in mauiztililonj, çan ichtaca in qujnnaoatia cioa, amo teixpan, aço ichan in qujchietiuh, anoço canapa in qujnaoatia: çan iuhquj, yn ichtacaquaia.

Auh in cioatl, çan oalioualquiça, çan moiocalpoloa, oc ueca ioan in qujça:

auh intla aca itoa, in momecatitinemj, ic tlaqualanjaia, ic tlaiolitlacoaia, ica necentlalilo, yca nenonotzalo, in vncan cujcacali:

vncan teixpan qujtlatzacujltia, ic qujnxnocoltequj, muchi qujcujlia in izquich ytlatequj, yn inechichioal, yn itempilol: çatepan qujujujtequj, ocoquauhtica, vel qujhiiocaoaltia, qujquatlechichinoa, tlêtlecaloa, huaquaqualaca, yn inacaio.

Auh yn ouelqujhijocaoaltique, yca oalmaiauj:

They said unto him:

"Go, my friend! Though thou art a brave man, a warrior, how may we care about thee? Wherever our foes come rising against us, may we die as brave men!"

And these were the words which they said unto him; and much else besides.

And thereafter, when they had cast him out, he slowly crept away, going backwards and on all fours, lamenting as he went. Thus he went off, nevermore to sing and dance with the others.

And the matrons cast out the woman. Nevermore would she take up the song and dance with the others. Nevermore would she clasp hands with the others [in dance]. Thus they dismissed her; the leaders of the maidens cast her out forever.

And the woman who had sinned evermore went alone. Never might she hope once again to sing and to dance with the others.

And the one whom they had punished because of the woman, then married her, and quieted the affair with her.

And before the real feast came which they called Uei tecuilhuitl, on the tenth day, when the woman [who was the likeness of] Xilonen died, her face was painted in two colors. Thus she was stained yellow about her lips, and her forehead chili-red. From her paper cap,[7] which had four corners, hung quetzal feathers in the form of maize tassels; and [she wore] a wide neck band. Her neck piece consisted of many strings of turquoise. She wore a golden disc, as breast ornament. Her shirt and skirt had the water lily [flower and leaf design]. She wore princely sandals, carmine-colored sandals. Her shield and her rattle stick were chili-red. In the four directions she entered, or went down into, the sand.[7]

For this reason was it said, "She goeth into the sand": in this way she foretold her death—that on the morrow she would die.

She began the feast day when she entered Tetamaçolco. The second place where we went to arrive, we reached [to accomplish the ceremony], and it was a place named Necoquiaxcan. The third place in which she entered [the sand] was Atzochicalcan, and for this reason was it called Atzochicalcan—that here gushed forth the water, and also here faded away the

qujlhuja,

Xiuuh nocne aço toquichtli, açɔ tlaiacauh, quen tiniitocujtlauja: çaçocan techquetzaquijuh in teiaoua, maça tequjch miqujcti:

yoan in tlaolli qujlhujaia, vel oc mjac.

Auh yno ica oalmaiauhque, çɔ iaiatiuh, chichicoeatiuh, çɔ zonauhtiuh, tlentiuh, ic centlatlaiacauja, aoqujc teoan cujcoanoc.

Auh in cioatl çan qujotoca, in cioatetiachcauh: aoqujc no teoá cujcoanoc, aoqujc no teoanoc, ic qujcennaoatja, qujcennacaoa, yn ichpuchtlaiacanquj.

Auh in cioatl yn otlatlaco, iccennaian tlatlalcauja, aoq'c ceppa moteznachia, yn oc ceppa teoan cujcoanoc.

Auh in ichoatl yn otlatacujtiloc, yn ipampa cioatl, njman ic qujmocioaoatia, qujiaocujlia.

Auh yn siamo aci in iquac ie uel illujtl, yn motenoua vei tecujlhujtl, yn iquac tlamatlacti, iquac miquja, in xilonen cioatl, michchictlapan, ynic michiuh yn itico cozic, auh yn iequac chichiltic: yiamacal nauhcampa nacace, quetzalmjiaoio, concapetlatl: yn iconqui chalchiujtl miecpanti, teucujlacoualli yn ipan mantiuh, yiaxochiavipil yoan yaxochiacae yhiacac, ynochpalcac: yn ichimal yoá yn ichicaoac chichiltic, nauhcampa yn aquja anoço xalaquja:

ynic mjtoa xalaquj, ic qujmachiltia yn jnjquin, in miquin mantia:

in cemilhujtl compouhtia yn aquj, tetamaçolco, ynic vecan vacan in tacicocan, tacito: yoan iccaiocan necoquiaxcan: yajc ecan vacan yn aquja, yn atzochicalcan, ynic motemoua atzochicalcan, ca vacan, oalchoboaia yn atl, yoan no vacan oalpopolinjaia yn

796x
684
836

796x
[302]
301

[292
293]

796x

796x
805

7. Standing the sand was evidently a ceremony literally enacted, and logical in view of the attributes of the deities whose festivities were honored by it. The explanation in Seler-Sahagún's Spanish text and the Aztec columns is not explicit. The four places in which Xilonen entered the sand may be identified in modern Mexico City and are associated with water and sand. Aquja is probably an assimilation of atoquja.—Angel Maria Garibay, personal communication.

874

until the half division of the night passed, until after midnight.

And in those times they covered themselves with nothing else. All thus danced, wrapped only in netted capes. They went about nearly naked.

When the singing ended, then all dispersed. Next day [was] the same, and the next day the same. They went together to their city quarters; they all went to sleep in their sleeping quarters, in this young men's house.

And the more valiant men, who already were wise in the ways of the flesh, always slept with their paramours.

mijnoia, inqujchica yn oqnin iocalli xelini, yn oonqnin iocalnopantla. [535]

auh nijman niac tle quimokloonia, in ixqujch ic netetilo, çanyio in nenokolo chalcaiotl, haçan nel ishqui petlaxhtinenca, [592] yn oqnin cuicatl, nijman cecemanoa, niurtla yni, nnurtla yni, in centlaxilacalti, mòquiniui vmpa denchi in jacochia, injn telpuchcali.

auh in ie vel oquichtin in ie quiximati tlaltiepaiotl, vmpa onocochi in jnnecaoa. [836]

[p. 56 is blank]

4: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1952 NU7 Aztec NU7

874
273
689

Sixth Chapter, in which are related the punishments and penances with which they chastised any youth when he drank wine.

They who were reared in the young men's house took full charge of the sweeping. None then drank wine.

And when already [they were] men, when already they had matured, he who drank wine hid himself well. He concealed himself well, and did not then drink before others; quite secretly and not much did he drink.

And if any youth were seen to drink wine, if it were noted that he was found with wine, [that] perchance he lay fallen, or sang,[1] or [that] somewhere he was seen drunk with others, then because of this [the people] were gathered and rounded up.

And because of this, fear fell [upon all of them]. If he was only a commoner or someone of no importance, he was beaten before the others. He fell under wooden [staves]; he died under wooden [staves].[2] Or he was made to suffer the rope.

And if he was a nobleman's son, they strangled him secretly.

874
836

And these youths had their paramours by twos or threes. Perchance one indeed was in her own house; perchance a number lived in various places. And when, they said, the estate of youth was ended, [the youth] paid something that he might leave the [other] youths. Large capes he left [for them]—perhaps ten or twenty, if he was rich.

874
[582]

When the masters of the youths had consented,[3] when they had given the youths leave to go, then (it is said) one was of marriageable age. He took only one woman, whom he kept at his house.

And when a youth was mature, not merely of his own will did he depart the estate of youth. He grew old where the youths were. And if he willed, the chief gave him leave [to go].

And not very often from the youths' place [came], perchance, lords; only chiefs, commanding generals, and generals[4] were taken thence. Lords and mar-

Injc. 6. capítulo: vncan moteneoa in tetlazacuiltilizti, in tetlamaceoaltilizti, ynjc qujntlazacuiltiaia, in iquac aca telpuchtli tlaoanaia.

Injc nezcaltiloia telpuchcali, cẽca necujtlavilo, in nochpanoaztli, njman ainc quja in vetli.

auh in ie vel oqujchti, i ie chicaoaque, cenca vel motlatiaia in quja vetli, cenca motlatiaia, çan nj.nan amo teispan in quja, vel ichtaca amo no quexq'ch in quja, auh intla itoia haca telpuchtli tlaoana, in itto in at vetlica namjco, anoço vetztoc anoço quica, anoço cana teoan tlaoantica itto, njman ica necentlaliło, ica neneschicolo:

auh ica mavizti vetzi, intla çan maceoalli, anoço ça can aquin, teizpan viviteco, quauhtica vetzi, quauhtica miquj, anoço mecatl quiiecultia.

auh intla tlaçupilli ichtaca qujmecanja:

auh inique y, telpupuchti ohome, iccy in jnmezaoan oncatca, aço ce vel ichã in ca, aço quezqujntin chaiaoaque. auh in iquac quilhuja motelpuchtlali, tlaztlaoa injc qujntlalcavia in telpupuchti quachtli, quicaoa aço matlactli, aço cemipilli in mocuihtonoa, yn oaxque in tachcaoan in oquimacauhque njmã (mitoa) tlapaliuhcati, ça çe cihuatl conana in ichan qujpia.

auh in moxcalia telpuchtli, amo çan moiocoia, in quicaoa telpuchiotl, cenca ficã veveti in telpuchpan; auh yiolhotlama in tlatoanj, qujnaoatia, auh amo cenca mjocpa in telpuchpan anoço in tecuti, çã tlatlacaçoeca, tlatlacochcalca, achcacauhti yn

1. Quizá: probablemente cuando la mamaba. Sahagún, en Biblioteca Enciclopedia, p. 345, representaba dos Nahuatlajos aquí propuestos—"una filled with filth."
2. Sahagún, op. cit., p. 346, n. 1, says of quauhtica vetzi: quauhtica miquj: "Parecido como quauhtica vetzi, quauhtica miquj—Ahorcado, I ahorcado?"
3. Compare reference to the Real Palacio 383 suggests that this should read quiiecultia.
4. See Chapter V, sec. 3, 4.

874 793 into the forest, or on the desert, or into the water. A younger one, or whosoever wished, went perhaps half a league to place the spines. [The penitent] bore his shell trumpet and went blowing [it] where he placed the thorns. Wherever he came to be, he went blowing a trumpet.

[673] Sixth: When the priests slept, no two lay [together]. All lay quite separate. None were covered together.

[252] Seventh: The food they prepared for themselves, together; for it was their own food which they ate. And if anyone returned with food from his house, he ate it not alone.

Eighth: At midnight, when, as was said, night divided in half, everyone arose and prayed. If anyone failed to do so because he slept, if he did not awake, then, for this, all gathered together and drew blood from his ears, or his breast, or his thighs, or the calves of his legs. Because of this, fear verily fell [upon the people].

[273] 836 688 Ninth: None then were proud; none then were unruly. All lived well ordered [lives]. If at times it appeared that one perhaps drank wine, or was given to women, or committed a great [fault], then they went to apprehend him. No mercy was shown. He was burned, or strangled, or cast into the fire alive or shot with arrows. And if he sinned only lightly, they drew blood from his ears, his flanks, or his thighs with magney spines or with a [sharpened] bone.

Tenth: The small boys were so raised that if they did nothing of great evil, they then drew blood from their ears, or switched them with nettles.

Eleventh: At midnight the principal [priests] went down into the water and bathed there in the water.

[785] Twelfth: When it was a time of fasting, everyone observed it. Verily, [only] at the moment when midday arrived did indeed all eat—even the small boys. And when it was the fast which they name Atamalqualo, then they ate but sparingly.[2a] Some ate [only] at midnight and yet again went to eat at midnight; some ate at noon, and yet again went to eat at noon. No chili, no salt did they eat; neither, that they might sleep, [did they] even [drink] water. They said that the fast was broken if they ate or drank even a little.

Thirteenth: Very carefully were they taught good discourse. If one spoke not well, if one greeted others vitztlalia, itecciz ietiuh, tlapiztiuh, in canj yn evitztlahuia, yn oacito vmpa oallapiztiuh.

Jnjc. 6. ynjc cochia tlamacazque, aiac vme temj, çan muchintin, mixcavitoque, aiac monepan tlaquentia.

Jnjc. 7. çan mocenchioaia in tlaqualli, in quiquaia, ca oncatca in jnneuhia, in quiquaia. auh intla haca conmacaia ical itlaqual amo yioca conqua.

Jnjc. 8. in iocalnepantla in iquac mjtoa iocalli zellivi, muchi tlacatl meoaia tlatlatlaubtiaia, yn aquin tlacochcaoa, yn amo hiça njman ica necentlalilo, quiçoçoia ynacaztitech, yielpan, ymetzpan, itlanitzco vel ica maviztli vetzi.

Jnjc. 9. çã njmã aiac tlacuecuenoviaia, ça njman aiac mocuecuetzoaia, vellatecpanpa yn nemoaia, intla ça nen quenman necia aço vetli qui, aço cioanotza, in anoço itla vej quichioa, njman quitzacutivia, amo tlaoculiloia, tlecujlolo, anoço mecanilo, anoço tlecujlolo ioioltoc, anoço mimino, yn çan tepiton quitlacoa quiçoço yn inacazco, in jiomotla in imetzpa, vitztica, anoço omitica.

Jnjc. 10. in pipiltotonti ic ospaoallo, çan njman atle vel conitlacoa, njman quinçoço in inacazco, anoço quintzitzicazvia.

Jnjc. ii. in iocalnepãtla apantemoia in ic tachcaoa, atlã õmaltiaia.

Jnjc. 12. yn iquac oncatca neçaoaliztli, vel muchintin quipiaia, vel iquac yn oacic nepantla tonatiuh tlaquaia vel muchintin in pipiltotonti. auh in iquac oncatca neçaoaliztli in quilhuja atamalqualo, njman amo tlapaloa, cequjntin iocalnepãtla in tlaquaia, oc no iocalnepãtla in tlaquatiuh cequjntin nepantla tonatiuh in tlaqua, oc no muztla nepantla tonatiuh in tlaquatiuh, atle chilli atle iztatl quiquaia, ano tle ic cochi in manel atl, quitoa nomeçaoalhujltequi intla itlaton cõqua, conj.

Jnjc. 13. oenca vel nemachtiloia in qualli tlatolli,

2a. "Tlapaloa, sc. comiere el pan casi partido, quitado cosmos" (Molina, op. cit.).

-64-

16:Bandelier E-4 (no date)1880 NU7 Aztec NU7

procuresses were severely punished, though not with loss of 689 life.[126]

While clandestine relations between young men and girls were [836] known to exist and, if not sanctioned, still were not punished,[127] 684 it was different if a married man attempted to seduce a maiden who was not an outcast. The seducer was invariably punished.[128] Intercourse between unmarried people was tolerated, as a preliminary to marriage and the consequent increase of kinship, but if a husband, in contravention of the obligation "not to marry in the kin," endeavored to satisfy his lusts upon one of that kin's wards, as the daughters of members all were, then he committed VII, cap. XVII, p. 488). all affirm, besides, that young people, while yet in care of the "houses of training," if intoxicated, were killed. This is also confirmed by Sahagun (Lib. III. appendix, cap. VI, pp. 270 and 271). Except by Motolinia (Trat. I, cap. II, pp. 22 and 23), it is generally conceded that drunkenness was well controlled in aboriginal Mexico.

[126] Although prostitution was tolerated, still, houses of ill-fame did not exist. Torquemada (Lib. XII, cap. II, p. 376): "Esto parece, porque permitieron, que huviesse Mugeres, que se daban à los que querian, y se andaba á esta vida suelta, y gananciosa, como las de nuestra España, y otros Reinos; puesto que no tenian casa señalada, ni publica para la execucion de su mal oficio, sino que cada qual moraba donde le parecia, y el acto deshonesto, en que se ocupaba, servia de lugar publico, y en el mismo vicio se hacia publica y se manifestaba." Vetancurt (Vol. I, p. 480): "Permitian los mexicanos, mujeres que ganassen con sus cuerpos, aunque no teniau lugares señalados." It is, therefore, not quite clear what may be meant by the term "alcahueta." In the sense of the French word "entremetteuse," alone, they were amenable to punishment, since it was the duty of the man to hunt his "female," although he sometimes employed women called "cihuatlanqui" for that purpose I suppose that such women were punished, [548] not for the immorality of their conduct, but for their unauthorized forwardness in [562] addressing themselves to men, and thus trespassing upon the dignity of that superior being. In regard to authorities on the mode of punishment, I but refer to those quoted by Mr. H. H. Bancroft (Vol. II, p. 469, note 101).

[127] I have already shown that young people held intimate relations with each other before the formalities of marriage were arranged. Thus, while he was yet at the "Telpuchcalli," the youth had his female friend, "amiga" or "manceba," outside. This is positively stated by Sahagun (Lib. III, appendix, cap. VI, p. 271): "y estos mancebos tenian sus amigas cada uno dos ó tres, la una tenian en su casa, y las otras estaban en las de sus familias." and Torquemada (Lib. XII, cap. III, p. 376). That these female "friends" were regarded with more than a feeling of platonic love, is dryly expressed by Sahagun (Id: cap. V, p. 270): "y los que eran amancebados ibanse á dormir con sus amigas." It is also asserted by Torquemada (see above): "que despues que aquel mancebo havia un Hijo, en la dicha manceba, luego le era forçoso, ó dejarla, ó recibirla por muger legitima." Vetancurt (Vol. I, p. 480): "los mancebos antes de casarse tenian sus mancebas, y solian pedirlas á las madres." This almost establishes promiscuity among the ancient Mexicans, as a preliminary to formal marriage.

[128] Clavigero (Lib. VII, cap. XVII, p. 488) says that the punishment was not like that of the adulterer, "because the husband was not required to the same amount of conjugal fidelity as the wife." With "slaves" concubinage was permitted, and the result of childbirth was freedom to the child. Death was invariably the punishment of those who held, or attempted to hold, intercourse with girls in care of the house of worship. Zurita (p. 108, etc.). Mendieta (Lib. II, cap. XXIX, p. 126): "El que hazia fuerza à virgen, ora fuese en el campo, ora en casa del padre moria por ello."

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

585 at last a feast, liberally lubricated with pulque, took place.
[834] The bride and the groom, after this merciless treatment, retired for four days of penance and fasting, and not until that period elapsed did they consummate their marriage.

595 As is often the case in a warrior nation which suffers from 586 reduced man power, polygamy was prevalent. Yet the first wife took precedence over the others, and her children alone had the right to inherit. Concubines were permitted and there was, likewise, prostitution. Desertion was frowned upon, but a court would grant a decree of divorce under certain conditions. A man could obtain the right to cast out his wife if she were sterile, were subject to prolonged ill temper or neglected the household duty. The wife could be freed from a husband who failed to support her or educate the children or who ill-treated her in the physical sense, for the [587] Aztecs had not invented mental cruelty. A divorced woman could remarry as she chose, but a widow had to marry a brother of her deceased husband or one of his clansmen.[8]

562 Women had definite rights, but they were inferior to those of men. They could hold property, enter into contracts and go to courts to obtain justice. In matters of sexual morality
[834] girls had to be chaste and wives faithful to their husbands. A
[837] man transgressed the rules of propriety only when his illicit relations involved a married woman. Otherwise his wife could not formally demand his fidelity. While the legal position of women was relatively low, judged by modern standards in the United States, personal influence was great, and there were several instances where a woman acted as regent when her son was too young to assume the office of chief. In mat-
[648] ters of tribal alliance we have seen how the marriage of a chief's daughter or sister to another ruler cemented an alliance.

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

000 And as we went along we spoke of the good manners and breeding which he showed in everything, and that we should show him in all ways the greatest respect, doffing our quilted caps when we passed before him, and this we always did, but let us leave this subject here, and pass on.

CHAPTER XCI.

Of the manner and appearance of the Great Montezuma and what a great Prince he was.

643 THE Great Montezuma was about forty years old, of good height and well proportioned, slender, and spare of flesh, not very swarthy, but of the natural colour and shade of [302] an Indian. He did not wear his hair long, but so as just to cover his ears, his scanty black beard was well shaped and thin. His face was somewhat long, but cheerful, and he had good eyes and showed in his appearance and manner both tenderness and, when necessary, gravity. He [515] was very neat and clean and bathed once every day in the afternoon.[1] He had many women as mistresses, [595 daughters of Chieftains, and he had two great Cacicas as ● 837] his legitimate wives, and when he had intercourse with them it was so secretly that no one knew anything about it, except some of his servants. He was free [515] from unnatural offences. The clothes that he wore one day, he did not put on again until four days later. He 643 had over two hundred chieftains in his guard, in other 644 rooms close to his own, not that all were meant to converse with him, but only one or another, and when they went to speak to him they were obliged to take off their rich mantles and put on others of little worth, but they had

---

[1] Blotted out in the original: "about the hour of (Ave Maria) evening prayer."—G. G.

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

463 judgment of what they did then, for there are three Indians to-day in the City of Mexico named Marcos de Aquino, Juan de la Cruz and El Crespillo, so skilful in their work as sculptors and painters, that had they lived in the days of the ancient and famous Apelles, or of Michael Angelo Buonarotti, in our times, they would be placed in the same company. Let us go on to the Indian women who did the weaving and the washing, who made such an immense quantity of fine fabrics with wonderful feather work designs; the greater part of it was brought daily from some towns of the province on the north coast near Vera Cruz called Cotaxtla, close by San Juan de Ulua, where we disembarked when we came with Cortés.

[837] In the house of the Great Montezuma himself, all the daughters of chieftains whom he had as mistresses always 463 wore beautiful things, and there were many daughters of 581 Mexican citizens who lived in retirement and wished to appear to be like nuns, who also did weaving but it was wholly of feather work. These nuns had their houses near the great Cue of Huichilobos and out of devotion to it, or to another idol, that of a woman who was said to be their mediatrix in the matter of marriage, their fathers placed them in that religious retirement until they married, and they were [only] taken out thence to be married.

463 Let us go on and tell about the great number of dancers kept by the Great Montezuma for his amusement, and others who used stilts on their feet, and others who flew when they danced up in the air, and others like Merry-Andrews,[1] and I may say that there was a district full of these people who had no other occupation. Let us go on and speak of the workmen that he had as stone cutters, masons and carpenters, all of whom attended to the work of his houses, I say that he had as many as he 463 wished for. We must not forget the gardens of flowers 351 and sweet-scented trees, and the many kinds that there

1 [i.e., buffoons.—Bunnyst]

16:Bandelier E-4 (no date)1880 NU7 Aztec NU7

tants of the valley of their annual crops. In order to escape 567 threatened famine, fathers bartered their services and those of their 731 children for food, to such tribes as possessed sufficient stores.[87]

If the consequence of expulsion from the bond of kinship or 562 of voluntary abandonment of the rights as members, were, for 565 the male, a degradation to work for others, it was altogether 837 different for the female. The position of women was, as we have already intimated, little better than that of a costly animal, and protection was awarded them only in so far as they represented a part of their husbands' property. This the kin itself was obligated to defend and protect. The wife, however, had no other right than that. She could not complain if her lord and master increased his "family-stock" by the addition of one or more concubines, nor if he strayed about to satisfy his desires with other females. Such acts were even subservient to the kins' interest, since they led to an increase of numbers. But the women themselves who gave their persons away for such [634] purposes could only belong to the class of outcasts; for illicit intercourse with wives and daughters of the kins was, as we shall hereafter see, severely punished. Through the formation of the class of outcasts, or at least along with it, prostitution became [548 tolerated among the ancient Mexicans, while polygamy in 595] the shape of concubinage was introduced as a legitimate custom.[88]

[87] Besides the famines recorded since the conquest, the older authors and sources in general notice several (at least two) previous to 1520. It is not to our purpose to discuss their dates. They are given with the usual variation and discordance. Thus for instance, the "Codex Tellerianus Remensis" (Kingsborough, Vol. I, plate VII, and Vol. VI, p. 136) mentions one in 1404 (1 Tochtli), which is evidently incorrect, since 1 Tochtli would be 1403. The Ce-Tochtli thus mentioned, is 1454. In that year, Durán (Cap. XXX, p. 243) places the beginning of the great drouth which, after three years duration, so completely exhausted the Mexican stores and supplies that "wrathy chief" the older, ("Huehue Motecuzuma") told the people "que cada uno vaya á buscar su remedio" (p. 247). In consequence of it, it is reported that many people "sold their sons and daughters to the merchants and principals (señores) of the tribes that had wherewith to give them to eat, and they gave for a baby (or boy rather, "niño") a small basket of corn (maiz) to the father or mother, obligating themselves to sustain the child as long as the famine might last, for that if afterwards the father or mother might wish to redeem it, they should be obligated to pay those aliments." This is, as usual, also stated by Tezcocomoc (Cap. XL, p. 64), though with less details. Torquemada (Lib. II, cap. LXXIII, p. 261) reports the same, but placing it fifty years later, under the last "wrathy chief" (Cap. CX, p. 235) in 1505, A. D. Sahagun (Lib. VIII, cap I, p. 288), agrees with Durán and Tezcocomoc, so does Clavigero (Lib. IV, cap. XII, p. 265): "Many sold themselves for food." This date is also 1451–1454. It is singular that Torquemada (Lib. II. cap. XLVII, p. 156) also relates the famine under the older "wrathy chief," and his words are almost textually copied by Clavigero.

[88] The possession of more than one woman, or rather the enjoyment of more than

And [concerning] this pestle: when they caught, trapped mice,[24] they cast the pestle out the doorway. It was thought that if it were in the house, they could not be caught; it was said that it would warn them.[25]

Yoan in ichoctl tezoltl: in jquac quijmaci, in quijmolvia quiçquijnjchtin: in tezoltl quijnoac quiçaliça, quijlmach: intla çan cali iez: amo vel macia-que in quiçquijnjchti, quijlmach çan quijmonjoatica. 825 412

Twenty-second Chapter, which telleth of mice.

Injc ompoalli omome capitulo, intechpa tlatoa in quiçquijnjchti. 825 837

They said, in times past, that it was thought that mice knew well him who had a paramour, whether a young man or a woman. In order for it to be evident, the mouse made a hole in a large basket, or gnawed the edges of gourd dishes or bowls. Likewise, if men, or a woman, were married, he made holes in their mats, or the men's mantles. In the same way, he gnawed through a woman's shift or skirt. And everywhere the mouse made holes. It was said that thereby he made known that one's spouse had committed adultery.

Quijnnia in ic vecauh, quijlmach in quiçquijnjchti vel quijmati, in açoçja momemecatia: in aço telpuchtli, anoço cioatl. Injc neci in quijnjchin quiçcoionja in chiquivitl, anoço tecomatl, anoço xicalli quijnequequania. No iuhque intla namjque toquijchtin, anoço cioatl: yn jnpetl, anoço yn jolma-toquijchtin quiçcoionjaia: çã no iuhquin cioatl, yn jcue, anoço yn jvipil quiçcoionja: yoan noujan tlacocoionja in quijnjchim, quijl ic quijnencaiotia: ca oquijlaxin yn jnamjc.

Twenty-third Chapter, which telleth of turkey hens.

Injc ompoalli omey capitulo, intechpa tlatoa in tzoalme. 825 235

Turkey hens: when they were breeding, one who wore sandals might not go in among them. Especially when the chicks were about to break [the shells], it was said that [the hens] sat paralyzed. [The chicks] could not break [the shells, and] some would die. But some, when they hatched, it was thought, would only be paralyzed, those which were there in the shells. And it was said that in order that this might not happen, they placed old sandals among them when [the hens] breeded.

In tzoalme: in jquac tlapachoa, amo vel inpan calaqui in mocactia: oc cenca yquac in ic tlapanjzque tzoalti, quijlmach ic mocoxxtlalia: amo vel tlapanjzque, cequjntin ic mjquj: auh in cequjntin yn jquac tlacati quijl çan cocoxxpipil, in vncan catz in cacalloc. Auh quijl injc amo ish mochioazque yn, cacçalli intlan quijxma in tlapachoa.

Twenty-fourth Chapter, which telleth of turkey chicks.[26]

Injc ompoalli omnavi capitulo, intechpa tlatoa yn tzoalcocoxtotoa. 825 235 837

And when turkey chicks hatched, one might not enter among them who had a paramour, whether woman or man, or those who were married. When perchance the spouse [of one of them] had committed adultery, if he were to go in among [the chicks], they said: "He killeth them through filth."

Auh in jquac oclacaque in tzoalcocoxtotoa: avel inpan calaqui in momecatianj, in aço cioatl, in anoço toquijchtin, in anoço namjquequc: in jquac in aço oquijlaxin inamjc, intla inpan ocalac, quijxma: quijnlaçolmjctia.

24. Ibid.: "quando atrapaban ratones en casa."

25. Ibid.: "no entraba los ratones, porque el entendiera, los conjuraba, para que no entraran."

26. Pseudocoxcoxtotl, small turkeycocks.

825 And when it appeared that indeed all the chicks
235 fell upon their backs so that they died,[27] upon this they said: "They died of filth; perchance someone came to go in among them; or looked upon them; or indeed it was the householder who slew them by filth." Because of this, they believed, indeed all the turkeys had fallen upon their backs so that they died.

Auh injc neci çan muchintin aequectiuj injc mjquj teolpipil, ic quitoa: ca tlaçolmjquj: aço aca inpan ocalaquico, anoço oquimjttac, anoço aca vel chane in oquintlaçolmjcti: ic quimatia, in çan muchin aequetztivi teolme, injc mjquj.

825 It was said that also the same befell those who 236 were married. If perchance somewhere one's spouse, whether woman or man, fell into adultery, they then ●837 believed that those which had fallen upon their backs or stumbled over, indeed accused him.

Quil no iuh inpan muchiua in namjquenque: in aço cana quitlaxima inamjc, in aço cioatl, anoço toquichtin: injc quimati, çan quipiqui in aequetztivetzi, anoce cana motlavitequi.

286 Twenty-fifth Chapter, which telleth of her who wove with yarn.

Injc ompoalli onnaocuilli capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa: in icpatl quiquiti.

When [a woman] wove with yarn perhaps a mantle, or a shift, or a skirt, which came out awry, unevenly disposed, with crooked edges, they said and it was thought that the weaver of the mantle or shift was not generous. Just like a crooked seam, perverse [would she be]; not generous.[28]

In icpatl, in aço tilmatli, anoço vipilli, anoço cueitl: in iquac quiquiti in chicopatilivi, in chicoviquixtiuh, in tenaecoliuhtiuh, quitonia: quilmach amo tlacaitlio yn tilmaoa, yn vipilli: çan cueitlahqui, çan tlatlaveliloc: amo tlacaitlio.

821 Twenty-sixth Chapter, which telleth of hail.

Injc ompoalli on chiquaoen capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa in tecivitl.

When it rained, and much hail fell, one who thrift [had] his maize, chili, bean, or chia field scattered ashes from the hearth out of the entrance into the courtyard. It was said that thus his maize field would not be hailed out; it was thought that thus the hail would disappear.

In iquac quiavi, in cenca tecivi: in aquin vnca imjl, anoço ychilcuen, anoço yiecuen, ychian: tleconextli quiiaoac quiioaltepeoa, itvalco: quilmach yc amo tecivilos in imjl, quil ic poliui in tecivitl.

754 Twenty-seventh Chapter, which telleth of sorcerers.

Injc ompoalli on chicome capitulo, yntechpa tlatoa in tlatlavipuchti.

776 At night walked demons—perchance wizards
787 and sorcerers—where they harmed one in one's home. When the householders saw them, when perhaps some [demon] so [would] harm them, they then placed an obsidian knife in water, behind the door, or in the courtyard. They laid it down at night. They said and it was believed that these the demons and sorcerers would look at their reflections when they would harm one, or there would be death, or sickness would come upon the people.

In iocalica nemj tlatlacatecolo: aço nanaoalti, tlavipuchtin in canin ontepolos in techan: in oquimjtaque in aço itla ic quinpolos in chanequc: niman atlan contoca yxtli puertatitlan, anoço itualco quimana in iocalica, quitonia: quilmach vncan onmotencavia in tlatlacatecolo, yn tlavipuchtin in tepolos: aço mjcoua, anoce encolistli tepan muchiuaz.

27. Corresponding Spanish text: "Los pollos se cayan muertos, los pavos arriba: y esto, llamaua diapolujqui."

28. Corresponding Spanish text: "no parecia, no que le sale, no parecia biruendula." Cuenayo, in Sandoval, op. cit., is in doubt o false seam.

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

us around him, and three chieftains and two priests came at once, and they said—" Malinche, forgive us for not coming to Tlaxcala to see you and to bring food, it was not for want of good will but because Mase Escasi and Xicotenga and all Tlaxcala are our enemies, and have said many evil things of us and of the Great Montezuma our Prince, and as though what they said were not enough, they now have the boldness, under your protection, to come armed into our city, and we beg you as a favour to order them to return to their own country, or at least to stay outside in the fields and not to enter our city in such a manner." But as for us they said that we were very welcome. 648

As our Captain saw that what they said was reasonable, he at once sent Pedro de Alvarado and Cristóbal de Olid, the Quartermaster, to ask the Tlaxcalans to put up their huts and ranchos there in the fields, and not to enter the city with us, excepting those who were carrying the cannon, and our friends from Cempoala, and he told them to explain to the Tlaxcalans that the reason why he asked them to do so was that all the Caciques and priests were afraid of them, and that when we left Cholula on our way to México we would send to summon them, and that they were not to be annoyed at what he was doing. When the people of Cholula knew what Cortés had done, they appeared to be much more at ease.

Then Cortés began to make a speech to them, saying that our Lord and King, whose vassals we were, had very great power and held beneath his sway many great princes and Caciques, and that he had sent us to these countries to give them warning, and command them not to worship Idols, nor sacrifice human beings, or eat their flesh, or practice sodomy or other uncleanness, and as the road to Mexico, whither we were going to speak with the Great Montezuma, passed by there, and there was no other shorter road, we had come to visit their city and to treat 648 797 [782 266] [838] and fifty pesos and they said:—"Malinche, accept these presents which we give you and look on us in the future as your friends." Cortés received them with great good will and promised to help them in whatever they needed, and when he saw them together he told the Padre de la Merced to counsel them regarding matters touching our holy faith, and that they should give up their Idols, and he told them all that we were accustomed to say in all the towns through which we had passed, and to all this they replied that it was well said and that they would see to it in the future. Cortés also explained to them about the great power of our Lord, the Emperor, and how we had come to right wrongs and to stop robbery, for it was for this purpose that our Emperor sent us to these countries.

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

When they heard this, all these towns that I have named, secretly, so that the Mexican Ambassadors should not hear them, made great complaints about Montezuma and his tax gatherers, who robbed them of all they possessed, and violated their wives and daughters, if they were handsome, before them and their husbands, and carried them off, and made the men work as though they were slaves, and made them carry pine timber and stone and firewood and maize either in their canoes or over land, and many other services such as planting cornfields, and they took their lands for the service of the Idols. They made many other complaints, which, as it was many years ago, I do not remember.

Cortés comforted them with kindly words which he knew well how to say to them through Doña Marina, but added that at the present moment, he could not undertake to see justice done them and they must bear it awhile [and] he would [presently] free them from that rule, and he secretly ordered two of their chiefs to go with four of our Tlaxcalan allies, and inspect the cleared road, which the people of Huexotzingo had told us not to follow, and to 539 Then it became the office of Ecatl to slay the gods. But they say thus: that Xolotl wished not to die. He said to the gods: "Let me not die, O gods." Wherefore he wept much; his eyes and his eyelids swelled.

And when he who dealt death was to overtake him, he fled from his presence; he ran; he quickly entered a field of green maize, and took the form of, and quickly turned into, two young maize stalks [growing] from a single root, which the workers in the field have named xolotl. But there, in the field of green maize, he was seen. Then once again he fled from him; once more he quickly entered a magney field. There also he quickly changed himself into a magney plant [consisting of] two [parts] called mexolotl. Once more he was seen, and once more he quickly entered into the water and went to take the shape of [an amphibious animal called] axolotl. There they could go to seize him, that they might slay him.

[136]

And they say that though all the gods died, even then the sun god could not move and follow his path. Thus it became the charge of Ecatl, the wind, who arose and exerted himself fiercely and violently as he blew. At once he could move him, who thereupon went on his way. And when he had already followed his course, only the moon remained there. At the time when the sun came to enter the place where he set, then once more the moon moved. So, there, they passed each other and went each one his own way. Thus the sun cometh forth once, and spendeth the whole day [in his work]; and the moon undertaketh the night's task; he worketh all night; he doth his labor at night.

From this it appeareth, it is said, that the moon, Tecuciztecatl, would have been the sun if he had been first to cast himself into the fire; because he had prepared himself first and all [his offerings] had been costly in the penances.

Here endeth this legend and fable, which was told in times past, and was in the keeping of the old people.

Eclipse of the Moon.

821 ● 843 When the moon eclipsed, his face grew dark and sooty; blackness and darkness spread. When this came to pass, women with child feared evil; they thought it portentous; they were terrified [lest], perchance, their [unborn] children might be changed

Niman ic ich ixquich tlamachtiloni, in hecatl, ic quinnijctia in teteu: auh in ioh conitoa, in xolotl, amo momiquiztlania: quimilhui in teteu. Macamo nimiqui teteuie. Ic ofca chocaia, vel ipopoçaoac, ixquatlapoçaoac.

Auh in ic itech onaci miquiztli, çan teiquipa oac, chalo, tocitlan calactiuetz: ipan onnijxoch, ic mocueptiuetz, in tocili ome quauj, mazalic: in quinocaiotia milloca, xolotl. Auh vncan itoc in tocitlan: ic no ceppa teiquampa oac, ic no cuele metztlan calactiuetz: no ic tlamocueptiuetz in metl, ome mauj, in itoca mexolotl. Ic no ceppa itoc, ic no cuele atlan calactiuetz, axolotl mocuepano: ic vel vmpa canaiz, inic cannictiqui.

Auh quinoa, in mazel mochiton teteu oniquipa, ça nel amo ic olin, amo vel ic otlatocac in teuil tonatiuh: ic ixquich onimochioh in hecatl, moquetz in ehecatl, cenca molhui, tonoac, in ehecac: quin ie hecatl vel oolinj, nimah ic ic otlatoca. Auh in ioac, ic otlatoca, çan vmpa onimocaah in metztli: quinicoac in ocalaquito icalaquian ynatiuh, ic no cuele ic oalcoac in metztli: ic vncan moquitlique, motlalhoique. Inic ceppa oalquiça tlacemilhuitilhia in tonatiuh: auh in metztli ioualhequitl quitlaça cêtoual quitlaça, iouallequitl.

Ic vncli hin teci, mitoa: ca ihcuel tonatiuh ixquia in metztli tecuciztecatl, iatla ic achto onontzinj tlecu: ipampa ca ihcuel achto mitquetz, inic tlachi tlaçoli ipan tlamacoah.

Nican tlatli, in hin nenonotzalli, çaçanilli: in ic oncah ic tlahtocotzinia, vecaque, in ixquitl cauia.

Moztli qualo.

821 843 In ioac, qualo metztli: ixtlilooa, ixnichoca, cuichocuiocoaca, tlaiocuiocoaca. In ioac, y, mochiton: ual motlatlaia in cuzaia, tlacuiaia, mocuechtlaia: ma ualli mocuiocuichiquiti, ma quiquiocuichiuacaqui, in ixquitlaca.

into mice; each of their children might turn into a mouse.

And because they feared evil, in order to protect themselves, in order that this might not befall [them], they placed obsidian in their mouths or in their houses, because with this their children would not be born with mouth cutem away—lipless; or they would not be born with noses cutem away or broken off; or with twisted mouths or lips; or cross-eyed, squint-eyed, or with shrunken eyes; nor would they be born monstrous or imperfect.

This moon there of Xalocan worshipped as a god, and they laid offerings before him and paid him honor.

821
843

Auh inic quinnemmatia: inic mopatiaia, inic amo tohqui impā mochiowa: iezli incamac, amoço inxillā quitlalizia: ipāpa inic amo tencoiziuiqui, tencoiziqui impilhoua: amoço iacacoztiuiqui, iacacoztiuiqui, amoço tempaxiuiqui, tennecuiliuiqui, iqueziuiqui, imeculiuiqui, iocaliuiqui: in amoço atlacamele tlacatia, in amo tlacamelaca.

821
751
843

Inin metztli, ichoan quimotoutiaia in xalocamoca: quitlamanilizia, quimaxitilizia.

752

[p. 10 is blank]

S:Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1953 NU7 Aztec NU7

Tenth Chapter, wherein is described the disposition of those who kept watch when the new fire appeared.

At nightfall, from here in Mexico, they departed. All the fire priests were arranged in order, arrayed in and wearing the garb of the gods. Each one represented and was the likeness of perhaps Quetzalcoatl, or Tlaloc, etc., or whichever one he went representing. Very deliberately, very stately, they proceeded, went spread out, and slowly moved. It was said: "They walk like gods." Thus, in deep night, they arrived there at Uixachtlan.

And the one who was the fire priest of Copulco, who drew new fire, then began there. With his hands he proceeded to bore continuously his fire drill; he went about making trials with his drill, the fire-maker.

And when it came to pass that night fell, all were frightened and filled with dread. Thus way it said: it was claimed that if fire could not be drawn, then [the sun] would be destroyed forever; all would be ended; there would evermore be night. Nevermore would the sun come forth. Night would prevail forever, and the demons of darkness would descend, to eat men.

Hence everyone ascended the terraces; all went upon the housetops. None remained in their houses, on the ground below. And women with child put on masks of magney leaves and took up their magney-leaf masks. [They] placed [the women] in granaries, for they were looked upon with fear. It was said and claimed that if, truly, the new fire were not drawn, there also would eat men; [for] they would be changed into fierce beasts.

And the small children they likewise masked with magney leaves. In truth, some [of them] could sleep, or close, close, as [even] half-close their eyes. From close to time their mothers and fathers were [there with them]; they kept waking them, punching and nudging them, calling out to them. They woke, startled, and nudged them. Because if they were to Inic matlactli capitulo, vncan materoua, in tlatecpanilistli: in quipiaia, inic ikuic tletl necia.

Ie tlapoioua, in nican oncoaia mexico: motecpantinin, mochiuti in tlehuamacacque, mochicuihtini, ommaaqui in intlacpai teteu: in coceniaca impan mixcoaia, quinmiztlapixiaia, in aço quetzalcoatl, anoço tlaloc et' in çaço ac ichoual ipan quistiuia, cenca çan iiolic, cenca çan iuian in iatiuiia, onotiuiia, mantiuiia: motencoa, teumenemi, inic uellaquauhioua onaci, vmpa uixachtlã.

Auh in ichoual copolco tlenamacac, in tlequauhtlaxqui: niman nican quipeoaltia, in imac quimamaiaiotiuh itlequauh: quischecotiuh ica in imamalioaca, in itlaçaloca.

In iquac, y, oioouac, cenca nemauhtiloia, tlatemmacheia: iuh mitoua, quilmach intlacamo, uel vetzir tlequauid: vncan cempoliooua, centlamoua, centlaiooqa, aocmo ualquiçac in tonatiuh: ie ic centlaioua, oalmoaque in tzitzimimi, tequaquiui:

ic mochi tlacatl itlapanco tlecoia, netlapantemaloia, aocac tlalchi, tlatzinda, cali mocaoaia, motlaliaia. Auh in oozti, momexiacatiaia, inmemexiac quicuia, yoan cuacuamac quintlaliaia: ipampa mauhcaitaia, iuh mitoua, quilmach intlaca uel uetzi tlequauid: no ichoantin tequanque, motequiccpanque.

Auh in pipiltotin, no quinmemexiacatiaia: aiac uel: onochiia, onicopia, onmiquiqia, onjmocoxtlaia: çan ic cate in iuilhoua, in intoboã, quinixitiaia, quinixipixiaia, quinitlaiaia, quinxamilicate, quinxitia, quinqipia, quintlos: ipampa iuda onochiaque, quilmach quiquinichtia mocoçaque, quinichiaque.

27

539

After the sun had set, the moon began to move. Thus the one got away from the other. And thus they come forth at different times. The sun endureth one day, and the moon worketh at night (or illuminateth at night). From this cometh what is said: that Tecuciztecatl would have been the sun if he had cast himself first into the fire, because he was named first, and offered precious things in his penance.

Despues que el sol se puso començo la luna a andar: desta manera se deuiaron el vno del otro: y assi salen ē diuersos tiempos. El sol dura vn dia y la luna trabaia en la noche o alumbra en la noche. De aqui parece lo que se dize q̄ el tecuciztecatl avia de ser sol si p'mero se echara en el fuego porque el p'mero fue nōbrado y ofrecio cosas preciosas en su pēia.

Eclipse of the Moon.

821

When the moon is eclipsed, he becometh almost dark; he becometh blackened; he turneth a dark brown. Then the earth darkeneth. When this cometh to pass, women with child feared miscarriage. A great dread seized them that that which they had in their bodies would become mice. And as a remedy for this they took a piece of obsidian in the mouth or they placed it in the girdle over the belly and [did so] in order that the children [whom they carried] in the womb would not be born lipless or noseless or wry-mouthed, or cross-eyed, or that [one] might not be born monstrous.

[843 751]

Quando la luna se eclipsa parese casi oscura, ennegrecese, parese bosca: luego se escurece la tierra. Quando esto acontece las preñadas temian de abortar, temauales gran temor que lo q̄ tenian en el cuerpo se a de boluer raton. Y para remedio desto tomavan vn pedaço de yztli ē la boca o poniaule en la çintura sobre el vientre y para que los ninos que en el vientre no saliesen sin beços o sin narizes, o boquituertos, o bizgos: o porq̄ no naciesse monstro.

The people of Xalmecac held the moon as a god and made him special offerings and sacrifices.

Los de xalmeca tenian por dios a la luna y le hazian particulares ofrendas y sacrificios.

844 Ninth Chapter, which telleth of the umbilical cord.[7]

Injc chicuacuevi capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa in tetic.

The time of cutting the umbilical cord of small children was also [one of] their delusions. If it were the umbilical cord of a boy, they buried it far away. The brave warriors hung it on themselves and bore it with them into battle.[8] And if the father were skilled in war, he left it; he buried it there, in the midst of the battle ground. It was said that [the child] would be skilled in war, if he grew.

And if it were the umbilical cord of a girl, they only buried it at the edge of the hearth. It was said that this was because her abode was only the house; only and alone she took charge of drink and food, dwelling by the grinding stone. For this reason only in the house did they bury her umbilical cord.

In jquac quiyxiuiquiya piplhuetzi: zo cocoxca innetlapololtilin. Intla oquichtli inic, voca in cuetecain: vmpan iauc, teteuh cuapilouia, quiyquiya in tlacoean: auh intla iavc matiuj teta, ichoatl concouia: vmpa contocaia in iauiquentla, quijtuach: iavc matiuj yez intla velijzz.

Auh intla cioapilouatli inic: çan netlecuijlouao in contocaia, quijtuach ipampa: yu çan cali yiuentla, in çan ic iaquich quijnocuiplavia atl, tlaqualli, metlatitlan nenemj: ipampa yu, çan caliric contocaia in jnic.

845 Tenth Chapter, which telleth of the pregnant woman.

Injc matlactli capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa in ciuatli.

Of the pregnant woman there also was a delusion of the natives. If a pregnant woman wished to go walking during the night,[9] then she placed a little ash in her bosom.[10] It was said that thereby she protected the child within her, in order that he should not meet [an apparition] somewhere. In this wise she took care of her child.

In jtechpa in ciuatli: no vacoca innetlapololtilin in njcon tlaca: in ciuatli, intla ioualtica nenemjzaequj: njman ixillan coetlalia aquijtoa neztli, quijtuach ic quipalevia in jnic ca pilhuatli: injc zeno quijtenamjctia cana, iuhquin ic quijtualvitiuh yeneuah.

846 Eleventh Chapter, which telleth of the woman lately delivered.

Injc matlactli oce capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa in ciuatl, in quinezallacachiua.

Another thing the natives did in their folly. When they would visit one who had [just] borne a child, if they took their [own] children with them, they then quickly placed ashes on their temples, knees, and shins, and everywhere [did they place ashes]. And the woman who applied the ashes set before the hearth. It was said, if they did not place ashes on the knees of the children, that when they walked, their knees, wrists, ankles, and foreheads would crackle.[11]

No centlamantli a iauiquinamacaio mayztia, in njcan tlaca: yn jquac tla quijtlapalouaque injxuhquj, intla inpilhoan quijvica: njman ycuaca quijnecatiuia incuauocaca, in jatlauaque, in jxtlanjzco, in ye iaquican tequçaliuhcan: ican quijnocavia, novian: auh in tezcahuja tlecuijlixaque motlalia, ciuatl: quijtuach intlacoma quijtlauquanecuiuque yn pipiltzintli: çan tlatlatzintzecuijx in jxtlanqua, in jxmaquechtlan, in jxxoquechtlan, yn jxujxaque.

---

7. Literally, "our speech." Eduard Seler, in Einige Kapitel aus dem Geschichtswerk des Fray Bernardino de Sahagun aus dem Aztekischen übersetzt (Camillo Sofer-Sachs, Walter Lehmann, and Walter Knickenberg, eds.; Stuttgart: Strecker und Schröder, 1927), pp. 314 ff., translates a comparable passage found in the Academia de la Historia MS.

8. Corresponding Spanish text: "el hijo, dando se dando los hombres."

9. Ibid., "andar de noche, sin ser amanecido."

10. Ibid., "en el seno, o en la chinina hasta o la cerca."

11. Ibid., "si acaso no se hacia aquellas cenizas, quebraran rasgar de los coyuntures y . . . sobre ellas, quebraban quando los caminaban."

were to be burned, because of it the child's face would be pock-marked.[16] And if maize cobs were to burn there, first she passed and carried them before the child's face,[17] so that such would not befall him — so that his face would not be pock-marked.

vncan tlatlas in olotl: achtopa ijaco tonquiçquixilia, ijaco cuevivica in piltontli: injc amo iuh ipan muchioaz, injc amo ichichitinja. 846 753

Ninetenth Chapter, which reflects of the woman with child.

Injc caxtolli onnavi capitulo, ytechpa tlatta: yn cioatl oztli. 843

The woman with child might not look at one whom they had hanged, because, it was said, when she gave birth, the child would come forth with a cord of flesh wrapped about his neck. Wherefore in times past they frightened pregnant women from doing so.

In cioatl oztli, amo vel quittaz in aquin ic quipilia: yehica, quilmach in jquac mjzivix, nacatica ozquechunecaiotiaz in piltontli. Ipampa yn, ic quimjnacazihtiaia in ic vecauh in oztli.

Likewise, when a woman was with child during an eclipse of the sun or moon, she might might not look at it. It was said that if she saw it, her child would be harelipped. But in order to forestall this, the woman with child placed an obsidian knife in her bosom; it was said that thereby her child would not be harelipped.

No yoan yn jquac oztli cioatl, in jquac qualo tonatiuh, anoço metztli: amo vel quittaia, quilmach intla quittaz: tesquatic iez in jconeuh. Auh injc quipalevizia oztli: ytztli ixillan cuetecaia, quil ic amo tenquaiviz in piltontli. [821]

Neither might she chew asphalt,[18] it was stated, lest the child be harmed in suckling[19] when he was born. And she could not walk about at night; it was felt that her child would be one who cried much. Likewise men might not walk about by night; perhaps they would come upon a ghost; perhaps the child would suffer a sickness of the heart. And so that this would not happen, the woman with child placed a pebble, or ashes from the hearth, or wormwood,[20] in her bosom. And the men [carried] a pebble, or tobacco [on the chest]; for it was said that also, at that time, [the child] might acquire what they called a swelling.[21]

Amono vel quiçquequaz in chapuputli, quil ic amo motentzoponjz in piltontli: in jquac ytlacat. Yoan amo vel ioual nenemiz, quil cenca cliocanj iez in jconeuh: no iuhquj in toquichtin: amono vel ioual nenemjz, anoçe itla quimonamjctia, aço mjmjquja. Auh injc amo iuh ipan muchioaz oztli: xaltetl, anoço tlecuexitli ixillan quitemá, anoço iztauhiatl. Auh in toquichtin xaltetl, anoço picietl: ichica quil no vecan quicuj, in quitoa: aiomama. 843 753

16. Corresponding Spanish text: "la cara del niño, que luego nacido nada parece a hojuelas."

17. Ibid.: "tomaban primero en la cara del niño, llevándolas por encima, sin tocar en la cara."

18. Chapuputli: "especie de asfalto; betún de Judea; . . . Los indios la usaban antiguamente como masticatorio" (chapuputzo — Santamaría, op. cit., Vol. I, p. 480). The corresponding Spanish text has "cosa buena, que llama calcli." On the relationship between calcli and chapuputli, see Sahagún (Garibay ed.), X, 24, 18 and 27; and also Vol. IV, pp. 333, 366, for definitions.

19. Corresponding Spanish text: "acostumbra aquella, que llaman mastichapuzle, [que usaban dello, los antiguos como mastiche], y cuando de que quando comen la criatura, si no cuidan de ponelo la cara en cruz, de la boca, [inclinándose en el pulidor] y luego quedo muerto." Cf. also Sahagún (Garibay ed.), Vol. IV, p. 366; and Sahagún de Sahagún. Historia general de las cosas de Nueva España (Carlos Maria Bustamante, ed.; México: Alejandro Valdés, 1829); Vol. II: "mastichapuzle (hoy mastichi) o sea embarazo en la respiración, que usaban de ello los antiguos como mastiche."

20. Iztauhiatl: "cosa parecida al almoro" (corresponding Spanish text); estafiate (Artemisia mexicana Willd.) — "las hojas de quichen fuerte olor aromático y tienen sabor amargo. Usan como antihelmíntico poderoso" (Santamaría, op. cit., Vol. I, p. 624).

21. Cf. Sahagún (Garibay ed.), Vol. IV, p. 334.

843 752 And when the swelling appeared, upon his back was as it were a small, blue hump. Or [he might catch] inflammation of the groin.[22] And when the inflammation of the groin appeared, the child cried every night; and on the groin and armpits were formed small, round or long [welts of] flesh. And in order to cure it, they cut them off and removed the little [welts] of flesh.

Auh injc neci ximmana, yxnjtlapan ce, ixhuqujn pouaualli, ixhuqujn tenoic: anoço cuezpalizivitli. Injc neci cuezpalicivi pilhuatli: cecicoui in chaca, yoan yquxtilco, yciacac motlathlia nacazotonti, ololtotonti, molactotonti. Auh injc pati: quixmatla, quijquijxtia in nacazotonti.

843 821 And as for the pregnant woman: before her child had been formed as a being, they restrained [any of] them, when the moon arose, from looking up at it. They said to them: "Do not look at the moon! Your children will suffer sickness of the heart, or she will be hamstrung!"

Ioan in ocxitl: in jquac ximmo vel tlacatl motlalia in jonecuh, quintlacaoaltiaia, in jquac oalmeztana metztli: injc anoço conacopaintzaqueque, quimjlhujaia: macamo xocmjttacan in metztli, mjanjquja, anoço tenquaiviz in amoconeuh.

825 777 441 Twentieth Chapter, which telleth of the monkey's hand.

Injc ceuepualli cxpitulo, yxchpa tlatoa: in oçomatli ymacpal.

The merchants sought and cherished greatly a monkey's hand when they trafficked and sold goods anywhere. There they spread it out. It was said that thereby goods quickly were disposed of and soon all which they sold was bought. It was stated: "That which bringeth this about is the monkey's hand" — so foolish were they.

In oçomatli imacpal: in puchteca ceuca quijnemaia, quimopaltiaia: in jquac in campa tiamjquja, in tlanamacaia: vncan quijtocaia, quilmach ic icuhca aquj, icuhca muchi coaloa in tlein quinamaca: quijl ichoatl ioh quichioa in oçomatli yma: yniic motlapoloia.

777 264 824 Also of the sellers of mantles — when nowhere was disposed of that which they sold, when no one bought either mantles, or shifts or skirts — it was said: "They make them eat chilis that the goods may be disposed of." And thus did they do it. When they returned to their homes, they said: "Our goods are nowhere disposed of. Give them chilis to eat." Then in their midst they placed perhaps two or three chilis. It was averred that thereby the goods were disposed of. When they so did this, they said that they had made [their mantles] eat chilis.

No ichoantin in tilmanamacaque: in jquac ocan aquj in quinamaca, in aiac quicua: in aço tilmatli, in anoço cueitl, anoço vipalli, quilmach: quichilquaqualtia, injc aquj. Auh injc quichioaia: in jquac oalvia ischan, quijtoaia: ocan oac in ytiamjc: ma xoconchilquaqualtican: niman ic ijcic contema, aço vme, anoço Ey in chilli: quilmach ic aquja, injc ioh quichioaia in, ic quitoa: quichilquaqualtia.

777 525 Twenty-first Chapter, which telleth of the pestle and the griddle.

Injc ceuepualli oce capitulo, itechpa tlatoa in texolotl, yoan comalli.

When one who played patolli[23] placed his pestle, and his griddle, and his grinding stone upside down in his house, and hung his pestle somewhere in a corner, it was said that thereby the householder would not lose, but only win.

In jquac aquja patoaia, in ichan, in jtexolouh, ioan in jcomal, ioan in jmetl: irtlapach quimaçilia: auh in texolotl cana xomolco quipilaoia: quilmach: ic amo quitlaniaque in chane, çan ic tlatlaniz.

22. Corresponding Spanish text: "otra enfermedad, que llaman cuezpalicivitli, o con lobanillos en las ingles." Nota: Codex Rios (El manuscrito mexicano Vaticano 3738 llamado El Codex Rios [Roma: Reprodotto Danesi, 1900], p. 54).

23. The corresponding Spanish text refers to patolmes, which is an error.

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

CHAPTER VI

THE MAN AND THE TRIBE

In which are set forth the basic ideas of Aztec education, government, law and social customs

642 618 THE SOCIAL ORGANIZATION of the Aztec tribes was in theory completely democratic. An individual was a member of a family which, in turn, belonged to a cluster of families or a clan.* Theoretically twenty of these clans made up a tribe, each of them regulating its own affairs but, in matters of tribal importance, joining with the others in a council composed of all the leaders. The council appointed one chief to control civil and religious affairs and usually a second for war. Originally designed for simple farming communities and presumably of an antiquity dating back to Middle Culture times, this organization later ramified into the governmental complexity of a populous and highly complicated city-state.[1]

844 The working of a community is best illustrated by the position of the individual in it, a process which is described in the third part of the Codex Mendoza. Immediately a child was born it was washed and swaddled by a midwife. Since 777 the gods governed the fate of man on earth, the parents con- 787 sulted a priest who looked in the tonalamatl,† or book of happy. He was destitute; on earth misery engulfed him. For verily he brought it on himself — because of his wickedness, disregard, shamelessness, and neglect. No one bequeathed it to him, for by his own will and of his own fault he brought unto himself injury, torment, and pain. Hence he was despised and disregarded. No one any longer obeyed him; no one became his friend; he stood by himself. No one took account of his personality. Everywhere he was hated; nowhere was he liked; nowhere did he give pleasure. But he was regarded as a thing, and looked at, for now he was a vagabond, proscribed, completely outlawed; he was on the outside, lingering on the outskirts; impudent and shameless. He went about haughty[7] and drunk. For truly he was abandoned to evil and feared. His side was sore; his head ached — it was in pain — so that he was incorrigible, suffering, and dejected. For he was full of evil — so perverse was he.

*The term clan is used to mean a tribal division without connotation of male or female descent.

†To'-na-la-matl.

And of anyone who had gained merit and reward being then born, his fathers and mothers said: "Upon a good day sign hath he been born and created and come forth on earth; he hath arrived upon the earth on [the day sign] One Crocodile. Let him be bathed."[8]

Whereupon they gave him a name. They called him Cipac. Or else, they gave him the name of another one of his grandparents. Etc.

And, on the other hand, if it were the wish [of the parents], perchance they passed over the days; perchance they settled upon still another day for him to be bathed. For One Crocodile bore with it all favorable day signs.

And if it were a man who was born, when they bathed him they adorned for him a small shield, upon which they put four small arrows. And to it they bound his umbilical cord. They entrusted it to and sent it in the charge of brave chieftains, who left it at the battlefield. Right there where they fought, where there was fierce battle, at the crossing of the waters, they buried it.

And if it were a woman, when they bathed her, they put into the vessel in which she was bathed, the large northern bathing vessel, her spindle, her cotton, quitlacamati, niac icnjuh quichioa, yioca quetzalo, 787X aoc ac iiel quitta, novian tlaciuto, ácan velitolo, ácan tlapoquiltia, ça tlatto, ça itto, ca ie tlastlacolli, ie tla-lolli, ie centlalolli, ie tetenco cica, ie tetenco pipilcac, ie tepan onoc: injc ácuen tlatta, injc moquetlastinemj, mjvinticinemj, ca nel otlauelcaoaloc, otlaellelaxiti, otlaxillíquauhtili, otlatzontecconquauhtili, otlatzonquauhtili inic auel monotza, ca iiolaçic, iiellelaçic, quimaxilti, ynjc tlaucililoc.

Auh in aca vel mácoaale, ilhujle, ipan otlacat: nj-man quitoaia in jtahoan, in jnaoan, ca qualli tonalli in ipan otlacat, oncoc, otlalticpacquiz, omotlalticpac-quixti, ce cipactli: ma njman maki, ic quitocamacaia, ic quinetzaia, cipac: anoço itla [553] oc centlamantli, icolhoan intoca in quimacaia, etc.:

auh tel çan teiollotlama; in açoc conchololtizque, açoc centlalisque oc centetl tonalli, ipan maltiz: ca ie quiconvica in ce cipactli, ca muchi qualli tonalli.

Auh intla oquichtli otlacat: in iquac caltinia, chi- 787X malcontli quichichivilinia, ipil temj navi mitotonti: 844 auh itech quijpinia in jnic, intech quicaoaia, intech quipilonia in tlacaoan, iaopan concaoaia: vel oncan in necalioa, in tlaiecolo, ya iapaniocan centocaia.

Auh intla çioatl otlacat: ynjc caltinia imalac, ich-cauh, itzmalcac, ioan ipopouh, ichpanoaz ipan contemaia ya jpealtilcac, in jpealtilapan: ye quipectinia,

7. Cf. Angel Maria Garibay K.: "Pseudónimos de Sahagún," Tlalocan, II, 3 (1947), pp. 209 and 247 (n. 41), where discussion of the [illegible]

8. The corresponding Spanish text usually uses "bapticen" for nahlia, [illegible] Ch. 37, infra (Chapultepec, etc.).

X 787 her spinning bowl, her sweeper, and her broom.
● 844 Thus they showed that the girl was one who went nowhere; only the house was her abode. Hence, near the grinding stone, at the edge of the hearth, they buried her umbilical cord.

X 787 And this count of days — so was it claimed — 791 was an invention of the two called and named 805 Ozomoco and Cipactonal, who gave it to the people. Ozomoco they painted as a woman, and Cipactonal [as] a man. They who were readers of day signs embellished their book of days with their representations, which they placed in the middle when they painted them. For it was so said that there they became lords of all the day count.

in ſcampa ianj cioatzintli, çan calli ichan: ic çan metlatiztlan, tlecujlaacanco contocaia, yn jxic.

Auh inin tonalpoalli, iuh mjtoaia: ichoan ietlanezttil, ichoan qujtemacaque, in vmeztin teneoalo, intoca Ozomoco, ioan cipactonal: in Ozomoco cioatl inic quçujloaia: auh in Cipactonal oqujchtli: in tonalpouhque catca yn jntonalamatzin quçiollotiaia, yn jmjxiptla ynepantla quçintlaliaia, injc quçujcujloaia: ca iuh mjtoaia: vncan tlatoque machioa, yn jpan ïaqujch tonalpoalli.

[p. 4]

Twenty-seventh Chapter, in which is mentioned the fifteenth sign, named One House. And it was said to be evil. It was said that the men then born were thieves, patrons of vice and sin. All which befell them was bad. And it was said that the women [then born] were very lazy and much given to sleep, and did nothing useful.

— One House. This One House, they said, was a totally evil day sign, the breeding-place of vice and sin. And also, at that time, descended the so-called Goddesses; and what then came to pass hath already been told in many places. The midwives especially paid them honor; each one individually made offerings to them in her own home.

He who was then born, they fully expected, would thus come to a bad end: perhaps he would die in battle, or be taken captive; or perish at the crossing of the waters; or he would enter [among the foe] and be carried off. Perhaps he would be offered as a striped one in gladiatorial sacrifice, or be shot full of arrows; or his head would be burst in the fire, or he would be cast into the flames. Perhaps they would twist him in a net, or smash him, or tear out his entrails — violently tear out his entrails; or just drown him like a water rat, pushing him under the water, spearing and stabbing him; or they would just cook him [in the steam bath].

And in this way he would come to a bad end. Perchance he would commit adultery. Perhaps he would covet a woman. Perhaps he would covet another's woman. Perhaps he would eat another's food, lift his head from another's [bed]. And the woman would be his companion in death; they would break and smash both their heads. Hence were adulterers called "broken heads" or "smashed heads."

And so in this way he came to a bad end. Perchance he would sell himself, would eat and drink his substance, would swallow himself, would put an end to himself.[1] Discouraged, nowhere did he feel tranquil. Thus he lived a thief. He robbed, he

Injc ompoalli on chicome capitulo: vncan motenoa, injc caxtoltetl machiotl, in jtoca ce calli: ioan quijl amo qualli, quijl in vncan tlacatia toquijchti, ichtecque catca, teuhtli tlaçolli qujmocujtlaviaia: mochi amo qualli in jnpan mochioaia: auh quijl in çioa cencaj tlatziujnj, cenca cochinj, njman atle qualli quichioa. 787X

In ce calli: jnjn ce calli, qujtoaia, njmon amo qualli tonalli, tlaçolli, teuhtli iolian, ioan no ipan temoia in omoteneuhque cioateteo, auh in tlein vncan mochioaia, ie mjeccan omjtó: in ichoan titici, ec cenca ichoan qujnmaujztiliaia, cecenjaca qujntlamanjliaia in jachachan, 787X 776 844 in aquin ipan tlacatia, cenca qujtlatenmachiliaia, injc ohujcan qujçaz, aço iaomjquiz, axioaz, iapaniocan popoliuiz, anoço calaquiz, vicoz, aço oaoanaloz, oaoanoz, aco ocalioaz, aço quatlecueponjloz, aço tlepan tlaxoz, anoço qujmatlapetzcazque, quevitequizque, anoço qujxicanazque, qujxicteteoanazque, anoço çan catoçanpoloznque, catlanpapachoznque, vncan qujxiziliaque, tlatzoznopoztinemj, anoço çan qujtemazque, 787X

ioan injc ovican quiçaz, aço tetlanximaz, aço tetlan aquiz, aço cueitl, vipilli tepan canaz, aço tetlaqualiz, tetlan quateujz: auh in tioatl imjquiztevical ies, vmextin qujnquatepipitzinjaque, qujnquatexxamanjaque, ic tocaiotilo in tetlanxiaquj, quatepitzic, quatexamac: 787X 684

ioan injc ovican quiçaz, aço mouamacaz, moquaz, mjz motolos, motlamjz, ican avia, acan tlacaco tlamati, injc nemj, iichtecuj, motlilducuja, tetlitlacalechcia, tetlacujcujlia, tetlatlaçaltia, tecacalxaputla, tequiquimjliquanja, 787X

1. Corresponding Spanish text: "Ahorcase: que esto entiendo, que el mesmo se mataria, y entraria, y beberia su gracia."

844 Ninth Chapter, which telleth of the umbilical cord.[7]

Injc chicunavi capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa in tonic.

The time of cutting the umbilical cord of small children was also [one of] their delusions. If it were the umbilical cord of a boy, they buried it far away. The brave warriors hung it on themselves and bore it with them into battle.[8] And if the father were skilled in war, he left it; he buried it there, in the midst of the battle ground. It was said that [the child] would be skilled in war, if he grew.

And if it were the umbilical cord of a girl, they only buried it at the edge of the hearth. It was said that this was because her abode was only the house; only and alone she took charge of drink and food, dwelling by the grinding stone. For this reason only in the house did they bury her umbilical cord.

In jquac quijnzictequja pipiltotonti: no oncatca innetlapololtiliz. Intla oquichtli ixic, veca in contocaia: vmpan iauc, tetech conpilocaia, quitquija in tiacoan: auh intla iavc matinj teta, ichoatl concacaia: vmpa contocaia in iaunepantla, quijlmach: iavc matinj yez intla veijaz.

Auh intla cioapiltontli ixic: çan netlecujltenco in contocaia, quijlmach ipampa: yn çan cali ynentla, in çan ic ixquich quijmocujtlavia atl, tlaquallij, metlatitlan nenemj: ipampa yn, çan calitic contocaia in jxic.

843 Tenth Chapter, which telleth of the pregnant woman.

Injc matlactli capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa in otztli.

Of the pregnant woman there also was a delusion of the natives. If a pregnant woman wished to go walking during the night,[9] then she placed a little ash in her bosom.[10] It was said that thereby she protected the child within her, in order that he should not meet [an apparition] somewhere. In this wise she took care of her child.

In jtechpa in otztli: no vncatca innetlapololtiliz in njcan tlaca: in otztli, intla ioualtica nenemjznequj: njman ixillan contlalia ãquijton nextli, quijlmach ic quijpalevia in jtic ca piltontli: injc amo quitenamjctiz cana, iubqujn ic quijnalvitiuh yconeuh.

846 Eleventh Chapter, which telleth of the woman lately delivered.

Injc matlactli oce capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa in ciostl, in quijnoallacachioa.

Another thing the natives did in their folly. When they would visit one who had [just] borne a child, if they took their [own] children with them, they then quickly placed ashes on their temples, knees, and shins, and everywhere [did they place ashes]. And the woman who applied the ashes sat before the hearth. It was said, if they did not place ashes on the knees of the children, that when they walked, their knees, wrists, ankles, and foreheads would crackle.[11]

No centlamantli a imaquijnamatcaio mayzia, in njcan tlaca: yn jquac tla quitlapalozque mjxiuhquj, intla inpilhoan quijnvica: njman yciuhca quijnenztioja incanaoacan, in jntlanquac, in jntlanjzco, in ye ixquican toçaçaliubcan: ãcan quijnocavia, novian: auh in tenexhuja tlecujlixquac motlalia, ciostl: quijlmach intlacamo quijntlanquanexvizque yn pipiltotonti: çan tlatlazintinemjz in jntlanqua, in jnnaquechtlan, in jnnoquechtlan, yn jmjxquac.

7. Literally, "our navel." Edward Seler, in Einige Kapitel aus dem Geschichtswerk des Fray Bernardino de Sahagun aus dem Aztekischen übersetzt (Camillo Sofer-Sachs, Walter Lehmann, and Walter Krickeberg, eds.; Stuttgart: Strecker und Schröder, 1927), pp. 314 ff., translates a comparable passage found in the Academia de la Historia M3.

8. Corresponding Spanish text: "el lugar, donde se daban las batallas."

9. Ibid., "andar de noche, sin ser amanecido."

10. Ibid., "en el seno, o en la cintura hacia a la carne."

11. Ibid., "si esto no se hacia aquellos creaturas, quedarsen tiesos de las asquinas; y . . . sobre ellos, crujirian, quando los caminaban."

Thirty-sixth Chapter, which telleth of the sweat house.

Although the sweat house were very hot, where all bathed, if one known as a twin went there, then he would dispel the steam and destroy [the heat], however hot the sweat house were — even if he went to stand only at the doorway; even more so if he were to bathe among [the others]. But thus could he remedy it; it was said that four times he himself cast potsherds on the ground and sprinkled them with water. It was thought that thus he would not dispel the heat. It would be even hotter.

And when two were born who were called twins, it was said that wherever something was dyed, when [someone] dyed rabbit fur, they might not enter there. If they were to enter there, it was said, they would cast a spell over it; they would blow the colors off. It would come out badly — it would become multicolored, especially [if the dye were] chili red. But thus was it remedied: [the dyer] made him taste the dye water. It was said that in this way the rabbit fur would not be damaged.

Likewise, neither might those known as twins enter where tamales were cooking; because, it was said, if they came in there, they would also bewitch the tamales and the cooking pot. They would not cook, though [left there] all day. The tamales would each one cook only on one side. And in order to remedy it, so that it would not thus happen, when perhaps they went to enter, they placed the cooking pot on the fire. And if by chance the tamales were placed in the pot in [their] presence, they made them lay one [of them] in place. It was said that thus the tamales would not be harmed.

Thirty-seventh Chapter, which telleth of the time when the teeth of small children dropped.

When the teeth of small children dropped out, the mothers cast them into a mouse-hole, or they said to their children: "Place it in the mouse-hole." For it was said that if they were not to do this, the small child's teeth could not grow. He would remain quite toothless.

• • •

These superstitions harm the Faith, and therefore it is well to recognize them. Only these few have

Injc cempoalli on castolli ocs capítulo, ytechpa tlatos: in temazcalli. 343 515 845

In temazcalli, in vncan netemalo: intlanel cenca totonquj, intla vmpa ias, in motemoca cocoa: ajmá quijpouhtitlaça, quijpolos injc cenca totonquj ocatca in temazcalli: intlanel çan quijacac onmoquetzatiuh: oc cenca intla tehcan motemaz. Auh injc patiz quijl nappa in vel inoma contlaçaz, in conatequjz tapalcatl: quijl ic amo quijpolos, injc totonquj: çan oc cenca totonquj iez.

Ioan in vmêtin tlacati, in mjtoa cocoa, quijlmach in canjn tlapalô, in quipa tochomjtl: amo vel vmpa calaquj: yntla vmpa calaquja, quijlmach quijxoxa, quipitza in tlapalli: amo qualli in quiça, çan mocujcujcujlos: oc cenca yehoatl in chichîtic. Auh injc patiz achi contlapalohtia in tlapalatl: quijl ic amo ytlacaviz in tochomjtl. 845 386

No yoan iñ ichoantin in mjtoa cocoa, in cahjn mopaoaci tamalli: amono vel vmpa calaquj: ichica quijlmach intla vmpa calaquijzaque, no quijxoxa in tamalli, yoan in comjtl: amo vel ycuci, intlanel cemjlhujtl: çan chichicoycuciz in tamalli. Auh injc patî, injc amo iuh muchiouz: in jquac tla ocalaquijto, contlatiz in comjtl. Auh intlanoçe ijxpan mocontema tamalli, centetl ipan cointlalilia: quijl ic amo ytlacaviz in tamalli. 845 252

Injc cempoalli on castolli omome capitulo, itechpa tlatos: in jquac vetzi intlan pipiltontli. 856

In jquac vetzi intlan pipiltontli: yn tenanoan itlacoiocco contlaça in quijmjchin, anoçe inpilhoan, quijmjlhuja: ytlacoiocco xictlali in quijmjchins ichica quijl intlacamo iuh quijchiouzque, amo vel iuoz in jtlan piltontli: çan tlancotoctic iez.

• • •

Estas abusiones, empecen a la fe: y por esso, conuiene sabellas, y predicar, contra ellas. Aunque pocos,

6

776 Twelfth Chapter, which treats of the Goddess of Vice (Tlaçolteotl).[55]

Tlaçolteotl was also called Ixcuina, and also Tlaelquani. As to the name Tlaçolteotl: it was said that it was because her realm was that of evil and perverseness—that is to say, lawful and debauched living. It was said that she ruled and was mistress of luxury and debauchery.

776 551 And as to her name Ixcuina: it was said there were four women—the first named Tiecapan (the older sister), the second Teiri (the younger sister), the third named Tlaco (the middle sister), the fourth named Xocotzin (the younger sister).[56] These four women, it was said, were god[desses]. These, each separately, were called goddesses of luxury (Tlaçolteoxo).

And as for her being called Tlaelquani:[57] it was said it was because one told, one placed before her, all vanities; one told, one spread, before her all [one's] unclean works—[783] however ugly, however grave; avoiding nothing because of shame. One exposed all before her, [and] made one's confession in her presence.

776 It was said: evil and perverseness, debauched living—these Tlaçolteotl offered, inflamed, inspired. And likewise she forgave. At her whim, she removed the corruption; she cleansed; she washed. In her hand lay the [cleansing] grass and yellow waters.[58]

[783] And thus she purificated; thus, at her whim, she removed the corruption. In her presence confession was made; before Tlaçolteotl the heart was opened; before her one revealed, one told one's sins.

793 776 And her warden[59]—he who saw for her—was a seer,[60]

Juic mattectli ynnemac capitulo: ytechpa tlatoa ya tlaçolteotl.

In tlaçolteotl: ynnic ixcuinjoa, ynnic ixcuic tlaelquanij. Juic mattectlatia tlaçolteotl, quijl ipampa, quijl ixtecol ynnemac, ytlamapij, ytech panij, in tecuhtli, in tlaçolli: in quijnemacpij, ovilnemjlizuiti, quijl ipan tecui, ypan tlamamai, ya mojtlamjlizquiti.

Auh yejc ixcuic, ixcuijoa: quijl mitlani cuuh, in cioa: yejc ce ynnic tiecapan, yejc ynnic teiri, yejc ynnic tlaco, yejc ynnic xocotzin: yejc nenj ixcuic necuinin. Jnijquac hin, ynnijnin cioa: quijl tetec. Jnijquac hin, cocoioc ynnic: tlaçolteoxo.

Auh yejc mattectlatia tlaelquanij: quijl ipampa, intapil mojoa, intapan mopan, ya jnnijch mopalli: ilapan mojoa, mocuelaoa, ya jnnijch tlaelilachiualli: inmamel cioca tomamachuhi, iramamel cioca cujh: ayic mopinovincoa, vel mochi, ilapan pani, ilapan mojoa. Notelaelacoaltiti.

Quijmach in tlaçolli, in tecuhtli, in mojhuapilotiti: ichtecol quijmacac, ic tetecuhtia, ic ychipiua in tlaçolteotl. Auh çan no ichtecol, quijpapalilouja: ichtecol chico, ximac quijujca, quijoca: ichtecol, tepapaca, ychalcia: ichtecol ixtac nenj ya mocelaol, in mopalol.

Auh injc quijpapalilouja yejc chico, tlamamac, quijujca, quijoca: ilapan mitlacujtilia, ilapan mitlamatlaoalia, ya tlaçolteotl, ilapil mopan, mojhua, in mitlachiual.

Auh in, ynnemac, ynnemacuh tecuhtlac, in tlapochpoj, in

---

55. The chapter on Tlaçolteotl is not included in MS Academia de la Historia nor MS Biblioteca del Palacio. Hence it is not among manuscripts in Seler's Ensayo Especial nor, probably, elsewhere.

56. Cf. Eduard Seler, Fundamental of the Aztec Collection, p. 99: "It is the goddess who is by the interpreters called Ixcuinan, 'she of the two faces' or 'of two-colored face,' and Tlaçolteotl, 'Goddess of Dirt,' and is explained as goddess of lust, of sensual love, and as patroness of adulterers. . . . She, this goddess, or these goddesses—for under the designation Ixcuina, she was thought of as in the plural number, and, indeed, as named by Sahagún in his first book, as four sisters of different age—was the deity who according to this legend, introduced the peculiar kind of sacrifice which was offered to the earth—the throwing to death with arrows." The names of these four sisters were common girls' names. See p. 41.

57. Name of filth or of sickness (Siméon: op. cit., pp. 92, 94). Sahagún's corresponding Spanish is "revolvera de cosas sucias."

[846] 58. Cf. Eduard Seler, op. cit., p. 97, discussing Chalchihuitlicue and Tlaçolteotl: ". . . the water . . . is not only emblematic of the transitory and evanescent of earthly being, in that it sweeps away all things, but is also the symbol of purification and cleansing; it removes filth, which is sin. Thus speaks the midwife when four days after its birth she subjects the child to a ceremonious washing: 'My son, come unto thy Mother, the Goddess of Water, Chalchihuitlicue. May she cleanse of the dirt which does hurt of thy father and thy mother' . . . . 'My son, come to thy Mother, thy Father, the Lady Chalchihuitlicue, the Lord Chalchihuitlicue' . . . cause the water, the blue (Matlalin), the yellow, (Tzapotlan), may it wash thee, may it cleanse thee perfectly, may it take from thee the evil which thou hast from the beginning of the world, which clings to thee from thy father, from thy mother.'" Sahagún (Historia general, Vol. II, pp. 191-2), says ". . . *ceremonia con que la partera ruega a la diosa del agua llamada Chalchihuitlicue y Chalchihuitlicue, y dicele así: 'Señora nuestra Chalchihuitlicue y Chalchihuitlicue, revuelve ha a nuestra presencia este criatura: mirgnos que la revuelva.' Dicho esto la partera tomaba el agua arriba sobre dicha su revuelta, y luego la daba a gustar a la criatura y también la vertía el pecho con ella, y al volverse de la cabeza, a nuestra de nuestro se pone al dios y criatura a los niños,' y derivale de esta manera: 'Hijo mío muy amado,—y a ese mujer diosa, hija mía muy amada—, llegaos a nuestra madre y pedirle la señora Chalchihuitlicue y Chalchihuitlicue; almorar ella, porque ella es la de lavar a criatura y en los hombres en este mundo.' Y luego metía en el agua a la criatura, y decía: 'Entra hija mía—a hija mía—en el agua, que es llama Matlalin y Tzapotlan; lávase en ella, limpiarse de que está en mal lugar, y saque por bien de apartar de ese mal que traía con ese desde antes del principio del mundo.'" Seler (loc. cit.) establishes a comparison between Chalchihuitlicue and Tlaçolteotl. In the fifth work of the Fundamental of the Aztec Collection, which is ruled over by Chalchihuitlicue, the water goddess holds the hand of Tlaçolteotl in her hand. In the Codex Borbonicus for the corresponding fifth week, a stream of water issues from the throne of the water goddess and in the contrast is the breakthrow of Tlaçolteotl. These two illustrations mentioned Seler's remarks on the relationship between the two.

59. See Sahagún: Florentine Codex, Lib VI, cap. xiii (text, commentary); also Historia general, Vol. II, p. 208.

60. See Chap. VIII. Seler (Ensayo Especial, p. 5) uses the term Kalendermachenden.

846 Thirty-fourth Chapter, in which are told and mentioned what they did when they visited women recently delivered, and other things which were done where a woman recently delivered dwelt.

And here it is told that when a child was born, and when [the mother's] relatives knew of it, and it was known and the news spread and was noised abroad, her family and blood relations were assembled and brought together. They set forth, and came and proceeded to visit the much revered child.

When they entered, at the very first, they took ashes; they anointed their knees with ashes; they rubbed themselves. And also they put ashes on the knees of their children yet in the cradles; or those still crawling, going on all fours; those who stood, who already took to their feet; the boys, girls, youths, young men, unmarried girls, and young women. Everywhere, on all parts of the body they placed ashes; on every joint and articulation: their ankles, their elbows, their buttocks, over the kidneys, the napes of their necks, their shoulders, but especially their knees.

[751] And it was so said and averred that thereby they would not become lame. But if this were not so done, they would become lame, and all the joints, in every place, would creak.

846 And also for four days they carefully watched the fire. It never went out. It continued to flare up, to 372 grow and increase, to flare red. They thus carefully started it; it was well set. And no one might take the fire. And if anyone wished to take the fire, or a light, they would not give it to him, lest he take renown from the child who had been born, until the [851] four days had ended, or for still a few days, when they bathed him.

Injc cempoalli ommatlactli onnavi capitulo, vncan mjtoa, noteneoa: in tlein qujchioaia in qujmoztlapalcoia in mjxiuhque: yoan in oc cequj in muchioaia, in vncan onoca mjxiuhquj.

Auh njcan mjtoa: in jquac aquja tla otlacat piltontli: in ocommatque yoxiolque, in onmachoc, in otepan oceçman, in otepan onmoteccac. Niman ic nenechicolo, necenquixtilo, in jtlacaioean, in jcujtlaxcolloc eca, viloa, pipilioa in qujtlapalozque, in jxco, ijcpac, tlichiazque piltontli.

In iquac oncalacque, oc ic achto cuncuj in nextli: ic onmotlanquancxvia, onmomamatiloa: yoan no qujmontlanquancxuja in inpilhoan, in oc coçulti, anoço in ic movilana, coionenemj, in ic moquequeza, in ic imjccij caana in oqujchpipiltotonti, in cioapipiltotonti, in telpupuchpipil, telpucatoton, ichpupuchpipil, ichpocatoton: novian qujotlatlalilia in nextli, in jxquican inçaçaliuhian, in jmjhilpicaiocan, in jnquequsuititech, in jnmolicpi ytech, yn jntzintenpan, in incujtlacaxiuhian, in jnquechtepultitech, in jnacolpan: oc cenca ichoatl in jntlanquac.

Iuh mjtoa, qujlmach ic amo tlanquananatzinjzque: auh intlacamo yuh muchioa, tlanquananatzinjzque: yoan nanatzinjz, in jzquican in çaçaliuhian.

Auh yoan xavilhujtl in vel quipia tletl aquēman cevi, xotlatica, oalantica, oacalantica, mopipitztica, vel quicpeoa, vel ic peuhtica: yoan xiac vel ontlecuj. Auh intla aca ontlecujznequj tletlecujc: amo qujmaca, injc amo qujtleiocujlizque piltontli, in otlacat: izquichica in ontlamj xavilhujtl: anoço in oc izquilhujtl calitzque.

[p. 112 is blank]

844 Ninth Chapter, which telleth of the umbilical cord.[7]

Injc chicuacuaui capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa in tuxic.

The time of cutting the umbilical cord of small children was also [one of] their delusions. If it were the umbilical cord of a boy, they buried it far away. The brave warriors hung it on themselves and bore it with them into battle.[8] And if the father were skilled in war, he left it; he buried it there, in the midst of the battle ground. It was said that [the child] would be skilled in war, if he grew.

In jquac quintictequja pipiltotonti: no oncatca innetlapololtiliz. Intla oquijchtli ixic, veca in costocaia: vmpan iauc, tetech conpilcoaia, quijtequjja in tiacoan: auh intla iauc matinj teta, ichoatl coscaoaia: vmpa costocaia in iauecpantla, quijlmach: iauc matinj yex intla veijac.

And if it were the umbilical cord of a girl, they only buried it at the edge of the hearth. It was said that this was because her abode was only the house; only and alone she took charge of drink and food, dwelling by the grinding stone. For this reason only in the house did they bury her umbilical cord.

Auh intla cioapiltontli ixic: çan netlecujltenco in costocaia, quijlmach ipampa: yn çan cali ynentla, in çan ic ixquich quijnocujtlevia atl, tlaqualli, metlatitlan nenemj: ipampa yn, çan calitic costocaia in jxic.

843 Tenth Chapter, which telleth of the pregnant woman.

Injc matlactli capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa in ocxitli.

Of the pregnant woman there also was a delusion of the natives. If a pregnant woman wished to go walking during the night,[9] then she placed a little ash in her bosom.[10] It was said that thereby she protected the child within her, in order that he should not meet [an apparition] somewhere. In this wise she took care of her child.

In jtechpa in ocxitli: no vncatca innetlapololtiliz in njcan tlaca: in ocxitli, intla ioualtica nenemjlnequj: njman ixillan contlalia aquijton nextli, quijlmach ic quijpalevia in jtic ca piltontli: injc amo quijtenamjctiz cana, iuhquja ic quijmalvitiuh ycoxcuh.

846 Eleventh Chapter, which telleth of the woman lately delivered.

Injc matlactli oce capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa in cioatl, in quijnoallacachioa.

Another thing the natives did in their folly. When they would visit one who had [just] borne a child, if they took their [own] children with them, they then quickly placed ashes on their temples, knees, and shins, and everywhere [did they place ashes]. And the woman who applied the ashes sat before the hearth. It was said, if they did not place ashes on the knees of the children, that when they walked, their knees, wrists, ankles, and foreheads would crackle.[11]

No centlamantli a inuequjnamacaio maytia, in njcan tlaca: yn jquac tla quijtlapalonquc mjxiuhquj, intla inpilhoan quijuica: njman ycuaca quijnextiuja incamoacan, in jntlanquac, in jntlanjxco, in ye ixquican tocaçaliuhcan: ican quijnocavia, noviam: auh in tenexhuja tlecujlixquac motlalia, cioatl: quijlmach intlacamo quijntlanquamexvinque yn pipiltotonti: çan tlatlexintiocmja in jntlanqua, in jnamquechtlan, in jnxoquechtlan, yn jnjxquac.

7. Literally, "our navel." Edward Seler, in Einige Kapitel aus dem Geschlechtsleben der Frau Bemerkungen zu Sahagun aus dem Aztekischen übersetzt (Camillo Sofer-Sarbo, Walter Lehmann, and Walter Krickeberg, eds.; Stuttgart: Strecker und Schröder, 1927), pp. 314 ff., translates a comparable passage found in the Academia de la Historia MS.

8. Corresponding Spanish text: "al lugar, donde se daban las batallas."

9. Ibid., "andar de noche, sin ser constreñidas."

10. Ibid., "en el seno, y en la chinera junto a la cama."

11. Ibid., "si acaso no se hacia aquellas cenizas, quebrarse rasgar de las coyunturas: y . . . andar ellas, crujiriae: quando las mesaban."

252 it over." Or if, perchance, her husband had gone somewhere distant, she said: "Now he cometh, for he hath kicked over my tortilla."

napa veca oya, qujtoaia: ca ye hujtz, ca qujonkilicçac yn nothzacal.

861 Fifteenth Chapter, which telleth of small children who licked the surface of the grinding stone.

When small children licked the surface of the grinding stone, the mothers chid and scolded their young ones for it, and restrained them from it, saying to them: "Do not lick the grinding stone; your teeth will thus quickly break and fall out." Because of this, they filled their small children with great fear, so that this would not befall them.

Injc caxtolli captulo, ytechpa tlatoa yn pipiltotonti quixpalos metlatl.

In jquac pipiltotonti quixpapalos metlatl: yc teoaia, yc quimaoaia, yc quintlacaoaltiaia in tenancan yn inpilhoan, quimilhujaia: macamo xicpapalocan in metlatl, yc iciuhca cocotoniz, yciuhca vevetziz in amotlan. Ipampa yn, cenca quinimacaxiltiaia in pipiltotonti: injc amo iuh ynpan muchioaz.

Sixteenth Chapter, which telleth of him who leaned against a square pillar.

When they saw one who leaned against a square pillar, there also was folly of the natives;[15] they chid him for it, and restrained him from doing so; they prevented their children from doing it. They said to them: "Do not lean against the pillar; it is a liar." Thus did they speak: "It giveth one lies; it is like unto one who lieth." [With] this, they terrified the children lest such might befall them and they tell lies.

Injc caxtolli oce capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa: yn aquin itech motlazticac tlaquetzalli.

In jquac aca quittaia, in itech motlazticac tlaquetzalli: no vncateca innetlapolchtiiiz, in njcan tla: yc teoaia, ic tetlacaoaltiaia, ic quintlacaoaltiaia in ynpilhoan, quimilhujaia: macamo ytech ximotlazztica in tlaquetzalli, yhiztlacati: iuh quitoaia: ca ichoatl quitemaca in itzlacatilizti, itech quicuj: in aquin ihiztlacati. Injn, cenca quinimacaxiltiaia in tepilhoan: injc amo iuh inpan muchioaz, ynic amo yhiztlacatinque.

861 264 Seventeenth Chapter, which telleth of the maidens who ate standing.

In times past, when the natives saw their maidens eat standing, they also restrained them from it. They prevented their children from doing so. They said to them: "Eat not while thou art standing. Thou wilt marry far from here.—Who will follow thee?" It was said that it would befall one that she would marry in a distant place; she would be taken somewhere far away, not in her own city where she lived.

Injc caxtolli omome capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa yn ychpupuchti in çan moquequetztimanj tlaqua.

In ie vecauh in njcan tlaca: in jquac in quinittaia in inichpuchoan ꝗ çan moquequetztimanj tlaqua: no yc tetlacaoaltiaia, ic quintlacaoaltiaia in inpilhoan, quimilhujaia: macamo ximoquetztica in titlaqua, veca timoochotiz, ac mitzicxitocaz: quilmach ichoatl ipan muchioaia, in veca moquichvatia, in cana veca vico: in amo yaltepeuh ipan nemj.

●846 753 Eighteenth Chapter, which telleth how maize cobs were burned.

When one had just given birth to a child, she who, residing there, had given birth should not then burn maize cobs. It was said that if there [maize cobs]

Injc caxtolli omey capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa: in quemja motlatia olotl.

In jquac aca mixivia, avel vncan quitlatiaia in olotl: in vncan onoc mixiuhquj, quijl intla vncan tlatlaz: yc ichchichitinia in piltontli. Auh intla ça were to be burned, because of it the child's face would be pock-marked.[16] And if maize cobs were to burn there, first she passed and carried them before the child's face,[17] so that such would not befall him — so that his face would not be pock-marked.

15. In times the maid dance.

vncan tlatlaz in ololtl: achtopa ijxco conquijquixtilia, ijxco convivica in piltontli: injc amo iuh ipan muchioaz, injc amo ichichitinja. 846 753

Ninetenth Chapter, which telleth of the woman with child.

Injc caxtolli onnavi capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa: yn cioatl oztli. 843

The woman with child might not look at one whom they had hanged, because, it was said, when she gave birth, the child would come forth with a cord of flesh wrapped about his neck. Wherefore in times past they frightened pregnant women from doing so.

In cioatl oztli, amo vel quittaz in aquin ie quipilos: yehica, quilmach in jquac mixiviz, nacatica oalquechmecaiotiaz in piltontli. Ipampa yn, ic quimjmacaxiltiaia in ie vecauh in ootzti.

Likewise, when a woman was with child during an eclipse of the sun or moon, she might might not look at it. It was said that if she saw it, her child would be harelipped. But in order to forestall this, the woman with child placed an obsidian knife in her bosom; it was said that thereby her child would not be harelipped.

No yoan yn jquac oztli cioatl, in jquac qualo tonatiuh, anoço metztli: amo vel quittais, quilmach intla quittaz: tenquatic iez in jconeuh. Auh injc quipalevisia oztli: yztli ixillan contecaia, quil ic amo tenquaiviz in piltontli. [821]

Neither might she chew asphalt,[18] it was stated, lest the child be harmed in suckling[19] when he was born. And she could not walk about at night; it was felt that her child would be one who cried much. Likewise men might not walk about by night; perhaps they would come upon a ghost; perhaps the child would suffer a sickness of the heart. And so that this would not happen, the woman with child placed a pebble, or ashes from the hearth, or wormwood,[20] in her bosom. And the men [carried] a pebble, or tobacco [on the chest]; for it was said that also, at that time, [the child] might acquire what they called a swelling.[21]

Amono vel quiquaquaz in chapuputli, quil ic amo motentzoponjz in piltontli: in jquac otlacat. Yoan amo vel iooal nenemiz, quil cenca chocanj iez in jconeuh: no iuhquj in toquichtin: amono vel iooal nenemjz, anoçe itla quimonamjctiz, aço mjmjquiz. Auh injc amo iuh ipan muchioaz oztli: xaltetl, anoço tieconextli ixillan quitema, anoço iztaiahiatl. Auh in toquichtin xaltetl, anoço picietl: iehica quil no vncan quicuj, in quitoa: aiomama. 843 753

16. Corresponding Spanish text: "la cara del niño, que mejo manchaba; antes parecia o hoyosa."

17. Ibid.: "encendian primero en la cara del niño, llevandolos por encima; sin tocar en la cara."

18. Chapuputli: "especie de asfalto; betún de Judea. . . . Los indios le usaban antiguamente como masticatorio" (chapuputli — Santamaría, op. cit., Vol. I, p. 428). The corresponding Spanish text has "aquel betun, que llamd tinti." On the relationship between tinti and chapuputli, see Sahagún (Garibay ed.), X, 24, 19 and 27; and also Vol. IV, pp. 213, 265, for definitions.

19. Corresponding Spanish text: "enfermedades espantosas, que llamaban mexicanas-espanolas, que nuevos dolos, los criaturas recien nacidas; y causaba de que quando nacen la criatura, si es varon de pronto le sale la sea, de la boca, hinchazon en el paladar; y luego quedo muerta." Cf. also Sahagún (Garibay ed.), Vol. IV, p. 344; and Bustamante de Sahagún: Historia general de las cosas de Nueva España (Carlos María Bustamante, ed.; México: Alejandro Valdés, 1829), Vol. II: "mexicanopedia (hay mexicanito) o sea enfermedades en la respiración, que nuevos de ello los primeros recien nacidos."

20. Iztaiahiatl: "cosa para de ceniza" (corresponding Spanish text); artemisa (Artemisia mexicana Willd.) — "las hojas despiden fuerte olor aromático y tienen sabor amargo. Tiene varias antihelmínticas poderosas" (Santamaría, op. cit., Vol. I, p. 428).

21. Cf. Sahagún (Garibay ed.), Vol. IV, p. 324.

X787 And in this way did the readers of the day signs remedy it: if someone were born on these several 553 days, they passed over them and waited for Seven ●851 Rain. At that time they bathed him, that they might give him a name. For in that way they remedied his fate; then they brought him out at a good time and it resulted at a propitious moment. They made it partly good. Thus they expected that perchance his fate and deserts might become something — if he lived, were well reared, and played his part well; because later, there, they had set in Seven Rain;[2] they put their trust in Seven Rain.

suh injc quipatiaia tonalpouhque, intla aca ipan otlacat inquilhujtl oc cochololtiaia, qujchiehtiaia in chiconqujavitl quinjquac caltiaia inic qujtocamacaque, ipampa ic quipatia in jtonal, vncan qujiecca-quixtia, ieccan quiça, chicoqualtia, ic conjttilia, in aço ça itla ilhujl, imâcoual, muchiostiuh intla nemiz, intla uel ospaoaz, intla uel moquetzaz ipampa oc vncan in chicomatl qujtlaliaia, vel qujtemachiaia in chiconqujavitl.

X787 They said it was a good day. Merciful, pitying, and compassionate was the one born precisely upon it. He became fortunate. It was as if his fortune, his deserts, his good luck rained down upon him: as if it sprinkled on or swirled about him. It was said that verily so was his day sign, Seven Rain.

qujtoaia ca qualli tonalli, icnoca, teicnoittanj, tetla-ocolianj, in aquin vel ipan tlacatia, tlacnopilhujanj muchioaia, iuhquin ipan tzetzelivi, iuhquin ipan pipixauj, iuhquin tocmoloca ilhujl, imâcoual, icnopil, mjtoa ca nel iuhquj itonal in chiconqujavitl.

[851] And he who was born on it was forthwith bathed, and they gave him a name. No longer did they pass over it, or delay or postpone it.

Auh in aquin ipan tlacatia, çan niman iquac maltia, qujtocamaca, aocmo cochololtia, aocmo qujtla-tvîltia, aocmo connechcatlaça:

Nevertheless, the morrow, Eight Flower, which came next and following, was also the same. It, so [851] they said, was also good. If someone were born on it, they also at once bathed him and gave him a name. For this reason they did so: they feared the one which followed in order — Nine Crocodile.

auh tel no iuhquj in imoztlaioc qujtztica, in quj-toqujlitica. Chicuey tuchitl: iuh qujtoaia no qualli, intla aca ipan tlacatia: çan njman no iquac caltiaia, qujtocamacaia, ipampa iuh qujchioaia, y, ichoatl quj-macaçia in oallatoqujlia, chicunavi cipactli:

This, so they said, was in no way good; it was perverse, full of vice. It accorded one rags and tatters. Nothing could become a remedy or cure for the day sign which had followed.

iuh qujtoaia njman amo qualli, amo tlacacemelle, motequjtica teuhtli, tlaçolli, tzoctomatli, tatapatli, quj-tzilhujltia, aoc tle ipatica, aoc tle ipaio mochioa, in qujoaltoqujlia tonalli,

Only and exclusively immersed in and dedicated to evil was the one then born. He was given only to talking; he went wrapped in discussion. Words were his hair. He was hot-tempered.[3] He twisted words. Great was his glee if somewhere there was a shout; there he ran and listened to what was said. If somewhere there was discussion and something was said, he went among the people sowing discord; he went causing disagreements and dissension; he confounded and disunited them.

çaniioca tetlaactica mjxcaujtica, injc amo qualli in aquj ipan tlacatia, çan tlatolli cololotinemj, tlâtolli cololhujtinemj, tlâtoltzon, tlâtolli, itlaqual tlâtolne-cujl, cenca ivelmach intla cana neaio, vmpa motlalos, tecacaquj, intla cana nenonotzalo, itla itolo, tetzalan, tenepantla, motecatinemj, techalanjtinemj, tenetech-cuhtinemj, tetlatolçaçaca triollocôcoltia:

He disregarded and showed no regret for insinuations, spreading rumors, and continued lying. Falsehood and deceit he went about sowing here and there among the people. He interrupted conversa-atle ipan qujtta, amo qujerquanmati in ovitlatolli, in tetzauhtlatolli, ihiztlacati, iztlactli, tenqualactli, tetla-qujquanjtinemj, motlatolcaujcujtlavia, qujtlatlâtlalilia in tlatolli, tlâtolpiquinj, tlatolcampax, tlatolcacam-

2. We have read chicuey as chicuey ell, possibly a misreading of Chicuey quiauitl.

3. Tlatolli tlaquil. Sec Florentine Codex, Book VI, cap. xii; Sahagún (Ordiney ed.), VI, 41, 18: "Iuhca cuecuex gruesos de ulcerosa. Este refrán es dice de aquellos que tratabaian mi poco con algunos palabras dejaron luego ratear en ellaua y ratear y cubrar personas por la boca, y cuando oyan hablar mal de otro luego oyendan."

X 787
776 Tezcatlipoca; he only went withdrawing rule and power from others.

X 787 And of him who was born on the day sign One Death it was said that he would prosper and be rich, whether a nobleman or only a poor vassal. Many were his gifts. Honor came his way and rested on him when he performed well his penances and humbled himself. But if he did not do well the penances, purely by his own act he forsook and harmed his day sign.

Auh in aquin ipã tlacatia itonal ce mjqujztli: mjtoxia mocujltonoz, motlamachtiz, intla pilli, anoço çan maceoaltzintli, muchi inemactia, itech açia, itech pachivia, in maviçotl: iquac in tlauellamaceoa, mocnomati: auh intlacamo uellamaceoa, ca çan ynecujian conmocaujlia, qujmjtlacalhuja yn jtonal.

X 787 If, at this time, someone were born, then they bathed him and gave him a name. Small children
553 performed the naming ceremony.[1] If a boy had been born, they therefore called forth [as his name] Mi-
● 851 quiz, or Yaotl, Cenyaotl, Necoc yaotl, Chicoyaotl, or Yaomauitl. So they placed on him a name of Tezcatlipoca. Of this one it was said: "None may wish him harm: none may wish him to die." If anyone should wish or desire his death, he would simply sicken and suddenly die.

yn jquac, y, tla aca otlacat, njman caltiaia, qujtocamaca, qujxicvenquaqualia in pipiltotonti, intla oquichtli otlacat, ic qujnotza mjquiz, anoço iaotl, ceniaotl, necoc iaotl, chicoiaotl, iaomavitl, ic qujtocamaaia in Tezcatlipuca: injn mjtoaia, aiac vel qujcocoliz, aiac vel qujmjquitlanjz, intla aca qujmjquitlanj, qujmjqujztemachia, çan iẽ in mococolia onmjctiuetzi.

567 At this time it was the day sign of the slaves, the wretched slaves, whose dwelling places were by the [825] hones for sharpening and the grinding stones. None of the slave-owners could scold them, or abuse them with vile words, or call angrily or indignantly to them when they learned that the morrow would be the day sign of Tezcatlipoca. They then, first, took from them, struck off, and removed from them the wooden collars, the curved ones in which they were held and with which they went about restrained lest they flee. Then they soaped them and bathed them, and made much of and flattered them. They showed them great esteem, because, so they thought, they were his likenesses and representatives:[2] his beloved sons. It was said that they were like the blue cotingas, the trupials, the precious birds of Tezcatlipoca. And those who owned slaves warned and on threat of death[3] ordered their children, youths, and growing sons, commanding them sternly and rigorously, not to chide, deal vainly with, nor strike the slaves.

Auh in jquac in catca ipan tonalli: in tlatlacoti, in tlatlacotzitzinti, in teatexatitlan, temetlatitlan innemjan: aiac vel qujmaoaia, aiac vel qujntenquanviaia, qujntlauelnotzaia, qujnqualancanotzaia, in tlacaoaque, in oqujmatque, ca muztla itonalpan iez in Tezcatlipuca: njman achto qujntomaia, qujtequjlia, qujntlaxilia in quauhcozcatl, in coliuhquj, injc pieloia, inic ilpitinenca, injc amo cholozque: njman ic qujmamoviaia, qujmaltiaia, cenca qujntlaçotlaia, qujnxoxocoiomatia, vel qujnmavizmatia, ipampa iuh qujmatia, ca ixiptlaoa, ipatilloos, ytlaçopilhoan, mjtoa iuhqujn iquecholhoan, içaquantotooa, itlaçototooan in Tezcatlipuca: auh in tlacaoaque, vel qujnnemachtiaia, qujmjqujznaoatiaia, qujntlaquauhnaoatiaia, qujntepitznaoatiaiaia, in impilhoan, in jntlazcaltilhoan, yn intlaoapaoalhoan: injc amo qujmaoazque qujncuecuenochichioazque, anoço qujnvitequjzque in tlacaoã:

1. Of this ceremony, the Spanish text reads: "combidauan a los niños, y les daban de comer: para q̃ crijassen el cuerpo, del que avia nacido: y le diadiquassen a honor, por los calles." Eduard Seler, in Einige Kapitel aus dem Geschichtswerk des Fray Bernardino de Sahagun (Stuttgart: Strecker and Schröder, 1927), p. 315, translates an explanatory passage from the Academia de la Historia MS: ninoan ye ic quinomotlas in oquichpipiltzintli ic iquac onallaque ninoan ye ic quinnamaca in iniuan onilatlami[a] in ilcin yeoa auh quinilhuia in ayo yaui anoço ninzili auh ninoan ye ic tzatzilini quihuica ninelhuis tecuiuaue ximiciuauaquaqui i yaui yquac quicaquiztlia in iuca inic uichi tlauil ic quinotzas — dann ruft er die Knaben. Nachdem sie gekommen sind, gibt er ihnen die Nahrungsmittel und fragt (die Angehörigen), wie er heisst, und er nennt ihnen (die Namen) Yaotl oder Tlauil (Krieger oder Kolibri). Und darauf fangen sie an zu schreien und sprechen: "Kommt her, Freunde, das Nahrungsmittel Yaotl ruft." Dann nachdem sie seinen Namen (der Kinder), mit dem alle er nennen sollen.

2. See Florentine Codex, Book VI, fol. 203v.

3. Quinzpitzuauitiaia: the term so appears in the Nahuatl column.

1 [i.e., One Death.—Analyst]

681 696 And then also at that time died those who were in jail, who were there for something which demanded the supreme penalty: perhaps an adulterer, or a thief, or a fire priest of whom something had been found out — perchance he had had a paramour — and who was known as an evildoer; or whatsoever sin he had committed. Also of the captives some then died.

Auh yoan no iquac vncã mjquja in quauhcalco onoca, in jtla ic cate, in vei quijtzacuticatca, aço tetlanxinquj, anoço ichtecquj, in anoço tlenamacac, itla oittililoc, aço momecati, in moteneoa tlaçolchiuhque in çaço catle in ovi oquijtlaco: no ichoan in mamaltin, cequjntin vncan mjquja, 643 761 It was said that through these Moctezuma received life. By them his fate was strengthened; by them he was exalted, and on them he placed the burden. So it was said that it was as if through them once more he were rejuvenated, so that he might live many years. Through them he became famous, achieved honor, and became brave, thereby making himself terrifying.

mjtoa: ca ichoan inca moxcaltiaia in motecuçoma, inca motonalchicaoaia, inca moquetzaia, inca moquijxtiaia, iuh mjtoa: iuhqujn oc ceppa inca mopilquijxtiaia, ynjc vecaoaz, inca motleiotia, momaujçotia, motequantlalia, ic motlamauhtilia.

A 787 ●651 And when someone was then born,[5] they feared that the [Goddesses] might at that time descend. But later, on Three Crocodile, he was bathed; then they made his fate somewhat better, for, so it was said, Three Crocodile was a good time.

Auh in aqujn ipan tlacatia, qujmacacia injc vncan temoa: auh qujn jpan in ei cipactli, maltiaia, vncan achi qujqualtilia in jtonal, iuh mjtoa: ca qualcan in jpan ey cipactli.

A 787 754 791 And also it was said that he who was then born a nobleman became a sorcerer, an astrologer.[6] That is to say, he was inhuman. He changed himself into something [else]; because of it he turned himself into something [else]. Perchance he had as a disguise a wild beast,[8] etc.

No yoan mjtoaia: in aqujn ipan tlacatia pilli, naoalli mochioaia tlâciuhqui, qujtoznequj: amo tlacatl, itla qujmonaoaltiaia, itlã ic mocuepaia, aço tequannaoale. Etc.

And if [he were] a commoner, likewise it was his work to turn himself into perhaps a turkey, or a weasel, or a dog. Whatsoever was his guise became his magic form. All his task was to assume and accumulate all manner of evil. He influenced women; he bewitched and was clever with women;

auh intla maceoalli, no iuhquj itequjuh catca, aço totoli, aço coçamatl, anoço chichi, ipan moquijxtiaia, in çaço tlein inecuepaliz, ynaoal mochioaia, muchi itequjuh, qujcenmama, qujcemololoa, in jxqujch tlauelilocaiotl, cioanotzquj, xochioa, cioatlatole, tempachioace, tetlatlacuepili, teiolmalacacho, teioiolmala-

---

5. An additional phrase in the Real Palacio M1 will change the meaning somewhat: ayamo mahiaya, ypampa — and when someone was that born, not then was he bathed for they feared. . . .

4. Angel María Garibay K., "Paralipómenos de Sahagún," Tlalocan, II, 2 (1946), p. 171.

5. Ibid., pp. 170-172: "en primer término significó . . . algo así como un 'demonio familiar,' o un 'doble' del alma, a manera del epipelo [citing a passage in La leyenda de los soles]. . . . De esta primaria significación pasó a la de la 'duplicidad de la persona,' o el 'desdoblamiento.' . . . Se consiste el brujo capaz de tomar las formas que él quiera, de aparecer en diversos modos y lugares, de ejecutar obras que no son del hombre común: hay en él algo más que hombre: hay un nahualli poderoso y multiplicado." Derivation of the word may be from nahuali, nahuala, "verbo arcaico, que encontramos en muchos compuestos. Su sentido es en general 'engañar, disimular' y conviene muy bien al prestidigitador, como al mago, que con embustes, fundados o sólo subjetivos, embaucan a las gentes. En Molina hallamos, entre otros, los verbos: nahualcaqui, entrar disimulado, con engaño, secretamente; nahualcuilia, tomar algo a otro con cautela o disimulación; nahuallachia, acechar mirando, etc. Cabe dudar, sin embargo, si este verbo es el primitivo de nahualli o su derivado suyo."

In Hernando Ruiz de Alarcón, Pedro Sánchez de Aguilar, and Gonzalo de Balsalobre: Tratado de las idolatrías, supersticiones, dioses, ritos, hechicerías y otras costumbres gentílicas de las razas aborígenes de México (México: Ediciones Fuente Cultural, 1953), pp. 24 ff., it is said that "es deificaban al animal que el demonio les señalaba para que fuesen lo que llaman nahualli. . . .

". . . quando el niño nace, el demonio por el parto expresaba o tacito que sus padres tienen con el, le dedica o sujeta al animal, que el dicho niño ha de tener por nahual, que es como decir por dueño de su necesidad y señor de sus acciones o lo que los gentiles llamaban hado, y en virtud deste punto queda el niño sujeto a todos los peligros y trabajos que padeciere el animal hasta la muerte.

". . . adverso la denominación y significación del nombre nahualli, que puede derivarse de una de tres raíces que significan: la primera, mandar; la segunda, hablar con imperio; la tercera, ocultarse o refugiarse, y excepto en consonancias para que se acomoden las dos primeras significaciones, me quedo con la tercera, que es del verbo nahualchia que es encontrarse embriaguezas con algo, que viene a ser lo mismo que refugiarse, y así, nahualli dice refugiado, o disfrazado debajo de la apariencia del tal animal, como ellos comunmente lo creen."

See also Chap. 31, n. 1, infra.

42

1/A [i.e., the day One Rain. – Ann lyst]

Thirteenth Chapter. Here is told and mentioned what was an evil manifestation for him who stumbled or fell at this time; and the evil which befell those born at this time, in the eighth house, called Eight Death. Here are told all the various kinds of evil which belonged with [the day signs].

Likewise was it said: no one [on the day sign Four Wind] might quarrel, nor fall, nor trip, nor stumble, nor sprain an ankle, nor break nor twist a foot. So there was apprehension. It was said: "O that this may not always be! He is affected by Four Wind." That is to say, he was hurt on Four Wind.

And also it is told that as to him who was then born, the readers of the day signs made it favorable for him and provided him with merits. He would, so they said, become rich and a chieftain, a brave warrior; he would become terrifying and menacing; he would gain honor; he would be of a strong day sign. And they did not yet bathe him, [they bathed him later][1] on Seven Serpent. So they said that they made the day sign even stronger for him so that he became very rich, provided with merits, gifts, and good deserts. For [the day sign] Seven Serpent represented our sustenance—grains of dried maize, completely edible. And so they said that the days of the seventh place were always a time of good.

But Five House and Six Lizard, which followed, as hath been said, were in no way good day signs. Both were the times of ritual to Macuilxochitl and Mictlan tecutli. For the one born at this time, man or woman, nothing resulted as his deserts. He labored only in vain; his fate, deserts, and gifts were full of misery. And he was only given to talk, completely enveloped in talk. He was hot-tempered.[2] He reprimanded people; he only knew how to agitate them and cause them to riot. So it was said, so was he reprimanded, when he restrained one from doing something, belabored one in something, or besmirched someone: "At least sometimes the brute is human! The vile brute, the mean and vile-tongued one, the fool! What can be done? His is the day

Injc matlactli vmey capitulo, vncan mjtoa: qujlmach amo qualli inezca catca, in aquin moteputlamjaia, in anoço vetzia, yn ipan jn: ioan in amo qualli inpan muchioaia, in aquiquc vncan tlacatia, in jpã ic chicuetetl calli: yn jtoca chicuey mjqujztli: vncan moteneoa in jzquitlamantli in amo qualli intech ca 787x

No ioan mjtoa: aiac vel maoaia, anoço motlaujtequja, motepotlamja, motecujnja, moxoquechaquja, moxocuetlanja, mocxicueloa: ic tlatenmachililoia, tholoia, ma qujcencuj, ca omonauecauj, qujtoznequj: ca nauecatl in jpan omococo. 784

No ioan mjtoa: in aquin ypan tlacatia, qujpãtiaia, qujnemactiaia, in tonalpouhque, iuh qujtoaia: mocujltonoz, ioan tiacauhtiz, oqujchtiz, tlamauhtiz, tlamamauhtiz, momaujzçotiz, tonalchicaoac iez: auh aiamo caltiaia, in jpan chicome coatl, iuh qujtoaia: oc cenca vel ipan qujtonalchicaoaia, injc cenca mocujltonoz, injc mãceoale, nemaque, ilhujle, mochioaz: ipampa in chicome coatl ca qujxiptlatiaia in tonacaiotl, in tlaolli, motqujtica qualonj: ioan in iuh qujtoa, in chicometeoaia ipan tonalli, muchipa qualcan. 787x [851]

Auh in quioaltoqujlia macujlli calli, ioan chiquacen cuetzpalin: iuh mjtoaia: njmã amo qualli tonalli, in jonteixtin, y, in tlatoaian macujlxochitl, ioan mjctlan tecutli: in aquin ipan tlacatia in oquichtli, in çioatl, njman atle imãceoal mochioaia, çan oalnenenquçaia, motqujtica netolinjliztli, in ilhujl, in jmãceoal, ynemac, ioan çan tlatolli cololotinemj; tlatolli cololhujtinemj, tlatolli itlaqual, tlacatl quicãcetztinemj, çan ic nemj in tlacatl quicuecuetlanja, tlacatl quicocomonja, iuh mjtoa injc aio: in iquac on oitla contechicoalti, in on oitla contecaujlti, in on oitla ic onteatlatzicujnj, macel ica ontlacanemj in tlapalpul, iollochicopul, iollopatlachpul, iollotlauelilocapul, quennel noço macujltonale, ca ie iuhque in mamacujltonaleque, aquen tlatta, ca nel ic monotz-

1. The words quin ompa ouhtiaia in the Real Palacio MS give this phrase.
2. See Note 3, Chapter 8, supra.

secret. They were sowers of discord, of gossip,[6] who spoke with tongue in cheek; spreaders of tales. They confused, confounded, and rejected the counsel of elders. They wished not to be deflated. They were not people of honor. These same dedicated themselves to and paid strict attention to constant evil. It was their only labor. All [their] acts and efforts were repeated adultery, thievery, absconding with tribute; making off with many things by trickery, coveting, and deceiving. They were trouble-makers, interpreters of dreams, who brought others into sin, sold goods in secret, sold people in secret, spirited people away, and misled them, calling them by trickery.

icentequjuh in tlatlauelilocaiotl, much ichivil, much itequjuh, tetlâtlanxima, yichtequj, tlâtlaixpachoa, tlatlanaoalchioa, tetlâtlaixtoqujlia, tetlâtlaxiqujttilia, teóvicanaquja, tetlatlanamjctia, tetlatlacolnamjctia, tlatlachtacanamaca, teiichtacanamaca, teiichtacaujca, tenanaoalhujca, tenanaoalnotza, 787x

None of his own food did he eat. He lived with other people, going from house to house, entering others' dwellings.

much aitlaqual in qujqua, teca nenemj, tecacalpanoa, tepan cacalactinemj:

As he had been born, so he grew, shameful and deranged. Then at the start of his childhood, as he had grown in years, incorrigible, too lazy to heed the discourse, he answered impudently or blamed someone else. He was one who became wroth, who turned his face aside in rage and tossed his head in anger, who hung his head. Anger was in his face. He was completely full of evil; wickedness was deep in him. He was perverted, rude; of wicked, evil tongue. Everyone dreaded his tongue and his words. None could equal him in conversation nor best him in talking. So it was said of him: "He is perverted; only words are his lot; he is of evil temper." No man's name gave they him. Everywhere he remained aside from people. He was infamous; he remained a burden to people. Hence was he reviled, proscribed, suspected. Everywhere his life and deeds were regarded with dread. For truly, he had been born in a time of vice and sin. That is to say, indeed, only to be reviled was his gift: nothing good, nothing fine.

njman iuh qujça, njman iuh mozcaltia, in aquen tlatta, in atlacacemelle njmã ipan pilpeoa, njman ipan mooapaoa, in auel monotza, aiel qujcaqujz in tlatolli, çan ie tenananqujlia, tepan qujcuepa, tlatlauelchioanj, mjixtlaça, moquaquatlaça, iixcueloa, mjixcueloa, vel qujmaxilti, iolaçic, tlueliloc, vel iollocujcujtla, âtentlacatl, tentlaueliloc, muchi tlacatl qujtenjmacaçi, qujtlatolimacaçi, aiac qujtenaci, aiac vel qujtempanavia, iee injc mjtoa: atlacacemelle, çan tlatolli ilhujl, tlatolli itlaqual, aiac itlacatocaia, noviian tetenco caca, tepan onoc, tepan cenmantoc, injc aujlqujzquj, tlaitolli, tlaztacolli, noviian mauhcaitto in jnemjliz, in jtlachioal, ca nel iuhcan tlacat, in tlaçoltitlan, teuhtitlan, qujtoznequj: ca çan motqujtica aujlqujzcaiotl, in jnemac, atle qualli, atle iectli:

And the readers of the day signs bettered and remedied the nature of the day sign on which the useless one was born. They arranged that later, upon Ten Rabbit, he would be bathed and given a name. They said that if he should live, perhaps something would be his deserts, though not forthwith. Still by pain and suffering of mind and body, by his penances, he would achieve that which was to be his gift. Later, himself and of his own effort, he would achieve and acquire it, as hath already been said in many places.

auh in nen ic qujqualtiaia, qujqualtiliaia tonalpouhque, in iuhquj itonal ipan otlacat, qujn ipan quitlatlaliliaia, in matlactetl tochtli: injc ipan oaltiz, qujtocamacazque, qujtoaia: intla nemjz aço ça itla imâceoaltiz, iece camo caxcanviz, oc totoneoaz, chichihinacaz in jiollo, in jnacaio, itla maceoaliztica qujcnopilhujz, in jnemac mochioaz, qujn inoma, qujn ixcoian qujmjxnextiliz, qujn qujnomaviz, qujn qujmonomaviliz: in iuh ie mjieccan omotenieuh. [851 553]

6. Transcribed in the Real Palacio MS.

[p.52 is blank]

X 787 Fourteenth Chapter, which telleth of the good day signs which correspond to the four houses in this sign; and it was said that the day signs of those then born were good.

And the one day sign, the one day count Ten Rabbit, so it was said, was a very good time. Whoever was then born, whether man or woman, was of great deserts, great gifts, and riches. For just so was it said of the tenth position, when [the day sign] became the tenth. On the tenth day sign, it was always a favorable time, of gifts and recompense, as in its seperate accounts[1] hath already been told. But not then, at that time, did they bathe him, on the day sign on which he had been born. They always directed their attention there to the closing day sign, later, when they bathed him and gave him a name, on [Thirteen][2] Monkey; because thereby they greatly strengthened the day sign; they improved his day sign. For, so it was said, a very good time was the closing day sign, the ending and concluding day sign, as will be told in its account.

[85] 553

And the following Eleven Water, and Twelve Dog, and the concluding Thirteen Monkey, as many as these were favorable. Ten Rabbit drew, dragged, amplified, and helped all of them, so that all four were good. It was said that anyone who was born upon these various day signs became a highly favored person; he succeeded and endured on earth.

That is to say, he was not deflated; not one of the least nor the last; nor a man without recognition. He was well respected and recognized; he was famed and honored; hence he was one who prospered, enjoyed glory, was compassionate, and served others. As a chieftain, he was strong, daring in battle, esteemed, intrepid, able, sharp-witted, quick-acting[3] prudent, sage, learned, and discreet; an able talker, and attentive. It seemed as if he set forth his dis-

Injc matlactli on navi capitulo: itechpa tlatoa, in qualli, tonalli: in jntech ca in nauhtetl calli: in ipan in machiotl, ioan qujl qualli intonal catca, in aquijque vncan tlacati.

Auh in jpan in cemjlhujtonalli cemjlhujtlapoalli, in matlactli tochtli: iuh mjtoa, cenca qualcan in aqujn vncan tlacatia, in oqujchtli, in çioatl, cenca mâceoale, ilhujle, mocujltonoanj: ipampa no iuh mjtoa, in matlactioaia, in vncā tlamatlacti, in jpan matlactli tonalli, muchipa qualcan, vncan ca ilhujlli, mâceoalli, in iuh ca itlatlatollo, in ie mjeccan omoteneuh: auh aiamo njman caltiaia, in jpan in tonalli otlacat, qujn cen ompa contlachialtiaia in tonaltzonco, ipan caltiaia, qujtocamacaia: in jpan matlactlonnauj oçomatli ipampa injc cenca qujtonalchicaoaia, qujuecapanoaia itonal, ca iuh mjtoa: cenca qualcan in tonaltzonco, in jca tlantica tonalli, in qujtlamjtica tonalli, in iuh ipan moteneoaz itlatollo.

Auli in qujtoqujlia matlactloce atl, ioan matlactlomome itzcujntli, ioan in tlatzonqujxtia, matlactli vmej oçomatli, izqujtetl qualli, muchi qujcentilinja, qujcenvilana, qujncenteteoana, qujncentlatalhuja in matlactli tochtli, ie nauhteixtin qualtin. Mitoa: in aqujn vncan ipan tlacatia in izqujtetl in tonalli: cenca tlacnopilhujanj muchioaia, oalqujçaia, oalnemja in tlalticpac, qujtoznequj: amo patzactzintli, amo çan tetzacuja, amo tlatzinpiloa, amo çan can nenemj, vel ixmacho teixpan icac, moteniotia momaujzçotia, injc mocujltonoanj, injc maujztli, injc tetlaocolianj, injc teca muchioanj: auh injc tiacauh injc chicaoac, injc iaotlauelilloc, injc amo tetlaçaltoca, amo ixmauhquj, ioan injc mozcalianj, ixe, iollo, iollotecujcujl, iolizmatquj, iolizttlamatquj, tlanemjlianj, toltecatl, mjmatinj: ioan vellatoa, vellacaquj, iuhquin mjtic qujte

1. Matlacolli. The Mahuel text could also read Matlacolli.

2. Read matlacolli omei.

3. Cf. yollotemiztli in "Mediciniles con nuvilos," pp. 204, 211.

Fifteenth Chapter, which telleth of the eighth sign, called One Grass, and the evil day signs with it. But it was said that the second house was good. And all the others, of ninth place, and all the others which started with the ninth — the tenth, the eleventh, the twelfth, and the thirteenth[1] — were said all to be good.[2]

One Grass set in. This was said to be in no wise a good day sign: a day of wild beasts, dreadful. The one then born lived only in misery. Though he found his consolation, yet it only disappeared and faded away.[3]

And he begat children. All his children grew, like dense hair, as if in abundance. They were like trees, like rocks; the earth swelled up. But when he had already begotten, soon he experienced how his children were torn away, faded away, quickly fled, and suddenly died, en masse; all scraped clean, going along their way, buried, receding, cleared away. None remained. Death, mortality, claimed still another.

Like a wide road he gave support to his parents.[3] He was as if struck by lightning. Father and mother, each one by himself, arose, sat meditating, and bound tears for the loss of his children, only afflicted, always preoccupied, deprived of everything. Gone were those who had made them proud and esteemed, those received in payment, as offerings; those who had lived together, assembled, gathered, united, esteemed, appropriated. Behold, in truth he had begotten children; in truth he had beheld them. Hence this was said to be an evil day; one only of wild beasts, full of misery.

And he who was then born, they did not then bathe; later, on the day sign Three Ocelot, they bathed him. The readers of the day signs so said that the third position was always a favorable time. It

Inje caxtolli capitalo: itechpa tlatoa, injc chicuetetl machiotl, in jtoca ce malinalli: ioan in amo qualli tonalli in jtech ca, auh qujl injc ontetl calli qualli: ioan in jxqujch oc cequj chicunauhtetl in jxqujch oc cequj, in jtech vmpeoa injc chicunauhtetl calli, ie injc matlactetl, ioan injc oce, injc omome, inic vmei, qujlmach qualli catca. 787X

Moquetza ce malinalli, injn mjtoa: njman amo qualli tonalli, tequanj, imacaxonj, in aqujn ipã tlacatia, çan motolinjtinenca, tel qujttaia in jneiollaliliz: auh çan ompoli, çan onqujztiqujça, ioan mopilhoatiaia, muchintin moquetzaia, in jpilhoan, iuhqujn tlaquauhtzonqujça, iuhqujn tlaneujuja, iuhqujn quavitl manj, tetemmanj, tlalli cuecuetlaca: auh in ie oqujchiuh çan jc qujmati, in iuhquj motlãpevia ypilhoan, onmototocatiuetzi, onmototocatiqujça, muchintin onmjctiuetzi, ololiuhtiuj, mocemjchictivi, oncemoti, onmotoca, ommototocatiuj, onjchictiuj, aocac mocaoa, in oc ce conpeoalti mjqujztli, mjquiliztli, iuhqujn otli patlaoac qujmonquechilia, yoampooan, icetcaiooan, itlapancaiooa, itzicueoalloos, ycotoncaoa, icotoncaios, iezçoan, itlapalloa iuhqujn ipan tlatlatzinj in teta, in tenan, iioca moquetztiqujça, motztimotlalia, mjxaioujtoma, injc oqujmonpolo ypilhoan, ça itolol, ymalcoch qujchiuhtica, centlamjc qujmattica, qujcentlamjtica, oiaque in intech oatlamatia, in jntech ocuecuenotia, in oqujmonpopoaia, in jxco oqujnmanaia, in oqujtepeujtinenca, in ocololhujtinenca, in oqujtetepeujaia, ocoololhujaia, oqujmomactocac, omonelchiuh, ie on ma nelli omopilhoati, ie on ma nelli oqujmjttac: ichoatl injc mjtoa, amo qualli tonalli, çan tequanj, motqujtica icnoiotl:

auh in aqujn ipan tlacatia, aiamo caltiaia, qujn jpan caltiaia, in cy oçelotl, ocmilhujtonalli, iuh qujtoaia, in tonalpouhque, ca muchipa qualcã in citioaia, amo netenmachoia, ichoatl injc qujoallatotoquj- [851]

1. Medium is understood in the last three numbers.

2. Corresponding Spanish text: "Capitulo quinze, del octauo signo. Buenaio es malinalli, y de su abuena fortuna. Lo segundo casa deste signo, entiende por buena, y conjuntamente todos los casos, de nueue arriba, e 10. 11. 12. 13: los tenjan por buenos."

3. Cf. Olmos, op. cit., p. 212.

been said. But for him who yet lived, the readers of the day signs made it good. Later, when Seven Flint Knife took its place, they then bathed him,[1] because, as was said, the seventh place was always a favorable time. Nothing thus damaged the day sign; precisely at this time were fortune and gifts, for it was the time of the rituals of [the goddess] Chicome coatl, etc.

And Eight Rain and Nine Flower: already hath it been told and revealed how then was a time of evil. For then was when were born the thieves, the adulterers, etc. — those to be feared and dreaded on earth, who mocked people, the perverted, as many times is mentioned in the separate accounts.

And on Ten Crocodile, so they said, it was a favorable time. Then were born the rich, the wealthy, the satisfied, the content, the happy on earth, men and women. Just so were the following — Eleven Wind, and Twelve House, and Thirteen Lizard. Ten Crocodile bore them all with it, and favored them all. These different concluding four day signs were good. So all went traveling in their course. Those there which achieved the "ten"[5] position were all of a favorable time. Thus came arriving the thirteenth day sign, which concluded [the group of day signs].

tonalpouhque: qujn jpan qujtlaliaia in chicome tecpatl, iquac caltiaia ipampa ca omjto, ca muchipa qualcan in chicometioaia: atle yc itlacauhtica in tonalli, vel vncan ca ilhujlli, nemactli: ca ytlatoaia in chicome coatl. et.[a] 787x [851]

Auh in chicuei qujaujtl, yoan chicunavi xuchitl: ie omito, ye omoteittiti in quenjn amo qualcan vncan yn: ca vncan in tlacatia, in qujçaia in jchtequjnj, in tetlatlãxima. Etc. yn imacaxonj, in mauhcaittonj tlalticpac, in teca mocacaiaoa, in atlacacemelleque in iuh mjec tlamantli omoteneuh itlatlatollo.

Auh in jpan matlactli cipactli: iuh qujtoa, qualcan vncan tlacatia, in mocujltonoa, in motlacamati, in avia, in vellamati, in paquj tlalticpac, in oqujchtli, in çioatl, çan ie no iuhçuj, in qujtoqujlitica matlactloce hecatl, ioan matlactlomome calli, ioan matlactlomej cuetzpalin, qujncenvica qujncentlatalhuja in matlactli cipactli, izqujteme qualtin in ontlatzonqujxtia, nauhteme tonaltin, çan moch iuh otlatocatiuj, in vncã oaçic matlactioaia ie qualcan, in jxqujch ic onacitica matlactli vmej tonalli, in tlatzonqujxtia.

[1] A [i.e., A person born on Four Eagle, Five Vulture, or Six Motion, all unlucky days. – Analyst]

[p. 58 is blank]

5. Ten (matlactli) is an element in the Nahuatl names for eleven, twelve, and thirteen.

441 his statue spent in his tribal district [temple]. One 765 day it was [there]; one day it remained seated. And 778 then, when it was midnight, they burned it there in [the place] which they called the god's courtyard, at the eagle vessel, [or] on the skull rack.

But if the merchant had only died on the ground[3] — that is to say, if he had not died in battle, if perchance he had only taken sick, in the very same way they prepared his statue, but only in his home did it burn — not at midnight: while yet there shone a little sun, when he already was turning on his left side,[4] when the sun hung low, they burned it.

726 Likewise it was said that at the time of the day sign One Serpent, if it was established precisely at that time, when war was declared and proclaimed among the people, when, it was said, war was announced, at that very time the war began. At that time all the eagle and ocelot warriors set out to battle; all followed, crowded, and filled the road. They arose, they set out, departed, marched, and hastened.

X-787 And if one were born upon the day sign One [Serpent],[5] they said, the readers of the day signs corrected it and bestowed gifts upon him. He would become a receiver of favors, worthy of good deserts and merit; he would prosper and have sustenance. But if he did not do his penances well, according to his day sign, his gifts and favors would not come upon him. He himself would harm and destroy it. It was said that by his own act he neglected it and destroyed it by vice, etc.

[851 He who was then born they did not yet bathe;
553] they bathed him later, on Three Deer, and then gave him a name, for the reason already many times told: the day sign of the third place, when they waited for the day, the readers of day signs considered favorable. So they took this following one for him; this time they arranged and postponed it in order to give him a very strong day sign.

And Two Death, which followed, so they said, was evil; at this time there was nothing of merit. But Three Deer, so they said, was a good day sign; this is already related. The third place was always a good time; it was a time of attainment of merit, as the readers of day signs told one. And Four auh intla çã otlahujc ostomecatl, quitoznequj: intlacamo oiaomjc, in aço çan ococolizcujc, çan ie no ivi in qujchichioaia icujllo, iece çan ichan in tlatlaia, amo ioalnepantla, oc achi tonatiuh, iquac in ie onmotzcaloa, onmopiloa tonatiuh quitlatiuia.

No ioan mjtoa: in jquac ypan in ce coatl tonalli, intla ipanti, ipan motlalia, in jquac oiaotlatoloc, oteiaotlallujloc, in omjto, in otecaquitiloc iaoiotl, vel iqua ipan vnpeoia in iaoc: vncan iaoquizaia, ipan otlatocoia, ipan vaneotemaloia, vnmotema, onmacecuj, onmolinja, eoa, nẽncmj, icxiconana, in jxquich quauhtlocelotl:

auh in aquin ipan otlacat ce oçelotl tonalli, quitoia, quipãtiaia, quiznemactiaia in tonalpouhque, tlacnopilhujanj, illujle, mãcoale muchioua, mocujltonoz, vnca quiquanj iex: auh intlaca mouellamaceoa, in iuhquj iocal in, amo ipan muchioa in jnemac, in jcaopil: çan ichoatl quinitlacalhuja, quimopopolhuja, mjtoa: ineviian conmocaujlia, quimotlãçolmjctilia. Er[6].

ya aquin ipã otlacat in, aiamo caltiaia, quin ipã caltiaia in Ey maçatl: iquac quitocamaca, ipampa ie mjecccan omjto: in citiouian tonalli, in jquac tlacemilhujtiltia, quipualittaia in tonalpouhque: ichoatl ic contlaxtoquilinia, vmpa quitlatequjniaia, vmpa contlachieltiaia, injc cenca quitonalchicaoaia.

Auh in quitoquilia, vme mjquitli, iuh quitoa: amo qualli, atle vncã ca mlcoualli. Auh in cy maçatl: iuh quitoa qualli tonalli, ie omjto: in citiouia muchipa quakcan, vncan ca tlacnopilhujlizli in iuh quitcilhujaia tonalpouhque. Auh in nevi tochtli, in tlanauhcaiotia tonalli, in nauhcaiopa tlhvica, tlacem-

3. Oldmixr: ibid., "Y si el tal mercader muria, de su enfermedad."

4. Molina, op. cit. (Spanish-Nahuatl), Lado diestro.

5. The text reads ce oçelotl; it is correct in the Real Palacio MS.

787 Twentieth Chapter, which telleth of the remaining houses belonging to the sign mentioned.

Inje cempoalli capitulo: ischpa tlatoa, in oc cequi calli, in jeech pouhqui machiotl, omjto.

Also the one which followed it, Six Dog, was known as evil. Already related is the nature of those born on all day signs of the sixth position. Nothing at all good became one's gift.

Auh in contoquijlia, chiquacen itzcujntli: amo no quzlli ipan machoia, ic omjto in quenamj inicliz vncan tlacati, in ipan machi chiquacen tonalli, çan atle qualli in jnemac machioa,

On this one they loaded and heaped up gossip and bad repute. Everything was bequeathed, forced upon, and made a burden to them. They were forced to pay. And these made one embrace, undertake, commit, and seize upon evil. They mistreated, perverted, embroiled, and defamed one; they ignored, confused, confounded, disgraced, and dishonored their elders;[1] they shamed them and sowed confusion. They spotted, ruined, sullied, smudged, and destroyed one's good reputation.[2] çan iĉ quicenmama quicemololoa in tlacatlatolli, in aujlquipacaiotl, machi iecaujltilo, cujtilo, mamaltilo, intech omtopi, ioan ichoan quiteccujtia, quiteccujltia, quitechioaltia, contematzaltia in aqualli, in teiçolo, in tecatzauh, in tepiçolo, in teaujlquijxti, in teucoetlaz, in teixtlaz, in teixnecujlo, in teixcuj, in teitolotlac, in tetlaitoltili, in tepan tececenma, in teatlatzicujnj, in quiçoquijuia, in quiçoquijmotla, in quipopoiotilia, in quixpopoloa in jtilllo, in jtlapallo tenemjliz.

Also the one which followed it, Six Dog, was known as evil. Already related is the nature of those born on all day signs of the sixth position. Nothing at all good became one's gift.

No ioan mjtoa: in aquin ipan tlacatia, y, chiquacen tonalli, no quipantiaia in tonalpouhque, çan cocuacanacaio iex, amo chicaoac, anoçe çan njman onmjctiuetzia: auh intla nemj çan mococotinemj, iaiatinemj, tĉtentinemj, tĉtolcatinemj, tĉtlaztinemj, pincoatinemj, xoxouijxtinemj, iztalcoatinemj. Er[a].

[851] And those born upon this irremediable day sign they did not yet bathe; they looked ahead later to Seven Monkey. Thus they somewhat alleviated their day sign. They said: "If they live, perhaps by their penances the evil with which they were born, created, came forth on earth, budded and formed, persisted, and hatched, will reverse and be substituted."

Auh in aquijque ipan tlacatia in, amo qualtitica tonalli, aiamo quijmaltiaia, quin ipan quijmatitiviia, in chicome ocomatli: ic achi vmpa, quijqualtiliaia yn jntonal, quitoaia: intla nemjzque, aço intlamacoaliztica cuepiz, mopatlaz in aqualli ipan otlacatque, oiccoque, otlaticpac quizque, omotlaque, oitzmolinque, otzicueoaque, otlapiqque.

And Seven Monkey they regarded as very good, because, as hath been said in many places, it is a day sign of the seventh place. It was said that it was the time of ritual of Chicome coatl, the likeness of our sustenance, of genuine wealth and prosperity, as the readers of the day signs said.

Auh in chicome ocomatli: cenca quijqualitiaia, ypampa in iuh mjieccan omjto, in chicometicoaia tonalli: quiknach itlatoaia in chicome coatl, in jxiptla tonacaiotl, moquitica necujltonolli, netlamachtilli, in iuh quitoaia tonalpouhque:

1. Teiztlaller: possibly the negative a- or amo should be understood.

2. "Memoriales en 3 columnas" (Academia de la Historia MS), p. 387. The Palacio Real MS gives tonlatzicujtlalhui for tonlatzicujnj. For tetlaitoltili and tepopoiotoa, Olmos, op. cit., p. 219, gives dentroque el señor, o gouernador el pueblo.

And Eleven Eagle, and Twelve Vulture, so they said, were both only indifferent, not considered only one way; they said they fell both ways. Those who were born on both these day signs they always bathed later, at the end of the day count. At this position they made their day signs favorable.

This one, which is here the end of the day count of the group — Thirteen Motion — this one they regarded as best. For it came concluding, and with it was finished and came to an end, the thirteen day signs. Whatsoever were the deserts of the one then born hath already been told in many places.

Auh in matlactli oce quauhtli, ioan matlactli omome cuecaquauhtli, iuh qujtoa onteixti çan chico qualli, amo çan centettitica, vme vitz qujtoa, in aqujque ipan tlacatia in, onteixti tonalli, qujn cen jpan qujmaltiaia in tonaltzontli, vmpa qujqualtiliaia in jntonal. 787X [851]

Iehoatl in, in njcan cencalpan tonaltzontli, matlactli omej olin: injn oc cenca qujqualittaia, ipampa in qujtlamjtica, yn jca tlantica, ica tzonqujztica matlactli omej tonalli, auh in quenamj imàceoal: vncan tlacatia, ie mjieccan omjto.

[p.76 is blank]

been repeated counsel. She had ignored her rearing. Just so was it substantiated upon her as was the day sign on which she was born.

But in order to improve one's day sign somewhat, they bathed one on Three Serpent, for the reason that was told of all the third day signs. If they waited a day, they made it good. And if still they should wish it, perhaps they bathed him later, on Seven Water, likewise because of the goodness of each individual day sign with the number seven, as [is said] above.

And so we shall not repeat uselessly[7] nor reopen the discussion. Not just mixed, twisted, disordered, unconsidered, and profitless discussion shall we make use of or continue to work over.[8] And in order not to do this, we shall continue to mention, return, and go back to all that was said and stated. Here only one part is mentioned.[9] A word is said of the account. For all are just as in the separate accounts. All hath been mentioned—how one by one they proceeded in order: the day sign which came as good, or as somewhat good, or as in no way good. All thirteen thus go to their conclusion; because of this, all of the day signs are brought together in one group, beginning with One House, and [then] Two Lizard, Three Serpent, Four Death, Five Deer, Six Rabbit, Seven Water, Eight Dog, Nine Monkey, Ten Grass, Eleven Reed, Twelve Ocelot, Thirteen Eagle. And when all these days had ended, then set in—auh inic achi qujqualtilizque itonal, ipan caltiaia in Ei coatl: ipampa omjto, in jxqujch eci tonalli, intla cemjlhujtiltia qujqualittaia: auh intla noço qujnequizque, aço qujn jpan caltizque, in chicome atl: no ipampa in jqualtica in jxqujch chichicovme tonalli, vt supra.

Auh injc amo ça nen totlatlatozque: titlatolçacamuzque, in amo çan tlatolxaqualli, tlatolnechicolli, tlatolnenel, iliviztlatolli, çan nen tlatolli toconnemjtizque, ticcueptinemjzque ioan injc amo çan iechoati, tiqujtotinemjzque, ticcueptinemjzque, ticcujtlacueptinemjzque in jxqujch omjto, omoteneuh, ça njcan onmocenteneoa, onmocencamaitoa, in tlatolli, ca çan ie much iuhquj in jtlatlatollo ixqujch omoteneuh, in iuh tetecpantivi, in vncan qualitiuh tonalli, ioan in achi qualtitiuh: ioan in njman amo qualtitiuh, in jxqujch ic ontlatlantiuh, matlatlactlomeei: ipampa in ça njcan onmocentlalia, izqujteme cencalpā tonaltin, in qujnpeoaltitica ce calli, ioan vme cuetzpalin, ei coatl, nauj mjqujztli, macujlli maçatl, chiquacē tochtli, chicome atl, chicuei itzcujntli, chicunauj oçomatli, matlactli malinalli, matlactloce acatl, matlactlomome ocelutl, matlactlomej quauhtli, auh in jquac ontlan izqujlhujtl in, njman oalmoquetza.

7. Admit injc, the Real Palace MS has amo ça yiluia.

8. Ticonmitlaxqui in ibid.

9. Amoçamoxoc in ibid.

X 787

misery, later, in the end, he would be somewhat content.[3]

But if by chance his wealth began in his childhood, his youthful years, he received, in exchange, destruction, a miserable portion, and ended and finished with misery. And if it were a merchant, it was said, perhaps his goods would be swept away by a river and lost. And if one then, at this time, lacked zeal, it was as if his life were swept away and immersed in evil. For just of that nature was his day sign, One Water.

auh intla noce njman ipã pilpeoa, quipilpilpeoalti inetlamachũl, çan tlantica, çan cotocpol, injc conmotlanevia: auh ça icneiotl: injc ontlatzonquixtia, ontlatzontia: auh intla puchtecatl, mjtoa, aço cana tlatoctiz, tlapoloz: auh in aca çan njman ie atle onquiça, çan iuh amoiaoa, auikquiça in jnemjliz: ipampa ca njman iuhquin itonal ce itl:

But we shall speak in a few places and take the matter up. We shall go returning to,[4] explaining considerably, and explaining much, the expressions which are different. We shall hang on to it. We shall reflect much; we shall repeat, like one not tired of talking or of lazy tongue. We only merely quickly develop and superficially dispense with, hastily and superficially dispense with the above words which are quite apparent and manifest, ut supra.

auh injc amo cenca oc nouijan tontlatozque, tontlaanazque in amo çan iee tlatolli ticcueptinemjzque, tictequjmattinemjzque, tictequjmatizque, ipan tompipilcatozque, titotequjmatizque, titlatlatozque, in iuhquj atotenquauhtinj, atientlatziujnj, ça inquijch ic onmaantiquiça toconpapanqua, toconpapanquastiquiça, in çan nel nenezticа, ixnezticа, panj caca tlatolli vt supra.

[85] He who was then born was, like the day sign, evil. They later sought out and importuned a time of good. Then they bathed him. It was said that thus in part they reversed and made good his birth. No one knew nor understood whether perhaps something would be his reward, if he would perform his penances well, etc.

In aquin ipã tlacatia, in iuhquj in tonalli, in amo qualli, quin jpan contlatotoquiliaia, vmpa quin contlatequjviaia, in qualcan, iquac caltiaia, mjtoa ic quichicoquixtia, quiqualtilia, in jclacatiliz, aiac quimati, aiac ontlamati, in aço ça itla imaccoaltiz, intla uellamaçeoaz. Et[4].

For so are evident the many places, if there have been as many times, where each of the day signs known as good, go. Because here are assembled and mentioned together the different ones which were made to proceed and go along in each series, each group.[5] For Two Dog taketh second place and followeth. Then come in order, following along, Three Monkey, Four Grass, Five Reed, Six Ocelot, Seven Eagle, Eight Vulture, Nine Motion, Ten Flint Knife, Eleven Rain, Twelve Flower, Thirteen Crocodile.

Ca ic nezticа in quecizquican intla quecizquicaiopan icietiuh in motenecoa qualli tonalli: ipampa in ça njcan onmoccentlalia, onmocentenecoa in izquitenc in tlaotlatocti, tlanenemjtia cencalpan, cencallopan: ca ichoatl ontlaoncaiotia, ontlatoquilia, in vme itzcujntli, ic tecpantiuj, mototoquilitiuh in ey oçomatli, nauj malinalli, macujlli acatl, chiquacen oçelotl, chicome quauhtli, chicuey cozcaquauhtli, chicunauj olin, matlactli tecpatl, matlactlocc quiavitl, matlactlomome xuchitl, matlactlomei cipactli:

When the different days which followed along at this time had laid down their burdens, ceased their labors, ended their functions, and run their course, then set in and took up the burden—in jquac onuetz intequjuh in in ontequjcauhque in oconmotlaxilique in tlanenemjtiaia in jzquilhujtl vncan tlaotlatoctia njmã oalmoquetza, ontequjana.

3. Ibid.: "y por esto entre se lendo el refran, que dicen: que en el mundo no dia bueno, y otro malo."

4. Tlamatinemiquan in the Real Palacio MS.

5. Corresponding Spanish text: "a los que nacian en este signo: no los bapticemos, luego, diferiendo: para el mesmo dia, o para el mesmo, o para el domingo, o para siguiente, de los que siguen. Porque dicen: que todo es estar, dentro el mesmo, tengan siguiente bidad."

846 Thirty-fourth Chapter, in which are told and mentioned what they did when they visited women recently delivered, and other things which were done where a woman recently delivered dwelt.

And here it is told that when a child was born, and when [the mother's] relatives knew of it, and it was known and the news spread and was noised abroad, her family and blood relations were assembled and brought together. They set forth, and came and proceeded to visit the much revered child.

When they entered, at the very first, they took ashes; they anointed their knees with ashes; they rubbed themselves. And also they put ashes on the knees of their children yet in the cradles; or those still crawling, going on all fours; those who stood, who already took to their feet; the boys, girls, youths, young men, unmarried girls, and young women. Everywhere, on all parts of the body they placed ashes; on every joint and articulation: their ankles, their elbows, their buttocks, over the kidneys, the napes of their necks, their shoulders, but especially their knees.

[751] And it was so said and averred that thereby they would not become lame. But if this were not so done, they would become lame, and all the joints, in every place, would creak.

846 372 And also for four days they carefully watched the fire. It never went out. It continued to flare up, to grow and increase, to flare red. They thus carefully started it; it was well set. And no one might take the fire. And if anyone wished to take the fire, or a light, they would not give it to him, lest he take renown from the child who had been born, until the four days had ended, or for still a few days, when they bathed him. [851]

Injc cempoalli onnaitlactli onnavi capitulo, vncan mjtoa, motenecoa: in tlein qujchioaia in qujmontlapaloaia in mjxiuhque: yoan in oc cequj in muchioaia, in vncan onoca mjxiuhquj.

Auh njcan mjtoa: in jquac aquin tla otlacat piltontli: in oconmatque yoaiolque, in onmachoc, in otepan ocenman, in otepan onmotecac. Niman ic nenechicolo, necenqujxtilo, in jtlaciooan, in jcujtlaxcolloc eoa, viloa, pipilioa in qujtlapalozque, in jxco, ijcpac, tlachianque piltontli.

In iquac oncalacque, oc ie achto concuj in nextli: ic onmotlanquanexvia, onmomamatiloa: yoan no qujmontlanquanexuja in inpilhoan, in oc coçulti, anoço in ie movilana, coionenemj, in ie moquequetza, in ie imjcxi caana in oqujchpipilitotonti, in cioapipiltotonti, in telpupuchpipil, telpucatoton, ichpupuchpipil, ichpucatoton: novian qujntlatlalilia in nextli, in jxqujcan inçaçaliuhian, in jmjhilpicaiocan, in jnquequeiultitech, in jnmolicpi ytech, yn jntzintenpan, in incujtlacatiuhian, in jnquechtepultitech, in jmacolpan: oc cenca iehoatl in jntlanquac.

Iuh mjtoa, qujlmach ic amo tlanquananatzinjzque: auh intlacamo yuh muchioa, tlanquananatzinjzque: yoan nanatzinjz, in jxqujcan in çaçaliuhian.

Auh yoan navilhujtl in vel qujpia tletl aquēman cevi, xotlatica, oalantica, onoalantica, mopipitztica, vel qujcpéoa, vel ic peuhtica: yoan aiac vel ontlecuj. Auh intla aca ontlecujznequj tletlecujc: amo qujmaca, injc amo qujtleiocujlizque piltontli, in otlacat: ixqujchica in ontlamj navilhujtl: anoço in oc ixqujlhujtl caltizque.

[p. 112 is blank]

851 553 Thirty-fifth Chapter. Here is told what was done when they bathed their children, and how food was eaten when they gave them their names; and the discourse which the old people gave when they addressed the child and the mother.

Injc ompoualli on caxtolli capitulo: vncan mjtoa yn tlein muchioaia, yn iquac quimaltiaia impilhoan, yoan injc tlaqualoia yn iquac quintocamacaia: yoan in tlatolli in quitoaia vevetque, in quilhuiaia, piltontli: yoan in tenã.

553 And when he was bathed, quite early in the morning, in the morning light, when the sun appeared, they had the small children perform the naming ceremony. They went out shouting and panting on the roads; to the entrances they ran. Thus they went calling out what he had been given as a name, as hath already been mentioned, in a certain place. They took the naming ceremony gift, parched maize tossed with beans. They provided it with beans, many beans, offered in a vessel:

Auh in iquac maltia, çan iocotzinco, tlavizcalpã, iquac yn oalmomã tonatiuh, quixicvenquaqualia im pipiltotonti tzatzatzitiui, yhicaoaca, yn vtlicapa, quiaoacpa, motlatlaloa, ic quinotztiui, in tlein ẽtocaiotiloc piltontli, in juh ic omoteneuh, ceccã quinanamoia, in xicventli, inquitl in quicequi, hecio, quẽciotia, moca ietl, xicaltica quimana.

851 And it is said that so was the custom if someone were born on a day sign beginning in the first position (as hath been said in many places). If it were a good time, then at once they quickly bathed him. Or later, they set it aside and skipped a day, so that they could make good the feasting and drinking for the child.[1]

Yoã mjtoa iuh tlamanca intla aca ipã otlacat ynjc cemilhuitl vmpeoa tonalli (ca mjeccã omito). yntla qualcan njmã iciuhca conaltitivetzi, auh quin nonqua, contlalilia oc conchololtia, ynjc quitlatlaqualia, pillaqualo, pillaoano:

But if they could not do so then, they bathed him later, on the third day sign. As here it appeareth in [the series of] One Eagle, the one perhaps then born they would bathe later, on Three Movement.

auh intlaca ic moveliti, quin ipã caltia yn Ey tonalli, yn juh nican neci ipã ce quauhtli, yn aquin ꝑa ipã otlacat, quin ipã caltizque in Ey olin,

Those whose fathers and mothers were poor, the indigent, who were in misery, and had nothing to use, with which to gather together and assemble people, only with affliction, sickness, and misery bathed their child. For they only aggravated and worsened it when they did not delay, defer, retard, procrastinate, or postpone [the day of bathing].

ichoã in çã tlacococavia ytaboan ynãoã in çan icnotlaca, in ça quitzactiia icnoiotl, atletzin in polivini, in tecentlaliloni, in tenechicolonj, ic çan cococatzin, cococaiotica, icnotlacaiotica conaltia yn jnconeuh, ipãpa in çan quitototztivetzi, quitototztiquiça, in aocmo cõvecatlaça, cõuecatilia, cõnechcatilia, cõnechcatlaça, cõchololtia,

But if the fathers were rich and prosperous, if there was wherewith to eat, they selected for one a later date, on the seventh day sign; at that time they bathed the child and placed him in the cradle. This was because, as hath been said, they always considered the seventh day sign good. At that time they held an important banquet. There was drink and auh intla motlacamati, mocuiltonoa tetahoã, in vncã quiquanj, quin ce vmpa quimattivi yn ipã chicome tonalli, yquac caltia, yoan quicoçolaquja im piltontli, ypampa yn juh omjto muchipa quiqualittaia yn 7. tonalli, yquac quivejchioa in tecoanotzaliztli, athioa, tlaqualo, novjiampa, xoxochitlano, oalhuj in xochicauhque, nequequeçalo, nepopotzolo, auh in

1. Cf. Sahagún (Garibay ed.), I, 13, 11, and II, 38, 7-8; also Anderson and Dibble, op. cit. Book II, "The Ceremonies," pp. 152-153.

●851 food. From all parts flowers were taken; all the flower bearers came. There was jostling and crowding. And the old men and old women greeted the small boy and his newly delivered mother. They said:

"O my beloved grandson, thou hast endured suffering and fatigue. For thou hast come here to earth; thou hast appeared on earth. Thou shalt behold, come to know, and feel pain, affliction, and suffering. It is a place of torment and affliction; of constant torment and affliction; a time of torment and a time of affliction to which thou hast come; a place of bitterness, a place of much work and affliction. Perhaps we shall receive as merits and as good deserts that for a short time thou shalt be lent to us. For thou art the living image, the likeness, the noble child, and the offspring[2] of thy ancestors, thy beloved grandsires, thy great-grandsires, thy great-grandmothers, the grandfathers of thy nephews, who already have gone beyond, who a short time ago came to stand guard for a little while, here where thou liest and hast endured suffering and fatigue, O my beloved grandson. For our lord hath sent thee."

Forthwith they petted him and stroked him with their hands, to show that they loved the child. Also at once they addressed and greeted his newly delivered mother. They said:

"O my daughter, O my beloved daughter, my lady, my beloved lady, thou hast endured suffering and fatigue. For in some way thou hast separated thyself from and left the jeweled necklace, the precious feather which was within thee. Now that he is come forth on earth, you are not indivisible; you will not be joined together, for you are separated. What will our lord require? Perhaps for a little day we shall take him as lent to us. We shall love him like a precious necklace or a precious stone bracelet. Be calm and modest; take care. Do not relapse into sickness nor let accident befall thee. Do not try to be up and about. Be careful, in convalescing, when they place thee in the sweatbath. And do not neglect the child. Take care of him. Even in thy sleep, be fearful for him. Do not pierce his palate, [in nursing him]; do not crush him in thy sleep; do not let him sleep unwatched, so that thou nowhere piltontli quitlapalos in vevetq̃, yn ilamatque, yoã in inãtzin mizinhquj, Quilhuja.

Nozhujuhtze, otiquihjovi, otiçiauh, ca otioalmovicac in tlaticpac, otimotlaticpacquizti, tiquittze, tiomatiz, tiicichecoz, in tecoco, in tetolinj, in thihjovilizti, ca tetoneuhcã, ichichinatzcan, tetoneuhcan, techichinatzcã, tetonenhian, techichinatzian, yn otioalla, cococ yiocaiã, teicnotlamachtican, aço tiolhujltiz, titonilcoaltiz, aço achitzinca timitztotlanevizque: ca timixjptla, timpatillo, timeaço, tintlapallo, tintzicuevilo in mozechiuhcaoã, in mocoltzizinos, ỹ machtooã, yn mopiptoca, in machococolhoã, yn ie necheca mantivi, yno cuel achic, yno cemilhujtl, ontlapieco, ya vncã timononltitoc, otiquihjiovi, otiçiauh nozhujuhtzine, ca omiczoalmiouli in totecujo, nimã ic compẽpetla, cõmapẽpetla, ic quinextia, ynjc cõtlaçotla piltontli. Nimã no ic cõnotza tontlapalos yn inãtzin mizinhquj, Quilhuja.

Nochputze, nochputzine, cinapille, cioapiltzintle, otiquihjiovi, otiçiauh, ca oquẽtcltzin mizztlalloti, mizztlalcavi in coacatl, in quetzalli, ynjc otimapẽticatca, ca otlaticpacquiz, acennonqua yn amonmotlanamjctizque, ca oanmotlallotique, quẽ qujmonequiltia in totecujo, aço cemilhujtzintli, tictotlanevizque, tiomcatetubtlamatizque, timacuezztrubtlamatizque, ma oc yvjiã, ma oc iocuxca, ma oc zõmomalhuj, ma tõmocuzanj, ma tõmonevjiavi, macamo xõmopũpuzcanequj, ma yvjian in tioalmimatiz, in temazcaltzinco mizzoncalaquizque, auh ma tocõmoxiccavili in piltzintli, ma xocõmocnitlavi, ma oc mocuchpan xocõmimatto, ma tocõetzoponj, ma tocõcochpacho, ma tocononchcauh, ma çã tchoatl tocõnevilvi, ma çã ic tocõqueio, ca oqujmomacavili in tutec.[o]

2. Cf. Sahagún, "[illegible]," p. [illegible]: "[illegible]."

85/●

mayest bring mishap to him. Do not do so intentionally; for our lord hath given him."

Thus only briefly they greeted her, lest they tire her by useless talk.[3]

Yc çan achiczin ic contlapaloa, injc amo quizzontecoonque.

3. Corresponding Spanish text: "[illegible] hijo, y [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] por [illegible] [illegible] y [illegible] [illegible] de [illegible] hijo [sic]. Mirad que los [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] a [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

57H
●851

Thirty-ninth Chapter, which telleth how a feast was held, and what the order of service was, and how there was drinking of wine.

Injc cempoualli on caxtolli noc capítulo: ytechpa tlatoa yn juh mocuamotzaia, yoan in juh caxca tlatepēhti, yoan in juh tlacamaia.

And as to the invited guests: already there was jostling among the guests. All took their respective places; the houses were entered. There was disorder and scattering about; there was wandering and there were disputes, rushing about like fools, hurrying, hastening, and unrest.

Auh in tlacoanotzaki, ic cuel itē, nequecquepalo in cuame, netēteco, calecoa, tlaxmelivi, tlaxmoiaoa, nexipololo, nexinnaxamico, tlaxtomaoa, tlātlacivi, yciocoa, netecuipipacholo, [276] For everything, assignments were made and work distributed. First came the tobacco servers. Tobacco was served; one was provided with tobacco; tobacco was smoked. Then the flower servers followed them. They provided and gave them flowers; they favored them with crowns and garlands of flowers; they provided them with flower crowns and garlands. They arranged before them bowls with tobacco tubes. They sat smoking, inhaling the fragrance. All smelled it. There was a pleasant and fragrant odor.

cecenlamātli ipā neyhinquetzalo, netecuipinaco, iacatiuh, in teyicmacac, teyicmaco, teyictilo, yiectilo, njmā conoquilia yn tezochimacac, tezochitia, tezochimaca, contecaquia in icpaccochitl in zochicacatl, tricpaccochitia, tezochicoacatia, tricpīnamātmata yn jiecazitl, tlachichinaloteic, tlaxocatoc, tlaxeco, tlaxiaztoc, tlaxcelitoc:

And thereupon went the server, and following him those who changed the courses and carried [the food] in their arms. They served the people, placed them in order, went placing the people in line, putting them all in line. Thereupon all ate. [But] first they cast on the ground [a mouthful of food].[1] Later something was reserved, put aside for their servants.[2] auh njmā ic ic iauh in tetlamacac, quinocotivi, in tetlanamjctilique, in tlaxapaloque, tetlamaca, tevipana, tepilotiuh, tecempilotiuh, njmā ic ic tlaquale, achtopa, cuetlatlaça, çaçpā netlacavilo, ic tlaquaja yuetlavicalhoā:

[277] And thereupon also went the chocolate[3] server. In just the same way he went arranging the people in order, placing them in line. He neglected no one; he was very careful with each one. He went placing for each one the stirring sticks with which the chocolate was beaten, whereby the chocolate was consumed. Chocolate was put aside for each of them — they put aside chocolate for their servants, [as well auh njmā ic no ic iauh in teamacac, çan ic no ivi tevipantiuh, tecempilotiuh, aiac quincaoa, vel mizpeztzza, contecquilitiuh in aquavid, yuic mocachoa cacaoati, ic ahatica, teaxtlacavilo, quiquatlacavjia, intetlavicalhoā, in vicoaj, in tlacoaj, in quiquaiaj netlacavilli,

1. Corresponding Spanish text: "antes que comenzasse a comer: los convidados, los comajdos que les traian presentes: tomaban sus lugares de los comajdos, y revolvianse el suelo: a huevos del dios Tlaloc."

2. Ibid.: "los servidores de la comajda . . . traqan comajda a cada uno, ordenaqan los comajdos [sic]: y los ponian delante, del que estaua ocupado: iaua orden de ordenaqan, con diuersas maneras de pan: y parecaua en los chiqipulcos: otras veces comian, con diuersas maneras de comajda, con carne, o pescado. . . . dejando comajda, dauan los cabos a sus criados, y tambien los comian, y chiqipulcos."

3. Ibid. In colonial times used to mean chocolate. Cf. Molina, op. cit. (Spanish-Nahuatl section), "Beuer agua, cabo o cosa. n, cali."

574 as] the vessels to carry, keep, and transport the leavings.[4]

851 Then, for a short time, all sat relaxed, watching; all sat content in the place of lingering, in the banqueting place. But if some were not well satisfied, nor happy, nor content, with the chocolate, the food, the flowers, and the tobacco, etc., they only ran away angry. They quickly arose and sprang to their feet, leaped up, glared in rage at the drink and food, and went about chattering, babbling, jabbering, multiplying it and shouting, doing it in crescendo.[5] Thus oppressed and troubled, they went to seat themselves at their homes and in their houses. And those who had left in such a manner, those who had only become enraged, if they were noted, later, next day, once more they received them[6] and brought them in, consoled them, when it was the time of finishing the food.[7] In their behalf it was celebrated; they were consoled and made joyous.

vncã achitzinca ompacoztoc, nepiclotoc, vellamachotoc in nepicloian, in tecoanotzaloian: auh in cequjn in aiuo cenca tlavelmati, vellamati, movelmati, yn atica, tlaqualtica, xochitica, yiztica et.[4] çan motlavellaloa, moquetzteoa, moquetztiquiça, cholotcoa, maçoma, motlaqualçoma, tlãtlatotivj, popolocativj, tlatetotiuj, tlãtlanauhtiuj, tlanauhtiuj, tlanauhpactiuj, ic oallatepachoticate, moxixicoticate, yn omotlalito inchã, yn jncalitic: auh intla oittoque in iuh oquizque, in çan oqualantiaque, quin imuztlaioc oc oppa qujnana, qujmonjcxiana, qujniolcuja, in iquac ic apeualco, inca nechioalo, iollalilo, papaquiltilo, [262] And the women only drank a gruel, perhaps a gruel of wrinkled chía cooked with maize, or a drink of pinole mixed with chía,[6] which they drank.

[263] They gave them [gruel] topped with honey, or with chilis, yellow chilis, small hot ones, or hot green ones, or with squash seeds on it.

auh in cihoa çan tlayia, aço chiantzotzolatolli, anoço chianpinolli in quia, in qujnmaca, necpanj, anoço chilpanj, chilcozpanj, chiltecpimpanj, chilchopanj, aiooachpanj, 574 And when it grew dark, the old men and women drank wine. They gathered around and congregated. They set up before them that from which they drank, called the flower vessel, and their drinking bowls and wine cups, the serving vessels.[9]

273 851

auh yn oioac in vevetque, yn ilamatque, tlathoana, mohololoa, mococentlalia, ymjxpan quioalquetza yn intlaoanaia, yn jtoca xochcomitl, yoã yn intlaoancax, in jntetlaoã, in tetlamamacoj, [554] The wine server, the server, first began: so he went to the one of highest rank, the first in rank, the one in first place. So he went in order, going in line, and so were left those of lesser rank, of inferior station, in last place. He continued serving the wine, perhaps white, or watered, or honeyed;[10] those which were stored and prepared for the drinking ceremony. It was carried there in jars for dregs, in wine jars and dipping vessels.

achto iẽ vmpeoa in tetlaoanti, in tetlamamacac, njmã ie ic iuh yn jiacac, in tlaiacac, yn jiacaiocã, ic tevipãtiuh, tecempãlotiuh, ic ommocaoa in icuitlapilco, in tlacuitlapilco, in tlatzaccan, quioaltecatimanj in vctli, aço iztavctli, anoço aivctli, tlachioalvetli, yn otlalilo: ochichioaloc ic pillaoanoc, omtlaçaçaco intzaiocomjc, inococomjc, intlatemovilcomjc,

4. Interpretation is provisional. For this, Sahagún, in the corresponding text, writes: "y las cosas del cacao, demas a sus oficios." See n. 2.

5. The text is apparently incompletely corrected to read ompappaztoc; cf. Real Palacio MS.

6. Or oppa quinmaca in ihiã.

7. Corresponding Spanish text: "a esta dia llamaban, diciendo: porque es el, se acabaron todo el comidico." Cf. also Anderson and Dibble, op. cit., Book I, "The Gods," p. 23, and Sahagún (Garibay ed.), Vol. IV, p. 321. In ibid., I, 21, 24, it is referred to as "alegrarse a la que estaba consolado y hablado."

8. Cf. Anderson and Dibble, op. cit., Book VIII, "Kings and Lords," p. 39; Book II, "The Ceremonies," p. 91 (chimpinolli).

9. In the Real Palacio MS., yn tlaoanaia, y ocelomamacoa follows mococentlalia.

10. Corresponding Spanish text: "hechiso de agua, y miel cocido, con la raya: el qual llamaban apozoli, que quiere decir, polvo de agua: lo qual tenia aparejado, y guardado el señor del comedico: de dejarse dias antes." See also Oviedo Gonçalvez de Lizo: El maguey y el pulque en los códices mexicanos (México: Fondo de Cultura Económica, 1959), passim, and esp. pp. 107 ff.

And the wine server, if he saw that those whom he gave wine did not become intoxicated and in a stupor, but only sat staring and grimacing, once again turned to the left, made a beginning from the left—that is, beginning where he had left off, with those of last place, the lesser in rank. So at that place he made a beginning in order to make them drunk. Thus he went reversing and rearranging the process of making them drunk.

So there was singing: there were songs of sadness and tears; or only broken singing, each one as he liked, each outdoing the others. There was the giving of pleasure, of much contentment. There was the encouragement of one another, and tearful greetings. And some only hummed, singing secretly, or did nothing. And some did nothing else but sit content and rejoicing, laughing and making witty remarks, making others burst into laughter as if their sides were sore. They sat exhausted with mirth[11] if they heard something which moved them to or diverted them with laughter. It was as if dogs were barking.[12]

Just so was it done at banquets and feasting, and assemblages and gatherings of people, and their recreation and the giving of dances, etc., when someone had a feast for the child to place it in the cradle, and the place where he was put in the cradle was watched.

auh in tetlaoanti intla quimjtta quintlaoantia, yn amo ivinti, in amo jamanja, in çan itztoque, izpepeionioque, ic no cuel iẽ copuchilochtia, tlaopuchopa quipeoaltia. q. n. in vncã oquicauh, in tlattaccan, in tlacuitlapilco, ic nẽ vncan quipeoaltia, ynjc tetlamamaca, ynjc tetlaoantia, ic quicueptiuh, quipapatlatiuh in iertlaoãtilitz:

574
273
851 ic necuicatilo, netlaoculcujcatilo, nechoquizcuicatilo, anoço çan cuicaçacamolo, no çac tle quoca, necujcapanauilo, necemeltilo, nocecemeltilo, neellaquacalo, nechoquiztlapalolo, auh in aca çan tẽtencuicatica, yhichtacacujcatica, aiac ica quichiuhtica: auh cequjn çan qujxcavia in pactoque, im papactoque, vevetzcatoque, camanalotoque, vetzquiztequittoque, iuhqujn iuxillã quaquauhti, ommimjctoque in vetzuca, yn onoitla quicacque, in tevetzquiti, tevetzquiceuh, iuhqujn tlananalco.

851
574
[533]
[522]

Oyvin in muchioaia coaiotl in tecoanotzalitzli, in tecẽtlalilitzli, tenechicolitzli, tecvilitzli, teittotilitzli. et.[a] Yn iquac aca quitlaqualiaia in piltzintli, ynjc tlacoçolaquja, tlacoçolaquiloian nepiclo.

11. Presumably in the Real Palacio MS.
12. Phrasing unknown in Ms.

[p. 120 is blank]

574 Thirty-seventh Chapter, in which is mentioned how the festivity was performed; and how the rulers and merchants of old provided banquets, even as to this day they have been doing.

Injc cempoalli on caxtolli omvme capitulo: vncan motenecu in cujcujcaliztli catca in quenjn muchioaia, yoã in juh tecoanotzaia in veveinnin tlatoque, yoan in pochteca, yn juh noma axcan quichioaia.

574 And the manner of doing nowadays: when one holdeth a banquet for the sake of his child, so it is
● 851 said, they baptize; the head is washed; food is given. So was it done; just so were guests procured and invited; [as] in other banquets were the distribution and the seating according to rank.

Auh in axcã ic ic tlamanj yn iquac aca ypampa tecoanotza ypiltzin, ic mitoa tlaquaatequia, tlaquatequiloia tetlatlaqualtilo, çan ic muchioaia, çan ic iuh coatioaia, çan ic iuh tecoanotzaloia yn oc cequj ypan cooaiotl, tetlacamachilistli, teteinolistli.

574 So here a little is divulged of the invitation to banquet. But among the rulers, the princes and noblemen, those of illustrious lineage, or when somewhere riches and wealth had been procured, then there was avarice, among the merchants of Pochtlan, [or among the artisans, the craftsmen,][1] the skilled workers, by each group separately there was bringing of goods according to custom; guests were procured, wealth was procured, and there were invitations.

Jc çan njcan tepiton onmonextia in tecoanotzalistlatolli, tel in tlatoca, im pilpã, im pillovã, tecpilpan, yn anoço cana netlacamachoian, necuiltonoloia, tlatlamepã, im puchtla, in puchtecapã, toltecaiopan, cecenteti injc netquioaia, ynjc tlamanja, ynjc tlamanca, ynjc cooatioaia, netlacamachoia, necoachioaloia,

When somewhere there was great congregating, there was indeed trampling, shoving, and crowding. Entry was impossible. There was no recognition of the invited guests. Indeed, there was trampling, crowding, jostling, and shoving to one side. Nowhere were available seating places, spaces to occupy, or seats to use.[2] in cana vel moveychioa, vel mõocça, tzitzica, cãcatzca, zonneaquilo, ahmixmati, yn tlacoanotzali, vel nequequeçalo, nepopotzolo, nexoxocolo, ahujc zoquicoa, ãcan veli, in netlalilloia, in ielouia, in tetlalilloia,

However, it was the task, concern, and charge especially of the attendants, those who greeted [the guests] — their great concern — to search and watch well. [The host] commissioned them each as servants, officials, and servitors, so that they could look with care to recognize one, no matter from where the banquet guests, those bidden to the feast, the invited ones, had come.

oc cenca ichoan intequjuh, innecuitlavil, ynix intequjuh, vel innecuitlavil, vel mixpetztza, mixpetzoa, quimiiicaniantia, quintetequippantia, quincõcocoltia in techixque, in tetlalique, ynjc ichoan vellachia, teximati, in cãpa iẽ ooallaque coame, tlacoanotzalti, tecoaoa, 574 431 These ascertained well what could be done for them, so that they might be well received, and that, in the distribution of goods, none might be forgotten. All which they came by and received as gifts, ichoan vel quiteilhuja, ynic inca nechioaloz, ynjc vel namicozque, ainc ilcaoaloz, ypan tlacotonij, much intech aciz, yn nemactiz, yn jxquich ic otlatequililoque, in chieltilo, ynjn ca oytoloc, yiemacm-

1. In the Real Palacio MS, the words anqve tlachichinchqueque, ininchqueque, ininchqueque, ininchqueque.
2. In Ibid., ad follows ininchqueque.

532
x787
[534]

[534]

[851]

— After Paso y Troncoso

14-20. One Flower: musicians, entertainers, embroiderers (Chapter 7). 21. Seven Rain (Chapter 8). 22, 23. Eight Flower: and holding of child (Chapter 8).

[p. 126 f]

776 cooked, and roasted in a pot; one roasted [on the fire]; sweat-houses were heated, ungents were melted, things were cleansed.

776 And when his feast day was celebrated, once a year, at 796 the end of the month of Izcalli, they made an image of Moctezuma; before it quail were sacrificed and incense was set forth.

[262] Tamales [stuffed] with greens[66] were prepared in each dwelling. First they were placed before the fire. Then they were eaten.

[534] And all day his old men sang, blew trumpet-shaped shells, beat drums, and sounded rattles for him.

And no one might reach his arm to the bowl which was forbidden; nothing might be cooked. Because first were eaten the tamales [stuffed] with greens which had been brought as offerings.

And, in live coals, the children[67] roasted some snakes, frogs, small white fish, water lizards, [and] birds—whatever kind of small animal they hunted, they dropped in the hearth. Thus, they said: "Our father roasteth [something] for himself."

And when night fell, the old men, the old women, drinking wine, made libations in all [four] directions. [And] they said thus: "They give a taste of it to the fire; they refresh themselves."[68]

[535] And every four years a festival most greatly honored him—when Moctezuma danced a princely dance before the temple of Xiuhtecutli, which was called Tazzmulco.[69]

[273] And at this time everyone [including] all the children, every one of them, tasted the wine. Thus it was called [the time when] the children drink wine.

[608 And then they gave the children uncles and aunts, a man
431] [and] a woman, whom those with children sought out and gave gifts. These took [the children] upon their backs, and carried them then to the temple of Izcoçauhqui. There [the [304 parents] pierced their ears; thus they placed a sign upon 852] them, while their uncles and aunts[70] looked on. Afterwards all feasted.

776 [Izcoçauhqui's] ornament was [thus]: black was smeared about the lower part of his face. About his head he bore a circlet set with green stones; he wore a paper crown with blue cotinga feathers and a spray of quetzal feathers; he had a crown of arrowshafts; a crown of spear-shafts;[71] he had

Auh yn iquac ilhujqujtitiloia, cexilhtica: ipan ilamjan yxcalli: quixiptlatiaia in motecuçuma, ixpan tlacotonaloia, copalxomjlilo, ozohqujltamalli nechvilitiloia, in ocomalpan: achto ixpan quimanjlaia in tletl, çatepan qualoia.

Auh yn jxcoxiccoua, ixh cemjlhujtl, in quicujcatia, quijccrinpichilia, quijtepomacilhuja, caiacachilhuja:

auh aiac vel cõmaçoaia in comalco, tetlacaoaltiloia, yajc amo aca motlatia, mochichinac: ipampa in iancujcan ocualoc ozohqujltamalli, yajc otlamamaloc.

Auh in pipiltocatl, mochintin quintlanqujaia: yn aca coatl: cuijatl, xocijli, axolotl, tetotl: in çaçe tlein ocacic ixioli, ycamac contlaçoia in tlecujlli: ic mjtoaia, mothazquja yn teta.

Auh yn cioouac, noujan tlatlaoanaia in xevetque, ylamatque: ixh quitoaia, quitlatoiaujliaia yn tletl, tezcalcuuja.

Auh zazakxiohica, yn oc cenca, mazaxtililoia, ilhuixh: iquac motecujtoiaia yn motecuçuma, ixpan yn jxucal, xiuhtecutli, ytocaiocan tzomulco.

Auh in jquac hy, vel mochitlacatl, vel no inquich tlacatl, quijpaloaia, quijtecquja, in vcili, in pipiltocatl: ic motecaiotiaia, pillooano:

youa vncã quintlatiaia, quimahujtiaia in pipiltocatl. Ce cioatl, ce ocujchtli, in quintemoaia pilloaque, quintlauhtiaia; inhoantin quimamatilhuja, vmpa quimoncaoaia, yn itenpan izcoçauhqui: vmpa quimacazxapotlaia, quimacaxoxinjaia: iuhquin ic quimachiotiaia, ynjc quinitta, yntlaoan, ymaujoan: çatepan tlaqualo.

Jn jxechichiual cacca: tiltica motenujltec, chalchiuhtezcale, xiuhxoxomacale, quetzalnjaoaio, mjtzoua, tlacoxtzoua, xiuhcoomacoche, amacuauapanale, no tzitzile, cocujole, xiuhtezcatlatlapanqui yn jchimal, tlachieltepile.

---

66. "Uno de las hierbas que se comen cocidas se llama huauhquilitl, que son blandas, es muy verde, tiene las ramas delgadillas y chiquitas, tiene las hojas anchuelas. Los tallos de esta hierba se llaman huauhtli y la cenizilla se llama de la misma manera; esta hierba se cuece para comer, sabe a cenizas, exprimese del agua que se cuece para comerse; hacense tamales de esta hierba los cuales se llaman quilitamal." Sahagún, op. cit., Vol. III, p. 233. On p. 338, huauhquilitl is defined as Amaranthus hypochondriacus Amaranthaceae.

67. In the corresponding Spanish text, the children's parents hunted and roasted these animals. In the Historia general, Vol. I, p. 207, Sahagún writes that the old men received the animals from the children as offerings and threw the offerings in the fire.

68. Ibid., Vol. I, p. 208; see temoaloaya in Simeon: op. cit.

69. Described as the 64th temple in Tenochtitlan. Ibid., Vol. I, p. 227.

70. Corresponding Spanish text uses the word padrinos (godfathers; patrons or protectors). Molina (op. cit.) translates the words tlatli and cuitl as ashes and excrement.

71. Chalchiuhtezcalli—a strap for the head, set with jewelled disks, the front side bearing the figure of a cotinga (xiuhtototl); quetzalnjaoaio or xiuhtzoxomacalli: spear-shafts; mjtzoua—a tiara of feather mosaic work in the form of a crescent cone, bordering upwards; mitzquali tlacoxtzoualli or

The eighteenth month they named Izcalli. In this month they celebrated a feast to the god of fire, whom they called Xiuhtecutli, or Ixcoçauhqui. They made an image in his honor, with great artifice, which appeared to throw off flames of its own accord. And every four years, in this same feast, they slew slaves and captives in honor of this god. And they pierced the ears of all the children who had been born in those years, and they gave them godfathers and godmothers.

Al mes decimo octauo llamauan Izcalli: en este mes hazian fiesta al dios del fuego que llamauan Xiuhtecutli, o Jxcoçauhquj: hazian vna ymagen a su hõrra de grã artificio que parecia que echaua llamas de fuego de si: y de quatro en quatro años en esta mesma fiesta esclauos y captiuos matauan a honrra deste dios: y agujerauan las orejas a todos los njños que aujan nacido en aquellos años y dauanlos padrinos, y madrinas.

796X
[805
778]
776
[852
304
608]

Chapter 18
Izcalli

On the tenth day of this month they made a new fire at midnight, before the image of Xiuhtecutli, [which was] very curiously adorned. And, the fire having been lit, then, in the morning, the young men and boys came, and they brought various animals which they had hunted in the ten preceding days—some water [animals] and some land [animals]. And they offered them to the old men who were charged with safeguarding this god. And these cast into the fire all of those animals, so that they would cook. And they gave each one of these young men and boys a tamal made with amaranth, which they called nauhquiltamalli, which everyone in the city offered upon that day. All ate of these in honor of the feast day. They ate them very hot, and they drank and made merry.

On this feast, in ordinary years, they slew no one. But in the bisextile year, which was every four years, they slew, during this feast, captives and slaves and the impersonator of Xiuhtecutli, decorated in the manner which hath been told above, with many precious and curious adornments; they performed many great ceremonies upon the death of these [victims]—many more than on the other feasts already described. This is set forth at length in the account of this feast.

After they had slain these slaves and captives and the impersonator of Ixcoçauhqui, who is the god of fire, all the leading men and lords, the illustrious, and

Cap. 18.
Izcalli

1	b	KL.		b	8
2	c	A los diez dias deste mes: sacauã		c	9
3	d	fuego nuevo a la media noche delante		d	10
4	e	la ymagẽ de Xiuhtecutli muy curiosa-		e	11
5	f	mente ataujada: y encendidos fuegos,		f	12
6	g	luego en amaneciendo venjan los man-		g	13
7	A	cebos y muchachos, y trayã diuersos		A	14
8	b	anjmales que aujan caçado en los diez		b	15
9	c	dias pasados vnos de agua, y otros de		c	16
10	d	tierra: y offrecianlos a los viejos que		d	17
11	e	tenjan cargo de guardar a este dios: y		e	18
12	f	ellos echauã en el fuego a todos aque-		f	19
13	g	llos anjmales para que se asassen: y		g	20
14	A	dauan a cada vno destos moços y mu-		A	21
15	b	chachos vn tamal hecho de bledos que		b	22
16	c	ellos llamauã Vauhqujltamalli: los		c	23
17	d	quales todo el pueblo ofrecia aquel dia,		d	24
18	e	y todos comjan dellos por honrra de		e	25
19	f	la fiesta, comjanlos muy calientes y		f	26
20	g	beujan y regozijauanse.		g	27

[262]

En esta fiesta los años comunes no matauã a nadie: pero el año del biscexto que era de quatro en quatro años: matauan en esta fiesta captiuos y esclauos, y la ymagen de Xiuhtecutli, compuesta de la manera que arriba se dixo cõ muchos y preciosos y curiosos atajos: hazian grandes y muchas cerimonjas en la muerte destos, muchas mas que en las otras fiestas ya dichas. Esto esta puesto a la larga en la historia desta fiesta.

Despues que aujan muerto a esos esclauos y captiuos, y a la ymagen de Jxcoçauhquj que es el dios del fuego: estauan aparejados y adereçados muy rica-

[535]

The Thirteenth Movable Feast

In the sign which they called ce izcuintli, [which] they said was the sign of fire, they held a great festival in honor of Xiuhtecutli, god of fire. In it they offered him much copal [incense] and many quail. They arrayed his image in many kinds of papers and with many rich adornments. Among the rich and powerful, they celebrated a great feast in honor of the fire, in their own houses; they held dinners and banquets in honor of the fire. In this same sign they held elections of lords and consuls, and in the fourth house of this sign they enacted the formalities of their elections, feasts, dances, and gift [giving]. After these feasts, they forthwith proclaimed war against their foes.

La treuesa fiesta mouible.

En el signo que llamauan ce izcuijtli: dezian que era el signo del fuego: hazian gran fiesta a honrra de xiuhtecutli, dios del fuego: en ella le ofrecian mucho copal, y muchas codornizes: compónjan su ymagen, con muchas maneras de papéles, y con muchos ornamentos ricos: entre las personas ricas y poderosas, hazian gran fiesta, a honrra del fuego, en sus mjsmas casas, hazian combites, y vanquetes, a honrra del fuego. En este mjsmo signo: hazian la election de los señores y consules, y en la quarta casa deste sino: hazian la solẽnjdad, de sus elecciones, combites, y areytos, y dones. Despues destas fiestas apregonauan luego la guerra contra sus enemigos.

796x [314] [289 778] [565] [666 431] 721

The Fourteenth Movable Feast

In the sign named ce atl, in the first house of this sign, they celebrated a feast to the goddess of water, named Chalchiuhtli icue. All those who dealt in water celebrated the festival—those who sold water, as well as those who fished, and those who gained other livelihoods which there are in the water. These arrayed her image and laid offerings before her, and revered her in the house called calpulli.

La catorzena fiesta mouible

En el signo llamado ce atl: en la primera casa deste signo, hazian fiesta, a la diosa del agua llamada chalchiuhtli ycue: hazian la fiesta, todos los que tratauan en el agua: ansi vendiendo el agua, como pescando, como haziendo otras gragerias, que ay en el agua. Estos componjan su ymagen, y la ofrecian, y reuerenciauan, en la casa llamada Calpulli.

[776] [463]

The Fifteenth Common Movable Feast

The lords, leading men, nobles, and rich merchants, when a son or daughter was born to them, paid much heed to the sign, the day, and the hour in which he was born. And of this they forthwith set out to inform the judicial astrologers, and to ask as to the good fortune or ill of the child who was born. And if the sign in which he was born was propitious, they had him baptized at once; and if it was adverse they sought the most favorable house of that sign [in which] to baptize him. When they baptized him, they banqueted the kinsmen and friends, so that they would be present at the baptism, and then they gave food and drink to all the guests, and also to the children of the whole suburb. They baptized him at sunrise in the house of his father. The midwife baptized him, uttering many prayers and performing much ceremony over the child. This [same] feast they also observe today in the baptism of their children, as to fasting, eating, and drinking.

La quinta decima fiesta mouible comũ.

Los señores, y principales, nobles, y mercaderes, ricos quando les nacia algun hijo o hija; tenjan gran cuẽta con el signo en que nacia; y el dia, y la hora en que nacia: y desto yuan luego a ynformar a los astrologos, judiciarios: y a preguntar por la fortuna buena o mala de la criatura que nacia. Y si el signo, en que nacia era prospero, luego le hazian baptizar, y si era aduerso buscauan la mas prospera casa de aquel signo para le batizar. Quando le batizauan, combidauan a los parientes, y amigos: para que se hallassen presentes al batismo: y entonce dauan comjda, y beijda, a todos los presentes, y tambien a los njños, de todo el barrio: baptizauanle, a la salida del sol, en casa de su padre, baptizauale la partera, diziendo muchas oraciones: y haziendo mucha cerimonja sobre la criatura. Esta fiesta, tambien la vsan agora, en los baptismos de sus hijos, en quanto al combidar, y comer, y beuer.

777 787 565 852 [759]

The Sixteenth Movable Feast

As soon as the parents saw that their son was of La sexta decima fiesta mouible.

Desque los padres vian que su hijo era de edad para

584

x796 [548] when he had been living in the likeness of another, had walked with head high, had lived as a captive, had been drunk, and had gone in high esteem.

oaquetztinēca otlamattinenca, omjvintitinēca omoveltzzinenca.

And for this reason was [the month] named "Izcalli hath ended": all the small children, all of them they took up and lifted by the neck. For it was said, [827] they [thus] grasped them that they might grow; thus they would speedily grow tall; they would wax great and strong.

Auh injc mjtoa Jzcalli, tlami yn ixquichtin pipiltotonti, muchintin quinquechaana, quinacopiloa: ic mjtoa quimizcalloana, quinizcalaana, ynic iciuhca quaquauhtiezque, manazque, mooapaoazque:

And they divided the heart of the maguey plants; [824] they broke, peeled, and opened it. And they cleaned the cactus and pruned its branches, because thus it would quickly be given new life and growth.

yoã in metl quijiolloxeloa, quijiollotzaiana, quijiollotlapana, quijiollotoma: auh yn nopalli quijtlaiectilia, quimatepeoa, ipampa ynic iciuhca manaz, mozcaltiz, mooapaoaz.

x796 852 And at this [feast of] Izcalli, there also came to pass, every four years, the bringing out of the children and the drinking of wine by the children. And then the chiefs danced a lordly dance, along with their courtiers. And they put on their wigs of hair; in truth they were head pieces made of long hair and [301] covered with green stone. [The hair] fell, verily, to the chiefs' waists.

Auh yn ipan y, Izcalli, no vncan muchioaia, ynic nauhxiuhtica nepilquixtiloia, pillaoanoia: yoan vncan motecuitotiaia in tlatoque, yoan yn inpillooan: yoan cuntlaliaia yntzonpilinal, centlamantli, tzoncalli catca, viiac in tzontli ic tlachioalli, quichachalchiuhiotiaia, vel incuitlacaxiuhiã vetzia in tlatoque.

And for this reason one said that the children were brought forth: the fathers and mothers of all the small children first sought out those who would bring them to the priests' dwelling, a place named Tetzacoac—a woman and a man whom they invited. [608] It was said that they were to be uncles and aunts [of the children]; they became uncles and aunts [for them].

Auh ynic mjtoa nepilquixtilo, yn jxquichtin pipiltotonti, yn intahoan, yn jnnahoan, achtopa quintemoliaia, in quinvicazque calmecac, itocaiocan tetzacoac ce cioatl, ce oquichtli in quinotzaia, mjtoa: quintlatia quimaviña, tetlati, teaviti:

And not their kin did they take; they secured only their friends, whom they chose and to whom they [431] gave gifts. They laid out capes and breech clouts for us men. Likewise, for a woman they laid out her skirt and shirt.

auh amo inoaniolque in quimanaia, çan incoapan intlaanaia, in tlapepenaia, quintlauhtiaia: tilmatli, maxtlatl, contlaliliaia in toquichtin: no ivi in cioatl, icue, ivipil contlalilia ioalnepantla in quinvicaia calmecac, vmpa quinnacazxapotla, quinnacazcoionja pipitzcatiuh in omjtl injc quicoionja innacaz, potonquj icpatl in vmpa conquixtia, vncã quimonjlpilia iuhquin tlatzatzintleoa, tlatzatzatzi, tlachoquiztleoa in pipiltzitzinti, yoan tocivitica tlachcaiotica quinpotonjaia in jmjcpac:

[304] At midnight they took [the children] to the priests' dwelling. There they pierced and drilled their ears. [And the children] cried out [as] the pointed bone pierced their ears. They drew through a thread of unspun cotton, and bound it to them, as the little ones cried out and squirmed, and shed tears. And [302 237] they pasted upon their heads yellow macaw feathers and soft down.

And the women who became aunts were pasted [608 302] with red feathers, but only upon the legs and arms, and they covered themselves with their paper flowers, which were called their noble flowers.

auh in teaviti cioa, çanjo imjcxic, yoã inmac in mopotonjaia tlapalivitica, yoan imamazxochiuh contecativia: mjtoa, intecuxochiuh.

When they had pierced [the children's] ears, then they took them to their homes. Here they sat attending them; they sat in vigil, awake, [thus] remaining

In jquac oquimõnacazxapotlaque, njmã ic quinoalhujuica in inchachan, vncan quichieltitoque ixtoçotoque, toçotoque tlatlatviltitoque, quichixtoque in until the rosy dawn, when dawn would break and the morning would reiden—when the swallow would sing.

And when dawn broke, thereupon all bestirred themselves, and ate and drank. Thereupon the old men of the tribal temple and the singers sat in the courtyard to sing for them. And they walked carrying the small children upon their backs. And [a child who was] a little larger his uncle and aunt came grasping by the hand. There they made him dance; they went through dance movements. And when the sun hung low, after noon, then all gathered at the Tezcacoac. Here the dance and song proceeded—the songs, in all, spreading a sound as of the crashing of waves.

And then began the giving of wine. Everyone carried his wine, and brought it there. Among themselves, all took it and offered it, in earthen jars—all continually giving [it to others], giving and taking in return. Here they gave the wine to all the small children—those who were grown and those yet lying in the cradle, moistening food [in the wine] for them. Verily, everyone already mature was drunk; in truth, all showed that they had drunk wine.

None showed awe [of the wine] as it foamed; none [thought it] precious as it gleamed. It fell to the ground; the wine ran like water.[3]

And they carried their drinking vessels, called tzicuiltecomatl, [which had] three legs and, on four sides, had handles.

With ruddy faces, crying out, short of breath, with glazed eyes, all mingled with one another; there were disputes; all circled and milled about. Becoming more intense, all crowded and pressed together, elbowing each other. All took one another by the hands; they were bemused. Embracing one another firmly, [thus] all entered their homes.

Thus one said: "The wine feast hath verily been observed; for the children have drunk wine."

And thus ended and concluded Izcalli. Then came to reign the Nemontemi—five days which had no day-names, which were no longer counted, which were not reckoned in the [day] count. Greatly were they feared and held in awe.

For they were ill-omened and of no use. Nothing was done [during those days]. They were ill-fated, of ill-fortune. For in them was no reward or merit—quenman tlatviz, in quenman tlatlavilotlcoaz, in quenmã tlatõz cujcujtzcatl. 796[x]

Auh in otlatvic, njmã ie ic tlatlacivi, tlatlaqualo, aatlioa: njmã ie ic motlalia in vevetque calpoleque, cujcanjme, in jtoalco in qujocujcatiaia, vncã qujnmamatinemj in pipiltotonti: auh in ie achi qualton imatitech cantinemj in jtla, yoàn iavi, vncan qujtotia, tlaiisuhtinemj: auh in ie achi tlaca in vmmopilo tonatiuh, vncan oalcenqujxoa in tezcacoac: vncã mocenmana in netotiliztli, in cujqujztli, cepã caoantimomana, xxxamacatimanj in cujcatl: 852 [535] [533]

Auh vncã peoa in nemaco, in temaco vetli, muchi tlacatl yioc vmpa qujtquj, vmpa qujvica, tetlan tlaano, apiloltica, vncan netech nemaco nepanotl nemamaco, necuecuepililo, necuecuepcaiotililo, vncan qujntlaoãtia in jxqujchtin pipiltotonti in ie achi qualtoton, yoan in oc coçolco onoque, çan qujntlapaloltiaia, vel muchi tlacatl ivinti in ie veveitlaca, vel neixmanalo in tlaoano: 273 796[1] 852 amo nemauhtilo, iuhqujn tlapopoçoca, amo tlaçotli iuhqujn tlapepetlaca, tlalpã aci, iuhqujn atl nemja vetli, yoan intlaoancax qujtquja, itoca tzicujltecomatl: ei icxi, nauhcampa nacace, [415] iuhqujn tlaichichiliui, iuhqujn tlaçomoca, iuhqujn tlacica, iuhqujn tlaixmetzivi, tlaixnelivi, neixnanamjco, tlaixmalacachivi, tlaixmoiaoa, iuhqujn nexozcolo, nepopotzolo nequequeçalo, netotopeoalo nematitech neaano, neaanalo, nececenquetzalo, nececenmacho, nequechnaoalotiuh in cacalacoa techachan:

ic mjtoa ca nel ilhujo in vetli, ca pillaoano.

Auh injc ontzonqujça, injc ontlamj Izcalli: njmã oalmotialia, oalmotema in Nemontemj: macujlilhujtl in aoctle itoca tonalli, in aocmo vmpovi, in aocmo vmpouhquj cenca imacaxxoia, cenca mauhcaittoia: 777 796[1] 805 ichica ca çan nẽqujzquj, vncã nenenqujztilo, atle vnqujxoa, nenencolo, nenenencolo: ichica ca atle vncan ca ilhujlli, mãcecoalli, can vncan icnoiotl, neto-

3. Cf. Anderson and Dibble, op. cit., p. 24.

565 of not contributing. On the other hand we have a counterpart to these 651 macehuales who did not contribute: there were lords who being caught [681] in a crime were punished by "being condemned to death" or to exile or to being sheared, or they were made macehuales (33), that is, they were pillis from whom was taken the right to exact tribute and on whom was imposed the obligation of contributing. We saw also earlier that not all lords were exempt from contribution. We can think, nevertheless, that these cases must have been an exception, and that in general the macehuales were tributary and the pillis tribute-exacting.

33. Sahagún, II, p. 308.

We would thus have in Tenochtitlan a whole gamut of people in different situations with respect to tributation: people receiving tribute from all tribute-paying persons, people receiving tribute from the members of their calpulli, people neither tributary nor tribute-receiving, and people not tribute-receiving but tributary. According to the above data there is no doubt that there was present a marked differentiation among these levels of the population, at least. If we were to take these data only into account, of course we would have to think that the Tenochca society had classes; but if we analyze other data at our disposal, we will see the great importance which inheritance had in the belonging to each one of these levels (except that composed of the valiant in battle), which removes the class-
565 like character from them. In the first place we are told that upon ● 852 the birth of children "they were washed by the priests and after being washed they [the priests] would place in the child's right hand a tiny sword and in the left, a little shield. The children of the common people were given the insignia of their occupation, and all this beneath some idol" (34). From this it is infered that the people were

34. Acosta, José de, p. 425.

differentiated by their rank from birth: some were born destined to serve in war and on the frontiers (those with the little shields, who were not commoners) and were not to apply themselves to base work, and others were born destined to be laborers and to have humble and 565 vile occupations. Now this situation was hereditary since the pillis were called "lords" (35) and were the sons and grandsons and

14:Bandelier E-4 (no date) 1880 NU7 Aztec NU7

[81] like customs and propensities. War, at first defensive, afterwards offensive, became the life of the tribe. Religion demanded it for its bloody rites; revenge, so deeply rooted in Indian nature, called for it at every moment. But especially was it required for the subsistence of the tribe, whose increasing numbers could not live from agriculture on the scanty soil allotted to them, and who, therefore, were compelled to depend upon the spoils gathered from inroads upon their neighbours. If there was no war in progress, the Mexicans deemed themselves "idle."[7] We may therefore presume that the military organization of the Mexicans, their preparations for warfare, and the mode of the latter, are features of 701 importance, and worthy of serious attention.

[852] Every male of the Mexican tribe was born a warrior. When still a babe his father placed alongside of the child a small bow[8] and some arrows, in token of its future duties. There was no military caste at Tenuchtitlan or Mexico; with the exception of children, old people, infirm or crippled persons, and sometimes priests, every one had to go to war. Boys fifteen years old were taken along, and in some instances it was even directed "that no "youth over fifteen years of age should remain; that all had to "go, except children and old people."[9] Thus there was no "standing army" the available force being composed of all the able-bodied men of the tribe of Mexico.[10]

[7] Tezozomoc (Cap. XXI, p. 32). "Pasados algunos años dijo el rey Moctezuma á "Zihuacoatl Tlacaeleltzin general y oydor: pareceme que ha muchos dias que estamos "muy ociosos." This term, "idle," applies to the lack of any war, since immediately thereafter the war against Chalco was kindled by the most wanton provocation on the part of the Mexicans.

[8] Fr. X. Clavigero (Storia del Messico. Cesena, 1780. Lib. VI, cap. XXXVI). Francisco Lopez de Gomara ("Historia general de las Indias." Second part, "Conquista "de Méjico." contained in the collection of Vedia, volume I,—"This done, they put in "the right hand of the child, an arrow if a boy, a shuttle if a girl, to mark that he would "have to improve by the use of arms, and she by spinning and weaving," p. 438, Vedia, I). Torquemada (Lib. XIII, cap. XX, p. 430, of Vol. II, says this was done four days after the birth of the child). Clavigero intimates that only those children "whose fathers were warriors," received the token, but this is not at all confirmed. Motolinia ("Historia de los Indios de la Nueva-España" in "Coleccion de Documentos para la "Historia de Mexico," by Señor Icazbalceta, Mexico, 1866, volume I. "Y entonces si "era varon poníanle una saeta en la mano, . . . el varon porque fuese valiente para "defender à si y á la patria, porque las guerras eran muy ordinarias cada año." Tra-[463] tado I, cap. V, p. 37). There were no hereditary professions or trades, so to say.

[9] Tezozomoc (Cap. LXXXIV, p. 141, and cap. XC, p. 158). Acosta (Lib. IV, cap. XXVI, pp. 442 and 443).

[10] What the Germans call "Allgemeine Wehrpflicht," existed among the Mexicans on the most extensive scale. But their forces, although always ready, never went permanently outside of the pueblo, for they were not numerous enough, and did not gather

754

At once they fled; nevermore would they come to harm one when they had seen the obsidian knife resting in the water.

Ic njman cholоa, aiocmo ceppa tepolotivi: in jquac oquitaque itztli, atlan onoc. 776 789

Twenty-eighth Chapter, which telleth of the gnawed leavings of a mouse.

Injc cempoalli on chicuei capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa in qujmjchin ytentlacaoal. 825

Whatsoever a mouse had gnawed none might eat. It was said that he who ate what a mouse had left would be falsely accused. For it was said that the mouse came to steal it; he came to eat it in stealth. Wherefore no one might eat gnawed leavings of a mouse. Likewise it was said of it that he who ate the gnawed leavings of a mouse would be accused falsely of some sort of story or of that which might be missing.[30]

In qujmjchin in çaço tlein qujqua: aiac vel qujqualiaia, qujlmach in aqujn qujqualia yn q'caoa qujmjchin, itech tlatlamjz, ca mjtoa: oqujchtequjco in qujmjchin, oqujchtacaqua. Ipampa y, in aiac vel qujqualiaia in itentlacaoal qujmjchin. No yuh ipan mjtoz: in aqujn qujqua itentlacaoal qujmjchin, itech tlatlamjz, in çaço tlein tlatolli, anoço in tlein poliviz.

Twenty-ninth Chapter, which telleth of nails.

Injc cempoalli on chicunavi capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa in jztitl. 826 776

It was said that, when nails were pared, they cast them into the water. It was thought that this was because the water dog[30] would make good [nails] grow out — not broken; they would be sound. For when it drew someone into the water, [the water-dog] tore away his nails and eyes.

Qujlmach in tozti, in jquac motetequja, atlan contepeoaia, qujlmach ipampa: in iehoatl avitzotl, qualli qujxoaltiz: amo papatzaoaz, qualli yez. Ipampa: in jquac aqujn qujlaqujaia, qujqujxtiliaia in jzti, ioan ixtelolo.

Thirtieth Chapter, which telleth of sneezing.

Injc cempoalli ommatlactli capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa in acucholiztli. 827

When someone sneezed, they said, in times past: "Someone speaketh of me; someone saith well of me." Or they said: "Someone speaketh ill of me." Or they said: "Some people discuss me." It was thought that they made it evident, and knew, when they sneezed, that someone far away mentioned them.

In jquac aca acuchoa, qujtoaia in ie vecauh: aqujn nechitoa, aqujn nechteneoa: anoce qujtoaia: aqujn nêchicoitoa, anoçe qujtna: aqujque in noca mononotza. Qujl iehoatl qujnezcaiotiaia, iehoatl ic qujmatia: in jquac acuchoa, in aca canapa veca qujteneoa.

Thirty-first Chapter, which telleth of small children.

Injc cempoalli ommatlactli oce capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa in pipiltotonti. 853●

When small children still lay in the cradle and something was eaten or drunk,[31] first they placed it upon [their] foreheads.[32] It was said that in this way [the child] would not hiccough or be afflicted by what he ate or drank.

In iehoantin in pipiltotonti: in jquac yn oc coçolco onoque: in jquac tlaqualo, anoço itla mjz, achto ijxquac contlaiaia, qujlmach ic amo tzitzicunoz, amo motolinjz in tlein moqua, anoço mj.

29. Corresponding Spanish text: "de harto, o de sababoria, o de otra cosa."

30. Animal: Sahagun, in Collected Works, Vol. IV, 2. 21, refers to it as a spotted water animal or otter "which drew men down into the water and ate off the nails and hair of intoxicated men" (citing Sahagún, XI, cap. 4, § 2, and V, App., cap. 29). Santamaría, op. cit., Vol. I, p. 66 (cohuinar), calls it nutria o perro del agua (Lutra felina).

31. Corresponding Spanish text: "quando carajan, o beajan en presencia de algun niño."

32. Ibid.: "en la frente."

Then the mother of the young man placed a very fine shift upon her daughter-in-law, and put for her, by her feet, a richly embroidered skirt. And the mother of the young woman covered her son-in-law with a very fine cape, and tied it over his shoulder, and laid a very richly embroidered breech clout at his feet. This done, a number of old women, who are called ainci, tied the corner of the young man's cape to the lower part of the young woman's shift. In this way was concluded the marriage, with many other ceremonies, and dinings, and drinking, and dances, which were given thereafter, as is contained in the account of the marriages.

matrimonjo, con otras muchas cerimonjas, y cuneres, y beueres, y bayles, que despues se hazian, como se contiene, en la historia del matrimonjo. 585 302 292

They observed two other feasts which in part were fixed and in part were movable. They were movable because they were celebrated in interpolated years. One was observed every four years, and the other every eight years. They were fixed because they had year, month, and day assigned. In the one which was celebrated every four years, they pierced the ears of the boys and the girls, and they performed for them ceremonies for good growth, and they purified them over the fire. In the one which they celebrated every eight years, they fasted before it for eight days on bread and water, and enacted a dance in which they assumed the forms or characters of various birds and animals. And they said that they sought good fortune, as is set forth in the appendix of the Second Book.

These movable feasts, in some years, displace the feasts of the calendar, as also happeneth in our calendar.

Otras dos fiestas tenjan, que en parte eran fixas, y en parte eran moujbles: eran moujbles, porque se hazian por años interpolados. La vna se hazia, de quatro en quatro años, y la otra de ocho en ocho años: eran fixas porque tenjan año, mes, y dia señalados. En la que se hazia, de quatro en quatro años, horadauan las orejas a los njños o njñas: y hazianlos, las cerimonjas, de crezca para bien, y lustrauanlos por el fuego. En la que hazian, de ocho en ocho años: ayunauan antes della, ocho dias a pan y agua, y hazian vn areyto, en que tomauan figuras, o personajes, de diuersas aues y animales: y dezian que buscauan ventura, como esta escrito, en el apendiz del segundo libro. 796 [304 854] [535 785]

Estas fiestas mouibles en algunos años echan de su lugar a las fiestas del kalendario: como tambien acontece, en nuestro kalendario.

3: Sahagun M-5 (1529-1590) 1951 NU7 Aztec NU7

*796
532
291

[415]

[854]

[411]

Aztec Pano y Tezcuco

45-49. Iscoçauhqui (Chapter 38)
50. Macuilcalli (Appendix)
51. Calpulli (Appendix)

[p. 102 J]

565 Twentieth Chapter, in which is told how they reared the sons of lords and noblemen.

Ic cempoalli capitulo: vncan mjtoa, in quenjn qujnoapaoia in inpilhoan tlatoque, ioan pipilti.

And here is described the rearing of the sons of those who were lords, and of all the princes, who were the sons[1] of lords and noblemen.

Auh njcan mjtoa: in jnneoapaoaliz in iehoantin in tlatoque impilhoan, ioan in jxqujchtin in tlaçopipilti, in jnpilhoan tlatoque, pipilti.

854 Their mothers and fathers nourished and raised them, or nursemaids raised them while they were still small children.

iehoantin in jnnaoan, in jntaoan qujmjxcaltia, qujnoapaoa, anoço chichioame in qujnoapaoa in oc pipiltotonti:

565 855 And when they could run, when they were perhaps six years old, thereupon [the boys] went [forth] to play. Their pages—perhaps two, or three—accompanied them that they might amuse them. [The child's] father or mother charged these [pages] that [the boy] not behave ill, that he not taint himself with vice, as he went along the streets.

auh in jcoac ie uel nenemj, aço ie chiquacenxiuhtia, njman ic ic iauh in maaujltiz, in qujnujca ixoloca aço ome anoço ei in caauijltiz, iehoantin qujncocultia in jtatzin in jnantzin injc amo tlauelilocatiz, injc amo qujmocujtlaujz tlauelilocaiotl: in jcoac otli qujtocaz.

565 867 And also they took great care that he should converse fittingly with others—that his conversation should be proper; that he should respect and show reverence to others—[when] perchance he somewhere might chance to meet a judge, or a leading militia officer, or a seasoned warrior, or someone of lesser rank; or a revered old man, or a respected old woman; or someone who was poor. He should greet him and bow humbly. He said: "Come hither, my beloved grandfather; let me bow before thee." And the old one who had been greeted then said: "O my beloved grandson, O precious stone, O precious feather, thou has shown me favor. May it go well with thee."

Auh no cenca qujcujtlaújltiaia injc vel tenotzaz, injc qualli iez in jtlatol, injc teimacaçia, injc temauhcaitiz, aço cana qujnamjquiz aço tecutlato, anoço achcauhtlaiacati, anoço iautequjoa, anoço çan aca tlapaltzintli, anoço veuentzin, anoço ilamatzin, anoço aca motolinja, qujtlapaloz cenca mopechteca, qujlhuja, xioalmoujca noculizine, ma njmjtznotlaxili: auh in iehoatl oqujtlapalo veuentzin njmã qujlhuja nonujuhtzine concatle quetzalle otinechmocnelili ma ximonenemjti:

And when the young boy thus saluted others, they praised him highly for it. They rejoiced greatly over it; they were joyful because of it. They said: "How will this beloved child be, if he shall live? He will in sooth be a nobleman. Mayhap his reward will be something [great]."

auh injc iuh tetlapaloa, y, in piltontli, ic cenca qujiecteneoa, cenca ic papaquj, ic motlamachtia qujtoa: quenamj ietiuhi in piltzintli intla nemjz ca tel pilli, aço itla imaçeoal iez.

565 871 And when he was already maybe ten, twelve, or thirteen years old, they placed him in the priests' house; they delivered him into the hands of the fire priests and [other] priests, that he might be reared

Auh in jcoac ie matlacxiuhtia aço ie vmome, anoço ie omej, icoac qujcalaquja in calmecac, inmac qujmoncaoaia in tlenamacaque, in tlamacazque, injc vmpa izcaltiloz nonotzaloz, tlachieltiloz inic vel

1. Altos ingenuos, the Real Academia de la Historia MS has the following, omitted from the Florentine Codex: "Inic mocuepaoaz inic mocualchiqui ça ye no yni in omoiaoa in tlamaiiaoli, yan oc"—"they were reared and brought up just as hath been told in the [section] on birth."

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

443 deer, mallards, young dogs and other things of that sort
262 in their part of the market, and let us also mention the fruiterers, and the women who sold cooked food, dough
[445] and tripe in their own part of the market; then every sort of pottery made in a thousand different forms from great water jars to little jugs, these also had a place to themselves; then those who sold honey and honey paste and other dainties like nut paste, and those who sold
443 lumber, boards, cradles, beams, blocks and benches, each [322 article by itself, and the vendors of ocote[1] firewood, and 854 other things of a similar nature. I must furthermore 373] mention, asking your pardon, that they also sold many [281 canoes full of human excrement, and these were kept in the 364] creeks near the market, and this they use to make salt or for tanning skins, for without it they say that they cannot be well prepared. I know well that some gentlemen
[364 laugh at this, but I say that it is so, and I may add that 514] on all the roads it is a usual thing to have places made of reeds or straw or grass, so that they may be screened from the passers by, into these they retire when they wish to purge their bowels so that even that filth should not be lost. But why do I waste so many words in recounting what they sell in that great market, for I shall never finish if I tell it all in detail. Paper, which in this country is [314 called Amal, and reeds scented with liquidambar, and full 289 of tobacco, and yellow ointments and things of that sort 386 are sold by themselves, and much cochineal is sold under 276] the arcades which are in that great market place, and there are many vendors of herbs and other sorts of trades. There [693 are also buildings where three magistrates sit in judgment,
344] and there are executive officers like Alguacils who inspect [324] the merchandise. I am forgetting those who sell salt, and those who make the stone knives, and how they split them

[1] Pitch-pine for torches

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

262 The principal food was the tortilla, a flat cake of un-
[415] leavened corn meal, which measured a good foot in diameter,
●855 to judge from the size of the clay griddles used in cooking them, in contrast to the modern tortilla which varies between four and six inches. At three the child received half a tortilla a day; at four and five his ration was doubled; from six to twelve a tortilla and a half were prescribed, and at thirteen the allotment was two. Supplemented by beans and game, this diet was filling and nutritious.

861 The Mendoza manuscript reflects the current Aztec ideas on child psychology. Admonition was the chief method of discipline up to the eighth year. From then on a rigorous corporal punishment awaited the recalcitrant child. This discipline ranged from pricking the hand with the maguey spine to exposing the child to the chill rigors of a mountain night, lying bound and naked in a mud puddle. In view of the almost [855] universal kindness which Indian parents show to their children, they probably seldom applied these extremely imaginative corrections for wrongdoing by the young.

868 This type of training, not unlike that of a modern farm
871 child, initiated him directly into the economic life of the 793 home. The satisfactions in playing a man's part by contributing to the family welfare compensated the child for the heaviness of his social obligation. At fifteen or sixteen most boys went through a special training before assuming the full rights of manhood; under certain conditions they were younger when they received this special instruction. There were two types of schools: the telpuchcalli, or house of youth, for standard training, and the calmecac of uncertain etymology, for instruction in priestly duties. The telpuchcalli, maintained by the clan for the children of its members, offered instruc-

565 Twentieth Chapter, in which is told how they reared the sons of lords and noblemen.

Ic cempoalli capitulo: vncan mjtoa, in quenjn qujnoapacia in inpilhoan tlatoque, ioan pipilti.

And here is described the rearing of the sons of those who were lords, and of all the princes, who were the sons[1] of lords and noblemen.

Auh njcan mjtoa: in jnneoapaoaliz in iehoantin in tlatoque impilhoan, ioan in jxqujchtin in tlaçopipilti, in jnpilhoan tlatoque, pipilti.

854 Their mothers and fathers nourished and raised them, or nursemaids raised them while they were 855 still small children.

iehoantin in jnnaoan, in jntaoan qujmjxcaltia, qujnoapaoa, anoço chichioame in qujnoapaoa in oc pipiltotonti:

565 And when they could run, when they were per-
855 haps six years old, thereupon [the boys] went [forth] to play. Their pages—perhaps two, or three—accompanied them that they might amuse them. [The child's] father or mother charged these [pages] that [the boy] not behave ill, that he not taint himself with vice, as he went along the streets.

auh in jcoac ie uel nenemj, aço ie chiquacenxiuhtia, njman ie ic iauh in maaujltiz, in qujnujca ixolooa aço ome anoço ei in caaujltiz, iehoantin qujncocultia in jtatzin in jnantzin injc amo tlauelilocatiz, injc amo qujmocujtlaujz tlauelilocaiotl: in jcoac otli qujtocaz.

565 And also they took great care that he should con-
867 verse fittingly with others—that his conversation should be proper; that he should respect and show reverence to others—[when] perchance he somewhere might chance to meet a judge, or a leading militia officer, or a seasoned warrior, or someone of lesser rank; or a revered old man, or a respected old woman; or someone who was poor. He should greet him and bow humbly. He said: "Come hither, my beloved grandfather; let me bow before thee." And the old one who had been greeted then said: "O my beloved grandson, O precious stone, O precious feather, thou has shown me favor. May it go well with thee."

Auh no cenca qujcujtlaujltiaia injc vel tenotzaz, injc qualli iez in jtlatol, injc teimacaçiz, injc temauhcaitaz, aço cana qujnamjquiz aço tecutlato, anoço achcauhtlaiacati, anoço iautequjoa, anoço çan aca tlapaltzintli, anoço veuentzin, anoço ilamatzin, anoço aca motolinja, qujtlapaloz cenca mopechteca, qujlhuja, xioalmoujca nocultzine, ma njmjtznotlaxili: auh in iehoatl oqujtlapalo veuentzin njmã qujlhuja nonujuhtzine conzatle quetzalle otinechmocnelili ma ximonenemjti:

And when the young boy thus saluted others, they praised him highly for it. They rejoiced greatly over it; they were joyful because of it. They said: "How will this beloved child be, if he shall live? He will in sooth be a nobleman. Mayhap his reward will be something [great]."

auh injc iuh tetlapaloa, y, in piltontli, ic cenca qujiecteneua, cenca ic papaquj, ic motlamachtia. qujtoa: quenamj ietiuhi in piltzintli intla nemjz ca tel pilli, aço itla imaçeoal iez.

565 And when he was already maybe ten, twelve, or 871 thirteen years old, they placed him in the priests' house; they delivered him into the hands of the fire priests and [other] priests, that he might be reared

Auh in jcoac ie matlacxiuhtia aço ie vmome, anoço ie omej, icoac qujcalaquja in calmecac, inmac qujmoncaoaia in tlenamacaque, in tlamacazque, injc vmpa izcaltiloz nonozaloz, tlachieltiloz inic vel

1. After jnpilhoan, the Real Academia de la Historia MS has the following, omitted from the Florentine Codex: "Inic mononpoua inic oncualtia ga yc on yui in omixiuo in tlacatilli, yan ic"—"they were reared and brought up just as hath been told in the [section] on birth."

6: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1954 NU7 Aztec NU7

Twenty-first Chapter, in which is told how all arose through the ranks until they became judges.

And behold how began the life of the young boy. At first, while still a small boy, his hair was shorn. And when he was already ten years old, they then let a tuft of hair grow on the back of his head. And when he was fifteen years old, then the tuft of hair became long. [This was] when he had nowhere taken captives.

And if he took a captive with the help of others —perchance doing so with the aid of two, or of three, or of four, or of five, or of six, at which point came to an end [the reckoning] that a captive was taken with others' help—then the lock of hair was removed. And thus was the division of their captive: in six parts it came. The first, who was the real captor, took his body and one of his thighs—the one with the right foot. And the second who took part [in the capture] took the left thigh. And the third took the right upper arm. The fourth took the left upper arm. The fifth took the right forearm. And as for the sixth, he took the left forearm.

And when the tuft on the back of his head was removed, he was shorn so that he was left [another] lock: his hair dress kept, on the right side, the hair hanging low, reaching the bottom of his ear; to one side [only] was his lock of hair set. When this [was done], he assumed another face, he appeared otherwise, so that it might be seen that he had made a captive with the help of others [and that] the tuft of hair on the back of his head had been removed.

And then his grandfather, or his beloved uncle, addressed him. He said to him: "My beloved grandson, the sun, the lord of the earth, hath washed thy face. Thou hast taken another face; and thou hast gone to throw thyself against the foe. Let them take thee if, without profit, once more thou takest a captive with the aid of others. What wouldst thou be? Wouldst thou have a young girl's lock of hair? Take care lest thou again take a captive with others' help. Cast thyself against our foes."

Injc cempoalli oce capitulo, vncan mjtoa, in iuhquima tlamamatlatl injc tlecoia in jxquichica tecutlato muchioa. 302 855

Auh izcatquj injc entzinti, in imemjliz in telpuchtontli, in iacachtó çan oc moquateçonoa in oc piltontli: auh in ic matlacxiujtl icoac mocuexpaltia, auh in cextolxiujtl, icoac cuexpalchicacpul muchioa in acan tlama.

Auh intla tepal otlama aço oteoncaioti, anoço otrecaioti, anoço otenauhcaioti anoço otemacujlcaioti, anoço otechiquacencaioti vncan tlantica injc tepal tlamalo injc necuexpallaçalo. Auh injc quimoxexelhuja inmal chiquaceccã qujça. Injc ce vel iehoatl in tlamani quicui in itlac: ioan ce imetz: iehoatl in tomaiauhcãpa tocxi: auh inic teoncaiotia, quicui in topochcopa tometz. Auh inic tehecaiotia: quicui in tomaiauhcampa tahcul. Jnic tenauhcaiotia: quicui in topochoopa tacul. Jnic temacuilcaiotia: quicui in tomaiauhcampa tomatzotzopaz. Auh inic tlachiquacencaiotia iehoatl quicui in topochcopa tomatzotzopaz. 727 858

Auh in in icoac mocuexpallaça, inic moxima motzotzocoltia quioallamachia in innexin imaiauhcãpa quioalhuilancaiotia inacaz itzintlan oalaci iioca motema initzotzocul: in icoac y oc centetl quicui inixaiac oc centlamantli ic tlachia inic ittoz ca otepallama omocuespallaz.

Auh niman ic quitlatlauhtia in icul anoço itlatzin quilhuia. Nosuiuhtze omicemixamili in tonatiuh, i tlaltecutli ocentetl ticcuic in mozaiac, auh ça otia, inuicpa xonmomaiaui ma mitzuicacan in toiauol intla nen oc cenpa tepal xitlama tle tiez cuis timatzotzocoltiz, ma nen ic no cuel tepal titlama ça inca ximomocla in toiauhoan. 603 [604] 861

X-787 Twenty-second Chapter, which telleth of the eleventh sign, called One Monkey, and of its fortune.
776 It was said of those then born that one was a man of 753 good standing, friendly, amiable, and happy, given
784 to music and the other arts. And it was said that at this time descended to earth those who were the "Goddesses"; and that those whom they met on the road or in paths between houses they injured and visited with sickness. And for this reason, when it was this day sign, no one could fare forth. And one who then sickened the physicians forthwith abandoned.

Inic ompoalli vnnomo capitulo, itechpa tlatoa, inic motlacotl ocz machiotl, in jtoca oz oçomatli: ioan in jtonallo, quijlmach in aquijque vncan tlacatia quall: iiollo catca, teicnjoan, tlaçotlakonj, papaquijnj, quijmocujtlavisia in cujcatl, ioan in oc cequj tolteca-iotl: auh quijl in jquac oaltemoia, in aquijque cioatetu in tlalticpac: auh quijl in aquijque quijnnamjquija, in vtlica, in anoço caltzala quijtlaueliaia cocolixtli itech quijtlalia: auh ipampa in jpan in tonalli catca, aiac vel quiçaia: auh in aquin iquac mococoaia, çan njman quijnnaotiaia in titici.

X-787 One Monkey set in. This Monkey [day sign] they regarded as favorable.

But also they said that at that time the so-called 776 "Princesses" or "Goddesses" descended. It was the 784 time when they were expected, the time of their arrival. At this time they looked upon the children
● 855 with much apprehension. They simply shut them in the houses; they did not wish them to appear at the entrances or on the road, so that [the Goddesses] would not come upon or harm them. Perhaps one of them would have twisted lips, or a shrunken mouth; or he cross-eyed or of weak vision; or his lips would quiver or quake; or he would be maddened—a devil would possess him and he would foam at the mouth; or he would have withered, twisted arms; or be lame, etc.

Moquetza oz oçomatli: inin oçomatli, quijqualitaia:

auh ioan quitoa, no uncan temoaia inchiclpan, imaçia, in motencoaia cioapipilti, cioatetu, cenca vncã quijnclamauhcaititiliaia in tepilhoan, çã quijetzatzaquaia calitic, amo quijnonquixtitlanja, in quijaoac, in vtlica, inic amo motenamjctinque, quijmjlacoque, aço aca tennecujliviz, tempatziviz, ixnecujliuiz, ixvitzaliviz, itzn papatlacaz, itzn viujiocaz, iollotlaueliotiz, itech quijnenaz, tenqualacquijçaz, matzicoliuiz, macopichauiz, icxi quijujlanaz. Ere.

And if someone began to sicken, the physicians
776 told him that he would become dangerously sick;
753 he would not recover. For he had come upon the Princesses, and they had set upon him; it was the time of their descent and arrival when [this sickness] began. For it was [so] willed.

auh intla aca ipan opeuh mococoa, quijtellujaia in titici, ca tlamaiz, aocmo quijçaz, ca omotenamjcti, ipan oquijaque in cioapipilti, ca intemoian, imãcuian in opeuh, ca oelcujloc:

And likewise it was said that if someone were of good standing, of a good day sign, and able, if at this time they injured him, they said that the Princesses had indeed willed it upon him and that he had contended with them.[1] auh no ioan mjtoa, intla aca qualli yiollo, in qualli itonal, ioan qualli itlachiclia: vncan quijtlacallujaia, quijoaia: ca çan oquelcujque, oquijnnonamjcti in cioapipilti.

1. Corresponding Spanish note: "Y si alguno que era bien dispuesto, conforme en cuanto dice, decían que las diosas le habían dañado la hermosura, y se le habían quitado."

Thirty-third Chapter, in which is mentioned the nineteenth sign, named One Eagle. It was said to be an evil day sign, and he who was then born was beautful, and brave, daring, fearing nothing and no one. And it was said that the women also were daring, of ill fame, of evil tongue, shameless, and immodest. And it was said that at this time descended the lesser Goddesses; and they did evil to the small children. Hence they did not let them go out of doors, nor did they bathe them at that time.[1]

Injc cēpoalli ōmatlactli vmey capitulo: vncan motenecoa ynjc cextolli vnnavi machiotl, yn itoca ce quauhtli: quil amo qualli in tonalli, auh in ipan tlacatia, mochachamaoanj, yoã chicaoque, aiac ixco tlachia, atle ypan tlatta, atle ypã teitta: yoan quil in cihoa, ano tle ypã tlachia, yoan cenca tlavilquixtianj, tentlaveliloque, ixquauhti, amo pinaoanj: auh quil yn iquac, oaltemoia yn aquique tepitoton cihoateteu: auh quintlaueliaia in conetotonti, yc amo quinoalquixtiaia in qujiaoac, amono quimaltiaia yn iquac. 787x

—One Eagle. This One Eagle, it was said, was an evil day sign. Also at that time descended those named the "Goddesses." It was said, and it was so stated, that they were only the youngest ones, only the sisters,[2] who then came down. Nevertheless, [the people] took great fright, because it was said that they were very harmful, furious, hateful, hostile, and merciless. As they could not be resisted, so they made sport of people, as is told in various places and mentioned here and now. None of the small children might go naked. They were carefully watched, because at this time they might be violently possessed, their lips twisted and withered, their eyes crossed and cloudy, their noses crooked, etc.

In ce quauhtli: ynjn ce quauhtli, mjtoa amo qualli tonalli, no vncan temoia, ih qujntocaiotia cihoateteu, quilmach yn juh onmjtoa ça xoxocoio, ça teiccaoan yn vncan temoia, ieoe cenca vellamauhtiaia, ypampa quil cenca ihjioque, tlaveleque, tetlavelique, amo ellelceuhque, amo icnooaque, njman aixnamjquizzi, ynjc teca maviltianj, yn juh omjto quezquican: yn juh conitoa in iquac hin, njmã aiac vel petlauhtinenca in pipiltoeõti, cenca malhujloia, ypampa cenca tlaquauh vncan tetech quineoaia, tennecujlooaia, tempatrioooaia, ixnecujlioooaia, ixcatrioooaia, iacanecuiloaia. etc. 787x 776 855

And therefore they paid them great honor there in the places where they were awaited, there in the different Goddesses' temples. In each neighborhood, in the house clusters and their vicinities, reeds were strewn and scattered; sand was sprinkled on the roads and at street crossings and crossroads—places where roads came together.

auh injc cenca qujnmavixtiliaia in vncan inchielpã yn izquicã cicihoateucalco, in tlatlaxilacalpã, tetlatlaxilacalloc, tetlatlaxilacaltian, tõtoltzetzelolo, tlatoltzetzelolo, tlaixalhujlo yn vtlica, yn vmaxac, yn inepanivjian vtli. 776 782

One who made a vow to them that he would cover and wrap them, adorned their offerings, the paper banners of the Goddesses painted and spattered with liquid rubber. There he covered the different images of the Goddesses, as they were arranged in order. It was at midnight, just at the dividing of the night, that the making of offerings

Jn aquin invicpa monetoltia: in qujnquentiz quintlaquentiz, quinchichivilia yn jnnextlacal, in cihoatetentil amatl, tlaoolxaoalli, oolpeiaoac, vmpa qujmoquequentia yn izquijteme, tecpantoque, yn inixiptlaoan iocalnepantla, çan jc onxellivi, iocalli im peoa tlamanililo, auh iquac mocaoa yie nepantla tonatiuh, yie tlaqualizpã auh in aquin amo qujntlaquentia, çan [778]

1. Corresponding Spanish text: "no les dexaron salir de casa, ni bañarse, al menos que entonces eran niños varones."
2. Translation: see "Monosyllables are 3 substances," p. 212.

824 531 Third Chapter, which telleth of flowers artificially arranged.[3]

Flowers arranged with artifice: there were many kinds thus named, flowers artificially arranged — flower shields; flowers for clipped heads, or for shorn ones, or drums; or spreading [flowers]. As to these flowers the ancients were also deluded. They said: "It is not our right to smell in the midst — the center — of them; he alone, he who pervadeth all, Titlacauan, may smell that place. Our right is only to smell them there at the edges."

Injc ey capitulo, itechpa tlatoa, in suchitl yn ye tlatlalilli.

Suchitl ie tlatlalilli: ca mjiec tlamantli injc motocaiotia in suchitl tlatlalilli, chimalsuchitl, quateçonsuchitl, quachic, vevetl, moiauac: In jtechpa yn suchitl, no motlapololtiaya in vevetque, qujtoaia: ca amo tonemac in tlanepantla, in jnepantla tiquijnecujaque ca çan icelteiin vel vncan motlanecujltia in tloque naoaque, in titlacaoan: çanijo tonemac, in vncan titlanecujaque in jtenco.

824 Fourth Chapter, which telleth of dried grains of maize.

Injc navi capitulo, itechpa tlatoa in tlaulli.

As to dried grains of maize, in many ways were the women none the less deluded. First, when they cooked it or set it in ashes — behold their folly: when they would place it in the olla with ashes, first of all they breathed upon it. It was held that in this way it would not take fright; thus it would not fear the heat. It was said that thus they mitigated the heat.

[252]

Second, they deceived themselves in this way: if they saw or came upon dried grains of maize lying scattered on the ground, then they quickly gathered them up. They said: "Our sustenance suffereth: it lieth weeping. If we should not gather it up, it would accuse us before our lord. It would say: 'O our lord, this vassal picked me not up when I lay scattered upon the ground. Punish him!' Or perhaps we should starve."

In jtechpa in tlaulli: mjiec tlamantli oc noma, ic motlapololtia in cioa. Injc centlamantli: in jquac qujcuxitia, in anoço qujnexquetza: izcatquj in jnnetlapololtiliz, in jquac ic contemazque in nexcomjc: oc achtopa conahsiovia, qujlmach ic amo momauhtiz, ic amo motonalmauhtiz: qujlmach ic contonallalilia.

Injc vntlamantli, injc muztlacavia: intla oquijtaque, in anoço oypan qujçato tlaulli chachaisuatoc tlalpan: njman conpepentiuetzi, qujtoa: motolinja in tonacaiutl, mochochoqujlitoc: ca intlacamo ticpepenazque, ca techteixpanujz in jxpantzinco totecujo: ca qujmolhujliz. Totecujoe, injn macoaalli: ca amo nechpepen, in jquac tlalpan njcenmantoca: ma zicmotlatzacujltili: auh anoce timaianazque.

●856 Fifth Chapter, which telleth of stepping over one.

Injc macujlli capitulo, itechpa tlatoa in tecuencholhujlizti.

As to stepping over one, the natives also [were] deluded. When some child lay stretched out across one's path, if someone stepped over him, then they chid him who passed over him, saying to him: "Why dost thou step over him?"

It was said that thereby the child would grow no more; he would be only small. And in order to cure him, so that [this] might not befall the child, once again he stepped back over him.[4] Thus was it remedied.

In jtechpa tecuencholhujlizti: no centlamantli innetlapololtiliz in njcan tlaca: in jquac tla aca melavatoc piltontli, necujliuhtoc: intla aca oconcuencholhuj, njman caoa in aquja otecuencholhuj, qujlhuja. Tle ipampa in ticcuencholhuja:

qujlmach ic ayocmo manaz in piltontli, ça izqujchton iez: auh injc compatiaia, injc amo ipan muchioaz piltontli, oc eppa qujoalpancholhuja: ic vmpatia.

3. Suchitl yn ye tlatlalilli. Corresponding Spanish text: "las flores, que se compusieron de muchas flores."

4. Quinelpancholhuia. Corresponding Spanish text: "otra vez volvióse atrás a pasar sobre el, por la parte contraria."

Sixth Chapter, which telleth of drinking.[5]

As to drinking, there, also was a delusion of the ancients, somewhat like the account of stepping over one.

And in this wise was the account of it: when, perchance, one drank; if one yet a small child drank first, and afterwards one drank who was a little older, already grown, then [the elder] restrained and took the water from the small child. He said to him: "Why dost thou wish to drink first? Thou wilt not grow large, but remain small. Now let thy elder brother drink, for he is already bigger."[6]

Injc chiquacen capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa in atiliztli. 271

In jtechpa atiliztli: no vncatca innextlacaviliz in 856 vevetque: çan ie achi no iuhquj in jtlatlatollo in tecencholhujliztli.

Auh ivin in, ca itlatlatollo: in jquac tla ie atli, in tle ie achto atli oc piltontli: auh intla çatepan atli in ie achi tachcauh, in ie quauhtic: njman qujtlacaoaltia, qujcujlia in atl in piltontli, qujlhuja: tle ipampa in achto tatlinnequj, amo tiquauhtiez, çan ye tixqujchtoetiez: ma oc ie conj in motiachcauh, achic ca ie quauhtic.

Seventh Chapter, which telleth of him who dipped into the cooking pot.

Of this there was also a delusion of the natives, known especially of the men. And in this wise was it known: when, perhaps, men ate, and one only dipped into the cooking pot — not into a sauce dish — then also the mothers and fathers restrained him. They said to him: "Do not dip into the cooking pot; there [in war] thou wilt leave thy captives. If thou goest to war, none wilt thou seize; no one will become thy captive."

Injc chicome capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa: in aquja xocco ontlapalca. 264 726

In jtechpa in: no vncatca innetlapololiliz, in njcan tlaca: oc cenca intechpa mocaquj in toqujchtin. Auh ivin in mocaquj: in jquac intla tlaqua toqujchti: auh çan xocco, in ontlapalotica, amo molcaxic: njman no qujtlacaoaltia in tenanoan, in tetaoan, qujlhvia: macamo xocco xontlatlapalo, vncan tiqujmoucaoa in momalhoan: intla tiaz iavc, aiac ticaciz, aiac momal muchioaz.

Eighth Chapter, which telleth of tamales stuck [to the cooking pot].

Concerning tamales stuck [to the cooking pot] as another deception of the natives, it was said that the men and women would not eat them. It was stated that if the men were to eat them, when they would shoot arrows in warfare, the arrow which was shot would not find its mark. Or perchance therefore they might die, or one's wife would with difficulty bear children.

And just so was it as to a woman. If she were to eat tamales which had stuck [to the cooking pot], she could not bear children. Her child would only adhere to and thus die in her womb. Therefore the mothers sternly forbade them to eat tamales which had stuck [to the cooking pot].

Injc chicuei capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa in jxqujuhquj tamalli. 264

In jtechpa in jxqujuhquj tamalli: oc no centlamantli innextlacaviliz in njcan tlaca, qujlmach amo vel qujquazque, in oquijchtin, ioan cioa: qujlmach intla qujquazque toqujchti, amo xacan in qujçaz mjtl, injc qujmjauaque iuac: auh anoçe ic mjquiz, yoan xiaxcan thacachioaz in jnamic.

Auh çan ie no yuhquj in jtechpa cioatl: intla qujquaz ixqujuhquj tamalli, amo vellacachioaz: çan itech ixqujviz in jconeuh, ic mjquiz in ijti: ipampa cenca qujtecaoaltiaia in tenanoan, injc amo moquaz, in jxqujuhquj tamalli.

---

5. Corresponding Spanish text: "quijote dado, hacer el mesmo, como del mojar."

6. Ibid.: "el hombre dos hermanos. El el mesmo hacia primero, dandolos el mojar, no hacer primero, que por porque el hacer primero, no crecerse: mas quedarse de, como niño agora." See also Carochi, op. cit., p. 326: "Atiliz, es adorbolio, con que se mesmo . . . que el diferencia entre cosa pertenece, o casa, y otra."

Twelfth Chapter, which telleth of earthquakes.

When the earth quivered, a delusion of the natives was to be seen. When the earth quaked, then they quickly took their children by the neck and lifted them,[12] so that they might soon grow big — so that they might mature quickly. It was said that if they did not take them by the neck and lift them quickly, they would with difficulty wax larger.. And they said that the earthquake would bear [the child] away if they did not grasp him by the neck and lift him. And they sprinkled water upon their faces.

And their houses, their square wooden beams, their food storage bins, their cooking pots, and indeed all their goods, everything, they sprinkled with water. And if they forgot something, they wrangled over it; it was said that the earthquake would take it away. And everyone raised a din and cried out while striking the hand to the lips in order to make known [the earthquake] to those who knew not of it.[13]

Injc matlactli vnnemme capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa yn tlallolinjlixtli. 823

In jquac tlallolinj, centlamantli neci innetlapololtiliz in njcan tlaca: in jquac tlallolinj, njman iciuhca quinquechaana in jnpilhoan, injc yciuhca quaquauhtiezque, injc yciuhca manazque: quijlmach intlacamo quinquechaanazque iciuhca, ayaxcan quauhtiazque: yoan quitoaia, quivica in tlallolinjlixtli, intlacamo quijquechaanazque, yoan quimixalpichiaia. 856

Auh yn jncal, in intlaquetzal, in jncuezcon, in jnxuc, in ye inquich intlatquj, muchi catzelhuja: auh intla ytla oquijcauhque, yc macoia: quijlmach quivica in tlallolinjlixtli: yoan inquich tlacatl ycaocaia, motenvitequja: yc quinmachiltiaya, in amo quimati. 823

Thirteenth Chapter, which telleth of the [three] hearth stones.

Concerning the [three] hearth stones there was also a delusion of the natives. When they saw someone kicking[14] the hearth stones, they restrained him from doing so. They said to him: "Do not kick the hearth stones. It will deaden thy feet when, perchance, thou goest to war." They said to him that now he would not be able to walk or run in time of battle. His feet would be numbed; quickly he would fall into the hands of their foes. Hence the natives restrained their youths, that this might not befall them.

Injc matlactli vnnay capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa in tenamaztli. 354

In jtechpa in tenamaztli: no vncatca innetlapololtiliz, in njcan tlaca: in jquac in aca quijtta, in quijtilicçatica in tenamaztli: yc quijtlacaoaltiaia, quijlhujaia: macamo xictiliçatia in tenamaztli mitzjcximjmjctiz in jquac intla tiaz iave, quijlhuja: aiocmo vel nenemjz, aiocmo vel motlaloz in iaupan: ça ycximjmjquiz, yciuhca ynmac vetziz in jniaovan: ynjc quijtlacaoaltiaia in jntelpuchoan, in njcan tlaca, injc amo yuh inpan muchioez.

Fourteenth Chapter, which telleth of the tortilla doubled over on the griddle.

When a woman made tortillas, if her tortilla doubled over, there was also a delusion of theirs. She said: "Someone who now cometh hath kicked

Injc matlactli onnavi capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa in comalco mocuelpachoa tlaxcalli. 252

In jquac tlaxcaloa in cioa, intla ocuelpachiuh itlaxcal: no vncatca innetlapololtiliz, quijtoa: aquin ie viza oquijualtilicçac: auh in anoce yoquijchvi, in ca-

12. Quiquechaanazque literally, they took them by the neck. The corresponding Spanish text reads: "tomauan a sus niños sus madres los cuanto, por cobrar los alientos, y los hazauan en alto."

13. Ibid.: "para que todos sabiendo, que temblaua la tierra."

14. Quijtilicçatica literally, were kicking it (cf. ilicça, kicking, op. cit.); corresponding Spanish text: "los que pasaua el pie sobre los tenamites, que no tuuo ganados."

Thirty-sixth Chapter, which telleth of the sweat house.

Although the sweat house were very hot, where all bathed, if one known as a twin went there, then he would dispel the steam and destroy [the heat], however hot the sweat house were — even if he went to stand only at the doorway; even more so if he were to bathe among [the others]. But thus could he remedy it; it was said that four times he himself cast potsherds on the ground and sprinkled them with water. It was thought that thus he would not dispel the heat. It would be even hotter.

And when two were born who were called twins, it was said that wherever something was dyed, when [someone] dyed rabbit fur, they might not enter there. If they were to enter there, it was said, they would cast a spell over it; they would blow the colors off. It would come out badly — it would become multicolored, especially [if the dye were] chili red. But thus was it remedied: [the dyer] made him taste the dye water. It was said that in this way the rabbit fur would not be damaged.

Likewise, neither might those known as twins enter where tamales were cooking; because, it was said, if they came in there, they would also bewitch the tamales and the cooking pot. They would not cook, though [left there] all day. The tamales would each one cook only on one side. And in order to remedy it, so that it would not thus happen, when perhaps they went to enter, they placed the cooking pot on the fire. And if by chance the tamales were placed in the pot in [their] presence, they made them lay one [of them] in place. It was said that thus the tamales would not be harmed.

Injc cempoalli on castolli oce capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa: in temazcalli. 343

In temazcalli, in vncan netemalo: intlanel cenca totonquj, intla vmpa iaz, in motenexa cocoa: njmil quipouhtitlaça, quipolos injc cenca totonquj ocatca in temazcalli: intlanel çan quijaoac onmoquetzatiuh: oc cenca intla tehoan motemaz. Auh injc patiz quijl nappa in vel inoma contlaçaz, in conatequjz tapalcatl: qujl ic amo quipolos, injc totonquj: çan oc cenca totonquj iez.

515 845

Ioan in vmêtin tlacati, in mjtoa cocoa, qujlmach in canjn tlapalo, in quipa tochomjtl: amo vel vmpa calaquj: yntla vmpa calaquiz, quilmach quizoza, quipitza in tlapalli: amo qualli in quiça, çan mocujcujcujloa: oc cença yehoatl in chichiltic. Auh injc pati, achi contlapaloltia in tlapalatl: qujl ic amo ytlacaviz in tochomjtl.

845 386

No yoan in ichoantin in mjtoa cocoa, in cahjn mopaoaci tamalli: amono vel vmpa calaquj: ichica quilinacâ intla vmpa calaquizque, no quizoza in tamalli, yoan in comjtl: amo vel ycuci, intlanel cemjlhujtl: çan chichicoycuciz in tamalli. Auh injc pati, injc amo iuh muchioaz: in jquac tla ocalaquito, contlatiz in comjtl. Auh intlanoçe ijxpan mocontema tamalli, centetl ipan contlalilia: qujl ic amo ytlacaviz in tamalli.

845 252

Thirty-seventh Chapter, which telleth of the time when the teeth of small children dropped.

When the teeth of small children dropped out, the mothers cast them into a mouse-hole, or they said to their children: "Place it in the mouse-hole." For it was said that if they were not to do this, the small child's teeth could not grow; he would remain quite toothless.

Injc cempoalli on castolli omome capitulo, itechpa tlatoa: in jquac vetzi intlan pipiltotonti. 856

In jquac vetzi intlan pipiltotonti: yn tenanoan itlacoiocco contlaça in quimjchin, anoçe inpilhoan, quimjlhuja: ytlacoiocco xictlali in quimjchin: ichica quil intlacamo iuh quichioazque, amo vel izoaz in jtlan piltontli: çan tlancuetoctic iez.

* * *

These superstitions harm the Faith, and therefore it is well to recognize them. Only these few have

Estas abusiones, enperen a la fe: y por eso, conujene sabellas, y predicar, contra ellas. Anse puesto, 000

6: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1954 NU7 Aztec NU7

Twenty-first Chapter, in which is told how all arose through the ranks until they became judges.

And behold how begun the life of the young boy. At first, while still a small boy, his hair was shorn. And when he was already ten years old, they then let a tuft of hair grow on the back of his head. And when he was fifteen years old, then the tuft of hair became long. [This was] when he had nowhere taken captives.

And if he took a captive with the help of others —perchance doing so with the aid of two, or of three, or of four, or of five, or of six, at which point came to an end [the reckoning] that a captive was taken with others' help—then the lock of hair was removed. And thus was the division of their captive: in six parts it came. The first, who was the real captor, took his body and one of his thighs—the one with the right foot. And the second who took part [in the capture] took the left thigh. And the third took the right upper arm. The fourth took the left upper arm. The fifth took the right forearm. And as for the sixth, he took the left forearm.

And when the tuft on the back of his head was removed, he was shorn so that he was left [another] lock: his hair dress kept, on the right side, the hair hanging low, reaching the bottom of his ear; to one side [only] was his lock of hair set. When this [was done], he assumed another face, he appeared otherwise, so that it might be seen that he had made a captive with the help of others [and that] the tuft of hair on the back of his head had been removed.

And then his grandfather, or his beloved uncle, addressed him. He said to him: "My beloved grandson, the sun, the lord of the earth, hath washed thy face. Thou hast taken another face; and thou hast gone to throw thyself against the foe. Let them take thee if, without profit, once more thou takest a captive with the aid of others. What wouldst thou be? Wouldst thou have a young girl's lock of hair? Take care lest thou again take a captive with others' help. Cast thyself against our foes."

Injc cempoalli oce capitulo, vncan mjtoa, in iuhqujma tlamamatlatl injc tlecoia in jxqujchica tecutlato muchioa. 302 855

Auh izcatquj injc ontzinti, in imemjliz in telpuchtontli, in iacachtó çan oc moquateçonoa in oc piltontli: auh in ie matlacxiujtl icoac mocuexpaltia, auh in caxtolxiujtl, icoac cuexpalchicacpul muchioa in acan tlama.

Auh intla tepal otlama aço oteoncaioti, anoço oteecaioti, anoço otenauhcaioti anoço otemacujlcaioti, anoço otechiquacencaioti vncan tlantica injc tepal tlamalo injc necuexpallaçalo. Auh injc qujmoxexelhuja inmal chiquaceccã qujça. Injc ce vel iehoatl in tlamani quicui in itlac: ioan ce imetz: iehoatl in tomaiauhcãpa tocxi: auh inic teoncaiotia, quicui in topochcopa tometz. Auh inic tehecaiotia: quicui in tomaiauhcampa tahcul. Jnic tenauhcaiotia: quicui in topochoopa tacul. Jnic temacuilcaiotia: quicui in tomaiauhcampa tomatzotzopaz. Auh inic tlachiquacencaiotia iehoatl quicui in topochcopa tomatzotzopaz. 727 858

Auh in in icoac mocuespallaça, inic moxima motzotzocoltia quioallamachia in innexin imaiauhcãpa quioalhuilancaiotia inacaz itzintlan oalaci iioca motema initzotzocul: in icoac y oc centetl quicui inixaiac oc centlamantli ic tlachia inic ittoz ca otepallama omocuespallaz.

Auh niman ic quitlatlauhtia in icul anoço itlatzin quilhuia. Nosiiuhtze omitzmixamili in tonatiuh, i tlaltecutli ocentetl ticcuic in moxaiac, auh ça otia, inuicpa xonmomaiaui ma mitzuicacan in toiauoã intla nen oc ceppa tepal xitlama tle tiez cuis timatzotzocoltiz, ma nen ie no cuel tepal titlama ça inca ximomotla in toiauhoan. 603 [604] 861

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

fate, to see if the day of birth was lucky or unlucky. Four 787 777 days later the child's family held a feast both to celebrate the birth and to name the child. If the day of birth proved 553 to be unlucky, custom sanctioned a religious fiction where- 777
by the naming ceremony was postponed to a more favorable period. At the feast the guests sprinkled food and pulque 553 over the sacred fire, which had been kindled at the ac- 776
couchement as an offering to the Fire God, the Old God, whose cult originated in the time of the Middle Cultures.
The child, if a boy, was shown toy weapons and tools 553 which the parents placed in his hands, guiding them in the motions of use. If the child were a girl the parents made her pretend to weave and spin with toy instruments. A name, that badge of identity so important to man, was given to the child at this time. A boy was often named for the date of his birth, One Reed, Two Flower, Seven Deer, or for an animal,
like "Nezahualcoyotl" (Hungry Coyote), or for an ancestor, like "Montezuma the Younger," or for some event at the time of birth. Often the day name was given with an alternative animal title. Girls' names frequently were compounded with the word for flower, xochitl.

Education began after weaning in the third year. Its pur- [862] pose was to induct the child into the techniques and obliga- 861 tions of adult life as promptly as possible. A world in which handwork is universal offers a child a chance to participate in adult activities far earlier than in our heavily mechanized culture. Fathers supervised the training of sons, and mothers instructed their daughters. Up to six years of age the children listened to frequently repeated homilies and advice, learned the uses of the household implements and performed minor household chores.[8]

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

262 The principal food was the tortilla, a flat cake of un-
[415] leavened corn meal, which measured a good foot in diameter,
855 to judge from the size of the clay griddles used in cooking them, in contrast to the modern tortilla which varies between four and six inches. At three the child received half a tortilla a day; at four and five his ration was doubled; from six to twelve a tortilla and a half were prescribed, and at thirteen the allotment was two. Supplemented by beans and game, this diet was filling and nutritious.

861 The Mendoza manuscript reflects the current Aztec ideas on child psychology. Admonition was the chief method of discipline up to the eighth year. From then on a rigorous corporal punishment awaited the recalcitrant child. This discipline ranged from pricking the hand with the maguey spine to exposing the child to the chill rigors of a mountain night, lying bound and naked in a mud puddle. In view of the almost [855] universal kindness which Indian parents show to their children, they probably seldom applied these extremely imaginative corrections for wrongdoing by the young.

868 This type of training, not unlike that of a modern farm
871 child, initiated him directly into the economic life of the 793 home. The satisfactions in playing a man's part by contributing to the family welfare compensated the child for the heaviness of his social obligation. At fifteen or sixteen most boys went through a special training before assuming the full rights of manhood; under certain conditions they were younger when they received this special instruction. There were two types of schools: the telpuchcalli, or house of youth, for standard training, and the calmecac of uncertain etymology, for instruction in priestly duties. The telpuchcalli, maintained by the clan for the children of its members, offered instruc-

Twenty-first Chapter, in which is told how all arose through the ranks until they became judges.

And behold how began the life of the young boy. At first, while still a small boy, his hair was shorn. And when he was already ten years old, they then let a tuft of hair grow on the back of his head. And when he was fifteen years old, then the tuft of hair became long. [This was] when he had nowhere taken captives.

And if he took a captive with the help of others —perchance doing so with the aid of two, or of three, or of four, or of five, or of six, at which point came to an end [the reckoning] that a captive was taken with others' help—then the lock of hair was removed. And thus was the division of their captive: in six parts it came. The first, who was the real captor, took his body and one of his thighs—the one with the right foot. And the second who took part [in the capture] took the left thigh. And the third took the right upper arm. The fourth took the left upper arm. The fifth took the right forearm. And as for the sixth, he took the left forearm.

And when the tuft on the back of his head was removed, he was shorn so that he was left [another] lock: his hair dress kept, on the right side, the hair hanging low, reaching the bottom of his ear; to one side [only] was his lock of hair set. When this [was done], he assumed another face, he appeared otherwise, so that it might be seen that he had made a captive with the help of others [and that] the tuft of hair on the back of his head had been removed.

And then his grandfather, or his beloved uncle, addressed him. He said to him: "My beloved grandson, the sun, the lord of the earth, hath washed thy face. Thou hast taken another face; and thou hast gone to throw thyself against the foe. Let them take thee if, without profit, once more thou takest a captive with the aid of others. What wouldst thou be? Wouldst thou have a young girl's lock of hair? Take care lest thou again take a captive with others' help. Cast thyself against our foes."

Injc cemposalli ece capitula, vncan mjtoa, in iuhqujma tlamamatlatl injc tlecoia in jxqujchica tecutlato muchioa. 302 855

Auh iacatquj injc ontxinti, in imemjliz in telpuchtontli, in iacachtō çan oc moquateçonoa in oc piltontli: auh in ie matlacxiujtl icoac mocuexpaltia, auh in caxtolxiujtl, icoac cuexpalchicacpul muchioa in acan tlama.

Auh intla tepal otlama aço oteoncaioti, anoço otetecaioti, anoço otenauhcaioti anoço otemacujlcaioti, anoço otechiquacenaxioti vncan tlantica injc tepal tlamalo injc necuexpallaçalo. Auh injc qujmoxexelhuja inmal chiquaceccā qujça. Injc ce vel iehoatl in tlamani quicui in itlac: ioan ce imetz: iehoatl in tomaiauhcāpa tocxi: auh inic teoncaiotia, quicui in topochcopa tometz. Auh inic tehecaiotia: quicui in tomaiauhcampa tahcul. Jnic tenauhcaiotia: quicui in topochcopa tacul. Jnic temacuilcaiotia: quicui in tomaiauhcampa tomatzotzopaz. Auh inic tlachiquacencaiotia iehoatl quicui in topochcopa tomatzotzopaz. 727 858

Auh in in icoac mocuespallaça, inic moxima motzotzocoltia quioallamachia in innexin imaiauhcāpa quioalhuilancaiotia inacaz itzintlan 'oalaci iioca motema initzotzocul: in icoac y oc centetl quicui inixaiac oc centlamantli ic tlachia inic ittoz ca otepallama omocuespallaz.

Auh niman ic quitlatlauhtia in icul anoço itlatzin quilhuia. Nosuiuhtze omitzmixamili in tonatiuh, i tlahtecutli ocentetl ticcuic in moxaiac, auh ça otia, inuicpa xonmomaiaui ma mitzuicacan in toiauoā intla nen oc ceppa tepal xitlama tle tiez cuis timatzotzocoltiz, ma nen ie no cuel tepal titlama ça inca ximomotla in toiauhoan. 603 [604] 861

577 And he who took no captive with others' help
578 when, perchance, he had returned three or four times
701 to the wars, they called "Big tuft of hair over the back of the head." And if this was so said of him, he was much ashamed of it. Wherefore he cast himself [into the fray] in order to take a captive with others' aid.

Auh in aquin amo tepallama in aço ic espa anoço ic nappa yloti in iaoc quitocaiotia cuespalchicacpul auh in iuh ipan mitoa y ic pinaoa, quin icoac teca momotla inic tepallama.

729 And if he made a captive with the help of others,
577 then his head was pasted with feathers. And he who then did not take a captive with the aid of others might not remove his lock of hair; neither was his head pasted with feathers. Thus was his hair shorn: it was cut like a ring-shaped carrying pad; they shaved only the crown of his head.

Auh intla tepal otlama icoac mopotonia, auh in aquin çan niman amo tepallama, amo uel mocuespallaça amono mopotonia, inic moxima moquaiaoalxima çaniio inicoa nepantla quichichiqui.

And [whether] worldly goods and riches were his lot, or he was only poor, yet if his back tuft of hair had been removed, he never took, and never did they [292] place upon him, an embroidered cape, [but] only another small, white, maguey fiber cape, and his small breech clout.

Auh im aço ic imaceoalti in tlalticpacaiotl, in necuiltonolli, auh anoço can motolinia auh inomocuespallaz aic tle quicui, aic tle itech quitlalia tlamacho tilmatli çan oc ce in iztac in ichtilmaton iztac in imastlaton,

And he who had acted indeed alone and had taken captives, if he took one, was therefore named a leading youth and a captor. And when this came to pass, then they took him before Moctezuma, there at the palace. And by his command he was then stained [302 with yellow ochre; his face was colored with red 336] ochre. They applied it to all of his face. And the majordomos of Moctezuma anointed his temples with yellow ochre.[1] auh ī aquin uel oquimiscaui otlama in oce cacic ic motocaiotia telpochiiaqui tlamani. Auh in iquac y quinicoac ispan quiuica in motecoçoma in umpa tlatocân. Auh itencopa inic motecuçauhtiltia mistlapalhostzalhuia quicemaqu.ia in ixaiac, auh in icanaoacan quitecozauhuia in icalpiscahoan motecuçoma.

And at that time Moctezuma granted him favors;
[431 he gave him an orange cape with a striped border
242] and a scorpion design to bind on, and a carmine colored breech clout with long ends, and a breech clout of many colors.[2] And then he began to wear capes with designs.

Auh quinicoac quitlauhtia in motecuçoma in quimaca camopaltenoaoanqui ioan centetl colotlalpilli ioan centetl nochpalmastlatl iacauiac ioan centetl centzonmastlatl tlatlapalli, auh icoac compeoaltia in tlacuiloltilmatli quiquemi.

And when he had taken two, likewise they took him there before Moctezuma, at the palace, and likewise his gifts were provided as hath been told.

Auh inic ome caci çan no vmpa quiuica in ispan motecuçoma in tlatocan auh çan no iuhquj in inetlauhtil mochioaia in omito.

624 And when he captured three, likewise his gifts
729 were provided, and he took [the office] of, and they established him as, a master of the youths, a leading
● 861 youth. He entered a place of dignity, the young 561 men's house, there to nurture and rear [them]. There he reared the young men, there where there was song and dance at night, there in the song house.

Auh inic ei caci çan ie no iuhqui in inetlauhtil mochioa, auh oncan canaia in quitiachcauhtecaia in telpochiiaqui quicalaquiaia inuehican in telpochcali inic vmpa tlacaoapaoa tlacazcaltia vmpa quimizcaltia in telpopochti, on cuicoianooaia in ioaltica in vmpa cuicacali.

1. Following quitocoxtlahuia, the Real Academia de la Historia MS has yoan ompa quimpatonia—and there they passed fashions on their heads. This passage is missing in the Florentine Codex.

2. The corresponding Spanish text reads: "una manta con una Rosa labrada de color morado; y otra manta labrada, de otras cintas labradas de colorado que se llamaua colotlapalli: y . . . un mantle labrado de colorado, largo que estuuiesse hasta colgado, y otro mantle labrado de todos colores."

252 it over." Or if, perchance, her husband had gone somewhere distant, she said: "Now he cometh, for he hath kicked over my tortilla."

napa veca oya, qujtoaia: ca ye hujtz, ca qujoaltilicçac yn notlaxcal.

●861 Fifteenth Chapter, which telleth of small children who licked the surface of the grinding stone.

When small children licked the surface of the grinding stone, the mothers chid and scolded their young ones for it, and restrained them from it, saying to them: "Do not lick the grinding stone; your teeth will thus quickly break and fall out." Because of this, they filled their small children with great fear, so that this would not befall them.

Injc caxtolli capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa yn pipiltotonti qujxpaloa metlatl.

In jquac pipiltotonti qujxpapaloa metlatl: yc teaoaia, yc qujmaoaia, yc qujntlacaoaltiaia in tenanoan yn jnpilhoan, qujmjlhujaia: macamo xicpapalocan in metlatl, yc iciuhca cocotoniz, yciuhca vevetziz in amotlan. Ipampa yn, cenca qujmjmacaxiltiaia in pipiltotonti: injc amo iuh ynpan muchioaz.

Sixteenth Chapter, which telleth of him who leaned against a square pillar.

When they saw one who leaned against a square pillar, there also was folly of the natives;[15] they chid him for it, and restrained him from doing so; they prevented their children from doing it. They said to them: "Do not lean against the pillar; it is a liar." Thus did they speak: "It giveth one lies; it is like unto one who lieth." [With] this, they terrified the children lest such might befall them and they tell lies.

Injc caxtolli oce capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa: yn aqujn itech motlaxticac tlaquetzalli.

In jquac aca qujttaia, in jtech motlaxticac tlaquetzalli: no vncatca innetlapololtiliz, in njcan tla: yc teaoaia, ic tetlacaoaltiaia, ic qujntlacaoaltiaia in ynpilhoan, qujmjlhujaia: macamo ytech ximotlaxtica in tlaquetzalli, yhjztlacati: iuh qujtoaia: ca ichoatl qujtemaca in jztlacatiliztli, itech qujcuj: in aqujn ihiztlacati. Injn, cenca qujmjmacaxiltiaia in tepilhoan: injc amo iuh inpan muchioaz, ynjc amo yhiztlacatizque.

861 264 Seventeenth Chapter, which telleth of the maidens who are standing.

In times past, when the natives saw their maidens eat standing, they also restrained them from it. They prevented their children from doing so. They said to them: "Eat not while thou art standing. Thou wilt marry far from here.—Who will follow thee?" It was said that it would befall one that she would marry in a distant place; she would be taken somewhere far away, not in her own city where she lived.

Injc caxtolli omome capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa yn jchpupuchti in çan moquequetztimanj tlaqua.

In ie vecauh in njcan tlaca: in jquac in qujmjttaia in jmjchpuchoan ỹ çan moquequetztimanj tlaqua: no yc tetlacaoaltiaia, ic qujntlacaoaltiaia in jnpilhoan, qujmjlhujaia: macamo ximoquetztica in titlaqua, veca timoechotiz, ac mjtzicxitocaz: qujlmach ichoatl ipan muchioaia, in veca moqujchvatia, in cana veca vico: in amo yaltepeuh ipan nemj.

846 753 Eighteenth Chapter, which telleth how maize cobs were burned.

When one had just given birth to a child, she who, residing there, had given birth should not then burn maize cobs. It was said that if there [maize cobs]

Injc caxtolli omey capitulo, ytechpa tlatoa: in quenjn motlatia olotl.

In jquac aca mjxivia, avel vncan qujtlatiaia in olotl: in vncan onoc mjxiuhquj, qujl intla vncan tlatlaz: yc ichchichitinjz in piltontli. Auh intla ça

15. In mjoan ihc: mad ihcac.

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

fate, to see if the day of birth was lucky or unlucky. Four 787 777 days later the child's family held a feast both to celebrate the birth and to name the child. If the day of birth proved 553 to be unlucky, custom sanctioned a religious fiction where- 777
by the naming ceremony was postponed to a more favorable period. At the feast the guests sprinkled food and pulque 553 over the sacred fire, which had been kindled at the ac- 776
couchement as an offering to the Fire God, the Old God, whose cult originated in the time of the Middle Cultures.
The child, if a boy, was shown toy weapons and tools 553 which the parents placed in his hands, guiding them in the motions of use. If the child were a girl the parents made her pretend to weave and spin with toy instruments. A name, that badge of identity so important to man, was given to the child at this time. A boy was often named for the date of his birth, One Reed, Two Flower, Seven Deer, or for an animal,
like "Nezahualcoyotl" (Hungry Coyote), or for an ancestor, like "Montezuma the Younger," or for some event at the time of birth. Often the day name was given with an alternative animal title. Girls' names frequently were compounded with the word for flower, xochitl.

Education began after weaning in the third year. Its pur- [862] pose was to induct the child into the techniques and obliga- 861 tions of adult life as promptly as possible. A world in which handwork is universal offers a child a chance to participate in adult activities far earlier than in our heavily mechanized culture. Fathers supervised the training of sons, and mothers instructed their daughters. Up to six years of age the children listened to frequently repeated homilies and advice, learned the uses of the household implements and performed minor household chores.[8]

6: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1954 NU7 Aztec NU7

565 Twentieth Chapter, in which is told how they reared the sons of lords and noblemen.

Ic cempoalli capitulo: vncan mjtoa, in quenjn qujnoapacia in inpilhoan tlatoque, ioan pipilti.

And here is described the rearing of the sons of those who were lords, and of all the princes, who were the sons[1] of lords and noblemen.

Auh njcan mjtoa: in jnneoapacaliz in ichcantin in tlatoque impilhoan, ioan in jxqujchtin in tlaçopipilti, in jnpilhoan tlatoque, pipilti.

[854 855] Their mothers and fathers nourished and raised them, or nursemaids raised them while they were still small children.

ichoantin in jnnaoan, in jntaoan qujmjzcaltia, qujnoapaoa, anoço chichioame in qujnoapaoa in oc pipiltotonti:

565 855 And when they could run, when they were perhaps six years old, thereupon [the boys] went [forth] to play. Their pages—perhaps two, or three—accompanied them that they might amuse them. [The child's] father or mother charged these [pages] that [the boy] not behave ill, that he not taint himself with vice, as he went along the streets.

suh in jcoac ie uel nenemj, aço ie chiquacenxiuhtia, njman ie ic iauh in maaujltiz, in qujnujca ixoloca aço ome anoço ei in caaujltiz, ichoantin qujncocultia in jtatzin in jnantzin injc amo tlauelilocatiz, injc amo qujmocujtlaujz tlauelilocaiotl: in jcoac otli qujtocaz.

565 867 And also they took great care that he should converse fittingly with others—that his conversation should be proper; that he should respect and show reverence to others—[when] perchance he somewhere might chance to meet a judge, or a leading militia officer, or a seasoned warrior, or someone of lesser rank; or a revered old man, or a respected old woman; or someone who was poor. He should greet him and bow humbly. He said: "Come hither, my beloved grandfather; let me bow before thee." And the old one who had been greeted then said: "O my beloved grandson, O precious stone, O precious feather, thou has shown me favor. May it go well with thee."

Auh no cenca qujcujtlaujltiaia injc vel tenotzaz, injc qualli iez in jtlatol, injc teimacaçiz, injc temauhcajitzz, aço cana qujnamjqujz aço tecutlato, anoço achcauhtlaiacati, anoço iauequjoa, anoço çan oca tlapaltzintli, anoço veuentzin, anoço ilamatzin, anoço aca motolinja, qujtlapaloz cenca mopechteca, qujlhuja, xioalmoujca noculizine, ma njmjztnotlaxili: auh in ichoatl oquitlapalo veuentzin njmã qujlhuja notujuhtzine concatle quetzalle otinechmocnelili ma ximonenemjti:

And when the young boy thus saluted others, they praised him highly for it. They rejoiced greatly over it; they were joyful because of it. They said: "How will this beloved child be, if he shall live? He will in sooth be a nobleman. Mayhap his reward will be something [great]."

suh injc iuh tetlapaloa, y, in piltontli, ic cenca qujectenoa, cenca ic papaquj, ic motlamachtia. qujtoa: quenamj ietiuhi in piltzintli intla nemjz ca tel pilli, aço itla imaçeoal iez.

565 871 And when he was already maybe ten, twelve, or thirteen years old, they placed him in the priests' house; they delivered him into the hands of the first priests and [other] priests, that he might be reared

Auh in jcoac ie matlacxiuhtia aço ie vmome, ahoço ie omej, icoac qujcalaquja in calmecac, inmac qujmoncaoia in tlenamacaque, in tlamacazque, injc vmpa incaltilos nonotzalos, tlachichtilos injc vel

1. Mas significan, the Real Academia de la Historia MS has the following, omitted from the Florentine Codex: "Inic mocuepaua inic mocuecuj: ca ça ye no yuel in ouiztlac in chanchiuhti, quen ic"—"they were reared and brought up just as both been told in the [section] on birth."

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

262 The principal food was the tortilla, a flat cake of un-
[415] leavened corn meal, which measured a good foot in diameter,
855 to judge from the size of the clay griddles used in cooking them, in contrast to the modern tortilla which varies between four and six inches. At three the child received half a tortilla a day; at four and five his ration was doubled; from six to twelve a tortilla and a half were prescribed, and at thirteen the allotment was two. Supplemented by beans and game, this diet was filling and nutritious.

861 The Mendoza manuscript reflects the current Aztec ideas on child psychology. Admonition was the chief method of discipline up to the eighth year. From then on a rigorous corporal punishment awaited the recalcitrant child. This discipline ranged from pricking the hand with the maguey spine to exposing the child to the chill rigors of a mountain night, lying bound and naked in a mud puddle. In view of the almost [855] universal kindness which Indian parents show to their children, they probably seldom applied these extremely imaginative corrections for wrongdoing by the young.

● 868 This type of training, not unlike that of a modern farm
871 child, initiated him directly into the economic life of the 793 home. The satisfactions in playing a man's part by contributing to the family welfare compensated the child for the heaviness of his social obligation. At fifteen or sixteen most boys went through a special training before assuming the full rights of manhood; under certain conditions they were younger when they received this special instruction. There were two types of schools: the telpuchcalli, or house of youth, for standard training, and the calmecac of uncertain etymology, for instruction in priestly duties. The telpuchcalli, maintained by the clan for the children of its members, offered instruction in citizenship, the bearing of arms, arts and crafts, history and tradition and ordinary religious observance. The calmecac was in the nature of a seminary for special training in priestly and chiefly duties, and several of them were maintained near the temples of important gods. The calmecac seems to have been an addition to ordinary training, required by the development of ritual, whereas the telpuchcalli carried on in special quarters instruction given in a simpler day by the old men of the clan. Other schools trained young women to be priestesses; they also learned to weave skillfully and to make featherwork for preparation of priestly vestments. (See Plate 39, top left.)

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

A youth was ready for marriage at twenty, and a girl was deemed mature at about sixteen. The parents arranged the marriage with the consent of the boy and girl. A priest was consulted to decide whether or not the fates of the couple were harmonious. Incest laws like our own prevailed with the further restriction that marriage must be outside the clan. Having satisfied these conventions, the father of the boy sent two elderly clanswomen with gifts to the girl's father, who, following custom, rejected the suit. The old ladies returned again to consult in earnest with the parents of the prospective bride. Such a discussion was necessarily intricate, since it involved the amount of the bride's dowry, which was to be balanced by the gifts of her suitor.

On the evening of the wedding one of the matchmakers carried the bride on her back over the threshold of the husband's house. Elaborate speeches were made by everyone, following which the mantles of the bride and groom were tied together, symbolizing the union. The old men and women gave tongue again in the form of long-winded homilies, and

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

174 ture writing to see that each subject town had fulfilled its 644 quota or else were calculating the share that should be turned over to the various clan stewards. Another patio presented a more animated scene. Here acrobats were practicing their feats and poor, warped dwarfs were composing grosser contortions to win a chiefly smile. In another set of buildings [367] was housed the zoo, where serpents undulated sluggishly and where, from behind wooden bars, peered the greedy, yellow eyes of jaguars and ocelots. In a side room a human arm projecting from a basket of raw meat showed how the bodies of some sacrificial victims were utilized.

491 The highway to Tlaltelolco extended north from this great 517 plaza, which even today is the center of the city. This wide 174 road, with a canal beside it, was filled with the same indecisive multitude that thronged the southern artery. The setting sun had brought people out on their roof tops. Some leaned over parapets to watch the crowd below, while idlers, squatting in a shaded bit of the street, took equal interest in the slow movements of the householders above them.

● 868 A path and a canal, debouching into the main avenue, led 174 to a small square, in the center of which loomed a pyramid. From the patio of an adjacent building shrill cries arose and the dull clash of wooden instruments. Within, a number of boys were receiving instruction in the manual of arms. Each equipped with a small buckler and a flat wooden club, they learned the art of cut and parry under the scornful eye of a warrior. They dealt and received hard blows, but the clubs were not toothed with wedges of obsidian, the volcanic glass that made hand-to-hand combat so vicious in war. Another group was practicing with the atl-atl, or throwing stick. The marksman laid his spear along a narrow wooden trough with a hook at the farther end, the nearer end being grasped in the hand. By lengthening the arm in this way it was possible to give a greater propulsive force to the spear.

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

On the other side of the plaza the boys in the religious-training school presented a less animated scene. Their little legs and faces lacerated by maguey spines, their bodies thin from fasts and penance and their eyes dulled by the monotony of self-denial, these children were chanting strophes from a ritualistic chant. Their preceptor, who led the singing, showed by his own scarred and emaciated body that the propitiation of the gods was a relentless and never-ending task. Priest, chief, warrior or husband, every Aztec, from boyhood on, spent much of his life either in a kind of beseeching penance, to ensure his future, or in a state of grateful atonement for not having had a worst past. The Aztecs lived on intimate if uncomfortable terms with the supernatural powers.

Another aspect of this lack of individualism was to be seen in the tecpan or clan building. Here elders of the clan were arranging the affairs of the tribal unit, twenty of which made up the city-state of Tenochtitlan. One old man peered over picture maps as he adjusted a question of land tenure between two contesting families and made his final judgment on the basis of how much land each family could cultivate by its own efforts. Another elder distributed pottery vessels, given up as tribute by a town across the mountains, to some of the poorer members of the community. None of these people, litigants or applicants, bestowed more than occasional glances into the back courtyard, where an adulterer was being stoned to death by members of the affronted family. Urban existence contained too many interests and 565 871 there, corrected, and instructed; that he might live an upright life. They constrained him to do the penances, setting fir branches [on the city altars] at night, or there where they went to place the fir branches on mountain tops—there where sacrifices were made at midnight. Or else he entered the song house; they left him in the hands of the masters of the youths. They charged him with the sweeping, or with dancing and song—with all which was concerned with the performance of penances.

nemjz qujcujtlaujltia in tlamaceoaliztli, in ioaltica in acxoiatlaliliztli içaçocampa acxoiatlalitiuh in tepeticpac, in vmpa onmjcoia ioalnepantla, anoce cujcacali qujcalaquja, inmac concaoa in tiachcaoan, qujcujtlaujltia in tlachpanaliztli, anoço cujcoianoliztli, in jxquich tlamantli tlamaçeoaliztli mochioaia.

565 ●868 701 And when he was already fifteen years old, then he took up arms; or, reaching twenty years of age, then he went forth to war. First [his parents] summoned those who were seasoned warriors. They gave them to eat and to drink, and they gave gifts to all the seasoned warriors. They gave them large, cotton capes, or carmine colored breech clouts, or capes painted with designs. And then they besought the seasoned warriors; in just the same way as hath been told above, so they entreated them.

Auh in jcoac ie caxtolxiuhtia icoac moiaomamachtia anoço açi cempoalxiujtl injc qujça iauc, in ichoantin tequjoaque achtopa qujnnotza qujntlaqualtia. qujmatlitia, ioan qujntlauhtia in jxqujchtin tequjoaque, in qcjnmaca aço quachtli anoço nochpalmaxtlatl, anoço tlacujlolli in tilmatli. Auh njman qujtlatlauhtia in tequjoaque, çan ie no iuhquj in omjto tlacpac injc qujntlatlauhtia.

And then they took him to the wars. The seasoned warriors went taking great care of him, lest somewhere he might be lost. And they taught him well how to guard himself with a shield; how one fought; how a spear was fended off with a shield. And when a battle was joined, when already there was fighting and perhaps already captives were being taken, they taught him well and made him see how he might take a captive. Perhaps then he took a captive with the aid of others, or he [alone] could take one.[3] For truly it was well seen to that many men become brave warriors.

Auh njman ic qujhujca, in iauc: vel qujmocujtlaujtiuj in tequjoaque, in ma cana xiccaoalo: auh vel qujmachtia, in iuh momana chimalli, in iuh iautioa, in iuh mochimaltopeoa mjtl. Auh in jcoac ie mochioa iauiotl, in ie necalioa, anoce ie tlamalo, uel conjttitia, vel contlachieltia, in vmpa tlamaz: aço njmã tepallama, anoço njman vel ic açi ipampa ca cenca necujtlaujlo ca mjiec tlacatl in jtiacauh mochioa.

[202] And when captives were being taken, then at once couriers, of marriageable age, quickly went forth, called victory messengers, who speedily went to inform Moctezuma.

Auh in ie tlamalo, njman achtopa oalpeuhtiqujça in tequjqque tlapaliuj, intoca tequjpan titlanti in qujoalnonotztiuetzi motecuçuma:

And when the victory messengers had come to arrive, then they quickly entered into the presence of Moctezuma and said to him: "O our lord, O my youth, pay thy debt and thy service [to the god]; for the omen of evil, Uitzilopochtli, hath shown favor and been gracious. For they have pierced the rampart of men dexterous in arms of the city against which they have gone. Into it have marched[2] the Mexicans of Tenochtitlan, the Mexicans of Tlatilulco, the Tepaneca, the Acolhua, the Otomí, the Matlatzinca, auh in oacico tequjpan titlanti, njman ic hiciuhca calactiuetzi ipan in motecuçuma qujlhuja. Totecujoe notelpotzine, ma ximotlacotili, ma ximotequjtili, ca oicnopiltic, onmaceoaltic, in tetzaujtl in ujtzilobuchtli, ca oeepan qujtopeuh in quauhtenamjtl, in ocelotenamjtl, ca oia in altepetl: in vmpa tlatlamatitiaque in mexica tenochca, in mexica tlatilulca, in tepanecatl, in aculhoa, in otomjtl, in matlatzincatl, iie ixqujch tlalhoacpanecatl in chinampanecatl.

2. Vel le casi: the Real Academia de la Historia MS has or for ie.
3. Tlatlamatitiaque: Simeon, op. cit.—tlatlamatitia.

and finally all the people of the uplands and those of the swamp lands."[4]

And Moctezuma said to them: "You have tired yourselves; you have suffered affliction, O men dexterous in war. Rest yourselves. [But] perhaps you only fool me. Let me still behold the truth of your account."

And then he confined them. If the report which they had made were not true, Moctezuma jailed them and did away with them

And there in battle was when captives were taken. When it had come to pass that they went against and conquered the city, then the captives were counted, there, in wooden cages: how many had been taken by Tenochtitlan, how many had been taken by Tlatiluloco, and by the people of the swamp lands and the people of the dry lands everywhere. The captives were examined [to determine] how many groups of four hundred were formed.

Those who counted were the generals and the commanding generals. And then they sent messengers here to Mexico. Those who were sent as messengers were seasoned warriors, who informed Moctezuma of the great veracity of the four-hundred count. They brought word of how many groups of four hundred had been made captive.

And then they declared to him how many of the noblemen had won their reward for having made captives; that haply a number [of them] had had their hair shorn as seasoned warriors, or that some [had been made] leaders of the youths. When Moctezuma heard this, he rejoiced exceedingly, because his noblemen had taken captives. And at that time he freed those whom he had cast in jail—the victory messengers—and he gave them gifts along with the others.

And if war should be proclaimed against Atlixco, or Uexotzinco, and if there once again they took captives, they won much glory thereby; Moctezuma accorded them great honor for it. For his noblemen had taken captives, and had gained repute, and had reached the station of nobility—the estate of the eagle and the ocelot warriors. From there they came to rule, to govern cities; and at that time they seated them with [the nobility], and they might eat with Moctezuma.

565
868
701

Auh qujmjlhujaia in moteçuma, oanquijçiauhque, oanqujhijoujque in oçeloqujchtle: ximotlalican aço çan annechiztlacahuja, ma oc njcchia in jneltica tlatolli:

[687]

auh njman qujmoncaltzaqua intlacamo melaoac tlatolli oqujcaqujtique moteçuma qujntlatlatia qujnpopoloa.

727

Auh in vmpa iauc in iquac otlamaloc, in ie ihuquj in oia in oompoliuh, altepetl, njman ic mocempoa in mamalti, in vncan oacaltitla quezquj oaxioac in tenochtitlã, quezquj oaxioac in tlatilulco, auh inic noujian cenchinanpanecatl, centlalhoacpanecatl, mocemjtta in mamalti quezqujtzontli omuchiuh.

[202
701]

Jehoantin tlapoa in tlatlacochcalca, in tlatlacatecca: auh njman ic oallatitlanj, in njcan mexico, in oalmotitlanj iehoantin in tetequjoaque, in qujoalnonotza motecuçuma, in ie uel imelaoaca in jcentzontecca, in qujoalitquj tlatolli, in quezqujtzontli omochiuh malli:

auh in qujmelaujliaia in quezqujntin otlacnopilhujque in pipilti in otlantaque, aço cequjntin motequjoacazima anoce cequjntin telpuchiacati. Jn qujcaquja in motecuçuma cenca ic papaquja ipampa ca ipilhoan in ontlamaque: auh qujnjquac qujnqujxtiaia, in qujncaltzaquaia in tequjpan titlanti qujmõtehoan motlatlauhtia.

[431]

721
729
727

Auh intla oalmjtuz iaujotl in atlixco, aço vexotzinco, intla oc ceppa vmpa tlamazque, cenca ic vel pannetzi, ic cenca uel qujmmaujztilia in motecuçuma: ipampa ca ipilhoan in ontlamaque, in onmoteniotique in oconmjiaoaiotique in pillotl in quauhiotl, in ocelotl, ic oncan in qujça in tlatocati, in qujpachoa altepetl, auh qujnjquac intlan qujntlalia: ytlan tlaqua in motecuçuma

4. Chronyquyccuel: Sahagún's comment on fol. 33 of Book X of the Florentine Codex is descriptive: "y lo de la tierra caca, que son los caxonistas de los chiconquac."

14:Bandelier E-4 (no date) 1880 NU7 Aztec NU7

701 (Cortés' daring and successful seizure of the Mexican chieftain [448] was easier than it is generally supposed, since the tribe was not prepared for it, but only for outside enemies.)[16]

712 It is equally untrue that any Mexican "garrisons" were main-701 tained among conquered and subjected tribes.[17] The military power of the Mexicans was preserved at home, in a latent state, so to say, but still, as we shall hereafter see, ready to sally forth at a signal from the council of chiefs directing their affairs. But this presupposed, on the part of the tribe, systematic training, proper armament, and a peculiar organization.

●868 At an early age the boy was taught the use of the bow and arrow in fishing and hunting;[18] also the use of the dart or javelin. The chase, both on land and water, was an introduction to the stern duty of war.

[16] Ixtlixochitl ("Histoire des Chichimèques ou des anciens rois de Tezcuco," translation of Mr. Ternaux-Compans, chapter 85. "All the Spaniards forthwith returned to "their palace, together with a great number of lords of the city, parents and friends of "the King, which sought to read from his countenance whether he wished them to free "him again). The same author (Relacion XIIIa. "The nobility, and all the military "chiefs of Mexico, dumbfounded by this occurrence, returned to their houses"). Gomara, who (Vedia, I, p. 345. "Corte y guarda de Moteczuma,") mentions 3,000 body guards, forgets them completely (p. 351) when he relates Montezuma's capture. Cortés (Carta-segunda. Vedia, I, p. 27) does not speak of any guard being with the chief.
[643] Neither does A. de Tápia. Col. de Doc. II, p. 580.) The capture of Montezuma did not, however, have the desired effect. He was not as powerful as the Spaniards believed, and his influence vanished as soon as he was a prisoner, and therefore actually disqualified for office.

[17] The bodies of Mexican warriors which Cortés may have met at different places outside of Mexico when he moved upon that tribe the second time, were not garrisoning those places, but simply corps sent out specially against the Spaniards. Neither at Cempoal, nor at Quiahuiztlan, had he met garrisons of Mexican troops. In the fight wherein Juan de Escalante was killed, natives of the country, and not Mexicans, opposed him. Quauhpopoca was not a Mexican governor, but "chief of that place called "Almeria" (Cortés, Carta Seg., Vedia, I, p. 26), "a vassal of Montezuma" (A. de Tápia, p. 579), "chief of Nahutlan" (Gomara, p. 354) (Clavigero, lib. VIII, cap. XXX).

Ixtapalapan, Mexicaltzinco, Huitzilopochco, were not held by Mexican warriors when Cortes passed through those places. On the route from Cempoal to the confines of Tlaxcallan, through a country overrun formerly by the Mexicans, and tributary to them, there was not a single specifically Mexican stronghold, and no other Mexicans or Aztecs were met by Cortés than messengers and collectors of tribute; without any armed retinue whatever. No Mexican force hovered about the confines of Tlaxcallan, their most dangerous enemy, or "occupied" Chalco, the most warlike and unruly tribe of the valley, which Mexico had overpowered. Only the fear of the murderous forays which the Mexicans might execute, from their almost invincible stronghold in the lagune, held those tribes in subjection; and no permanent military occupation. Tápia
[651] says: "In the conquered districts they put stewards and collectors, and although their "own chiefs commanded the people, they were below Mexican power." (p. 579, Col. de Doc., II.)

[18] A. de Humboldt ("Vues des Cordillères et monuments des peuples indigènes de "l'Amérique." Ed. 1816, 8vo, tom., II, p. 313). Also, "Raccolta di Mendoza," in Lord Kingsborough.

16:Bandelier E-4 (no date)1880 NU7 Aztec NU7

months later, which was performed by the medicine-man of the 553
kin.[95] Both of these names were preserved, but if the full-grown man ever performed some action of merit in the service of the whole tribe, then the tribe bestowed upon him a third name as an honorable title attached to his person in reward for his deeds.[96]

It was the duty of the kin to educate or train its members to every 871 branch of public life. For all public purposes, man only must be 868 taken into account. This appears obvious from what was said already concerning the position of women in general. Now each calpulli, or localized kin, among the ancient Mexicans had, as we have shown in "Art of War,"[97] its "House of the Youth" ("telpuch-calli") joined to its "medicine-lodge" or temple. Thither the boys were brought at an early age, to be instructed in whatever was needed for after-life. In order to train their bodies they were held to manual labor, and to the ordinary duties of worship. The use of weapons was made a prominent object of teaching; so was the dance and song, the latter coupled with ordinary Indian rhetorics.[98] These houses of education were under the Vecinos, que para este acto se juntavan . . . y entonces le ponian el nombre." Also (Cap. XXII, p. 455; cap. XXIII, p. 456): "De la misma manera, que quando alguna de estas Indias parta, se usaba juntarse toda la Parentela. y las vecinas, y amigas, ... De esta misma manera lo acostumbraban hacer para el fingido Bautismo." Gomara ("Conquista," Vedia I. p. 438): "En este lavatorio les ponian nombre, no como querian, sino el del mismo dia en que nacieron.' Fetancurt (Parte II, Trat. III, cap. VIII, p. 452).

[95] This is stated by Gomara (Vedia I, p. 438): "y dende á tres meses, que son de los nuestros dos, los llevaban al templo, donde un sacerdote que tenia la cuenta y ciencia del calendario y signos, les daba otro sobrenombre, haciendo muchas ceremonias, y declaraba las gracias y virtudes del idolo cuyo nombre les ponia, pronosticándoles buenos hados." Motolinia (Trat. I, cap. V, p. 37): "Despues desde á tres meses presentaban aquella criatura en el templo del demonio, y dabanle su nombre, no dejando el que tenia, y tambien entonces comian de regocijo, . . . "

[96] Gomara (Vedia, p. 438). Motolinia (Trat. I, cap. V, p. 37). Torquemada (Lib. XIII, cap. XXII, p. 498). Clavigero (Lib. VI, cap. XXXVII, pp. 437, 438). Durán (Cap. XI, pp. 96, 97, and 98).

[97] "Art of War," p. 101. Relying on Humboldt, I assumed fifteen years to be the age when military instruction began, but the general instruction began much sooner. See note 85.

[98] "Gomara (Vedia, p. 438). Sahagun (Lib. III, cap. IV, cap. V, p. 303): "Habiendo entrado en la casa del Telpuchcalli el niño, dábanle cargo de barrer, limpiar la casa, poner lumbre, y hacer los servicios de penitencia á que se obligaba. Era costumbre que á la puesta del sol, todos los mancebos iban á bailar, y danzar á la casa que se llamaba Cuicacalco cada noche, y el muchacho tambien bailaba con los otros mancebos; llegando á los quince años. y siendo ya mancebillo, llevábanle consigo los mancebos mayores al monte á traer la leña, que era necesaria para la casa del Telpuchcalli. y Cuicacalco, y cargábanle las rodelas para que las llevase acuestas;" (p. 309): "La vida que tenian era muy áspera . . . " (Cap. VI, pp. 270 and 271; Lib. VI, cap. XXXIX, p. 284), and other incidental notices. Mendieta (Lib. II, cap. XXIV, pp. 124, 125). Torque-

16:Bandelier E-4 (no date) 1880 NU7 Aztec NU7

871 These houses of education were under the 868 special direction of experienced men, called therefore "Speakers
875 of the Youth" ("telpuchtlatoca") and "elder brothers" ("teachcanhtin,") in another capacity. They had not only to provide for the physical training of their pupils, but also for their intellectual development, as far as the state of knowledge permitted.[99] Such places of training were called also "the place where I grow" ("nezcaltiloyan"), or "the place where I learn" ("nemachtiloyan.")[100] It is not true that the youth were constrained 871 to a permanent, almost monastic residence in such houses; but 868 while there they improved in common certain special plots of land, in all likelihood the so-called "temple-tracts," out of which the daily wants of worship were supplied.[101] In connection with this mode of education, we have to consider here an objection which cannot fail to be raised against our views.

565 It is frequently given out as a fact, that besides the "Houses 871 of the Youth" mentioned, there was a special place of education for the children of "noblemen" and this is adduced as a proof of mada (Lib. IX, cap. XII, pp. 183 and 186; Lib. XIII, cap. XXVIII, XXIX and XXX) and others.

[99] "Art of War" (pp. 101, 119 and 120). Mendieta (Lib. II, cap. XXIV, pp. 124 and 125): "Los otros se criaban como en capitanias, porque en cada barrio, habia un capitan de ellos, llamado telpuchtlato, que quiere decir, guarda ó capitan de los mancebos." Torquemada (Lib. IX, cap. XII, p. 183): "y tenian un Rector, que los regia, y governaba, que se llamaba Telpochtlato, que quiere decir, Guarda. ó Caudillo de los Mancebos, el qual Telpochtlato tenia gran cuidado de doctrinarlos. y enseñarles, en buenas costumbres." Sahagun (Lib. III, cap. V, p. 289): "y si era ya hombre valiente y diestro, elegianle para regir á todos los mancebos, y para castigarlos, y entonces se llamba Telpuchtlato." (Lib. VIII, cap. XIII, p. 301): "Tambien daban de comer á los que criaban los mancebos que se llaman telpuchtlatos, . . ." (Cap. XVII, p. 305); "en este lugar se juntaban los maestros de los mancebos que se llamaban tiachcaoan. y telpuchtlatoques . . ." (Also Cap. XXXVIII, p. 331). Velancurt (Part II, Trat. III, cap. VI, p. 451): "y un rector que llamaban Telpochtlato, el que habia y gobierna á los mancebos." Codex Mendoza (Vol. I of Kingsborough plates 62 and 63).

Sahagun usually calls the "achcauhtli," "alguaziles," or executors of justice. But above we see that he calls the "tiachcaoan," also "masters of the youth." Both names are corruptions of "teachcauhtlin." Tezozomoc (Cap. XXXVIII, p. 60) calls the "Achcacauhtin, mayorales de armas y de doctrina y de ejemplo." (Cap. LVII, p. 95): "Tras ellos vinieron los que llamas Achcauhtin, señores de los varrios, y maestros de mancebos." (Cap. LXXI, p. 121): "mayorales y ministros, y los hicieron juntar como escuelas en cada un varrio que llamaban telpochcalli." (Cap. LXXXVIII, p. 134): "Los mancebos iban çada dia á los varrios al egercicio de las armas á la escuela de armas telpochcalco, adonde los enseñaban con valerosos ánimos, y las maneras de combatir." Finally Clavigero (Lib. VII, cap. II, p. 452) refers also to the 53d picture of the Mendoza Codex, representing a boy of fifteen years, who is turned over to an "achcauhtli, or officer," to be instructed in the art of war.

[100] Molina (Vocabulario II, pp. 66 and 72). P. Ignacio de Paredes ("Doctrina Breve sacada del Catecismo Mexicano," Reprint of 1809).

[101] Sahagun (Lib. III, cap. V, p. 289) says that, whereas they slept at home, that is, at the "house of youth," they ate with their families ("aunque comian en sus casas propias").

[264]

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

262 The principal food was the tortilla, a flat cake of un-
[415] leavened corn meal, which measured a good foot in diameter,
855 to judge from the size of the clay griddles used in cooking them, in contrast to the modern tortilla which varies between four and six inches. At three the child received half a tortilla a day; at four and five his ration was doubled; from six to twelve a tortilla and a half were prescribed, and at thirteen the allotment was two. Supplemented by beans and game, this diet was filling and nutritious.

861 The Mendoza manuscript reflects the current Aztec ideas on child psychology. Admonition was the chief method of discipline up to the eighth year. From then on a rigorous corporal punishment awaited the recalcitrant child. This discipline ranged from pricking the hand with the maguey spine to exposing the child to the chill rigors of a mountain night, lying bound and naked in a mud puddle. In view of the almost [855] universal kindness which Indian parents show to their children, they probably seldom applied these extremely imaginative corrections for wrongdoing by the young.

868 This type of training, not unlike that of a modern farm
●871 child, initiated him directly into the economic life of the 793 home. The satisfactions in playing a man's part by contributing to the family welfare compensated the child for the heaviness of his social obligation. At fifteen or sixteen most boys went through a special training before assuming the full rights of manhood; under certain conditions they were younger when they received this special instruction. There were two types of schools: the telpuchcalli, or house of youth, for standard training, and the calmecac of uncertain etymology, for instruction in priestly duties. The telpuchcalli, maintained by the clan for the children of its members, offered instruction in citizenship, the bearing of arms, arts and crafts, history and tradition and ordinary religious observance. The calmecac was in the nature of a seminary for special training in priestly and chiefly duties, and several of them were maintained near the temples of important gods. The calmecac seems to have been an addition to ordinary training, required by the development of ritual, whereas the telpuchcalli carried on in special quarters instruction given in a simpler day by the old men of the clan. Other schools trained young women to be priestesses; they also learned to weave skillfully and to make featherwork for preparation of priestly vestments. (See Plate 39, top left.)

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

A youth was ready for marriage at twenty, and a girl was deemed mature at about sixteen. The parents arranged the marriage with the consent of the boy and girl. A priest was consulted to decide whether or not the fates of the couple were harmonious. Incest laws like our own prevailed with the further restriction that marriage must be outside the clan. Having satisfied these conventions, the father of the boy sent two elderly clanswomen with gifts to the girl's father, who, following custom, rejected the suit. The old ladies returned again to consult in earnest with the parents of the prospective bride. Such a discussion was necessarily intricate, since it involved the amount of the bride's dowry, which was to be balanced by the gifts of her suitor.

On the evening of the wedding one of the matchmakers carried the bride on her back over the threshold of the husband's house. Elaborate speeches were made by everyone, following which the mantles of the bride and groom were tied together, symbolizing the union. The old men and women gave tongue again in the form of long-winded homilies, and

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

532
[696]
[871]
[413
292]
[796]
[644]

PLATE 39

SOCIAL OBLIGATIONS, REWARDS AND PUNISHMENTS

TOP: Left: Boys are taken by their fathers to the school or Calmecac. These people are of the poorer classes. Right: Four chiefs sentence criminals to death by noose and clubs for outrageous crimes. MIDDLE: Left: Warriors of proven worth engage in ceremonial combat. They wear the costume of warriors' orders or of chiefs. Right: A tribal ruler invests two leading men with badges and trappings of rank. BOTTOM: Right: Montezuma had professional entertainers, hunchbacks, jugglers and musicians.

[p. 128(A)]

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

growth in plants by the powers of sympathetic magic. Ceremonial cannibalism was sometimes practiced, in the belief that the eater can absorb the virtues of the eaten, but this rite cannot be considered a vice. The letting of one's own blood was another way to ensure divine favor, and people did horrible self-penances such as mutilating themselves with knives or drawing through their tongues a string on which were threaded maguey spines. The higher the social position of the individual and the more he consequently knew of ritualistic observance, the more arduously he performed the fasts, penances and tortures imposed by the religion. The priests, therefore, were strongly cognizant of their social responsibility and by the rigor of their own lives strove to ensure the well-being of the tribe.[17] (See Plate 61, bottom right.)

The picture writings of the Aztecs take human sacrifice and penance as a matter of course but seldom indicate the quantity of victims. Indeed, only one such manuscript records the monthly ceremonies, and a post-Conquest copy of another reveals a sacrifice of twenty thousand people at the dedication of the enlarged great temple of Mexico.[17] The Spanish accounts and those of the educated Indians agree, but whether Christian piety induced exaggeration, and how much, it is difficult to ascertain at this time and age. The Conquistador who counted thousands of skulls on the skull rack in Tenochtitlan apparently confirms these other statements, which the great humanitarian and Indian lover, Las Casas, discounted in his special pleading for decent treatment of the indigenous population of New Spain.[18]

The priesthood, beside performing these bloodcurdling acts, had other more pacific duties; they also instructed youth in the mysteries of writing and keeping records. Aztec writ-

793

A True Relation of all Those Who Served in the Houses of Each of the Gods.

The Keeper of the Gods of the Mexicans.

Thus did the Keeper of the Gods of the Mexicans with his sleeveless jacket, his incense ladle and his pouch, that he might with them pay honor to the devil. And so did he keep watch that verily it was a matter of his being like the father of [those in] the priests' dwelling. He was like the ruler of the lesser keepers of the gods indeed everywhere.

And all the children were left in his care, that he might train them, that he might by words move them to live well. And whether men commanded, or were rich, or were leaders, or directed, all this was the charge of the Keeper of the Gods of the Mexicans.

And also this one commanded in the temples everywhere; he told the lesser keepers of the gods what they might do. And if perchance any should sin, much did the Keeper of the Gods of the Mexicans take heed of it.

The Keeper of the God of Uitznauac, Omacatl.

The Keeper of the God of Uitznauac similarly maintained usages, just as the Keeper of the Gods of Mexico maintained usages. Likewise he oversaw, in the priests' dwelling, that they trained the children well.

The Keeper of the Gods of Others.

The Keeper of the Gods of Others: his overseeing was similar to the overseeing of the Keeper of the Gods of Mexico. Because, in truth, he appointed to all how [those of the] priests' dwellings should oversee; how they should bring up the children, and train them; and, verily, the things which the lesser keepers of the gods everywhere should do.

Ome Tochtzin.

Ome tochtzin had as his charge that he should assemble the Centzonnotochtin [singers]; even all of Imelavaca in izqujntin tlatequjpanoaia in jnchachan cecenme teteu.

Mexicatl teuhoatzin

Injc muchivaia mexicatl teuhoatzin ixicol, ietma, ixiqujpil injc qujmavizztiliaia Diablo, yoan ic tlapiaia ca iuhquj in teta muchiuhticatca in calmecac, iuhqujn intlatocauh catca in teteuhoatzitzin injc novjian:

yoã in izqujch in tepilhoan itech oncavaloia injc qujmizcaltiz, injc quivapavaz tlatoltica injc vel nemizque, yoã in aço tlatocatizque, anoço mocuiltonozque, anoço teiacanazque, tlapachozque muchi iehoatl itequjuh catca in Mexicatl teuhoatzin, [871]

yoã no iehoatl tlanavatiaia in novjian teteupan qujmilhujaia in tlein quichivazque teteuhoatzitzin, auh in anoço aca tlatlacoa muchi iehoatl qujmatia in Mexicatl teuhotzin.

Vitznava teuhoatzin omacatl.

In vitznavac teuhoatzin, çan no iuhquj injc tlamanitiaia in juhquj ic tlamanitiaia Mexico teuhoatzin no iuhquj injc tlapiaia in calmecac in quenjn vel tlacavapavãia.

Tepan teuhoatzin.

In tepan teuhoatzin çan no iuhquj in itlapializ catca, in juhquj ic tlapiaia in Mexico teuhoatzin, iehica ca muchi iehoatl qujnnavatiaia in quenjn tlapiazque calmecac, in quenjn tlacazcaltiaia, tlacavapavaia, çan muchiuhquj in qujchivaia injc novjian teuhoatzitzin. [871]

Vme tochtzin.

In vme tochtzin itequjuh catca in qujnechicovaia centzonnotochtin in ie muchintin, siac mocavaia, auh

565 Twentieth Chapter, in which is told how they reared the sons of lords and noblemen.

Ic cempoalli capitulo: vncan mjtoa, in quenjn qujnoapacia in inpilhoan tlatoque, ioan pipilti.

And here is described the rearing of the sons of those who were lords, and of all the princes, who were the sons[1] of lords and noblemen.

Auh njcan mjtoa: in jnneoapaoaliz in ichoantin in tlatoque impilhoan, ioan in jxqujchtin in tlaçopipilti, in jnpilhoan tlatoque, pipilti.

[854 Their mothers and fathers nourished and raised them, or nursemaids raised them while they were 855] still small children.

ichoantin in jnnacan, in jntaoan qujmjxcaltia, qujnoapaoa, anoço chichioame in qujnoapaoa in oc pipiltotonti:

565 And when they could run, when they were per-
855 haps six years old, thereupon [the boys] went [forth] to play. Their pages—perhaps two, or three—accompanied them that they might amuse them. [The child's] father or mother charged these [pages] that [the boy] not behave ill, that he not taint himself with vice, as he went along the streets.

auh in jcoac ie uel nenemj, aço ie chiquacenxiuhtia, njman ie ic iauh in maaujltiz, in qujnujca ixolooa aço ome anoço ei in caaujltiz, ichoantin qujncocultia in jtatzin in jnantzin injc amo tlauelilocatiz, injc amo qujmocujtlaujz tlauelilocaiotl: in jcoac otli qujtocaz.

565 And also they took great care that he should con-
867 verse fittingly with others—that his conversation should be proper; that he should respect and show reverence to others—[when] perchance he somewhere might chance to meet a judge, or a leading militia officer, or a seasoned warrior, or someone of lesser rank; or a revered old man, or a respected old woman; or someone who was poor. He should greet him and bow humbly. He said: "Come hither, my beloved grandfather; let me bow before thee." And the old one who had been greeted then said: "O my beloved grandson, O precious stone, O precious feather, thou has shown me favor. May it go well with thee."

Auh no cenca qujcujtlaujltiaia injc vel tenotzaz, injc qualli iez in jtlatol, injc teimacaçiz, injc temauhcaittaz, aço cana qujnamjquiz aço tecutlato, anoço achcauhtlaiacati, anoço iautequjoa, anoço çan aca tlapaltzintli, anoço veuentzin, anoço ilamatzin, anoço aca motolinja, qujtlapaloz cenca mopechteca, qujlhuja, xioalmoujca nocultzine, ma njmjtznotlaxili: auh in ichoatl oqujtlapalo veuentzin njmã qujlhuja noxujuhtzine cozcatle quetzalle otinechmocnelili ma ximoonemjti:

And when the young boy thus saluted others, they praised him highly for it. They rejoiced greatly over it; they were joyful because of it. They said: "How will this beloved child be, if he shall live? He will in sooth be a nobleman. Mayhap his reward will be something [great]."

auh injc iuh tetlapaloa, y, in piltontli, ic cenca qujiecteneoa, cenca ic papaquj, ic mot-machtia. qujtoa: quenamj ieiuhi in piltzintli intla nemjz ca tel pilli, aço itla imaçeoal iez.

565 And when he was already maybe ten, twelve, or 871 thirteen years old, they placed him in the priests' house; they delivered him into the hands of the fire priests and [other] priests, that he might be reared

Auh in jcoac ie matlacxiuhtia aço ie vmome, anoço ie omej, icoac qujcalaquja in calmecac, inmac qujmoncaoaia in tlenamacaque, in tlamacazque, injc vmpa izcaltilos nonotzalos, tlachieltilos inic vel

1. Mas papilhoan, the Real Academia de la Historia MS has the following, omitted from the Florentine Codex: "Inic mocuepaoaa inic mocualdia ga ge ue gal in ueuhtec in tlacatilcatl gan ce"—"they were reared and brought up just as both been told in the [section] on birth."

565 there, corrected, and instructed; that he might live
●871 an upright life. They constrained him to do the penances, setting fir branches [on the city altars] at night, or there where they went to place the fir branches on mountain tops—there where sacrifices were made at midnight. Or else he entered the song house; they left him in the hands of the masters of the youths. They charged him with the sweeping, or with dancing and song—with all which was concerned with the performance of penances.

565 And when he was already fifteen years old, then 868 he took up arms; or, reaching twenty years of age,
701 then he went forth to war. First [his parents] summoned those who were seasoned warriors. They gave them to eat and to drink, and they gave gifts to all the seasoned warriors. They gave them large, cotton capes, or carmine colored breech clouts, or capes painted with designs. And then they besought the seasoned warriors; in just the same way as hath been told above, so they entreated them.

And then they took him to the wars. The seasoned warriors went taking great care of him, lest somewhere he might be lost. And they taught him well how to guard himself with a shield; how one fought; how a spear was fended off with a shield. And when a battle was joined, when already there was fighting and perhaps already captives were being taken, they taught him well and made him see how he might take a captive. Perhaps then he took a captive with the aid of others, or he [alone] could take one.[2] For truly it was well seen to that many men become brave warriors.

[202] And when captives were being taken, then at once couriers, of marriageable age, quickly went forth, called victory messengers, who speedily went to inform Moctezuma.

And when the victory messengers had come to arrive, then they quickly entered into the presence of Moctezuma and said to him: "O our lord, O my youth, pay thy debt and thy service [to the god]; for the omen of evil, Uitzilopuchtli, hath shown favor and been gracious. For they have pierced the rampart of men dexterous in arms of the city against which they have gone. Into it have marched[3] the Mexicans of Tenochtitlan, the Mexicans of Tlatilulco, the Tepaneca, the Acolhua, the Otomi, the Matlatzinca, nemjz qujcujtlaujltia in tlamaceoaliztli, in ioaltica in acxoiatlaliliztli içaçocampa acxoiatlalitiuh in tepeticpac, in vmpa onmjcoia ioalnepantla, anoce cujcacali qujcalaquja, inmac concaoa in tiachcaoan, qujcujtlaujltia in tlachpanaliztli, anoço cujcoianoliztli, in jxquich tlamantli tlamaçeoaliztli mochioaia.

Auh in jcoac ie cxxtolxiuhtia icoac moiaomamachtia anoço açi cempoalxiujtl injc qujça iauc, in ichoantin tequjoaque achtopa qujnnotza qujntlaqualtia. qujmatlitia, ioan qujntlauhtia in jxqujchtin tequjoaque, in qujnmaca aço quachtli anoço nochpalmaxtlatl, anoço tlacujlolli in tilmatli. Auh njman qujtlatlauhtia in tequjoaque, çan ie no iuhquj in omjto tlacpac injc qujntlatlauhtia.

Auh njman ic qujhujca, in iauc: vel qujmocujtlaujtiuj in tequjoaque, in ma cana xiccaoalo: auh vel qujmachtia, in iuh momana chimalli, in iuh iautioa, in iuh mochimaltopeoa mjtl. Auh in jcoac ie mochiou iauiotl, in ie necalioa, anoce ie tlamalo, tel conjtitia, vel contlachieltia, in vmpa tlamaz: aço njmã tepallama, anoço njman vel ic açi ipampa ca cenca necujtlaujlo ca mjiec tlacatl in jtiacauh mochioa.

Auh in ie tlamalo, njman achtopa oalpeuhtiquiça in tequjtque tlapaliuj, intoca tequjpan titlanti in qujoalnonoczziuetzi motecuçuma:

auh in oncico tequjpan titlanti, njman ic hiciuhca calactiuetzi ipan in motecuçuma qujlhuja. Totecujoe notelpoczine, ma ximotlacotili, ma ximotequjtili, ca oicnopiltic, onmaceoaltic, in tetzaujtl in ujtzilobuchtli, ca otepan qujtopeuh in quauhtenamjtl, in ocelotenamjtl, ca oia in altepetl: in vmpa tlatlamatitiaque in mexica tenochca, in mexica tlatilulca, in tepaneca, in acolhua, in otomjtl, in matlatzincatl, iie izqujch tlalhoacpanecatl in chinampanecatl.

2. Vel le cuit: the Real Academia de la Historia MS has or for le.
3. Tlachamatiaque: Rendon, op. cit.—tlachamatiaque.

14:Bandelier E-4 (no date)1880 NU7 Aztec NU7

When fifteen years old, the youth was placed in charge of certain chiefs[19] (the "telpuchtlato" or "achcacautin") who kept them under their oversight until they married. They were educated in communities "for the service of the tribe and for warlike purposes;"[20] were allowed, even at the age of fifteen, to go to war either armed or as carriers only,[21] and had their respective "school houses" ("telpuchcalco," houses of the youth); one in each of the four quarters of Mexico which formed the basis of the tribe's military organization, as we shall hereafter see. At these houses they were gradually trained to the handling of weapons.[22]

There were no regular times set for military practice. But every twenty days, at least, there occurred a religious festival, at which the warriors appeared in full costume, and, their chiefs included, they "skirmished," showing and practicing their skill in handling arms.[23] The youth were not only invited to such occa-

[19] Idem: "A quinze ans, le père présente deux fils à deux différents maitres du temple et du collège militaire, ..." The boy (Mexican "piltontli") then became a youth ("telpuchtli"—Alonzo de Molina. "Vocabulario en lengua Mexicana y castellana." Mexico, 1571. Parte IIa, p. 97).

[20] Bernardino de Sahagun ("Historia universal de las cosas de Nueva España." in vol. VII, of Lord Kingsborough, lib. III. Appendix, cap. IV, p. 118. "Y así ofrecian "la criatura, á la casa de telpuchcalli; era su intencion que allí se criase con los otros "mancebos para servicio del pueblo y cosas de guerra." Also cap. V, 119). Mendieta (Lib. II, cap. XXIV, p. 124. "Los otros se criaban como en capitanias, porque en cada "barrio habia un capitan de ellos, llamado telpuchtlato, que quiere decir "guarda ó "capitan de los mancebos. . . . . Tambien tenian por si su comunidad, sus casas "y tierras, etc., etc.") Telpuchtlato significa "Speaker to the youth" (from "Telpuchtli," youth, and "tlatoani," speaker. Molina, II, p. 141). Clavigero (Lib. VII, cap. III). Acosta (Lib. VII, cap. XXVII, p. 444. Para este efecto avia en los templos casa "particular de niños, como escuela, o pupilaje distincto del de los moços y moças del "templo"). Tezozomoc (Cap. LXXI, p. 121 and LXXVIII, p. 134). "Telpuchcalli" is derived from "telpuchtli," youth, and "calli," house. The "achcauhtli," to which we shall refer hereafter, are variously designated, even as priests (by Mendieta), as "captains of the guard" (by Torquemada), as "an officer, to whom they (the youth) were entrusted" (by Clavigero).

[21] Mendieta (Lib. II, cap. XXIV, p. 124). "Some of these youth, the strongest ones, "went to war, and the others, also, went to see how the force practiced at arms." Tezozomoc (Cap. LXXI, p. 121) "and all the youth examined, such as had not gone, went "along, carrying arms and supplies, and to become encouraged by the feats they might "witness."

[22] Mexico divided into four "calpulli" ("barrios"), each of which had its "telpuchcalli,"—"where the achcacauhtin showed and taught them the use of arms and how "to combat valorously." (Tezozomoc, cap. LXXI and LXXVIII, p. 134.)

[23] For the long list of religious festivals of the Mexicans, ordinary as well as extraordinary, we beg to refer to almost any one of the authors of the 16th, 17th, and 18th centuries, on Mexico. As to the military displays and exercises during the feast, I refer particularly to Antonio de Herrera ("Historia general de los Hechos de los Castellanos en las Islas y la Tierra Firme del Mar Oceano." Edition of 1730. Decada II. lib. VII, cap. XI, p. 167). "Nobody was allowed to carry arms about the city, but only "to war, to the chase, or when on guard to the King. On days of festivities, and at

16:Bandelier E-4 (no date)1880 NU7 Aztec NU7

months later, which was performed by the medicine-man of the 553
kin.[95] Both of these names were preserved, but if the full-grown man ever performed some action of merit in the service of the whole tribe, then the tribe bestowed upon him a third name as an honorable title attached to his person in reward for his deeds.[96]

It was the duty of the kin to educate or train its members to every 871 branch of public life. For all public purposes, man only must be 868 taken into account. This appears obvious from what was said already concerning the position of women in general. Now each calpulli, or localized kin, among the ancient Mexicans had, as we have shown in "Art of War,"[97] its "House of the Youth" ("telpuch-calli") joined to its "medicine-lodge" or temple. Thither the boys were brought at an early age, to be instructed in whatever was needed for after-life. In order to train their bodies they were held to manual labor, and to the ordinary duties of worship. The use of weapons was made a prominent object of teaching; so was the dance and song, the latter coupled with ordinary Indian rhetorics.[98] These houses of education were under the Vecinos, que para este acto se juntavan . . . y entonces le ponian el nombre." Also (Cap. XXII, p. 455; cap. XXIII, p. 456): "De la misma manera, que quando alguna de estas Indias paria, se usaba juntarse toda la Parentela. y las vecinas, y amigas. . . . . De esta misma manera lo acostumbraban hacer para el fingido Bautismo." Gomara ("Conquista," Vedia I. p. 438): "En este lavatorio les ponian nombre, no como querian, sino el del mismo dia en que nacieron.' Velancurt (Parte II, Trat. III, cap. VIII, p. 402).

[95] This is stated by Gomara (Vedia I, p. 438): "y dende á tres meses, que son de los nuestros dos, los llevaban al templo, donde un sacerdote que tenia la cuenta y ciencia del calendario y signos, les daba otro sobrenombre, haciendo muchas ceremonias, y declaraba las gracias y virtudes del idolo cuyo nombre les ponia, pronosticándoles buenos hados." Motolinia (Trat. I, cap. V, p. 37): "Despues desde á tres meses presentaban aquella criatura en el templo del demonio, y dabanle su nombre, no dejando el que tenia, y tambien entonces comian de regocijo, ..."

[96] Gomara (Vedia, p. 438). Motolinia (Trat. I, cap. V, p. 37). Torquemada (Lib. XIII, cap. XXII, p. 456). Clavigero (Lib. VI, cap. XXXVII, pp. 437, 438). Durán (Cap. XI, pp. 96, 97, and 98).

[97] "Art of War," p. 101. Relying on Humboldt, I assumed fifteen years to be the age when military instruction began, but the general instruction began much sooner. See note 98.

[98] Gomara (Vedia, p. 438). Sahagun (Lib. III, cap. IV, cap. V, p. 269): "Habiendo entrado en la casa del Telpuchcali el niño, dábanle cargo de barrer, limpiar la casa, poner lumbre, y hacer los servicios de penitencia á que se obligaba. Era costumbre que á la puesta del sol, todos los mancebos iban á bailar, y danzar á la casa que se llamaba Cuicacalco cada noche, y el muchacho tambien bailaba con los otros mancebos; llegando á los quince años. y siendo ya mancebillo, llevábanle consigo los mancebos mayores al monte á traer la leña, que era necesaria para la casa del Telpuchcali. y Cuicacalco, y cargábanle las rodelas para que las llevase acuestas;" (p. 269): "La vida que tenian era muy áspera . . . " (Cap. VI, pp. 270 and 271; Lib. VI, cap. XXXIX, p. 284), and other incidental notices. Mendieta (Lib. II, cap. XXIV, pp. 124, 125). Torque-

16:Bandelier E-4 (no date) 1880 NU7 Aztec NU7

871 These houses of education were under the
868 special direction of experienced men, called therefore "Speakers
875 of the Youth" ("telpuchtlatoca") and "elder brothers" ("teachcauhtin,") in another capacity. They had not only to provide for the physical training of their pupils, but also for their intellectual development, as far as the state of knowledge permitted.[99] Such places of training were called also "the place where I grow" ("nezcaltiloyan"), or "the place where I learn" ("nemachtiloyan.")[100] It is not true that the youth were constrained 871 868 to a permanent, almost monastic residence in such houses; but while there they improved in common certain special plots of land, in all likelihood the so-called "temple-tracts," out of which the daily wants of worship were supplied.[101] In connection with this mode of education, we have to consider here an objection which cannot fail to be raised against our views.

565 It is frequently given out as a fact, that besides the "Houses 871 of the Youth" mentioned, there was a special place of education for the children of "noblemen" and this is adduced as a proof of mode (Lib. IX, cap. XII, pp. 183 and 188; Lib. XIII, cap. XXVIII, XXIX and XXX) and others.

[99] "Art of War" (pp. 101, 119 and 120). Mendieta (Lib. II, cap. XXIV, pp. 124 and 125): "Los otros se criaban como en capitanias, porque en cada barrio, habia un capitan de ellos, llamado telpuchtlato, que quiere decir, guarda ó capitan de los mancebos." Torquemada (Lib. IX, cap. XII, p. 183): "y tenian un Rector, que los regia, y governaba, que se llamaba Telpochtlato, que quiere decir, Guarda, ó Caudillo de los Mancebos, el qual Telpochtlato tenia gran cuidado de doctrinarlos, y enseñarles, en buenas costumbres." Sahagun (Lib. III, cap. V, p. 269): "y si era ya hombre valiente y diestro, elegianle para regir á todos los mancebos, y para castigarlos, y entonces se llamba Telpuchtlato." (Lib. VIII, cap. XIII, p. 301): "Tambien daban de comer á los que criaban los mancebos que se llaman telpuchtlatoa, . . ." (Cap. XVII, p. 305): "en este lugar se juntaban los maestros de los mancebos que se llamaban tiachcacuan, y telpuchtlatoques . . ." (Also Cap. XXXVIII, p. 341). Velancurt (Part II, Trat. III, cap. VI, p. 451): "y un rector que llamaban Telpochtlato, el que habia y gobierna á los mancebos." Codex Mendoza (Vol. I of Kingsborough plates 62 and 63).

Sahagun usually calls the "achcauhtli," "alguaziles," or executors of justice. But above we see that he calls the "tiachcacuan," also "masters of the youth." Both names are corruptions of "teachcauhtlin." Tezozomoc (Cap. XXXVIII, p. 60) calls the "Achcacauhtin, mayorales de armas y de doctrina y de ejemplo." (Cap. LVII, p. 95): "Tras ellos vinieron los que llaman Achcauhtin, señores de los varrios, y maestros de mancebos." (Cap. LXXI, p. 121): "mayorales y ministros, y los hicieron juntar como escuelas en cada un varrio que llamaban telpochcalli." (Cap. LXXXVIII, p. 134): "Los mancebos iban cada dia á los varrios al egercicio de las armas á la escuela de armas telpochcalco, adonde los enseñaban con valerosos ánimos, y las maneras de combatir." Finally Clavigero (Lib. VII, cap. II, p. 452) refers also to the 53d picture of the Mendoza Codex, representing a boy of fifteen years, who is turned over to an "achcauhtli, or officer," to be instructed in the art of war.

[100] Molina (Vocabulario II, pp. 66 and 72). P. Ignacio de Paredes ("Doctrina Breve ancada del Catecismo Mariano," Reprint of 1909).

[101] Sahagun (Lib. III, cap. V, p. 269) says that, whereas they slept at home, that is, at the "house of youth," they ate with their families ("aunque comian en sus casas propias").

16:Bandelier E-4 (no date)1880 NU7 Aztec NU7

the existence of a privileged class of nobles.[102] Besides the other evidence which we have mentioned, as against the existence of nobility in ancient Mexico, we shall state here that the place called "calmecac" which is the name given to that supposed "school for the nobles," was in reality something quite different.

Fray Bernardino Sahagun, in his description of the central medicine-lodge or great temple of the Mexican tribe, says that in the house called calmecac those who devoted themselves to "medicine," or to the priesthood were trained for that office and lived in said house along with the medicine-men themselves.[103] There were several buildings or rooms bearing that name, all within the square occupied by what is commonly termed "the great temple of Mexico," and these were the places where the medicine-men and whoever was attached to them and to their offices, actually dwelt.[104] Consequently these places were also pias"). Zurita (pp. 131-133) asserts that "certain fixed days, the children of land-tillers had permission to share their father's labor." That the "temple tracts" were probably identical with those worked by the young men is made evident by Sahagun (Cap. V, Lib. III, p. 269; cap. VIII, p. 273). Zurita (p. 131): "Ils étaient obligés de travailler aux terres affectées à ces établissements." Torquemada (Lib. IX, cap. XII. p. 185): "Tenian sus Tierras, y Heredados para su-sustento (que debian de ser de las dedicadas al uso, y gasto de los Templos) en ellas sembraban, y cogian Pan para su sustento." Mendieta (Lib. II, cap. XXIV. pp. 124 and 125). Gomara (Vedia, p. 438). The latter is very plain, connecting all the "schools" and their lands with the temples.

[102] H. H. Bancroft (Vol. II, pp. 243 and 244). Nearly all the older writers call it a higher school, but I shall hereafter discuss their statements. See also Prescott ("Mexico," Book I, ch. III, p. 69).

[103] "Historia general de las Cosas de Nueva España," (Lib. III, cap. VII, p. 271): "Los señores, ó principales, ó ancianos, ofrecian á sus hijos á la casa que se llamaba Calmecac, era su intencion que alli se criasen para que fuesen ministros de los idolos." Id., (Cap. IV, p. 266): "y lo ofrecian á la casa de los idolos que se llama Calmecac, para que fuese ministro de ellos, viniendo á edad perfecta." But especially (Lib. VI, cap. XXXIX, p. 283): "si le prometian á la casa Calmecac, era para que hiciese penitencia, sirviese á los dioses, viviese en limpieza, en humildad y castidad, y para que del todo se guardase de los vicios carnales."

[104] The description furnished by Sahagun (Lib. VI, Appendix, "Relacion de los Edificios del gran Templo de México," pp. 197 to 211) mentions seventy-eight parts or edifices, among which were the following, with the name "Calmecac:"

The 12th edifice "Tilancalmecac," a shrine to the goddess Civocoatl and inhabited by three priests, medicine-men (p. 201).

13th edifice "Mexicocalmecac," called by him "a monastery wherein the priests dwelt who served daily in the Cu of Tlaloc" (p. 201).

24th edifice, "Vkanacac Calmecac," inhabited by the priests of the idol Vitznacac, (p. 205)

27th edifice, "Tetlanmancalmecac," where the priests of the temple dedicated to the goddess Chantico lived, as in a "monastery," (p. 208).

30th edifice, "Tlamatzinco Calmecac," "a monastery," inhabited by the priests of the god Tlamatzincatl, (p. 204).

54th edifice, "Yopico Calmecac, "monasterio ó oratorio," (p. 207).

61st edifice, "Tzonmolco-calmecac," "a monastery where dwelt priests of the god Xiuhtecutli," (p. 207).

Fourth Chapter, in which it is related how the ancients left their sons in the young men's house, and what customs existed there in the young men's house, so that all were trained and reared.[1]

When a boy was born, then they placed him in the priests' house or the young men's house. That is to say [the parents] promised [the child], gave him as a gift, and brought him as an offering to the temple of the priests' house in order that [the boy] become a priest, or a young [warrior].

If he entered the young men's house, [the parents] promised him to it; they prepared drink and food. They announced, assembled, and addressed the leaders of the young men. They who had sons [then] prepared. They said:

"Our lord, savior and protector of all, hath been pleased to place you here. For here you know and are told that our lord hath given [us one like] a precious stone, a quetzal feather. For a child hath come down [to us. Perhaps] he will have that which he hath need of that he may mature. Already he [is like] a jewel. Shall we perchance lay in his hand a spindle and a weaving stick? [For] he is yours; he is your child, your son.

"It is by your grace that we place him [among] your beloved sons, that you may rear, and train, and make of him a brave man of war, raising him to serve our mother and our father, Tlaltecutli and Tonatiuh.

"And now to him we dedicate [the boy]—to the shadow and the wind, the lord, the young [god], Yaotzin, Titlacauan, Tezcatlipoca.[2] Perchance our lord may sustain him a little.

"We leave him [with you that] he may become a young [warrior]; that he may dwell there in the house of penances, of weeping, of tears—the young Ixiuc nevj capitulo: vncã mjtoa, in quenjn macheoltin, qujmoncaoaia in inpilhoan yn vmpa telpuchcali, yoan in quenjn tlamanja vmpa telpuchcali in juh neixcaltilnia neoapacoaloa.

874

In iquac otlacat piltontli njnã caquja yn calmecac, in anoço telpuchcali, quitoznequi, quinetoltia, vmpã quivenchioa, quivenmana in teupan in calmecac injc tlamacazquj ież, yn anoço telpuchcali.

Jntla telpuchcalĩ caquja, quinetoltia quicẽcaoa, in ztl in tlaqualli, quinnotza quincentlalia, quintlatlauhtia in telpuchtlatoque, tlatlatlauhtia in pilouque. Quitoa,

Ca njcan amechoalmotlalilia in totecujo in tloque naoaque. A ca njcan anquimocuilia anquimocaquitia, ca oquimomacavili in totecujo ce cozcatl quetzalli, a, omocavi piltzintli, aviz nelle axcan motezcaoaltisnequj, ie peioctzintli, cujx malacatl tnotzopaztli, ymac tictequilisque, ca amaxcatzin, ca amoconetzin, ca amopiltzin, amocuezantzico, amomamalnuztzinco tocontlalia ca amopilhoantzitzin, ca itlacaxcaltia, ca antlacaopana, ca anquanlchioa, amocolochioa, anquitlacaopevilia, in tonan in toca in tlaltecutli tonatiuh.

ash in axcan ca ivic tiquijtoa in iovalli in chocatl in tlacatl in telpuchtli in iaotzin in titlacaoan in Tezcatlipoca, aço achitzin quimotocutlix in ichoaxin tonecujo, ticcioa telpuchtix, vmpa nemix in tlamaceoalizcali, yn chequincali, yn jiaiocali, in telpuchcali, in vncã

[565]

1. Durán: Jacobo Chavero, in Historia antigua de México (México: Editorial Porrúa, S. A., 1945), II, pp. 199ff., says they were taken to the calpulli (as well as the calmecac) at the age of fifteen. He cites Codex Mendoza, Plates 53 ff. All went for three years of instruction (religion, good usage, good behavior). All also attended, he says, conferences—mobility going to one type, commoners to another. Some trained children, some youths, and some girls. The sons were segregated. Men remained until the age of twenty or twenty-two, women until seventeen or eighteen. Attaining his majority, by his request or by arrangements made by his parents, a youth left this training to marry. Men usually followed their fathers' occupations.

The calpulchalli, according to Cruz (op. cit., p. 70) prepared the young men for war. Discipline was less severe than in the calmecac and education less intensive. Temporarily (op. cit., pp. 220-21) indicates a certain amount of laxity.

Chavero (loc. cit.) and Temporarily (op. cit., p. 471) agree that girls were raised in seclusion and had no contact with boys or men. They slept and they went out only under the supervision of old women. They were taught how to address their elders with respect. Specifically, Chavero mentions temple duties (sweeping, offering of incense three times during the night, preparing food for the idols); weaving and other womanly arts; and general preparation for marriage. Temporarily enumerates some of the punishments for misbehavior.

2. Tezcatlipoca was the patron of the calpulchalli and the education of warriors (Cruz, op. cit., p. 27). Cf. also Temporarily, op. cit., pp. 220-21.

4: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1952 NU7 Aztec NU7

874

men's house, where live and are formed the brave men of war; where they pour forth prayers and praises for our lord.[3]

"And there he instructeth them and giveth them gifts; there he showeth them his compassion. The [reward of] the soldier, the warrior,[4] he giveth those who weep and suffer. From there our lord causeth them to come forth. They guard and protect [those who] rule[5] [us, there] in the house of learning of him our lord.

"And perchance for us who weep and are in anguish, perchance, if it be our reward and our lot, he may [grow in] perception and ripen. Perchance this may not be—O unhappy we, unfortunate old men and women.

"Or you may indeed receive and take him; let him follow; let him learn where the sons of others wax strong and grow—those orphans of luckless leaders in war."

And behold how [the others] answered and replied. They said:

"Lo, put your hearts at rest, for here we have heard [on behalf of] our lord, the master, the young [god], the shadow and wind, Yaotzin. For it is to him that you pray and to whom you call; it is to him that you offer your jewel, your quetzal feather, the flesh of your flesh. For it is our office only to take and accept what you offer our lord. We have only listened [for him].

"What may our lord wish and require of your jewel, your quetzal feather? Truly, we who are afflicted, who are vassals, we speak in darkness. Our lord, savior and protector of all, Piltzintli, knoweth in what wise [your son] hath been benight and instructed in the place of darkness [before all time] —what he was girt with and what he brought forth when he was born; and what his day sign is; and finally on [what day sign] he hath been bathed [in baptism]; and what the lot and reward of the child [will be].

"Verily is it said that we, his servants, may only imagine [these things. But] not out of nothing do they later come to pass on earth. For we come bring-ioli tlacati in quauhtin in ocelo in vncan ixtillan, injoxcatlã mixnaiaoxan in totecujo.

auh yn vncan moteixímachilia in vncan motetlamazaquilia, in vncan motecnoixtilia in quappetlatl, in ocelopetlatl qujnmomaquilia in chocani, in tlaocoiani, in vncã qujmoquixtilia in ichoatzin to.[6] in petlatl, yn icpalli quipachoa in quipia, in tlaiximachoan ichoatzin totecujo.

auh injn cujx tichocanj, cujx titlaocoianj, cujx itla tolvil, tomaceual, cujx tlachiaz, muzcaliz? acaçomo, omuchiuh ototlavelíltic in ticnoveveteque, in ticnoilamatque, manoço nelli xjcmocelilica, manoço xiquálmanilica, ma qujmontoca ma qujmonmati yn izcaltilo, in oepaoalo, in tepilhoan, auh ie ichoantin in jcnotepilhoan, in jcnoquauhtin yn jcnoocelo.

Auh izcatquj injc quicuepaia tlatolli, injc tlananquiliaia qujtoaia.

O tla caubquj in amoiollotxin, a ca nican tictotlacaquililia in totecujo, in tlacatl in telpuchtli in ioalli in checatl in iavtzin, a, ca ichoatzin in anqujmotlatlauhtilia, in anqujmonochilia ca ichoatl yn anqujmomaquilia in amocozquj in amoquetzal, in amotlatlacatilil, ca çan tequjtl ticcuj, ticcana yn anqujmomaquilia in totecujo, ca çan tictotlacaquililia, quen ie qujmonequilitica. auh quen qujmonequjlilitica in ichoatzin totecujo, in amocozquj, in amoquetzal, ha nelli mach in tinentlamati in timacchoalti, hadaiocoxian in titlatoa, quen ic qujmomachililitica in totecujo, in tloque nauaque, in piltzintli, qiã chichinaloc, quen nauatiloc, in ioonian, tle ic apanaloc, tleh quioalizqujtia, yn iquac motlacatilli: auh tle iconal, auh ieqpane tle ypan malti tle yn imaceual in piltzintli, tle yn jilhujl, ha nelli mach, in ticnonequipiquilia in timacchoalti, cuix mo haca quja tlatlcpac machichioaz, ha njnõ

3. Intellire, [illegible]. In Lib. VI of the Florentine Codex, fo. 200, the phrase [illegible] equals la amplitud; cf. corresponding Spanish text in Sahagún, Rehnelt ed., p. 347. Cf. also [illegible] and [illegible] in Simeón, op. cit. Later in the present chapter the passage [illegible] and it is perhaps permissible to take the two passages as similar. [illegible] might have been intended. See Chap. VII.

4. Cuchipanlatl, quappetlatl. Cf. Lib. VI, fo. 200 v. Corresponding Spanish text in Sahagún, op. cit., p. 348, reads: ". . . hay soldados y hombres valientes de guerra, que merecieron por su defensión."

5. Petlatl, tepalli. Cf. Andrés de Olmos, Gramática de la lengua mexicana (Paris: Imprimerie Nationale, 1875) pp. 218, 221; Gardner, op. cit., p. 112; Simeón, op. cit. (petlatl).

874

ing [our fortune]; from the place of darkness it cometh forth as our property.

"And [or for] this one: may he enter into the service of the god,[6] in the casting to one side [of rubbish], or the task of laying fires. May he pour forth praises to our lord, the shadow and wind.

"May he remain up here in the light with whatever favors he hath come clothed in, with whatever hath been given him, with whatever he hath been adorned in the place of darkness [before all time]. Perchance, in truth, now and here our lord will offer [these] to him. Perchance all will be lost. Mayhap it is our fate and our lot that, perchance, only for a little time the sun may make him grow. Maybe he will arrive to join him. Mayhap he will move and enter into the arms of the sun.'

"And how may we now speak and hearten you? We may not say, 'In this wise will this be; this one will be thus; this one will do so; this one our lord will transform, and thus will he be; he will be someone; he will attain honor; he will walk the earth.'

"And mayhap it will not be our lot and fate that he may live wallowing in dust and filth and living in sin; possibly he may die stoned or cast into a pond; men may mock him for taking after the women of others. Or else he may always be in misery and pain.

"Let us raise and nurture the children; let the word and command to motherhood and fatherhood be given. Perchance in him we may enclose and set in place our hearts; and also you [may do so] whose jewel and precious feather he is.

"And now, may you bring about that, with prayers, weeping, and tears, you may not, being asleep, be neglectful. Call out now in your anguish to the savior and protector of all [that you may learn] what he requireth of us and how he speaketh."

tiquitquitivitze, ha njman ioosianpa tozlatquj oalietiuh.

auh in y, manoço itlan onaquj yn vchpanoaztli in tlacuicuilizzli, in chico tlanaoac tlatequilizzli: auh in tletlalilizzli, manoço ixillan itoncatlan onmãmaiavi in totecujo, in iooalli yn checatl, ma vncan panj tlanezian oalmotlali in quenami ynemac, injc mãpantivitz, in quenamj omacoc, injc ochichioaloc in iooajan aço nelle axcan vncan conmaniliz in totecujo, aço ixquitzin cõmopolhuiz, acaço tolhujl, acaço tomaceoal a cujx noço vel achitzin qujoallaliz in tonatiuh, cujx noço caxitiz in nepã Cujx noço vel contlaçaz, vel conaquiz in mavic in tonatiuh.

auh yn axcã quenami tiquitozque, cujx tamechtoiollalilizque, a cujx toconitozque iuhquj iez, y, iehoatl iez, y, iehoatl qujchioaz, y, iehoatl quicuepaz, y, in totecujo. iuhquj iez. y, hitlatiz, panvezziz, nemiz in tlalticpac.

auh acaço tle tolhujl tomaceoal, aco teuhtli, tlaçolli, ic milacatzotinemiz in tlalticpac, aço teco mjc, tecaxic maizaviz, at tecue, tevipil tepancanaz quimaviltiz, auh anoço icnoiotl teupouhqui, cococ qujztinemjz, ma titlacazcaltia, ma titlacaoapaoa ma quiça in cententli, in cencamatl yn naniotl, in taiotl. Cujx ijtic toncalaquizque, toiollo tocontlalilizque: auh no yui in ticozque, in tiquetzale.

auh in axca manoçoc ic xonmoietztie in tlatlauhtli, in choquiztli, in ixaiotl ma amonmotlacochcaviliti, ma oc xocõmotlaoculnonochilitinencã in tloque naoaque, quen techmonequililia, quen quimitalhuja.

6. Polysemantic in character. Cf. [illegible], in Lib. VI, fo. 207 r, where the same is to enter the service of the god or of a nobleman.

7. Meaning of this passage, as well as others equally figurative, is problematical.

[p. 52 is blank]

4: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1952 NU7 Aztec NU7

874 Fifth Chapter, which telleth of the customs which they practised and observed in order to live there, where they were reared and ripened [in] the young men's house.

And when he entered the young men's house, then [the leaders] charged him with sweeping [of the house] and with the laying of fires. And then they had him begin the penances. When there was singing at night (which was called song with dance), there he consorted with the others, he danced with the others. With the others there was conversation; songs were composed.

And when [he was] yet an untried youth,[1] then they took him into the forest. They had him bear upon his back what they called logs[2] of wood—perchance now only one, or, then, two. Thus they tested whether perhaps he might do well in war when, still an untried youth, they took him into battle. He only went to carry a shield upon his back.

And when [he was] already a youth, if mature and prudent, if he was discreet in his talking, and especially if [he was] of good heart, then he was made a master of youths; he was named tiachcauh. And if he became valiant, if he reached manhood, then he was named ruler of youths (telpochtlato). He governed them all; he spoke for all the youths. If one [of them] sinned, this one judged him; he sentenced [the youths] and corrected them. He dealt justice.

874 701 And if he was brave, if he took four [captives], then he attained [the office of] commanding general,[5] general,[6] [or] chief.[6] And also [in those days] one rose to be called constable.[6] Today it is the same, and he is known as alguacil [or constable], he who Injc. 5. capítulo: itechpa tlatoa intlamanitiliz, ynjc vncan nenca, in quichioaia in quitequipanoaia yn vncã muzcaltiaia mocapaoaia telpuchcali.

Auh in iquac ocalac in telpuchcali, niman vel quitequitia in tlachpanalli, in tletlaliliztli. auh njman conpeoaltia in tlamaceoaliztli: yn iquac cujco iocaltica (in mjtoa: cuicoanolo), vncan tehoan nemj, tehoan mjtotia, tehoan mjtoa cujcojanoja.

auh in ie telpuchtontli, njman quivica in quauhtla, quimamaltia, in quilhuja mimiliuhquj quavitl, aço çan oc centetl, anoço niman vncan onteti ic qujiciecoa, yn aço ie vel aciz iaoc, in ie vel telpuchticatontli, quivica in iaoc, çan oc chimalli in qujmamatiuh.

auh in ie vel telpuchtli, intla mozcalia, intla mimati, in tlatolmelaoac. auh oc cenca icheoatl intla icnoio yiollo, njman tachcauhtlalilo, tocaiotilo, Tiachçauh, auh intla ovelmacic oqujchtli, intla oc cenca mozcalia, niman tocaiotilo Telpuchtlato, qujncenpachoa, qujncĕtlatalhuja im izquijchtin telpuchtin, in oc tlatlacoa, icheoatl quirlatzontequilia, q'ntlatzontequilia, qujntlatlalilia, quichioa Justicia:

auh intla oquichti intla navi mani, vncan quiça in tlacatecatl, in tlacochcalcatl, in quauhtlato: auh no vncan quiça, in quilhuja achcauhtli, yn axcan ipan povi, ipan monati in alguaçil, in topile, ca no intoto-

1. Corresponding Spanish text: "a los quinze años."
2. Mimiliuhquj quavitl: literally, round wealth.
3. Cf. Anderson and Dibble, op. cit., Book II, p. 114, n. 13. The corresponding Spanish text has: "regidor, y governador al pueblo." Sahagún, in Historia Eclesiástica, p. 343, translates tlacatecatl as head of the dormitory, and in Collected Works, II, Pt. 3, pp. 85-61, describes him as an officer of justice, a manager, a military captain—offices given his life by the rulers, after which they re-appeared in the latter. He also says tlacochcalcatl is the same as tiamacti. Durán calls him "príncipe, é comendador, é otro supremo dicho" (op. cit., p. 124). Simeón (op. cit.) defines it as "Tiene acuerdo en cosas de guerra." Anderson and Dibble, loc. cit., Sahagún, in Historia Eclesiástica, translates as head of the quiver house, and in Collected Works, loc. cit., identifies him as the same as the tlacatecatl. He adds that four chiefs held the highest rules, tlacatecatl the four main divisions of the Mexican tribe, and formed the king's special council; these were the cuauhcalli, the tlacatecatl, the tlacochcalcatl, and the tlilancalqui. Sahagún (op. cit.) defines the cuauhcalcatl as "Regidor, juez en cosas de guerra," and also as "gobernador, capitán."
5. Simeón (op. cit.): "Un Ministro cuya le cabe que sentir fuera quanto capitán é la guerra se decomete por su fuia le chief de una gente (Sah.)."
6. Corresponding Spanish text: "era como agora alguacil, y tenia curo guardo, y prendia a los delinquentes, y los punia en la carcel."

874 [701] bearth a staff. For also [in times past] they had staves; and formerly these [officers] seized one and thrust one in jail.

pil caeca, yoan in ça ie ichountin in ontrilpiaia, in quauhcalco entetlaliaia,

These were all the honors and preferments which the youths [could obtain].

yzquich y, in jnpanetztiliz, in inpanechiliz in telpupuchti.

874 And in this way of life, few showed understanding and were persevering. Without number were those who were known as young [warriors]. Because in truth the life of the youth was not harsh. For when yet small boys they all slept together in that place which they called the young men's house, where they lived all together.

auh injn nemilistli amo çan quezquichtin in ipan nenca, in ipan mocapaoaia, amo çã tlapoalti in motocaiotiaia telpupuchti, ipampa ca çan njmã amo tecoco in jnnemiliz in telpupuchti, ca in oc pipiltotonti, vncan cencochi in quilhuja telpuchcali vncan cemenoque.

And he who was absent, who slept not in the young men's house, him they punished. And they ate in their homes. And they went about together where they had anything to do—perchance [preparing] mud[7] [for adobes, making] walls, cultivating the soil, [digging] canals; they did these going all together, or they divided up. And they went into the forest, and gathered and carried on their backs what they named torches for the song house.

auh in aquin poliuja, in amo telpuchcalco cochi, quitlatzacujltiaia, yoan inchan ontlaqua. auh cemolihuhtiui in canpa tlein quichioa, in aço pololli, tepantli, cuemitl, apantli, quichioa, motquitiui, anoço monexeloa. auh quauhtla uj, concuj, conmama in quilhuia cuicatlauilli:

And when only a little sun [was left in the afternoon], they quit whatever they did. Then they prepared and adorned themselves. First they bathed themselves; then they rubbed [black on] themselves, but not—they say—their faces. Then they put on their neck bands.

auh ĩ ça achi tonatiuh quicaoa in tlein quichioa, njman mocencaoa, muchichioa, achtopa mahaltia, njman mõça, amo no quilhuja in inxaiac nima mococuecatia.

874 301 The [valiant] men and chiefs put on neck bands of large sea shells, or of gold; they put on netted capes and leather corselets.[8] Then they painted their faces [with black stripes]. It was said, they applied black sweat to themselves. And they pasted on iron pyrites. As one's adornment, ear plugs were set in; turquoise ear plugs were worn. Heron feathers were applied; netted capes were worn. This netted cape [was made of] twisted maguey fiber, knotted like a net with small shells [attached]. The chiefs had golden shells in their netted capes. Of the net capes of the shorn ones, it was said, "They are provided with fruit." For this reason it was said, "They are provided with fruit"—[that] very large fiber balls hung from them by strings.

Yn oquichtin in tiacaoan, vevej chipoli in qujmocoucatia, anoço teucujtlacouzcatl, motlacuechmanilia, motlacoatimanilia, njman mjchio, mjtoaia motlilxotia hapetztli ic conpotonja, in jnechioal, monacochtia, moxixjuhnacochtia, mozzatia, mochalcacatia, ynjn chalcaistl tlamalintli in jcpatl, tlatlalpitl, iuhquin matlatl cillo, in tlatoque teucujtlacillo in jnchalcaiauh, in quaquachicti inchalcaiauh mjtoa xoxocoio, ynjc mjtoa xoxocuio, veveypupul in itech quipipiloa icpatetl, 874 535 When the sun had already set, then they laid a fire [at the place] called the song house. On the hearth the youths laid the fire. When it was already dark, then was begun the singing. Everyone danced yn iõc ie onaqui tonatiuh njman tletecа in quilhuja cujcacalco, tlehquazco in tletletlalia telpupuchti, in ie tlaixmiqui, niman pecoalo in cujco, muchi tlacatl

7. The word pololli, as used elsewhere in Sahagún, appears to mean to make adobes.
8. In Kingsborough (p. 344, n. 1), Seler offers a variant for [illegible] and [illegible]. Coselet and cuirass, however, may be [illegible] gorgerets, as here translated.

874

until the half division of the night passed, until after midnight.

And in these times they covered themselves with nothing else. All thus danced, wrapped only in aerated capes. They went about nearly naked.

When the singing ended, then all dispersed. Next day [was] the same, and the next day the same. They went together to their city quarters; they all went to sleep in their sleeping quarters, in this young men's house.

And the more valiant men, who already were wise in the ways of the flesh, always slept with their paramours.

mjtotia, inqujchica yn oquiz iocalli zelisi, yn oncquiz iocalhcpantla. [535] auh njman niac tle quipanolocoia, in inqujch ic netetilo, çanyio in necoloolo chalcaiotl, haçan nel iuhqui petlauhtiencca, [592] yn oquiz cuicatl, njman cocenmanoa, mazcla yui, mazcla yui, in centlaxilacalti, mõquitivi vmpa ẽcochi in jacochia, injn telpuchcali.

auh in ie vel oquichtin in ie quiximati tlalticpaiotl, vmpa cococochi in jamecaca. [836]

[p. 56 is blank]

874
273
689

Sixth Chapter, in which are related the punishments and penances with which they chastised any youth when he drank wine.

They who were reared in the young men's house took full charge of the sweeping. None then drank wine.

And when already [they were] men, when already they had matured, he who drank wine hid himself well. He concealed himself well, and did not then drink before others; quite secretly and not much did he drink.

And if any youth were seen to drink wine, if it were noted that he was found with wine, [that] perchance he lay fallen, or sang,[1] or [that] somewhere he was seen drunk with others, then because of this [the people] were gathered and rounded up.

And because of this, fear fell [upon all of them]. If he was only a commoner or someone of no importance, he was beaten before the others. He fell under wooden [staves]; he died under wooden [staves].[2] Or he was made to suffer the rope.

And if he was a nobleman's son, they strangled him secretly.

874
836

And these youths had their paramours by twos or threes. Perchance one indeed was in her own house; perchance a number lived in various places. And when, they said, the estate of youth was ended, [the youth] paid something that he might leave the [other] youths. Large capes he left [for them]—perhaps ten or twenty, if he was rich.

874
[582]

When the masters of the youths had consented,[3] when they had given the youths leave to go, then (it is said) one was of marriageable age. He took only one woman, whom he kept at his home.

And when a youth was mature, not merely of his own will did he depart the estate of youth. He grew old where the youths were. And if he willed, the chief gave him leave [to go].

And not very often from the youths' place [came], perchance, lords; only chiefs, commanding generals, and generals[4] were taken thence. Lords and mer-

Injc. 6. capítulo: vncan motencoa in tetlatzacuiltiliztli, in tetlamaceoaltiliztli, ynjc qujntlatzacuiltizia, in iquac aca telpuchtli tlaoanaia.

Injc: nezcaltiloia telpuchcali, cẽca necujtlavilo, in nochpanouztli, njman aiac quja in vetli.

auh in ie vel oquichti, ĩ ie chicaoaque, cenca vel motlatiaia in quja vetli, cenca motlatiaia, çan nj.nan amo teixpan in quja, vel ichtaca amo no quexq'ch in quja, auh intla ittoia haca telpuchtli tlaoana, in ito in at vetlica namjco, anoço vetztoc anoço quica, anoço cana teoan tlaoantica ito, njman ica necentlalilo, ica nenechicolo:

auh ica mavistli vetzi, intla çan macoualli, anoço ça can aquin, teixpan viviteco, quauhtica vetzi, quauhtica miquj, anoço mecatl quiiecultia.

auh intla tlaçopilli ichtaca qujmecanja:

auh inique y, telpupuchti ohome, ieey in jnmecaoan oncatca, aço ce vel ichã in ca, aço quezqujntin chaiaoatoque. auh in iquac quilhuja motelpuchtlali, tlaxtlaca injc qujntlalcavia in telpupuchti quachtli, quicaoa aço matlactli, aço cemipilli in mocuiltonoa, yn oazque in tachcaoan in oquimacauhque njmã (mitoa) tlapaliuhcati, ça çe cibostl conana in ichan quipia.

auh in mocalia telpuchtli, amo çan moiocoia, in quicaoa telpuchiotl, cenca ẽcã veveti in telpuchpan; auh yiollotlama in tlaoanj, qujnaoatia, auh amo cenca mjcepa in telpuchpan anoço in tocuti, çã tlatlacatecca, tlatlacochcalca, achcacauhti yn

1. Quizá: probably cuica is meant. Tolnac, in Biblioj. Náuatl, p. 345, translates the Náhuatl as cuca gaquiztoc—"was filled with fish."
2. Tolnac, op. cit., p. 346, n. 1, says of quauhtica vetzi quauhtica miquj: "Parodia con quauhtica vetzi, quitlica vetzi—Ahorcado, é enterrado."
3. Gimpser: reference to the Real Palacio MS suggests that this should read miquque.
4. See Chapter V, nn. 3, 4.

814

shals[5] did not attain [their station] there, because the manner of life of the youths was not very good. For they were given to women and were vicious; for they took up pleasantries, they used vain talk, they spoke grossly, loud, and coarsely.

vncan ano, amo tlacatecutli, amo tlacochtecutli vncã quiça, ipampa in amo cenca qualli yn jnnemiliz telpupuchti, ca ipampa cihoa notzaia, avilnemini, ipampa in qujmotequjtia cacamanalli, ahauillatoa, totoquauhtlatoa, tlatlaquauhtlatoa, quaqtiauhtlatoa.

5. Of these Sahagún elsewhere says that they were principales over nobles and captains. The tlacatecatl was a pilli (prince or nobleman); the tlacochtecatl was "principal en las cosas de la guerra," and Sahagún refers to them as señores (Robredo ed., II, pp. 117-18). Specifically of the tlacatecatl he says: "Tiene autoridad para mandar a los ciudadanos . . . para reprender y castigar porque ya esta en la dignidad y estado, ya tiene el principal lugar, donde le pueo nuestro señor; ya le llaman por estos nombres tlacatecatl tlacochtecatl, por estos nombres le nombran todos los papalotes" (Ibid., p. 136). Of both officials, he writes: ". . . el señor es como cuerado del pueblo; este de oficio era pilli y este era criado en las guerras. El este de oficio se llamaba tlacatecatl, y el otro tlacochtecatl. . . ." Four personages—tlacatecatl, tlacochtecatl, tlacatecal, and tlacochcalcatl—were chosen by the inspiration of nuestro señor dios, porque eran más hábiles para ello" (Ibid., p. 138).

Seventh Chapter, in which it is told how the chiefs and noblemen left their children there at the priests' house, and what manner of customs were observed at the place called the priests' house.

Chiefs, noblemen, and others besides who were well born, these same took their sons, and promised them, to the priests' house; and also any others [did so] who wished it.[1]

All because priests—the noblemen because the place of rearing in the priests' house, the school, the place of instruction, [was] a place of chastity, a place of reverence, of reflection, of prudence, of virtue, of righteousness. For then [there was] no filth nor vice, nothing blamable in the lives of the priests [and] in the training [given in] the priests' house.[2]

A chief, nobleman, lord, or anyone who was rich, when such vowed to bring his sons [to the priests' house], prepared drink and food. He summoned the priests, and assembled the priests, and invited the old priests, and gathered those who were well born.[3] The old men made an entreaty; the old ones besought the priests, and said to them:

"Our lords, priests, you have been pleased to bring yourselves here; you have taken your noble feet [through various places]. Perchance straw or grass you have somewhere touched with your feet; perchance in some place you may have injured or knocked something against your revered feet.

"Our lord hath placed you here. You must know and hear, verily, [that] now our lord, savior and protector of all, hath given one [who is as] a jewel, a quetzal feather.

"We have dreamed; we have quickly arisen. Now, what will the boy, [this] small child, be? Surely we shall not offer him a spindle and a batten. For he is your chattel, your charge. We now pray to the lord Tezpiltzin, Quetzalcoatl,[4] to him who is feathered in Injc chicome capitulo: vncan moteneoa, yn quenjn tlatoque, pipiltin qujmõcaoaia, inpilhoan yn vmpa calmecac, yoan in quenamj tlamanitiliztli, ynjc tlamanja in vmpa moteneoa calmecac.

In tlatoque in pipilti, yoan in oc cequjntin vel nanti, vel tati, çan ien vmpa in qujmaquja in qujnnetoltia in jnpilhoan, yn calmecac: yoan in oc cequjntin in-aqujn quinequi, muchintin tlamacazque muchioa in pipilti ypampa, in nezcaliloian calmecac, in tenonotzaloia, in teixcaltiloian, chipeoaca nemoouiã, necxiiciccoloia, nẽmachoia ixtlamachoia, qualtioaia, iectioaia: çan njmã hatzoio, hatcuhio, atle iniaioca in tlamacazque innemilix, yn calmecac neoapeoaliztli,

Jn tlatoanj, pilli, tecutli, yn anoço aca mocuiltonoa in iõc quinetoltia in caquja jnpiltzin quicencaoa yn atl, in tlaqualli, qujnnotza qujncentlalia in tlamacazque, yoan qujnnotza in quaquacujlti, yoã qujncentlalia yn nanti, yn tati, in vevetque, tlatlatlauhtia in vevetlaca, qujntlatlauhtia in tlamacazque quimilhujã.

Totecujooane, tlamacazque, nican anoalmouicatiaque amocxitzin anquioalmanilique, aço tlacotl, çacatl cana oanquioalmocxinamiquilique, aço cana amocxõtzin oanqujoalmocnelhuique, oanqujoalmotecujnilique;

ca njcan amechoalmotlalilia in totecujo, anqujmocuilia, anqujmocaqujltia, a ca nelle, axcan centetl cuacatl quetzalli, oqujmomacavili in totecujo, in tloque naoaque tiemiqui, ticochitlcoa, a ca nelle axcan tle oniez, in pilhõtli, in conetontli: cujx malacatl, tzotzopaztli, aticmacazque, ca amazcatzin, ca amotlaquitzin, yn axcan ivictzinco tiqujtoa in tlacatl in topiltzin in Quetzalcoatl, in tlilpotõqui, calaquiz in calmecac, in

1. Torquemada, op. cit., p. 22, says they were taken by the cuhcuxcas at the age of four. Clavigero, op. cit., pp. 199, 200, says the age for them entering both the cuhcuxcas and the telpochcalli was fifteen.

2. Training and standards of conduct were much more rigorous in the cuhcuxcas than in the telpochcalli. Cf. Cruz, op. cit., p. 54.

Cruz (Ibid., pp. 57) points out that all learning was in priestly hands—science, star lore (magic, science, time-reckoning), the calendar (prediction of the future, astrology), cosmology, history, hieroglyphic writing, law. These bodies of knowledge may indicate a curriculum for the cuhcuxcas. Priests also participated in the cuna and were the formal educators.

3. Yn nanti, yn tati: an alternative meaning could be "those with fathers and mothers." Seler (Einige Kapitel, p. 347), translates: "in gutem Verhältnissen sich befindenden Männer (und) Väter."

4. Quetzalcoatl was patron of the cuhcuxcas and of the education of priests and noblemen (Cruz, op. cit., p. 28).

4: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1952 NU7 Astec NU7

814
793
565

black, that he may enter the priests' house, the house of weeping, of tears, and of sadness, where grow and ripen the sons of our lords.

"And there prayers are raised to the savior and protector of all; there he poureth forth prayers to our lord; there he is importuned with weeping, tears, and sighs. There one is given [gifts], and is chosen for him [our lord]. For there we speak in his worthy house—there where [the shell trumpet] is blown, where the fire is bored, where the children of our lords are reared—where there is sweeping, the clearing of trash; where [sin] is put to one side. [This] disposition our lord will bring about.[5]

"In your noble laps, on your revered backs, in your valued protection we place the child. Grant him [your love], for we give you our child. Grant him your love; give him [your protection]. May he be planted here that he may be reared and wax strong; that he may do penances all night and all day, going about on elbow and on knee, calling and crying out to our lord, weeping, sad, and sighing.

"This is all which you have been caused to know and to hear, O priests."

Behold how the priests responded and replied:

"Here we have taken and received your valued spirit and words. Although we are unworthy, although we do not deserve it, although we do not merit it, your valued spirit and words have come forth [telling] how and why you are anguished over your jewel, your quetzal feather. But we only hear [on behalf of] our lord Topiltzin, Quetzalcoatl, of him who is feathered in black. What will he require of your jewel, your quetzal feather? What will he wish of you? What will become of your jewel and quetzal feather?

"Without doubt we would be foolish [to say] that thus this [is], that this one [is] thus. Let us all trust in our lord, savior and protector of all. What will he wish of us? Let us put our trust in him."

choquiztcali, in jxaiocali, in tlaoculcalli, in vncan iscaltilo, oapaoalo in totecujooan in tepilhoã.

auh in vncan tlaitlanililo, in tloque naoaque, in vncan ixillã, itoncatlan mamaiaoca in ichoatzin totecujo, in vncan tlamatataquililo, in choq'ztica, in jxaiotica in elcicuiliztica: auh in vncan motetlamamaquilia, in vncan motepepenilia in ichoatzin, ca vmpa tocoritoa in ichantzinco, in vncã pitzalo, mamaliua in izcaltilo ĩ totecujooa, in tepilhoan, in vncan ochpanoaztli, tlacuicuiliztli, chico tlanaoac, tlatequiliztli qujmochivililiz in totecujo:

amocuexantzinco, amotepitzinco, amomamalhoaztzinco, tocontlalia, manoço tlacaoa in amoiollotzin, ca tamechtoconemaquilia, ma tlacaoa yn amoiollotzin ma xiqualmanilican, ma quimontoca, ma quimonnelo, in izcaltilo, in oapaoalo, in tlamaceoa in ceioal, cemilhujtl, in jmolicpitzin, in jntetepontzin ic tlaçatimj in qujmonochilia, in qujmotzatzililia in totecujo, in choca, in tlaocuia, in elcicivi;

ca isquijch y, anquimocujlia, anquimocaquijtia tlamacazquche.

Jacatquj, injc tlananquiliaia, ynjc quicnepaia tlatolli in tlamacazque.

Ca njcan tonconcuj toconana in amihjiotzin, in amotlatolcti ma çi teboan titottati, ma tictollhuihocati, ma tictomactocati, in njcan oalquiça in amihjiotzin, in amotlatoltzi injc ica, injc ipampa, anmonĕtlamachitia, in amocozquj, in amoquetzal, ca çan tictotlacaquililia in totecujo in topiltzin in Quetzalcoatl, in tilpotonequj anca quen qujmonequililia, in amocozquj, in amoquetzal. auh anca quen amechmonequililia yn amehoantin, anca quenami iex, in coscatl, in quetzalli, mach tocontotemitalhuizque in ma inhqui, y, in ma ichoatl, y, ma tictocentemachilicã in totecujo, in tloque naoaque, quen techaxonequililia, ma oc tielacentemachica,

5. Mention of the protection of the god and the prince, and of expected rewards, is probably a reference to the fact that from the enthronement onwards the priesthood and high military, administrative, and judiciary officials (ibid., pp. 32 ff.). Durán (op. cit., pp. 134-5) writes: "La segunda manera de educarse los hombres era por la ygnomia ellaguardaban el respaldo de donde dicqueso de hacer servicio en los templos con gran cuidado y prontitudes y reverencias yo dirijas cuidanse los mesmos a dignidades y cargos honrosos en las republicas que oy en dia tienen entre ellos dandoles mesas dinales y templos que hablando en oculta manera y cagen el respeto y reverencia se los hagis y oy en dia se les haga se crean dagis cosales dicqueso o mayorazgos ebiqueso o arcebiqueso etc. pues con ellos se enhebreaban los cortes y se tomaban los parientes y compañeros se juntaban a los cualdiles y juntas. Los tegos dan el consejo y parecer dentro de aquellos hagis cosas cual el mesmo modo que los consejos que se congregaul dicen para discurrir de su real congiliado asi a la mesma manera eran estos parentes en aquellas dignidades dicqueso de largos prudencias y trabajos y hido y consejo a los quales quando les dicen cosas dignidades y remuneraul hagian muchas ceremonias cortesanas equal largo cuello humanidad le dicen con que siempre andaban enhebrados de manera que pudieran dalle el nombre de humanidades pues con aquellas cortesanias andaban grandes prudencias y cantidad de cualdiales hablando gran finesa y humanidad y oy en dia se hace el mes antiguo lo qual puedo afirmar como testigo de biste pues me he hallado en mas de quatro grandes dentos y pues que los que saben y conocidos el frutis dentos quiere decirse los dandos quales son andaban a mesar dicqueso cualdiales dicqueso dicqueso dicqueso

Then they bore the child to the temple. The parents carried paper and incense. Chiefs or noblemen [took] breech clouts, capes, precious neck bands, quetzal feathers, and green stones, which they offered as gifts. The poor took only [their] paltry papers and incense, or sweet smelling herbs, which they used as their gifts.

When they had taken [the children] there, they then anointed them with black; they covered their faces well with a black paste. They then gave them neck bands of the roots of the birthwort.[4] A poor [child] they only provided a neck band of loose cotton. Then they cut his ears and cast the child's blood before the image of the devil. If he was yet a small child, then the parents took him [away]. If he was a chief's son, they left his neck band there at the temple; the priest took it away.

Then [the priests] taught him all the manner of living and rules by which they lived in the priests' house.

Niman quivica in piltontli in teupan, amatl, copalli in quiquj in pilhoaque, in tlatoque anoço pipiltj, maxtlatl, tilmatli, cuecatl, quetzalli chalchiuitl, in quivenchioaia. Yn jcnotlacatl çan amatzintli, copaltzintli, anoço yiauhtli in quiquj in juven muchioa, yn oconvicaque, njman cohça tiltica, vel quiztlilpopotza, njman tlacopatli quiconcatia, yn jcnoçiiaca çan ixquich potonquj quiconcatia, njmã quinacazzequi, contlatlaxilia in ixiptla Diablo in iezio pilõtli, intla oc piliontli oc quivica in pilhoaque, intla tlatoanj ipiltzin, iconquj vmpa ..ncaoaia in teupan, conana in tlamacazque, njman quimachria yn ixquich nemiliztli, njc nemoa calmecac, in tlatecpantli.

4. Aristolochia sanctorum (Sahagún, op. cit.).

[p. 62 is blank]

4: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1952 NU7 Astec NU7

874
793

Eighth Chapter, which telleth of the way of life which they kept in the priests' house, where lived or were reared the fire priests and [other] priests.

First: All the priests slept there in the priests' house.

Second: It was required that everyone should sweep when it was well before dawn.

Third: Those already grown, already [more] hardy, then went to seek magney thorns. They said, they pruned the magney thorns.

Fourth: When they were already novice priests of whatever kind, they went forth when it was still night, or when midnight had passed; they started to go to the forest in order to gather and carry upon their backs wood which they called logs. This they burned all night in the priests' house as the priests kept watch.[1] And if anywhere mud [for adobes], a wall, cultivation of the soil, or a canal were to be undertaken, all went forth just before dawn. Those who guarded [the house] were left [behind], as well as those who would go to serve the food. They went in a group. None failed. In good order they passed the whole day.

Fifth: A little before they ceased their work, they went to sup to the god's affairs, the duties in the priests' house, and the penances. When still a little sun [shone], or when it was already becoming dark, [this was the time which] was called the cutting of magney spines. When it was quite dark, when it was already deep night, then the priests began what was called the placing of the magney spines. One at a time they went forth. First [each] bathed himself. Then they took [their] shell trumpets, and incense ladles, sacks filled with incense, and they took up pine torches. Thereupon [each one] set forth to place the magney thorns. They went naked. Those who would perform great penances[2] might go as far as two leagues to place the magney spines—perchance Injc chicuey capitulo: ytechpa tlatoa, in nemilistli, in mopiaia Calmecac, yn vncan nenca manoço muzcaltiaia tlenamacac] yoan tlamacazque.

Injc centlamantli. yn vmpa calmecac muchinti vmpa cochi in tlamacazque.

Injc. ij. muchioa muchi tlacatl, tlachpana in vel oc ioua.

Injc. 3. in ie tlâca, in ie chicactotonti, njman vih in quitemozque in vitztli, in qujtoa vitztlapanazque.

Injc. 4. in ie vel tlamacaztotoa, in çan oço ie quenamique, oc iooan, anoço iocalnepantla oonquiz, in onpeoa quauhtla vih, in quavitl concuj conmama, in quilhuja mimiliuhqui, in ccioual quitlatia calmecac ynjc tlapia tlamacazque. auh intla cana pololli, tepantli, cuemitl, apantli, muchioaz, vel oc iooan in vilou, mocauhtivi in tlapizzque: auh niman ie ieboantin in tetlamacativi, ololiuhtivi, aiac polivi, vellatecpanpa in qujtlaçaia cemilhujtl.

Injc. 5. çan cuel in quicaoa, in tlatequjpanoliztli quioalmati, yn jnteutequjuh in calmecac tequjtl, in tlamaceoaliztli; yn oc achi tonatiuh, anoço ie tlapoiaotiuh mjtoa vitztequi, yn ovellaiooac, in ie tlaquauhioua; njmã onpeoa, in tlamacazque in mjtoa, movitztlalizque, ça vel ceceume in vih, achtopa mahaltia, niman concuj in tecciztli, yoã tlemaitl, toxitli, copalli ontentiuh, yoan concuj ocutl, njmã ie ic vmpeoa in movitztlalitiuh, petlauhtiuh, in cenca vel motlamacaltia aço ome leguas in ovih movitztlalia, aço quauhtla, aço ixtlaoacan, aço atlan yn tejccatoton, in anoço aquin quinequi, aço media legua, in iauh in onmo-

1. Torquemada (op. cit., p. 227) writes: "Avia Veladores, que velaban las vigilias de la noche, unos en los Templos, y otros en los aposentadores de los Collas y Cavalleros. Estos velaban por sus quartos, y horas, mudandose, acabado el tiempo de su vigilia, y velo. Otros velaban fuera de quinze noche, hasta las diez, otros hasta media noche; y tercebos otros, estaban en la vela, otros, hasta las tres de la mañana; y à estos siguian otros hasta el dia, los oficio era despertar à los Sacerdotes, y Ministros, los que velaban en los Templos, para que asistieran à los Sacrificios, y horas canonicas. Los de los aposentadores, à los de la Republica, para la comida, cumplieran cada obligados. Tenian tambien cuidado estos Velas de colgar el Fuego de los braseros, para que siempre ardiesse, y nunca se apagasse. Y à este Vela llamaban Iacquallitoli, que quiere decir Vela."

2. The context of this passage suggests that mahaltia might better read mahamahaltia. Otherwise the passage is cause mahamahaltia might be rendered "[Indian whom] one was much frightened."

- 63 -

874 193 into the forest, or on the desert, or into the water. A younger one, or whosoever wished, went perhaps half a league to place the spines. [The penitent] bore his shell trumpet and went blowing [it] where he placed the thorns. Wherever he came to be, he went blowing a trumpet.

vitztlalia, itecciz ietiuh, tlapitztiuh, in canj yn evitztlaliaia, yn oacito vmpa oallapitztiuh.

[873] Sixth: When the priests slept, no two lay [together]. All lay quite separate. None were covered together.

Jnjc. 6. ynjc cochia tlamacazque, aiac vme temj, çan muchintin, mixcavitoque, aiac monepan tlaquentia.

[252] Seventh: The food they prepared for themselves, together; for it was their own food which they ate. And if anyone returned with food from his house, he ate it not alone.

Jnjc. 7. çan mocenchioaia in tlaqualli, in quiquaia, ca oncatca in jnneuhia, in quiquaia. auh intla haca conmacaia ical itlaqual amo yioca conqua.

Eighth: At midnight, when, as was said, night divided in half, everyone arose and prayed. If anyone failed to do so because he slept, if he did not awake, then, for this, all gathered together and drew blood from his ears, or his breast, or his thighs, or the calves of his legs. Because of this, fear verily fell [upon the people].

Jnjc. 8. in iooalnepantla in iquac mjtoa iooalli xellivi, muchi tlacatl meoaia tlatlatlauhtiaia, yn aquin tlacochcaoa, yn amo hiça njman ica necentlalilo, quiçoçoia ynacaztitech, yielpan, ymetzpan, itlanitzco vel ica mavizztli vetzi.

[273 836 688] Ninth: None then were proud; none then were unruly. All lived well ordered [lives]. If at times it appeared that one perhaps drank wine, or was given to women, or committed a great [fault], then they went to apprehend him. No mercy was shown. He was burned, or strangled, or cast into the fire alive or shot with arrows. And if he sinned only lightly, they drew blood from his ears, his flanks, or his thighs with maguey spines or with a [sharpened] bone.

Jnjc. 9. çã njmã aiac tlacuecuenoviaia, ça njman aiac mocuecuetzoaia, vellatecpanpa yn nemoaia, intla ça nen quenman necia aço vetli qui, aço cioanotza, in anoço itla vej quichioa, njman quitzacutivia, amo tlaoculiloia, tlecujlolo, anoço mecanilo, anoço tlecujlolo ioioltoc, anoço mimino, yn çan tepiton quitlacoa quiçoço yn inacazco, in jiomotla in imetzpa, vitztica, anoço omitica.

Tenth: The small boys were so raised that if they did nothing of great evil, they then drew blood from their ears, or switched them with nettles.

Jnjc. 10. in pipiltotonti ic oapaoallo, çan njman atle vel connitlacoa, njman quinçoço in inacazco, anoço quintzitzicaxvia.

Eleventh: At midnight the principal [priests] went down into the water and bathed there in the water.

Jnjc. ii. in iooalnepãtla apantemoia in ie tachcaoa, atlã õmahtiaia.

[785] Twelfth: When it was a time of fasting, everyone observed it. Verily, [only] at the moment when midday arrived did indeed all eat—even the small boys. And when it was the fast which they name Atamalqualo, then they ate but sparingly.[2a] Some ate [only] at midnight and yet again went to eat at midnight; some ate at noon, and yet again went to eat at noon. No chili, no salt did they eat; neither, that they might sleep, [did they] even [drink] water. They said that the fast was broken if they ate or drank even a little.

Jnjc. 12. yn iquac oncatca neçaoaliztli, vel muchintin quipiaia, vel iquac yn oacic nepantla tonatiuh tlaquaia vel muchintin in pipiltotonti. auh in iquac oncatca neçaoaliztli in quilhuja atamalqualo, njman amo tlapaloa, cequjntin iooalnepãtla in tlaquaia, oc no iooalnepãtla in tlaquatiuh cequjntin nepantla tonatiuh in tlaqua, oc no mizztla nepantla tonatiuh in tlaquatiuh, atle chilli atle iztatl quiquaia, ano tle ic cochi in manel atl, quitoa moneçaoalhujltequi intla itlaton cõqua, conj.

Thirteenth: Very carefully were they taught good discourse. If one spoke not well, if one greeted others

Jnjc. 13. cenca vel nemachtiloia in qualli tlatolli,

2a. "Tlapaloa, ut. minjor et pauc cuid potuje, quidlo comerat" (Molina, op. cit.).

4: Sahagún M-5 (1529-1590) 1952 NU7 Aztec NU7

874
793

ne. well, then they drew blood from him [with magney spines].

Fourteenth: Carefully were they taught the songs which they called the gods' songs. They were inscribed in the books. And well were all taught the reckoning of the days, the book of dreams, and the book of years.

Fifteenth: A strict vow of the priests was [that of] chastity, of a pure life. In no wise were they to look upon a woman.[3] A strict vow of theirs was [a life of] moderation. None then told lies. The priests were very devout. They were very god-fearing.

Now enough of this. Here is told the way of life of the priests. Much else, which is left [unsaid] must [yet] be related. [This] will be told in another place.

in aquja amo vellaztz, in amo vel tetlapaloz njman quiçoçoia.

Jnjc. 14. vel nemachtiloia in cujcatl in quilhuja teucuicatl, amoxxotoca. Yoan vel nemachtiloia in tonalpoalli in temjcamatl, yoan in xiuhamatl. [535]

Jnjc. 15. in tlamacazque vel innetol catca in nepializzli, in chipaoaca nemilizzli, in acan quittazque cihoatl, vel innetol catca in tlaixiccoliztli, njman-aiac iztlacatia, vel tlatcumatinj, catca in tlamacazque, vel teuimacaçini catca, [589] çan cuel 'izq'ch, y, nican onmitoa, in jnuemiliz catca tlamacazque, oc mjcc in mocaoa in jmitoaia monequj vccã mitoz.

3. Probably a life of celibacy is not to be understood. Cf. Charles E. Dibble, Código Xolotl (Mexico: Universidad de Utah y de México, 1951) p. 75, Pl. V, and elsewhere for examples of unwedded priests.

[p. 66 is blank]

874
565
793

Seventh Chapter, in which it is told how the chiefs and noblemen left their children there at the priests' house, and what manner of customs were observed at the place called the priests' house.

Chiefs, noblemen, and others besides who were well born, these same took their sons, and promised them, to the priests' house; and also any others [did so] who wished it.[1]

All because priests—the noblemen because the place of rearing in the priests' house, the school, the place of instruction, [was] a place of chastity, a place of reverence, of reflection, of prudence, of virtue, of righteousness. For then [there was] no filth nor vice, nothing blamable in the lives of the priests [and] in the training [given in] the priests' house.[2]

A chief, nobleman, lord, or anyone who was rich, when such vowed to bring his sons [to the priests' house], prepared drink and food. He summoned and assembled the priests, and invited the old priests, and gathered those who were well born.[3] The old men made an entreaty; the old ones besought the priests, and said to them:

"Our lords, priests, you have been pleased to bring yourselves here; you have taken your noble feet [through various places]. Perchance straw or grass you have somewhere touched with your feet; perchance in some place you may have injured or knocked something against your revered feet.

"Our lord hath placed you here. You must know and hear, verily, [that] now our lord, savior and protector of all, hath given one [who is as] a jewel, a quetzal feather.

"We have dreamed; we have quickly arisen. Now, what will the boy, [this] small child, be? Surely we shall not offer him a spindle and a batten. For he is your chattel, your charge. We now pray to the lord Tezcatlipoca, Quetzalcoatl,[4] to him who is feathered in Injc chicome capítulo: vncan motemoa, yn qeonja tlatoque, pipiltin qujmõcaoaia, inpilhoan yn vmpa calmecac, yoan in qucnamj tlamanitiliztli, ynjc tlamanja in vmpa motemoa calmecac.

In tlatoque in pipilti, yoan in oc cequjntin vel nanti, vel tati, çan ien vmpa in qujmaquja in qujnnetoltia in jnpilhoan, yn calmecac: yoan in oc cequjntin in-aquja quinequi, muchintin tlamacazque muchiua in pipilti ypampa, in nencaliloian calmecac, in tenonotzaloia, in teixcaltilcian, chipaoaca nemoouiã, necxiiicoxtloia, nẽmachoia ixtlamachoia, qualtiouia, iectiouia: çan njmã hatzoia, hatzuhio, atle iniaioca in tlamacazque innemiliz, yn calmecac neoapaoliztli,

In tlatoanj, pilli, tecutli, yn anoço aca mocuiltonoa in iljc quinetoltia in caquja jnpiltzin quicencaoa yn atl, in tlaqualli, qujnnotza qujncentlalia in tlamacazque, yoan qujnpotza in quaquacujlti, yoã qujncentlalia yn nanti, yn tati, in vevetque, tlatlatlauhtia in vevetlaca, qujntlatlauhtia in tlamacazque quimilhuja.

Totecujoaane, tlamacazquee, nican anoalmouicatiaque amocxitzin anquioalmanilique, aço tlacotl, çacatl cana oanquioalmocxinamiquilique, aço cana amocxitzin oanquioalmocuelhuique, oanquioalmotecujnilique;

ca njcan amechoalmotlalilia in totecujo, anquimocuilia, anquimocaquiltia, a ca nelle, axcan ontetl cocotl quetzalli, oquimomacavili in totecujo, in tloque nauaque titemiqui, tiochikiloa, a ca nelle axcan tle onier, in piltõtli, in conetontli: cujx malacatl, tzotzopaztli, aticmacazque, ca amaxcatzin, ca amotlaquitzin, yn axcan ivicxtinco tiquijtoa in tlacatl in topiltzin in Quetzalcoatl, in tlilpotõqui, calaquix in calmecac, in [815]

1. Torquemada, op. cit., p. 72, says they were taken by the schoolmaster at the age of four. Clavigero, op. cit., pp. 199, 200, says the age for those entering both the schoolmaster and the telpochcalli was fifteen.

2. Training and standards of conduct were much more rigorous in the schoolmaster than in the telpochcalli. Cf. Cano, op. cit., p. 34.

Cano (Ibid., pp. 32) points out that all learning was in priestly hands—science, star lore (magic, science, time-reckoning), the calendar (prediction of the future, astrology), mythology, history, hieroglyphic writing, law. These bodies of knowledge may indicate a curriculum for the schoolmaster. Priests also participated in the wars and were the formal educators.

3. To wend, yn anõ: an alternative meaning could be "those with fathers and mothers." Siler (Elenjo Náyuhl, p. 147), translates: "Ie gaste Vrsellhoaes del Infortunados Mãoes (and) Pilhes."

4. Quetzalcoatl was patron of the schoolmaster and of the education of priests and noblemen (Cano, op. cit., p. 28).

16:Bandelier E-4 (no date) 1880 NU7 Aztec NU7

871 These houses of education were under the
868 special direction of experienced men, called therefore "Speakers
875 of the Youth" ("telpuchtlatoca") and "elder brothers" ("teachcanhtin,") in another capacity. They had not only to provide for the physical training of their pupils, but also for their intellectual development, as far as the state of knowledge permitted.[99] Such places of training were called also "the place where I grow" ("nezcaltiloyan"), or "the place where I learn" ("nemachtiloyan.")[100] It is not true that the youth were constrained 871 868 to a permanent, almost monastic residence in such houses; but while there they improved in common certain special plots of land, in all likelihood the so-called "temple-tracts," out of which the daily wants of worship were supplied.[101] In connection with this mode of education, we have to consider here an objection which cannot fail to be raised against our views.

565 It is frequently given out as a fact, that besides the "Houses 871 of the Youth" mentioned, there was a special place of education for the children of "noblemen" and this is adduced as a proof of made (Lib. IX, cap. XII, pp. 185 and 186; Lib. XIII, cap. XXVIII, XXIX and XXX) and others.

[98] "Art of War" (pp. 101, 119 and 120). Mendieta (Lib. II, cap. XXIV, pp. 124 and 125): "Los otros se criaban como en capitanias, porque en cada barrio, habia un capitan de ellos, llamado telpuchtlato, que quiere decir, guarda ó capitan de los mancebos." Torquemada (Lib. IX, cap. XII, p. 185): "y tenian un Rector, que los regia, y governaba, que se llamaba Telpochtlato, que quiere decir, Guarda ó Caudillo de los Mancebos, el qual Telpochtlato tenia gran cuidado de doctrinarlos, y enseñarles, en buenas costumbres." Sahagun (Lib. III, cap. V, p. 269): "y si era ya hombre valiente y diestro, elegianle para regir á todos los mancebos, y para castigarlos, y entonces se llamaba Telpuchtlato." (Lib. VIII, cap. XIII, p. 261): "Tambien daban de comer á los que criaban los mancebos que se llaman telpuchtlatos, . . ." (Cap. XVII, p. 265): "en este lugar se juntaban los maestros de los mancebos que se llamaban tiachcaoan, y telpuchtlatoques . . ." (Also Cap. XXXVIII, p. 311). Velancurt (Part II, Trat. III, cap. VI, p. 451): "y un rector que llamaban Telpochtlato, el que habia y gobierna á los mancebos." Codex Mendoza (Vol. I of Kingsborough plates 62 and 63).

Sahagun usually calls the "achcauhtli," "alguaziles," or executors of justice. But above we see that he calls the "tiachcaoan," also "masters of the youth." Both names are corruptions of "teachcanhtlin." Tezozomoc (Cap. XXXVIII, p. 60) calls the "Achcacauhtin, mayorales de armas y de doctrina y de ejemplo." (Cap. LVII, p. 98): "Tras ellos vinieron los que llaman Achcauhtin, señores de los varrios, y maestros de mancebos." (Cap. LXXI, p. 121): "mayorales y ministros, y los hicieron juntar como escuelas en cada un varrio que llamaban telpochcalli." (Cap. LXXXVIII, p. 134): "Los mancebos iban cada dia á los varrios al egercicio de las armas á la escuela de armas telpochcalco, adonde los enseñaban con valerosos ánimos, y las maneras de combatir." Finally Clavigero (Lib. VII, cap. II, p. 482) refers also to the 53d picture of the Mendoza Codex, representing a boy of fifteen years, who is turned over to an "achcauhtli, or officer," to be instructed in the art of war.

[99] Molina (Vocabulario II, pp. 66 and 72). P. Ignacio de Paredes ("Doctrina Breve ancada del Catecismo Mexicano," Reprint of 1869).

[100] Sahagun (Lib. III, cap. V, p. 269) says that, whereas they slept at home, that is, at the "house of youth," they ate with their families ("aunque comian en sus casas propias").

1:Vaillant A-5 (1928-1936)1941 NU7 Aztec NU7

the executive officials of the tribe in peacetime became its 701 military officers in time of war. There was no distinction made between the civil and military offices, since the tribe operated as an entity in both peace and war, and standing armies did not exist. (See Plate 34, bottom right.)

The soldiers were the able-bodied men of the tribe. The 702 telpuchcalli, houses of youth, through which boys passed [883] at the age of fifteen for formal instruction in the duties of manhood, taught them the usage of different weapons. Drill, in the sense of the accurate movements of modern troops, did not exist, but the great monthly ceremonies called for military demonstrations in which warriors showed their abilities and performed sham maneuvers. Each recruit followed an experienced warrior in battle, much as a mediaeval squire served an apprenticeship to a knight in full standing.

The chief offensive arms were wooden clubs, edged with 411 sharp blades of obsidian, and the javelin, hurled by means of the atl-atl. Bows and arrows were used, but the heavier javelins were preferred for the close fighting of Aztec warfare. Slings and spears were weapons favored by some. For de- 714 fensive armor shields of wickerwork covered with hide were most commonly in use, and some were elaborately painted or covered with feathers. The Aztecs also developed a body armor of quilted cotton, soaked in brine, which covered the whole body like an old-fashioned union suit. This was so effective a protection against clubs and missiles that the Spaniards rapidly adopted it, extolling it as cooler and lighter than steel armor.[7] Some warriors wore wooden helmets, which were elaborately carved to represent the insignia of the military orders. These had decorative rather than defensive values and added to the richness of costumes worn

11:Diaz T,H-5 (1519-1520) 1910
NU7 Aztec NU7

793 The hair
[302] of these priests was very long and so matted that it could not be separated or disentangled, and most of them had [304] their ears scarified, and their hair was clotted with blood.
Let us go on; there were other Cues, a little way from 346 where the skulls were, which contained other Idols and places of sacrifice [decorated] with other evil paintings.
[585] And they said that those idols were intercessors in the marriages of men. I do not want to delay any longer [342] telling about idols, but will only add that all round that great court there were many houses, not lofty, used and occupied by the priests and other Indians who had charge of the Idols. On one side of the great Cue there was another much larger pond or tank of very clear water dedicated solely to the service of Huichilobos and Tezcatepuca, and the water entered that pond through covered [883] pipes which came from Chapultepec. Near to this were other large buildings such as a sort of nunnery where many of the daughters of the inhabitants of Mexico were sheltered like nuns up to the time they were married, and [585] there stood two Idols with the figures of women, which were the intercessors in the marriages of women, and women made sacrifices to them and held festivals so that they should give them good husbands.

I have spent a long time talking about this great Cue of Tlaltelolco and its Courts, but I say that it was the greatest temple in the whole of Mexico although there were many others, very splendid. Four or five parishes or districts possessed, between them, an oratory with its Idols, and as they were very numerous I have not kept count of them all. I will go on and say that the great oratory that they had in Cholula was higher than that of Mexico, for it had one hundred and twenty steps, and according to what they say they held the Idol of Cholula to be good, and they went to it on pilgrimages from all parts of New Spain to obtain absolution, and for this reason they built for it such

X796 And the old women and the old men, those who 887 made and refined salt, and sold and trafficked in salt, 463 and those who dwelt in the salt marshes, drank wine.
273 Wine was drunk, and one became besotted. In their midst they poured out the wine in a flower-decked jar.

X796 One of the men poured out [the wine], and prepared it and distributed it. This one was not one who 273 had made [his wife] pregnant, whose wife was with child. If he who poured out the wine had made [his wife] with child, [then] he would not make one drunk; men would not be drunk. They would only counterfeit drunkenness; no one would become besotted [from] the wine.

And when the feast day had ended, when it had [578] been celebrated, at nightfall all then lay about. And some who were well-besotted insulted one another, or belabored others, or cried out at others. And at last they fell exhausted, and slept as they fell. And whoever yet had wine which he had left over, which he had left because he had been sated, which was named sleep-producing wine, afterwards, next day, he drank and finished it.

683 And any who had mishandled others, or brawled
X796 with them, or cried out at them, thereupon, when day broke, when they had come to their senses, supplicated [the injured ones to drink] this same wine, that they might satisfy them. And those who had not drunk, who had been cried out at or affronted, they let themselves be satisfied with [drinking] the wine; the offense was pardoned, and he held not against [the supplicants] their dispute, their injuries, etc.

Here ended and concluded the feast of Tecuilhuitontli.

iztachiuhqui, yn iztatlatique, youan yn iztanamacaque, yn iztanecujloque, yn iztapan tlaca: tlãtlaoana tlãtlaoano, mochãtlaoantia, tlanepantla xochapantica qujoalmana yn vctli:

cr tlacatl tetlaoantia, qujtetecq, qujtemamaca, amo ichoxi in tlavztia, in vztli ycioxuh. Auh intla tlauztia tetlaoanti, amo teiujntiz, amo yujntioaz: çan teyujcopina, niac itechquiçaz in vctli.

Auh yn onetz cemjlhujtl, yn oajlhujtlaque yn oiooac, mec netetecq: auh in cequjntin yn ovcliujntique, aço teixco, teicpac nemj, aço temjctia, aço tetzatzilia. Auh çatepan quaquauhtenuetzi, cocochi, cocochuetzi: auh yn aquja, yn oc qujcaoa vctli, in qujxujcaoa, itoca cochvctli, qujn imuztlaioc inqui, in qujtlamja:

auh yn aquja temicti, yn aço teocac, yn anoço tetzatzili, qujniquac yn otlatvic, yn omuzcali: çan ie no ie in vctli ic tetlatlauhtia, ynic tiolcevja. Auh yn aioni, in tzatzililonj, in pinauhtilonj, njman moiolcevja ynica vctli, motlapopolhuja, amo qujnolnamiquiliz, yn inneaoaliz, yn innemictiliz etc.

Nican tlamj, nican tzoouqiça in Tecujlhujtontli.

it, or reproach or revile him; [that he not be] cried out at, or in bad grace.

And when already it had dawned, guests would be procured; there would be receptions, and there would be invitations to dine. There was much preoccupation and bustling. All was put thoroughly in order. Paths were adorned; the courtyard was prepared; the ground was leveled and smoothed; earth was scattered on it; it was wet and sprinkled; sand was strewn on the surface; reed tips were arranged, suspended, laid out, and draped. There where there was to be dancing they were scattered.[6] This was the task and obligation of the musicians, who were in charge.

And some plucked and removed the feathers from birds, and dressed them; or slew, singed, and dressed dogs; or prepared and cooked meat, and braised it in pots. Some ground and powdered tobacco and with a heavy straw filled tubes with it. And among the males was the labor of the old women. They made tamales and wrapped them in husks. They made tamales using dried grains of maize; they made white ones with beans forming a seashell on top, and meat cooked with maize. They made tamales of meat. Some cooked the tamales in an olla. Some washed the maize grains which had been cooked in lime. Some carried and drew water, or poured it. Some broke up, ground, and pulverized cacao beans. Some mixed cooked maize with chocolate. Some cooked stews, or roasted chilis—different kinds of chilis. All night they remained there. Vigil was kept. They kept watch. There was constant awaiting of the light. They sat holding vigil and chattering.

And when it had dawned, thereupon there was sweeping in all parts, the laying out of straw mats in all places, and the setting out of seats. Straw beds were spread out, frayed and interwoven at the edges. Already was prepared and finish up all which might be required.

Already arranged in order, in their respective places, and assigned to their proper tasks, were those who were to be waiters, who were to serve. No longer was the host, he who had invited the guests, concerned; the case, all provision of comfort to others, had been assumed and taken over for him, so that there would be no neglect or carelessness.

---

6. In ibid., [illegible] follows [illegible].

574 [354]

ah in ie ollathui coctiom, nepiclos tecomocuaiou, ehca nenhamanalo, netetequipacholo, tlatlacencualo, whichiouilo, ithoualchichiouilo, tlatlaixmanalo, tlatlaiemualo, tlatlacujcujoa, tlaatemalo, tlaevililo, tlaatzelhujlo, tlaixcalhujlo, tolquatectecco, tlapipilolo, tolquatectli moteca, mopipilos, I vncli netoilos, tlatzetzclolo, ffin ichoti intequjuh incocol, cocoltilo, in cujcanjme.

574 252 [887]

ah in cequjn tlavivitla, tzoilhuivitla, tzolchichiou, itzcujnmjctia, itzcujnchichinoa, itzcujnchichiou, nacachichiou, nacapaouci, cócoztlatia, in cequjn yietlalchiou, yietlalxqualoua, yietema teçacatica, ah in nextitlan, ichoan intequjuh yn ilamatque quichiou tamalli, piqui, timalou, tlatlacioria, quatecuiculli quichiou, nacatlaoio, nacatamalli quichiou, cequjn tamalpaouci, cequjn nextamalpaca cequjn açaçaca, ztlatlacuj, stetecca, cequjn cacaouatl quirzamanja, cacaouateci, tlacuechou, cequjn tlanextlamalnelou, cequjn molchichiou, chilitzca, chichilitzca, çan ioh cricoal in nemoa tonçolo, tonçoa tonzçolo tlavilli quirtoc, chachalcoatoc, 574

ah yn ozlavizcalleuac, njman ie ic tlatlachpano, petlatetecco, icpaltetecco, çacapechtli moteteca, motevmoloa, tlatenvimollolli, ie ic tlaenoc, ie omocuecoentilli, in iequjch monenequia,

574 357

ie omotenepanoque, ie in mitmania, omotlequipantique, in tlatequipanoque, in tenamiquinque, aocmo quen ipti in teomotzqui, in tenamotzanj, ça iequjch yneccuitlavil in teca machiou, I tepantlaoa, in maca onxiccanalo, onjacaoalo,

[with them], and then went off carrying it. When they came to his presence, then they put it down; they laid it down for him.

And when it was already night, then the beloved old men and old women drank wine. In this manner they spoke: it was said, "They bathe [the god's] feet."

And when the fourth day had come, then ended the scattering of the branches. Then they threw away the branches. And when the fifth day came, then in truth was when [it was the feast] Teotl eco, with which ended the twenty days.

At midnight [the priests] prepared a flour of maize, which they pounded and pressed together, making it round [and flat] like a shield, and placing it upon a mat.

When [it was time that] all the gods should reach here, and arrive, they made preparations. All set themselves in motion, that the gods might arrive.

And the old priest, [the god's] aged one, named "He who keepeth the god," kept going back to look upon [the maize flour on the mat]. Often he looked upon it. Never did he rest. His office was only to look. Never did he leave his foot; [for] that which he watched, the maize flour, was called his "foot."

And when [the god] arrived, then he saw a small foot[print], which was there upon the maize flour, or at its edge; when he stood upon the [cake of] maize flour, it split.[7] Then it was plain that the gods had arrived.

Then he who kept the god said to them: "Verily, the lord hath deigned to come."

When this was heard, then [the priests] went in procession, blowing shell trumpets, to proclaim [the news] everywhere. Then by this was it known that in truth the gods had come.

And all the common folk thereupon went away and departed to lay offerings in their temples, the temples of the devils. All offered them balls of dough.

And when they had made the offerings, all was still,

And when night fell, in the same manner as they did [before], the old men and the beloved old women drank wine. It was said: "They bathe the feet of the gods who have come."

And the next day, then came Yacapitzinac, this Yacatecutli, who was the god of the merchants; and nauhtetl in coololoa, quauhcaxic in tetentiuh, mec quitequitiuh: in oacic ixpã mec contema, contemjlia.

Auh in jquac ic ioa, mec tlatlaoano, tlatlaoanalo, in ueuentzitzin, in jlamatzitzin: in juh quitoaia, quijlmach quicxipaca.

Auh in oacic ic navilhujtl, vncan ontlamj, in acxoitemalizztli: iquac quitepeoa in acxoiatl. Auh in oacic ic macujlilhujtl, in ic vel iquac Teutl eco, in ic ic ontlamj cempoalilhujtl:

ioalnepantla, in quichioaia, ioteztli, quitepitztlaliaia, quipachoaia, iocaltic injc quitlaliaia, petlapã in contlaliaia:

in jquac muchintin oalacia, hecoia in teteu, quicencaoaia, cemolinja, injc iecoia teteu:

auh in quacujlli, in jveveio, ioca: Teuoa, mocujtlacuepoinemj, in conjtta, achca in conjtta, aquĕmã motlalia, çan jc nemj in conjtta, aquĕman conjcxicaoa, in conjtta ioteztli, motenecoa: icxi.

Auh in ohecoc, vncan conjtta, icxitontli, in vncan icac, iotexpan: anoço itenco, in moquetza ioteztli, tezxitinj: njmã ic neci, ca ohecoque in teteu:

njman ic quioalitoa, in teuoa. Ca omecayi in tlacatl:

in ocacoc: njmã ic maantimoquetza in tlapitzalo, quixacutimomana: njmã ic macho, ca ohecoque in teteu.

Auh in jzquich macoualli, njman ic vivi, vivilo, in tlatlamanazque inteupã, in inteteupan diablome: çã moche in tlapololli, in quisanajlia:

auh in contlatlamanaloc, njman ic cactivetzi.

Auh in ic ioa: çan ie no ivi in quichioa, tlatlaoana in veveteque, in jlamatzitzin, quijlmach, quimjcxipaca in ohecoque teteu.

Auh in jauatlaioc, iquac hecoa in Jacapitzinac, injc Jacatecutli: pochteca intecuh catca, yca in Iacoçauh-

[7] This word ololoiz is explained by Molina (op. cit., p. 107): "Ololoiz quel cuando la tienen redondo como ololoiz la tortilla quando [illegible]" — "y ololoiz cuando vuelven los dioses, es porque el cuerpo ololoiz de Iesus de vuelo."

an offering, was richly arrayed and adorned. He bore an eagle claw device upon his back, which was surrounded by quetzal feathers. His holder was of eagle down in which were quetzal feathers. His flint knife was of gold. He carried a rosette on his back, which was made of paper, etc.

A man [priest] carried the mist rattle board upon his shoulder; he rattled it in three places. And when they had come to the place where Xilonen was to die, then the fire priest came to receive her. Before her he set up the rattle board, and rattled it, and with incense went forth to receive her, and cast it toward her.

And then they took her up to the Temple of Cinteotl. First they laid her upon the back [of a priest] —not upon the offering stone, but rather she died upon [a priest's] back. And those who died upon [a priest's] back, they called "those who have backs."

Thereupon she met her fate and [the sacrificing priest] severed her head. When she had [thus] suffered, when he had slain her, then he grasped her heart and planted it in the blue vessel. They who were well experienced knew where they cast it, where they required it.

And then all ate, for the first time, tortillas of green maize. For the first time the cane of green corn was offered and for the first time chewed, and likewise amaranth greens were newly cooked and once more the sweetness of flowers—the Caryophyllus mexicanus and tobacco flowers [—was smelled].

And at the Feast of the Great Lords, there was a dance which was the particular function of the women—old women, young women, mature women, little girls. The maidens, who had looked upon no man, were adorned with feathers and their faces were stained with paint.

Everyone made plain tamales and fruit tamales for themselves; they offered them as gifts to their gods.

And of the old men and the old women it was the exclusive privilege that they should drink wine. Never did a youth, a maiden, or a priest drink wine.

And if anyone was noted, great pains were taken that he be seized and put in jail, in the granary.[11] They all held council what might be done about it, and whether, perchance, they would punish him. [Evidence] was weighed; all discussed [his crime]. They determined whether [they would] show mercy; and if [they would] not show mercy, he was

11. See Plate 27.

muchichioa, quauhiztil in qujmama, quetzalli ynic moiaoatiuh, quãmoloctli, yn itecomaio ietiuh quetzalli cuztic teucujtlatl yn itecpaio ietiuh, ytlaquechpanioub ietiuh, amatl in tlachiuhtli, etc. 776 793 [30] [287]

Ce tlacatl qujquechpanoa, in aiochicaoaztli, ezcan in cacalaca: auh yn oacito yn vncan miquiz xilonẽ, njman quioalnamjquj in tlenamacac, ixpan qujoaltilquetza in chicaoaztli, qujcacalatza: yoan yiauhtli ic qujpalnamiquj, yuicpa qujoalchaiaoa. [534]

Auh ie ic contlecauja in cinteupan, çatepan conteca in tecujtlapan, amo techcac, çan tecujtlapan in miquja: auh yn icujtlapan mjcoaia, motocaiotia tepotzoa: 796

njman ie ic tlacoti, qujquechtequj, yn otlacotic, yn ocontlatlatique, njman ie ic conanjlia yn iiollo, xoxoubquj xicalco qujoallalia: ichoã qujmati in machiceque caica in campa qujtlalia, in campa qujnequja.

Yoan iquac iancujcan qualoia, in xilotlaxcalli: iancujcan tlamanalo, iancujcan moquaquaia in oozl: yoan iancujcan mopaoaci in oauhqujlitl, yoan iancujcan ynecu in auchitl, in cempoalxuchitl, in jesuchitl. [262 264]

Auh yn iquac in vei tecujlhujtl neztiloia, çan inneixcaujl in cioa, yn jlamatque, yn ichpopochti, yn iniolloco cioa cioapiltotonti: in ichpopochti yn aiacan qujita oqujchtli, mopotonjaia, moxaoaia. [302]

Ixquich tlacatl motamaluja monocotzaualujaia: qujntlatlamanjliaia, in intevoan. [868 273]

Auh in uetetque, yoan in jlamatque, çan inneixcaujl catca in tlaoanaia: çan njmã aiac tlaoanaia in telpuchtli, in tlamacazquj, yn ichpuchtli.

Auh intla aca, oiitoc, vel iujoj ic oaxoc, quauhcalco tlalilo, petlecalco: ipan nenonotzalo in tlein ipan muchioaz, yn aço qujxacutiaz nectitilo, neixpãtitilo: qujpantia intla ie ynemac: auh intlacamo ie ynemac, 796 273 689 their maguey plants;[14] so they showed special concern in order that their maguey plants would flow much and produce well. And so they offered gifts in the temple of Uitzilopochtli. There they offered their wine, which had been newly brewed, called octli; they went pouring it into bowls on which rested sucking tubes. And the ones who there partook of it were the already aged, called quauhcuetzpan, who already had the privilege of drinking wine. These drank; they continued drinking with the sucking tubes.

And he who was born on this [day], One Flint Knife, they said, would be valiant, a chieftain; he would gain honor and riches.

Likewise, if it were a woman, she would be of merit, gifted, and deserving. Her labors would be good; there would be wherewith to eat and drink; there would be nutrance. She would become rich and wealthy; courageous, strong, reckoned as a man, and hardy. She would give honor as a man. And, [among] all her gifts, she would speak well, be eloquent, give good counsel, and arrange her conversation and manner of speaking well in her home. She would be observant, of good memory, discreet, etc.

And Two Rain, and Three Flower, Four Crocodile, Five Wind, Six House, Seven Lizard, Eight Serpent, Nine Death, Ten Deer, Eleven Rabbit, Twelve Water, Thirteen Dog—all, in truth all, were as hath been told in their account. All went to be considered and were observed as of, and they followed, the same pattern. They were only one, regarded as only one in their relation and account, as they went in order there day by day, each one of the days in its proper place, so proceeding in order, one, two, three, henceforth[15] until they reached and completed the end of the day count, thirteen.

ontlaiez inmeuh: auh injc tlauenchioaia, in jtrupan Vitzilopuchtli: vmpa conmanaia in jmoc, in iancujcan tlachictli, in moteneoa vitztli, acatecomac, contecatimanj: vncan ipan icaca ce piaztli: auh in aquin vmpa vntlatlapaloaia, in ic chicacaque, in moteneoa quiveuetque: in ic innemac tlaoanalizztli, ieboan oanja, ic conjtimanj in piaztli:

782
274
[888]

auh in aquin ipan tlacatia, y, ce tecpatl quitoaia, oquichtiz tiacauhtiz, mauiztiz, mocujhtonoz:

787x

no iuhquj intla çioatl, maçoale iez, nemaque, illuijle, vel itla mailiz, oniez in quijquez, in quiz, vnca quiquanj iez, mocujhtonoz, motlacamatiz, ioan oquichnacaio, chicaoac, oquichtlamatiz, moquichpoez, oquichcheoaz, teoquichtlamachti iez: ioan much inemac vellatoz, motlatoltjmatiz, vel tenonotzaz, vellaotecpanaz, yicician, icacatian, in quitlaliz, tlatolli, vel iuz, iollo, moxcalianj iez. Et[a].

Auh in vme quiavitl, ioan ei xochitl, nauj cipactli, macujlli ẽcatl, chiquacen calli, chicome cuetzpalin, chicuei coatl, chicuauhi mijquiztli, matlactli maçatl, matlactlioce tochtli, matlactli omome atl, matlactlomej itzcuintli: in iaquich in çan moch iuhquj in jtlatollo omjio: çã much umpa iztiuh, çan moch vmpa tlachia, çan much vmpa tlaujca, cã ie ceneti, çan centetitiuh in jtlatlatollo, in jtoloca, in iuh tecpantiuh, in vncan tlacecemjlhujtilitiuj, cecentemo tonalzin, in jnicician ic tecpantiuj in ce, in vme, in ei: iaquichica, injc onacitiuh, injc ontlatlantiuh tonaltzontli matlatlactlomei.

---

14. Corresponding Spanish text: "Los sacerdotes de los magueyes, o sacerdotes que ensalzan el pulque, ensalzan, y agradecen los magueyes para que [illegible] bien en este digno; tenían que por agradecerles en este digno, no [illegible]."

15. Respecting Henkelle Gleichnisse Zeitrechnung [illegible] (Stuttgart: Verlagsanstalt [illegible], 1889). See [illegible] and [illegible] Gesellschaft, Series [illegible], for [illegible].

[p. 80 is blank]